VETERAN TELLS HUNTING STORIES

W. H. Hill Recounts Experiences of 39 Trips Into North Country.

HAS NOW RETIRED.

Every year of the past thirty-nine has seen W. H. Hill collect his hunting gear and flee to the northern lake district. This year the trusty musket hangs in its case on the wall and the deer which would inevitably have fallen prey to its whirling charge may now course freely through the underbrush if it escapes the hoard of other hunters bent on its destruction.

Forty years ago Mr. Hill started on his first trip. "I had heard tales about hunters being seized with 'buck fever' at the first sight of game, and fully expected that I would fall as a victim. Luck favored me, however, for I shot the first deer I ever aimed at. This was at Redston Lake, sixteen miles north of Haliburton, and I was the proudest man in that neck of the woods. Later, many of the fleet-footed denizens were to fall victims of my gun, but the thrill of that first success has never been equalled."

"Later came the happy days on Ketchecomba, when Harry Winch was president of the hunt club—W. G. Morrow is president now, and a good president he is. We have wonderful meals there, for our cook is the equal of any hotel chef. Two guides in our employ are well acquainted with the haunts of the deer."

The best season Mr. Hill had was at Jack's Lake, when five deer dropped at the voice of his weapon. One year at Ketchecome he killed two deer and a bear. Four shots accounted for the trio. J. D. Collins was the oldest hunter in the county, and he made his first kill in 1857, when he shot a deer near the Auburn Mill location, said Mr. Hill.

"I decided to take a rest this year," he said, in conclusion. "It is a mighty arduous trip, and as the saying goes, 'I'm not as young as I used to be.' The old urge didn't visit me as it usually does when the leaves come whirling down. Perhaps next year will see me clad in high boots and mackinaw again with a gun cuddled under my arm; but then, I may never go back. Possibly I may have taken my just toll of the forest."

Give Away Champagne In Chinese Restaurant

SHANGHAI, China, Nov. 12. — (United Press.) — The thirsty in arid America should take note of Shanghai as a pleasant port of call, for they're giving away champagne in Shanghai now, and it's guaranteed to be pre-war vintage.

Rivalry among the various cafes here has recently become so strenuous that one cafe proprietor, as a means of attracting patronage, is advertising extensively "A Niagara of Free Champaigne." Patrons of the cafe, on entering, are given numbered tickets, and drawings are conducted throughout the evening and night with a quart of champagne as the prize each time.

Canadian Teachers Told of Loop-holes in Immigration Barrier.

FROM OVERSEAS.

OTTAWA, Ont., November 12. — Loop holes in Canada's immigration barrier are allowing half-wits and sub-normal mentalities to slip into the Dominion and become absorbed in the population, according to a resolution which was framed at the afternoon session of the Canadian Education Association, here yesterday and which the association will be asked to endorse to-day.

The resolution, which was proposed by R. H. Cowley of Toronto, a leading educational authority, asks the Federal authorities to tighten its immigratoin restrictions.

Mr. Cowley declared, in presenting the resolution that he knew of a large number of cases among school children of Toronto, in which the children came into Canada from overseas during the past two or three years. He stated that he had proof of 35 cases of immigrant children who entered Canada during the past three years who are of sub-normal mentality and who will undoubtedly finally be a charge on the community.

These cases have been discovered in the city of Toronto alone and Mr. Cowley believed that they must be general in large Canadian cities.

Need New World Map.

Another important resolution offered by the Toronto educationist for the consideration of the association, affected a world map.

Mr. Cowley said that he had failed to find one proper map showing after-war conditions in the world. He suggested that the Resolutions committee of the association study recommendations that an up-to-date map of the world would be welcomed for use in Canadian schools. Such a map he suggested, should show the significance of the Singapore naval base in relation to world trade routes, the cruising areas of naval forces belonging to foreign powers, and the relation of British territory to the rest of the world as a result of post-war re-arrangement of countries.

These resolutions will be reported on at the association meeting today.

Baby Eczema
Soon Disappears with the use of Dr. Chase's Ointment

Only mothers who have witnessed the suffering of their babies when tortured by eczema fully appreciate the remarkable soothing, healing effects of Dr. Chase's Ointment.

Most babies at one time or another fall victims to skin irritations, chafing of the skin or eczema. For this reason it is a fine habit to always have at hand when bathing baby a box of Dr. Chase's Ointment. You never know when roughness and redness of the skin is going to develop into something more serious. A touch of Dr. Chase's Ointment keeps the skin smooth and velvety and prevents serious skin affections.

There are scores of uses for Dr. Chase's Ointment. Once it finds its way into the home it is soon considered indispensable.

DENOUNCES ABUSES.

Charges of lowering the tone of the public discussion were laid against political leaders in sermon by Rev. R. B. Cochrane, United Church pastor, in Toronto on Sunday. "I confess that I am somewhat disappointed as a Christian citizen at the abuse of each other indulged in by both of the leaders of the two great parties in Canada," he declared. "They both ought to be above imputing wrong motives to one another —calling each other names and descending to personal criticism."

SPECIAL PREACHER AT MADOC CHURCH

Rev. Lloyd Smith of Toronto Conducted Thanksgiving Services.

MADOC, November 12. — On Sunday last, Rev. Lloyd Smith of Toronto, conducted the Thanksgiving service in the United Church in the morning. He took his text from the 24th Psalm: "The earth is the Lord's and the fullness thereof."

Mr. Smith spoke of the devoutness and the relationship of God and man towards the material things of life. For instance the farmer and his crops—how they must wait on God, who supplies all needs; how this reacts on the miller; how the mines, steel, gold and silver, were related to the goodness of God.

He then touched on the programme of the United Church. The new church is the talk of the religious world. The general council of the United Church is made up of 350 members. The first step in the propagation of the church was the consecrating of the same and bringing before the people the full import of the church. It was not "Churchianity" but "Christianity" that was wanted.

The speaker discussed the great need of church work in the west and appealed to the young men of the church to give their life for the ministry He also told of the terrible conditions among the foreign elements or non-Anglo-Saxon races.

Four million dollars is required for the maintenance of the church which is divided among the three former denominations now as one. He explained how the different departments, such as missions, educational, etc., were now pooled under one heading, and one giving. He closed by remarking that the raising of the budget meant after all thankfulness to God for the many manifestations of His goodness shown to the church It show its thankfulness by keeping up God's work.

W.M.S. Meeting.

The W.M.S. of St Peter's Presbyterian church met at the home of Mrs Ellis on Thursday afternoon. Mrs. J. A. McCoy took the chair in the absence of the President. Mrs. E. West, and read a paper. Mrs. F. Jenkins reported the Presbyterial meeting held in Kingston last week, and Mrs. B Miller had the lesson for the day, dealing with five mission stations.

Mr. Charles O'Hara, Madoc's young old man, celebrated his 93rd birthday on November 2. He spent the morning calling on his many friends and in the afternoon motored to Belleville to attend the funeral of a life long friend, Mr. A. Diamond.

Mr. Diamond had been a member of Madoc Lodge, No. 48 A. F. and A.M., and the service was conducted under the auspices of this Lodge. Bro. O'Hara took part in the service at the grave, which was conducted by Wor. Bro. George West, assisted by Jesse Barlow, D.D G.M. The bearers, who were members of the Lodge, were Bros. A. Y. Snider, W. H Brooks, F. Diamond, E. E. Townley, Wor. Bro. W. J. Hill, Wor. Bro George Wright.

FORGET DIFFERENCES

Reviewing Past Seven Years Indicates Praiseworthy Efforts.

OTTAWA, Ont., Nov. 11 (By Canadian Press).—"Placing before the war veterans of Canada as a group the alternatives of either being "relegated to the national attic where articles that have outlived their usefulness are stored away" or of becoming "a living instrument of national service," Lieut.-Gen. Sir Richard Turner, V.C., Dominion President of the G.W.V.A. and National Veterans' Unity Trustee, today issued a stirring Armistice Day anniversary message. He calls upon Canadian veterans to forget the petty differences that have divided their ranks in the past, eliminate suspicion and distrust, and come together in a united organization. The text of the message follows:—

"In the hearts of those who fought and survived the conflict of 1914-18, the anniversary of Armistice Day has a place of transcending significance. Seared upon their memories is the recollection of the moment at the eleventh hour when the crash of shell, the rattle of machine gun, the crack of rifle, the menacing drone of the bombing plane and the numerous other accompaniments of modern warfare, ceased. After more than four years of death-dealing and facing death the realization that the conflict had actually ended the thought of the survivors turned to their comrades who had passed over 'the borderland of death,' and to them the great but invisible cenotaph of Memory was dedicated. There was a general resolve that the sacrifices of the dead should not be in vain, that from the hideousness and carnage of war there should arise a new civilization and a world-wide brotherhood which would eliminate war for all time.

"On this anniversary occasion we pause for a moment to glance backward over the seven years that have intervened since the first Armistice Day. We see—not the world of our early visions and high resolve—but a world, first absorbed in riotous pleasure-seeking, followed by the bitter struggles for the very means of existence, even among those who had nobly fought and suffered for their country. We see a renewal of the jealousies and dickering that were antecedent to the Great War. But, rising slowly and surely, we see also the struggle against almost overwhelming odds of the few who have sought to keep faith.

"As Canadian war veterans, let us examine briefly our efforts during the past seven years. Much has been done in bringing justifiable betterment in the provisions for the care of the disabled and the dependent. There has been much praise-worthy effort, as individuals and as organizations, in attempting to meet the problem of the needy. There have been sporadic efforts towards community and national service. On the other hand, whether from economic pressure or other causes, many of us have made no effort to translate our war service into peacetime service. We have permitted factions and cliques to arise and divide our ranks and give to the public an unfavourable and untrue impression of war veterans generally. We have allowed the nation to designate and think of us as 'ex-service' rather than as 'service' men. Seven precious years have slipped away, and with them have gone golden opportunities for united action for the good of the nation, of the Empire and of the world.

"Looking to the future, shall we permit ourselves as a group to be relegated to the national attic where articles that have outlived their usefulness are stored away? Or shall we revitalize that precious bond of comradeship forged in the fires of war, making it a living instrument of national service? Shall we honor and fulfil our obligation to those 60,000 good comrades who lie in Flanders Field?

"Canadian veterans: In the name of those who have passed on I appeal you to forget the petty differences that have divided our ranks, to destroy the viper of suspicion and distrust which has ranged unchecked among us, to catch anew the vision which carried you to the heights of heroism and self-effacement on the battlefields, to be true to your comrades and yourselves, to regard the memories of this anniversary occasion as a symbol of a new and greater service—to unite.

(Signed) R. E. W. TURNER."

THURSDAY, OV 12, 19[illegible]

A HUGE CROP.

The Canadian wheat crop, according to a report just issued by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics, is even bigger than the preliminary estimate made by the Bureau in September indicated, being now estimated at 422,327,000 bushels, or 30,508,000 bushels larger than the early predictions.

This is the second largest wheat yield in the history of Canada, being surpassed only by the crop of 1923, and the Government estimate will be highly gratifying, not only to the Western producers, but to the country generally.

Good prices are assured, and the effect of such a tremendous crop should be felt by business and industry, inasmuch as it is assured that the buying power of the Western farmers will be very materially increased as a result of this year's yield.

The announcement of such a splendid crop is accompanied by London despatches indicating that Canadian wheat growers will have an ideal selling field for some time to come in the European grain market.

"PLEASE" AND "THANK YOU."

An American "Thank You" League has been organized across the border for the purpose of teaching the people of the United States the wisdom and desirability of being polite at all times whether in their social relations or in their business intercourse.

There is not, either in the United States or in this country for that matter, enough attention paid to this question of politeness and descourtesy, and even rudeness are replacing the old-time insistence upon courteous speech.

Recently th Bell [illegible]elephone Company issued orders to its operators to say "Number, please" in answering a call, and the new form has made a favourable impression upon a public used to the more snappy "Number" that formerly was employed.

How about the telephone patrons?

Are they reciprocating?

Are they saying, "123, please," or merely barking out the number?

Too many are omitting the "please" and neglecting to say "Thank you."

And it is true, not only in telephone intercourse, but generally.

A church displays a sign on its lawn warning trespassers to keep off, and "please" is forgotten.

The curt sign reads, "Keep off the grass."

A small matter it may seem, but the "please" and "Thank you" habit, if generally followed, would mean a great deal to the community.

Why not a little more of it in Peterboro?

GETTING OUT THE VOTE.

Adopting the slogan, "Vote as you like—but vote," a Toronto committee representative of many service organizations in the Queen City has launched a campaign to induce Toronto electors to take more interest in the municipal election.

It is a movement that seems to be needed in every city in the Province, judging by the comparatively small vote usually polled in municipal contests.

The task of choosing a board of management for a municipality is left to about half of the electors.

That has been the case in Peterboro and generally throughout the Province, except on occasions when an issue of more than usual interest has brought out a larger vote.

The coming municipal election will be one of these occasions, inasmuch as the two controversial questions of Sunday bathing and daylight saving are to be settled by the electors, and people who have never before bothered to mark a municipal ballot will use their franchise here in January.

Daylight saving plebiscites do not form part of every municipal election, and what is needed more than anything else is a realization on the part of the ratepayers that this matter of choosing a civic government is a business proposition which if mishandled or neglected can only mean increased taxation and inefficient administration of the city's affairs.

The Toronto campaign to secure a more general expression of public opinion will be watched closely by people everywhere who know that the present indifference to municipal affairs cannot be regarded as a healthy symptom.

WHY NOT NOVEMBER 11?

Many Canadians are concerned that in attempting to combine Thanksgiving Day and the observance of Armistice Day a serious mistake has been made.

The celebration of the end of the war should take place, they feel, on the actual anniversary, not two or three days before.

In Peterboro the Armistice Day ceremonies were held on Sunday, so that this city failed to share in the Empire-wide observance of the anniversary of the end of the war yesterday.

Peterboro people wore the flower of remembrance on Saturday last for the most part, not so generally on Sunday, and yesterday, the day on which poppies should really have been worn, there were not any more in sight than there were Union Jacks.

Even the two-minute silence in memory of the Empire's war dead lost much of its effect here.

Except in factories and business places, it was not generally observed.

It was noticeable on the streets that pedestrians failed to stop when the factory whistles sounded the beginning of the period, and that vehicular traffic, except in a few cases, was not suspended.

With the programme of the Great War Veterans' Association there is no fault to be found—except that it should be carried out on November 11th, and for that failure Parliament, and not the veterans, are to blame.

If it is considered desirable to combine Thanksgiving Day and Armistice Day, the feeling is growing that the double event should be observed on November 11th.

That date means too much in Canadian history to be side-tracked merely to provide a week-end holiday.

PAYS THE PENALTY.

Years ago when one country after another in Europe, and particularly Russia, were sending forth people who were fleeing from persecution or plotting against government, all these emigres found a safe refuge in Great Britain, says the St. Catharines Standard. England was the harbor which all ought, because there was the greatest freedom found and there was also immunity against arrest for purely political misbehaviour. This policy has now been stopped in Britain, but Britaind is paying the penalty nevertheless for having once been the harbor of so many plotters.

The strictest precautions are being taken at British ports to keep out Communists and others of that ilk, who are endeavoring to come to England and foment revolution. This is not difficult in itself. The trouble the Home Office is encountering, however, is what to do with the sons and grandsons of the plotters who came fifty years ago. They are now British subjects and cannot be expelled.

The other day a batch of Communists were arrested, and Johnson-Hicks, the British Home Secretary, is responsible for the statement that not one of them was an alien, but all came of anything but British [illegible] a generation ago.

Canadians are naturally impatient at the nuisance of the present passport system, but this "alien peril" which Britain is facing is more serious than generally regarded, and has aroused governmental energy. It can be quite understood, in view of Bolshevik propaganda, why the British authorities still insist on Canadians having their passports. The system would not be quite so much of a nuisance if application for passports was passed upon with a little more despatch at Ottawa, so as to ensure that legitimate travellers be not held up at loss of business and sometimes cancellation of passage on outgoing liners.

MR. WATTS WRITES A LETTER.

Harvey M. Watts of Philadelphia, in a letter to the New York Times, has nothing but contempt for the "hysterical, self-abnegating Americans" who doubt the wisdom of claiming for citizens of United States the exclusive right to the name "Americans." He claims "we have every right to the title Americans and to the name America."

If Mr. Watts will take his geography and look at the continent on which he lives he will notice that it is marked North America; he will also see that there are two chief divisions following in a general way the forty-ninth parallel with the exception of the Great Lakes district which causes the northern division to dip a considerable distance to the south. One of these is marked United States and the other Canada. Continental United States, that is excluding Alaska, contains 3,026,789 square miles, while Canada has 3,810,395. Together, with Mexico and the neck of land that tapers off toward Panama, they form the continent of North America.

Yet geography plays small part in Mr. Watts' ideas. He is certain that "we are the Americans and United States is America." The right to the name was established early in the eighteenth century, and the exclusive privilege to these names is "logical and natural and right, historically and politically and philosophically and poetically."

Mr. Watts does noth think much of Canada, for he says when United States was earning the right to be called America "Canada was then, and is today, a comparatively insignificant settlement of Europeans on this continent." Probably if Mr. Watts were to come to Canada on a visit he would bring with him a set of blankets, two or three rifles, a compass and a pocketful of glass beads to trade with the Indians.

Canadians will not pick a quarrel with Mr. Watts, nor will they ask him to desist from his overblown rhetoric. If he finds that great patriotic emotions well up within him that must find voice in the words, "this is America, we are the Americans," that is entirely his own affair, and if he can find an appreciative audience, so much the better. He wrote his letter to a New York paper. If he happens to be in that city he can go to the Metropolitan Opera and hear a Canadian tenor and a Canadian contralto; if he happens to telephone to see if his next letter will be printed he will use a Canadian invention; if he eats bread made from the best flour he may be dumfounded to know he is being built up by Canadian wheat; if he has nickel trimmings on his car he can be sure they came from Canada, and if he goes into Wall street he will find that the dollar of "this insignificant settlement of Europeans" is standing a trifle higher than the currency of the land of which he sings with such abandon.

If Mr. Watts cares to go farther he will find very serious-minded jurists in United States going over crime statistics and stating openly that British ideals of justice, such as are observed in Canada, are immeasurably better than their own. Had he been a close student of current history he would have recalled that United States passed a quota law against immigrants from all countries in the world with the one exception of this "insignificant settlement of Europeans." Were he to look into census figures of his America of the Americans he would have found by the 1920 census that 76.4 per cent. of the population of New York was foreign born.

Had Mr. Watts been very studious he could have read in the Saturday Evening Post, published in his own city of Philadelphia, the following from the issue of October 24: "Canada has never indulged in shortcuts to growth and prosperity. Her immigration policy has always been a cautious one, dictated largely by a desire to keep the original stock undiluted. Canadians seem to feel that the wiser course is to grow slowly rather than to profit by a boom in population, and any one who considers the problems that our old free and easy policy has created for us must applaud her decision."

It might pay Mr. Watts to look around; he could find plenty of material that would add to the sum total of his fund of knowledge without any crowding.—London Advertiser.

Where are the candidates for the mayoralty? The line forms on the left, gentlemen.

Do your thinking about Christmas presents early. The recipients will benefit as well as the merchants if you don't leave most of your planning until the last few days.

How about your Christmas parcels for the Old Country? The mailing of these should not be delayed much longer.

PETERBORO AND LINDSAY BIDS

For Equipment Required By Winnipeg Hydro Power Plant.

WINNIPEG, Man., Nov. 12 (Canadian Press) — Eight firms representing manufacturing interest in four countries submitted bids for new turbines and generator required by the Winnipeg Hydro to complete installation of equipment at the Point Du Bois power plant.

The Canadian Boving Company, Lindsay, Ont., submitted the low bid of $88,920 on the turbines. Other bidders were John Inglis Company of Toronto, the Canadian Allis Chalmers Company and the Canadian Vickers Company, Montreal.

The Swedish General Electric Company, bidding through its Canadian office in Toronto tendered the lowest bid for generators, $43,700. Other bidders for this equipment were the Canadian General Electric Company, Peterboro, Ont., C. A. Parsons, Newcastle-on-Tyne, and the Canadian Westinghouse of Hamilton, Ont.

The Civic Committee referred to tenders to Hydro engineers for tabulation and a report to the City Council.

A THOUGHT.

LIVES LONGER THAN LIFE.

Kindness lives longer than life. One may never know just how far kindness may go.

We all know that it pays to be kind and this knowledge inspires me to believe that most of us want to be kind but there are some people who seem always to be looking for anything but kindness in the other fellow, and when they discover exactly what they are looking for they claim to be surprised.

Mighty few men set out to be mean—the trouble is we often think they are unkind and in thinking this, we show what we think. Rather than disappoint us, they meet our expectations.

We create much of the so-called "meanness" in others. When your contending passions displace the features of your face is it not reasonable to assume that the other fellow can see and understand?—for the secrets of your intentions are written on your countenance as surely as a dog's tail wags when the dog is friendly.

The eyes are the windows of your inside intentions and the contour of your mouth tells without words. The latitude and longitude lines on your forehead indicate much. The whole countenance is a legible as an open book printed in fourteen point type.

The human face is not fixed like a billboard. The sensations show. It is seldom that others will hand you a rose when you give them a look that resembles a bouquet of garlic.

We all agree that we get what we give. If someone is mean to you go out and buy a muzzle, wear it, and remember this: Even an ugly bulldog is often a acceptable companion when his jaw is in a wire jail.

When you approach another person with hatred in your heart, with some mean trick up your sleeve, our face flashes the news as strikingly as the headlines of an extra. Without a word you may look a sentence.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE.

FROM MR. NEWTON

The Editor,
Peterboro Examiner,
Peterboro, Ont.

It has come to my notice that certain rumors are being circulated respecting my nationality, and that certain malicious parties are saying that I am not a British subject.

My father was born in England, and was a natural born British subject. He emigrated to Canada at an early age married my mother, who was a natural born British subject. I have never lost my British nationality and Canadian citizenship, and am now, and always have been a British subject and Canadian citizen.

Thanking you for your valuable space, I remain, Yours faithfully,

CATTLE, GRAIN AND PRODUCE

Peterboro—Toronto—Montreal Winnipeg

TORONTO LIVESTOCK

TORONTO, Nov. 11.—Of the 6,320 cattle listed at the Union Stock Yards on Tuesday, 4,428 were sold. Receipts since yesterday morning are 205 cars, 2,593 cattle, 747 calves, 3,111 hogs, and 1,909 sheep and lambs. There was a good trade in cattle on Tuesday, and prices of beef cattle with any fat were 25 cents a cwt. higher, and the advance exceeded this in good heifers. Rogers & Maybee were able to collect 400 head for export at steady prices. Their top steers cost $8 a cwt., and heifers $7.40 a cwt. Export bulls were $4.75 to $5.50 a cwt.

There is a steady demand for Western stockers and feeders, and Eddied Bowman has 200 going out this morning from $4.10 to $5.75 a cwt., the latter a load of 1,050-lb. feeders. There are very few good butchers on sale this morning. One bunch of four, two good and two only passable sold at $6.50 a cwt., and a load of just good handyweights sold at $6.35 a cwt. The exporters got a few steers from $5.75 to $7.50 a cwt., and heifers, $5.75 to $6.60 a cwt. A small bunch of baby beeves brought $9 to $10 a cwt. A heavy run of canner cows was disposed of at an average of $2.50 a cwt. This morning's trade indicates a clean up this week.

Buyers are picking up a few calves for Buffalo, but the selection is not nearly as good as a month ago. Good to choice calves were up 50 cents a cwt today, and others were firmer by 25 cents.

Hogs have turned firmer again, and no sales were made below $11 a cwt. f.o.b. on Tuesday. There was a mysterious silence regarding today's price, which might mean a further rise to $11.25 a cwt. f.o.b., which salesmen were asking and fully expect to get.

EGG MARKETS

OTTAWA, Nov. 11 (Canandian Press).—Egg markets continue firm at recent advances. Storage stocks have a stronger undertone following the recent improvement in prices, in the United States centres.

Toronto—Jobbing, fresh specials 64, extras 62, firsts 50, seconds 35, storage extras 43, firsts 40, retailing, fresh specials 75 to 90, extras 70, firsts 60, seconds 40, storage extras 48, firsts 40.

Montreal—Prices for fresh stock are well maintained under a good steady demand. Sales of specials were made at 70, extras 63, firsts 58. The trade in storage stocks was fairly active and prices ruled firm at extras 44 to 45, firsts 40 to 41, seconds 35.

Saskatchewan — Markets are steady with storage stocks supplying local demand. Dealers are paying country points, extras 31 to 37, firsts 31 to 35, seconds 25 to 30.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE

MONTREAL, Nov. 11 (Canadian Press). — There continues to be a steady enquiry from United Kingdom buyers for grain on the Montreal market in nearby positions, and a moderate amount of business was done in Manitoba spring wheat and oats. In the domestic market, exporters were asking for No. 1 Northern wheat and sales of several loads were made at 12 1-2 cents per bushel over the Winnipeg Novmber option, c.i.f. Montreal.

The trade in oats was inactive and the tone of the market was easy with car lots of Ontario and Quebec No. 2 white quoted at 52 cents, No. 3 white at 50 1-2 cents and No. 4 white at 49 cents per bushel, ex-track, and sales of odd cars of Ontario malting barley were made at 85 1-2 cents per bushel.

In Winter wheat flour the feeling remains very firm owing to the limited supplied available from Ontario millers and the small stocks held on spot in first hands. The demand at present is rather quiet owing to the fact that buyers in most cases seem to have ample on hand for immediate wants, and in consequence business was quiet. White corn flour was steady at $6.80 to $7 per barrel in jute bags, delivered to the trade.

According to cable advices received from Liverpool and Manchester today a weaker feeling has prevailed in the markets of late and prices have declined, Canadian baled hay now being quoted at 75s per ton, c.i.f. The tone of the local market was steady with a fair amount of business passing for local and outside account.

There was no actual change in prices for potatoes, but the undertone to the market was easier, which was attributed to the decreased demand from United States buyers on account of the embargo that has been placed on them, therefore the volume of business was smaller, but the impression of some in the trade here is that as the Canadian crop was smaller than usual, they will all be wanted before another harvest at probably higher figures.

Butter to Advance.

It was reported that the local manufacturers of butter would advance their wholesale jobbing prices 2 cents per lb. on Friday. This tended to increase the demand from grocers and other dealers for supplies and a more active trade was done in finest creamery at 44 cents per lb. in solid packages and at 45 cents per lb in 1 lb. blocks.

The receipts of cheese yesterday were 8,771 boxes, as against 3,937 for the same day last week, and 14,370 for the corresponding day a year ago. The market was without any new feature to note, business in all directions being still very quiet which indicates that English importing houses are not very anxious for supplies at present.

Beans were unchanged at $2.40 per bushel.

STERLING RATES

MONTREAL, Nov. 11 (Canadian Press). - Sterling exchange rates were quoted here today as follows:

Sterling demand $4.83 7-8.
Sterling cables $4.84 1-4.

RADIO AUDIENCE GIVEN PRIORITY CONSIDERATION BY CONFERENCE

Free Speech To Be Held Inviolate and Monopoly in the Industry To Be Prevented—Fewer Stations Recommended.

FOURTH ANNUAL CONFERENCE.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 12.—(Canadian Press).—A report containing broad recommendations for the solution of major problems in every branch of radio endeavor was adopted at the concluding session yesterday of the fourth national radio conference.

Containing recommendations for legislation covering radio regulations, for sharply reducing the present number of broadcasting stations to relieve congestion, and for the elimination of interfering elements in radio reception, the report was described by Secretary Hoover, chairman of the conference, to be the most far-reaching and constructive yet made.

He indicated that the proposals in the report for solution of various problems would become in a general way, the temporary policy of his department in its regulation of radio communication, but expressed doubt as to the wisdom of placing such broad powers as were outlined in the hands of any one governmental office.

One of the most important actions of the conference, in Secretary Hoover's opinion, was its declaration that service to the radio listener should be the prime consideration in all efforts of the industry and its regulations. He said no other industry had brought up from its infancy with such an attitude.

Under the resolution adopted, no major alterations will be made in present wave length assignments, and minor changes will be confined almost entirely to the field outside the broadcasting band.

Prevent Monopoly.

The legislative recommendations provided that administration of all radio legislation be vested in the Secretary of Commerce, with authority to appoint such advisory boards and committees as he might deem necessary; that the doctrine of free-speech be held inviolate; that monopoly in the industry be prevented and that broadcasting licenses be granted only to those who, in the opinion of the Secretary, would render beneficial service to the public or contribute to the development of the art.

The President, under the program, would be given authority to commandeer or discontinue all broadcasting stations in time of national emergency, and decisions of the Secretary of Commerce could be appealed to the courts. Station call letters would be recognized by law as property rights during the life of broadcasting licenses, which the Secretary could suspend or revoke when their holders had not lived up to their terms.

Applies to Ships.

Further, the re-broadcasting of programs would be prohibited except by permission of the originating station, and the Secretary would be given power to enforce regulations against interference from radio sources, while ships in United States waters would be required to meet regulations set up by the Department.

RICH RUM SHIP MAY BE SEIZED

Big Liner With $1,500,000 Cargo From Havana Off New York.

LAUNCH CAPTURED.

NEW YORK, No. 12.—(Canadian Press).—Seizure of the Ward Line steamship Orizaba, worth more than $1,500,000, by the government as a rum-runner, was recommended by customs officials yesterday. The recommendation followed seizure after a running gun battle in the East River of a rum laden speed boat said to have been engaged in transporting liquor from the Orizaba to some point along the shore.

Numerous reports of liquor coming into this city from Havanna have been received by the authorities and when the Orizaba arrived Tuesday from Cuba customs men were stationed to watch the ship.

The special service squad of customs inspectors, observing a launch alongside the liner, gave chase and fired more than 40 shots. They declared they were fired on in return. Two men leaped into the water as the launch approached the dock and the other leaped to the dock. All made their escape. One hundred demijohns of rum were seized, on the craft.

Assistant Solicitor of Customs Barnes immediately recommended to U.S. Attorney Buckner that the large vessel, which arrived Tuesday from Havana, be seized. If proceedings are instituted against the Orizaba, it will be the first time the government has sought to libel so large a steamship for a prohibition law violation.

SOVIET RELAXING.

Allows Inheritances of Five Thousand Dollars in Russia.

MOSCOW, Nov. 12 (Canadian Press) — The Soviet government made a distinct departure from doctrines of pure communism yesterday in allowing the law which set the legal limit for inheritances in Russia at $5,000. Henceforth Russians may inherit fortunes without limit.

In spite of the government's severe opposition to private trade many Russians in recent years have accumulated fortunes but have withheld them from investment in internal enterprises, the government thereby losing the benefit of active capital. It is to remove this condition that the new measure was introduced.

REBEKAH CARD PARTY.

MILLBROOK, Nov. 12.—"Golden Sheaf" Rebekah Lodge, No. 176, held a successful euchre on Friday evening, twenty-one tables being in use, and a most enjoyable time was spent.

The guests included, not only local members and friends, but a number who had motored in from the surrounding country as well.

Play continued until 11 p.m., when score cards were collected and supper was served. The winners were, for the ladies, Mrs. Will Armstrong, first, and Miss Ada Attwooll, consolation; for the gentlemen, Mr. J. J. Clarke, first, and F. N. Alcorn, consolation.

Music, dancing, social converse, and further card-playing for those who preferred this form of entertainment, brought a pleasant gathering to a close.

ANNIVERSARY OF ARMISTICE DAY MARKED BY REVERENTIAL SPIRIT OF THRONGS IN ALLIED CAPITALS

Devotion to Memory of the Fallen Replaces Gayety of Other Years.

LONDON REMEMBERS.

Public Ceremonies at Tombs of British and French Unknown Soldiers.

LONDON, Nov. 12 (Canadian Press) — Reverence, not revelry, marked the commemoration of Armistice Day in Great Britain. A two minutes silence was observed with the established ceremonial by the members of the Royal Family, the peers and the people, thronged around Whitehall Cenotaph in the morning, and similar solemnity in large measure characterized the whole day, which in London ended with an impressive service of remembrance in Albert Hall, where other armistice anniversaries had been brought to a close with riotous balls.

Instead of the conspicuous gayety and historical joy of the first Armistice Day, which for some years has been the accepted method of celebration in London and other places, the efforts of patriotic, ex-service and church organization were to a degree successful in restoring to the occasion its significance as one for devotion to the memory of the fallen.

The Prince of Wales spent part of the afternoon with six hundred crippled veterans, who were his guests at the Royal Riding Academy in the rear of Buckingham Palace and last night, he attended a Masonic meeting and dinner.

Parades in Paris

PARIS, Nov. 12—From war-torn Syria and Morocco to the Arc de Triomphe in Paris, France and Frenchmen everywhere honored the memory of the Unknown Soldier yesterday. More than 50,000 Parisiennes crowded the streets around the Arch for the morning ceremonies. The British and United States Legions in the afternoon paraded the Champs Elysees and laid wreaths on the tomb in the presence of General Gouraud, Military Governor of Paris, who lighted the flame of remembrance.

Throughout the provinces the day was religiously observed, but Paris was a little gloomy over the financial and cabinet crisis.

Gotham's Silent Prayer

NEW YORK, Nov. 12—A city-wide observation of a two minute period of silent prayer, and a colorful parade of veterans and patriotic organizations along Fifth Avenue marked the city's observation of the seventh Armistice anniversary.

Devoid of the outburst of mingled joy and grief that accompanied the first armistice day, and to a less degree, the other anniversaries, Wednesday's celebration was quiet, reaching its apex in the two minute pause of the city's activities.

Fifth Avenue was hung with flags and lined with a throng of 90,000 spectators as a column of veterans and patriotic organizations, 20,000 persons in all, filed past on its way from Madison Square to The Mall in Central Park.

Ructions in Dublin

DUBLIN, Nov. 12—Baton charges and shots fired over the heads of the crowds by the Civic police were necessary to clear the streets last night after a day of suppressed excitement and demonstrations for and against observance of Armistice Day. In counter demonstrations crowds of youths in military formation marched through the streets singing and cheering for the Irish Republic.

The hospitals treated fifteen injured, three of them seriuosly. One ex-serviceman died from injuries received in a fight in a public house arising out of an armistice celebration argument. At times the police were powerless to disperse huge crowds which were addressed by Republican speakers.

BULLS BATTLE MARKET BEARS

Industrial Stocks Regain Half Tuesday's Losses—New High For Rails.

CAUTION ADVISED.

NEW YORK, Nov. 12.—(Canadian Press).—Speculators for the advance staged a remarkable buying demonstration in yesterday's stock market in an obvious attempt to prove that the "bull market" was not avert, despite Tuesday's dramatic collapse of quoted prices.

Industrial stocks, as indicated by the average of twenty leading issues recovered approximately half of Tuesday's loses while railroad stocks not only made up all their lost ground but swept forward to a new high level for all time. Yesterday's total sales were computed at 2,604,600 shares, as against the record-breaking total of 3,340,000 reached in Tuesday's momentous session.

Powerful financial forces working for higher prices called attention to the fact that fundamental business conditions were sound, even though speculation for the rise had been carried to excess in many issues. The buying movement, which they set in motion was given impetus by the easing of call money rates, the resumption of dividends on American Sugar Refining common, the publication of favorable weekly steel trade reviews, rumors of forthcoming increased and extra dividend distributions, and the rally in cotton future.

Many of the larger commission houses, however, continued to send out cautionary advices, some of them urging a restriction a commitments on the long side pending the meeting of the Governors of the New York Federal Reserve Bank this afternoon when the question of the re-discount rate will be taken up. The raising of the Boston Federal Reserve Bank rate from 3½ to 4 percent. was generally blamed for Tuesday's break in prices.

A dainty and appetizing tea was served at the conclusion of the meeting. Mrs. Jackson and Mrs. Wm. Byers were the hostesses for tea.

KING GEORGE IS GUEST OF PEER

Hunting on Preserves of Wealthy Earl of Iveagh.

LONDON, Nov. 12 (Canadian Press)—For the next few days the Prince of Wales must share the sporting limelight with his father, who left London Wednesday afternoon for Elveden Hall in Suffolk, to visit one of his richest subjects, the Earl of Iveagh, and to do some hunting. The Earl's preserves include thousands of acres of land that is too poor to be farmed profitably, but from which a bag of 1,000 pheasants and 500 partridges has been known to fall to half a dozen guns in a day's shooting.

The Earl, who is 78 years old, has a travelling kitchen to accompany his hunting parties and other arrangements on a similarly luxurious scale, with butts throughout the estate connected by telephone with the main hall.

In his youth King George was one of the crack shots of the kingdom and still is something of a sharp-shooter.

GERMANS AVOW PEACE ACTION

Note to Allies Declares Fulfilment of Versailles Treaty Demands.

CURB VON SEECKT.

PARIS, Nov. 12. — (Canadian Press).—Germany's reply to the Council of Ambassadors on the subject of disarmament was handed to Foreign Minister Briand by Ambassador Von Hoesch last evening.

It is understood that the document shows a real disposition on the part of Germany to achieve genuine disarmament and an earnest effort to fall into the spirit of the Locarno agreements. It is felt in Paris that the notes gives the Ambassadors' Council satisfactory assurance that the provisions of the disarmament clauses of the Treaty of Versailles have been fulfilled, and it is expected that the evacuation of the Cologne area will be ordered beginning December 1.

The main features of the German note are assurances that the following measures are being or will be carried out; curtailment of the authority of General Von Seeckt as commander of the Reichswehr, suppression of military training in athletic organizations, demilitarization of police officials above the maximum of 150,000 men, confiscation of all weapons declared illegal by the Versailles Treaty and the destruction of 22 heavy pieces of artillery.

THANKSGIVING DAY IN OMEMEE CHURCH

Rev. Mr. McIntosh of Lindsay Was the Special Preacher.

OMEMEE, Nov. 12—Thanksgiving was duly observed in the United Church on Sunday and Monday. The church was beautifully decorated for the occasion with chrysanthemums, potted plants and cedars through which peeped myriads of tiny flags placed there in honor of the men who fought and died for freedom.

The Sunday services were in charge of Rev. Mr. MacIntosh, of Lindsay, who delivered two inspiring messages taking for his text in the morning, "And why call ye me, Lord, Lord, and do not the things which I say"—Luke 6-46. In the evening, a full congregation greeted the speaker and all were delighted with the discourse. The text was from Revelations 2-11, "He that overcometh."

The anthems rendered at the morning service were, "I will give thanks unto Thee, O Lord", with bass obligato by Mr. Roy Marshall and "Blessed is that Land," with soprano solo and obligato by Mrs. Harold Laidley. At the evening service, the choir rendered a rousing anthem entitled "I will Magnify Thee", as well as a quartette entitled "There's a friend in the homeland" by Misses Lowe and Parsons and Messrs. Lowe and Corneil.

At five o'clock on Monday evening the fowl supper which had been announced was started and continued until nine o'clock, when over five hundred and fifty healthy appetites had been fully satisfied. There was an abundance and a variety of fowls etc., left and many were comments from Lindsay and Peterboro visitors on the liberality of the servings, and after the hungry throngs had been duly satisfied, a social was announced to take place on Tuesday evening, when a splendid supper was again served for fifteen cents.

The Monday evening programme consisted of duets, trios and solos from Peterboro talent with stringed instrument accompaniment while the elocutionary portion of the programme was given by Miss Maloney of Peterboro. Addresses were given by Rev. A. T. Weir of Christ Church, and Rev. E. W. Rowland, pastor of the United church. The singing of the National Anthem brought to a close this annual event. Proceeds ran in the region of $300.

Truck Was Taken.

Mr. Galbraith, a local business man, lost his truck which was stolen from the side of his residence last week. The theft took place about 2 a.m., nearby neighbors having heard the car being driven from the yard at that hour. Information was given the Lindsay police shortly afterwards which resulted in the finding of the truck on the middle of the road near Fee's Landing, it having been deserted for want of water and gasoline. The damage done amounted to twenty-seven dollars. Detective Storey is working on the case.

Rug Stolen.

The meanest man who attended the fowl supper in Omemee on Monday evening was probably one who stole the rug from the engine of Mr. Albert Carroll's auto, while he and his wife were enjoying the dinner at the United church.

W.M.S. Meeting

The regular monthly meeting of the Women's Missionary Society of the United Church was held on Thursday afternoon in the Sunday School room. The president, Mrs. E. W. Rowland, occupied the chair. Following the opening exercises a devotional leaflet entitled "The present day need in the believing of prayer" was given by Miss Marjorie Connel, after which prayer was offered by Mrs. William Brandon. Mrs. C. L. Morcombe and Miss Lila Parsons rendered a pleasing duet, "Do not think you can live without Jesus", after which the Watch Tower responses were received: Japan, Mrs L. A. Mahood; China, Mrs. Wm. Brandon; Oriental, Miss Lila Parsons; India, Miss Marjorie Cornell; Strangers Mrs. T. C. Ivory; Montreal Mrs. Bradburn; Italian, Mrs. R. Poast; Temperance, Mrs. G. N. Earle; Giving, Mrs. C. L. Morcombe. These were followed by a leaflet, entitled, "The prayer of the Master," by Mrs. H. Lamb.

The secretary's and treasurer's reports were then received.

A communication from the district president, Mrs. J. Bradburn of Janetville, had been received which announced the annual convention to be held at Fenelon Falls on Thursday, November 26th, which date the ladies had set for the annual bazaar. A discussion followed and it was agreed to change the date to Friday, November 27th. Mrs. E. W. Rowland has been requested to assist on the program for the convention and Miss L. Parsons was appointed as delegate to represent the Omemee branch.

A letter of appreciation for sympathy, etc., during her recent bereavement was received from Mrs. D. H. Corneil.

Mrs J. Bushnell was appointed to be responsible for the missionary programme in the Sunday school the third Sunday in November.

Mrs. E. Bradburn and Mrs. C. L. Morcombe kindly offered to be the programme committee for the next three months.

A communication from the Mission Church at Oshawa requesting a bale of clothing was received but it was decided to leave the matter over until the December meeting.

Final arrangements were made in connection with the bazaar. The different booths will be open for business at 3 o'clock in the afternoon. Ladies were appointed for the tea room and a splendid menu will be served in the evening for a small sum.

Tells how boys take care of sprains and strains

ACHES AND PAINS ARE SOON FIXED UP

Simple, easy treatment brings quick relief

Quick, sure relief from pain is what men want when they get lamed up from over-exercise or exposure, or when they get a sprain or bruise.

A soldier in the Sixth Pennsylvania Infantry writes from camp:—"Sloan's is a great thing for us boys in the army. After a stiff hike or drill your muscles are bound to ache, but they are soon fixed up with Sloan's. It's great stuff for muscle-bound legs, lame backs, stiff necks, sprains or bruises."

The reason that Sloan's Liniment gives such remarkable relief is that it gets right at the cause of the pain. It stimulates the circulation throughout the place where the pain is, and clears out congestion.

Right away you feel relief. Stiff muscles limber up, the aching stops, and soon you are fit as ever. No need to rub. Sloan's does the whole job. Just pat it on! Get a bottle today. All druggists—35 cents.

MASTERY OF WORDS IS STEP TOWARD THE ULTIMATE FORMING GATEWAY TO SOUL'S HIGHEST EXPRESSION AND GIVING HUMANITY ITS CHARACTERISTIC KEYNOTE

Every Word Invented is Record of a Fact or Thought and Furnishes Means of Transmission of Impressions From One to Another, Says H. R. H. Kenner.

VOCABULARY ENLARGEMENT ADDS RANGE

Use of Language is a Key to Literature—Value of Speaking Foreign Tongues is That It Gives Added Access to the Thoughts of Man.

In Friday afternoon's session of the Teachers' Institute, Mr. H. R. H. Kenner, B.A., in his humorous and inimitable style, gave a paper on "Radiograms." He said that he had been listening in on a friend's radio and had picked up station U. T. A., which meant Utopia. From that far-famed place, where everything is so perfect, he had heard much that was valuable and inspiring to teachers.

The first radiogram was a discussion on "Language Study."

Language Study.

President Elliot of Harvard says, "All art seeks the highest form of expression for what it creates. The cathedral is the highest expression of art in architecture, the oratorio and symphony in music, poetry in literature and eloquence in oratory. As the human soul is God's expression of what is greatest in man, so that is the greatest of the fine arts which shall express the most of man's greatness. Knowledge in all its forms is the marble in the quarry or dragged up in sledges a little way from the primeval mud. Literature is the subsequent statue full of grace and snow-white in purity. Language then as the gateway to the soul's highest expression is the centre about which all studies correlate."

Speech we know is the one characteristic of humanity. Every word which has been invented is the record of some fact or thought and furnishes the means by which facts or thoughts can be transmitted to others. In a sense, every new word represents a new conquest of civilization, a distinct addition to the intellectual resources of the world. To become acquainted with words, in their full significance, is to know much about the things they represent; and about the thoughts which other people have had respecting those things. The enlargement of our vocabulary, whether it be in English or any other language means the enlargement of our range of thought and the acquisition of new materials of knowledge.

Moreover, the words we use are not merely the exponents of notions and thoughts which have existed in the minds of others; they are the very instruments with which we think. We are unable to conceive of any regular consecutive thinking—any advance from what is known to what is unknown—except by the agency of language. Whatever therefore gives precision and method to our use of words, gives precision to our thoughts. Language as it has been formed by nations, embodied in literature, and formulated into grammar, corresponds in its structure to the evolution of thought in man. Evey grammatical rule is, in another form, a rule of logic; every idiom, a representation of some moral differentia or characteristic of the people who have used it; every subtle distinction is a key to some logical distinction; every figure of speech, a symbol of some effort of the human imagination to over-leap the boundary of the prosaic and the actual and to pass into the infinite region beyond; Every verbal ambiguity is both the effect and the cause of mental confusion. And so the study of language is the study of humanity; the forms of language represent the forms of human thought; the history of language is the history of our race and its development, and great command over the resources of language is only another name for great command over the ideas and conceptions which make up the wealth of our intellectual life.

It is a shallow thing to say that what we need is a knowledge of things, and not words. Words "are" things; they embody facts. He who studies them is studying much more than sounds and letters. He is gaining an insight into the heart and reality of the things they represent. Let a battle-field or a storm at sea be viewed by a painter, by a poet, by a sailor, and by an ordinary observer, or say, by a Frenchman and Englishman. It will be described differently by them all. But he who understands the language of them all, sees it, so to speak, with several pairs of eyes. And he is the richer, and his mind is the larger in consequence.

Some such reasons as these no doubt underlie the very general assumption that a sound and liberal education should pay special regard to the study of the language. What languages then besides our own should one aiming at a liberal education study? The answer is easily given: Greek, Latin, French and German. The great main streams of influence from without that have moulded Britain and America have flowed from Greece, Rome, France and Germany. Semitic religion, Christianity, has come to us in solution with those streams, largely made over by them. Other nations have contributed, notably Italy and Spain; the slavic races and the Far East are beginning to affect the whole appreciably; yet the main foreign currents are still these four. French is worth learning, apart from any direct application to business or social intercourse, because only through the French language and literature can one become at home in French life and the French mind—gain a living sense of the French influence in history and free access to French thought of to-day. So of German. So, too, of Latin and of Greek. For if no really new force can now come from the ancient world, the old forces have worked far longer, have worked far more widely, have more powerfully moulded the whole framework of European thought, history and institutions. How can one comprehend Europe who cannot in some degree from his own first-hand knowledge trace the influence of Greece and Rome in the last 15 centuries? Consider, for example, the Holy Roman Empire, the R. C. church and the Revival of learning. And the Hellenic mind in particular, is still a perennial spring of influence, showing no sign of exhaustion. There is, therefore, no sharp line separating Latin and Greek from modern languages. The problem of the teacher is the same in essence. Mental discipline is a by-product, or one aspect of the matter—an important one, I grant, only not to be put in the foreground. It consists in assimilating, gaining facility in understanding, under many disguises, the great intellectual forces in past and present civilization, that are so largely embodied and transmitted in the respective languages and literature

And these languages should be learned not primarily for the mental discipline which they give. The principal use of language is as a key to literature; the value of speaking foreign tongues lies in its giving access to the thoughts of men. It is not learning new sets of vocables, inflections, grammatical rules, alphabets, or ideographs, that yields culture, but learning the thoughts, deeds, institutions of a great people, expressed in their literature. A continental hotel servant or courier who speaks fluently four languages is no more cultured than a Canadian hotel servant who speaks but one. In like manner the child who in favoring circumstances grows up bilingual though he possesses a great convenience, has not thereby acquired education.

It is the literature we should study. In my schoolboy days literature was a mixture of grammar, etymology and philology. I am pleased to know it is no longer such. The teacher of literature should be intensely alive, not a cistern of stagnant knowledge but a battery of communicative lightning; the incarnation of tact and vigilance and energy; making every class exercise a work of high art; seizing instantly the heart of every passage, placing it in vital relation and proper perspective to the writer and the whole composition, focusing all eyes of his students upon it, irradiating the subject with flashes of wit, wisdom, poetry, eloquence, parallels drawn from far and near, till the whole masterpiece blazes with all the fire and force and beauty that filled the soul of the author himself.

That the English and classical literatures are the greatest of all literatures I believe we all admit, but that literature is the greatest of all human studies men are not equally persuaded. Yet such it is. How deeply seated is the pernicious notion that literature means books! Literature is not books but life—life and human culture, life in its richest and noblest aspects, sympathy and fellowship with men in the greatest and noblest things that have been thought and achieved—new life when we are over-borne by the barren and common-place, and the flame of endeavor burns low—life beyond us deep intoxicating draughts from new well-springs when the soul's pulse beats high, and we feel that we are growing and reaching forth into an illimitable future.

Down the main highway of letters, hastening past by-path meadows we seek the fellowship of the great of the earth, and the well-rounded life that can spring only from this wholesome, sweet and rich communion. It is in their own tongue that we must question skilfully. They talk according to the wit of their companions. He lives well who is much with his Homer, Plato, Milton and Shakespeare.

In this utilitarian age we need studies that bear upon the moral conduct of life; studies that touch heart and conscience; that waken sympathy and kindle imagination; studies that recognize the visible world as a symbol of the invisible, a changing vesture veiling the unchanging goodness and loveliness and power. The scientist at best but studies garments. We want to know the weavers, to know man and to know God. "I would rather," says Thomas Arnold, "that a son of mine believed that the sun went around the earth, than that he should be entirely deficient in knowledge of beauty of poetry and of moral truth."

Relatively but not absolutely too much has been made in school and college of mere intellectual keenness and activity. Narrowness and meanness may coexist with mental sharpness and vigour as in Mephistopheles and the devil. Profound scientific theories may make one acute, quick, strong, without conducing at all to mental exaltation and without any suggestion of social or civic duties. The scientist finds law everywhere but the lawmaker nowhere. Physical science is having a poetic revenge for the general neglect or frequent scorn she has suffered in all the ages past. But it is time to cry a halt.

A few words in conclusion about Latin and Greek in particular. These are called dead languages. I prefer to speak of them as par excellence the living languages—holding that no languages are more truly alive than those by the reintroduction of which into the studies of educated men Europe was rescued from darkness and brought into the paths of reform and which have ever since been heard in the courts and class-rooms of our great centres of education. Do not the same emotions which thrill the reader who surrenders himself to the magic of Shakespeare still wake in the heart of him who studies the words put together ages ago by Homer and Aeschylus by Lucretius and Virgil? Is it a dead language which in Horace furnishes the apt and unsurpassed expression of a thousand thoughts familiar in our mouths as household words? Is there any sign of death in the flexible and accurate language in which the Fathers of the Christian church still speak to students of ecclesiastical lore? The power to endure through long series of centuries is a sign not of death but of vitality and it is an abuse of terms to speak of a language as dead which has preserved for us, in the freshness of their original fire these scattered remnants of Sappho which sparkle like jewels upon "the stretched fore fringe of all time." Too many in this age recognize nothing as valuable but what can be turned to the immediate purposes of livelihood and creature comfort. A livelihood is not a life. There is one thing of value and ultimately only one thing, the development of the mind and heart. "To be always hunting after the useful," says Aristotle, "is abhorrent to the ingenuous and magnanimous spirit." And a greater than Aristotle has said, "What shall it profit a man, if he gain the whole world and lose his whole inward life." "If the Classics do not help us to get bread," Lowell says, "they sweeten all the bread we ever get."

We must confess that in the past these languages have been studied too pedantically. The chief object of literature is not to gain just canons of criticisms important as these are; not to memorize precious passages that will fulfil the triple function of a touchstone a keystone and a "joy forever." Nor is the chief object to learn the history of literature, nor the opinions of any man or set of men about literature, or about any portion thereof or about the man who produced it. A little of the flavor of the historic sea in which the shell-fish grew; a little of the pepper and the salt of wise criticism; a little of the personal history of the bivalve if we can get it; may not be amiss; these may whet the appetite or enhance the relish; but they are no substitute for the oyster itself. It is only too true that we have been feeding on the husks of corn when we might have been living on the fatted calf.

Neither is the chief object to learn etymology or syntax or prosody or rhetoric or philology or logic. Our schoolmasters have often builded vastly better than they knew when they made us painfully parse the authors we were reading. While we were intently listening to find grammatical concords, as if that were the chief business of life and our teacher seemed to think so, we heard faintly at first but by-and-by more clearly the divine harmony that breathes through their immortal lines and that could never be rendered entirely inaudible by the noisy machinery of gerund grinding. While we hacked and hewed and bunglingly dissected the apparently lifeless form to discover and label etymological tissue, syntactical sinews, logical bone frame, the caput mortuum gradually became a thing of life and beauty, as the cold marble under the chisel of Phidias grew warm with immortal loveliness.

I pass over the mental discipline which their study furnishes. That is a by-product.

A word or two as to their help in studying English literature. Listen to the words of Professor Palgrave, late Professor of Poetry at Oxford. "The thorough study of English literature is hopeless unless based on an equally thorough study of the literatures of Greece and Rome." Not an easy thing to cut adrift from the past. As a veteran in war and education alike (Dr. Geldersleeve of Johns Hopkins University) has eloquently put it: "Until we can disentangle from the growing structure of to-day the fibres of the far-off centuries, until we draw out from our own lives the warp of the loom of time we cannot attain to any high culture without an adequate knowledge of that world of the ancients to which we owe so much."

I shall conclude with a quotation from the late Canon Farrar:

The reasons why we spend so long a time in acquiring a mastery over the Greek language are manifold. We do so partly because it is one of the most delicate and perfect instruments for the expression of thought which was ever elaborated by the mind of man, and because it is therefore admirably adapted, both by its points of resemblance to our own and other modern languages, and by its points of difference from them to give us the idea or fundamental conception of all Grammar: i.e. of those laws which regulate the use of the forms by which we express our thoughts. Again, Greek is the key to one of the most astonishing and splendid regions of literature which are open for the intellect to explore—a literature which enshrines works not only of imperishable interest, but also of imperishable important (both directly and historically) for the development of human thought.

It is the language in which the New Testment was first written and into which the Old Testament was first translated. It was the language spoken by the greatest poets, the greatest orators, the greatest historians, the profoundest philosophers, that the world has ever seen. It was the language of the most ancient, the most eloquent, and in some respects the most important of the Christian fathers. It contains the record of institutions and conceptions which lie at the base of modern civilization, and at the same time it contains the record, and presents the spectacle of precisely those virtues in which modern civilization is most deficient. Nor is it an "end" only; it is also a "means." Even for those who never succeed in reaping all the advantages which it places within their reach it has been found to be in various nations and ages during many hundred years one of the very best instruments for the exercise and training of the mind. It may have been studied irrationally, pedantically and too exclusively; but though it is desirable that much should be superadded, yet with Latin it will probably ever continue to be what the great German poet, the author of Faust, breathed a wish that it ever should be—the basis of all higher culture.

"Greek, the shrine of the genius of the old world, as universal as our race, as individual as ourselves; of infinite flexibility, of indefatigable strength, with the complication and the distinctness of nature herself, to which nothing was vulgar, from which nothing was excluded; speaking to the ear like Italian, speaking to the mind like English; with words like pictures, with words like the gossamer film of the summer; at once the variety and picturesqueness of Homer, the gloom and intensity of Aeschylus; not compressed to the closest by Thucydides, not fathomed to the bottom by Plato, not sounded with all its thunders nor lit up with all its arbors even under the Promethean touch of Demosthenes himself."

One ship sails east, and one sails west
With the very same wind that blows;
'Tis the set of the sail, and not the gale
That decides which way each goes.

Like the waves of the sea are the paths of fate
As we voyage along through life,
'Tis the set of the Soul decides the goal
And not the calm, nor the strife.

"A fire mist and a planet,
A crystal and a cell,
A jelly-fish and a saurian
And caves where the cave-men dwell.
Then a sense of law and beauty
And a face turned from the clod—
Some call it Evolution,
And others call it God.

Measuring Efficiency.

A teacher's efficiency, like any other power, physical or spiritual, can be known and measured only by its effects. Teaching power, however because it is spiritual, mind acting upon mind, is difficult of measurement, for the results are not seen at once.

A farmer does his work intelligently and well and in a few weeks has the evidence and his reward in an abundant harvest. The merchant sells honest goods at a fair price and steadily builds up a good business. The lawyer wins cases for his clients and the doctor secures good health for his patients and both have these results as direct sources of satisfaction. But the teacher does not see the results of his work for many years—perhaps never, because the child, passes through many hands. So many have a part in the whole process of mental and spiritual development of the pupil that it is, therefore, very difficult to measure the true efficiency of a particular teacher.

In looking over the course of our lives we all can remember some teacher who first awakened our interest in some department of knowledge or venture in life, who put our hearts upon some worthy purpose, or who set in action some powerful impulse to fuller and happier living and so directed the main currents of our lives.

The ability to inspire boys and girls to follow more completely after the better and nobler things of life is, therefore, the true measure of the efficiency of the teacher in the schoolroom.

A Teacher's Creed.

I believe in boys and girls, the men and women of a great to-morrow; that whatsoever the boy soweth the man shall reap. I believe in the curse of ignorance, in the efficacy of schools, in the dignity of teaching, and in the joy of serving others. I believe in wisdom as revealed in human lives as well as in the pages of a printed book; in lessons taught not so much by precept as by example; in ability to work with the hands as well as to think with the head; in everything that makes life large and lovely. I believe in beauty in the schoolroom, in the home, in the daily life, and out-of-doors. I believe in laughter, in love, in all ideals and distant hopes that lure us on. I believe that every hour of every day we receive a just reward for all we are and all we do. I believe in the present and its opportunities, in the future and its promises, and in the divine joy of living.

Mark Hopkins sat on one end of a log
And a farm boy sat on the other.
Mark Hopkins came as a pedagogue
And taught as an elder brother.
I don't care what Mark Hopkins taught—
If his Latin was small and his Greek was naught—
For the farmer's boy he thought, thought he,
All through lecture time and quiz,
"The kind of a man I mean to be,
Is the kind of a man Mark Hopkins is!",

Philosophy, languages, medicine, law,
Are peacock feathers to deck the daw,
If the boys who come from your splendid schools
Are well-trained sharpers or flippant fools.
You may brag of your age and your ivied walls,
Your great endowments, your noble halls
And all your modern features,
Your vast curriculum's scope and reach
And the multifarious things you teach—
But how about the teachers?

Are they men who will stand in a father's place?
Who are paid, best paid, by the ardent face
When boyhood gives, as boyhood can,
Its love and faith to a fine, true man?
No printed page nor spoken plea
May teach young hearts what men should be—
Not all the books on all the shelves,
But what the teachers are themselves.
For education is Making men;
So is it now, so was it when
Mark Hopkins sat on one end of a log
And a farm boy sat on the other.

The Purpose of the Elementary School.

The purpose of the elementary school is to form and strengthen the character of the children entrusted to it, and to make the best use of the school years available in assiting both boys and girls according to their different needs to fit themselves practically as well as intellectually for the work of life. With this purpose in view it will be the aim of the school to train the children carefully in the habits of clear reasoning, so that they may gain an intelligent acquaintance with some of the facts and laws of nature; to arouse in them a living interest in the ideals and achievements of mankind and to bring to them some familiarity with the literature and history of their own country; to give them some power over language as an instrument in thought and expression, and, while making them conscious of the limits of their knowledge, to develop in them such a taste for good reading and thoughtful study as will enable them to increase that knowledge in future years by their own efforts.

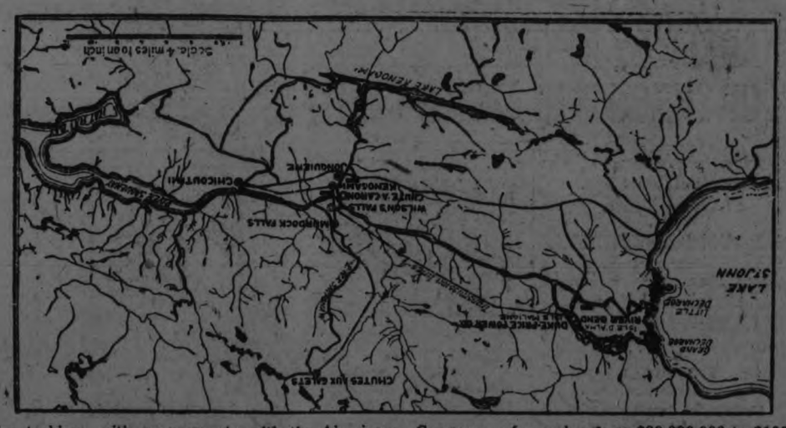
NEW INDUSTRY PROMISES COLONY 40,000 PEOPLE



Ten turbines, with an aggregate capacity of 800,000 horsepower, are to be installed at Chute a Caron in the Lake St. Jean district of Quebec. These turbines, which are said to be the largest in the world, will provide electrical energy for the huge aluminum industry which is being founded in the Quebec backwoods by interests associated with the Aluminum Company of America. In the development at Chute a Caron the American Mellon-Duke-Davis interests are associated with the Canadian Price Brothers, who were primarily responsible for the Grande Decharge power plant which is already in operation. Along the river between these two points, it is expected that something ranging from $80,000,000 to $100,000,000 will be spent in the next three years, while it is believed a colony of 40,000 people will spring up along this stretch of the Saguenay in the same time. The aluminum town will be built about a mile east of Jonquiere, and here, it is believed, a second Pittsburg will in time materialize.

COLDS THAT DEVELOP INTO PNEUMONIA

Chronic coughs and persistent colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action, it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and kills the germ.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, attacks the seat of the trouble and destroys the germs that lead to consumption.

Cremulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of chronic coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, catarrhal bronchitis and other forms of throat and respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. Creomulsion Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

BRITISH DEBT TO BE UNDIMINISHED FOR MANY YEARS

More Than Half Million Names Remain on Pension List.

EMPLOYMENT PROBLEM

Must Pay Staggering Sum to United States for Next Sixty Years.

By KEITH JONES
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

LONDON, Nov. 12.—(United Press).—The Great War ended seven years ago today, but its staggering cost goes marching on.

Since November 11, 1918, the British Government has paid out $2,975,000,000 in pensions to the war wounded and to the families of those killed in the war. This payment for pensions alone is a sum greater than the total pre-war debt of Britain.

Yet, relatively speaking, payments have only just started. On March 31 of this year 625,000 wounded men were still on the pension lists, and of this number not less than 400,000 are on the permanent pension rolls. Not until death calls them will their names be taken off the lists. Last year their cost to the government was $330,000,000. Some reduction in this figure will come as the years roll by but pension officials estimate it will be two decades at least before the pension totals fall below $250,000,000 yearly.

But these statistics apply to pensions only.

Rehabilitation.

Another $1,000,000,000 has been spent—wholly apart from the pension payments—in the work of the ocupational rehabilitation of the wounded.

A further item— small beside these huge figures—but still of consequence to the tax payers, is that of $170,000,000 paid out since 1920 in the medical treatment of the wounded, who though sufficiently recovered to go about their occupations are not yet beyond the need of medical treatment.

Unemployment Dole.

At this date the number of soldiers still undergoing treatment for their wounds—seven years after the lasts hot was fired—is 40,540. Ten thousands of these are still lying in hospitals, a majority of whom will never leave until death takes them away.

On top of these expenses directly attributable to the war, tax payers are digging into their pockets to the tune of another $200,000,000 yearly for the payment of doles to England's one-and-a-quarter million unemployed, who are out of jobs, the British feel, as one of the after-effects of the war.

Yet all these figures with their rolling cyphers pale into insignificance besides Britain's four-billion-five-hundred-million dollar debt to the United States, which she will be paying off for the next 60 years (two year's payments have already been made) at the rate of some $165,000,000 yearly for the next eight years, and $190,000,000 a year for the fifty-two years following.

"Who won the war?"

That is a favorite question here now-a-days..

The answers seems to be "Not England!"

Restored to Great Eminence of President — War Lord Has Much Leisure.

WILHELM IN POVERTY

Other Figures Are Relegated to Positions of Inferiority—Live in Retirement.

LONDON, Nov. 12.—(United Press).—Seven years ago today was the supreme moment in the lives of the leaders of the warring nations. It was the climax of history's greatest drama.

Today they have retired to the wings. Their crowded hour in the spotlight is over.. They are again more or less ordinary humans.

In each country correspondents of the United Press have sought out and recorded what has happened to these historical figures since the spotlight shifted from them.

Ferdinand Foch, once the commander of the greatest army the world ever saw, is trying to adapt himself to civilian life. He appears in uniform only on state occasions. Most of his days are spent at the Ecole Militaire attending to his duties as chief of the Versailles Military Commission and many of his evenings are spent playing chess with several cronies at an obscure cafe on the Left Bank.

Wilhelm Hohenzollern, once emperor of one of the world's greatest empires, continues to chop wood and read books in an effort to while away the tedium of banishment in a dull Dutch village. Today reduced to circumstances which, measured by a regal scale, amount to poverty, Wilhelm is fighting with excellent chances of success to regain Hohenzollern properties in Prussia, whose recovery would make him one of the world's richest men.

David Lloyd-George is writing articles for newspapers and planning a great "back-to-the land" campaign designed to make England self-supporting. It is now no secret that the "Welsh Wizard" aspires to be again Premier and his Land Campaign is a part of his plan to become again leader of the British Empire.

Georges Clemenceau, called by France "the Father of Victory," is living a life almost as retired as that of the ex-Kaiser, and even more modest. In summer he lives in a fishermans' hut on the Vendee coast, in winter in a dark, stuffy flat in Rue Franklin in Paris. He is writing a monumental philosophical work and cultivating flowers and tomatoes.. His household consists of only a valet, chauffeur and an aged Vendeean cook.

Von Hindenburg has emerged as the luckiest loser of war. Torn from his high pedestal in 1918, he has now been restored to even greater eminence as President of Germany. Hindenburg devotes most of his leisure to hunting and spends long evenings "yarning" with old friends.

Joffre devotes most of his time cultivating a flower garden at his new home at Louveciennes, near Paris, which he built according to his own designs and which is unlike any in the region. "Papa" Joffre maintains an office at the War College and sometimes gives lectures, but is practically retired.

Grand Duke Nicholas Nicolaevitch, ex-commander in chief of Russia's armies, is now an exile at Chateau Choigny near Paris. He has not stepped beyond its great iron gates for two years. But behind the iron gates Nicolas is planning the new political and military campaign whereby the "emigre" Russians hope to overthrow the Soviet regime. Nicolas is almost destitute. His great personal fortune and Crimean estates are lost to him..

The ex-Crown Prince of Germany is living the leisured life of a country gentleman at Oels, Prussia, enjoying the pleasures and luxuries of pre-war days without the burdensome obligations of military service.

Field Marshal Haig is perhaps the only great soldier who has devoted himself to looking after the interests of his ex-soldiers after the war. Haig spends his time working, raising money, and aiding disabled ex-officers and men, widows and orphans.

Ludendorff went into politics but like his military enterprises his ventures terminated in fiasco. He is now quiescent. Von Tirpitz, of U-boat fame, was more successful in politics, and is now engaged in helping to lead the Nationalist party.

Beatty is First Sea Lord and was recently in the spotlight as a "Big Navy" advocate in the struggle with those demanding "less navy and more economy."

Easy To Gain Weight With Yeast and Iron

New Combination of Yeast With Vegetable Iron Builds Up Weight in Three Weeks

Thin, run-down and underweight men, women and children can improve their health, increase their energy and put on from five to twenty pounds of good solid flesh in three weeks.

A new combination of yeast vitamines with vegetable iron, renews the action of sluggish blood cells, drives out dangerous body poisons, increases energy and endurance and supplies the system with the vitamines that build up weight.

For years yeast has been known as a rich vitamine food, but not until we perfected "ironized yeast"—which comes in concentrated tablet form, was it possible to take yeast and iron in the right proportions to build up weight.

Vegetable "Iron" when combined with yeast is quite easy to digest, therefore better for the system. And "yeast" when ironized becomes just twice as beneficial as ordinary fresh or cake yeast.

Ironized Yeast tablets are composed of concentrated food elements, therefore they are pleasant to take and free from drug-like effects. It makes no difference how old you are—or how young you are—how long you have been under-weight—or how much underweight you are, "ironized yeast" tablets are positively guaranteed to pick you right up, and add from five to twenty pounds of good firm flesh in three weeks' time. If they fail get your money back.

Sold by druggists, at $1.50 for a large 60-tablet package, or sent direct from laboratory on receipt of price. Harold F. Ritchie & Co., Ltd., Toronto.

DAY BEDS

By Annette Bradshaw

A few years' back when one mentioned a day-bed, it was considered almost an extravagance. But nowadays practical women have seen the various uses, the comfort and decorative value of the daybed. So they have given it a unique place in their scheme of decoration.

Combining the practical with the artistic, the daybed fills a long-felt want. The old style couches and sofas have taken a place in the attic to give way to the modern daybed.

Now don't get the idea that a davenport will be all wrong if you have the very place for it before the fireplace or if your room is quite large. For I cannot imagine anything more homey and comfy than a davenport drawn chummily before the fireplace with a table to its back and a well placed lamp that willi be just the spot to read the latest novel on these cold eve ings. However, even the daybed can be utilized. For with a table sufficiently long to reach from end to end of the bed and a mass of pillows piled against the table the same comfort and effect is achieved with the davenport.

From the most expensive woods to the plebeian metal painted to match any furnishing scheme, the selection is wide. Whether you desire Empire style, or early Colonial, or the four-poster, you are sure to find just what you want. You are also sure that you will have comfort plus.

For the business girl with her one room, bath and kitchenette the daybed is just the thing. It gives her a comfortable sleeping place and a comfy lounge. For the small home where a guestroom is out of the question, there can always be a daybed to be used in case of emergency.

You will find them in any room from the bedroom to the hall, and wherever they are, they are sure to be just the right touch. They give an added dignity and grace to an otherise bare room. They can be upholstered in any material to suit the hangings or to match them exactly. I know a lady who came from the South, and after living in the city for a while, she told me that one thing she had learned, if nothing else, was the use of the daybed.

So don't, feel that you are being extravagant when you are tempted by the beauty of a daybed. It will more than repay you for the outlay in comfort and beauty.

CHILDREN WAITING FOR FOSTER HOMES

Director Says Modern Institution Is But a Repair Shop.

TORONTO, Ont., Nov. 12.—(Canadian Press).—There are nearly 150 children in the various Children's Shelter of Ontario, who are ready and waiting for foster homes, according to J. J. Kelso, Director of Children's work for the Province, who is sending out a call to Ontario citizens for volunteer homes, for people who love children and will open their homes to a boy or girl, particularly the boys who are in majority.

"The modern Children's Institution," he says, "is only a repair shop—to quickly study and remedy the physical, moral and spiritual health of the child and get it promptly back into community life. It was never intended that any child should be retained longer than two or three months and yet we are hearing constantly of children two or three years in a shelter. It is the easiest thing in the world to fill up a shelter and keep it up to capacity but it is a grievous wrong to the child. Homes can be found for even the unattractive child if sufficient effort is made. It is all a matter of publicity and enterprise, getting people interested.

ELECTRIC TRAIN BROKE ALL RECORD FOR TRANS-CONTINENTAL JOURNEY

C. N. R. Experimental Car Made Non-Stop Trip From Montreal to the Pacific Coast in Sixty-Seven Hours of Actual Running Time.

EXPERIENCE OF TRANSPORTATION CHIEF

MONTREAL, Nov. 12.— When Mr. D. Crombie, Chief of Transportation of the Canadian National Railways reached Montreal at noon on Saturday, he completed a round overland trip between Montreal and Kamloops, B.C., in faster time than it had ever been done before. Not only is it the fastest journey on record between those two points, but it is also the fastest overland journey of 5,500 miles ever made.

Mr. Crombie was a member of the party which left Montreal at 2.30 o'clock a week ago Sunday afternoon for Vancouver on board the oil electric car of the Canadian National Railways which made the record-breaking non-stop trip to the Pacific Coast in 72 hours over all time and 17 hours actual running time. At Kamleeps, which is about 150 miles east of Vancouver, Mr. Crombie left the oil electric car and boarded an eastbound Canadian National silk train which brought him into Toronto, Ont., a distance of 2,699 miles at 11.12 p.m. Friday night just 12 minutes too late to make connections with the Toronto-Montreal flyer, which would have landed him at Bonaventure Station here at 7.30 Saturday morning. Instead he caught the Toronto-Ottawa train and made the last stage of his journey by that route, arriving in Montreal at noon Saturday or just five days, twenty-two hours and thirty minutes from the time he commenced the journey West. From Montreal to Kamloops and Kamloops to Toronto ,the trip was made at an average speed of 41 miles per hour counting stops.

Interviewed yesterday, Mr. Crombie had less to say about his unique personal experience than about the performance of the oil electric car. This performance he characterized as amazing. Among other things which the test of this car had proved, he points out, is that it is no longer a dream of the future but an actual fact that it is quite possible for a man to leave Montreal at noon any day and be in Winnipeg, 1,356 miles distant, at 7 o'clock the next night, a trip which now occupies 48 hours. The trip of the oil electric car proved that. It left Montreal 16 hours after the Continental Limited, the crack Montreal-Vancouver train of the Canadian National Railways, passed it at Winnipeg and arrived in Vancouver 22 hours ahead of it. From the time it left Montreal until it arrived at Vancouver, the engine never stopped running and such minor adjustments to the engine as were found necessary were made by those on board the car without the assistance of any outside help.

Mr. S. J. Hungerford, vice-president of the Canadian National Railways, to whom Mr. Crombie made his report on his return to Montreal, said that the trip of the oil electric car marked a step forword in the development of railway motive power, which can be described by no other word than revolutionary.

"When after much thought and study, we undertook to develop these oil electric cars, we were convinced we were working along the right lines in the creation of a type of motive power which would result in the solution of the vexing problems of thin branch line traffic and highway bus competition with which the first class roads of North America are faced today," said Mr. Hungerford. "We did not, however, allow our hopes to rise too high, and above all we did not make any extravagant claims for our invention. Severe tests on comparatively short runs in Eastern Canada proved to our complete satisfaction that we had not been incorrect in our deductions as these more or less minor tests proved beyond doubt that we had evolved a motive power unit of such low fuel and maintenance cost as to be incomparably superior to any other type of motive power in use on railroads."

"It was not, however, without some trepidation that we undertook to authorize the severe trans-continental test, which the small oil electric car has so successfully completed. The report of that test makes it evident that by working along present lines, we can solve, through the oil electric car not only inter-urban and branch line traffic difficulties, but revolutionize transcontinental traffic as well. The results of this test trip makes it evident that a single locomotive of this type could handle passenger traffic clear across the continent without being relieved. Conceivably it could start with a sufficient supply of fuel to make the entire trip. It would result in fewer locomotives being required for a given train service, and it would eliminate delays in changing engines at terminals, the taking on of coal and water en route; thereby making it possible to have shorter over-all schedules than is possible with steam locomotives. Furthermore the employment of such locomotives would render it unnecessary to maintain water stations and would greatly reduce the need of terminal facilities of various kinds, besides effecting economies, the cost of fuel. It would eliminate such vexations as smoke and cinders and overcome all danger to property close to the right of way being set on fire by sparks from the engines. Taken altogether the indications point to the rapid development in the use of oil electric motive power on railroads."

DO THIS AFTER SEVERE ILLNESS

How to Speedily Gain Strength and Put on Needed Weight

Nothing like the wonderful vitalizing vitamines extracted from the livers of the common codfish to help convalescing people to quickly get strong and well—everybody knows that.

So nowadays, medical men who keep up with times are ordering a tablet containing the vitamines that give to frail folks vigor, strength and weight—a tablet that is known as McCoy's Cod Liver Extract Tablet—and it surely has proved a blessing to thousands of people who have been sapped of their natural strength after any severe illness.

Skinny men and women take them to speedily put on plenty of good healthy flesh and for this purpose they are so extremely good that thin men and women often take on five pounds in 30 days. As a matter of fact, your druggist is authorized to return your money if you don't take on 5 pounds in 30 days.

Great for weak, skinny, backward, run-down children too, and gives them a hearty appetite.

Be sure and ask for McCoy's, the original and genuine Cod Liver Extract Tablet. The Harris Drug Co., McDermid & Jury, Jas. Lynch, Bond's Drug Store and druggists everywhere have a big demand for them and millions are sold monthly all over North and South America. They are sugar coated and as easy to take as candy. 60 Tablets—60 cents.

Rivals the beauty of the Scarlet Tanager

Why is the Parker Duofold the most widely copied Pen in the World?

PROBABLY the highest tribute ever paid to any article—certainly to any pen—is paid to the Parker Duofold by other pen manufacturers.

Their wide-spread imitation of this Parker classic is the frankest admission of its superexcellence that we or the public could ask for.

If these other makers were able to sell their imitations at Parker prices, they might raise some question as to which is superior. But they remove all doubt for the public by offering their masqueraders at any price they can get.

Hand-size Grip, Over-size Ink Capacity, Free-swinging Balance, Invisible Filler, Ink-tight Duo-sleeve Cap, and the soft-writing, smooth-gliding 25-year guaranteed Point—that's Parker Duofold.

The only deceptive thing about pens that masquerade as the Parker Duofold is their color. So look and look carefully for this stamp on the barrel—"Geo. S. Parker—DUOFOLD."

HEAPS OF LOVE LETTERS IN SUIT OF RICH YOUTH

Missives Stacked on Table in Rhinelander Action For Freedom.

FRAUD ALLEGED.

Nego Blood in Wife's Veins as Basis of Deceit.

NEW YORK, November 11. — Like the lash of a whip, stinging sentences writhed around the slim shoulders of Alice Kip Rhinelander, in the White Plains Court Monday. And she cowered under the relentless punishment.

With head averted from the crowds behind her, face buried in her deep fur collar, the bride of wealthy and socially prominent Leonard Kip Rhinelander literally shuddered as her husband's attorney, Isaac N. Mills, assailed her ancestry and the motives which led to her marriage. He demanded that the alliance be annulled as fraudulent and deceptive.

426 Love Letters.

He sought to brand her a black vampire. With voice rising shrilly, the spokesman for the aristocratic Rhinelander family asserted that the bridegroom was mentally weak when she wilfully infatuated him, pursuing him until:

"Young Rhinelander was her slave —body and soul he belonged to her."

Four hundred and twenty-six love letters, written by the girl to the youth, were stacked on the table before the jury, and Mills read burning excerpts from some of them, with eloquent emphasis. Many were unprintable. One of the less amorous extracts ran:

"Listen, Leonard: I have had some sweethearts, but I never let anyone love me as you did. Would it be so awful if you had me, myself, alone? Good bye, dear, with love's best wishes.—Alice."

Youth Emphasized.

Attorney Mills, emphasizing the adolescent, innocent young Rhinelander at that time, declared:

"He did not know what this meant when she wrote him in 1921 But she knew, she, who had been the sweetheart of another man."

Up leaped Lee Parsons Davis, counsel for Mrs. Rhinelander, with a savage objection, saying:

"I demand that a juror be withdrawn that this may be a mistrial. The question of this girl's chastity previous to her marriage is not an issue here."

But Supreme Court Justice Morschauser declared the statement should stand as a circumstance to be considered in its possible relation to deception and fraud on the bride's part. And Mr. Mills thundered:

"Why we will prove she admitted it in letters to him-"

Judge Shown Records.

The picturesque old barrister, slightly deaf but far from dumb, showed a stack of documents concerning the parentage of the girl and exclaimed:

"Her father and mother came to American on the Majestic in 1891, with one child, Ethel. In 1895 he applied for naturalization and took oath he was colored. In 1912 he was naturalized before the judge of this court and again he declared himself colored.

"A child was born to the Joneses in 1895, named Emily, and her birth certificate declares her to be a mulatto. Then Alice, this defendant, was born July 9, 1899, and her birth certificate declares her to be black. On July 11, 1903, Grace was born, and her birth certificate reveals her to be 'black, negro, mixed'."

"Mrs. Jones, the mother of this defendant and those children, was and is white. The child Ethel, brought from England, was and is white, but that child was not the daughter of George Jones. We do not wish to cast a slur against the lineage of this Ethel, now the wife of a farmer near here, but we shall bring Ethel to court that you may see her and hear from her how this man, George Jones—but that can wait. Let us say that Mrs. Jones was married previously.

Bride Shudders.

At that loud murmurs came from Mr. and Mrs. George Jones, sitting together close to the speaker. They moved forward in protest. Friends quieted them. The shoulders of Alice Jones Rhinelander quivered, but she did not look up, did not once face the relentless records from which the lawyer was reading.

Across the court sat Leonard Kip Rhinelander, falcon-faced, tanned, immobile, clad in blue serge, with thick hair split in the middle and swept slickly back. Never once did he look at his wife, nor once did he betray emotion, even when characterized as one on whom no woman ever smiled until the dark-faced daughters of the New Rochelle taxi driver encountered him. And this was the way of their meeting as Mills outlined it:

"Remember that this boy is only tweny-two years old, four years younger than the woman who claims to be his wife. His mother died in 1915 and his father has had the care of him. When Leonard was eight years old he developed a physical affliction that made him tongue tied and from which he still suffers. His mentality became affected.

"When he was seventeen he was sent to the Orchard, an institution under the direction of Dr. Clark, for the treatment of persons afflicted with nervous and mental disorders. He was treated for mental backwardness. He had money, a motor and all that, and he fell into the company of a miserable wretch named Carl Kreitler, who took him about.

Didn't Keep Date.

"When they were motoring on a highway near the Jones home, a girl accosted them. They invited her to ride. They went. They toured Portchester and finally Kreitler went away with Grace. When they returned Kreitler made a date to meet Grace again. He could not keep it but Rhinelander did and explained his companion's absence. Alice came along then and Grace introduced her and Grace said:

"'You take Leonard and I'll get another fellow,' and she got somebody that Rhinelander never saw before or since and they all went to Proctor's Theatre. They went again and again and Alice wrote letters to Leonard almost daily from October 21, 1921, the day they first met."

Over in the corner, shielded by her counsel, the girl did not stir, nor did her husband, sitting opposite, staring forward, oblivious to the lenses of newspaper cameras. Rhinelander had delayed the trial for almost two hours by failing to appear until the afternoon session and his wife's attorney rasped him for this apparent indifference. Judge Mills continuped the castigation of the huddled figure near him.

At Hotel Here.

"They met in October, but on December 23, 1921, she wrote him saying she was going to stay at the Marie Antoinette Hotel and they registered there five days.

"She wanted him to take an apartment and establish her in New York before their marriage, but his family got him away before he could do that. She invited him to come to her home and take her mother's room. She worked fast, this girl."

Then came a demand, the attorney asserted, for money medical attention which Rhinelander sent her. Mr. Mills added:

"She was a quick worker and there was a quick recovery for in a week they were together again, and then the father got hold of the boy and sent him to an Arizona School."

Turkey's Modern President Shatters More Traditions

ANGORA, Turkey, Nov. 12 (Canadian Press). — President Mustpha Kemal Pasha again has upset Turkish traditions. At his first official dinner dance, which was attended by all the members of the Cabinet and their wives and also members of the diplomatic corps, the president made a speech in which he asked all the Turkish ladies present to uncover their faces and their entire heads.

The whole company danced an old-time Turkish dance which Mustapha Kemal is anxious to make popular.

At a London dancing academy a man of eighty-four is learning to dance the tango.

LOCAL ARTISTS WELL RECEIVED

Many Well Known Musicians Attended Recital in Toronto.

WORK PRAISED.

Under the heading, "A Pleasing Recital," the Toronto Globe to-day gives the following review of the recital given in the hall of the Toronto Conservatory of Music last evening, by three Peterboro musicians, with Mr. Charles Peaker, Mus. Bac., as accompanist. Among the many musicians and teachers of music in Toronto who attended the recital, were Dr. Willan, Dr. McMillan, Ernest Seitz, Dalton Baker, Viggo Kiehl, Leo Smith and Arthur Blight. The Globe's report follows:

Dorothy Allan Park, soprano; Edwina Palmer, violinist, and Agnes Logan, pianist, made a second appearance in this city, when they gave a commendably unhackneyed and interesting programme to a goodly audience at Toronto Conservatory last night, with the assistance of Charles Peaker as organist and accompanist. Good taste in details of ticket and programme printing predisposed one in favor of the affair, and one was not disappointed in the expectation of hearing a pleasant recital.

The visiting artisst will hardly anticipate being acclaimed as another Hempel, a second Hensen, a new Novaes, but they displayed many real virtues nevertheless. Miss Palmer has a firm round tone, of good size, and considerable beauty, seldom errs in purity, of intonation, and handles difficult material with creditable ease and authority. In the Bach concerto and Dohnanyi sonata she seemed to lack a little of the brilliant tone and the daintily dexterous technique called for in certain passages.

Mrs. Park seems to possess two voices, a somewhat small and husky soprano, though fresh and delicate in quality, which is very expressive in tender songs, and a clear and powerful contralto, which is much more effective in dramatic passages. Her intonation is excellent, and she is happily free from tremolo or vibrato.

Miss Logan displayed an accomplished technique in the Dohnanyi sonata, with a nice touch, a good singing tone and a finely sympathetic adjustment to her co-per former. It was with great regret that this reviewer was compelled to miss the latter half of this highly intelligent programme, including Miss Logan's solos, Miss Palmer's solos, and two further groups of songs by Mrs. Park.

FIND FEMININE MOSLEM MAYOR

Fires Ambition of Turkish Women to Attain Education and Experience.

IS ILLITERATE

CONSTANTINOPLE, Nov. 12.—Turkey's one and only mayor has been found and the fact that for years she has adminstered her office as an illiterate has fired the courage of femininists here in their campaign toward the vote for Moslem women.

Koudret Hanoum, a woman beyond sixty, for many years has been unanimously elected mayor of the village of Germat in the vilayet of Erdahan. She can neither read nor write, but she knows all the laws of the village by heart. She is a widow and with her daughter-in-law and two grand-daughters, does all the work on the farm, which is their only source of livelihood.

It is the first example the leaders of the "Union of Women" can cite in proving a Turkish woman's ability in government affairs. While Mayor Hanoum has a masculine bearing and masculine interests, the Union points out that she has an intelligence superior to that of all the men in her vicinity. For that matter, the union claims the average Turkish woman is more clever mentally and more energetic physically, than the average Turkish.

When the governor of the vilayet sends Mayor Hanoum a new order, she has taken it to the village teacher who reads it until the mayor has memorized it. She is known not to have forgotten a single point in an order. Under her regime, Germat has surpassed the entire district in its advancement.

Mayor Hanoum rides horseback with vigor and handles a gun with skill. When the village receives rumors of approaching brigands, she it is who leads the young men to the defense.

The chief aim of Turkish women now is not to vote, but education and experience. The great work has been against the social restrictions of Turkish women. Now they are pouring into the law and medical schools just opened to them, into normal schools and business. Many graduates already have prooved their ability as professional and business women.

ANNIVERSARY OF M'CREA'S CHURCH

Rev. Mr. Tucker of Orono Officiated at Special Services.

A PRESENTATION

PONTYPOOL, Nov. 12.—The anniversary service in connection with McCrea's Church was held Sunday, Nov. 8th, Rev. Tucker of Orono officiating. The Kendall choir furnished the music and singing in its usual capable manner. Owing to the fowl supper at Kirby on Monday, it was decided to have a thankoffering only.

Presentation.

A number of the friends of Mr. and Mrs. Henry gathered at the parsonage on Wednesday evening to bid them farewell. Mr. and Mrs. Henry are leaving for Thornton, Ont. Whilst their stay in Pontypool was comparatively short, they made themselves generally useful and were wonderfully thoughtful and kind to the aged and sick. During the evening Mrs. Henry was presented with a salad bowl and servers and Mr. Henry received a flashlight. The presentations were made by Mrs. Shaw and Mr. Geo. Biggs, on behalf of the Ladies' Aid, choir and Sunday School, while Mrs. Stevenson read the following address:

"Dear Mr. and Mrs. Henry:

"You came to us in a time when it was not easy to make friends, for we were not looking for friends, but for some one to agree with us whether right or wrong. Your readiness to help and straight-forward honesty of opinion and character gradually won the highest esteem of all. It was not until we knew that we were losing you that we realized the place you held in our hearts and in the life of the community. Your going away is a very distinct loss to the life of the church. Speaking in particular, the Ladies' Aid will miss the suggestions and the ready fingers of Mrs. Henry. The coming bazaar will owe no small portion of the success to you. The choir and Sunday School will miss Mr. Henry, and so will the Church Board. While you have not been permitted to see the full fruits of your labor nor to receive the immediate success your efforts deserved, there is no doubt we shall benefit for some time to come because of your faithfulness.

"Many of us had it in mind that you should not leave us without some token of appreciation, but it needed someone to put our thoughts into action and concrete form. We hope you will forgive us in being so tardy in expressing our thanks, and accept these gifts, not for their value, but as an earnest of our goodwill and gratitude.

"We hope that a profitable and pleasant situation will open for you and the blessings of health may return to you. Meanwhile, wherever you may roam, we trust you will never forget that there are many homes in Pontypool ready to receive you as welcome guests.

"Signed on behalf of the Ladies' Aid, choir and Sunday School—Mrs. Geo. Wilder, Mrs. Ella Shaw and George Biggs."

Mr. Henry replied very feelingly and declared they had only done what they felt was their duty to do, and that it was their deepest regret that circumstances would not permit them to carry on where they felt they were needed.

ENNISMORE MAN HELD FOR THEFT

Arrested on Charge of Stealing Motor Truck in Omemee.

LINDSAY, Nov. 12.—Provincial Officer Storey visited Ennismore on Monday, where he arrested a young man of that township on the charge of the theft of a motor truck, the property of Mr. Galbraith, of Omemee. He was brought to Lindsay and has been remanded for a week.

The accused was in the village the night before the theft, and was endeavoring to arrange for a ride to his home in Ennismore. About two o'clock the next morning, it is alleged, he stole the truck from Mr. Galbraith's property, the neighbors hearing the noise of the departing car. The theft was reported to Officer Storey, and the officer, hearing of the accused's visit to the village after his return from the West, made investigations which finally led to his arrest. The truck had been found on the roadside near Fee's Landing, where it had been exhausted after the gasoline ran out.

According to a statement of the authorities, the accused is wanted in Peterborough on a charge of abduction and carnally knowing a young girl. It appears that the girl was abducted at a picnic held in the County of Peterborough and taken to the west by the accused. The girl finally drifted back home and afterwards the accused turned up at his old haunts. As soon as the local authorities are through with the accused, he will be turned over to the Peterborough police.

MOTHERHOOD

I believe being a mother, the holiest privilege given a human being. Grant, heavenly Father, that I may in Motherhood meet the great opportunity of training my child to be a child of Thine.

I believe that mother-love is sent of God. Help me to understand its full significance—to know that love means more than the ardent outpouring of lavish affection. Grant that with my love there may be the seeing eye, the hearing ear, the understanding heart, so that I may better understand the needs of my child and lead him in the natural unfolding of the life Thou hast given him.

I believe in the gospel of good health. Help me to minister faithfully to the physical welfare of my child. Help me to realize that religion and mortality are closely related to good health and sound, physical vigor.

I believe that nothing is trivial or of little importance that concerns my child. Grant that I may have that sympathetic understanding of child nature that makes me a child with my child, laughing with his joys, sorrowing in his sorrows, sympathetic with his faults, helping him through my greater experience, to be fine and true and noble in the little things that count so much in the making of character. Help me to be all that I desire him to become. Help me through the days of his early childhood to be always patient and full of cheer. And if the way now and then seems one of drudgery or the demand for strength to meet the task too great, grant me the larger vision that I may see my child in man's estate, the kindly deeds of a noble life given in service; or, perchance, that I may hear men say of him, "Here is a man in all that true manhood means." Then shall I feel repaid a thousandfold and thank Thee, my Father, that Thou ha, bestowed upon me the high privilege of being a mother.

'DRUCILLA' HERE MONDAY, PRESENTED UNDER AUSPICES OF PETERBORO WOMEN'S COUNCIL.

A charming little old lady who is suddenly raised from direct poverty as a charity inmate of a grim institution to the possession of a million dollar inheritance; a beautiful girl who has also felt the pinch of want; a rich young ne'er-do-well who finally "does well' after all; a scheming lawyer trying to do the old lady out of her money, and a score of babies the old lady befriends in her sudden rise to affluence, make the plot of "Drusilla with a Million" one of the most entertaining ever screened. But a rehearsal of the story is not necessary for almost everybody read the popular novel of Elizabeth Cooper's and those who have not, will be sure not to miss the picture presentation at the Royal Theatre on Monday. Nothing has been lost in transposing the recent best seller to the silver sheet; and in fact under the skilful direction of F. Harmon Weight, the work seems to have taken on a new significance and to be fresher and more delightful than ever. Mary Carr, Priscilla Bonner, Kenneth Harlan, William Humphrey and Claire Du Bray head a fine cast; not forgetting the babies, who prove very gifted actors and actresses, if of somewhat tender years.

She recently arrived in Los Angeles with her pet monkey 'Jamie' to seek a film career. Lovely Norma Shearer (3) is the young lady who defies the conventions in the role of Grace Durland in "Broken Barriers." She will be remembered as the daughter in "Pleasure Mad." Miss Marise Boujon (4) has been the season's sensation among Paris opera lovers as "Thais." She has adopted and is educating three orphan children. Constance Bennett, film actress (5), and Philip M. Plant (6), adopted heir to the millions of the late Commodore Morton F. Plant, were recently married at Greenwich, Conn. The ceremony took place at half-past two in the morning.

A Fashion Model's Diary

By Grace Thorncliffe

SHE DESCRIBES A FASCINATING VELVET FROCK

"Of course, we've never known any fad that quite equalled the present one for velvet," I overheard Madame inform a client this morning.

I was passing through the salon on my way into the shop, and the client was the earliest one I have seen in the shop for some time. Usually we don't have many shoppers in till later in the morning.

"Well, Madame, I have many things to accomplish to-day," the client was saying. "One of them is to buy the most becoming day frock I can find, and it seems to me that velvet must be the material."

"I'm sure you are right," Madame returned. "There is nothing more flattering to a pretty complexion than the proper shde of soft velvet, and that's what I am so anxious to make up for you."

The client assured Madame she would like to see some model frocks in the proper shades of soft velvet, and Madame sent a message to me forthwith. She said:

"Put on the new wine colored velvet as quickly as you can, and come into the salon."

I hastened to don the frock which I think is a beauty, and which I am saving a sketch of in my diary.

"How lovely," was all the client said, when I entered the salon in the rich wine colored velvet.

The dress has plaits at either side of the skirt in front, with covered buttons down one side of each group of pleats. The straight bodice gives it the appearance of a two-piece dress, though it is really one-piece, with a detachable vestee.

"That soft white crepe de Chine vestee really is lovely," the client said admiringly.

Wine-Colored Velvet Frock with Vestee of White Crepe de Chine.

"It is a particularly smart vestee, I think," Madame returned. "And this new wine shade is simply made for you. It will be so becoming."

"How can I resist a dress of it if that is the case?" the client queried with a smile, and the dress was ordered.

She will be lovely in it, and I am delighted that Madame showed her this particular one, for its lines just suit her slim boyish figure.

I felt that the day had started well, with a sale before any of the other manikins had even arrived, so I went back to draw this picture and rest awhile.

ONCE UPON A TIME

THE THREE LITTLE ELVES—X.

by W. J. ENRIGHT.

Last week, a little fellow came over to my place and asked me to help him arrange a nice winter table for his birds.

Now, that was very nice. I agreed to do that. So, as there was to be no beating about the bush, we had time to talk.

I said to my new friends, "What little birds do you expect to get at this table, this winter?"

"Oh, lots of them," was the answer, "There's the little Chee-ree snow bird, and pug-nosed Bill, and Downy Woodpeck, and Red-buttons the Dude."

That is as far as he got, for I was so surprised I almost gasped for breath, the names were so new to me, all except that of the Downy Woodpecker.

"Why what are you talking about?" said I. "Where do you get these names and what do they mean "

There is no use telling about the conversation, but the end is interesting, for this lad and his family knew the birds just as well as any one ordinarily could, only with this addition, that they had loved the birds and had learned to know them without any outside help, and had named them with names suited to the birds and not to foolish books.

Pug-nosed Bill was none other than the Nuthatch, the Carolina Nuthatch, the White-Breasted Nuthatch, or the Sitta Carolinensis "such a carol of nonsense" would be less fitting to the bird but more entertaining than any name he has ever had, in book or story, up to the time I ran into these folks who have just naturally called him a name which fits him much better than any of the rest.

The White-breasted Nuthatch has an up-turned bill and a saucy manner, and Pug-nosed Bill pleases everybody and will naturally make me always remember the scientific name, "Such a carol of nonsense."

Chee-ree, their snow bird, is none other than Chicadee-dee-dee and it is a feather in this lad's cap that he noticed the winter call of this little fellow, not uttered nearly so much as the regular call. Tomorrow, we will talk some more about this boy.

FAMOUS FORTUNES

ANTHONY J. DREXEL—
THE BANKING GIANT.

In the realm of banking Anthony Joseph Drexel was a giant. At the age of thirteen, even before he had finished his studies, he entered upon his career, which was to make him the wealthiest man of his day in Pennsylvania. His banking house in Philadelphia for half a century had a larger capital than all the banks of that city combined.

The founder of the American house of Drexel came from Austria at the time Napoleon invaded that country. He settled in Philadelphia and married. But Francis M. Drexel, seized with the wanderlust, lived in South America and in Mexico for several years, following his profession as portrait painter. Realizing that his two sons, Anthony J. and Francis A., must have business opportunities, he returned to Philadelphia and opened the brokerage office of Drexel & Saeger in 1838.

In 1871 J. P. Morgan joined the Drexels, and the firm expanded under the name of Drexel-Morgan & Co., with branch houses in London and Paris, and their financial operations extended all over the world. The Drexel houses have supplied and placed hundreds of millions of dollars of securities with the public.

After Morgan withdrew from the firm, Drexels continued to give support and share in all his vast transactions.

Anthony J. Drexel was born in 1826 in Philadelphia. The brothers were generous with their millions, founding many charitable institutions. They contributed largely to educational interests, founding the Drexel Institute of Science and Art, the building and equipment of which cost $4,000,000, to which was added an endowment fund of $2,000,000.

At Chestnut and Sixth streets was erected the splendid Public Ledger Building, and with his lifelong friend Mr. G. W. Childs, Drexel owned the "Public Ledger," one of the great newspapers of the East. In 1903 it passed into other hands.

The Drexel brothers left a fund for the benefit of printers, which was used to found the Union Printers' Home at Colorado Springs, Colorado. The members of the Typographical Union of the United States are assessed ten cents a month to maintain it. Not only printers, but all who need medical attention are welcome.

Anthony J. Drexel had a palatial home in Philadelphia and a fine estate at Bryn Mawr, near one owned by Mr. Childs. He once declined the office of Secretary of the Treasury of the United States.

On Drexel Boulevard in Chicago, named in honor of his father, Mr. Drexel placed a splendid fountain, surmounted by a bronze statue of Francis M. Drexel.

Anthony J. Drexel died in Carlsbad, Germany, June 30, 1893. There was an Anthony J. Drexel, Jr., but father and son were poles apart. Anthony J. after his father's death, went in for prize fighting and that sort of thing. The responsibility as head of the Drexel family and manager of its many millions has devolved upon another son, George W. Childs Drexel.

Aluminum furniture is now being made for homes and offices.

GOOD NIGHT STORIES

By Blanche Silvar

WHY TILLY TUMBLE-BUG CHANGED HER MIND.

Tilly Tumble-Bug sat on a stone by the road-side gazing idly at the blue sky when Johnny Grasshopper swung out on a tall weed over her head.

"Well, howdy, Tilly," chirped Johnny Grasshopper, swinging back and forth on the weed. "How's the world treating you this lovely day?"

"Lovely, nothing!" snapped Tilly Tumble-Bug crossly. Nothing's right. I've been all over this meadow a hundred and fifty times and I can't see one good thing in it."

"Be-lieve-me, be-lieve-me," sang out Johnny Grasshopper, "why, I think it one of the loveliest places on this great, green earth. Why, I hop from morning until night and can find hundreds of things to interest me on the way. Why don't you try it?"

"Now, what a silly thing to say!"

"How's the world treating you?"

snapped Tilly Tumble-bug crossly. "I can't hop. If I could I should be the happiest thing in all the world. I would love to hop like you do, Johnny Grasshopper, but my hind legs are no long enough. I'd give anything for long hind legs, like yours."

"It would be a funny world if we all had long hind legs," laughed the merry Grasshopper, and, spreading his gay-colored wings, he flew away into the sunshine.

"One doesn't get much sympathy in this world," yawned Tilly Tumble-bug. "Well, shall I take a nap or shall I go and roll up that mud ball?"

She debated the question a little too long and her eyes closed, then a strange thing happened. Tilly Tumble-bug felt a queer thrill run through her little brown body. She felt rather dizzy, and well she did, for her hind legs had grown so very long that she almost stood on her head.

At first she was a wee bit frightened, then, with a merry giggle, she hopped from the stone to the swaying weed. It seemed so nice to be able to hop around that she hopped from one weed to another until it began to grow dark. Then she remembered she had a mud ball to make, and down she hopped to the road.

She started to roll the mud, first tucking her precious egg inside of the first bit of mud, but she soon grew dizzy. For her hind legs were so long she seemed to be standing on her head most of the time.

"I'll get used to it after a while," she mused to herself, and she tried to walk naturally. But, try as hard as she could, Tilly Tumble-bug just couldn't roll the mud around her lovely egg. She bumped into something and a rough voice startled her. She opened her eyes and gazed around wildly.

"Why, Tilly Tumble-bug, haven't you finished that mud ball yet?" laughed her sister. My, how she laughed when Tilly Tumble-bug told her of the hard time she had had trying to coverher egg with mud. "Well, you see how out of place long hind legs like Johnny Grasshopper has would be? Mrs. Grasshopper doesn't have to roll up her eggs like we Tumble-bug do."

"I'll never envy anyone again," laughed Tilly Tumble-bug. "It doesn't pay. After all, it would be a funny world if everyone had long hind legs," and, wiping her eyes with her feelers, Tilly Tumble-bug began rolling her egg in the mud. Her sister helped her and they finished just as the sun sank behind the clouds. That night when Tilly Tumble-bug went to bed she thanked her stars she didn't have two long hind legs to tuck under the covers.

Tomorrow's HOROSCOPE

By Genevieve Kemble

FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 13.

A fairly lively day is presaged from the lunar figure but there will be anxieties and problems about the finances. Speculation is attended by hazard and strict attention to the handling of moneys and to business generally is enjoined. New projects are under ill transits but all pertaining to papers and writings are well aspected. Employment is also under a fortunate ray from the luminaries.

Those whose birthday it is may encounter a year of financial difficulties unless they refrain from speculative enterprises and pay close attention to their moneyed interests. Those in employment are favored by the luminaries. A child born on this day may be clever and versatile but inclined to be rash and free in the management of its finances. It should make its best success in the employment of others.

WHERE CHARACTERS ARE FORMED FROM MUD.

The characters in this case mean small figures beautifully painted and delicately molded from common unbaked clay, and have no reference to souls or reputations. Although the Chinese believe that trees and mountains and other inanimate things have souls, so, perhaps, they think these telling figureines have also.

In the city of Tientsin, China, where 750,000 members of the yellow race live and love and amuse themselves, a large number of the inhabitants spend their time creating these fantastic "Mud Men." Each one represents some character in a well-known Chinese play. Arranged along the shelves in the bazaars there are priests, warriors, innkeepers, students and various other figures that would appear in dramatic role.

Players leading in the Chinese shows and having a peculiar appeal to popular fancy are reproduced in clay. These are sold not only to the constant stream of visitors, but to the natives as well.

Chinese history and dramatic lore are embodied in these matinee idols. The leaders who ruled with more or less heavy hands in the Celestial Empire during the time of the "Three Kingdoms" still dominate the imagination of the playgoers and producers.

One interesting group shown in the collections is inspired by the play, "The Return of Liu Pei," wherein the great general, Liu Pei; his daughter, Sun Fu Jen, and her husband, Captain Chao Yun, present a fantastic and spectacular appearance.

In the city of Tientsin lives the viceroy of the province, for most of the year, and therefore pomp and ceremony is of special importance to even the humbler citizens. Among the public buildings is a university, where instruction in western learning is given.

There is also an arsenal, a number of cotton mills and other industrial plants. A long stretch of wharf extends along the riverfront, from which are shipped all manner of useful articles. But while rice, beans, wool, skins, straw braid, tobacco, rhubarb, etc., may be of more importance and of greater commercial value none of the shipments are handled with the care and heart-interest that is accorded the carefully-packed boxes of "Mud Men."

In all, there are perhaps 2,000 different kinds of little clay figures, but those taken from about fifteen celebrated Chinese plays are the most popular and are the best sellers.

Somehow, these artistic bits of imagination-clay give a new light upon the apparently stolid, serious-minded people of China. The suggestion even makes one glad that these people in the Orient relax occasionally, at least long enough to enjoy a playtime.

YOUR HEALTH

By Royal S. Copeland, M. D.,

One of my readers is asking for another article on constipation. He is an unusual man, making a remarkable request, which I hope my editor will see. The reader wants the article "good and long." The editor wants all the articles good, but he is always telling me to "boil them down." There is no question that constipation is a subject demanding good articles and long articles, as well as many articles. It has such a multitude of causes that they can hardly be dealt with except within the limits of a big book.

The particular form of constipation in which this reader is interested is one that may be responsible for piles. He considers that the piles are caused by the constipation, and asks if I agree with him.

I do agree with him that constipation may be a factor in producing piles, or hemorrhoids, as the doctors call them.

The severe straining which the victim of constipation practices may result in swelling of the soft tissues at the exit of the bowel. For similar reasons heavy lifting and constant standing or sitting may be followed by hemorrhoidal development.

The presence of painful hemorrhoids, or a fissure, or other sore place, may be a factor, too, in producing constipation. The painfulness of the passage causes the victim to postpone bowel movement as long as possible.

The longer the waste material is left in the bowel, the greater is the probability of fermentation. When fermentation takes place there is gas formation. In its turn the gas dilates and distends the bowel. If long continued the distention causes the muscular wall of the intestine to become weak and flabby. Gradually, herefore, the power to expel the mass is destroyed and the constipation becomes more obstinate and hopeless.

For similar reasons large and frequent enemas are liable to do harm. The injection of water every day and for months at a stretch may dilate and distend the intestinal walls.

Ill health has its effect upon the muscles of the abdominal cavity, just as it has on the general muscular system. Constipation is a common and natural symptom of lowered vitality and poor health.

Many persons who are otherwise one hundred per cent well and strong may have constipation. In most instances wrong eating and the lack of water drinking are important factors. The food of modern life is too refined for our good. We need more "rough stuff" in our dietaries. Coarse food is essential.

Regularity is of the greatest importance. Immediately after breakfast time enough should be taken to coax a movement. Running to catch a train is no proper substitute for what is your duty to yourself at that hour of the day.

Cathartics, laxatives, salts and other drugs are unsafe. They merely add fuel to the fire. By the natural methods—food, water, exercise, muscle development and regularity in habits—these will do more in the long run than any medicine.

ANSWERS TO HEALTH QUERIES

M. M. H. Q.—Does catarrh affect the breath, such as producing a foul odor?

A.—Nasal catarrh is apt to do this. I suggest keeping the nasal passages clear by spraying the nose and throat night and morning with a good solution. For further particulars send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and restate your question.

COMMUNIST YOUTHS LEAD SOVIET RUSSIA

Personal Property Still Insecure, Says Newcomer to Canada.

HAFFORD, Sask., Nov 12 (Canadian Press) — Despite the eight-year rule of the Soviets, conditions in Russia are very unsettled today, according to M. Voloshin, a newcomer from Soviet Ukraine and a graduate of one of the Soviet high schools.

Personal property, he says, is still rather insecure on account of depredations of bandits and thieves, while the government is almost entirely under the control of the Communists, the vast number of whom, according to Mr. Voloshin are youths.

The village life, he said, is entirely different to what it used to be. Instead of a "Starosta" or overseer, the village now is ruled by a society. In the community there are various political organizations, chiefly procommunistic and which exercise a powerful influence over the populace. There is the committees of small land owners and the "pioneers" both bodies operating as a kind of elementary school of training. To become a full-fledged Communist a youth must have served his apprenticeship in either of these junior parties.

These two political organizations, Mr. Voloshin asserted, are all-powerful in the villages and cities and although they are independent of the government, exercise a strong influence there.

Instruction in the schools is now given in both Ukrainian and Russian. These languages are used for extensive Communist propaganda. Punishment of pupils in or out of school is prohibited by law, but the teacher or parent can be punished upon the child's own complaint.

A good crop this year, and a recent edict bringing about a drastic tax reduction, Mr. Voloshin said, has greatly strengthened the morale of the peasants generally, but farming methods in Russia, he intimated were very antiquated when compared with those he had already observed in Canada.

ARTICLE No. 8

In what way does the expert differ from any other auction player? Has he more imagination, more courage, more resourcefulness, more originality? What particular quality makes him stand out among his fellows? If there is anything that we don't understand we usually subject it to a close examination and analysis so let's do the same with the expert. Let us place him under the microscope and let its lens magnify his tactics. Let us observe and analyze his bidding and play.

The following hand is illustrative of the writer's contention that in the language of sport, the expert "has everything."

Hand No. 1

	Y
	Z

Hearts — A, 10, 9, 7
Clubs — Q
Diamonds — A, K, 10, 5
Spades — K, Q, 8, 7

No score, rubber game. The expert, Z, dealt and bid one diamond, a perfect example of the four card suit bid in preference to the no-trump. The singleton club is a danger spot in no-trump because a good player with a set up club suit and the lead would pass the no-trump. In this particular hand, A had a six card club suit and his partner the ace of spades so that a no-trump bid by North would have failed to make the contract by one trick. Z, however, possessed the first requisite of the expert, good judgment, so bid one diamond. A passed and Y bid two diamonds to give his partner another chance to bid. B passed and Z now had to do a little thinking. Y's bid of two diamonds indicated a willingness on his part to have Z bid another suit. This suit could be either clubs, hearts or spades. The expert figured that his partner would not bid two diamonds merely to obtain a club bid from him because it is just as difficult to go game at clubs as in diamonds. There would be nothing to gain by such tactics so Y must be prepared for a heart or spade bid. Z, therefore, bid two spades. A passed and Y bid three diamonds. B passed and Z was now certain that Y was hoping for a heart bid so bid three hearts with the greatest assurance in the world. All passed. Y's hand was as follows:

Hearts — K, 8, 6, 4
Clubs — J, 7
Diamonds — Q, J, 9, 7, 2
Spades — 6, 4

At hearts Z made four odd, losing only one heart, one club and one spade trick. At diamonds, the result would have been the same so the expert's imagination and clear analysis of his partner's bidding gave him a game not otherwise possible. How many players would have bid this hand like the expert?

The foregoing hand was not selected as unusual but only as representative of the margin of superiority that the expert has over the average player. To excel at auction, as in any other game, the expert must "have everything." He must be able to do the right thing at the right time and it is this quality that is most strongly evident in the hand given. It may seem easy and the expert's play and bidding the natural thing to do but how many players could honestly say that in actual play they would have done the same? If they can, they are in the class of the expert. If not, they still have something to which to look forward. We cannot all be experts but we can all improve our game by analyzing the expert's methods and profiting thereby. Put the expert "Under the lens" at every opportunity and you cannot help but benefit. Another example will be given in a later article.

Answer to Problem No. 5

Hearts — 3
Clubs — A, 6, 5, 4
Diamonds — Q, 10

	Y
Hearts — Q, 8, 7, 6 Clubs — K Diamonds — none Spades — 10, 8, 6, 4, 3		Hearts — none Clubs — 10, 9, 8, 2 Diamonds — J, 9, 8, 7 Spades — K, J
	Z

Hearts — K, J, 9, 5
Clubs — Q, J, 7, 3
Diamonds — none
Spades — A, Q

There are no trumps and Z is in the lead. How can YZ win nine of the ten tricks against any defense? The correct lead by Z is the seven of clubs. Y should win the trick with the ace and B should play the eight. Y should now lead the deuce of spades. Z should win the trick with the queen and lead the ace. Z should now lead three rounds of clubs. A's best discards are first a spade and then hearts. B's best play is to force Y in the lead on the fourth round of clubs. He can do this by playing his high clubs and keeping the deuce for the fourth club trick. If B allows himself to take this club trick he must lead diamonds up to Y's hand. A will be forced to discard to his disadvantage and YZ will easily win the balance of the tricks. Work out this ending. In this connection note that unless the seven of clubs is led at trick one, B can keep Z in the lead at trick seven and therefore force him to give A a heart and two spade tricks. B's best play, therefore, is to force Y in the lead at the seventh trick. Y should now play the queen of diamonds. Z should discard a heart but what can A discard? If he discards a spade, Y should lead a spade and thus force A to lead up to Z's king jack of hearts. If A discards a heart, Y should lead the trey of hearts and Z will make both heart tricks. It is evident, therefore, that the lead of the seven of clubs at trick one enables YZ to make all but one trick against any defense. Note this problem carefully and play out all of the variations.

FARM NEWS AND PROBLEMS

INTRODUCTION OF GRADING HAS CAUSED GREAT IMPROVEMENT IN QUALITY OF HOGS RECEIVED

Percentage of Selects Has Not Increased Very Much.

MANY ARE CLOSE

Thousands Are Graded Thick Smooth and Raise the Standard.

To the Editor of The Farm Page.

Dear Sir:—Owing to the frequence with which people enquire "Is the quality of the hogs in the Province actually improving under the present Hog Grading policy"? it is apparent that many are in doubt, hence I think that the accompanying list of best loads received at the Canadian Packing Co., during a recent period, should serve as convincing evidence that commendable progress is being made in this respect.

While it may be true that the percentage of Selects for the Province hasn't risen above 30 per cent. during the past several months, this does not indicate that improvement is not taking place in various districts, when it is considered that thousands of hogs are received at the markets weekly from all parts of the Province, including a large number of corn-fed hogs.

It will be seen that the increase from individual districts would have to be tremendous to have much influence on the average. A much larger percentage of the hogs now coming to the market are being marketed at the correct weights than was the case a year or so ago, and also there is a steady improvement in the quality of the the Thick Smooth Grade. Thousands of hogs going into this class are very close to the Select line, and although they don't command the premium they serve to raise the general standard of quality and thus promote better prices.

Commenting on these loads that were shipped from various stations and counties, the writer wishes to add that in all but three cases these hogs were bought on a Graded basis, that is to say, the Shipper marks each farmer's lot of hogs, then when they reach the Packing Co. they are Graded into the various classes and the marks of each farmer's hogs are noted and the particulars are sent to the shipper of the hogs who in turn pays out to the farmer the Premium he receives for the Select hogs. It might also be noted that a year or so ago some of these stations that are now shipping forty and fifty per cent. select hogs percentage of shop and unfinished hogs but the innovation of buying the hogs on a Graded basis put a stop to this evil practice and as a result the farmers in these particular districts are considerably enriched.

Figuring it out in dollars and cents the Premiums on these loads (at present-day values) would amount to $780, deducting the cuts on shops feeders and heavy hogs, viz., $95.16 would leave a total of $622.84.

In a number of districts a great deal of improvement must yet be made before the farmers can hope to obtain Select Hogs, for one cannot hope to build a house without first building the foundation, hence in order to obtain Select Bacon Hogs one must first get good breeding stock and when fed properly and marketed at the right weight no apparent difficulty is experienced in raising the right type, for community breeding of Select Bacon Hogs depends largely on the breeding properties of the sow and sire used.

THE LUCKY 13 EGG CLUTCHES

We hatch a good many chicks in incubators, but we also use hens. Eggs of the larger breeds do not hatch so well in incubators as they do under hens; so we hatch a good many chicks of these breeds under hens, and use incubators for hatching Leghorns. We have found by many tests that we can put 13 eggs under one lot of hen and 15 under another, and, as a rule, get more chicks from the 13-egg clutches than we can from those where 15 eggs were used. There is probably a reason for this, but I have never felt any need of wasting my time trying to discover it, so we now use 13 eggs for a setting.

POTATO HARVEST.

Late Blight.—Late Blight affects the tuber of the potato as well as the vine, and the disease lives over from year to year in the seed. When harvesting the potato crop cull out all tubers with dark sunken areas on the surface and a brownish discoloration of the flesh.

Black Scurf.—This fungus develops small black specks on the surface of the tuber. Such should not be stored for seed.

Stem End Rot.—This trouble is evidence by a decayed and sunken area at the stem end of the tuber. When a cross section is made near the stem end a brownish ring is usually plainly visible.

Tuber Injury.—Care should be taken to avoid bruising the tubers while harvesting. Roughly handled potatoes usually have a high percentage of dry rot.—L. Stevenson, Dept. of Extension, O. A. C., Guelph.

Crop Reports

Report of Crop and Agricultural Condition.

Toronto, Nov. 2nd, 1925.

Last week was very trying to Ontario Farmers. Harvesting was practically at a standstill and little plowing was done. In Kenora district, the mercury dropped below zero; parts of Bruce County are covered by a foot of snow and there has been some snow and unseasonably cold weather all over the province. In the Eastern portions the ground is very wet which has also retarded the progress of the plow.

Thousands of barrels of apples are still on the trees and opinion varies as to the possibility of salvage. In some sections certain varieties are undoubtedly beyond redemption except for by-product purposes.

The root crop is probably only half harvested; potatoes, turnips and sugar beets constituting the larger proportion not in. A month of fine weather is required for farmers to complete harvesting, finish plowing and other field work.

On many farms the pasture season has ended as cattle and other livestock had to be stabled last week and even should milder weather come these animals cannot be left out at night until next spring.

Bruce.—Very few turnips have been harvested, owing to the unusual stormy and severe weather. There is still quite a large acreage of mangels to be taken in, while many growers have not. There ha been very little plowing done during the past week, although many farmers still have a considerable acreage to be turned over.

Dundas.—Heavy rains, snow storms and frosts are hampering fall work. Many farmers express the opinion that not in their memory have they experienced such unfavorable weather conditions for the month of October.

Durham.—Severe frosts ranging down to 18 degrees F. have caused a very disheartening situation for the apple growers. Thousands of barrels of apples have been frozen on the trees, reducing the crop by 20% or more. About 50% of the crop of Spies has been spoiled.

Frontenac.—Greater interest seems to have been taken in poultry and we find a larger percentage of fresh eggs being marketed as a result. Pullets seem to have commenced laying earlier than usual. Fresh eggs selling for 70c per doz. Dressed chickens $1.50 to $2.00 per pair; ducks, $1.25 each.

Huron.—The fruit growers of the district are very apprehensive the last few days a the week has been quite cold and as much as 14 degrees of frost have been reported. The farmers are just wondering what effect this is going to have on apples. In the section along the lake the thermometer did not go o low and the fruit growers expect little trouble. Heavy winds of the week before played havoc with a lot of orchards and with the frost coming on some men are going to get very little for their late crop of apples. It is unfortunate that such varieties as Northern Spy and Baldwin are the worst hit as they are the latest apples.

Kenora.—Winter has set in earlier this year than has for a number of years, with the result that farmers are away behind in their work. One morning this week it was two degrees below zero. Alsike clover has yielded on an average of 8 bushels per acre and the Co-operative Association, which are open for business next week are advancing to their members $6.00 per bushel. Several farmers report that they have over 100 bushels to sell.

Lambton.—The weather this fall has not been advantageous to speed, efficiency or convenience in handling the sugar beet crop. A little more than half of the beet acreage has been harvested.

Lennox and Addington.—A good deal of clover that was cut for seed is still in the fields, and much of it will be spoiled. Rains have come so frequently to take in, it got another soaking. Alfalfa seed is turning out very poorly.

Perth.—Since Oct. 19th, Perth County has been covered with snow, making it almost impossible to pick apples, plow or take up roots.

Simcoe South.—There is a keen demand for feeder cattle throughout the county.

TO SPRAY OR TO DUST POTATOES.

The high efficiency of liquid Bordeaux mixture for the control of insect and fungus enemies of potato foliage has been demonstrated in tests so often as to make its use general with potato-growers. Dusting has been used considerably, but carefully conducted tests over a period of four years show that the practice is not so efficient as the liquid form of application. Where water is difficult to obtain, and in small fields where it is necessary to use hand apparatus dusintg is advisable. For areas larger than one acre and with water and a power sprayer available, then spray.

BEEF CATTLE STILL OUTNUMBER MILK COWS IN THIS PROVINCE AND MUST OCCUPY IMPORTANT PLACE

Million and a Half Beef Animals Are Kept in Ontario.

THE BEEF TYPE

Ideal Beef is Low Set, Thick and Almost Perfectly Rectangular.

Wade Toole, B.S.A., M.S., Professor of Animal Husbandry, O.A.C.

Notwithstanding the rapid increase in dairying in Ontario, due to the great growth of urban centres in the last two decades, there are still more beef cattle than milk cows in the Province, and beef raising must continue to be one of the foremost branches of our live stock industry. According to the last report of the Statistics Branch of the Department of Agriculture, there are in Ontario 1,265,965 milk cows valued at $69,938,194 and 1,572,122 other cattle valued at $30,528,872, with a total of 2,838,087 cattle worth $109,467,066. Ontario's cattle industry is already a hundred-million-dollar industry and two-fifths of this value is held in beef cattle. While a large percentage of the cattle classified in the Statistics Branch report as "other cattle" are undoubtedly young cattle and some are probably dairy heifers, the fact remains that the value per head is low, which would indicate that there is room for improvement in type and quality and that the greatest efforts of the breeder at the present time should be put forward toward better beef cattle rather than more cattle of the kind. Improvement in type and quality should now be the aim of the breeder and feeder of both pure-bred and market beef cattle. It must be remembered that the ultimate end of all beef cattle is the butcher's block and the requirements of the market must be given closer attention than ever before. While producers are anxious to maintain numbers, which are now practically one-quarter of the beef cattle of the entire Dominion, every effort should be made to improve the average quality of cattle bred and marketed for beef. Dairying will progress with the advance in population and industry, but beef raising must also go ahead. There are many large areas in Ontario better suited to beef raising than to the production of milk and milk products. The beef cattle industry must be pushed forward. It cannot stand still. Unless steady progress is made it must slip back. The great danger is carelessness in breeding which, in some cases, tolerates the mixture of dairy blood with that of the beef type with undesirable results. Good beef cattle only come from the use of sires and dams of the beef breeds. Crossing end intermingling the blood of the two types does not result in satisfaction for the breeder, feeder, butcher or consumer. Better beef cattle for better beef should be our slogan. Ontario can produce them.

Cattle sold or slaughtered from Ontario farms range each year from 800,000 to 1,000,000 head. Of course these figures include cattle of all types. In the number will be some 200,000 calves, largely of dairy type, but the magnitude of the cattle meat industry is large and is sure to increase. In studying the grading of cattle at the large stock yards, one cannot but notice the high percentage of common and inferior stock offered. Particularly is this true in the lighter weight steer classes and in the heifer and cow classes. The cow classes usually contain more inferior than good cattle. Perhaps this is an indication that feeders are thinning out the culls or it may be that there are still too many of the wrong kind on the farms. Practically one-sixth of the heavy steers marketed in 1923 through Ontario's public stock yards were "common," and nearly forty per cent. of the lighter weight steers were placed in the same category. Of the heifers, thirty-two per cent. were "fair" to "common," and over fifty per cent. of the cows graded "common." There seems to be room for improvement in quality and to that end every effort should be made.

Present day market demands must be recognized. The meat-eating public demand choice cuts off light carcasses. While the removal of the British cattle embargo has opened up a certain amount of trade in and made a market for heavy export steers and heavy feeders, the greatest demand is for the so-called handy-weight cattle from 900 to 1,000 pounds on foot and well finished. Ontario, built and equipped as she is, should be in a position to supply these lighter choice cattle. Winter feeding facilities are found on most farms, and feed is produced on these farms to grow and finish the cattle quickly. Overfat, heavy, old cattle have had their day. All that is asked for now is cattle of the right type carrying only sufficient age to ensure flavour and producing a carcass from which may be cut small but choice cuts to suit the modern small families' taste for tender lean. This means that good type is necessary in the cattle and early finish is essential. Cattle from eighteen to thirty months old meet the best sale provided they are well finished. The Ontario breeder's and feeder's problem is to supply the market with something very close to baby beef with a few heavy cattle for export and as few culls as possible. This being true, what is the best type?

Beef Type

The beef animal must be low set, deep of body, very thick, and must show a strong, straight top and a straight underline carried well down at the fore and rear flanks. In fact, the best type is filled out in conformation to give the appearance of almost a perfect rectangle. It is important that the portions of the body which furnish the best cuts in the carcass should be well developed. This means a great spring of rib and wide, deep loins and well filled rounds. In general appearance the beef animal should show close to the ground with all the depth and thickness to make a well-balanced animal.

The head generally indicates what goes behind it. A short, broad head and a large, strong muzzle, a short face, wide between the eyes and at the poll, is generally an indication of a good feeder and almost always goes with the thick, low down kind. The neck should be short and thick but the junction of the head and neck should be clean cut with an absence of throatiness and with a light dewlap. The filling at the neck vein at the junction with the shoulder should be smooth and the shoulder should be well set into the body and covered with flesh showing wide on top which indicates a large amount of lean meat under the shoulder blades. Prominent, rough shoulders are very objectionable, because they generally go with an animal that is heavy in front producing too large a percentage of cheap meat. The shoulder should blend well into the body leaving no depression in heart girth. This means that the animal must show a great spring of rib which should be carried well down to the fore flanks, giving plenty of capacity on the floor of the chest which should end in a full, blunt, firmly carried brisket. The spring of rib, so necessary to constitution and wide and full to give floor space for the laying on of an abundance of flesh in the region known as the prime rib, should be carried right back over the body giving the animal a large middle and capacity to handle feed in sufficient quantity to make a good beef cheaply. The top line and underline should be straight and parallel. Straight tops denote strength and generally speaking the flesh is laid on more evenly on straight backs than on weak or hollow-backed animals. A straight underline means that the animal is equally well let down in fore and rear flanks. An animal cut up in fore flanks generally lacks constitution and one cut up in the rear flank is almost inavriably light through the thighs or buttocks. The loin, one of the most valuable parts of the animal, should be broad and deep and well covered with meat, with the hook bones set smoothly into the body so that the animals will hang a straight side of beef. The rump between hook and pins should be long and level and well and smoothly fleshed. The good beef animal is low in the twist, thick through the thighs and carries the meat well down to the hocks. The legs, while short, should show a fine quality of bone, heavy enough to carry the body weight, but not coarse and rough. Over the entire body there should be a wealth of natural fleshing, smoothly laid on with an absence of patchiness or rolling. The flesh should be mellow in character, firm but not hard and tallowy nor yet soft and flabby. The skin should be soft and pliable, not too thick nor yet too thin. Papery hides generally go with poor feeders, and thick, heavy, leathery skins generally denote lack of quality. In sizing up a beef animal, it must always be remembered that the high-priced cuts of meat come from the upper part of the body, from a point behind the shoulder right over the back and down the hind quarter. This portion constitutes about half the carcass and it is in this region that the butcher gets his best meat, but the breeder and feeder must remember that depth of body, constitution and middle are necessary to the development of this choice meat down the back. To show the importance of the so-called best cuts of meat and their relation to conformation it may be stated that the loin and prime ribs, which constitute the most valuable cuts in the carcass, make up, on the average, about twenty-six per cent. of the carcass, seventeen per cent. being loin and nine per cent. being ribs. This amount, which is approximately one-quarter of the carcass, is actually worth nearly fifty per cent. of the entire value of the carcass. The rounds, on the average, constitute about twenty-three per cent. of the carcass when the rump is attached. Next to the loin and ribs this is the most valuable cut and with the loin and ribs comprises about three-quarters of the value of the carcass. The chuck constitutes about twenty-six per cent. of the carcass and is largely made up of the shoulder. It is comparatively cheap meat but is worth a little more than plates, flanks, shanks, etc., which constitute the remaining twenty-five per cent. of the beef carcass. We give these figures here simply to show the importance of the best possible development of loins, ribs and rounds in the beef animal and also to show the reason why light briskets, smooth shoulders, and trim underlines are asked for in the finished beef anima

TUBERCULOSIS.

There is no difference in the susceptability of pure bred and scrub cattle to tuberculosis. In the testing of 1,400,000 pure-bred cattle it was found that 4.7 per cent. reacted. In the testing of 500,000 scrub or grade cattle, it was found that 4.8 per cent. reacted.

CONSUMPTION OF MEAT DOUBLED IN FIFTY YEARS

As Late as 1765 Public Marketing Was Unknown.

SOURCES OF MEAT

In Ontario Farm Animals Provide Most of the Supply.

(Cintributed by Ontario Department of Agriculture, Toronto.)

The annual per capita consumption of meat has almost doubled during the past fifty years. Refrigeration, canning and increased facilities for transportation have been important factors in the development. In the United States and England as late as 1765 the slaughter of cattle for the supply of the public markets was unknown. Meat was used of course but only to a limited extent as the animal industry was in its infancy.

Why Is Meat Tough?

The toughness of meat is due to the thickness of the walls of the muscle tubes and excess of connective tissue, which binds them together. The young animal will, for this reason, usually supply a meat that is more tender than that from old animals. Connective tissue, fascia and nerves are tough to chew, and the thinner the animal, the larger proportion of these structures there will be in the roast. Blood vessels, lymphatic vessels and adipose tissue also make up part of the roast, but do not add to its toughness.

Sources of Meat.

In Ontario the principal source of meat is from our farm animals—cattle, sheep, swine, rabbits and poultry. In many places, the flesh of horses, dogs and cats is used. This is particularly true of European and Asiatic countries, where the people are flesh-hungry, and the meats of cattle and sheep are expensive to purchase.

Meat, immediately after slaughter has an alkaline reaction, and has a sweetish unpleasant flavor. It is also quite tough. The hardening of muscles or rigor mortis that follows slaughter, is accompanied by a number of changes that fortunately improve th meat. The principal of these changes are as follows: the development of sarcalactic acid, the softening of the muscle fibers, and connective tissue as the result of bacterial and antolytic enzymes, the development of more pleasant flavors. It is not advisable to use meat immediately after slaughter, if ice refrigeration, or other proper storage is at hand. Two or three weeks in cold storage at a temperature of 36-38 degrees Farenheit is well worth while in improving the edible quality of meats.

Nutritive Vals.

The nutritive value of meat depends upon the presence of proteins and fats. The meat bases, or nitrogenous extracts have little food value. These meat bases are the principal substances in beef extracts. Beef extracts, while of no great nutritive importance, are valued because their ingredients are in a state of solution and therefore easily absorbed by people whose digestion is at fault.

Meat Inspection.

So long as animals are permitted to be slaughtered in any barn or cellar, it is impossible to exercise a proper control over meat as sold by butcher shops in the smaller cities and towns. In the large city abattoirs in Toronto and Montreal, the Government inspectors send to the tank carcasses that are not fit for human food, approximately one per cent. of all slaughtered. No one is inspecting the cut in the country, or small town kill, and apparently everything goes to market. It is unpleasant to close one's teeth on a casiated, tubercular lesion, or on the cystic form of a tape worm, while eating dinner. But we are doing it, and in our ignorance do not seem to mind. If all meats were Government inspected, the per capita consumption of meat would increase. People must have meat, all like it, and all are interested in the conditions under which it is prepared.—L. Stevenson, Dept. of Extension, O.A.C., Guelph.

THE CALVES.

Keep plenty of pure water before the calves and nice bright hay or pasture grass. It is surprising how much water they will drink.

FOR WINTERING BEES OUTDOORS STRONG COLONIES' GOOD SUPPLIES AND PROTECTION ARE NECESSARY

Flowers For Winter

The narcissus varieties may be potted for winter bloom as soon as the bulbs are obtained. If it is desired that the bulbs be grown in the home window, it is advisable to use either a six or eight-inch flower pot, setting from five to ten bulbs, according to the size of the stock.

Good Deep Boxes for Cut Flowers.

If it is desired to grow the bulb bloom in quantity and use the cut flowers in vases, then plant the bulbs in boxes of any shape and not less than three inches in depth. A box twenty-four inches by twelve inches by three inches is very handy. The soil should be a rich garden loam to which add one-third of the bulk of leaf mould and sufficient sand to keep the soil from clinging. Suitable drainage provided by means of coarse cinders or broken pottery should first be placed in the bottom of the pots or boxes and then the prepared soil in quantity sufficient to reach within one-half inch from the top of the box or pot after firming. The bulbs should be pressed into the soil and covered firmly, just leaving the tip showing.

Bury the Boxes in the Cellar.

When all the boxes or pots are prepared such should be buried if possible in cold frame or in the basement, watered well, and then covered with five inches of sand or screened cinders. This covering will insure the necessary cool condition and prevent drying out. Such treatment will develop a good vigorous root system, a condition which must precede the bloom. Eight weeks beneath the sand is usually sufficient. A pot may be examined then and if found to be full of roots it can be moved to the light and heat.

Some of the Best Varieties.

From four to six weeks of forcing are required to bring narcissi of the following listed varieties into flower: Von Sion, Glory of Liedon, Sir Watkin, Trumpet Major, Emperor, Empress, Golden Spur, Olympia, Sulphur Phoenix, Bi-color, Victoria, Barri Conspicua, Madame Plemp, Alba Stella, Cynosure, Poeticus ornatus, Poeticus grandiflora and the Polyanthus and Poetaz types of all varieties.—L. Stevenson, Dept. of Extension, O.A. College, Guelph.

SPRAY MUSTARD.

Iron sulphate can be successfully used to destroy mustard in standing grain without injury to the crop. Use a 20 per cent. solution, dissolving 80 pounds of iron sulphate in 40 gallons of water, or 10 pounds copper sulphate to 40 gallons of water. Strain into the spray tank and apply on a calm day, just as soon as the first few plants in the field show flowers.

IODINE IN THE RATION.

A small amount of iodine is needed in the ration of dairy cattle for the proper functioning of the thyroid gland. A deficiency of this element results in goitre or "big neck" in calves. Iodine is often lacking in soils distant from the sea, and consequently goitre is more prevalent in such regions than near the sea coast.

Decaying sea weeds liberate this element which is carried by the wind over the land and taken up from the soil by the crops.

THE INFOAL MARE.

The brood mare that seems to have the least trouble and produces healthy sound colts and also has little trouble at foaling time, is one which has been worked moderately, or has had regular daily exercise. Of course, she should have plenty of nourishing feed, of good quality, especially during the latter part of the gestation period. It is also important that she should have clean drinking water, be groomed once a day and have her stable well supplied with fresh air.

A good liniment for all kinds of swellings on dairy cows, as well as on all other farm animals, is made by mixing equal parts of turpentine, sweet oil and spirits of camphor. Apply liberally and frequently to the swollen parts.

Disaster is Invited by Neglect of Any of These Precautions.

COMBINE COLONIES

Four Colony Cases Are Favored Because of Economy.

C. B. Gooderham, Dominion Apiarist.

To winter bees successfully three things are necessary, (1) strong colonies of young bees, (2) an abundance of wholesome stores and (3) adequate protection. To neglect any one of these is to invite disaster. Weak colonies should be united in the fall. The winter supply of stores should be given not later than the first week in October. The time that protection is given will depend upon the method used.

Outdoor wintering is rapidly gaining in favour, and bees are now being wintered in packing cases where once it was thought they could not survive. Bees may be wintered in single, double or four-colony cases. The latter are more economical as less material is required for each hive. Whichever case is used it should be made large enough to allow four to six inches of insulating material between the hives and wall of case on the bottom and all four sides, and from six to eight inches on top, with at least one inch of air space between top packing and case cover. The colonies should stand close together in the cases with no packing between them. A tunnel must also be provided between the hive entrance and flight hole in the case. Colonies to be wintered outside should be placed in the cases during the latter end of September or early October and the bottom and side packing given. The hive covers should be removed to allow the hives to come together closely. As soon as the colonies are in the cases, give them all the food they will take down. The feeding should be done as rapidly as possible, and as soon as it is finished a quilt or bag spread over the hives and the top packing put on. These bees will require no further attention until next spring. Outdoor-wintered bees should be protected from prevailing winds by a good windbreak. For full information on the subject write to the Publications Branch, Department of Agriculture or the Bee Division, Experimental Farm, Ottawa for free Pamphlet No. 22 on "Wintering Bees in Canada."

PROTECT FRUIT TREES IN WINTER

Building Paper and Mesh Wire Will Resist Attacks of Rodents.

USE POISON, TOO

Preventive treatment applied in November to the orchard trees, raspberry patch and ornamental shrubberies to offset the usually very destructive work of mite and rabbits during the winter months will save you disappointment, some labor and some money.

Building paper costing one cent, placed around the trunk of the tree for which you paid the nurseryman $1.50 will give protection at a cost that seems reasonable. If your tree is ten years old it is worth many times $1.50. The cost of protection is so low that no tree owner can afford to feed mice and rabbits.

How to Use Building Paper.

The building paper protector can be easily prepared from a roll of tar paper. With an ordinary saw cut the roll into ten inch lengths, handy to work with. Wrap once around the tree trunk and tie securely, then mound a little soil up around the lower end to hold it in place over winter. Remove when cultivating in the spring.

The expanded metal protector can be used; it will last for years if taken care of. These can be purchased from supply houses. They are easy to apply and cost about $8.00 per hundred for small sizes.

Galvanized Mesh Chicken Wire.

The galvanized mesh chicken wire is very efficient and durable. The wire can be purchased in rolls of a suitable width and cut into lengths to suit the trees. It is more expensive to buy than the expanded metal protector.

The tramping of snow around the tree, so that it will create a hard area through which the mouse cannot readily penetrate, is a means of giving some protection at a very low cost.

Use Poison Carefully.

Rodent poison applied to bread or grain and enclosed in a container into which mice alone can enter is an effective way of protecting berry patches and shrubberies. Poison placed for rabbits must be watched, or at least placed, where it is safe from farm animals. During periods of deep snow a close watch should be kept on all trees and hrubs, with the view of checking damage, at the initial stage. At the O.A.C. we use the wire protectors, tramp the snow and use the shotgun on rabbits when necessary.—L. Stevenson, Dept. of Extension, O.A.C., Melph.

UNBEARABLE

The applicant for cook was untidy and insolent in appearance.

"Don't hire her," whispered Jones to his wife. "I don't like her looks."

"But," remonstrated his wife, "just consider the reputation for cooking she bears."

"That doesn't matter," said Jones testily. "We don't want any she bear cooked. We don't like them."—Vancouver Province.

OPULENT BEGGARS ON ROMAN STREETS

One Mendicant Showed $30 Receipts for One Day's Work—Owned Houses.

ROME, Nov. 12 (Canadian Press) —The police have found that many of the sorriest and most pathetic appearing street beggars are some of the city's most opulent citizens behinds the walls of their homes.

One of these aged mendicants was searched and his pockets shown to contain about $30 as one day's receipts. Another beggar was found to be a proprietor of dwelling houses, another an owner of a livery stable that boasted several horses and carriages, a third was a professional money lender at usurious rates, and a fourth was a frequenter of one of the capital's most expensive restaurants in the evenings.

Cesare Sanesi, palsied and miserably dressed in tatters, died suddenly on the street of heart failure. His body was gathered up unceremoniously by carabineers and buried in the public cemetery for the destitute. It was later learned that Sanesi was a member of one of the most noble of Florentine familites, and that he bore the authentic title of count.

MANY MINORS MARRY.

Boys Wedded to Widows Who Have Children Older Than Step-father.

LONDON, Nov. 12.—(Associated Press).—There are many 15-year-old English girls married to widowers who have children of their own who sometimes are no younger than their little step-mother. There are boys of 17 wedded to widows with children scarcely less juvenile than their step-father.

This was brought out in a survey made in connection with putting into effect a new act requiring the consent of parents to the marriage of minors. It also was shown there are more than 95,000 husbands and wives in England and Wales under 21. Of these, 38,000 were boys and girls in their 'teens.

These minors, it was stated, marry at the ratio of one out of every 30 girls between the ages of 15 and 20, and one out of every 40 boys of the same age group.

STEAMER SANK WHEN STRUCK IN RIVER THAMES

London Ship Remo Was Hit When Two Others Collided.

ONE FROM CANADA.

Canadian Raider and Unknown Vessel Crashed in Midstream.

LONDON, Nov. 12 (Canadian Press). — The steamer Canadian Raider of Montreal, bound from Montreal to Antwerp, and an unknown steamer collided on the Thames yesterday near Erith, and the London steamer Remo was struck in the mixup between the first two vessels, and sank. All three vessels were proceeding down river at the time of the collision.

Three of the members of the Remo's crew are supposed to have been drowned. Five of the crew were rescued by a tug.

The Canadian Raider subsequently continued on her way down the Thames. It is not know what damages she received, if any.

WOMAN EXCELS IN HANDLING DETAIL

Historian, However, States Men Are Superior in Organizing.

LONDON, Nov. 12 — (United Press).—Women are better at detail than men. But men are better at organizing.

These are conclusions arrived at by F. S. Martin, vice-president of the British Historical Association after a life-time study of the difference in mental characteristics between men and women.

"I am not a feminist," said Martin in a talk before the National Union of Women Teachers, "and I believe there is a substantial difference between the working of the male and the female mind. The male mind is a more organizing mind; the female mind is far more acute in appreciating an individual fact. Women are far better at details; their likes and dislikes are much stronger; but I do think as we now know them, the male mind is more organizing and builds things as a whole."

FRENCH ADOPT NEW ANGLIAN PHRASES

Smart Parisian Likes Words Ending in "ing" and Sport Terms.

PARIS, Nov. 12. (AP)—William of Normandy's rather forceful conquest of the British Isles gave thousands of Norman-French words to the English tongue. In these latter days the ever-more-numerous invasion of English and American toursits has added a heterogeneous collection of isolated words and phrases to the vocabulary of the smart Parisian.

Words ending in "ing" have a special fascination for the Parisian who wouldn't think of trying for a comprehensive English vocabulary, but who likes to interlard his sentences with words of a bizarre sound. A dinner jacket is always a "smoking," one travels in a "sleeping," or sleeping car, and one even goes out for an afternoon's "footing" in the Bois de Boulogne of a bright Autumn day.

"Weekend" came into general use during the endless conferences of the post-war years, when English statesmen insisted upon getting away Friday night for a rest over Sunday from official cares. In a similar way Parisians have learned to take their "five o'clock." "Flirt," used as a noun and not as a verb, is in good usage.

Sporting terms, such as "knock-out," "uppercut," and the "deuce" and "love" of tennis, have gotten almost national circulation, despite the efforts of a number of eminent sportsmen to persuade their followers to use the pure French.

ATTITUDE UNKNOWN.

No Comment on Locarno Pact Expected From Government Till Session.

OTTAWA, Nov. 12. — (Canadian Press).—The attitude of the Dominion Government on the Locarno pact will probably be made known during the coming session of Parliament. Until there is some statement on the floor of the House, Government comment on the pact is unlikely.

Stop Butter Making Dairy Maids Are Jobless

LONDON, Nov. 12. — (Associated Press).—England's picturesque dairymaids, whose pink cheeks and fair complexions have for generations been at once the envy of their city sisters and the inspiration for countless artists and poets, may soon be a legend. And all because the English farmer has found, what many American farmers found long ago, that they can make more money by selling their milk than they can by making butter.

It takes two and a half gallons of milk to make a pound of butter for which the farmer can get about two shillings and twopence. Even in summer he can sell his milk in the cities for a shilling a gallon, so that there is much more to be made by the latter transaction. As a consequence farmers are discarding their butter making apparatus and are buying butter in many cases for their own use. The importation of butter into Great Britain is increasing.

JAP CRUISERS READY TO LEAVE

Cabinet Held Special Session to Consider Protection of Citizens in China.

ATTACK ON PEKING.

LONDON, Nov. 12. — (United Press).—The Tokio correspondent of the Evening News reported today that the Japanese Cabinet held a special session to consider protecting Japanese life and property in Peking in the event of a coup by the Christian general, Feng Yuh-Siang. Fast cruisers are ready to depart for Peking on an hour's notice.

Far Eastern reports recently have indicated the possibility of a coup in Peking and troops were already reported to be within striking distance of the capital. It has been suggested that the Chinese Customs conference now proceeding at Peking might come to naught as the result of possible civil war involving Peking.

WORKMEN HURT ON CAR TRACKS

Two Men Were Struck By Automobile Which Passed Signal Lights.

DRIVER IS HELD.

TORONTO, November 12. — Canadian Press. — Two workmen of the Toronto Transportation Commission, Charles Rose, 39, and William Lindsay, 34, were injured, the former seriously, when a motor car struck them as they were working on the street railway tracks early to-day. Thomas Fleming, driver of the car, who overlooked the warning signal lamps, is being held in custody on a charge of criminal negligence, and his companion, James Brennan, of Newburg, Ont., is held as a material witness.

SUBMARINE LOST.

British Vessel Has Not Been Seen Since She Dove This Morning.

LONDON, Nov. 12. — (Canadian Press).—The Admiralty announces that the submarine monitor M-1 has not been seen since she dived fifteen miles south of Start Point in the Orkney Islands this morning. Every effort made to locate or establish communication with the M-1 thus far has failed.

The M-1 is one of the largest and newest submarines in the British Navy, the distinguishing feature of her class being that they each carry one 12-inch gun. She is much larger than the United States submarine S-51, which went down off the Block Island recently. Her usual complement is sixty officers and men.

SHUTS OFF U. S. FLOUR.

Poland Had Good Harvest—Erects Import Bar Against Bread Stuffs.

WARSAW, Nov. 12.—(Associated Press).—Poland also has had an unusually good harvest this year, and there is no longer any necessity to import foreign flour, of which last year America sent over $20,000,000 worth. To make further importation impossible the government has placed an import tax of $1.50 per hundred kilos on flour.

PARIS, Nov. 12 (Canadian Press) —Premier Painleve's latest plan for the restoration of the French treasury submitted to the Finance committee of the Chamber of Deputies today, calls for a levy of fifteen per cent. on real estate, both improved and unimproved, payable over a period of fourteen years.

GIRL FORCED TO COMMIT BIGAMY TO SAVE PEOPLE

Sixteen Year Old Girl, Secretly Wed, Forced By Father to Marry Again.

SUITOR PAID $1,000.

Girl Left Him as Soon as the Wedding Ceremony Was Over.

KITCHENER, November 12. Canadian Press. — A sordid story of being forced to commit bigamy by her father in order to save her people from starvation, was told by Julia Lesonick, in the police court yesterday, when the court demanded to know why the girl married Robert Fedoruk, the former proprietor of a grocery store here, while her first husband, James Lesonick, was living.

The young prisoner, who gave her age as 16, wept bitterly as she told of the nerve-wracking experiences she had undergone. She was placed in the care of Arthur Pullam, Children's Aid inspector, for a week, at the expiration of which time Magistrate Weir will decide her fate.

She married Lesonick in Windsor, but they were man and wife in name only, Lesonick being a friend of the family and the wedding being a secret one. Later they all moved to Kitchener, and Fedoruk came on the scene amidst hard times, and it is alleged that he offered her father $1000 if he could marry Julia.

The later tried in vain to convince her parents that she was already married, and, yielding to pressure, she finally married Fedoruk.

Immediately she went away to St. Catharines ,never living with him.

Wheat Scores Ascent When Removed From Storage Bins

CHICAGO, Nov. 12.—(Canadian Press).—Wheat scored early advances in price to-day owing chiefly to the announcement that further amounts of wheat were being taken out of the meagre stock in storage here and were being shipped away to the mills. Besides, unfavorable crop reports were at hand from Argentina, where damage by rains in the harvest district was noted. According to some advices too, crop failure was expected in parts of the Argentine provinces of Santa Fe and Cordoba. The opening prices, 3-8 off to 1¼c up, new style, December 150 3-8 to 151 and May 145 to 145½, were followed by something of a setback all around, and then by material gains, December touching 152 and May 145 5-8.

Corn developed strength as the result of buying, based on the fact that the Government crop report as to corn was less bearish than many traders had looked for. After opening unchanged to ¼c higher, December 75 3-8 to 75½, the market continued an ascent that took December up to 76 3-8. Oats were steadied by firmness of corn and wheat. Starting at 1-8c lower to a shade higher, December 38 3-8, the market later showed a slight general advance.

Despite lower quotations on hogs, provisions were responsive to the upward swing of the corn market.

Trade Volume Less But Broad List Was Covered

TORONTO, Nov. 12 (Canadian Press).—Despite a slight decrease in the general volume of trading, a broad list was dealt in on the Toronto Stock Exchange this morning with the market generally firm. Some easiness was evident in the mines section, however, Dome dropping 30 and McIntyre 10. Smelters, again the leader, sold up to 156 1-2, the neased down again, closing at noon at 154, a gain of a point and three-eights. Brazilian advanced a full point at 77 1-2, Canadian Cnners Preferred five-eights, British Columbia Fishing three-quarters and Atlantic Sugar a point and a quarter. Porto Rico was also strong and active, being about a point and a half higher at 40. Banks were active but steady though Toronto advanced half a point.

Prices Are Recovering After Break Of Tuesday

NEW YORK, Nov. 12.—(Canadian Press). — Constructive forces were again at work in to-day's stock market, sharp recoveries taking place throughout the list. Bear traders, who sold stocks freely in Tuesday's bad break, were forced to bid high to cover their committments. The speculative interest was again focused largely on motors in anticipation of a large extra cash dividend by General Motors after the close of the market Impressive strength also developed in a number of high-priced issues for which recapitalization plans are believed to be pending, Mack Truck, Virginia Railway and Power, Sears Roebuck, and Railway Steel Spring all selling 4 to 6¼ points higher. U.S. Rubber crossed 91 to the highest price in five years for a gain of about 4 points in anticipation of an early resumption of dividends.

MAJORITIES, AND NOT GROUPS, ARE REGARDED BY CONSTITUTIONAL PRACTICE, SAYS OTTAWA LAWYER

John S. Ewart, K.C., Says Government May Stay as Long as Substantial.

MINORITY OPPOSES.

Governor General Need Not Consult Largest Group Before Dissolution.

OTTAWA, Nov. 12 (Canadian Press).—Replying to questions addressed to him by H. M. Campbell, Progressive member-elect for MacKenzie, Sask., John S. Ewart, K.C., declares that constitutional practice takes notice of majorities in the Commons and not of groups. As long as the Government is sustained by a majority of the members it remains in office. The largest group may think that the majority is wrong but if, in opposing the Government, it is only a minority in the division lists, it is an Opposition and nothing more.

Mr. Ewart says the Governor-General would not consult the Opposition if advised to bring on another election, even thought it contained the largest group.

M'BRIDE TRIED FOR ACCEPTING $50 AS A BRIBE

Mayor of Brantford Charged in Police Court Today.

WITNESS HEARD.

Brown Says He Paid Money For Help in Getting Bus Franchise.

BRANTFORD, Ont., Nov. 12 (Canadian Press)—Charge laid by W. G. Brown that M. M. MacBride, M.L.A., mayor of Brantford, did, "while a member of parliament, corruptly accept the sum of $50 from Walter G. Brown for something afterwards to be done by the said M. M. MacBride, in his capacity as a member of Parliament, contrary to the provisions of the Criimnal Code, section 156," was taken up before Magistrate Campbell of St. Catharines in the Brantford Police Court this morning.

Brown, in the evidence, declared that on October 31, 1923, he had seen MacBride four times, in company with J. F. McCann. Conversation developed over a bus franchise from Brantford to Paris and MacBride told him it would cost $100. Witness promised $50 then and $50 later.

He did not get the franchise, although MacBride said it would be all right and he tried to get his money back.

The case is proceeding.

M'GILL RUGBY CLUB APOLOGIZES FOR CRITICISM OF BOB ISBISTER

College Paper Disapproved of Decisions of Referee Last Saturday.

AMENDS BY TEAM.

MONTREAL, Nov. 12 (Canadian Press).—Bob Isbister of Hamilton, former star of the Tiger rugby squad, and more recently the senior referee in the Intercollegiate rugby union, yesterday tendered his resignation as an official. However, after talking matters over with representatives of the McGill rugby football club and a member of the Canadian Intercollegiate Rugby Football Union, Isbister decided to withdraw his resignation and will officiate in the McGill-Varsity game, the final college tussle of the season, scheduled for Toronto Saturday. Statements to this effect were made by Major Stuart Forbes, graduate manager of athletics at McGill.

Isbister's action followed the publication in a local afternoon paper of an extract from The McGill Daily in which Isbister's work as referee in the McGill-Varsity game here last Saturday was bluntly criticized.

At a meeting of the athletic board of McGill yesterday morning, the board went on record as officially disapproving of the reference made in The McGill Daily's story of the game to Isbister's work. A written apology from those responsible for the criticism of the official will be sent to Referee Isbister.

Further, on their own initiative, Captain Philpott, on behalf of the McGill Senior rugby players, has expressed in no uncertain terms, the disapproval with which the players regard such criticism of officials.

The leader of the McGill squad points out that, while in the course of a game as is his privilege, he has had occasion at times to question rulings by the officials, at no time have the players wished to protest any rulings by Referee Isbister, and have been satisfied to abide by his decisions. They, through, the captain, have gone on record as being wholly opposed to criticism of the kind at anytime, as being entirely against the principles of spirit of the Intercollegiate Rugby Union teams.

'SHAG' DEFENDS HUDDLE SYSTEM

Conference Plan of Giving Signals Does Not Retard Rugby.

MONTREAL, Nov. 12 (Canadian Press). — Frank Shaughnessy has come out in defence of his conference plays, following criticism of the "huddle" system used by McGill as expressed by Toronto rugby critics.

A Toronto paper yesterday characterized the conference system of calling signals, as used by McGill in the last two Intercollegiate games, as slow and bound to prove unpopular.

Shaughnessy pointed out that a check had been made by timekeepers of the conferences as used by McGill, both in practices through the week and in the games, and stated that, while the conference might at first appear to the spectators as slow, yet in actual time McGill were getting the ball into play within ten seconds on many occasions; twelve seconds on an average, and fourteen seconds as the slowest time to get moving. He adds that this season McGill has not had a down called against them for failure to get the ball in motion within the required time limit of twenty seconds, and that both Varsity and Queen's, who use the ordinary method of calling signals, have been penalized for intringing on the twenty-second rule.

duces football to what is taught on McGill coach that, aside from a certain amount of deception which can be provided this way, the conference play has the advantage of relieving the players of the task of learning an involved system of signals. All they are required to learn under the "huddle" system is four or so formations and from the conference they are told plainly where the ball is to go. Outside of lessening the task for the players it has, he claims, this advantage, which is rigidly important at McGill. It reduce sfootball to what is taught on the field. There is no long blackboard sessions necessary for signal purposes, and leaves the players free in the evening to pursue their studies, football being confined to the two hours each afternoon that the men are in on the field.

BATSTONE MAY DON M A A A TOGS

Officers of Montreal Club Will Bid For Rugby Star.

Press).—Montreal rugby football club members have concluded their season's fixtures, though they will play an exhibiton game with Queen's at Kingston on Saturday. In the meantime, with the curtain all but down on the 1925 football year, the club is looking forward to next fall. Some definite plans will be outlined most likely at the annual banquet to be held shortly, and until then the officers of the organization are devising schemes for bolstering the Wheelers for the 1926 race in the Interprovincial Union.

This year Montreal had not the best of material, but the team managed to finish fairly well up, being in second place at present and the runner-up berth will be theirs for the year if Ottawa beat Hamilton on Saturday. Under the circumstances, fairly successful on the gridron, the team also enjoyed financial success. After running behind in gate receipts for many years, the club this year has for the third consecutive season shown a credit balance. The full returns are not complete, but it is expected they will finish about $3,000 ahead.

For next season the club will make big efforts to bolster its playing strength. Officers of the Winged Wheelers were heartened by the report that Captain Harry Batstone, of the champion Queen's team, might locate here, and there is no occasion to doubt that they will use every effort to see that this stellar player gets located in business in Montreal. A number of the Intermediates who starred in the Q.R.F.U. this season, are practically certain to move to the faster company next Fall, and all predictions are that the personnel of the regular line-up of the Red and Blue will be vastly changed next year.

Batstone's appearance with the Wheelers, especially working alongside such a brilliant performer as Jeff Russel, would give the Wheelers a strong defensive and offensive half division. Wally Sheppard has shown great promise since being assigned the role of quarterback. He is young and has many rugby seasons ahead of him. The Montreal outside wings are sound, but it is expected that much will be done to bolster the front rank from middle to middle.

MEMORIAL SERVICE AT CAMPBELLFORD

Cloth Company Machinery Stopped For Two Minutes.

CAMPBELLFORD, Nov. 12. — Armistice Day was observed here with a special service held in Christ Church at 10.30, just as it has been for some years past. The speaker of the day was the rector, Rev. G. C. Clarke, who gave a short address on the sacrifices that men made in the Great War, and read a list of the members of the congregation who had entered the service and of those who made the supreme sacrifice.

A fine musical programme was rendered by the choir, some of the selections being "O God our Help in Ages Past," "For all the Saints who from their Labors Rest," and a resurrection hymn.

The large audience stood at attention for two minutes before the clock struck 11.

Seven Day Mission.

Rev. F. Hartley, of Toronto, will conduct a parochial mission here from December 2 to 9.

RETIREMENT OF

ing direction on the important questions that divide public opinion so sharply? I have mentioned this difficulty, but it is not insurmountable. Out of 350 members of Parliament — Senators included — it should be easy to form a committee of men having enough ability and patriotism to study the means of effecting an alliance that is so much desired, and of giving to the country the energetic and truly national policy of which it stands so much in need. Mr. King himself has admitted this.

"Despite his sympathies for Mr. King, Mr. Bourassa has just pronounced himself in favor of this project, and, if I am to believe what people have written to me in this respect, there are numerous fellow-citizens of Anglo-Saxon origin who believe it necessary.

Avoid Another Election.

"At all events, it seems to me that this is the only way of avoiding the dangers of another election and of putting an end to a situation which cannot go on for any length of time without grievous consequences for the peace, the harmony and the most important interests of the country, without arousing the most deplorable political and national passions. It is pleasing to say that the immense resources and those elements of prosperity with which Canada is endowed assure to it the most brilliant destiny, but this is true only on condition that the two great races that inhabit it continue to develop them in peace and harmony and do not waste their energy and their activity in sterile and dangerous combats.

"I pray those who are prone to criticize me, either by party interest or by good motive, to await the result of the events before pronouncing judgment that might be rash and unjust."

POET CREATED RIOT IN PARIS

Maurice Rostand Recited Poems Stripping Glory From French Soldiers.

POLICE INTERVENED.

PARIS, Nov. 12 (Canadian Press) —Maurice Rostand, son of the great poet who wrote "Cyrane DeBergerac" created what verged upon a riot Tuesday night, when from the stage of the Empire music hall he recited his own poems mercilessly stripping the glory from the French soldiers fighting in Morocco.

Two soldiers rose and furiously hurled invectives at him until they were thrown out by the police. Although in accordance with the management's advice Rostand recited the less controversial parts of his poems the audience refused to listen. Fifty or more persons stamped their feet, booed, and flung abuse at him. Others took Rostand's part and a pitched battle continued in the hall until the police rushed in and restored order.

ARMISTICE DAY AT LAKEFIELD

Commemmorative Service Held in St. John's Church.

LAKEFIELD, Nov. 12.—A short but very impressive service was held at 10.30 on Wednesday (Armistice Day) in St. John's Church, commemorating all those who gave their lives in the Great War. The sermon, which was very simple in character, opened with the singing of Kipling's "Recessional," after which the prayers were read and the Twenty-Third Psalm. Rev. Walter Cox delivered a brief address on the "Vision of the Silence," taking his text from part of the 10th verse of the 46th Psalm: "But still then, and know that I am God," closing with the immortal words of Browning: "God's in His Heaven, All's Well With the world."

At eleven o'clock, two minutes' silence was observed, terminating by the singing of the National Anthem.

The hymn "For all the Saints" was sung just before the blessing. The Cross of Poppies on the altar was a scarlet symbol of the sacrifice of many young lives, some from this village who died not in vain, but whose names are emblazoned on the records of Canada's honor as true sons of the British Empire.

Rev. C. F. MacIntosh of Campbellford will be in charge of the service of the United (Presbyterian) Church and Wesley Church, on Sunday next. Rev. P. L. Jull will be in charge of the anniversary services of the United Church, Marmora.

Annual Concert

The annual Thanksgiving dinner and concert were held in the Regent Street Church on Monday evening, and another success added to the long list of Thanksgiving entertainments put on by the Ladies' Aid. The dinner, which was served in the church basement, was bountiful, appetizing and well served by an efficient corps of waiters. The concert was given in the auditorium and it was exceptionally good, the reader, Miss Pearl Newton of Toronto, provided a great treat and her selections, varied in character and given with rare finish, were all much appreciated, and Miss Newton is assured of a hearty welcome on her next visit to the village. Rev. C. W. Barrett gave a most interesting address and the musical numbers were of the high quality of the remainder of the programme. Rev. S. A. Kemp occupied the chair.

The following is the programme: Opening Hymn, All Hail the Power; Prayer; Chairman's Address; Selection, The Choir; Reading, Miss Newton; Solo, Miss Pentland; Address, Rev. C. W. Barrett; Reading, Miss Newton Solo, Mr. Harry Batten; Reading, Miss Newton; Selection, The Choir; Reading, Miss Newton; Announcements; National Anthem.

LIMITED FIELD FOR FRANKISH CANINES

Pleasure Dog Goes for Walks But Watch Dog is Always at Home.

PARIS, Nov. 12.—Dogs in France are either dogs of pleasure or watch-dogs, in the eyes of the tax collector. If you take a dog out for walks, he is a "pleasure" dog. A watch dog is one that never quits the property he is watching. The difference is a tax of 20 francs.

It is invariably true, at least outside towns, that every dog-owner declares his to be a watch-dog. But it is a waste of breath to try to convince a gendarme that a watch-dog has need of an occasional run in freedom. The gendarme's definition is always supported by legal ruling.

FAMILY REUNION HELD ON MONDAY

Children and Grandchildren of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Burns All Assembled.

TWENTY-NINE THERE

A very pleasant and happy family re-union was held on Thanksgiving Day at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. Ward, 261 Romaine Street. Mr. and Mrs. Jos. R. Burns and all their children and grandchildren, totalling twenty-nine, were present. The family consists of three daughters: Mrs. Edward Gardner of Carmel, Mrs. Ezra Steer of Manvers, and Mrs. A. Ward, Peterboro; also three sons: Walter Burns of Peterboro, Jos. H. Burns of Otonabee, and Councillor O. R. Burns of Oshawa.

The parents, who are closely approaching their four-score years, are still young in spirit, and thoroughly enjoyed and entered into the pleasures of the day. Mrs. Burns has always been very fond of flowers, and during the day was presented with a beautiful bouquet of yellow chrysanthemums by her youngest granddaughter, Rosamond Burns.

Quite a contrast they presented, the little one of four starting out on life's highway, and the aged pilgrim who had travelled so far on the way.

LARGE ATTENDANCE ON THANKSGIVING

Wooler Church Attained Its Objective at Special Services.

WOOLER, Nov. 12.—The Thanksgiving anniversary services of the United Church were a great success. On Sunday at 11 a.m. and 7.30 p.m., Rev. Dean of Toronto gave two very inspiring sermons, every pew in the church being filled. The official board asked for an objective of $150.00, and at the close of the service they received $151.00.

On Monday evening the Thanksgiving dinner was served to a large company, people from Hastings, Campbellford, Warkworth, Belleville, Brighton, Morganston, Trenton and Frankford. The "Bon-Ton" orchestra of Belleville entertained from 6 to 8.30 p.m., during the dinner hours, and were much enjoyed.

Then the programme started. Mrs. Waldron of Trenton rendered solos in her usual pleasing manner. Miss Sweetman of Smithfield gave readings of a humorous character. Rev. Kenny of Belleville gave an address. A solo by Mr. Clifford Rogers and a recitation, "In Flanders Fields," by a wee tot, Lulu McColl, were also on the programme.

The proceeds of the evening were $400.00.

Mr. Wilson, a former teacher, and now a student at Queen's University of Kingston, spent Thanksgiving with Mr. and Mrs. L. N. Easterly.

Miss Inkster of Trent Bridge was the guest of Miss Margaret Teal over Thanksgiving.

Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Terrill and daughters, Misses Helen and Mildred, of Lindsay, spent Thanksgiving with the Terrills.

Mr. and Mrs. Leland Bryant motored to Campbellford on Sunday to spend two weeks.

Mr. Frank Hickerson is home after spending a couple of months in Western Canada.

On Friday, from 2 to 5 and from 7 to 10 p.m., Rev. and Mrs. Neal held a reception in their home, which was decorated with plants and 'mums. After being entertained in the large drawing-room, the guests were invited to the dining-room to a buffet lunch. Mrs. Bailley, Mrs. Neal's mother, poured the tea, and Mrs. Bailley, Jr., assisted by ladies, served one hundred guests.

Mrs. Alice Gunter is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. L. H. Rome.

K. OF C. DEPUTIES MET ON TUESDAY

Annual Meeting to Discuss Work of Order Held in Peterborough.

CLUB INSPECTED.

The annual meeting of the District Deputies of the Knights of Columbus (Ontario jurisdiction) was held in the parlors of the Empress Hotel, Peterborough, on Tuesday . There were two sessions, morning and afternoon. R. A. Jeffery, of Arnprior, State Deputy, presided, and Col. Dr. Claude Brown, of London, Past State Deputy, was also present.

The morning session was devoted principally to the discussion of the insurance features of the Order and also to the work of the Catholic Truth Society. The need of closer co-operation and practical sympathy with the society was strongly emphasized.

The afternoon session was devoted to problems affecting the general activities of the Order. The educational and social activities were touched upon, and ideas were exchanged relative to the policies adopted in the different districts with a view to encouraging the members to become more actively interested in the different phases of K. of C. work.

A tribute was paid during the afternoon to the splendid work being done by Peterboro Council in its different activities, and at the close of the session the District Deputies made an inspection of the handsome club quarters.

INSIDE GOLF.

Makes of 51 Golf Champions. "Golf's most successful teacher," says "Chick" Evans

By CHESTER HORTON

There is a club for every shot in golf—and only one club as a general rule. One of the mistakes that a golfer can keep on making for years, to the detriment of his game, is to try the shot with the club he happens to have in his hand at the moment, or to make a shot with the wrong club, knowingly, because the caddy happens to be some distance away. Use the right club, and make doing so a fixed rule. If you make a good shot with the right club, knowing you used the right club, you have played golf. If you make a good shot with the wrong club, knowing you used the wrong club, you profit through a fortunate accident.

THEATRES

AT THE GRAND

Tonight at the Grand Opera House will inaugurate the appearance of the celebrated star, William Faversham, in "Foot-Loose" a modern comedy drama of intrigue.

This epoch is the season's most brilliant dramatic event. It brings to this city, America's foremost star, and in a play by one of the most brilliant authors of the present day.

Mr. Faversham is one of the really great actors of our time He has to his credit so many achievements that to list them would be like calling off high lights in an American theatre. He is so popular with the American theatre going public that what ever he undertakes commands the keenest interest and he may be said to enjoy the respect and admiration, more than any other actor of today, of that large class of theatregoers who appreciate and support the best in the theatre. It is no wonder then that the announcement of the appearance of Mr. Faversham at the Grand Opera House tonight has created much enthusiasm.

"Foot-Loose" the comedy drama of modern life in which Mr. Faversham will make his debut to local theatregoers is from the pen of Zoe Akins, one of the most gifted writers for the stage, who has to her credit "Declassee" and "The Varying Shore." It is a thrilling and impresive piece of dramatic fire, providing the celebrated star and Sarah Truax, (his leading feminine support) roles in which they are said to be at their best. In 'Foot-Loose" Mr. Faversham and Miss Truax may be expected to bring to their portals all the charm, the intelligence and skill for which they are noted, and of the many fine acting moments which the play afofrds, it is safe to predict that several will long be treasured in memory.

Besides the celebrated star the cast will include: Sarah Truax, Edith Campbell, Ann Warrington, Antonio Salerno, Dennis Cleugh, Beatrice Vert, Milton C. Herman and others.

The play was produced and staged under the personal supervision of Mr. Faversham.

The longest power cable span in the world, 6240 feet, has been swung across an arm of Puget Sound to carry power from Tacoma's new municipal plant on Cushman Lake into the city.

MONDAY AT THE CAPITOL

AT THE CAPITOL

ALASKA GOLD RUSH IS SCENE OF GREAT SCREEN THRILLER.

Frank Lloyd Produces Film of Rex Beach's Novel, "Winds of Chance."

"Winds of Chance," Rex Beach's story of the Alaskan gold rush, picturized for First National by Frank Lloyd, creator of "Black Oxen," "The Sea Hawk" and other memorable screen hits, will be the feature offering at the Capitol Theatre today.

The new Lloyd picture is said to represent not only the most accurate drama of Alaskan life ever made, but is enacted by a cast the like of which has seldom, if ever, been seen in a single attraction heretofore.

More than five months were required to obtain the atmospheric backgrounds of Alaska during four different seasons, and Lloyd and his players travelled more than 13,000 miles to reproduce the scenic splendor of our last frontier. The cameras obtained scenes in rain and snow storms, on river beds and frozen lakes and glaciers, and even at the summit of snow-capped peaks high above the clouds

"Winds of Chance" deals with the romance of Pierce Phillips, a boy who came to Alaska whollc unprepared for the rigors of the rush, and the Countess Courteau, who had been so close to the business of making a living against odds that romance had been shut from her life.

A cast of unusual importance enacted the drama. Anna Q. Nilsson, Ben Lyon, Viola Dana and Victor McLaglen, the English movie star, have the featured roles, while the supporting cast, of hardly less importance, includes Hobart Bosworth. Claude Gillingwater, Dorothy Sebastian, Philo McCollough, not to mention several thousand extras in the Alaskan background.

AT THE ROYAL.

DOUBLE PROGRAMME — TWO FEATURES AT ROYAL—JACK HOXIE IN "THE WESTERN WALLOP."

Keen Camp, a small settlement some 5,000 feet high in the Sierra Nevada Mountains, was the scene of Hoxie's latest film. Great peaks tower all about the broad valley which contains many big trees and meadows where cattle wax fat.

This picture, "The Western Wallop," comes to the Royal Theatre to-day, is a drama of the cattle country and Hoxie is cast as a man who, after obtaining his liberty from the penitentiary on parole, seeks to live down his past and obtain employment on a big ranch. He saves the daughter of a big ranch owner from stage robbers, but the necessity of keeping the conditions of his parole involve him in bitter circumstances.

Hoxie astride his big mount Scout is supported by a cast that includes a number of names widely known in motion picture realms.

"WAKING UP THE TOWN" A NOVEL PHOTOPLAY.

Jack Pickford's New Feature Picture Has Exceptionally Entertaining Plot

"A star is only as good as his play," said Mr. McGeachie, manager of the Royal, yesterday in discussing the why and wherefore of film stars, of which there are a most generous abundance these days.

"Take Douglas Fairbanks, for instance," Mr. McGeachie continued. "At his best in the romantic and fantastis costume drama. And there's Mary Pickford, loved best for her hoydenish and roguish little girl interpretations. Consider Gloria Swanson: fine clothes and passionate drama. Pola Negri—intense love and hate. And so it goes with all of them. Each is at his or her best in a certain type of picture.

"We have coming as our next attraction a story ideally suited to the star. It is 'Waking Up the Town,' starring Jack Pickford."

This picture is the most novel photoplay that has come to Peterboro in many a day, according to Mr. McGeachie. It deals with a rather earnest young fellow with a flair for invention but who lacks the push to put over the big ideas of which he dreams. His employer and counsellor, whose hobby is astronomy, predicts that a collision in the heavens soon will bring about the end of the world. He is so sure of this that he gives the young chap the bulk of his life-savings and tells him to realize a few of his ambitions before it is too late.

"This is the type of play that is ideal for Jack Pickford," says Mr. McGeachie. "He brings to the characterization a wealth of sympathy and humanness, and the climax is thrilling beyond description. The real novelty of the play is in its ending. I am confident that it will prove a very interesting attraction, and that it will add to the glory of Jack Pickford."

CIRCUS IN BIG PICTURE.

Five sacks of peanuts and twenty-five sacks of popcorn arrived at the lot for Minnie, the big actress elephant who was flapping her ears in anticipation.

But she's doomed to disappointment—for they're to be "props" and elephants aren't allowed to eat "props." They're to furnish local color for the big circus story, "The Great Circus Mystery," a ten episode Adventure Picture which comes to-day to the Royal Theatre.

A complete circus was set up for the new picture, thriller of life in the sawdust ring. Bonomo, the famous strong man, plays the principal role, as the giant performer who "doubles in brass," filling every role from strong man to lion-tamer.

HOW TO GET INTO THE ROYAL FREE!

Every child attending the Royal on Saturday afternoon dressed as a circus clown will be admitted free. The best costumes will be judged from the stable and prizes will be given, including money up to $5.00 and complimentary tickets good for 10 weeks.

AT THE REGENT

MAN O' WAR PROVES APT SCREEN ACTOR IN "KENTUCKY PRIDE"

The world's greatest thoroughbred makes his motion picture debut in "Kentucky Pride," the William Fox supreme attraction which opens today at the Regent Theatre. The mighty Man o' War has turned down many tempting offers to show his paces on the screen. Needless to say it was never a matter of money. He makes this, his last as well as his first appearance, just to oblige a lady, thereby living up to his reputation as the first gentleman of the turf.

Virginia's Future is the lady in the case. She is also the star performer in "Kentucky Pride," which is simply the story of her eventful life, as told by herself.

Naturally the principal characters in her autobiography are horses. They include such champions as Negofol, father of Virginia's Future, and the great Morvich, her first husband, who is Man o' War's father, and The Finn, an old family friend. Some humans are unavoidably used in the accessory roles, including among others Henry B. Walthall, J. Farrell MacDonald and Gertrude Astor. John Ford, maker of "The Iron Horse," is the director.

Man o' War was not averse to being photographed, once he took the plunge and had been assured that Mr. Samuel D. Riddle, his owner, and Miss Elizabeth Daingerfield, his custodian, would not disapprove. He has no prejudice against cameras, as such. In fact, he is always ready to pose for a friendly snapshot by visitors to Faraway Farm, his Kentucky residents.

Man o' War certainly acted his prettiest before the motion picture camera, though the strang machine puzzled him at first. It didn't click, but whirred and kept on whirring like a swarm of bees. Besides, there was the unaccustomed crank motion.

Some of those who witnessed Man o' War's charge were badly frightened. They did not know the horse's gentle nature and thought the cameraman was going to be killed sure. Just what Reek thought about it, nobody knows, but he kept on grinding till Man o' War's nose shut off his light. Then Man o' War came around the camera and playfully nibbled at Reek's ear. The overwrought spectators laughed at this anti-climax and some of them maintain that the big horse laughed, too.

After that Man o' War followed Reek around as long as the company remained at Faraway Farm. The suppose' is he liked his nerve.

HEAVY FIGHTING NEAR DAMASCUS

Thought That French Have Started New Offensive.

RAINY SEASON SETS IN.

LONDON, Nov. 12. — (United Press).—The Damascus correspondent of the Daily Mail cables that severe fighting between the French forces and the Guerillas is reported near Nebk, between Damascus and Homs.

(Details are not given but it is probable that this is the start of the new French offensive scheduled for yesterday).

The rainy season has set in, and this will convert Syria during the winter into a sea of mud, which will hamper military operations just as the rainy season has called a halt to big operations in Morocco against the Riffians.

NEWSPAPERS BLAMED.
PARIS, Nov. 12. — (Canadian Press). — Official reports from Syria show that reinforcements are needed to deal decisively with the revolt there, although Generals Gamelin and Duport agree that the situation is less serious than represented in the foreign press.

Officials of the Foreign Office assert that a great portion of the population of Syria learned of the outbreaks only through papers from outside the country.

There is a tendency in French circles to charge the development of the rebellion to these exaggerated reports, which are declared to have caused many of the natives to believe that the whole of Syria has risen against France.

British Submarine Lost With Crew of 60

COMMANDER OF ATLANTIC FLEET ABANDONS HOPE OF RECOVERING SUBMARINE AFTER DAY'S SEARCH

Big Sub Was Found Near Point Where She Was Last Seen—Water Is Too Deep To Permit Diving and Raising Operations.

DISASTER IN TACTICAL EXERCISES

The M-1 Was First of Subs to Mount a Big Gun—Designed by the Late Admiral Lord Fisher.

LONDON, Nov. 13.—(Canadian Press.)—A radio received at Portland from the scorching ships indicated, The Evening Star says, that the missing submarine, M-1, has been located twelve miles off Start Point, Devonshire, at a depth which precludes diving operations and renders it practicaly impossible to raise her.

DEVONPORT, England, Nov. 13 (Canadian Press.—Sixty lives, officers and men, have been lost by the disaster to the submarine M-1, which dived in the waters of the English Channel off Start Point early Thursday morning, and has not been seen since. A day-long search proved unsuccssful, and last night Admiral Sir Henry Francis Oliver, Commander-in-Chief of the Atlantic Fleet, signalled the following message:

"The Commander-in-Chief very much regrets to inform the Atlantic Fleet that it is feared the Submarine M-1 has been lost with all hands during exrcises in the Channel today."

A court of inquiry will be held today. The large flotilla, provided with the necessary apparatus, failed to locate the exact spot where the vessel is lying. But it is in deep water, where divers' operations are impracticable. The search vessels were recalled last night, and although they are under orders to proceed to sea again at any moment, no hope remains.

When the submarine flotilla left Plymouth yesterday morning for the Channel, a strong wind and boisterous seas prevailed, but there was nothing to suggest an element of risk in carrying out tactical exercises.

Known as a submarine monitor because it was the first under-seas craft to carry a big gun, the M. type submarine gathered fame toward the end of the war, but the M-1 did not participate in the sea operations of that period, and three ships of this type have been in reserve since August.

Designed by Fisher.

Much of the M-1 design is credited to the late Admiral Lord Fisher, First Sea Load, who in 1915 proposed to man the submarine with big guns. By the time the M-1 was completed in 1918 it was considered that her employment might be disadvantageous, because to demonstrate that the submarine monitor was practicable might induce Germany to adopt the idea. British naval authorities consider this policy is having been eminently sound.

GORDON STILL HOLDS OFFICE

Will Administer Affairs of Immigration Department for Few More Days.

NO DEVELOPMENTS

OTTAWA, Ont., Nov. 13.—(By Canadian Press).—At the conclusion of the only Cabinet meeting held this week, Premier King said to a group of newspaper men that he had no developments to announce. The meeting was attended by nearly all the Cabinet Ministers including those whose resignation will be made shortly. The defeated ministers holding portfolios— Hon. George N. Gordon, Hon. James Murdock and Hon. T. A. Low, will continue to administer the business of their departments for several days before leaving their offices to other members of the Cabinet who will carry on as acting ministers.

General interest centres about the probable length of the session. The prevailing opinion is that parliament will sit for a week or ten days after the opening about December 10, and then adjourn for three weeks or a month over the Christmas and New Year holidays. It is presumed that the first week of the session will bring some alignment of the parties which will indicate the tenor of the 15th parliament.

St. Louis is the only city in the major leagues that has not won at least one pennant.

Ten Dead; 29 Injured Latest Check of Casualties

PLAINSBORO, N.J., November 13—Canadian Press. — The toll of deaths to-day had reached ten and the list of injured was 29 as the result of a collision yesterday of two Pennsylvania railroad express trains.

ADMIRALTY HAS DOUBTS OF FIND

Fears, However, That Men in Sub Will Suffer Terrible Death.

GREAT TRAGEDY.

LONDON, Nov. 13 (Canadian Press)—An admiralty statement this afternoon expresses doubt concerning the accuracy of the report that the M-1 has been located. The statement says: "Every effort is being made to locate position of the M-1 but that the admiralty has not received any intelligence enabling them to give credence to a report that the submarine has been located."

Naval rescue ships are reported to have ascertained that the M-1 had not suffered from any collision, and for this reason, it is thought, the men on board may be still alive. If they are, experts say, they are likely to face a terrible lingering death as the boat is of too great a size and is lying in too deep water to permit raising her.

The tragedy is one of the greatest in the history of the British submarine service. Lieut.-Commander Alec Murray Currie, who was in charge of the ill-starred craft, had a distinguished service record, although only thirty years of age. He was married eleven months ago and has a five weeks old son. Many of the others of the crew are married, One petty officer, George Morgan, has a family of seven children, the oldest eleven years and youngest two months. The depth of the water at the point where the M-1 is reported to have been located is about 240 feet and experts doubt as to whether the submarine can withstand pressure at that depth.

Homebrew. Not Bootleggers Caused Prohibition Downfall

NEW YORK, Nov. 13. — Canadian Press. — Prohibition will be abandoned in Russia after a ten year trial, because the government found it impossible to enforce, according to Captain Paxton Hibben, Executive Secretary of the American Committee for the Relief of Russian Children.

Captain Hibben has just returned from Russia.

"Home brewers, not "bootleggers," caused the downfall of prohibition, in the land of Bolshevism, he said. There never was such open violation of prohibition in Russia as there is in New York.

King's Hunting Party Shot 4,000 Birds in First Day Of Shooting With Iveagh

THETFORD, England, Nov. 13.—(Canadian Press).— With 4,000 pheasants and partridges falling before King George and several other titled guns, the first of His British Majesty's three days hunting over the preserves of Lord Iveagh was not so bad. From the well stocked covers the birds rose well and the King had a large proportion of the bag to his credit. It is customary to donate most of such kills to hospitals and charitable institutions.

The King left London Wednesday to visit the Earl of Iveagh, who, notwitnstanding his 78 years is an enthusiastic hunter and provides all the luxuries for his guests. His preserves comprise thousands of acres of land. Among the other sportsmen who took part in the hunt yesterday were the Earl of Albermarle and Lord Claude Hamilton.

BANK PRESIDENT SEES CONFIDENCE IN BANKS NOW

Changes in Bank Act Have Renewed Trust of the People.

BUSINESS BETTER.

Sir John Aird Says That Outlook is Very Favorable.

TORONTO, Nov. 13 (Canadian Press)—At yesterday's annual meeting of the Canadian Bankers' Association, Sir John Aird, the retiring president, gave a thoughtful and comprehensive address on banking conditions and the general business situation.

Sir John Aird stated in his address that the revision of the Bank Act in 1923 and the operation of the inspection measure of last year have brought results that are believed to be of advantage to the business of banking as carried on in this country. Sir John stated that there is evidence of renewed confidence by the public in the soundness of Canadian banking institutions and that the banks are well able to afford the necessary financial facilities to business and to do their part in the development of this country.

In referring to the business outlook, the retiring president remarked that it was much more favorable at present than it has been in the past two years.

TWO DESTROYERS TO PROTECT JAPS

Other Larger Ships Are Ready to Proceed to China.

TOKIO, Nov. 13. — (Canadian Press).—Two Japanese destroyers have been despatched from the Sasebe Naval base to Tsing-Tho, China, for the purpose of protecting Japanese nationals. Two other ships are held in readiness if the situation demands them.

WEATHER

This fall bids fair to be known as the autumn of rains. Showers have been many and copious, and last night's was one of the heaviest of them all. The rain, which began shortly after five yesterday evening continued without abatement all night, and this morning was still falling heavily. The total was 1.35 inches. If the usual routine follows, the rain will be succeeded by high winds, snow flurries, and considerably colder.—W. P.

Local Man Assaulted Without Provocation By Stranger to Him

Ross Crouter, 303 Bethune Street, Was Kicked in Stomach By Unknown Man at Corner Chamberlain and Monaghan Road.

FOUND IN DAZED CONDITION.

Ross Crouter, 303 Bethune Street, was found by Sherman J. Rowe staggering around in a dazed condition, having been assaulted by an unknown man, at the corner of Park and Rubidge Streets last night about 11 o'clock.

Mr. Rowe, when interviewed by The Examiner this morning, said that he was on his way home when he noticed a man staggering around, and when he got closer to him he heard him calling for help. "I went over to him," said Mr. Rowe, "and he told me that he had been kicked in the stomach by a man at the corner of Monaghan Road and Chamberlain Streets, and that he lived at 303 Bethune Street. By this time he had fainted, so I hailed a passing car, which would not stop. Another man named Arthur Halliday came along and between us we managed to stop a car belonging to E. Aitcheson. We then took him to Dr. Clark, who came with us to the Police Station. On arrival there it was discovered that his name was Crouter." He was then removed to St. Joseph's Hospital.

Mr. Crouter, when discharged from St. Joseph's Hospital this morning told the police that he was on his way home, and when passing by W. J. Buyers' store a man stepped out, and without any provocation kicked at him striking him in the stomach.

Reporter Was Instrumental In Recovering Car Stolen From Front Of Church During Choir Practice

Miss Allen, while attending the choir practice of St. Andrew's Church, had her car stolen from the front of the Church. An Examiner reporter, while on his daily rounds this morning, heard about the theft, and about five minutes afterwards he met a man who came from Toronto by the Lindsay route, who said that when he was coming in along the Chemong Road he had noticed a sedan in the ditch near the Lindsay turn. The Examiner notfied Provincial Constable Maker, who went out to see the car, and on his arrival there, he found that it was the car that Miss Allen had reported lost. Provincial Constable Maker stated that the thief had apparently made the complete turn at the Lindsay crossing and was on his way back when he ran out of gas. There was not enough gas in the car to enable Constable Maker to bring it back to the city under its own power.

Women's Styles Are Blamed For Wool Trade Slackness

LONDON, Nov. 13.—(Canadian Press)—Testifying as to the condition of the British woollen trade, S. E. Illingworth, noted Bradford dealer, yesterday, told the Board of Trade in connection with its enquiry into the trade that changes in fashions had hit the woollen industry.

The shortness of women's gowns was one factor in the matter, Mr. Illingsworth said. Formerly it took from five to eight yards to make a gown but nowadays it took only half that amount of material.

"Besides," he added, "there are no petticoats worn to-day of the wool or flannel type."

DRUCILLA WITH A MILLION ROYAL MONDAY

A Means of Assisting Local Council of Women—Purchase Tickets From Them.

The presentation of the special picture, Drucilla with a Million, which takes place at the Royal Theatre, on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday next, matinees and evenings, is under the auspices of the Local Council of Women, who are behind the picture in its showing here.

They have distributed in the neighborhood of two thousand tickets, —which can be procured from any member of the Council, and it is only on these tickets that the organization receives its percentage.

All tickets sold at the box office go altogether to the theatre, and citizens who wish to add to the funds of the Local Council of Women are asked to secure their tickets from its members.

The picture itself is one of the very highest class pictures that has been shown in the city or elsewhere this year, and large crowds are expected to see it.

Suggest Counterpoise Of Chess For Hectic Maids

LONDON, Nov. 13 (Associated Press).—Chess as a steadying influence for girls who seek the excitement of hectic life is urged by Mrs. Arthur Rawson, president of the Imperial Chess Club, in furthering her contention that teaching of the game should not alone be confined to boys.

Many English secondary schools are teaching boys to play chess on the ground that it is a splendid exercise in logic and mental training.

"Chess develops the power of concentration, ordered thinking and foresight, and above all, trains the mind to work logically," said Mrs. Rawson who believes that with character thus developed there would be less dissipation among men and women.

FISHING VESSELS ARE FEARED LOST

Sixty Boats and 200 Men Are Missing From Indian Ports.

MADRAS, British India, Nov. 13. —(Canadian Press).—Sixty fishing boats from Sponnani, manned by 200 men, are missing, and are feared to have been lost in the storm which has raged along the coast for the last few days.

Three boats from Calcutta also have not reported. The storm caused floods, impeded communications and damaged small coastal shipping.

Prisoner Escaped From Police Returning With Him To Jail At Kingston

KINGSTON, Ont., Nov. 13. —(Canadian Press).—John Lett of Toronto, who has been in custody in this city since Sunday evening for infractions of the O.T.A. and who was charged in city police court Thursday with violating parole granted by the Parole Board from Portsmouth penitentiary, escaped from an automobile in which he was being taken to jail in custody of an officer and the jailer. He jumped over a fence on West Street and succeeded in making his get-away and no trace has been found of him by the officers who were detailed for the search. A man answering Lett's description is said to have got off a freight train at Napanee yesterday afternoon. Lett was sentenced in Toronto to serve ten years for a sensational hold-up and robbery near the Union Station and had served three years of a ten-year term before being paroled.

PRINCE'S VISIT TO IRELAND HAS COME UP AGAIN

Long Contemplated Tour of Free State May Be Made Next Year.

MAY VISIT GERMANY.

Government May Think European Tour is Necessary if Pact is Ratified.

DUBLIN, Nov. 13 (Canadian Press)—The question as to when the Prince of Wales is likely to make his long contemplated visit to the Irish Free State has been revived here. Belief prevails that in all probability he may be expected early next year, although no official announcement has yet been made on the subject.

In connection with his visit, the question is also being discussed as to how far the heir apparent to the British throne may be utilized for international conditions. Apart from his prospective visit to Ireland, it is thought here that if the Locarno pact is ratified the British Government may consider it advisable before a very great while that he should pay a visit to Germany.

PREMIER HOPES NOBODY WILL UPSET PEACE

Sir James Craig Says That Boundary Report Ought To Be In Soon.

WOULD BE BETTER.

Peace Obtained Between North and South Will Be Dearly Earned.

BELFAST, Nov. 13.—(Canadian Press)—Sir James Craig, Premier of Ulster, addressing the County Down Orange Lodge last night, declared that the Boundary Commission possibly would report before the end of November. The sooner the report was submitted, he thought, the better it would be for everyone.

"Gradually, but surely," he said, "a reasonable spirit is appearing in the hearts of our opponents. I can only pray that Ulster and the rest of Ireland having got peace, that nobody will say a word or do a deed in any way to upset the peace earned so dearly.

DR. BLAZER FREED AND VIRTUALLY ACQUITTED OF MURDER CHARGE BY DISAGREEMENT OF THE JURY

Trial of Colorado Doctor for Taking the Life of His Imbecile Daughter Leaves Legal Point Undetermined.

REASONABLE DOUBT OF HIS SANITY

Jury Out Fourteen Hours—Majority for Acquittal—Both Prosecution and Defense Claim Victory in Result.

LITTLETON, Colo., Nov. 13 (Canadian Press).—With the legal status of "murder for love" undetermined, Dr. Harold Elmer Blazer last night stood free of the charge of murdering his 34-year-old daughter, Hazel, the "human husk."

Less than an hour after a jury failed to agree on a verdict, the legal stigma of murderer was removed when Judge Samuel Johnon granted a motion of dismissal by proscuting attorney Joel E. Stone. The jury was out less than fourteen hours.

The defendant received the decision with comparative calm. "The jury should have acquitted me, but this last move is the equivalent of acquittal," he said.

"I do not wish to prosecute any one," Stone said, in making his motion for dismissal. "I don't believe this jury or any other one we might obtain could arrive at a verdict and, in fairness both to the defendent and the State, I move all charges be dropped and the defendant be set free."

Consoled by Daughter.

Mrs. Frances Bishop, daughter of the physician, was not in the court room when the jury was dismissed. "Oh, they should have acquitted him, they should have acquitted him," she told the man who carried the news to her in the corridor outside. She then rushed in to talk to her father, who was talking with his brother, Philip Homer Blazer of Magnolia, Ohio, a host of relatives and friends.

Dr. Blazer was alone at the counsel table except for H. W. Spangler, a member of his counsel staff, when Stone's motion was granted. He left soon afterward, declining to make any statement beyond that he was going to Cumbres, Colo., to "operate a sawmill there," and "live an outdoor life, which I believe will benefit my health." He smiled broadly as he talked and appeared to be relieved of

Uncle Sam Pictured As Impartial Arms Vendor

BUENOS AIRES, Nov. 13. (United Press). — Mexico is seeking to develop closer links with South America. To this end she has introduced here a musical revue company and is creating a taste for Mexican music.

In the show now being presented much amusement is caused by a farce which depicts Uncle Sam as a travelling salesman sowing discord and selling arms first to one side and then to the other in South America.

Mexico is planning also to develop the new link by a subsidized steamer line plying between Mexico and South American ports, according to advices here.

MANDATE GIVES BATTLE ORDERS

Peking Government Denounces Wu Pei Fu as a Rebel and Disturber.

PROTECT RAILROAD.

PEKING, Nov. 13. — (Canadian Press). — The Peking Government issued a mandate yesterday, denouncing Marshal Wu Pei Fu as a rebel and the creator of disturbances, and ordering the "Christian General" Feng Yu Psiang and the Governor of Honan, Yueh Wei Chun to suppress him.

The mandate declares General Sun Chuan Fang is making military preparations in violation of the peace principles of the chief executive, Tuan Chi Jui, and instructs Marshal Chang Tse Lin, the Manchurian War Lord, to defend the Tientsin-Pukow railroad.

The mandate is apparently an attempt to reconcile Chang Tse Lin and Feng Yu Psiang, but meanwhile Feng's troops are evacuating their barracks in and around Peking and withdrawing toward Kalgan, while Chang's troops are approaching Peking from three directions.

BROCKVILLE MAN SHOT HIMSELF, DYING ALMOST INSTANTLY, BUT LEFT NO EXPLANATION OF DEED

Clerk in C.N.R. Ticket Office Was Found in Back Room.

REPORT WAS HEARD.

Agent Was Just Entering the Front Door When Shot Was Fired in Rear.

BROCKVILLE, Nov. 13.—(Canadian Press).—As M. C. Dunn, city ticket agent of the Canadian National Railways, turned the key in the door of the office at 7 o'clock this morning, he was startled to hear the report of a shot from the interior, and, investigating, discovered Edward J. Nute, aged 27, a clerk in the office, lying in a dying condition upon an old coat spread on the floor of the rear section of the office with a smoking revolver in his hand. There was a wound in the rear of the right temple, and Nute died almost immediately. Nute, who had been in the employ of the Canadian National Railways in the local office almost from the time of leaving school, left no explanation. He had been absent from Brockville since Saturday night, and, returning early this morning, made his way to the ticket office and lay down upon the floor, using an old coat as a mattress. He was secretary of the local Lodge of Elks. Coroner Dr. W. E. Harding investigated and decided that the holding of an inquest was unnecessary.

SACRED HEART CHURCH.

Shower Last Night in Aid of St. Vincent's Orphanage.

The inclement weather of last evening marred to a certain extent the attendance at the shower held in the basement of the Sacred Heart Church under the auspices of St. Anthony's Sewing Circle, for the benefit of St. Vincent's Orphanage, but a goodly number of miscellaneous articles were received by the ladies in charge. Tea was served, a few friendly games of cards played and a short musical programme rendered. Miss A. Gordon, president of the Circle, acted as general convenor, assisted by Mrs. B. Law, Mrs. H. J. Duffus, Mrs. J. Dennie, Mrs. T. Goselin, Mrs. J. Fenton, Miss Mae Rose and Miss Minnie Allen. The programme included songs by Miss M. Allen and a reading by Miss Alma Goselin.

WAS 76 YEARS OLD.

TORONTO, Nov. 13.—(Canadian Press).—The Rev. Robt. Douglas Fraser, D.D., late Editor Emeritus of the Presbyterian publications and an active work in the Presbyterian Church, died yesterday, aged 76 years.

Starting as a mere boy, Dr. Fraser maintained throughout 56 years of his active life a close connection with Sunday school and young people's work. Born in 1849 at Bond head, South Simcoe, Ontario, the fourth son of the Rev. William Fraser, he received his earlier education at Bondhead Public School.

IN POLICE COURT.

An elderly gentleman was fined $10.00 and costs in Police Court this morning. He had been taken into custody last night by policemen who found him intoxicated in a public place.

On his first appearance before the magistrate he refused to plead but after a brief period of consideration he decided to enter a plea of guilt.

A case of non support for a child which had been preferred against a local man was dismissed as he had paid his first installment last week.

Two youths from Niagara Falls, N.Y., were charged by R. W. Carson with a contravention of the Ontario Fish and Game Act. They had neglected the formality of obtaining the proper license to permit them to hunt in Canada. Each youth had obtained his deer. They pleaded guilty to the charge, admitting knowledge that a special license was necessary and saying that they were ashamed of their offence. A fine of $25.00 and costs was imposed on each youth.

Indigestion

When chronic, is best relieved by Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills.

In most cases, indigestion results from torpid liver and sluggish bowel action. Tablets for the stomach and aids to digestion fail in this chronic form of indigestion. You must get the filtering and excretory organs right before you can expect permanent relief and this is best accomplished by the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills.

Chronic indigestion is a very common condition. On this account many suffer for years not realizing that relief is at hand in the form of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. Headaches, billiousness, spells of constipation and diarrhoea are among the accompanying ailments.

What a relief it would be to be free of this condition which makes one feel so miserable and it is so easy by using this well-known regulator of the liver, kidneys and bowels.

COAL STRIKE TO LAST TO SPRING SAYS GOVERNOR

Winter Long Strike is Impression Given Pinchot By Interviews.

HEARD BOTH SIDES.

Position Taken By Miners and Operators Same as in August.

HARRISBURG, Nov. 13.—(Canadian Press).—The anthracite operators and miners have dug in for an all-winter strike, with nothing in sight to indicate how or where a settlement can be made.

This is the impression left with Governor Pinchot after Major Wm. Ingliss, spokesman for the Anthracite Operators' Association, informed him that the position of the operators is unchanged and that they will agree to no settlement that will increase the cost of fuel to the consumer and which does not provide for the continuous operation of the mines during wage negotiations. Coming on top of the declaration by John L. Lewis to the Governor that the miners will fight until the operators agree to abandon their position of no wage increases and continuous operation, Major Ingliss' statement left the situation exactly where it was in August.

OLD RESIDENT OF HASTINGS IS 92

Friends and Relatives of James Stevenson Gathered to Honor Birthday.

WAS A PIONEER.

HASTINGS, November 13. — To celebrate his 92nd birthday, on Wednesday evening, November 11th, Mr. James Stevenson, the eldest person in the village of Hastings, was tendered a birthday party by his family at the home of his eldest son, James Stevenson, Jr.

Mr. Stevenson was born in the year 1833, about 16 miles from Belfast, near the town of Lurgan in County Down, Ireland. His parents were strict members of the Church of England, and brought up their family of ten children in the same faith.

In the year 1847 with his parents and seven brothers and sisters, three of the family having passed away before this time, he came to Canada. The voyage was made by sailboat from Belfast to Quebec and covered the space of five weeks.

His father by word of mouth purchased one hundred acres of wild land in the Township of Seymour, east of where Mr. David Stillman now lives. A log house was under construction and ere it was completed the man from whom the land was purchased, said the bargain was not binding and would not let it go. Fourteen dollars was allowed for the trouble and for 60 years the house could be seen standing as it was.

Next, another place was purchased, the north ½ of lot 22 in the 13th concession in the township of Percy. For a short time all worked together on the land. At this time there were no churches or schools in the district.

When about 16 years of age, the present Mr. Stevenson arranged to act as cook in a lumber camp in what is known as the Flemming neighborhood. His employers were Wilson & Grover of Norwood, and the wages received for the work were $7.00 per month.

During the next winter he drove a team of oxen in a lumber camp for Bullock and Pentland, at the same salary.

A short time after this he went to help build a bridge from Harwood across Rice Lake, a distance of three miles.

Careful of what money was earned and in order to save as much as possible he purchased land, the east ½ of lot 18, in the 9th concession of Percy Township. In six or seven years all of this land was paid for by money saved while he was yet a boy working on the bridge.

The next step taken was to commence working operations on the land. There being no road to get to the farm a man was hired to cut a track in order to proceed through with the ox team. On the place was a sugar camp, a small clearing with a brush fence around it, and twenty-four basswood rails were enough to surround the enclosure. Here was where he commenced keeping house in what would now be termed bachelor apartments. The only protection he had was a pitchfork with one tine.

The first night a wolf wandered into the camp, and on finding he had the fork near his bed, he again resumed his slumbers.

The first summer a small frame house and barn were erected. Potatoes were planted in the small garden which was cleared. In the autumn these were pitted out and the next spring all weer found frozen but one half pail.

On January 30, 1862, Mr. Stevenson married Susan Beadley, eldest daughter of Ecibod Beadley, Percy Township. She was strong and healthy, and a willing helpmate to commence to help make a home in a wild and unbroken forest where wolves, bears and other wild animals roamed.

As the country improved it became more encouraging for people to settle which they did. This was when "Jack was as good as his master" and each and all were willing to borrow and lend, exchanging work when necessary. Land was cleared until good crops were raised and fall wheat being one of his specialties he enjoyed working for the best.

After a lot of the land had been cleared 1600 bushels of grain were raised in one year, the largest yield ever harvested from the farm even after the time of the more modern farm implements, as at that time no mower, horserake, binder, or cultivator was available.

As the years went by a school house and churches were erected, and no more content could be felt at any time when with his wife and two eldest children they journeyed to church with the oxen on bob sleighs. In later years a church was built midway between Hastings and Campbellford which was named Bethany.

Mr. Stevenson bought and paid for 20,000 brick which he had planned to use for his own home; these he gave to the church, going without for seven years, and in order to clear off the church's debt Mrs. Stevenson, his beloved wife, donatd $50.00. He was appointed secretary treasurer of the church, which was paid for independent of Campbellford, the people of Hastings and Percy paying for it. Mr. John Graham deeded to Mr. Stevenson the lot of one acre and an extent for Church purposes only, until when the chairman of the District called a meeting, selling the church and lot and taking the proceeds to the Campbellford treasury.

During the happy years spent on the farm the family of ten children living happily with their parents. The living are Mrs. S. J. Merrills of Campbellford, Mrs. J. W. Fairman of Campbellford, James and George of Hastings, Mrs. H. Beavis of Norwood, Dr. T. B. Stevenson of Wetoskiwin, Alberta, and Mrs. A. V. German of Hastings.

William died through being injured in an accident; Samuel was drowned in the Trent River at Campbellford while there to write on the entrance examinations; and Ernest died at Abbeville, France, after serving nearly four years in the Great War for which service he received the Military Cross for bravery on the field.

About twenty five years ago Mr. and Mrs. Stevenson and family moved to Hastings.

Mrs. Stevenson died in the year 1910, and since that time he has made his home with his youngest daughter, Mrs. A. V. German.

Taken completely by surprise on Wednesday he was again united with his family on the occasion of his ninety-second birthday. About fifty guests were present and tables were laid for all. The color scheme was white throughout, the flowers being large white mums. White streamers were arranged from the ceiling to a birthday cake in the centre of the tables. The cake held ninety-two candles and was decorated with silver pellets, with ninety-two years on the sides of the cake in silver.

After supper was served a solo was sung by Miss J. Wilcox. Rev. M. L. Hinton was called on to act as toast master. In his remarks Mr. Hinton spoke of the happy time there must have been in Ireland ninety-two years ago when the son was born in the family, and of the many years of happy life since lived. In his closing remarks the toast master asked that the family extend to him an invitation to celebrate the one hundredth birthday occasion of the honored guest.

Mr. A. B. German was called on to give a reply which he did, and Mrs. S. J. Merrick, the eldest child of the family, also made most fitting remarks, and Misses Gladys Stevenson and Evelyn Beavis played a piano duet.

During the evening a baptismal service was held when one grandchild and two great grandchildren were baptised by the Rev. M. L. Hinton.

Music and singing throughout the evening was enjoyed by both young and old and all left for their several homes ni the early hours of the morning.

PROVINCE CAN'T OUTLAW KLAN

Petition Before B. C. Legislature Will Probably Be Sent to Federal House.

VICTORIA, B. C., Nov. 13.—(Canadian Press.)—British Columbia is powerless to cope with the activities of the Klu Klux Klan members of Canada, the Legislature learned yesterday after they had been urged in a formal notice to prevent the Klan from organizing in the province. Only the Federal Government can prevent the Klan from going ahead with its plans, officials of the Attorney-General's Department announced. It is now considered likely that the resolution before the house, asking the Provincial Government to outlaw the Klan will be altered and the petition made to the Federal authorities at Ottawa.

NEW INVENTION SAVES MILLIONS

A Lamp That Burns 94 P.C. Air.

A new oil lamp that gives an amazingly brilliant, soft, white light, even better than gas or electricity, has been tested by the U.S. Government and 35 leading universities and found to be superior to 10 ordinary oil lamps. It burns without odor, smoke or noise—no pumping up, is simple, clean, safe. Burns 94 per cent. air and 6 per cent. common kerosene (coal oil).

The inventor, F. B. Johnson, 246 Craig St. W., Montreal, is offering to send a lamp on 10 days' FREE trial, or even to give one FREE to the first user in each locality who will help him introduce it. Write him today for full particulars. Also ask him to explain how you can get the agency, and without experience or money make $250 to $500 per month.

PEACE IN EUROPE BROUGHT CLOSER BY HINDENBURG

German President Supports Pact of Locarno With Part of Party.

JUNKERS OPPOSED.

President Compares Reactionaries To "A Bull in a China Shop."

BERLIN, Nov. 13. — (Canadian Press).—A series of amazing developments yesterday in Germany brings the peace of Europe nearer.

President Von Hindenburg has turned against the Nationalists for their opposition to the Locarno pact. In a confidential conversation with a Democratic politician he compared the reactionaries to "a bull in a china shop," and complained that "first they assure me I am their spokesman and then I find myself standing alone, my position endangered."

With Von Hindenburg friendly to the pact and with a substantial block of the Nationalists supporting him in opposition to the junker leaders, ratification seems assured.

LIGHTER SENTENCE FROM FRENCH COURT

Man Who Helped Defraud Rajah Goes to Jail For 13 Months.

PARIS, Nov. 13. — (Canadian Press). — Captain Charles Arthur was sentenced yesterday to thirteen months' imprisonment for receiving stolen property in connection with the blackmailing of Sir Hari Singh, the "Mr. A." who was mulcted of $750,000 in England after being trapped with Mrs. Maudie Robinson. Arthur was aide de camp to the young Indian Rajah, who recently succeeded his uncle as Maharajah of Jammu and Kashmir. Arthur, who said he preferred a trial in France to facing the charges in England, got off easier than William C. Hobbs, who was given two years at hard labor in England.

BOY SCOUTS BARRED AS TOO MILITARISTIC

Argintinians Say It Has Harmful Influence on the Younger Generation.

BUENOS AIRES, Nov. 13—(United Press). — The Boy Scout movement has been characterized in Argentina as a harmful influence on the younger generation because of its militaristic tendencies.

This opinion was formally expressed by a special committee of the National Council of Education here when recommending that the National Association of Argentine Boy Scouts be denied the right to organize troops in the public schools of Buenos Aires.

"The Boy Scouts which are organized in this country present a military character which is not in accordance with the fundamental principles of our pedagogical ideals" said the committee's report.

DR. BLAZER FREED

the strain he had been under during the last eight days.

"Victory for Humanity."

"This has been a victory for human ity; for humanity was on trial, side by side with Dr. Blazer," Lewis Mowry, chief defence counsel said.

"The verdict was good as an acquittal, for it shows that on this jury were men who dealt not alone with the cold facts of law. I am informed that the vote at any time was never more than three for conviction and that it simmered down towards the end to a point where a single juror was holding out to convict."

Prosecutor Stone saw in the action of the jury a victory "for law and order."

"These men as a body declined to put the stamp of approval on this sort of crime; they declined to state that Colorado would countenance these types of killings, and it will serve as a warning in the future," he declared.

"I moved for a dismissal of charges because I do not believe any jury could agree on a verdict and because I believe the people's will has been accomplished without the expenditure of their money for another trial."

Nearly Unanimous.

Several of the jurors, however, took issue with the statement that it was a "victory for the prosecution."

"If they had left us alone half an hour longer, we would have acquitted, declared one of them—the father of an invalid daughter.

"There was nothing to it—we probably would have acquitted on one more ballot," said another, while others declared they did not believe that the body was honelessly deadlocked when it was discharged.

Addressing counsel in the presence of the accused man who was to be free in a few minutes, Judge Johnson said:

"It is an equivalent of acquittal in the eyes of the people, if not in the eyes of the law. In my mind there has been raised a reasonable doubt as to the sanity of the defendant and and I believe this man should be cleared at this time."

THE COST OF ROADS.

Some motorists are resenting the statement from Hon. G. S. Henry, Minister of Highways, that there is little possibility of a reduction either in the gasoline tax or in the auto license fee next year.

The announcement, however, should not be regarded as surprising, seeing that Ontario faces a deficit of at least $5,000,000 this year, and the Province is spending $25,000,000 in keeping pace with the good roads movement.

The question of who should pay for the roads causes much discussion, but, at least, it seems reasonable that those who benefit most from improved highways should pay their fair share of the tax.

That being granted, it should be also apparent that motorists, whether they use the roads for pleasure or for commercial purposes, get more service out of good roads than anybody else, and on that ground must expect to pay for the privilege.

The gasoline tax operates on that principle, falling heaviest upon those who use the roads most.

At the same time, it forces outside drivers who use Ontario's highways to a very considerable extent to make a contribution to the cost of building and maintaining improved roads.

VOTING UNDER A PENALTY.

Chief interest in the Australian elections tomorrow, so far as the average Canadian is concerned, is in the test that is being made of the system of compulsary voting.

Every Australian who is eligible to vote and fails to do so may be fined $10 for his neglect of his duty as a citizen.

It is an experiment that has been advocated by more than one Canadian newspaper, alarmed at the apathy shown by many electors toward political issues whether in the municipal or national field.

It is just a question whether such a method will do much to secure an intelligent expression of public opinion.

It should bring out a larger vote, of course, but the results in the long run are not likely to be any better, inasmuch as the elector who will not use his franchise unless the law cracks a whip over him is not to be depended upon to use it with much judgment when he is compelled to mark a ballot.

An intelligent electorate using the franchise because the wisdom of voting is apparent will give a much more reliable expression of public opinion than can be given by a conscripted electorate, going to the polls only because of the penalty prescribed for failure to do so.

WAR MEMORIALS.

The Municipal Review, in issuing a war memorials souvenir number, has done much to place on record Canada's appreciation for its war dead.

In the introduction the Review remarks that "looking back over the twenty-one years as publisher of Canada's national municipal magazine—'The Municipal Review of Canada'—we feel that no more important number has been published by us," and the reader who turns over the page of the souvenir will heartily agree.

Coming out as it does on the seventh anniversary of the Armistice, the number is particularly timely in the evidence it presents of Canada's gratitude to the men who died for her.

It illustrates the principal war memorials and representative commemorative tablets erected throughout Canada to the memory of those who fell in the Great War.

The average reader will be astonished to find that so much progress has been made in this respect in every part of Canada, and to see the beauty and cost of some of the memorials that have been erected.

Peterboro people who view the many illustrations will hope that it will be possible to include a photograph of this city's war memorial in the next edition promised by the Review.

The souvenir number should be in great demand, particularly as all profits on the sale of copies go to war widows and orphans.

THE SMALL TOWN.

During the course of his eloquent address on road improvements at the Board of Trade banquet at Amherstburg, S. L. Squire, Deputy Minister of Highways for Ontario, suggested that as the result of suburban area road improvement, rural trade was gradually being diverted to the cities, and that great economic changes are bound to follow, among which would be the depopulation of the smaller towns and villages, which, in his opinion, would, within a few years, become mere residential boroughs, as the trade of the country would be absorbed by large centres, increasing motor traffic making this not only possible but probable. We do not like to think that this result will necessarily follow the improvement of Provincial and county highways. It would not be a good thing for the Province if it did happen, and there is nothing so far to indicate that the villages or towns are losing their trade on account of improved highways—in fact, so far as Western Ontario is concerned, it is working out just the other way. There is a human element about the matter of towns and villages that you cannot get away from; a civic pride and a civic spirit which will not permit these places to go back. True, it is a sorry commentary on human life that the second generation in certain families does run to seed, or die out. The same can also be said, not only in these modern times, but also in past days of certain villages and towns. This was not due at all to changed conditions of roads or anything else, but simply because people simply failed to keep up the standard which had been set them by leaders of the past generation. Urban centres which continue to maintain their desire for advancement, for modern improvement, and for developing their natural resources, will have little fear from any change which may take place in the diversion of trade under the improved road conditions of the present day. Our homes are, after all, very much what we make them, and this is the human element which enters into progress or retrogression, both of families and towns. We have only to become acquainted with the little communities that spring up in the heart of cities to have it brought home to us that the common people would rather maintain their own communities than trade in the congested centres. Whether urban towns thrive or die, depends entirely on the calibre, the alertness and the business point of view of the people themselves, and not whether concrete pavements make it easier to get to the cities to shop. The wideawake place gets trade from its rivals, not because it is large or small, or is on a city highway, but because it has up-to-date and agressive business men. It's the personal element that counts.—Strathroy Age-Despatch.

SOVEREIGN POWER.

In an address made recently in London, and in another in Toronto, Hume Cronyn of London claimed that Governments in Canada had abused their sovereign power, says the Monetary Times. He cited as instances the seed grain liens established by the Dominion in priority to other claims, and the authority granted to the Ontario Hydro-Electric Power Commission to expropriate property at its own valuation.

Mr. Cronyn claims that this is "the weak spot in our Canadian constitution," and points out that in the United States there is a law that no man's property can be taken from him for public use without due compensation being paid.

The United States has a written constitution, which can be altered only by a cumbersome process. Congress and the State Legislatures are subject to this constitution, and the courts, as its independent interpreters, have power to disallow any act of Congress or of the State Houses. Under the British system Parliament is supreme. It can do anything it chooses to do, and is responsible to no one except its own electorate, which cannot itself enact laws but only elect members to do so. This sovereign power has been delegated to the self-governing colonies, the British Crown reserving only a right of disallowance through the Governor-General and a privilege of appeal to the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council.

Both systems have merits which cannot be set forth here. The point is that we cannot depart from the British system without setting up a written Canadian constitution which would mean separation from the Empire; or surrendering our right of self-government and reverting to the status of a hundred years ago. Even in the case of the Provinces, which have sovereign powers within their jurisdictions, the Royal prerogative of disallowance is seldom exercised.

It is inevitable that a Government will once in a while over-step the mark, and abuses have existed in Canada. Nor is the United States constitution free from defects, and there are instances where laws have been declared unconstitutional long years after they have been put into force, and after irreparable results have been effected thereby. Evils of this kind can be checked only by open criticism like that voiced by Mr. Cronyn, but would he go so far as to favor either of the above alternatives as a remedy?

FACING OUR WAR DEBT.

With the political future still clouded as the result of an election which was not decisive, there is an opportunity to again urge upon the new Government, of whatever political complexion, that it make one of the important items of its program the putting of Canada's finances on a business-like basis. As the result of the war Canada is carrying a terrific burden of debt. The obligations of the country have increased from $336,000,000 in 1914 to about $2,500,000,000 at the present time. There is a great need for some comprehensive budget plan by which this debt will be faced and arrangements made to take care of it. Only by the adoption of such a budget can the country hope to look forward to a time when the tax problem will be properly solved.

The debt already contracted must be discharged. No system of political juggling in national bookkeeping can evade that obligation. But that is not enough. The reduction of taxes in the United States makes it more and more imperative that something be done to reduce the levies in Canada so that Canadian competitive business may have a fair opportunity and Canadian individuals the privilege of retaining for themselves an equal proportion of their incomes.

To effect tax reduction and at the same time take care of debt obligations by a proper budget necessitates the curtailment of current expenses and the suspending of capital expenditures where not absolutely necessary. Only by spending less can the scale of taxation be lowered, for there is no way in which the charges on the debt already contracted can be evaded.

During the next twenty years Victory and War loan issues to a total of approximately $2,000,000,000 will become due and payable. It is unthinkable that this debt can be wiped out by a young country like Canada within the period stated. Yet it is seven years since the Armistice was signed and nothing has been done to make plans to take care of this situation.

The formulation of some definite plan to take care of the war debt is absolutely essential to a business-like taxation program. Even worse than heavy taxation is uncertainty as to what levies shall be made. Under the conditions prevailing it is of the greatest importance that business should be able to budget in advance, and this cannot be done if tax levies are being continually changed as various experiments in revenue-raising are tried out.

As to the best plan to be followed in taking care of the debt there are differences of opinion amongst financiers. The establishment of sinking funds, the issuing of serial or instalment bonds or the building of a reserve fund to reduce the amount of the issues as they are renewed would serve to meet the situation and each plan has its merits. It would be for the Government to secure expert advice and decide on the best plan to meet the situation in the interests of the country.

Over eighteen months ago the Financial Post discussed this question of taking care of the country's debt by a definite budget. The necessity for action becomes more imperative as time passes. The formation of a new Government should provide an opportunity for calm and careful consideration of the whole matter.—Financial Post.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

The Government is to go into action in the coming session with a bench manager, instead of a playing captain.

The Ontario Minister of Agriculture, Hon. J. S. Martin, in his efforts to assist the apple growers to dispose of their crop is doing a real service.

Aspirants for municipal office continue to be coy about announcing their intentions. There will be hats in the ring before long, however.

CHINA PAINTING

Wise and Otherwise.

We sometimes think that we hate flattery, but we only hate the manner in which it is done.
—La Rochefoucauld.

Avoid extremes; and shun the fault of such
Who still are pleas'd too little or too much.
—Pope.

A THOUGHT.

LEST THE FAT FORGET.

From a recently published insurance booklet come these authoritative observations:

"Only in very recent years has science come to realize the potential dangers of excessive fat, and there is reason to believe that in this matter as in all other medical matters ,prevention is far better than the cure.

"There are certain diseases that have long been associated with overweight....life insurance companies have been reluctant to place standard insurance on people with marked overweight, and, where it is excessive insurance has been refused altogether. This practice of the insurance companies shows that they consider overweight as a very serious disability, and, indeed, treat it as though it were a disease."

Ladies and gentlemen, remember that an intelligent consumption of correct foods instead of dangerous drugs and questionable diets, and consistent exercise rather than one pair of rubber corsets or an occasional game of golf are the guaranties of normal weight.

And bear in mind, too, that the recent suggestion of an eminent physician that all fat folk should pay an adidtional tax may eventually be taken seriously.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE.

EAST CITY TRANSPORTATION

To the Editor of the Examiner:

Dear Sir: With your permission, I wish to give a history of our bus service during the last 15 years, which has been failure through a lack of business methods.

First bus had more patronage than it had power. Then another man started his conveyance. It was so often in repair shop and uncertain of its time of running. I have seen people waiting at street corners until tired, then move off to town. They would learn next day it was in Lakefield or elsewhere. The third attempt was made by a Ford. It ran for days and very few knew it was in the public service, as it went through the streets, as farmers go to market. The fourth—a week ago I was told of such a good service that was going to start, by such a fine bus. I neither saw nor heard it on the streets. On enquiryI learned that the man said he had run 13 trips through Ashburnham, in one day, and no one asked him to pull up. I have asked several people, and they never saw it.

Now, Sir, you see the unbusinesslike way transportation has been attempted.

If anyone else intends starting, allow me to suggest: Use printers' ink. Let us know by a sign in front of the bus the terminals in plain letters, and one or two green or blue lamps to warn its coming after dark, and a good loud horn or bell that the public will be at the stops (that should be marked on the posts) every two blocks Then I feel sure there will be something doing in this neglected ward. Yours,

ED. COURTNEY.

RUSSIA'S CASUALTIES.

Lost 754,000 Men in World War—Mobilized Nearly 16 Million Men.

MOSCOW, Nov 13.—Russia lost 754,000 men in the World War, the statistical department has announced. During the 40 months of warfare the government spent 25 billion dollars, which placed a military tax of $750 on each peasant's homestead. By the end of 1916, Russia had mobilized 15,780,000 men, which represented 47 per cent. of the total able-bodied men of the country.

VENTILATE THEATRES.

French at Home in Crowded Atmosphere—Foreign Patrons Object.

PARIS, November 13. — An open window creates a panic almost anywhere in a French theatre, and as there are no means of mechanical ventilation, foreigners suffocate winter and summer alik . As smoking is permitted in virtually all moving picture houses and many theatres, ventilation is more necessary.

New motion picture houses under construction here and in other French cities for American picture companies will be equipped with every sort of modern equipment.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE.

MONTREAL, Nov. 12 (Canadian Press).—The export trade in Canadian grain on the Montreal market today was reported quiet, there being only sales of a few odd loads of oats to the United Kingdom.

The domestic grain market was active and prices ruled firm, with Ontario and Quebec No. 2 white oats quoted at 52 cents, No. 3 white at 50 1-2 cents, and No. 4 white at 49 cents per bushel, ex-track, while old cars of Ontario malting barley changed hands at 85 1-2 cents per bushel ex-track, and damp No. 3 buckwheat sold at $1.73 per bushel ex-track.

Owing to the continued good demand from local and country buyers for all lines of millfeed and the somewhat limited supplies available on account of the fact that millers in most cases are oversold for the present a very firm feeling prevails in the market and prices were unchanged. The feature of the trade in rolled oats was the stronger feeling in the market, and prices were marked up 10c per bag.

The tone of the market for potatoes was fairly steady today under an improved demand for supplies, and a more active trade was done for domestic account and with other Canadian centres, but the movement in large quantities will not likely be resumed until the United States removes the embargo they have placed on Canadian potatoes.

The receipts of butter in Montreal were 1,131 packages, as against 2,257 for the same day last week, and 1,362 for the corresponding day a year ago. There was no further change in the condition of the market but the undertone was firm with a better demand from both local and outside buyers for supplies, and a more active business done. The movement in a jobbing way was also larger and prices were very firm at 44c per lb for finest in solid packages, and at 45c per lb, in 1 lb. blocks.

EGG PRICES

OTTAWA, Nov. 12 (Canadian Press).—Fresh eggs of the higher grades are very scarce on all markets. Storage prices continue steady with firm undertone. Prices generally are unchanged. Cold storage holdings of eggs in the United States, November 1st, are reported as 6,320,000 cases, and holdings of frozen poultry as 53,724,000 lbs.

Toronto—Fresh specials 68, extras 66, firsts 5[illegible] storage extras 44, firsts 41, seconds 35.

Montreal—Demand for fresh eggs continues to be in excess of the supply and prospects are that prices may go higher in the near future. The bulk of the trading is in storage eggs and supplies are sufficient to meet all requirements. Prices are unchanged.

Winnipeg — Market steady with receipts of fresh very scarce. Jobbing, fresh extras 58 to 60, firsts 50, seconds 35, storage extras 46, firsts 41, seconds 34.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, Nov. 12 (Canadian Press).—Sharp reduction of the Chicago stock of wheat to less than 200,000 bushels of regular contract grade, led to a lively upturn in wheat prices today. Eastern mills were reported to be taking wheat away from here, and the market closed nervous, 3-8 to 3c net higher, new style, December 1.53 1-2 to 1.53 3-4, and May 1.46 1-8 to 1.46 1-4, with corn at 1-2 to 1 1-4c advance; oats unchanged to 1-8c up, and provisions varying from the same as Tuesday's finish to a rise of 45c.

Anxiety as to likelihood of difficulty in settling December wheat contracts here became more acute as a result of announcement that despite the meagreness of the stock of wheat here, 90,000 bushels of No. 2 dark Northern Spring wheat would be loaded out of Chicago elevators tomorrow for shipment east. The bullish effect of this news was further heightened by notice that domestic receipts continued scanty, Northwest and Southwest in particular. Furthermore, the smallness of the latest increase of the world's available supply aroused considerable comment.

Under such circumstances, the price of Chicago December delivery of wheat jumped to more than 7 cents a bushel premium over May, a difference seldom equalled. Contributing to the upward trend of values was some enlargement of export business, both Canadian and Durum. Besides, there were unfavorable crop reports from Argentina, especially word of some damage by rain in the harvest district, as well as advices that crop failure was looked for in parts of the Argentine provinces of Santa Fe and Cordova.

On the other hand, some experts estimated the probable Argentine crop at 270,000,000 bushels.

Wet weather tending to hinder husking and to delay the movement of corn had a good deal to do with strengthening the corn market. In addition, more or less buying was based on the fact that the government crop report as to corn was less bearish than expected. Oats trade was lifeless.

Provisions went up grade with corn, despite weakness of hogs.

INVALID WOMAN VICTIM OF FIRE; OTHERS ESCAPE

Store in Village of Sebright, Victoria County, a Total Loss.

VALUED AT $18,000

Other Members of Herring Family Rescued With Difficulty in Night.

LINDSAY, Nov. 13.—(Special).—Information from Seabright, a little village on the border of Victoria County, tells of a tragedy which occurred there a few evenings ago. The large frame store conducted by Miss Florence Herring, together with the stock valued at $7,000, and the adjoining apartments, were destroyed by fire, and one of the Herring sisters (Hattie) perished in the flames. The rest of the inmates were rescued with extreme difficulty by neighbors. The barn some distance away was also consumed.

The fire was first noticed by George Young, a boy twelve years of age, who resides with his parents opposite the Herring store. Beyond a doubt all the inmates of the Herring apartments would have perished but for the prompt alarm given by the youth.

Miss Florence Herring inhaled considerable smoke before being rescued and was taken to the hospital in a precarious condition.

Miss Hattie Herring, who perished, was a partial invalid, and had just returned from the Orillia Hospital where she had been receiving treatment.

The burned building was a landmark in that section of the country, and had several extensions made to it to accommodate the growing tourist trade. The total loss, including the building, merchandise, furniture and barn, is estimated at $18,000; insurance a little over $4,000.

WASHINGTON, D. C., November 13. — Canadian Press, — The Italian and American Debt Commissions Thursday came to an agreement for the funding of Italy's war debt to the United States on the basis of $1,-648,000,000 plus accrued interest to date.

LOAN PROPOSED.

NEW YORK, November 13. Canadian Press. — With the ban on Italian financing lifted by the agreement reached at Washington yesterday for a settlement of Italy's war debt to the United States, the bankers expect a loan of $50,000,000 or $100,000,-000 to the Italian government and at least $50,000,000 of industrial bond issues to follow within a short time.

The financing for the Italian government will be used to strengthen its financial position preparatory to a restoration of the gold standard and a probable revaluation of the lire. Of the money to be obtained, $50,000,000 will be required to absorb a credit granted by J. P. Morgan & Company last summer to a consortium of Italian banks for exchange stabilization purposse on behalf of the government.

MANY ATTENDED SERVICE AND SUPPER

Cavan Ladies' Aid Realized Large Sum at Week-end.

CAVAN, Nov. 13.—The members of the Ladies' Aid of Cavan United Church were very much pleased over the success of their Thanksgiving services on Sunday and their Thanksgiving dinner on Monday evening.

There was a very large crowd in attendance but the ladies had provided so bountifully that there was ample for all and a sale of cooking followed when the programme was over.

The programme was especially suitable for an occasion of this kind.

The pastor, Rev. J. Totten, was chairman and filled the position in a most efficient manner. His remarks were such as to keep the crowd in a merry mood.

Messrs. Clare Winslow and Tom McCamus delighted the audience with their singing and had to respond to many encores.

Mrs. Louis Winslow accompanied them on the piano in her usual capable manner.

The piano duets by Mrs. Totton and Mrs. Winslow were much enjoyed, as was the violin and piano duets by Mr. Harry McArthur and Mrs Totton.

Rev. Mr. Higgs was asked to give an address but declined to do so, on account of the large crowd and programme to follow, merely making a few interesting remarks.

Miss Helen Staples' readings were especially good and well rendered.

The play entitled, "The Play Actoress," was short and full of fun.

The proceeds amounted to over two hundred dollars on Monday evening.

TWELVE KILLED FORTY INJURED IN TRAIN SMASH

Rear-End Collision on Pennsylvania Railway in New Jersey Fog.

OTHERS WILL DIE

Second Train Recovering Lost Time at 55 Miles an Hour.

PLAINSBORO, N.J., Nov. 13.—(Canadian Press)—Speeding through a dense fog that blanketed this tiny farming hamlet of a few hundred souls, not far from the University town of Princeton, the Pennsylvania Railroad's Mercantile Express from St. Louis, early yesterday crashed into the rear sleeping car of an express train from Washington and exacted a large toll of dead and injured. Both trains were bound for New York.

Estimates of the dead ranged from nine to thirteen and the injured from thirty-one to forty. Some of the injured may die. The exact number of dead may not be known until the wreckage is cleared. All night wrecking crews worked slowly in a pouring rain under the glare of flickering lights, while curious crowds stood nearby watching the operations. State troopers and railroad police guarded the tangled wreckage.

Many of the bodies were so badly mangled that identification was made difficult.

Some of the Victims.

The known dead:

J. A. Porter, Philadelphia.

E. W. Bates, Baltimore.

John C. Horstman, Schenectady, N.Y.

T. J. Major, Philadelphia, negro porter.

Five unidentified bodies at morgue in New Brunswick, N.J.

At the point where the accident occurred the tracks are straight as an arrow and the road bed begins a level stretch of nearly ten miles. Along this level stretch, railroad men said, it has been the custom of trains running behind schedule to make up some of their lost time and this was said to have been the cause with the St. Louis train yesterday.

First Train Slow.

The Washington train, composed of seven day coaches and three pullmans, was trailing along at about ten miles an hour. One report was that engine trouble had developed in the locomotive causing the necessity of proceeding cautiously. Another was that it was several minutes ahead of schedule, that it had come to a dead stop and that the flagman had gone ahead to learn if the St. Louis train had passed the point. There were no indications to the contrary. The flagman had just boarded the Washington train and it again got under steam when the St. Louis train, speeding at a rate said to have been 55-miles an hour crashed into the rear car of the Washington express.

It was decided to organize educational and social branches and the executive was given power to appoint suitable officers to conduct these departments.

FARMER ACCUSED OF ROBBING COTTAGES

Great Variety of Furniture Found in His Home.

SARNIA, Ont., Nov. 13.—(Canadian Press).—A well-known and well-to-do farmer of Inniskillen township and former flying officer in the war, Angus Norwood, is facing serious charges of thefts alleged to have extended over a period of two years from summer homes on the shore of Lake Huron and the St. Clair River, extending all the way from Port Frank to Corrunna. Norwood was yesterday granted bail of $4,000 and will appear for trial in county court here on Thursday of next week. It is alleged that he is a kleptomaniac. The extraordinary feature of the case is the widespread nature of the articles said to have been stolen, which were removed from Norwood's farm.

There was verandah furniture, tables, chairs, beds, linen, tires, lamps, umbrellas, a complete tent and camping outfit, radio set and even a grindstone. The latter was taken from the McCormick summer home south of Corunna. There were also dozens of jars of preserves. In some case an owner has identified articles stolen two years ago, and the same man has also picked out property he lost as recently as October last.

He is seventy years old, is a great grandfather, is the father of a child only five months old, and is still a wife-beater.

According to his neighbors, a man who has reached the age of seventy and has had such ample opportunity to spank three generations of children, should have lost his interest in such pastimes as wife-beating.

His wife agrees with them; and, although she last aroused his wrath and beating proclivities by coming home drunk late one evening, she carried her bruises and her husband before a local magistrate. Waerosky was fined the equialent of fifty cents.

ONE BUDDHA FLED; STRIFE THREATENS

Dalai Lama Has Taken Over Department Ruled by Panchen Lama.

TATSIENLU, Province of Szech-Wan, Nov. 12. Associated Press. — The two "Living Buddhas" of Tibet are at outs. One had fled the country, and strife threatens.

Intrigues, political rivalries, and the superstitions of the Tibetian people are woven into the fabric of the troublesome situation. The unrest is not apparent on the surface of things, for Thibet is ruled by the "lamas" or priests of Budda, but their are signs of dissension among the lamas themselves.

Under normal circumstances the spiritual and temporal powers are divided between the two men accepted among the followers of the religion as the living representatives of Buddha. The Dalai Lama is looked upon as the spiritual head and the Panchen Lama as temporal ruler. The present Dalai Lama has taken upon himself the temporal power in the country without surrendering the spiritual headship. The Panchen Lama has been forced to flee to China, where he wanders from place to place, while his followers in Tibet plot for his return to power, or the overthrowing of the Dalai Lama.

The political aspects of the situation result from the position of Tibet as a buffer state between India and China. One of the two Tibetian political parties is pro-British and anti-Chinese, while the other is anti-British and pro-Chinese. The leading political question is that of Tibet's attitude toward the two greater nations. The Dalai Lama inclines toward India, and Panchen toward China.

CITIZENS OF DISTRICT TOWNS HOLD ARMISTICE DAY SERVICES

Cessation of War Was Commemorated on Wednesday Morning.

AT MONUMENTS

Decorations Were Placed by Various Societies on Memorials.

AT NORWOOD.

NORWOOD, Nov. 13. — An Armistice Day service was held on Wednesday morning under the auspices of the 40th Northumberland Chapter I.O.D.E. Rev. T. M. Wesley occupied the chair. At 10.30 those assembled sang the familiar hymn, "O God Our Help In Ages Past", after which Rev. R. F. Stillman offered a prayer of thanksgiving. Rev. T. J. O'Conor-Fenton then read the scripture lesson, followed by prayer by the Rev. J. P. McLennan. Another hymn, "Jerusalem the Golden" was sung and the Benediction pronounced by Rec. T. M. Wesley. The audience, lead by the teachers and pupils of the High school, then repaired to the Memorial plot. The pupils of the Public school along with their teachers then marched into position around the plot. Some of the members of the local Boy Scouts assembled in front of the monument and at this juncture the bell of the United Church and the whistle of Buck's box factory gave the signal for the two minutes of silence. This was observed by not only those in the assembly but also by the citizens who happened to be on the street. Immediately after this ceremony wreaths of poppies were placed at the foot of the memorial by the Public and High schools, the I.O.D.E., the veterans and others. The service ended by singing "God Save Our King."

AT MILLBROOK.

MILLBROOK, Nov. 13.—An impressive community Armistice Day service was held on Wednesday, at 10.40 a.m., in front of the Soldiers' Cenotaph at the town hall square, a representative gathering of citizens being in attendance.

Rev. F. H. Howard was chairman, and the singing was led by the Millbrook band, under the leadership of G. A. Duncan.

Promptly at the appointed hour the band marched to the green, and played, "O Canada", and immediately afterward the town bell was rung giving notice that the hour for the service had arrived.

"Lead, Kindly Light", and "All Hail the Power of Jesus' Name", were sung as opening hymns, and Rev. D. R. Dewdney read the Scripture lesson from the fifth chapter of the Book of Wisdom, after which Rev. Joseph Wilks led in prayer

"May the memory of this Armistice Day never fade from our forgetful hearts."

With these words, repeated twice for the sake of emphasis, Rev. Canon Allen, whose only son paid the supreme sacrifice during the world war, began his address.

"The question has been asked, 'Why not have this service on Sunday, or on Thanksgiving Day?' and my reply is, 'We have so many national blessings for which we can never sufficiently thank God, that we need a special day to commemorate mercies so many, so vast, and so stupendous, as came to us with the ending of the great war.'

"Then again we are loyal to our King in keeping this day, since he has given command that it be observed throughout the whole Empire, and there is no grander characteristic of the Christian man than loyalty. We are under obligation to be loyal in friendship, not carrying a dagger up our coat sleeve while professing to be true; loyal to our church, to our minister, and to our God.

"We keep this day because we are loyal to our boys who lie in Flander's Field; their blood, like that of Abel, calls to us from the ground, and the work which they so nobly began, waits for us to carry on.

"Loyalty to our God means that we are loyal to our boys, to our King, to everybody, and to every national institution. Christ set us His standard; 'If ye love Me, ye will keep my commandments', and it follows 'he loves most who feels most, thinks noblest, acts the best.'"

At the close of the address, a single stroke of the town bell gave warning that the hour of eleven had arrived, and the two minutes' silence was observed, another toll of the bell announcing its conclusion.

The "Last Post" was sounded by G. E. Burnham, the hymn, "Nearer my God to Thee", was sung, and Rev. Mr. Howard pronounced the benediction. The band led in the National Anthem, and the gathering was dismissed.

The local Cadet corps, under command of Instructing Officer, B.B. Dawson, was drawn up in the roadway facing the monument during the service, and the pupils from the school marched in a body to the square immediately before the hour of opening.

Wreaths of evergreen, with red poppies intertwined, were laid upon the base of the cenotaph, and the granite column, on which are inscribed the names of the men who died on the field of honor, was encircled with poppies as its crown. Every member of the band, the clergy, and many of those present, also wore a poppy, in honor of the day and what it stands for.

"Lest We Forget."

The names on the monument for Millbrook are: T. W. Allen, H. E. Bennewith, W. L. Carveth, R. J. Cochrane, J. C. Campbell, R. J. Huffman, E. J. Hogan, T. G. McCorry, J. R. McBride, W. H. Orr, J. P. Sloan.

For Cavan: C. Bennett, A. Ball, T. Dee, N. B. Elliott, N. M. Fair, B. Fisher W. Grist, E. Guest, A. Hawkins, E. R. Hodges, A. Hann, J. Hardy, G. Jendin, A. Jardine, D. James, G. F. McKnight, F. A. Newton, J. A. Sisson, E. A. Shaw, T. Whalley.

AT OMEMEE.

OMEMEE, Nov. 13.—A public service was held in Christ Church, Omemee on Wednesday to commemorate the seventh anniversary of Armistice Day. The school was dismissed and pupils, teachers and many citizens were present. The service commenced at 10.45 a.m. by singing 'From Ocean Unto Ocean', followed by the Anglican prayer service and promptly at 11 o'clock, with bowed heads the 2 minute silence was observed, after which the rector, Rev. A. T. Weir, led in prayer.

The scripture lesson was read by Rev. E. W. Rowland, and a short address was given by Mr. Weir. He based his remarks on the words found in Isiaah 9, 5:"For every battle of the warrior is with confused noise, and garments rolled in blood; but this shall be with burning and fuel of fire."

At the close of the address the National Anthem was heartily rendered and the impressive service brought to a close by all uniting with the choir in singing "Who is on the Lord's side."

CONSTRUCTION OF 6,000 H.P. PLANT AT CAMPBELLFORD IS CONTINUED BY QUINTE AND TRENT POWER CO.

Temporary Cessation of Work Caused by Dispute With Hydro Commission.

MANY WORKMEN

Fire in Apartment—Seymour Women's Institute Observe Armistice Day.

CAMPBELLFORD, Nov. 13. — Work on the new power plant which the Quinte and Trent Power Company are building near the paper mill, has been resumed after a brief shut-down, caused by a dispute with the Hydro Commission over the right of the company to construct a flume from the canal to the new plant, a right which, it is claimed was reserved since the canal was built through here, and an opening was left in the core wall for such an extension. A large force of workmen are now engaged on the main building.

The new plant will develop 6,000 horse power. The paper mill at present gets its power from the town plant, being one of the municipality's best customers, but the officials of the company have assured the local commission that there will be no change in these relations. The company will continue to take the same amount of power, even after their new plant is completed, as that plant is designed to supply electric energy for a proposed extension of the present mill

Childen's Tribute.

The pupils of the Separate school paid a graceful tribute to the memory of the late William James Keating when, after the close of school Wednesday and marshalled by their two teachers, they marched in absolutely silent procession to the family residence on Second street and laid among the floral offerings a beautiftul spiritual bouquet. The pupils then filed slowly past the casket for a last look at the deceased They will attend the funeral at St. Mary's church in a body Friday morning.

Among the floral offerings sent to the home of the deceased was a wreath from the employees of the Weston Shoe Company and one from the members of the Volunteer Fire Brigade, to which the deceased belonged.

Three of the brothers of the deceased have arrived from Rochester and another is expected to reach here from North Bay in time for the funeral.

Fire In Apartments.

While Mrs. Herb Leonard was using gasoline in the apartments over her husband's store at noon yesterday some of the furniture caught fire and the firemen were called out. The flames were checked by the use of the chemical apparatus but not before some curtains and other articles were burned. The loss is covered by insurance.

Women's Institute.

The November meeting of the Women's Institute of Seymour West was held Wednesday at the home of Mrs. George Van Volkenburg, when 32 members answered the roll call. The Institute opened with the singing of the usual ode and the repetition of the Lord's prayer in unison. Armistice Day was observed by the sale of popipes and it was decided to pack a barrel of fruit next week for the Sick Children's Hospital in Toronto. The programme consisted of a paper by Miss Alma Brown on "Girls' Duties in a Home," and a reading "In Flanders Fields" by Mrs. Charles Davidson. Lunch was served and the usual pleasant social hour followed.

Making Slow Progress.

Miss Elsie Smith, teacher in the Public school, who was so seriously injured in an auto accident about 10 days ago, is progressing slowly toward recovery. During the illness her place on the teaching staff is being filled by Miss Florence Bonnycastle of Seymour West.

Health Conditions Perfect.

In his annual report to the Board of Education on the sanitary conditions in the High and Public schools, Dr. W. F. Loucks, M.O.H., submits a detailed statement as to the lighting, heating and ventilation in both institutions and winds up with the statement that he has nothing further to recommend as all arrangements are of up-to-date design and satisfactorily maintained.

Retiring School Trustees.

Six of the 14 members of the Board of Education retire at the end of the year and the vacancies will be filled by election by the people, and by appointment, by the township and county councils. Trustees John Hall, Dr. H. Richardson and D. W. Douglas must face the people if they desire another lease of office. It is understood, however, that Mr. Douglas, who has been six years a member of the Board, serving two years as chairman, will not seek re-election.

Trustee Jeff, whose term expires is the appointee of the town council. Trustee Benor's time is up this year and his successor—himself if he cares to remain—in all probability will be named by the county council at the January session. Wm. Cock, appointed by the township council, is nearing the end of his term.

ARMISTICE DAY OMEMEE PARADE

Effigy of Kaiser Dragged Through Streets and Burned.

MANY IN COSTUME

OMEMEE, Nov. 12.— Armistice Day is not likely to ever be forgotten in the village of Omemee. There is probably not another village or town on the map that has the reputation of celebrating the frustration of the gunpowder plot on November 5, by the burning of Guy Fawkes, for a period of fifty years or more as Omemee has done. Since the war, this day is rapidly dying out, to give way to the burning of the effigy of a degraded character of recent history, the Kaiser.

This year greater preparations than usual had been made. Many returned soldiers helped to plan the celebration and the youth from the village and surrounding country joined with them in their revelry. Shortly after six o'clock the young folk began to gather and before long an amateur band had assembled, led by the bagpipes played by a new citizen of town. They then proceeded to the Orange Hall for practice and about 8 o'clock when their numbers had turned out in full force and a crowd of spectators had gathered, the torchlight procession, made up of Indians, cowboys, clowns and many characters in costume, too numerous to mention, followed by the notorious Kaiser drawn in a carriage surrounded by an armed guard, proceeded to King street, east to the tannery, leaving a trail of lighted torches behind them. To add humor to the parade, one lone citizen dressed as a lady in a combination of Indian and Chinese fashion, with his pigtail flying, missed his way, and when his companions were several rods away, he went hippody hop down the centre of the street in hasty pursuit. The procession then retraced their steps to the C.N.R. station, where they greeted the trainmen and passengers on the mail train and returned to "Sandy Point," on the Pigeon river, where a huge pile of stumps, well saturated with oil, had been placed in readiness for the conflagration. The effigy was placed on top and before long his lifeless body was once more in ashes.

The two cannons at the edge of the river were filled with powder several times and when discharged made a terrific report which could no doubt be heard for many miles. Shots were continuously being fired from rifles throughout the evening and those who took part in the activities returned home at a reasonable hour, well pleased with their evening's fun.

CAPITAL LEVY APPROVED BY COMMITTEE OF FRENCH CHAMBER

Socialists Win First Round, But May Lose in Parliament.

SESSION ON MONDAY.

PARIS, Nov. 13. — (Canadian Press). — The Socialists won their fight in the Finance Committee of the Chamber Thursday for a moratorium on short term bonds, a capital levy and the State sharing in the profits of industry and commerce for the purpose of solving the financial problems of France.

Premier Painleve, under threats that the coalition which supported his government and that of M. Herriot would be broken, accepted the main points of the Socialist program, saying in a spirit of conciliation: "I make these concessions to the cartel."

M. Painleve asked the committee to act promptly so that Parliament would be able to pass on the measures at the earliest date, and the committee agreed on the amended bills, which will come before the Chamber Monday. The fight will then be renewed between the cartel and the opposition, reinforced by the dissenting members of the Radical and Radical Left parties.

The members of the conciliation expressed great confidence in the outcome, though a poll taken by the parliamentary reporters last evening showed only 250 votes for a capital levy, the sharing of commercial profits by the state and forced conversion of bonds.

There are 32 dissenting members of the Radical Left, out of 40, while M. Franklin-Bouillon, the Radical leader, and several of his Radical friends will fight for amendments to the scheme.

The partisans of the Socialist plan will make considerable capital out of their interpretation that it avoids the necessity of further inflation.

Painleve's Demand.

M. Painleve asks for 1,500,000,000 francs in new advances from the Bank of France, instead of 2,500,000,000, and explains that this will involve no increase in the circulation. The Premier had previously explained that increased circulation was needed only to pay bonds due December 8, amounting to 3,500,000,000 francs.

The bills provide that the holders of these bonds will get no cash; they can take either national defence bonds at three, six or twelve months or longer term bonds, as they prefer. All the holders of Government bonds must either pay a capital levy on them at once or accept in their place other bonds at lower rates of interest.

The main features of the plan as it now stands are a capital levy, which on real estate amounts to 1¼ times on year's revenue from it, a tax on stocks and bonds at the same ratio and the sharing of profits with the State by industrial and commercial stock companies to the amount of 15 per cent. The capital levy is to be spread over a period of fourteen years, though it may be paid in a lump sum if the taxpayer prefers.

Opposition's Objections.

The chief objections raised by the Opposition are that forced conversion of the bonds due December 8 amounts to default, which had been unheard of in France since the revolution, and that participation by the State in the profits of industry and commerce will unavoidably involve official interference in private business.

The deputies and senators from the rural districts declare that the capital levy will hit the farmers so hard that it will be certain to diminish production, particularly dairy products and meat.

The Communists announce that they will oppose the government bills and demand the substitution of their own plan, which involves general nationalization of commerce and industry.

The measures, it is estimated by Premier Painleve, will furnish six billion francs additional to the annual revenue, to swell the sinking fund and extinguish the public debt. The receipts from the Dawes reparations plan are omitted from the calculation; they are left intact for the purpose of completing the reconstruction of Northern France. War debts are not mentioned in the bills, but it is inferred that the sinking fund will be applicable to them as well as to internal obligations.

REDS AND REVOLUTION IS CRY OF AUSTRALIAN ELECTIONEERS IN CAMPAIGN CLOSING TO-DAY

Election Forced By Activities of Extreme Trade Unionists and Strike.

TARIFF SECOND.

Premier Bruce Sought a Stronger Mandate to Meet Industrial Situation.

SYDNEY, N. S. W., Nov. 13.—(United Press).—"Reds and Revolution" is the battle cry under which Australia's Parliamentary election campaign, closing to-day, has been fought, with the tariff act a close second as an issue.

The election to-morrow was forced by the activities of the extreme trade unionists, which culminated in a stringent deportation act after it was alleged Russia had direct agents in Australia and seriously tied up shipping. Premier Bruce held that there was a direct threat to the economic and social system of Australia in the ship strike, and consequently he dissolved the Senate and House and appealed to the country for a stronger mandate to cope with the industrial situation.

The Labor Party contends that Bruce's slogan is incorrect, and argues that Labor can dominate the Communists rather than that the Communists will rule Labor.

The secondary issue is in the tariff, though in some districts this eclipses the revolutionary question. The country party is favorable to the tariffs protecting Australian products, but objects to duties on manufactured goods used here.

In the last elections in 1922 the Nationalists had 31 seats, Labor 29, and Country 14, while in the Senate there were 24 Nationalists and 13 Labor.

Down at Hamilton

HAMILTON, Nov. 13 (Canadian Press)—Due, it was stated, to the American embargo, potatoes declined sharply on the central market today and were offered at $2 per bag.

SOCIAL EVENING AT COURT STANLEY, A.O.F.

Floristers Celebrated Anniversary of Branch With Special Programme.

On Tuesday evening the members of Court Stanley celebrated their anniversary. The business of the evening was quickly disposed of, and the balance of the evening was devoted to a very pleasant social entertainment. Bro. S. Wittaker, C.R., acted as chairman, and the following programme by members of the Juvenile branches was carried through:

Vocal Solo, Miss E. Harrison; Selections by Juvenile Orchestra; Song, Bro. C. Cole; Piano Solo, Miss Scott; Vocal Solo, Miss Walker; Violin Solo, Juvenile G. Record; Song, Bro. A. Pink; Quartette, Bros. H. Hendry, F. Dainton, B. Walker, and A. Day; Cornet Selection, Bro. G. Mathews; Selections by Juvenile Orchestra.

Bro. Fisher acted as accompanist, and Old Time Choruses were sung by those present.

A.Y.P.A. COUNCIL MET LAST NIGHT

Reports Were Heard From Conference and Constitution Revised.

BANQUET DATE SET.

The Peterborough District Council of the A.Y.P.A. met last night in All Saints' Parish Hall. The chair was taken by the President, A. Hope of All Saints'. The report of the committee on the revision of the constitution was read and explained by Rev. J. L. Hughes of St. George's, and with one exception, was adopted. The clause limiting the voting power of branches to eight at council meetings was struck out.

It was decided that the offer of St. John's branch to handle the annual banquet should be accepted and the date fixed for December 4. An officer of the Dominion Conference or of the Toronto District Council will be invited to come and give the principal address.

Three of the delegates who attended the recent Dominion Conference in Brantford—Messrs. Hope of St. Luke's, Ham of St. John's, and Butcher of All Saints', gave short talks on their impressions of the conference sessions.

Piano solos by Miss Timm and Mrs. Goodley, and a saxaphone solo by Mr. King, were interspersed with the business programme. Refreshments were served by the members of All Saints' Branch at the close of the meeting.

The roll call showed all the city branches represented, but apparently the bad weather deterred some of the outlying branches from having members present. The total attendance wa sabout seventy.

118 BOTTLES OF LIQUOR USED AS EVIDENCE IN POLICE COURT

Dalton Dolan Had Large Quantity at His Home in Monaghan.

NOT A BOOTLEGGER.

Prisoner Said He Bought Liquor For His Own Consumption.

Whiskey containers to the number of 118, and a gallon can of alcohol, constituted the basic evidence in the case of Dalton Dolan, of North Monaghan, which was held in the County Court yesterday afternoon before Magistrate O. A. Langley.

The evidence when formed in array on the floor, was divided into two classes, namely 111 flasks of a beverage known to the trade as Blair Athol, and 7 bottles rejoicing under the label 3 Star Rye.

License Inspector Stewart when examined by J. F. Strickland, testified that he in company of Constables Maker and Pratt had gone to the man's house and found the liquor contained in five bags reposing under the cellar stairway. Constables Maker and Pratt with their evidence corroborated the story told by Inspector Stewart.

Defendant, questioned by his counsel, R. R. Hall, K.C., said that he had obtained the liquor sometime in May or June, at a bargain. The deal he said, was made at the Woodbine in Toronto and delivery effected at some place on the highway. He had also purchased two gallon tins of alcohol for his car, one of which he had used last winter for that purpose and the remaining one was intended for use this winter. The witness admitted that he lived by gambling, and that at one time he had been a bootlegger, but he had since forsaken that business on the advice of a friend. The liquor on exhibit was for his own personal use; there had been much more of it but he had drunk it. He had been very successful at the races during the last season and as the liquor appeared to be a good investment he had been induced to buy. He had paid $300 for it.

Counsel for the defence submitted that the evidence of his client had been presented in a straight forward manner, and that while the liquor had been illegally obtained it was nevertheless intended for home consumption and not for sale. The magistrate decided that the judgment should be deferred for further consideration, and accordingly postponement was obtained until Monday.

Excavators Discover King Tut's Mummified Remains Topped With a Golden Crown and Flanked With Weapons

CAIRO, November 13. — Canadian Press. — The mummy of Tut-ank-Amen, with hands clasped on breast, and with a tall golden crown on his head, has been disclosed at last, says a message from Luxor to-day.

An expert's examination established that Pharaoh was only fifteen years of age when he died. On the breast were found two large gold scarabs, and strapped to his side were two gold-hilted swords and two gold-handled knives.

THIEF DEAD OR JOKING.

CHICAGO, Nov. 13 (Canadian Press).—Martin J. Durkin, automobile thief and slayer, may be drowned in the Chicago River or he may have perpetrated a suicide hoax with blood stained, shot torn clothing and a farewell letter to his mother. Handwriting and clothing, found on Michigan Boulevard bridge last night were identified as his by his sister, Lucille. Coastguards dragged the river all night.

PASTOR PREACHED SPECIAL SERMONS

Madoc Presbyterian Church Celebrated Its Anniversary.

MADOC, Nov. 13.—The anniversary services were held in St. Peter's Presbyterian church last Sunday. Rev. Mr. Marshall, pastor, preached most interesting and inspiring sermons at both the morning and evening services, commemorating the Armistice and Thanksgiving. The choir rendered special music, being assisted by a ladies' quartet from Sulphide and by Mrs. Williams who sang with great feeling and beauty of expression "The Prodigal Son."

No special appeal was made, but the thank-offering was remarkably generous.

Large congregations were present at the services, and in the evening the United Church was closed in order to all the members to attend St. Peter's.

The customary anniversary dinner was held in St. Peter's church on Thanksgiving night. Nearly five hundred people attended and they are still exclaiming over the bountiful repast prepared by the ladies of the congregation. Six long tables groaned under the weight of the usual Thanksgiving dainties.

The large room was very effectively decorated with red and white streamers, while quantities of brightly-coloured bittersweet and barberry were used. Red candles on the tables and yellow and white 'mums added to the artistic arrangements.

Following the dinner, a program was given at which the chief speaker was Rev. Mr. Stewart of Belleville who gave an excellent address entitled, "National Growing Pains."

Other clergymen who were on the platform, and who took part in the program were: Rev. Dr. McTavish of Belleville, Rev. Mr. Granston of Trenton, Rev. Mr. Whyte of Sulphide, Rev. Mr. Grier of Campbellford and Rev. Mr. Strother of Madoc.

Mr. Scrutton, as usual, gave much pleasure with his violin, and Mrs. Williams was enjoyed as a soloist and reader. Other numbers were supplied by a male quartet and a ladies' quartet from Sulphide, and by J. A. Vaillancourl of Cornwall who played instrumentals on both piano and pipe organ.

The service in St. John's Church on Sunday evening was in remembrance of Armistice Day.

Michael O'Riordan.

The death occurred on Monday morning of Mr. Michael O'Riordan, one of Madoc's pioneers. Mr. O'Riordan had been liivng alone since the death of his wife about two months ago, and was alone when he suddenly passed away. He had evidently prepared and eaten his breakfast and had finished his usual morning work and had then gone to lie down. There his brother found him a short time later but the spirit had returned to God who gave it.

Mr. O'Riordan is survived by one sister, Mrs. Charles Sandford, Sr., came with his parents to Canada while still quite young. He was official bell ringer for twenty-five years, marking the time for the town daily at seven, twelve and six o'clock, besides the church services on Sunday. He was buried from the Sacred Heart church Wednesday morning at nine o'clock, Mass being said by Rev. Father O'Riordan.

Mr. O'Riordan is suriveyd by one sister, Mrs. Chalres Sandford, Sr., and by one brother, Mr. Robert O'Riordan.

Congratulations are due to Miss Jean Blair, who was announced as one of the winners in the T-word puzzle lately conducted by the Mail and Empire.

SPECIAL SERVICES IN ALNWICK CHURCH

Rev. J. N. Blodgett Was the Preacher on Armistice Sunday.

ROSENEATH, Nov. 13—The service on Sunday afternoon in St. James' Church was very largely attended to hear Rev. J. N. Blodgett of Wycliffe College, Toronto, a farmer resident of this vicinity. His sermon was very inspiring. Taking for his text Deut. 8-7th verse.

Rev. Blodgett brought out a deep thought to his people by showing the many blessings received from Him who cares for them and sends the bountiful harvest that souls may be brightened with a new spirit of thankfulness. On Monday afternoon the church was comfortably filled. The dedication service was conducted by Rev .Belford of Wooler who spoke very highly of the progress of the church and its people. The beautiful donations to the church which has been given, not only adds beauty and a benefit to the church but holds to memory the lives of loved ones, some who have passed to the great beyond and others who have moved away but at one time many years ago, who met together in this little church and united together in the worship of God. After the service, a supper was given in the Orange Hall. The tables were daintily decorated and laden with everything appetizing to satisfy the inner man. The concert and bazaar was a great success and much enjoyed by all present. One feature in the concert was a short lecture and slides given by Rev. C. M. Crisall of Perrytown, on his missionary work among the Indians up in the Arctic. The proceds total amounting in the neighborhood of $175.00.

FORMER PASTOR IS SPECIAL PREACHER

Rev. J. E. Glover Spoke at Zion Church Anniversary.

PETHERICK'S CORNERS, Nov. 13.—The Zion anniversary services held on Sunday were largely attended, Rev. J. E. Glover of Cambray, a former pastor of Seymour circuit, officiating.

MANY PRESENT AT LADIES' AID MEETING

Burnbrae Presbyterian Society Met Recently at Member's Home.

The Ladies' Aid Society of St. Andrew's Presbyterian church, Burnbrae, held its regular monthly meeting at the home of Mrs. W. A. Milne on Thursday, November 5. Although unfavorable weather prevailed there were 36 present.

The meeting opened by singing the hymn, "Words of Life." The minutes of the previous meeting were then read and adopted. The treasurer's report was then received. The next meeting will be at the home of Mrs. Victor Taylor. Mrs. Robt. Linn and Mrs. George Craighead were appointed programme committee for the next meeting. As there was no business to attend to the programme followed. The first number consisted of a reading by Mrs. Johns, followed by a vocal solo by Mrs. Chas. Milne. Miss Emma Bennett then gave a splendid recitation, Mrs. Rev. MacKenzie gave a reading entitled "Thanksgiving", followed with music by Mrs. George Craighead and Mrs. Victor Taylor. The closing hymn was "Wonderful Love". The meeting was brought to a close by repeating the Lord's Prayer in unison.

The hostess then served lunch. The collection amounted to $12.25.

FALL KILLS MARQUIS.

Handle Bar of Bicycle Broke —Ancestor Fell From Charger.

CLERMONT-FERRAND, France, Nov. 12.—(Associated Press).—The Marquis de Cacqueray de Lorme, seventeenth of the name, was riding back to his estate near Saint Menoux, when the handle bar of his bicycle suddenly broke. Falling heavily to the road the Marquis was killed instantly. His neck was broken.

In 1904, the Marquis de Cacqueray de Lorme, seventh of the name, was returning home after participating in a tournament at arms held under the presidency of Henry the Fourth. His mount, a thoroughbred, nervous Arab steed, shied at something alongside the road, throwing his rider heavily. The Marquis died from a broken skull.

Stanton Guilty—C ....

STANTON GUILTY PENNY MURDER

Winnipeg Jury Debated on Evidence For Only Four Hours.

DISORDER IN COURT.

WINNIPEG, Nov. 13 (Canadian Press)—John Stanton, a former resident of St. Mary's, Ontario, was found guilty late yesterday afternoon by a jury in the assize court here, of the murder of Johnny Penny. The jury had been out for four hours.

When the verdict was announced, disorder reigned in the court room for some time and a woman fainted.

Stanton was obviously not prepared for the verdict and shrank back in the prisoner's dock exclaiming: "I don't know why I should have to carry the entire burden.' He recovered quickly, shook hands with a friendly spectator and was led away.

CANTON PASTOR IS VISITING SPEAKER

Regular Evangelistic Appeal Was Made at Millbrook.

MILLBROOK, Nov. 13.—"Often old and young are perplexed by the thought of what it means to be a Christian. Repentance and conversion are the gateway to the greater life that is to be, with love to God and love to our fellowmen, as essential requisites, as Christ plainly taught."

Following the policy of the United Church to present, in an especial manner, an evangelistic appeal at the regular worship services during the month of November, Rev. F. J. Lane, of Canton, chose as his text on Sunday evening, John 13:35, "By this shall all men know that ye are my disciples, if ye have love one to another." Mr. Lane was supplying the pulpit of the United Church, the pastor, Rev. F. H. Howard, taking the work on the Canton circuit.

Proceeding from the fact that love will actively manifest itself in the changed life, "not burning in occasional flashes, but with a steady flame of benevolence toward our fellowmen," the speaker said, "an absence of that positive disposition of well-wishing and well-doing is a revelation that you have never loved your fellows.

"Good men, those generally recognized as such, are too often for self, and for the larger self of family and social set. Who in the community is measuring up to the radical standard, 'I am not my own, I am bought with a price, therefore he is my brother who is in trouble, and suffering.' In such there is the spirit of Christ Jesus, who came not to be ministered unto, but to minister.

"Conversion is the enlistment, and the consecration of a growing life to Jesus Christ, and that man is not converted who is hard, selfish, penurious, fault-finding, obstinate, with whom all roads lead to his own pocket, and not away from it, who is indifferent to the welfare of his fellows. He that is called to the Lord Jesus Christ is called on this charter: 'If any man have not the spirit of Christ, he is none of His.'

"How then shall we know we are growing in the Christian life? By worshipping to more purpose in His house, and on His day; by delighting more in His Word, and in communion and fellowship; and by noting an increased spirit of love to God and to men. Bickerings between neighbors are an indication that the spirit of Christ is lacking, that growth in grace and in love, is smothered, or that a beginning in the Christian life has never been made.

"He that wounds, or grieves, or makes more miserable, his fellow man is of the party of the devil. He that helps to build another up, whose emotion finds expression in action, is of the party of God.

"Difficulties and differences will vanish as that Life by which the whole being is transformed is given His rightful place within. Take sides with the Lord, your God, and then 'by this shall know ye are my disciples, if ye have love one to another'."

A solo, "Drifting," by Mr. F. N. Alcorn, was appropriate to the sermon, and added to the helpfulness of the service.

STOMACH TROUBLES ARE DUE TO ACIDITY

Tells Safe, Certain, Speedy Relief for Acid Indigestion

So-called stomach troubles, such as indigestion, gas, sourness, stomachache and inability to retain food are in probably nine cases out of ten, simply evidence that excessive secretion of acid is taking place in the stomach, causing the formation of gas and acid indigestion.

Gas distends the stomach and causes that full, oppressive, burning feeling sometimes known as heartburn, while the acid irritates and inflames the delicate lining of the stomach. The trouble lies entirely in the excess development or secretion of acid.

To stop or prevent this souring of the food contents of the stomach and to neutralize the acid, and make it bland and harmless, a teaspoonful of Bisurated Magnesia, a good and effective corrector of acid stomach, should be taken in a quarter of a glass of hot or cold water after eating or whenever gas, sourness or acidity is felt. This sweetens the stomach and neutralizes the acidity in a few moments and is a perfectly harmless and inexpensive remedy to use.

An antacid, such as Bisurated Magnesia, which can be obtained from any druggist in either powder or tablet form enables the stomach to do its work properly without the aid of artificial digestants. Magnesia comes in several forms, so be certain to ask for and take only Bisurated Magnesia, which is especially prepared for the above purposes.

Large Sum Was Given at Annual Service of Keene Society.

KEENE, Nov. 13.—The W.M.S., of the continuing Presbyterian Church at Keene, held its Thank-offering Service on Sunday, and the society has every reason to be thankful this year, the collection for the day amounting to one hundred and two dollars. This is the largest Thank-offering collection that has been given here in a number of years.

Mr. Dutton, of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church, Peterborough, in conducting the service, gave the Society and the congregation, as a whole, every encouragement in their work, and outlined the work before them at this time in the re-organization of the entire church scheme. He also made it plain that the continuing Presbyterian Church has a wonderful missionary program and much work to do in this line.

While the Presbyterian Church has been, and is still passing through a great crisis, he said, the people who are remaining with the church are everywhere rising up and showing themselves equal to the task for after all, the people are the church.

Mrs. Rev. Allen, of St. Paul's church, gave an exceptionally interesting address for the benefit of the Society outlining the missionary program of the church and describing the work to be done, enumerating the many appeals from foreign fields.

Mrs. Allen also gave the ladies of the congregation every encouragement to go forward with their work and to face the extra burden with a new and firm determination.

Mrs. Davidson, of Peterborough, accompanied by Mrs. (Rev.) Allen, rendered two beautiful solos most acceptably.

On the following Tuesday the monthly meeting was held at the home of Mrs. J. Renwick with an attendance of thirty-five. After the business meeting, the time was spent in sewing and knitting for missions, followed by a fowl supper in the evening.

A very enjoyable time was reported by all present.

MASQUERADE AT DELORO MONDAY

Many Splendid Costumes Were Worn at Annual Dance.

THE PRIZE WINNERS

MARMORA, Nov. 13.—To the enlivening strains of Baxter's Orchestra, figures weird and grotesque took the floor at Deloro Hall on Monday night to trip the light fantastic. It was the occasion of the annual masquerade ball, for which the Deloro Women's Institute is far-famed, and it attracted the usual good crowd.

Congestion of traffic being anticipated, a policeman (Mr. H. R. Haacke) with his stop sign (Mrs. H. R. Haacke) was requisitioned. The presence of the K.K.K. (Mr. Frank Leal) put a creepy sensation over many. To deal with the pirates (Messrs. V. Jack, F. B. Yeats and R. Murray) and a Spanish brigand (Mr. Erie Mantle), two jolly tars (Messrs. H. A. McNally and C. Hayes) appeared on the scene. The cravings of the inner man were considered in the provision of a chef (Mr. A. R. Pengilly), and a head of lettuce (Miss Ferga Burns). That the significance of the League of Nations might not be lost upon the assemblage, a Turkish gentleman (Mr. R. J. Young) and a Turkish lady (Miss E. Thompson), mingled with an Indian (Mr. R. Scott), a Spanish gypsy (Mr. J. H. Doige), a Spanish girl (Miss Helen Gaffney), a Highland lassie (Mrs. R. Hunter), two coloured gentlemen (Messrs. R. Neal and G. McWilliams) a Spanish pair (Mr. R. Parker and Miss D. Denike), two Egyptian ladies (Misses G. Watt and Anna Burns), an Argentine bandit (Mr. Clayton Neal), and a Dutch lady (Mrs. H. F. Berry). Feminine attire of the various eras was illustrated by a Georgian lady (Miss B. Scarlett), a Victorian lady (Mrs. R. J. Young), a Quaker lady (Mrs. J. Hemphill), and an old-fashioned lady (Miss Edna Neal). Little Bo-Peep (Mrs. F. Leal) failed to find her sheep, whilst the cow-girl (Miss Rosie Mantle), without a lassoo, was also unsuccessful. The Sheik was abroad in the person of Miss Tessie Cronkright and Peter Pan was well impersonated by Miss Zeta Callery. A lady of the riding school was seen in Mrs. C. Hayes. Specialty dancers were forthcoming in a ballet dancer (Miss Betty Wright) and a Spanish dancer (Miss S. Blair). The roving professions were well represented in a tramp (Mr. F. Melvaer) and gypsies (Mr. R. Reynolds and Mrs. H. A. McNally).

The grass widow was attracted to the ball in the person of Mrs. T. A. Bapty and the absent-minded beggar (Mr. R. Hunter) also wandered in before midnight (Miss Margaret Cannon). The clown (Mr. Thorold Bailey) and the pierrot (Mr. Jack Bapty) were joined by gay pierrettes (Misses J. Reynolds, Madeline Gaffney, Margaret Gaffney, Nellie Scott, Eileen Mantle and Norah Foster). No party is complete without a child (Mr. W. Kerr Jr.) and a young girl (Ivy Skinner), who were reinforced by the twins in blue (Misses E. Callery and K. Doyle), and a school girl (Miss Jennie Connor). For a pleasant aroma the company was indebted to the rose (Mrs. R. Scott). Joy was felt in the arrival of the country cousin (Mr. K. B. Patterson). The difficult task of judging the splendid costumes was made easier by a novel form of balloting. Prizes were awarded to the following most original Lady's Costume.

"Stop sign, Mrs. H. R. Haacke, prettiest lady's costume.

"Georgian Lady, Miss Bessie Scarlett, most original gentleman's costume.

"Tramp, Mr. F. Melvaer, most comical gentleman's costume.

"Policeman, Mr. H. R. Haacke.

First-class refreshments were passed around at the midnight hour. In the balloon dance, which came later, Mrs. C. H. Buskard was the prize-winner.

Napoleon Lajoie, in his day one of the greatest of baseball players, is now a member of the boxing commission in Cleveland.

Under The Study Lamp

TOYS.

Mammy, oh mammy, my horse is broken. That boy next door stepped on it and broke its head off."

The mother turned to comfort her small son, telling him, as she held him close in her arms, that some day when he grew up he could have a big horse that wouldn't get its legs broken. The woman's eyes softened as she looked at her little lad. He was very fond of his toys and took particular care of them, always putting them away in their places as she had taught him to do. But, somehow, though the child played with his toys constantly and shared them with his playfellows, yet his most treasured things had usually been broken by other children more than by the boy himself. She remembered one time a picture book had been loaned to a sick child in the neighborhood. This book had been one of her small son's dearest possessions, and when the book was returned, dirty and dog-eared, big tears had stood in the lad's eyes as he looked at his defaced toy. I—I—don't want the book any more, mammy," he had said, and though his lip had trembled, he didn't cry.

So had it been all through the years. Toys and possessions prized by the boy had been broken or abused more by others than himself, so much so that as he grew older the lad withdrew from more boisterous circles, chumming with one or two favorite companions, but as often going his way alone. Then came college days and his young manhood. Soon the boy went out into life, taking up work in the profession he had chosen, and exchanging the toys of his boyhood for the more serious toys of maturity. Years passed.

Two men sat smoking one evening in front of an open fire. One was a man in the mid-thirties, the other appeared a dozen or so years older. The younger gazed intently into the blaze, while the other studied earnestly the face of his friend.

Listen to me, old man; you're sticking at the grind too steadily. Break away . . go for a long holiday; you're tired and you've gone stale. You study and think too much. Ah! why don't you marry?"

The younger man shook his head without turning his gaze from the fire. No, Barry, no, no! Some day, perhaps, but not yet. There was one woman I wanted and I couldn't have her. You knew about it . . . years ago. I've held the memory of her always, probably will be in the end."

Barry nodded; he remembered. Silence reigned for a few minutes, and then the younger man said, half dreamily, as if thinking aloud: Toys toys . . . toys. How life cheats us, Barry, by giving us toys to play with instead of the things we want, and our toys get broken. We either break them ourselves through ignorance, or some one else breaks them for us. When I was a boy my best loved toys always seemed to be broken by the lads I played with. How I grieved over them. I can recall some of the heartaches yet. Perhaps I loved them too much. And . . . it's been the same all the way along; for me to love anything or any one, very dearly was to have something happen . . . something that broke my toys. Oh, I'm not kicking, but it's strange, isn't it?" A faint smile flickered over the thoughtful face, and then faded.

Have you ever thought how lucky you are?" With the question the older man leaned forward, looking his friend full in the face. You've never had to endure the slow disillusionment of the years; of living the routine of duty after love has died. You have, and always will have—your memories. Some of us haven't even those left."

Barry, too, was looking into the fire now. His voice took a deeper tone as he went on: Toys? Yes. We're always playing with toys, old chap, most of them broken toys at that. Bye-and-bye we sort of get used to it. Sometimes we aren't even hurt when one, more cherished than the rest, or perhaps a bright new one, gets broken. That's the penalty, though, for the loss of our youth. But, little brother, you're too young to feel that way yet. There will always be broken toys for you—as for me all along the way, but even then life is worth while. Look ahead, and realize you've a man's place and a man's work in the world. That helps a whole lot. And, you have your music, you know. Well, I'm going. Beside an open fire is a bad place to loiter; one remembers too much. Good night.

Good night, Barry.

Left alone, the young man got up slowly and walked to the other end of the comfortable living room, to where a grand piano stood. Seating himself, he ran his fingers over the keys, thrilling to their touch. As Barry had said, there would always be his music. He played well, with finely intuitive feeling as well as the certainty of the accomplished pianist. Yet only his intimate friends knew of his music; he had protected this one gift for himself and those who were sympathetic enough to understand what it meant to him.

As his fingers were settling among the keys, the telephone in the hall rang. The evening was waning and he hoped the message wouldn't necessitate a hurry call. He was tired to-night, tired in spirit, and he needed the quietening fellowship of his music.

Yes . . oh! I'm sorry . . . sorry. I'll drop in later to-night. As he turned from the telephone his face saddened and for a moment his hands clenched. The little lad was dead . . . the child for whose life he had battled so anxiously for more than a fortnight. The fight had been futile . . . death . . again. His heart ached.

Gravely now he walked back to the piano, and with a mad impetuosity that belied his thoughts he crashed into the opening bars of Chopin's Military Polonaise, playing it to the end with a brilliancy that startled even himself. But, no . . . that wasn't really his mood. His fingers brooded over the keys again and the room was filled with the sweetness of a Chopin Berceuse; he felt it as a farewell song to the child whose life had but now flickered out. Then came a lovely Andante by Mozart, the love-death music from Tristan and Isolde, a Brahms waltz, some old French chansons arranged by himself, and, ah, yes! last of all, the great maestro . . . His inmost heart ever responded yearningly to the spell of Beethoven. The master had suffered, but the master had conquered, and crystallized his suffering and his victory in sublime music that had moved a world.

Dreamily the player's hands struck a few chords, and then he bent to the piano and the opening movement of Beethoven's Appassionata sonata sounded through the room. On and on he played . . . Allegro, andante, allegro, presto. The young man had long since forgotten time and place, lost in the music he loved. Then the sonata ended on its deep, full minor chord. Silence reigned, as the player sat with hands still resting on the keyboard. Only for a few minutes, though, for again the telephone rang insistently from the hall.

"Yes, Mr. Johnson. That's all right. Get her to the hospital at once. You've already called the nurse . . . yes . . . I'm coming now. Good-bye."

The young physician turned from the telephone to the hall rack and pulled on his overcoat. He switched off the lights in the living room, then paused for a moment in front of the hall mirror, lost in thought. Barry was right . . . a man's place and a man's work in the world! Yes, he could have those, and he thanked God for his work. Life going and life coming . . . birth and death both touching him within a couple of hours . . . the impenetrable mysteries. What a strange puzzle life was? What was it all about . . . What was the purpose of it all? He didn't know. Who did? Wiser minds than his had stumbled over these age-old questions. Had they found any solution? He didn't suppose so. What else was there to do but just go on . . . doing one's best, giving one's best. Somehow things would come right in the end . . . some day the revelation of truth he sought would come to him . . . he had to believe that . . . and wait.

He reached for his hat, then passed into the surgery in search of his maternity bag. A moment later the door slammed behind him. —E. J. R.

FRIENDSHIP.

They (books) will transport us into a world beyond reach of the tumult and bustle of modern existence, and in which for a time our own petty cares may be forgotten. They will obliterate time and space for us, for with them, while seated at our own fireside, we can roam at will through many ages and many lands. They will fill our imagination with scenes over which we shall always be delighted to linger, and with men and women whose loves and fortunes, joys and sorrows, will become parts of our personal lives.—W. DRAPED DRESSING TABLES

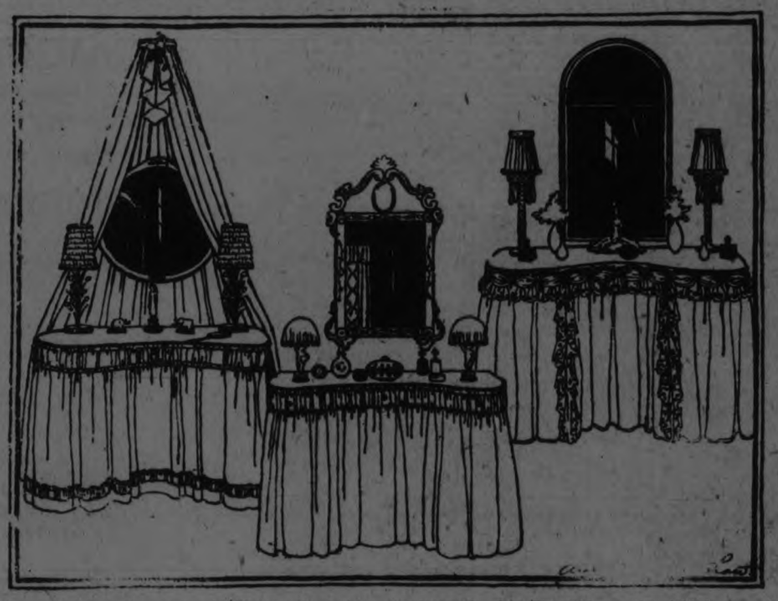
By Annette Bradshaw



Aren't you glad that the vogue again turns to the draped dressing table? Somehow they are so purely feminine and wondrously dainty that every woman in the world yearns for one of her very own.

With an old table or a piece of thin board, cut in the shape that best suits, a mirror, a few yards of silk and a pair of candlesticks, a table can be fashioned that will be truly a thing of beauty.

Several tables that are easy to copy are shown above. The one on the left was made of rose taffeta, with a puffing at the top and bottom of the deep ruffle. The candle shades were also made of taffeta and shirred into cunning little puffs that were wonderfully effective. The mirror was done in a dull gold and the canopy was caught into a hoop at the top, which concealed an electric bulb.

The center table is of black and gold. The taffeta is of gold color, with pipings of black and the shades on the candles are of gold silk with a black georgette overlay, and edged with wooden beads painted to match the silk. The mirror is of black enamel with gold decorations. The fittings on the table carried out the color scheme.

The table on the right is more to the liking of those who are fond of frills. This table is in an exquisite shade of blue, with a frill and puffings of silver lace. The tall crystal candlesticks have shades of blue and silver, with a yellow silk for a base, giving a soft glowing light. The mirror is exquisite in its plainness, the frame being of polychrome in shades of silver and blue. The fittings in this case are of dark blue glass, with silver inlay.

Of course, these tables can be developed in any color scheme desired, care being taken that they blend in with the hangings and color scheme of decoration.

ADVICE TO GIRLS

By Annie Laurie

Dear Annie Laurie:—

I am a stenographer of nineteen. I am inclined to be handsome and dress well, but not elaborately. I am very popular with my young friends, and have received many invitations from boys to go out, but fearing my mother's disapproval of the, I declined all of them. I have attended house parties of friends and the boys I danced with usually wanted to kiss me, but I have never allowed this demonstration of affection. I am sure some of the fellows think I am very "slow," but Annie Laurie, I do not believe in it. Lately I have not been asked out by any of my boy friends.

My sister, who is four years younger than I, chums around with me always. When I go out with her she meets many of her boy friends and stands and talks to them and will not come on with me until she is ready. As a consequence we get home rather late, and mother is inclined to scold me for teaching her bad habits. I never tell mother how it happens, but shoulder the blame.

Please, Annie Laurie, tell me how I can regain my popularity, and what I can do with regard to my sister.

I am very sorry for writing such a long letter, but I hope to see my letter in your column, and thanking you for your expected advice.

Yours sincerely,
SHORTY

SHORTY.—I think you are making a great mistake in shouldering all the blame for your younger sister's actions. Soon she will be shaking you altogether, as you are probably just a little bit "slow" in her opinion, and striking out to enjoy herself in her own way. And it may be a perfectly normal way, too. Why not stand and talk to these boy friends, as long as you don't prolong the sessions into street-corner loiterings. You are looking for a means to regain your popularity, and possibly it may be caused by your own aloof manner. Even if "petting" is fashionable nowadays, and you don't like it, you don't need to go to the other extreme—and be too prim and proper.

The Secrets Of Charm

By Lucrezia Bori

Lovely, clear, sparkling eyes and a smooth complexion are the direct results of exercise and proper food.

When one realizes that these most desirable results are to be obtained by such simple means, it seems really stupid to forego them. Of course, those who have allowed their health to run down may need more gradual building up and slightly more complicated processes than the simpl onees mentioned above, but the method must be along the same general lines.

This Exercise Should be Done for Fifteen Minutes Daily.

Now, a friend of mine who seems to me the personification of clean-eyed health and sparkle I so much admire, attributes these characteristics of hers to exercise and regularity of habits. She insists upon a generous amount of sleep, simple food—and exercise.

No, she insists, these things are not difficult to obtain for yourself, once you have worked out your method of procedure. And neither do they require a complicated scheme of living. In fact, they imply the simplest kind of living, which is the best.

Her exercise she takes in the morning and at night. She allows half an hour each time, and she puts all of her will and energy into the exercise.

She finds the best way is to have a good list of exercises at hand. She knows so many by heart that she never has to stop to think of the next one to perform. It is easy to follow this method, especially if you pay attention to each new exercise you read of. Master it carefully, then it is always yours. If you have not tried this habit, begin with the following. If you already make a point of learning such exercises, add this to your repertoire:

Try bending forward until you can place your hands flat on the floor in front of you, about twelve inches in front of your feet.

When you are able to do this, continue by resting your weight on your hands and your left foot while you raise your right foot backward and upward.

Keep this up in rapid alternation.

Repeat the exercise fifteen minutes.

This is excellent for reducing your hips, which simply must be slim if you are to be youthful in appearance. You may have to try the simple bending exercise for a time before you go into the one given here.

MURRAY STREET BAPTIST CHURCH SCENE OF INTERESTING LECTURE

Dr. Maguire Told of Conditions in African Jungles—Many Strange Customs.

MANY SOUVENIRS.

Natives Have No Beasts of Burden—Danger From Wild Animals.

A large crowd asembled in Murray Street Baptist Church last evening to hear the lecture, "With an Irishman through the Jungles of Africa" by the Rev. Dr. Gabriel R. Maguire, F.R.G.S., held under the auspices of the men's club of the Church. Dr. Maguire told the audience that the natives make cuts on their own hands and then on the hands of the white man and then mix the blood thus forming a friendship with each other. He also told of conditions as they are in part of Africa. They have no roads and no beasts of burden. Everything is carried by bearers who carry a load varying from 60 to 70 pounds. A party consists of 25 men who walk 12 men ahead, the white man in the centre and twelve men behind thus forming protection from the animals that infest the country. The head man goes ahead, and carries a whistle which he keeps blowing thus notifying the remainder of the party that it is safe for them to proceed. At this stage he showed his audience a variety of snake skins, one of them being that of a python which he shot near the village where David Livingstone was found dead. There are three things that every animal is afraid of, he said, the sound of the human voice, the sceat of the human body and the flash of the human eye. He told of the first herd of wild elephants he saw there and confessed to having a disease known in Ireland as "weakness of the knees" at the sight of them and how the head man of the tribe frightened them by merely yelling at them. Stanley, he said, on his journey through Africa left behind him a trail of blood whereas David Livingstone letf behind him a trail of blessing. Might does not mean right no matter whose hand it may be in.

Conform to Custom

Any white man, said the speaker, with a strong body, a little common sense, and a great deal of patience can travel in darkest Africa so long as he conforms with the customs of the people. He told of how one time he had to sit cross legged on the ground and play an accordion for over three hours and every time he would attempt to slow up the chief would cry "Keep the music going." The chief asked him numerous questions and asked him if he would eat the dish of peace with him, to which Dr. Maguire assented. They then brought out, he said, a large wooden spoon with an idol engraved upon it, the purpose of which was to keep the spirits from jumping into the mouth of the person who was using it. A master slave then brought in the meat and I asked the interpreter what kind of meat it was and discovered it consisted of field rats.

If ever a white man was up against it, he said, I was, for if I refused to eat with him, it was equivalent to a declaration of war. The chief took the first spoonful, and then handed me the same spoon, with the words "Peace to the white man." I discovered that the idea in his eating first was to convince me that the food was not poisoned. I have now, said Dr. Maguire, the distinguished honor of being a brother to that chief.

He described at some length labor conditions as they exist in that country, and said that a man would work all day for a brass tack, and also told them about the horrible atrocities practised upon the women who were unfortunate enough to offend their husbands.

"I have given you a dark picture," he said, "but thank God there is a bright side to it. For over two years we labored in that country without any visible results until late one night the witch doctor came to me and told me "that the Spirit of God is pulling at my heart." "This was the man," said Dr. Maguire, "who had been executioner for the tribe. After the witch doctor was converted he gave me his axe with which he had taken off some 37 heads, and his belt upon which was strung some 50 stones, white representing the male and black the female hearts which he had taken from victims who had offended the chief

"To protect this man, who had incurred the wrath of his tribe through being converted to the Christian religion," said Dr. Maguire, I had to lock myself to the man with this chain) (which he showed to the audience) and it was three months and two days before it was safe to remove it. This man to-day is one of the greatest preachers in the heart of Africa."

Hospital Workers Strike Patients Tendered Apology

VERA CRUZ, November 3. — A singularly polite strike has been recorded in this city, where strikes of one kind or another frequently anything but amiable, are almost incessant

Hospital employees and attendants walked out when their salaries had not been paid for several months. Formal and elaborate expressions of regret were transmitted to the patients.

"We deplore the unfortunate condition in which we must leave you," the strikers said to the patients, "but our own cases are more lamentable. Our salaries in most instances are $30 or less per month. And when even that salary is not paid, we must with renewed expressions of infinite regret, proclaim that we cease work!"

Easy Lessons in AUCTION BRIDGE

New Series by WYNNE FERGUSON

Author of "Ferguson on Auction Bridge"

Copyright 1925 by Hoyle, Jr.

ARTICLE No. 9

Every club and every private circle of auction players have one or more members who believe in using the preemptive or shut out bid in practically every hand. Such tactics are very showy when they succeed but as a rule they are losers. The other night a young player from one of the Universities was asked to play at one of the well-known New York card clubs. He had a very pleasant personality but his methods of bidding were a little too rash to suit his fellow players. He was one of those preemptive bidders who seem to think that a bid of "one" is old-fashioned and out of date. He started off the first rubber as dealer and promptly bid "two no-trump," winning the first game. On the next deal, the first three players passed and he bid four spades and won the game and rubber. This was pretty speedy but when he bid "two no-trump," on the first game of the next rubber and made three odd, the other players began to look dazed. His luck was too good to last, however, so when he bid three spades on the following hand:

Hearts — 4, 3
Clubs — A, 7, 2
Diamonds — A, 6
Spades — J, 10, 7, 6, 4, 2

he was doubled and lost 518 points. The other players thought this would make him less cocky but on the very next hand, he again bid "two no-trump," with the following hand:

Hearts — A, K, 8
Clubs — A, K, 10, 4
Diamonds — A, K, 7, 6
Spades — A, K

The next player bid three spades and our college boy thought that he had a chance to get back his loss of 500 points so promptly doubled. Much to his amazement and chagrin, his opponent made the three spades doubled. He had a freak hand, of course, but the college boy made his task easy for him by making the preemptive bid of two no-trump. The opponent's hand was as follows:

Hearts — Q, J, 10, 9, 7
Clubs — none
Diamonds — none
Spades — Q, J, 10, 9, 8, 6, 3, 2

The opponent would probably have bid four or more spades with this hand if the college boy had bid his hand up gradually instead of starting in with "two no-trump" and then "double." Take your bidding gradually and don't make preemptive bids unless you have some very good reason for doing so. The preemptive bid is very useful at times but unless used with great discretion is apt to prove a boomerang, as in the cases cited.

Several weeks ago, the following hand was submitted to the writer for comment:

	Hearts — K, Q, 6, 3
: Y :	Clubs — A, K, 6, 4, 2
:A B:	Diamonds — A, K, 9, 2
: Z :	Spades — none

Rubber game, no score. Z dealt and bid one heart, A two spades and Y doubled. What should B now do? Should B pass, bid two no-trump or three clubs? At that time the writer said: "In the opinion of the writer he should pass and trust to his high cards to enable his partner to make his bid. A's bid of two spades over one heart should indicate that his hand is good at spades and nothing more. B's hand has no spades but fine side cards. If A makes his bid, he will score game and rubber and he certainly has a good chance to do so. The two no-trump bid seems bad because of A's bid of two spades, which if sound, should indicate spades and little else. For that reason, how can B play two no-trumps if he cannot make up A's spade suit and A's hand cannot help B in his three suits. The three club bid is sound but doesn't offer a chance for game. 'Pass' seems by far the preferable thing to do."

Since writing that opinion, the writer has obtained the actual hands of all four players. They were as follows:

Hearts — 9, 7, 2
Clubs — 8
Diamonds — Q, J, 10
Spades — K, J, 7, 5, 3, 2

Hearts — 5		Hearts — K, Q, 6, 3
Clubs — 10, 7, 5	: Y :	Clubs — A, K, 6, 4, 2
Diamonds — 8, 7	:A B:	Diamonds — A, K, 9, 2
Spades — A, Q, 10, 9, 8, 6, 4	: Z :	Spades — none

Hearts — A, J, 10, 8, 4
Clubs — Q, J, 9, 3
Diamonds — 6, 5, 4, 3
Spades — none

It should be interesting for our readers to analyze the play of this hand at the three possible bids by B; viz., pass, two no-trump, and three clubs. The writer's opinion that "pass" was the proper thing to do with B's hand, is more than verified.

YOUR HEALTH

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M.D., Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

BEING THE EMPLOYER BRINGS BURDENS

One of the useless things we are always doing is to give advice to your friends, warning against overdoing. We overeat, over-work, over-worry, over-everything.

It takes a lot of character to live just exactly right. We know what should be done and how to do it. Then why don't we?

Each of us believes in his heart that somehow or other he will escape the usual penalties for violating the rules of life. Every time a wilful murder is committed it is done by a man who plans and expects to evade detection.

It is just the same way with the ordinary rules of hygiene. Some way somehow there will be found an avenue of escape, many believe. So in this spirit we go through life.

Modest as we like to appear, the fact is each of us possesses colossal self-conceit. We may be sensible about everything else, but disease and death won't catch us for years and years!

Silly, isn't it?

You know it is silly. I know it is silly. But you and I will continue to live in this fool's paradise.

Business is more exacting in many ways than professional life. Certainly the responsibilities and cares of conducting one's own business are more exacting and trying than are the burdens of one who is employed by somebody else. An employer or a professional man, in the last analysis, is doing for somebody else. The business man is doing for himself. He realizes better than anybody else can what failure will mean.

I wish I could bring home to the harassed business man how necessary it is to practice the simple rules of hygiene. Many a worry, which the business man believes is the honest outgrowth of his affairs, is really the imperfect working of the mind and reasoning powers, due to a clogged liver or a tired digestive system.

The business man wakes up with a headache. He thinks it comes from the night, made restless and self-sleepless from worry over the day's problems. More likely the headache comes from a kidney disturbance which resulted from neglect.

Many a business man is rolling a stone uphill, like Sisyphus of old, when the whole trouble comes from physical causes which can be easily removed.

Business man, business woman, teacher, lawyer, doctor, housewife—everybody, listen! Take a survey of the way you are living. I'm almost sure your worries will disappear if you will put your body in good trim.

GOOD NIGHT STORIES

By Blanche Silvat

DAVID MEETS MAMA AND DADDY ARTIC FOX.

The day David met Mama and Daddy Arctic Fox was one of the happiest days that he had had on his trip to the Far North.

He came upon their burrow in the snowbank one day and at first he didn't know whether to run or stand till.

He decided on the latter, and when a white snarly face looked out of him from the burrow entrance, David very politely bowed.

"Why, how-d-you-do, Mr. Whatever-your-name-is?" he said softly, "I'm David Dorn, from America. I won't hurt you if you don't hurt me.'

"Mighty glad to hear it, replied the owner of the white face as he slowly crawled out of the burrow and held out his paw to David.

He was just about the size of David's pet dog, dressed in the most beautiful soft white fur David had ever seen. The fur was long and very thick. His tail, which he took great pleasure in showing David, was very large and handsome.

"I'm Mr. Arctic Fox—I should say, Daddy Arctic Fox, for Mama and I have a nice family now. Ever visited this part of the country before? Then I guess you've never seen an Arctic Fox before have you?

"I'm Daddy Arctic Fox."

When David shook his head, the fox continued: "Well, when we live this far North, we always wear these pure white coats.

"It surely must be a wonderful protection to you," said David. "I've always admired Billy Fox's brown fur coat, but yours is the prettiest I have ever seen. Do all Arctic foxes wear white?"

"That's what I was going to tell you," chuckled Mr. Daddy Arctic Fox. "Those who live this far North all wear white? Some of them get tired of staying and living in snow houses, so they go down farther, where they get a whiff of summer weather part of the season. Then they change their clothes to suit the weather."

"Change their clothes," laughed David. "How funny! What do they do that for?"

"For the same reason I always wear white," said Daddy Arctic Fox. "In warm weather they change to a bluish-brown for protection. Then when the snow flakes fly, they change back to white. But say, come in and meet my wife.' Then he took David into his snow burrow and introduced him to Mama Arctic Fox and their little family of baby foxes.

She invited David to stay and have dinner with them, but David didn't like uncooked duck and he begged to be excused.

"I'm so sorry," said Mama Arctic Fox. "For we always like to be friendly with nice boys. Most of our food in this part of the country consists of Ducks, Lemmings, Hares and Grouse. But we just eat them raw."

"Thanks just the same," said David politely. "But it's lunch time at Auntie's, so I'd better be running on home. May I come back some time and see you again?"

"Indeed you may," answered Daddy Arctic Fox. "Anytime you wish." Then he led David out of the burrow into the sunlight again. "Now I must eat my lunch and get to work," said Daddy Arctic Fox. So he returned to his burrow and David went back to his Aunt's house.

SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 14.

This day may be memorable for a sudden visitation of a radical nature difficult to forecast. Under the solar trine to Uranus the unplanned and unexpected are liable to materialize, since this orb is revolutionary and unconventional. With certain malefic influences from Mars and Mercury, it is enjoined that every care be taken to avoid rash and precipitate actions. Disputes and litigation might bring disaster and change should be embraced cautiously.

Those whose birthday it is may have a year of important events, but they should act in all enterprises with deliberation and forethought. Avoid law and quarrels, and sign papers with care. A child born on this day is likely to be rash and impetuous, but should make strong friends of ready assistance. The sages predict a sudden and romantic marriage for a female born on this day.

SOLUTION OF YESTERDAY'S CROSSWORD PUZZLE

Willis Carpenter is the name of the boy who is making the new feeding table for the winter birds.

We are getting on very well with the table, which is not hard to make, as it is only a flat surface, with a low edge around it and a cover to help keep the snow off, so I will tell about the way Willis talked to me.

"That sure is a cunning little chap, that Chicadee," said Willis. "I often heard his chicadee-dee-dee call, but he has that chee-ree call too, which he uses sometimes in the winter, and we named him "Little Chee-ree" because it sounds so cheery. He is nothing but a bundle of feathers with a tail on it. How that little fellow keeps warm I don't know, unless it is that there is nothing to him but feathers and they can't freeze."

And so it went on. Willis talked just like that. I was so glad to hear bird names which have some sense to them, that I must admit I think the wise old owls of birdmen should come and listen to Willis. I am sure they would be a bit ashamed of their lack of imagination. Here is a lad who never saw a bird book and had nobody to tell him, and he invents better bird names than a school of learning can stick on stuffed specimens.

But Willis said more. He said, 'We love to have Chee-Ree at the door. He comes on dull days too. No weather keeps him away. He makes us feel happy when we are blue. Isn't it queer how he always gives a fellow that cheer-up feeling? Pug-nosed Bill (Willis is speaking of the Nuthatch) isn't like that. He is saucy in a different way. He is bold. Not a bad bold. He is a good sort of bold bird.."

"You mean he is self confident and full of pep" said I.

"Yeh! that's it," went on Willis, "he's not afraid, and he is friendly and comical." "And who is this Red-buttons, the Dude of whom you speak?" I asked.

"Oh, him," grinned Willis, "he's a waxwing. We found that out at school, but we don't give an owl hoot what the books call him, he is a red-button dude and we like to see him, even if the wise men don't like our name for him. Theirs sounds like Silly Bomborum. Now, I ask you, which would you sooner have?"

FAMOUS FORTUNES

By Barbara Bayne

JAMES J. HILL— the "Empire Builder."

In a log cabin on a farm in Canada, in 1838, was born the boy who was destined to become an "empire builder."

His destiny definitely had taken control of him when he stepped from a Mississippi River packet at St. Paul in 1856 and took the first job that came his way, clerking in a steamship company's office.

From 1867 to 1871 he was freight agent of the St. Paul and Pacific Railroad. During these years "Jim" Hill was studying the problem of transportation from the "inside," which later enabled him to blaze a trail for transportation, reaching from Buffalo to Asia.

Leaving that job, he launched into business for himself. With a flat-bottomed boat he established regular service from St. Paul to the Manitoba ports.

The first venture in railroading in Minnesota, the St. Paul and Pacific was almost 500 miles long, with a land grant of 2,500,000 acres. But under the management of Russell Sage and his associates it had collapsed under a debt of $33,000,000.

Hill secured control of the bankrupt road and changed the name to "St. Paul, Minnesota and Manitoba." In 1883 it became known as the "Great Northern," and Hill, elected general manager, began to push the rails westward at the rate of a mile a day, at a cost of $33,000 a mile.

That "streak of rust and right of way" which reached Puget Sound in 1893 opened up 65,000,000 acres of land, and "Yem Hell," as the Swedish settlers called him, became an empire builder. He built a fleet of steamships for the commercial invasion of Asia and another on Lake Superior, with grain elevators at Buffalo which, by his system of steam and rail, went straight to the Orient.

The Great Northern Railroad early acquired title to vast areas of valuable mineral lands in Montana, Idaho and Washington.

He Was Born in a Log Cabin.

May, 1901, witnessed the titanic struggle of railroad giants. The Hill-Morgan group of the Great Northern acquired a leading interest in the Northern Pacific, controlled by the Harriman-Rockefeller group, and attempting to bring the two lines under one ownership precipitated a fight and caused a panic in Wall street.

Hill's followers "stood by" and Harriman was outflanked. The capital stock of the Great Northern system is now estimated close to $300,000,000.

James J. Hill died May 28, 1916, and the mantle of the man, noteworthy as one of the four great capitalists of our time, has fallen upon the houlders of his son, Louis W. Hill.

Turning Leftovers into savory dishes

The French people—famous for thrift—used to say that they could feed six people with what the average family on this side of the Atlantic threw away.

It is almost inevitable that there should be things left from yesterday — yet the remains of roasts and steaks, the spoonfuls of vegetables, the food that has lost its taste, are no longer wasted, nor are the "scraps" turned into "stews."

The sprightly "OXO" CUBES with their supreme flavour of prime beef, have come to the rescue of those who want to be sensibly economical. Now you find "OXO" CUBES in thousands of homes and the French have changed their ideas about our extravagant cooking.

Minced Meat on Toast

2 cupfuls minced beef (left-over steak or roast)
2 "OXO" BEEF CUBES
1 cup boiling water
2 tablespoonfuls flour
1 tablespoonful butter

Mince the meat, removing all gristle and fat. Dissolve the cubes in the boiling water. Blend the butter and flour and stir quickly into the dissolved cubes. Pour over the meat and let simmer two or three minutes (long enough to cook the flour and heat the meat.) Pour over six or seven slices of hot toast.

Where any gravy is left over, use but one "OXO" BEEF CUBE dissolved in ½ cupful boiling water and add the gravy. Season to taste.

Our Free Cook Book tells you how to do it

Many other attractive ways of utilizing left-overs are included in the new "OXO" COOK BOOK.

The recipes are simple and practical — the results well worth your trying. You will delight in the new dishes, too, that are economically made with "OXO" CUBES.

HONEY MAKING TOLD KIWANIS BY T. SHIELDS

Interesting Life of Bees and Production of Natural Sweet Explained.

INDUSTRY EXPANDS.

Sale of Tickets For Coming Kiwanis Show is Very Encouraging.

"The honey-bee that wanders
The field, the woodland, and the garden o'er,
To gather in his fragrant winter store,
Humming in calm content his winter song,
Seeks not alone the rose's glowing breast,
The lily's dainty cup, the violet's lips,
But from all rank and noxious weeds he sips
The single drop of sweetness closely pressed
Within the poison chalice."

Interestingly and authoratively told, the story of the bee and its production of honey was unfolded by Tom Shields at today's Kiwanis luncheon. He did not speak in poetry, but explained in detail the processes in honey making and marketing in a way that impressed his audience with the growing importance of the industry and the benefits of honey as a food.

A discussion of the Kiwanis latest musical production, "Bob White," brought out encouraging reports of the ticket sale, that show the affair is being looked forward to with as much interest as marked the previous successful presentations of the club. Remarking on a criticism of the seat arrangements, Secretary Hugh Niven said that no seats are reserved before the box-office sale opens, and everyone, whether a Kiwanian or not, must appear there to book his seat. On the last occasion there was a line-up before the box office opened and the choice seats were quickly disposed of after the sale commenced. All Kiwanians were called upon to attend at the old Oriental Hotel on Monday night.

Two new members, Ernest Smith and John R. Heron, were introduced to the Club by Joe Wearing. Charlie Cook presided.

About Bees

Mr. Shields, in opening his address, told of the development of the bee industry from Biblical times, l ut remarked that it is only of recent years that it has come into its own. Five years ago the honey production in Canada was 6,500,000 pounds. This year the total has climbed to 21,000,000 pounds, of which 17,000,000 pounds represent Ontario's share. Ontario's honey is the finest in the world, and is being successfully marketed through a co-operative society that handles 85 per cent of the honey produced in the province.

In a normal colony there are 50,000 bees, while a strong colony may have from 75,000 to 100,000 bees. There is one queen bee in each colony; the greatest number of the remainder are worker bees, and the third class consists of drones. If two queens are introduced in a colony they will fight to the death, and if two are hatched at once it is a question of the survival of the fittest. "It is said," Mr. Shields remarked, "that two women cannot live in the same house. However that may be it is absolutely certain that two Queens cannot live in the same bee colony." The Queen bee lays 2,000 or 3,000 eggs in twenty-four hours, and in the speaker's opinion if the poultry men had their flocks up to this standard of production the price of eggs would fall below 50 and 60 cents a dozen.

Some of the eggs laid by the Queen bee are fertile, some unfertile. The latter hatch out drones and the former produce workers. The drone has no father, but has a grandfather.

The Queen bee governs the colony. She has a sting, but seldom uses it against humans. The worker, smaller in size, is the bee that stings human beings. The worker does all the work in connection with gathering nectar, water and pollen, and ventilating the hive. Normally, there are two or three hundred drones in the hive, all lazy.

Wax Expensive.

The wax of which sections are built is produced by young workers from honey. Ten pounds of honey are required to make one pound of wax. This accounts for the greater cost of comb honey; in the extracted honey the comb is used over and over again, but in comb honey the comb is lost.

Every individual bee colony has a distinctive odor, and a stranger bee entering the wrong hive is pounced upon by the door guards and stung to death. Bees are very particular about finding their way back to the proper hive.

The average bees lives from six weeks to six months, according to whether it is hatched in spring or fall. During the summer the worker bee works itself to death. It is like a dry battery, coming into service fully charged and becoming useless when the power is used up.

Ventilating the hive is an interesting process, as described by Mr. Shields. The bees stand on their forelegs and fan with their wings, sucking the fresh air in at one side of the opening, carrying it around the hive, and expelling the old air by the other side of the opening.

Honey is Pure.

Honey is derived from nectar drawn from flowers. It is carried in a special sac and carefully stored. The nectar is not honey, but must undergo a ripening process during which the water content is reduced from 80 per cent to 17 per cent. The honey contains fruit and grape sugar in about equal quantities, forming a natural sweet that is easily assimilated without change in the stomach. For this reason, Mr. Shields said, it is far ahead of refined cane sugar, which has lost all its mineral content. Good honey will keep indefinitely, he said, and should be stored in a warm dry place.

SPEAKERS AT VETERAN REUNION ON ARMISTICE DAY

When 400 veterans of the Canadian Expeditionary Force held a reunion in the drill hall of the London Scottish on Armistice Day the principal speakers were (from left to right) Prince Arthur of Connaught, who was on the Canadian staff in France, Col. Amery, Sir Hamar Greenwood, and Gen. Garnet Hughes.

Last Jinx Day Of Year Not Ended Till Midnight

Survivors of Fridays, the 13th, which occurred in February and March, might be inclined to "pooh pooh" the idea of any disaster which might befall one on that date. They might think that as they passed off without incident, to-day would pursue a similar even tenor.

They should remember, however that Jinx is a tenacious and untiring little imp who will not relax his efforts until the midnight hour. He has weather for his purpose which seems made to order for he delights in nothing more than in wet slippery pavements.

Some of those people questioned to-day, were blissfully unconscious of any evil presence dogging their footsteps, but that is a condition which Jinx finds very much to his liking, for he loves to leap out of a dark corner, and take one by surprise. Until his season is closed to-night at 12.00 o'clock, Peterboro people would be well advised to watch their steps.

The streets to-day were noticeably barren of traffic, whether or not the good folks remained indoors to escape the rain cannot be known; but if it is to evoke the Jinx their case is useless, for the cunning little chap can penetrate the thickest wall, leaving a trail of bruised bodies and humbled spirits behind him. Those marked for a visitation of bad luck can do little to side step it; no maid, be she ever so clever and charming, can fool him with the story that her master or mistress is "not at home."

So don't adopt an air of superiority, and mentally thump your nose, until to-day is all rolled up and tucked away into the dim pigeon holes of the yesterdays.

RUSHING FATHER TO SICK CHILD; AUTO IN CRASH

Ewart F. Wilson Heeded Call For Help and Suffered Accident

ON CITY STREETS.

Mr. Montgomery Was Hastening Home—Cars Collided on George Street.

Speeding to the hospital with a man who said his child was dying, a car driven by Ewart Frank Wilson collided with that of Stanford Lindsey, of Hall's Bridge, at the corner of Hunter and George Streets at five o'clock last night. Mr. Montgomery, of Conger Street, who had asked Wilson for the ride, admitted this morning that he was to blame, and offered to pay for the damages.

Mr. Wilson was driving north on George Street, and when passing the Simcoe intersection, Mr. Montgomery rushed out from the sidewalk and asked him to drive at once to the hospital, as his child was dying. Accordingly, Wilson increased his speed. When the crash came Mr. Montgomery jumped out.

Both cars were seriously damaged.

MOUNT PLEASANT NOTES.

MT. PLEASANT, Nov. 12.—The hunting season is on. Last Saturday presented a dreary appearance in most places locally. The heavy rain commenced about noon and did not feel as though the ground was damp enough until it ceased in the early hours of Sunday morning. None only those who were obliged to venture out on business were seen on the streets or roads, where they ploughed through the mud and water with their cars amid the heavy downpour and the heavy mist, which was so difficult to drive in. When the flyer (which was twenty minutes behind the scheduled time, another unpleasant feature for those who were waiting), arrived at Omemee station, among all the dreary looking pedestrians was one huntsman, who wore a smile and was the owner of a happy disposition, and stepped on the platform about as soon as the train stopped, and marching down to the baggage car, unloaded (with the help of some willing hands) a deer, the fruits of a pleasant hunting trip. The owner of the deer was Mr. L. H. Southworth, of Omemee.

WOODEN BOOK IS LARGEST IN WORLD

Records Names of All Dominican Monks Who Have Died Since 1410.

VIENNA, Nov. 13. — (United Press).—Vienna possesses the largest book in the world. This book is also one of the most important of existing historical church documents.

The home of this book is the "Dominikanerkirche," or Dominican Church. In it are recorded the names of all local Dominican monks who have died since the year 1410.

The book itself dates only from the year 1725, a similar register which had been kept up to that time having been destroyed by fire. It is housed in a special vault situated behind the principal altar of the church.

Although there are only twenty-four pages in the book it weighs almost two hundred and fifty pounds. Each leaf is a slab of wood approximately ten pounds in weight. Sixteen of these pages have been filled to date, each by hand and with India ink.

INDIA IS SUPREME LITIGANT DOMINION

Sent 257 Appeals to Judical Committee—Canada Submitted Ten.

LONDON, Eng., Nov. 11.—(By Canadian Press).—That India is far the most litigious of all the Dominions, so far as carrying appeals to "the foot of the Throne" is concerned, is proven by the figures of appeals before the Judical Committee during last year.

There were 257 appeals from India, against 92 from all other Dominion and Colonial Courts. Of these 92 there were 10 from the Canadian Supreme Court, seven from Ontario Supreme Court, two from New Brunswick, three from Quebec, two from Saskatchewan, and one each provincial supreme courts.

Canada therefore is a poor second to India—and is likely to be even more so after this year, when the new Rules concerning granting leave to appeal come into force. But even so she is well ahead of the rest of the Empire. The Gold Coast sent six appeals to London, Ceylon eight, New South Wales five, New Zealand three. The rest "also ran" with but one appeal each.

UNIVERSITY'S TRIBUTE TO ITS DEAD

Above is a section of the great university gathering which paid a tribute to its dead on Wednesday in front of the stately Gothic tower that connects Hart House with University College. Against the walls of the colonnade on the LEFT were laid wreaths from various university organizations and individuals. In the monument room on the first floor of the tower were deposited the colors of the 2nd Battalion of Canadian Pioneers. Across the foreground was drawn up the officers' training corps which supplied the military color of the ceremony. In the background in front of the central archway can be seen a soldier on guard in war kit with steel helmet.

Toronto Stocks Are Stable With Trading Scattered

TORONTO, Nov. 13. — (Canadian Press.)—A generally firm tone characterized the market during the morning sesion of the Toronto Stock Exchange, with a broad list again being dealt in trading was not centred in any leading issue, though in volume Atlantic Sugar led, with Smelters prominent. Sugar advanced two and a quarter points to 31 3-4 at noon and Smelters one and three-quarters to 156 1-4. Canadian Pacific Railway's strength was a feature, it gaining a point and a half at 150 1-2. Royal Bank advanced a point and a half at 249 1-2 and Winnipeg Railway a point at 47. International Milling preferred also strengthened a point at 103, and Barcelona and Canadian Canners were fractinally stronger. Bank of Commerce eased a point at 226.

Wheat Values Take Up Trend In Line With Foreign Demand

CHICAGO, Nov. 13.—(Canadian Press).—Brisk buying that centered in the December delivery and was ascribed largely to foreigners, gave a decided lift to wheat values to-day. As soon as business began, offerings were quickly absorbed, and the market continued to mount. Indications of much better export demand for Canadian wheat were in evidence, and it was noted that the stocks of wheat at Liverpool are only 984,000 bushels, as against 2,368,000 bushels a year ago. Chicago initial quotations ¼ to 1½c higher, new style December 154¼ to 155 and May 146½ to 147, were followed by material further gains that hoisted December to 156 3-8 and May to 148⅝. Corn and oats sympathized with wheat strength. There was a general buying on the part of previous sellers of corn. After opening at ¼c to 3-4c up, December 76 3-4 to 77, the corn market scored additional upturns, December reaching 78 1-8. Oats started at a shade to 1-8 to ¼c higher, December 36 5-8, and later climbed a little more. Provisions were responsive to the upward trend, both of hog values and grains.

Increased Trade Volume Marked Mine Session

TORONTO, Nov. 13 (Canadian Press)—Trading increased in volume on the Standard Mining Exchange this morning with the market generally weak, and declines of some extent scattered through the whole list. Kirkland Lake, again leading, was sold down three and quarter points at 81 3-4, and active Tough Oakes lost 2 at 48 1-2. Goldale strengthened a point in fairly heavy dealings. In silvers, Castle Trethe-way was marked down four and Beaver dropped two at 51.

Extra Dividends Taken As Signs Of Prosperity

NEW YORK, Nov. 13 (United News).—Sure signs of prosperity in this country, according to men in Wall Street, were evidenced in the number of companies that declared an extra dividend on their stock yesterday.

Holders of the common stock of the General Motors Company, one of the most important motors listed on the New York Stock Exchange, were treated to an extra five dollar dividend at a meeting of the directors of the organization yesterday. This was exclusive of the regular quarterly payment of $1.50.

The directors of the United States Gypsum Company voted an extra dividend of $2 and a 15 per cent dividend on the common stock in addition to the regular quarterly declation of 2 per cent cash.

Upward Moves Continues With Favorable Conditions

NEW YORK, November 13. Canadian Press - Friday the 13th had no terrors for speculators for advance, who bid up prices in to-day's stock market. The buying, which embraced practically the entire list, was influenced by the continuance of easy money rates, a large flock of available dividend announcements, and additional reports of expansion in several lines of industry, Motors, which have been in the forefront of the recent advances, began to play a less prominent part when it became evident that heavy profit taking was taking place in General Motors, which sold down over two points from last night's closing quotation.

Rails and oils, several of which broke through to new high levels for the year, were in strong demand with buying influenced by the fact that those issues had not participated extensively in the recent advance.

While enormous blocks of stocks changed hands in the early trading, resulting in several sharp advances, the recovery became more orderly as trading progressed.

MOTORISTS MAY GET REFUND ON BRIGHTON FINES

Motor League Took Legal Action to Quash 13 Year Old By-law.

MONEY TO BE REPAID.

Those Who Failed to Pass Silent Policeman on Right Get Refund.

Some few month ago the Ontario Motor League, acting on complaints made by Peterborough motorists and others, who had been convicted for offences under a Village of Brighton traffic by-law, took legal action to quash that proved to be a hoary 18-year-old ordinance which had never received the sanction of the Minister of Highways.

The solicitor for Brighton, however, asked the legal lights of the O.M.L. to stay the motion to quash and for full particulars. The result is that the Ontario Motor League is now in a position to obtain a refund of the fine and costs imposed upon any member of the Motor League under the old by-law. This does not, of course, refer to the convictions for reckless driving, but applies to those who were convicted for not going on the right side of the traffic policeman.

This recalls that Hon. George S. Henry, in an address before the Canadian Automobile Association not long ago, expressed the opinion that all so-called silent policemen erected in the middle of roadways could more appropriately be located in the bottom of the lake!

Will all members of the Ontario Motor League who have paid fines to the village of Brighton kindly commnicate with Frank Stinson, secretary (phone 1360), so that steps may be taken to obtain refunds of money paid in fines.

TORONTO, Nov. 13.—(Canadian Press).—Fearing that their 16-year-old son Jack is among the unidentified victims of the train wreck near Plainsboro, New Jersey, Mr. and Mrs. William Bird, of this city, have instituted enquiries. The police report that two post cards found on the body of a young man killed in the wreck, are addressed to two young men in Toronto, who were friends of Jack Bird. He was returning to Toronto from Western Canada by way of Chicago and New York, and it is thought he was to have been travelling from Newark to New York.

INSIDE GOLF.

Maker of 51 Golf Champions. "Golf's most successful teacher," says "Chick" Evans

By CHESTER HORTON

One of the clubs that calls for the best judgment as to the right time and place for its use is the midiron.

BETTER USE A MIDIRON THAN TO PRESS FOR DISTANCE WITH A SHORTER CLUB

The midiron is at once the most useful and the most mis-used club in the golfer's bag. Players will for years attempt shots with a midiron that should be made with a brassie, and most of the time the player would be lucky to get the distance even with that long club. Knowing a midiron distance when you see it is one of the fine arts of golf. A good practice when you come up for a shot on the fairway is to ask yourself every time: Is this a shot for the midiron? Doing this will in itself develop in you a much better judgment of the shots, and will often lead you to the use of the midiron instead of trying for the distance with a shorter club and pushing it to the utmost.

K. OF C. ALLEYS.

Results of the ladies' bowling games at the Knights of Columbus alleys last evening were as follows: The Tulips (captain, Miss Josephine Hunt) took two games out of three from the Marigolds (captain, Miss Norah Shevlin). The Regler Fellers (captain, Miss Florence Giroux) lost three games to the Bluebells (captain, Miss Gertrude Doyle). Miss Josephine Hunt had the high single, 193, for the evening.

PETERBORO LADIES' MATINEE LEAGUE.

A new league went into action at the Water Street Alleys yesterday afternoon. This league is composed of eight teams, built around the Lady Lawn Bowlers, and some good sport is in store for the ladies.

Yesterday Miss Allen met Mrs. Fox and took three games. Mrs. James turned in high three with 344, with Mrs. DeLong a close second with 339. Mrs. Cornell met Mrs. Niven and lost two out of three. Mrs. Fisher had high three with 300 and Mrs. Niven 298. These teams are composed entirely of new recruits to the bowling game, and good improvement in the scores will come as the season progresses.

At the conclusion of these games, Miss L. Fisher stepped out and "did her stuff" for the ladies, and the result was singles of 162, 206 and 282, for a total of 650. There's a mark for the other ladies to aim at, and now some of the men's league teams are casting eyes in Miss Fisher's direction with a view to strengthening their teams. Scores:

P.C.I. TEAM TO PLAY SATURDAY

Oshawa H. S. Squad Will Be Visiting Team—A Close Game Expected.

EVENLY MATCHED.

The P.C.I. Rugby team will play the Oshawa High School squad at James Stephenson Park to-morrow afternoon regardless of weather conditions. The game is scheduled for 2.30 sharp, and the Toronto referee will get them off on time.

These two teams, P. C. I. and Oshawa High, are evenly matched, and when the Garnet and Grey played in the motor town it was a ding-dong battle all the way through. P.C.I. won out by a small score, but the Oshawa crew have been practising hard and are ambitious to get even. Oshawa have some clever players in Cohen at quarter back and Johnston on the half line. Cohen will be easily remembered as the shifty-footed, fast-thinking son of Ishmael, who was the outstanding star when Oshawa played P.C.I. at Riverside Park last year.

The Oshawa team is being coached by an old P.C.I. boy, Ralph Cowan, who is now editor of the Oshawa Reformer. Cowan has coached his team well, and has strong hopes of trimming the representatives of his old school.

Bookhout, the P.C.I. star, is in fine shape for the game, and he will have as his partner on the half line "Inky" Wood. The local squad are determined to show the fans that they can really play Rugby although snowed under by U.T.S.

U.T.S. was out to avenge the defeat P.C.I. administered to the Toronto champions last year on Riverside Park, and they trimmed the frightened P.C.I. youngsters mercilessly.

The game to-morrow will be the only home game for P.C.I. this season, and as the Athletic Association are under heavy debt, due to the trip to Toronto and Oshawa trips, the officials are depending on to-morrow's gate receipts to help them over.

SEA CLAIMING VILLAGE.

Coastal Erosion Causes Concern Among Yorkshire Folk.

KILNSEA, Eng., Nov. 12.—(Associated Press). — This ancient little village appears destined for the bottom of the ocean, a fate experienced by other Yorkshire towns of centuries past.

The sea for some time has been working its way toward Kilnsea at the rate of about 13 inches a month. Coast erosion, due to high seas, has been causing concern all along the east Yorkshire coast. It is being washed away at the rate of 2.27 feet per annum near Bridlington, increasing to 15.5 feet at Kilnsea, which is near Spear Point.

TURNER PREDICTS VETERANS' UNION

Finds Support Throughout Dominion For United Body.

OTTAWA, Ont., Nov. 13.—(Canadian Press).—That a United Veterans' organization will develop from the national conference in Winnipeg on November 25 is the confident expectation of Lieut.-Gen. Sir Richard Turner, V.C., trustee for Field-Marshal Haig, who was in Ottawa Thursday in connection with Great War Veterans' Association affairs. General Turner stated that sufficient support for the unity movement had developed in all parts of the Dominion to ensure definite action. Besides the delegates appointed by the Provincial Unity meetings, the presidents of the various existing organization had been invited to participate in the national conference. With the assistance of W. D. Lighthall, K.C., of Montreal, a suggested constitution for the new organization has been drawn up.

General Turner emphasized that the autonomy of local units of existing organizations entering the united body would be carefully safeguarded. The conference will have full authority to reach decisions relative to the composition and functions of the new organization. The Unity trustees hope that the Winnipeg conference will make such progress as to warrant the calling of a national convention of the united organization to give final ratification to the merger within a year.

Haig's Message.

"Please convey a message of remembrance to relatives of fallen comrades on this seventh anniversary of Armistice Day, and to all ex-service men in Canada, my fervent hope for unity throughout your great Dominion. — (Signed) Haig."

NOVEMBER LETTER STRESSES ECONOMY

Royal Bank Communication Indicates National Need for Retrenchment.

MONTREAL, Que., Nov. 11.—(By Canadian Press).—The necessity for a national policy of retrenchment is stressed in the November letter of the Royal Bank of Canada. Canada has been suffering from a prolonged depression which made it impossible to reduce the Canadian debt, during the years of prosperity which permitted the successful debt reduction in the United States, it is pointed out. "We find ourselves, seven years after the end of the war, with a national debt of two and a half billion dollars. The load of national, provincial and local taxation has continued to grow until we are now faced by the necessity for a national policy of retrenchment."

The letter continues: "So long as each part of the country interested itself only in savings which might be effected in some other district, no great economies could be secured, but now the necessity for government economy has become a matter of such outstanding importance that a balanced budget must cease to be a party issue, and the time is ripe for all Canadians to unite in a decisive effort to reduce expenditure. Agriculture, industry and commerce have experienced prolonged, costly and discouraging depression, and are now ready for a season of recovery It is exceedingly important that this recovery should be given the added stimulus which comes from reduced taxation."

THEATRES

"WINDS OF CHANCE"

The Capitol Theatre had a good crowd last night for "Winds of Chance," screened from Rex Beach's well-known novel. "One of the best picture I ever saw," was the comment of a lady in the audience who enjoyed the thrilling, interesting big picture from opening to closing of story, which is a tale of swift action and romance and courageous endeavor.

There is a very fine cast that includs Anna Q. Nilsson, Ben Lyon, Viola Dana, Victor McLaglen, and Hobart Bosworth. The story centres about the gold rush days of 1897, and opens with a dramatic presentation of the long trek over the Chilkoot Pass to Dawson City. Pierce Phillips is the hero, madly infatuated with the Countess Courteau, and several auxiliary characters of almost equal importance are the little Rouletta, played by Viola Dana, and Poleon Doret, a French-Canadian trapper and loyal friend of Pierce.

The Countess runs the hotel at Dawson, and Pierce embarks for the gold fields. A thrilling episode is the running of the dreaded White Horse Rapids, in which several men are drowned. Then there are scenes typical of Alaskan life in the days of the gold rush, with the gambling saloons and dance halls wide open. Pierce is a gold weigher at the hotel, and becomes involved in a flirtation with Laure, one of the dancers. When the Countess' husband arrives on the scene, he double-crosses Pierce, with the aid of the jealous Laure, and Pierce is arrested. The Countess pays his bail of $3,000, but he is again arrested when Courteau's body is fond on the trail. He has been murdered by some vengeful former comrades. These men, the McCaskey's, are pursued and captured by Pierce's friend, Poleon Doret, and Pierce is freed. The love story of Poleon and the little Rouletta makes almost a pleasing conclusion to the story as the romance of the Countess and Pierce.

There is a good comedy accompanying the big picture, and an added attraction is the dainty dance done in Pierrot and Pierette costume by two small pupils of Miss May Perry,—little Moira Coutts and Sophia Yeotes. The two little things, in their black and gold carnival outfits, do the graceful measures of a flirtatious little dance to the music of "Ukulele Lady."

AT THE ROYAL.

'THE GREAT CIRCUS MYSTERY'

Bonomo Cast in "The Great Circus Mystery" a Thriller That Steals One's Breath.

Joe Bonomo, world's champion strong man, makes his mark as an actor—outside a score of thrilling rescues, prodigous feats of strength, and other sensational stunts that he performs in "The Great Circus Mystery" Adventure Picture which opened yesterday at the Royal Theatre. For Bonomo, outside his gigantic build and sensational tricks, is a clever actor indeed, in hte weird story of the circus and the strange Hindu ruby.

This story opens with a bang—the theft of a sacred ruby from a Hindu temple—a chase across the Atlantic to America, where it is trailed to the owner of a huge circus—and from then on a veritable maelstrom of thrills, excitement and mystery.

A girl is rescued from under the thundering hoofs of a chariot team; there is a fire in the circus, with thousands of spectators trampling each other in a screaming, tearing panic; a wild elephant stampeded; the escape and recapture of a huge lion adds to the excitement; a great leopard about which is woven a mystery has an uncanny part in the swift drama; altogether it is the superlative in excitement—but in a new manner.

Louise Lorraine, noted beauty of the screen, makes a very charming heroine, and Robert Seiter an acceptable juvenile lead in the new story. Others in the cast are Albert Prisco, as the strange Hindu priest, Robert Graves, a well known character actor, as the circus owner, Sam Polo, brother of the noted Eddie Polo, as custodian of the leopard, Slim Cole, the "Stonewall Jackson" of Barbara Freitchie," and other prominent artists.

Jay Marchant's direction of the new play is sharp, snappy and shows an intimate knowledge of circus life. The story is by William Lord Wright, noted magazine author and scenarist. If you love thrills, this is your picture.

"DRUSILLA WITH A MILLION." Royal Monday, Under Auspices of Local Women's Council.

Elizabeth Cooper's popular novel, "Drusilla with a Million," will have its first motion picture presentation in this vicinity at the Royal Theatre on Monday, when it begins a three-day run; and it is seldom indeed that such a thoroughly fresh, wholesome and amusing story is projected on the screen. Mingling pathos and comedy with a facile skill that keeps the entertainment mixture always of the right consistency and has the production hitting on all eight, the adaptation of Lois Zellner has lost nothing of the charm of the original, and F. Harmon Weight has again proved himself a director of great ability in catching the subtle shades of human character and interpreting "humanness" to the spectator. Mary Carr, Priscilla Bonner, Kenneth Harlan, Claire Du Bray and William Humphrey lead the cast, supported by excellent artists of lesser importance and by one of the finest collections of babies ever assembled before the camera. When Drusilla, the little old lady who has for years been a slavey and charity natient at a Home, inherits her million she tries to befriend all the orphan babies and children of the world; and right there the fun and trouble begins. "Drusilla with a Million" is an exceptional picture in every sense of the word.

TWO SPLENDID FEATURES AT ROYAL.

Jack Pickford and Norma Shearer in "Waking Up the Town," is what we would call a delightful comedy drama with the proper blending of comedy, drama, and thrills and speaking about thrills—just wait until you see the big climax of "Waking Up the Town," the end of the world. How they did it we do not pretend to know, but you can take our word for it it's immense.

Then—if you like good hard riding and peppy western stuff you have Jack Hoxie in "The Western Wallop." There is one scene where Jack jumps "Scout," his beautiful white horse over a log and turns a double somersault that will get a gasp out of everyone present. The story is logical and well told. The Great Circus Mystery starts a chapter play which promises many thrills. Royal patrtons are surely getting their money's worth.

AT THE REGENT

KINGS OF TURF IN RACE DRAMA "KENTUCKY PRIDE"

Man O' War, Negofol, Fair Play, The Finn and Morvich in New Fox Picture

It was not for artistic reasons alone that "Kentucky Pride," the William Fox supreme attraction which opened at the Regent theatre came to be filmed in the picturesque Blue Grass region. The principal actors in this thrilling screen drama are horses ,and the cast includes some of the most famous race track champions of recent years, each playing himself. In the list are Man o' War, the world's greatest thoroughbred, Fair Play, Negofol, Morvich and other settled Kentuckians.

The ordinary two-legged screen actor gladly follows the camera to the ends of the earth, if such be orders. Not so with the four-legged stars. No trips to Holywood and waiting around studios for them. They had to be photographed in the old Kentucky homes or not at all. And that's how it was done.

"Kentucky Pride" is the life story of "Virginia's Future," a royally bred filly, as told by herself. This daughter of Negofol was born on the splendid estate of Roger Beaumont. Beaumont lost great sums gambling. He bet the remnant of his fortune on Virginia's Future in her first race. She did her best to justify her master's confidence, but fell and broke her leg just when the race seemed won.

Beaumont was ruined and disappeared. The crippled filly, useless except for breeding purposes, soon fell upon evil times, ultimately passing into the hands of a peddler, who treated her brutally. Not until her daughter, Confederacy, grew up and restored the family fortunes by winning one of the most thrilling races ever screened, was she redeemed from bondage and returned to her beloved blue grass pastures.

AT THE GRAND

TELLS WHY PRIMA DONNAS ARE CRANKY.

Leona Stater, prima donna with the musical sensation, "My China Doll," coming to the Grand Opera House, Saturday, November 21st, in a recent interview expressed her views why the prima donna becomes cranky!

"The chief reason is, that singing requires an absolute control over a sensitive organ—the vocal chords—which regulate the shape of the inner portion of the throat through which the breath passes and which shape determines the note that is being sung. The slightest tightening or stretching of the muscle in the vocal chords effects the musical value of the note. This muscular tissue is very sensitive to weather changes of which hoarseness is a very familiar example and the singer is expected to produce perfect results from an instrument that is never two days the same.

"The pianist knows when he strikes a chord that a certain definite result follows; the painters' colors in the tube have the same valuation day after day, but the prima donna never can tell how travelling about over the country, jumping from one city to another, will affect her throat. This causes a continuous but subconscious sense of uncertainty, a most nerve racking condition. Besides the prima donna is not a performer on a mechanical instrument but performs upon herself. This compels her to think of herself constantly and excessive self absorption is unavoidable. She has no creative work to do like the sculptor, poet, merchant, banker, dressmaker and milliner, nothing to take her outside of herself.

"When to this is added the glare of publicity the artificial stories of press agent and the laudation of thousands of admirers, it is no wonder she falls the victim so often."

"FOOT-LOOSE."

Rarely have Peterboro play-goers seen a smart play so brilliantly acted as was Zoe Akins' comedy drama, "Foot-Loose," by Mr. William Faversham and his associates at the Grand last night. Miss Akins' play, a fascinating story of modern intrigue, involving some memorable character studies, and working up to an impressive climax, was full of opportunities for finished acting, and Mr. Faversham and his company took full advantage of those openings to give a finished and artistic performance.

Briefly, "Foot-Loose" deals with the attempt of a declasse marquise to blackmail herself back into society at the expense of an English family into which her son had married. The weapon she employs for that purpose is the fact that her son had not been old enough to legally marry without his mother's consent, but when that consent was refused, had allowed the ceremony to go through. The arrival on the scene of an old admirer of hers, Sir Horace Welby, an Englishman of the world now in love, with one of the Marquise's blackmail victims ultimately defeats the campaign of the adventuress and the end of the play sees her depart, beaten and panic-striken.

The big role of the play is not Mr. Faversham's part, full of interest as the latter's is, but rather the role of the Marquiese of Mohrivart, most brilliantly played last night by Miss Sarah Truax. The Marquiese was one of the most interesting stage characters that has been seen at the Grand in many a day, and Miss Truax's conception of the part was most skilfully artistic. She brought out all with full effect the contrasting shades and colors of the temperamental Marquise's character, giving the audience a chance to completely grasp the brilliance with which the author had developed this outstanding role. Miss Truax's work left nothing to be desired, and she was effective and successful in every scene.

The part of Sir Horace fell to Mr. Faversham, and that most facile actor gave a sound, convincing and thoroughly polished performance of a role full of interest. His scenes with Miss Truax will long be remembered by last night's audience, as they recall the battle of wits and sparkling dialogue between the two leading characters. Mr. Faversham is a finished artist, and his characterization of Sir Horace was without a flaw.

The supporting company was worthy of the stars. Miss Edith Campbell's conception of the English girl, "Alice Verney," was a splendid piece of acting. Dennis Cleugh gave a most effective rendition of the amusing part of an impressionable Italian prince. Ann Warrington's picture of a typical English society woman was skilfully etched; Antonio Salerno, as the revenge-seeking Corsican, was always effective and never overdrawn, and the other parts were well taken care of.

All in all it was a most brilliant performance, further enhancing Mr. Faversham's reputation among local players and leaving a pleasant memory in the minds of those who saw "Foot-Loose."

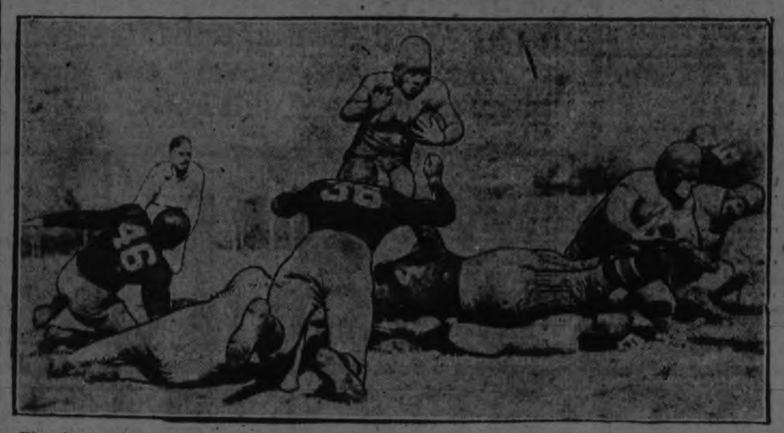
A THOROUGH AND HEARTLESS JOB IN U. S.



The above picture gives the Canadian football fan some idea how openings are made for the ball carrier in the U. S. game. There is no standing on ceremony on the line, the wings on the offensive diving headlong for the opposing players and taking them completely off their feet. This illustration shows Cook, the speedy backfield star of Drake University, Des Moines, Iowa, smashing through for a gain during the Drake-Kansas game at Lawrence, Kansas, last Saturday. Drake won, 7 to 0.

SUNDERLAND ARE FAVORITES IN SATURDAY'S GAME AT LEICESTER

But Soccer Uncertainties Lend Doubt to Result—Review of Card.

SCOTTISH LEAGUE

LONDON, Nov. 13 (Canadian Press Cable)—Scheduled encounters in the first division of the English Football League on Saturday are not of such a nature as to unduly arouse the excitement of the fans, for in the main they bring the leading teams into conflict with those that are mediocre. Were it not for the uncertainty of the game, as for example, the fact that Burnley could draw with Sunderland last week, soccer enthusiasts would feel inclined to award the various contests Saturday on the form already displayed but it has been so often revealed that it is under circumstances such as these the top-notchers run up against a snag, and Saturday's tilts will eventually prove as interesting as any of their predecessors. For Sunderland, still enthroned in the place of honor, the task ought not to be difficult. They travel to Leicester for the first engagement of these teams this year. Leicester City arrived in the 'senior' string from the second division this season. In this company they have not fulfilled all that was expected of them. They began the season well, but after the second game they ran into a series of five defeats in a row. Three wins have been picked up since then—one of them at the expense of Tottenham Hotspurs—but they relapsed again last Saturday when Cardiff City took them out to grass by five to two. In their last few games, the leaders themselves have left much to be desired, for it is all of three weeks since they acquired full points, the last occasion being against Bolton Wanderers on October 24. Perhaps Sunderland may now have seen the necessity of steadying down, for it is certain that unless they put on a better show than they did last week against Burnley, they will not travel much further without drinking the cup.

Arsenal have the advantage of locale in their tourney with Bury, and additional to this they find themselves travelling in good form. Their last two games have been won in decisive fashion, while out of the last seven played Bury have obtained the points in only one. The augurs would seem to read a victory forthe Highbury Club, particularly since their recent reinforcements have turned out so well.

Spurs Have Battle

Tottenham Hotspurs are up against a hard proposition when they travel to the Tyneside to engage Newcastle United. Of all the teams in the league, the most uncertain is Newcastle. Against the weaker brethren they are inclined to suffer from over-confidence, but placed in opposition to the leaders, and the Northumbrians will always give them a hard game. This has been evidenced time and again this season. They have lost to such teams as Birmingham, Manchester United, West Ham, Leeds and Blackburn Rovers; but they have drawn with Sunderland and have defeated Arsenal and Huddersfield Town. Few would be surprised if the 'Spurs who have been a trifle shakey for the last five weeks were to succumb to the Northumbrians.

A good battle is slated for Villa Park when the home club take on Huddersfield Town. It is two weeks since the visitors were engaged, the game against Liverpool having been postponed on account of waterlogged grounds. But the town are in fine fettle, nevertheless, while the Villa's last two games, against Cardiff City and Sheffield United, have seen them come out at the short end of the score.

Other encounters are:

Manchester City at Bolton; Sheffield United at Burnley; Cardiff City at Leeds; West Bromwich at Liverpool; Birmingham at Manchester (United); Everton at Notts County; Blackburn Rovers at West Ham.

Second Diivsion—Ferry County at Fulham; Barnsley at Middlesborough; Southampton at Oldham; Clapton Orient at Portsmouth; Port Vale at Preston; Darling on at Sheffield (Wednesday); Bradford City at South Shields; Notts Forest at Stockport County; Blackpool at Stoke; Hull City at Swansea and Chelsea at Wolverhampton.

Scottish League

GLASGOW, Nov. 13 (Canadian Press Cable) — Soccer fans here continue to watch the fortunes of St. Mirre, the dazzling play of the Paisley team being the feature of the entire season, and indeed, coupled with the sparkling show of Motherwell, the biggest sensation of a number of seasons. The old prompting to "keep your eye on Paisley" is now applied to more than politics, for to all present appearances the Paisley club is headed straight for the Scottish League championship. They have the scalps of many fine teams dangling at their belt, and on Saturday they will go out after that of St. Johnstone, a task that should be effected with the utmost ease. The Perth club are in almost a hopeless position, even this early in the season, and it is not considered for a moment that they will do more on Saturday than simply stand up to get slaughtered by St. Mirren.

Motherwell are more likely to stub their toe, for they go east to Edinburgh to pit themselves against Heart of Midlothian, at Tyncastle Park the Hearts have been defeated only once this season in the Gorgie Road district, and that was when Airdrienonians, then at the top of their form, stacked up two goals to nohin against them. The glamour that hangs over Tynecastle may well be the undoing of Motherwell, as it has been the undoing of many another good team.

Celtic, who seem to have regained their stride, visit Kirkcaldy to fill their scheduled engagement with Raith Rovers. It should not be impossible for the Celts to get a couple of points there, for Raith present no insurmountable obstacle to a determined team. In the attack they are deplorably weak, but again it is a most significant thing that of the six games they have played on their own ground, they have won five and drawn the other. Included in the five teams that went down to defeat at Raith are Rangers and Airdrie—each of which is of the same calibre as Celtic.

Airdrienonians are at home to Dundee and Rangers play Cowdenbeath at Ibrox Park. Other games are: Falkirk at Clydebank, Aberdeen at Dundee (United), Hibernians at Hamilton, Queen's Park at Greenock (Morton), Kilmarnock at Partick.

JOHN L. PITCHES IN RING REGALIA

Lost Ball Game and Was Arrested at Rockefeller's Instigation.

8,000 ATTENDED

By C. B. YORKE

(United Press Staff Correspondent)

SANDUSKY, O., Nov. 13.—(United Press).—John L. Sullivan, famous heavyweight champion of the world, once took the count, figuratively speaking, from another well-known American— John D. Rockfeller.

The story, which came to light here in the dusty files of an 1885 newspaper, describes a collision between the two kings of their respective fields in which John L. came off second best, losing both a ball game and a court decision.

It is the story of the visit of the crack Sandusky baseball team of 1885 to Cleveland for a game with the Forest City team; a game played Sunday, Sept. 13, 1885—40 years ago.

Fresh from a victory over the great Detroit National League team of that day, the Sanduskians were heroes when they took the field at Brooklyn Park, then just outside the Cleveland city limits.

The great record of the Cleveland team prompted the management to import a well-known Bostonian as pitcher — John L. Sullivan, then heavyweight champion of the world.

According to a newspaper account of the game, 8,000 persons were in attendance when play was called.

Says a Sandusky paper of Sept. 14, 1885: "The crowd was very large the attraction being John L. Sullivan, who pitched for Forest City.

"Sullivan, clad in full ring costume, pitched the nine innings and although the Sandusky boys found him to some extent he was at times very speedy. His fine physique brought forth much admiration and even our boys watched his work with interest.

"The Sanduskians made seven clean hits of the pugilist's delivery, while Forest City only hit Schiebeck safely twice. John L. succeeded in fanning only two batsmen. Sandusky won, 2 to 0."

With the finish of the game the Sandusky team's part in the play ended and John D. Rockfeller began. To go back to the newspaper account:

"At the close of the game, as the champion was leaving the grounds, he was placed under arrest by Constable Jones, the smallest officer in the city.

"Armed with a warrant charging Sullivan with violating the country law by playing ball, the constable took Sullivan before Justice Hart. John L. gave bail in the sum of $500."

The warrant was sworn out, it was said, at the request of John D. Rockfeller, of the Standard Oil Co., representing the Law and Order League. Owing to the delay in issuing the warrant, the officer did not reach the grounds until the players were leaving.

The next day John L. paid a small fine, according to the newspaper account. He lost a ball game to Sandusky—and got pinched for it.

M'CANN DRIVES ROUGH RIDERS FOR TITLE GAME WITH TIGERS

Ottawa Team Keen for Battle That May Decide the Championship.

A FAST WORKOUT

OTTAWA, Nov. 13 (Canadian Press).—Lining up against New Edinburghs, Quebec Rugby Union Intermediate finalists, Ottawa Senators went through a full game Thursday afternoon in preparation for their big test against Hamilton Tigers here Saturday. On the Burg line were several veteran players who subbed at short intervals to impart instructions and tips to the present Big Four team.

Driving them along relentlessly, McCann spurred them through a strenuous hour after first drilling them in technicalities and signals. The men went at the task all out and the workout was one of the best held this season. The entire team is keen as a knife for the combat Saturday and whichever way the score goes, the locals are certain to prove tough opposition to the Tigers.

The lineup to take the field against the Bengals will likely be the same as that which opposed the Hamilton team in Tigertown. The men are in good shape, injuries are absent, except in a couple of slight instances, and there will be no alibis for defeat unless unexpected events occur in the meantime.

Emerson will likely be at flying wing with Tubman and Miller as the catching halves and Tubman doing the booting. Connell will be listed on the half line, but really play secondary along with Lynch at quarter. Bruce is the snapping choice, with Timmis and Monohan at middle wings and Starr and Young outsides. The insides are not yet decided on. Curry, Humphrey, Cote and Pritchard are all hot candidates and battle for the two selections to start out should be a merry one.

The full quota of subs will be on hand. There are about a dozen men from which McCann can select relief for the regulars and they will all be in uniform.

Tickets are in rare demand and indications point to a record crowd. The city is football mad, and the entire Capital will be out in force for the occasion. Tigers are due in here tonight to have the benefit of a good night's rest for the game.

Ottawa will ease off in the training today, ending their preparatory efforts with a signal practice and general talk from Coach McCann. The men are in dead earnest, determined and quietly confident that the close of Saturday's game will find them Big Four champions.

SEMINOLES ARE VICTIMS OF LAND BOOM IN FLORIDA

Indians Are Crowded Out of Haunts in the Everglades.

BIRDS GOING, TOO

Persistent Advance of Real Estate Agents and Land-Boomers is Cause.

Florida's land boom is having one effect, that does not enter into the consideration of real estate agents and purchasers. The continuous advance of land boomer and investor is driving the Indians and the birds out of territories long held by them. The Seminole Indians inhabiting the Florida Everglades are being forced to leave their present grounds and move westward.

Because of this, Minnie Moore Willson of Kissimmee, Fla., author of several works on eminole history and habits, is urging the Government of her home State and the Federal Government to provide for both Indians and birds. She would help the Indiah to make use of 126,000 acres of land already reserved for them and the birds by setting aside another 100,000 acres of undrained land for an Everglades bird sanctuary, to which the Indians would have access.

The Everglades contain about 4,000 square miles of marshy land and forests, 800 miles of which, according to Government reports, have never been penetrated by a white man. This vast morass is covered with innumerable water channels fed by subterranean streams and springs. On the borders of the lagoons are dense forests of cypress, cabbage palm, rubber and mangrove.

Great flocks of migratory birds come to the Everglades from all the North to remain for the Winter in the primeval woods. The heron, pelican, crane, white egret, red flamingo, spoonbill, gallinule and paroquet have their rookeries in the Everglade region. A habitant of this section is also the American eagle.

Drainage Halted Near Miami.

Since 1897 the Government work of draining and reclaiming the Everglade region has been going on rapidly. The birds alone with the Indians now feel the consequences of Florida's development. The drainage of the marshes and watery lowlands, according to Mrs. Willson, who is now in New York, is causing the soil in some spots to deteriorate. Palm trees are turning brown, vines are gone and the soil is being reduced to a gray, ashy substances, useless for tilling. In other places there is the danger of inundation.

The Seminole wigwams are abandoned; the redskin mothers and children follow the stoical braves in search of new homes. A recent dispatch from Miami reported that drainage work in the Everglades had been halted on the complaint of fruit growers, who declared the drainage was causing damage to their orchards. A temporary injunction halting all drainage work in Dade County, where Miami is situated, and in Broward County was issued. State officials are now on the scene in an effort to settle the odd dilemma—Indians driven out by drainage, whites handicapped by drainage.

Census figures give the number of Seminole Indians as 324, but a count made by Mrs. Willson and her husband indicated the number to be about 700, all leading a primitive life in the fastnesses of the Everglades. The United States came into control of these Seminole Indians at the time Spain parted with her title to Florida in 1821. The Spanish treated the Seminoles as free men. When the Indians passed under the aegis of t United States they stipulated that they would never fight the white man but that all the rights and privileges which they had enjoyed under Spain should be preserved.

Passive Resistance.

They aroused the enmity of the ante-bellum Southerners by giving shelter to negroes who had fled from their white masters. The constant efforts of the Southern whites to dispossess these Indians finally resulted in a treaty by the terms of which the Seminoles were to leave Florida in exchange for a new home in the West. A few of them refused to recognize this treaty and fled into the woods and swamps. The present Seminole Indians are the descendants of those few who refused to migrate and swear allegiance to the United States.

Officially, therefore, the Seminole Indians are still unreconciled with the United States. Keeping their vow never to fight the white man, they have, it is said, persistently refused to have any dealings with his Government, State or Federal. Consequently they have not benefited by the various appropriations and other measures adopted by the Government for th relief of the Indians.

Their plight has aroused the interest of many Floridians, who have induced the State and Federal Governments to set aside two tracts of land, one of 26,000 acres in area, the other 100,000 acres, in Monroe County, for the use of the Indians. The Seminoles, however, have thus far failed to make use of this land. This is because they refuse to accept from the "Big Chief" of the whites as a gift a portion of the Florida lands they claim as their own.

Would Reserve Everglade Tract.

The Federal Government is now encing in a part of the 26,000-acre reservation. It plans to put in cattle pens and other facilities for raising cattle and place them at the disposal of the Seminoles. The Indians will also be encouraged to grow bananas.

Florida so far has done nothing to help the Seminoles settle on the remaining 100,000 acres reserved for them by the State. The Southern Baptist Home Mission Board plans to establish an industrial school, and some educated Oklahoma Indians will be invited to teach in this school.

Mrs. Willson and her husband, James M. Willson, Secretary of the National Society of the Friends of the Florida Seminoles, now propose to induce Florida to set aside a tract of undrained Everglade land of about 100,000 acres in extent as a bird sanctuary. It would be Florida's gift to America for the nation's contribution to Florida's prosperity.

"The Seminole Indians are making their last stand, a vanishing remnant of a powerful people," says Mrs. Willson. "They are ignorant of the rights which they enjoy under the Indian treaty. They are not even aware that a reservation of 126,000 acres of land had been placed at their disposal by the Government of Florida and of the United States. But in spite of their persistent refusal to have anything to do with the white man in Florida, they should be helped. From the legal and moral viewpoints, the Seminoles have a perfect right to be on the land which they occupy in the Everglades, and should not be dispossessed of their soil and means of gaining a living because of the insatiable greed of the white man."

BRITISH EMPIRE KNIT BY AIR LINES

Air Minister Wants to See Communication Between Empire Capitals.

INDIA FIRST ROUTE

LONDON, Nov. 13. — (United Press.)—Britain's hopes for linking together her far-flung posts of Empire by means of air routes, as voiced by Sir Samuel Hoare, Air Minister, are being discussed today throughout England.

"I want to see air communication between every capital in the Empire," declared the Air Minister. "I want to see the journey from Australia reduced from six weeks to two weeks, and the journey to India reduced to 100 hours.

"We have been flying only twenty-one years, and I am sure that within another twenty-one years the linking up of the Empire will have been achieved. The longer the journey the greater the advantage of flying.

"As long as our main flights are between London and Paris, or London, and Brussels, the full value of flying to the trade and intercourse of the country can never be realized. We must fly greater distances. The British Empire, has more to gain than any other nation in the world from long distance air communication."

The first practical step in this direction which he had set himself to accomplish, said Dr. Samuel was the development of the airplane route to India.

"We have got one section of that route already working in the military mail between Egypt and Bagdad. I want to see that become a regular weekly mail service between Egypt and India. Later when the two giant airships of 5,000,000 cubic feet gas capacity have been completed and are in operation, I hope to see them take over the carrying of mails and passengers directly from London to Karachi, India. Their construction is about to be started and they should be completed in two ycars time.

"My belief is that if these two new ships are successful, as we expect them to be, we shall in the course of time see commercial lines developed over the whole empire."

RUSSIA AGRICULTURE HAS HAD BOOM YEAR

Total Yield of Grain Crop is Nearly Double That of Last Year.

MOSCOW, Nov. 13. — (United Press).—This has proved a boom year for the Russian industries and agriculture. The industries, which last year turned out only about forty per cent. of the pre-war output, have jumped ahead and already reached seventy per cent. of pre-war production.

Even at this increased rate of production they cannot satisfy the demand of the country for goods; and it is only lack of capital to build and equip new plants which prevents the industries from attaining and even surpassing the pre-war levels of production.

The Russian harvest this year is by far the best which the country has enjoyed at any time since the Revolution. The total yield of the grain crop is estimated at 2,460,000,000 bushels, as against a yield of 1,650,000,000 bushels last year, when the drought in the Lower Volga provinces and in the Ukraine constituted a serious bar to agricultural progress. In view of the anticipated harvest it seems certain that Russia will export several million tons of grain this year.

Hollowed out for use as a water main, a section of an oak tree recently dug up from beneath a London street is estimated to be 300 years old.

FREE STATE MAY ASK LEAGUE TO OUTLINE POLICY

Government Members Seek Judgment Against Britain.

MAY PREVENT TROUBLE

Abolish System of Proportional Representa—Electoral Areas Rearranged.

By HENRY WOOD
(United Press Correspondent).

GENEVA, Nov. 13. — (United Press). — A direct appeal to the League of Nations by the Irish Free State for intervention against Great Britain on behalf of the "Nationalist Minorities" of Northern Ireland promises to be the next step in the steady development of independence which the British Dominions enjoy as members of the League.

Members of the Irish Free State Government, who attended the recent Assembly of the League of Nations as members of the Irish delegation, have just finished here a complete study of the basis on which Ireland will be able to ask the intervention of the League against Great Britain.

Only such an appeal and adequate action by the League, members of the Irish delegation declare, can prevent serious trouble between the Irish Free State and Great Britain.

The appeal, which is now being prepared, will be brought under two headings: first, under Article XII. of the Covenant which pledges members of the League to submit all disputes either to arbitration or to inquiry by the Council; and secondly, under Article Sixteen of the Irish Free State Treaty, with Great Britain, which Ireland insists is now being violated.

This treaty was registered by the Irish Free State last year with the League in order to give it an international standing, and a basis for appeal to the League in the event of disputes under it with Great Britain.

While the question on which the Irish Free State is now preparing to appeal to the League comes under the heading of Minorities, the absence of any minority treaty with Great Britain makes it impossible for nationalist minorities of Northern Ireland to appeal themselves to the League. Hence the necessity of the appeal being made by the Irish Free State, as an independent member of the League.

According to members of the Irish delegation at Geneva the Belfast authorities have organized a secret army, estimated at 45,000 men, the ranks of which are open exclusively to anti-Irish elements and which is being utilized to terrorize and suppress the rights of the Irish minorities of Northern Ireland. The delegation further charges that this army, the existence of which violates the Anglo-Irish treaty of 1921 which provided that the Belfast government should have no power to organize or control a military force, is being openly subsidized by the Imperial Government.

In the second place, members of the Irish Free State delegation charge that the provincial legislature of Belfast has passed a number of measures for the undisguised purpost of dis-enfranchising the Irish nationalist minorities and eliminating them from the local administration.

These measures, it is declared, began by abolishing the system of proportional representation, and finally by re-arranging the electoral areas to the same end. The result has been, that the Irish nationalist minorities who number nearly 500,000, or just one-third of the total population of the area, have been practically eliminated from the local administration, their members removed from public positions, and their parliamentary franchise reduced to a virtual farce.

The delegation of the Irish Free State contends that this is in violation of the Anglo-Irish Treaty, duly registered with the League of Nations, which provides that the Parliament of Northern Ireland shall not make any laws that directly or indirectly give preference or impose disability as the result of religious belief or status.

HONESTY ESSENTIAL BUSINESS SUCCESS

So Says E. H. Gary, Adding a Wide Variety of Other Advice.

Can a man be both honest and rich?

Elbert H. Gary, the multi-millionaire chairman of the United States Steel Corporation, says that the answer is yes. He goes on to say that no man can offer ny excuse for dishonesty and no man can offer any excuse for failure in life.

He adds, however, that one may save a great deal of money by silence and discretion, an amendment which, on the face of it, seems to allow a great deal of leeway.

Mr. Gary, in fact, gave a great deal of sound and gratuitous advice on the occasion of the above statement—an address to the students of a school of commerce. Here is a portion of it:

"A man who aspires to business success should endeavor to make friends and avoid making enemies.

"But whenever a moral principle is involved a man should speak out regardless of anything.

"There is abundance of room at the top and every man's duty is to struggle to reach it.

"A wise father used to say to his sons: 'Remember as you go through life that every man you meet in business is smarter than you are.' The idea is worth keeping in mind.

"The average man talks too much, especially if he has a good command of language..

"Good education is the first requisite in business success. A business man should be well grounded in the rudiments, including spelling, writing, grammar, arithmetic, history and geography. Knowledge of foreign languages is desirable.

"Success in business is fundamental to our existence.

"Education alone of mental capacity will not adequately provide the necessaries of life unless there is also some practical business ability."

MISSING MAN FOUND DEAD TODAY

Back From Wildwoods With Chase Trophies Come Happy Hunters

Peterborough Is Becoming Gateway To Sportsmen's Paradise and Is Witnessing Carrying Off of Many Deer —Bumper Bag Promised For Season.

CITY PARTIES HAVE RETURNED.

Stoney Creek Hunt Club Brought Back Fifteen Deer and One Fox—Train Killed a Big Bull Moose—Adventures of the Hunt Sometimes Amusing.

There have been, during the past few days, more deer in Peterborough than there were hunters left the city. The reason is that this city is becoming the gateway to a hunter's paradise, and automobiles from United States and other parts of Canada bring hundreds through here. The local express company say twenty-three deer have already passed through their hands, and they do not anticipate the big rush until the middle of next week. Thirteen deer are to be seen in Jopling's Store, and several in Mervin's. And in addition to these there have been dozens of deer carried through the city on the running boards of United States cars.

Not only are the large parties to be reckoned with, but many smaller parties and lone hunters take their toll not far from civilization in the northern part of Peterboro County and in the adjoining counties. There are many haunts there known only to one or two men and they carefully guard their preserves from interlopers.

The stories told by hunters this year seem to indicate that the deer story may soon rival the fish story in sporting life. But there can be no doubt that the bag this year promises to be the biggest ever taken out of Ontario. Some of the more observant hunters regret the slaying of so many does, with the consequent lessening of next year's game.

Stoney Creek Club.

The Stoney Creek Hunt Club returned to the city last night with its full complement of fifteen deer and one fox. Fred Jopling, the captain of the club, said it was the most successful season the club has had. Altogether there were fifteen in the party: Fred Jopling (captain), Thomas Brightman (judge), Ed. Cooney, J. W. Kelly, Nick Roberts, Tom Roberts, Sid Tucker, Fred. Dobson, W. Sherwood, Harry Jopling, Walter Jopling, Jim Jopling, C. Telford, S. McManus and R. Nickrenz.

Mr. Jopling said the party travelled to their destination in a private railway car and had a Chinese chef to look after their culinary needs. "We got off the train at Paxley, near Sudbury, and went into camp about five miles from there, on the property of the Shroder Lumber Company, who furnished us with every convenience necessary to the comfort of man," said Mr. Jopling. On the way up the train in which

Ducks and Rabbits Paid Heavy Penalty Of Holiday

BAILIEBORO, Nov. 13.—Many from Toronto motored to Rice Lake and enjoyed their holiday on Monday last, shooting ducks and rabbits around Rice Lake. One hunter was successful in getting twenty-four ducks in two hours and a half. Another party took back to the city thirty-five cottontail rabbits.

HUNTER'S INJURY FATAL.

RENFREW, Ont., Nov. 14. —By the accidental discharge of a rifle in his own hands, Martin Dahl, aged 25, of St. Patrick, while deer hunting in Griffith Township sustained injuries from which he died at midnight on Thursday. The bullet entered the knee and death resulted from loss of blood.

This Boy Earned His Pay As a Window Polisher

GLASGOW, Nov. 14.—(United News). —Let's see you clean that window, then polish it till it gets hot, said a Dumbarton Street Grocer when Donald Winter, 14, the errand boy he had just discharged for laziness pleaded for another chance.

Winter started to work on the front window indicated and was busy an hour, the grocer went out to look at it and approved. He noticed that a nearby tree was perfectly reflected in it. As he was looking a dark object crashed into the window and broke it, fluttered a bit and fell to the sidewalk dead. It was a ten pound grouse, which had thought it was flying into the tree. The birds beak was bent by the impact.

Use Of Soft Coal Causes Risk Of Asphyxiation

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14.—(Vanadian Press.)— Families in the thousands of homes with heating plants built for anthracite will run the risk of "wholesale asphyxiation," if they attempt to burn bituminous coal as a substitute during the present suspension in the anthracite fields, warns John L. Lewis, President of the United Mine Workers of America.

LOCATION OF PROGRESSIVES IN NEXT HOUSE WORRIES OFFICIALS

Conservatives Greatly Increase Representation in the Houseof Commons.

CONSULT LEADERS.

OTTAWA, Nov. 14. — (Canadian Press).—Seating accommodation for members in the new House presents a complex problem. Where will Progressives sit? Around the question, considerable conjecture centres.

In the last house, Liberals, as is cutomary for the Government party, sat to the right of the Speaker with Conservatives, as the official opposition, immediately opposite. Progressives also sat on the Opposition side, but farther away from the Speaker than the Conservatives. Robert Forke, Progressive leader, sat on the Opposition side, about half way down the House.

But this arrangement will not now be so convenient. Conservatives have more than doubled their representation, and if Progressives sit on their left flank, their leader will be near the far end of the Chamber. On the other hand, if Progressives choose to sit on the same side as Liberals, but farther away from the Speaker, they will not be in a much more favorable position.

The situation is creating some concern among House officials. There will be a conference between party whips, or nominees of party leaders, and House officials before any final step is taken.

BANDITS FIGHT WITH VILLAGERS; 190 FATALITIES

Forty Maronites and 150 Bandits Killed in Attack on Village.

DEFENDERS RETREAT.

Damascus Is No Longer Menaced—Few Brigands Wandering Near.

BEIRUT. Syria, Nov. 14—(Canadian Press). —One hundred and fifty bandits and forty Maronites have been killed during an attack by bands of brigands on the village of Kawkaba, near Hasbaya. The information comes from French sources When the encounter ended the munitions of the villagers were exhausted and they retired toward Marjevoun, where large French forces are concentrating in order to prevent the retreat of the bandits.

The French understand that the bandits have treated women and children with the utmost cruelty.

Damascus is described as no longer menaced, except for 250 brigands who have been levying tribute on the outlying villages and for a band roaming to the northward of Damascus.

Four Christians have been killed by highway bandits a few miles from Damascus.

The Man the Law Forgot To Be Electrocuted Friday

OKLAHOMA CITY, Nov. 14 (United Press) — Johnnie Washington, negro slayer, the "man whom the law forgot" will go to his death in the electric chair next Friday.

Clemency was denied him yesterday afternoon.

Washington's case gained prominence some time ago when the state forgot his execution date. The negro in the death cell of McAllister prison found an unexpected stay of execution.

Meanwhile the courts got into action again and re-sentenced him to die. He had been convicted of murdering an Eldorado Town Marshal who surprised him in the act of committing a robbery.

WINNIPEG CITY COUNCIL SCENE OF FIST FIGHT

Lie Passed Over Statement That There Is Plenty of Work.

COUNCIL ANGERED.

By Labor Delegate's Allusion to the Aldermanic Hostilities.

WINNIPEG, Man., Nov. 14. — (Canadian Press).—High words and blows marked a meeting of the usually dignified City Council on Friday afternoon. The meeting was discussing the unemployment question with a delegation from the ranks of the unemployed present to ask for the start of relief to workless men.

Alderman Leonard during a heated debate remarked that there was plenty of work for anyone who wanted it. Aledreman Flye, labour, took prompt exception to the remark and called Alderman Leonard 'a liar' and "a damned liar."

The calm of the Council was immediately disrupted. Alderman Leonard cleared the table in two jumps and struck labour Alderman three blows on the side of the head and demanded an apology. This only incensed Alderman Flye to further assertions of Alderman Leonards' untruthfulness and a serious scuffle was in prospect until Brother Alder men spread oil on the troubled waters. The dispute ended with Alderman Flye withdrawing his remarks and shaking hands with Alderman Leonard.

Roiled Whole Council.

Another riffle arose when a member of the unemployment delegation rose and remarked that he had been about to address the body as "Gentlemen" but that after the affair he had witnessed he could only say "Members of the Council."

Aldermanic dignity was really affronted at that and the session was brought to a rapid conclusion when the council refused to hear the speaker and informed the delegation that there was no money in the year's estimates for unemployment relief and that single men had been warned that they could not look to Winnipeg for aid this winter.

The delegation had urged that the Council reverse its decision to withhold aid from single men.

TWO DIE DURING SEVERE STORMS

Heavy Gales Lashed New England and Caused Great Damage.

SHIPS WRECKED.

BOSTON, Nov. 14 (Canadian Press)—The heavy southerly gales which have lashed New England for 24 hours were abating somewhat today but left in their wake a toll of two dead, a number of injured and heavy property damage.

The schooner Northern Light went ashort near the breakwater at Rockland, Maine, and the coast-guard patrol boat 135 was driven on to Menemsha breakwater on Martha's Vineyard. Both crews were safe. Ample storm warnings enabled coastal shipping for the most part to escape the full fury of the gale, which reached a velocity of 80 miles an hour at points along the waterfront.

Inland the gale blew down trees and poles, shattered small buildings and unroofed others, causing the heaviest damage in the northern states. A torrential down pour washed out the roads, flooded the lowlands and generally delayed automobile, railroad and auto traffic.

Tangled wires brought down by falling trees and poles disrupted telephone and electric light service in many places and two met death by electrocution while engaged in repair work.

Damage in Quebec

QUEBEC, Nov. 14 (Canadian Press)—Roofs of buildings were torn away, horse drawn vehicles were overturned in the streets of the city and navigation on the St. Lawrence was completely tied up by a terrific northeast gale that struck Quebec yesterday and continued throughout the day. It is declared to have been the worst storm to visit Quebec in the month of November in the past ten years.

Miss Masters Reported To Be On the Road to Recovery.

EDMONTON, Alta., Nov. 14. — (Canadian Press). — Through the agency of radio it is thought that the life of Miss Masters, a worker in the Anglican Mission at Wabasca, sixty miles to the north-west of Lesser Slave Lake, may be saved. Bishop Robins, who was in the district at the time, found it would be impossible, owing to the nature of the trails, to convey the sick woman to the far-away railway station, and thence to Edmonton. He decided to make a careful diagnosis of the symptoms; and, himself, hurry to Edmonton to consult specialists.

Upon arrival here, Bishop Robins placed the case before two local physicians, and a course of treatment was immediately decided upon. The next move was to broadcast the treatment by radio from CJCA, the Edmonton Journal radio station. This was done in the most careful manner, and, with such good results, that yesterday a letter was received stating that the message of October 31 had been picked up on two radio sets at Wabasca, and as the result of the prescribed treatment, Miss Masters seems to be on the road to recovery.

Potato Price Down.

From a general price of $3.50 a bag last Saturday, potatoes dropped to-day to $2.90 on Peterborough market, a difference of 60 cents.

LOCAL MARKET TABLES LADEN; BUYERS SCARCE

Apples and Fowl Specially Plentiful and Stock Was Unsold.

AMOUNTED TO GLUT.

Eggs Scarce at 60 Cents—October Lay Offered at 50 Cents.

There was what one man aptly described as a "glut of apples" on the farmers' market this morning. And there was an equally generous oversupply of fowl in the basket section. Up until noon, the tables were laden with the birds of the farmyard that had been halted in their progress from the barnyard to the table by the fact that there wern't enough buyers to take care of them. Chickens were priced at 23c and 25c a lb., with year old birds at 20c. Ducks and geese were 23 and 25c a lb., and turkeys 35c. Cream was 30c a pint and butter sold at from 45 to 48c a lb. Eggs, a very scarce commodity, were 60c a dozen. One vendor offered a supply gleaned in the last week of October, at 50c a dozen.

Clover honey, in 5-lb. pails, was 14c a pound, and the amber quality was 11c. Sections were 25c apiece.

Upstairs, an elderly gentleman from Cornwall, was selling Indian sweet-grass baskets.

Small yellow pears, for eating or preserving, were 30 and 40c a basket, or 60c a peck.

Potatoes were fairly plentiful and were offered at quite a range of prices. They sold all the way from $2.90 a bag to $3.50, and did not appear to have a very brisk demand.

Small pickling beets were 53c a basket; Brussels sprouts were 10c a quart; sulphur beans 15c a quart and red and white onions 50c a peck. Corrots and turnips were 25c a peck.

Pork in front and hind quarters sold at 19 and 21c a pound, and lamb at 22 and 25c.

Spys of Number 1 quality sold at $4 and $5 a barrel, with Number twos at $3.50. Baxters and Snows were $3 a barrel. Pippins, $2.75 and McMahon Whites $2.50. McIntosh Reds were 35 and 45c a peck, Russets and Wealthys 25c.

A bunch of lively Barrel Rocks in a crate were selling at $1.00 each.

Record Poll Expected By Compulsory Voting To-day

MELBOURNE, Australia, November 14. Canadian Press Cable There is intense interest throughout the Commonwealth is to-day's Federal election, and a record poll is secured owing to compulsory voting. The campaign generally has been very orderly. Premier Stanley M. Bruce and the members of his Cabinet expressed confidence today that the government would be returned to power.

Former Premier Hughes, in a final shot, declared that the new Parliament could be made a thing of beauty and a joy forever, or a thing which the very devils in hell would spit at.

Body of Walter Chambers Lay In Cellar of An Empty House He Had Rented on King Street

Death Due to Exposure and Exhaustion, Coroner Finds —Life Probably Extinct Three Days—No Signs of Violence Seen By Investigating Police.

ATTEMPTED TO MAKE FIRE.

Outer Clothes Spread on Wood Pile to Dry — Charred Sticks in Furnace Show Last Effort to Sustain Life —Found By Mrs. R. Brock.

Walter Chambers, who had been missing since last Saturday was found dead this morning at 10.30 by Mrs. R. Brock in the cellar of the house at 513 King Street. Word was sent to the Police Station and Provincial Constable Maker and P.C. Naples went immediately to the place. The dead man was stretched on the floor in front of the furnace and beside the cellar stairway.

Spread on a small pile of slabs were an overcoat and a smaller suit coat. Both garments were rain soaked.

In the furnace were charred sticks of wood which would indicate that the drenched man had attempted to warm his chilled body. In the pockets of his clothes were found a knife, several handkerchiefs and thirteen dollars in bills.

Mrs. Brock, who was at the home of Commandant Smith next door to 513, when questioned by the Examiner told the following story:

"Walter Chambers had rented the house about three weeks ago from Mr. McCannon and intended to move into it. He had bought some wood and piled the greater part of it in the shed at the back of the house. Some of it he took down cellar.

He had been feeling rather badly the last few weeks—he was troubled a lot with head aches. But last Saturday he was feeling fine and in the morning went out for a long walk. He was gone about an hour and a half and appeared much better. In the afternoon he told us he was going to a sale. And I never saw him again.

Went for Wood

"This morning it was decided that we come and get the wood, which was at King street and I phoned to Mr. Robson to come with his truck. I remembered that Walter had put some wood down cellar so I started down the steps after it. I had just gone down three or four steps when I saw boots by the furnace door.

"I was afraid and went back up again. I knew it must be Walter, so I told Mr. Robson, and he phoned to the police at once.

"We should have told the police about Walter renting that house, but we were so anxious that we forgot about it. If we had told the police that, we would have found Walter

Skeletons and Tools Found On Mountain In Siberia

KRASNOYARSK, Siberia, Nov. 14.—(Canadian Press).—Excavations on Afrontov Mountain, near here, have resulted in the discovery of several skeletons of Paleolithic men and the remains of several hundred mammoths, wolves and bears. The skeletons are believed by Russian archaeologists to be about 30,000 years old.

Weapons and tools of hitherto unknown types also were found. Among these are curiously shaped cudgels made of the tusks of mammoths.

MORAL CONDITIONS IN STREETS OF ENGLISH CITIES DISCUSSED

Deputation Tells Home Secretary That They Are Worse Than Ever.

ASK INVESTIGATION.

Official Promises Fullest Consideration of Request Made.

LONDON, Nov. 14 (Canadian Press)—The moral condition of the streets of London and other large English centers, of which Canada heard a good deal in war time, was discussed before Home Secretary Sir William Joynson-Hicks this morning by a deputation of fifty representatives of social and religious organizations.

Miss Picton Turberville, who was an unsuccessful Labor candidate for the Stroud division of Gloucestershire in the last general election represented the Young Women's Christian Association on the deputation. She said it was alleged that the streets in the big cities were worse now than ever before; and an official enquiry into the matter was desired.

The Home Secretary remarked to the deputation that in the matter of morals man may be more reprehensible than woman, but up to the present time no legislation had made man's offense punishable. "The man is not making a trade of immorality" Sir William added, "although he may be infamous and a brute. All our feelings towards the erring woman are of pity and sorrow. We would find very few men who could be ready to go into the witness box and condemn a woman."

Sir William promised to give the question of appointment of committee of enquiry, as urged by the deputation, the fullest consideration.

Police Killed Taxi Driver Saving Him From Robbery

CHICAGO, Nov. 14 (United Press) — Andrew Richards, a taxi cab driver, was killed by police guns here today during a hold up in which Richards was the man being robbed.

Two officers noticed a negro holding Richards at bay with a gun while he took his valuables. They slipped up on the opposite side of the cab and Richards jumped out into the path of the lead.

The robber was captured but unharmed by the police fire.

CHICAGO FINDS OTHER CULPRITS IN WATER STEAL

Annoyed at Being Singled Out For Diversion For Sewage Canal.

DETROIT BLAMED.

Also Power Interests on Both Sides of the Border at Niagara.

CHICAGO, Nov. 14.—(Canadian Press).—Charges that Hydro-Electric power interests on both sides of the border at Niagara Falls are responsible for an organized propaganda attack upon Chicago's diversion of water from Lake Michigan for sanitation purposes, and that those interests and others of similar nature are diverting more Great Lakes water than is Chicago, were voiced yesterday by Col. H. F. Miller of the Chicago Association of Commerce.

Not only are the power interests diverting far more water than Chicago needs, but several cities are polluting the lakes with sewage and contributing to the conspiracy against Chicago in order that more water may furnish more power to the selfish interests, Colonel Miller said.

"Detroit has recently increased diversion through the Livingston Channel and yet every time a steamer goes aground in the lower St. Lawrence or in the Upper Great Lakes, the power conspiracy blames Chicago's diversion of water."

SEVEN MINERS TRAPPED.

Cave-in Blocks Entrance To Coal Mine.

TRENTON, Missouri, Nov. 14. — Seven men were trapped more than 200-feet underground when a cave-in blocked the main entrance of the Trenton Coal Mine on Friday. A large force of miners immediately began work of clearing the shaft.

The entrapped men entered a lateral tunnel at the bottom of the shaft before the cave-in occurred and it was believed they were safe.

Among the Turks, so deep is the belief in the evil influences of the number thirteen that the word for it is seldom spoke.

WEATHER

A Collegiate master remarked yesterday, that it should be an easy matter to write something about the weather these days. It is isn't that —the difficulty is to find something good to say about it. This morning it was still raining, but as the wind had now backed to the northwest, there was every likelihood of a decided change. The last rainfall gave a total of 1.70. Highest temperature yesterday 46 degrees, lowest 40 degrees. It is a characteristic of storms from the east to have but little variation in temperature, and yesterday was no exception.—W. P.

If the world seems cold to you,
Kindle fires to warm it;
Let their comfort hide from view,
Winters that deform it.
Hearts as frozen as your own
To that radiance gather;
You will soon forget to moan—
"Oh! the cheerless weather!"
--Lucy Larcom.

FLORIDA CAMPERS HAVE OWN SCHOOL

"Tin-Can Tourists" Decide To Erect Own Building.

KISSIMEE, Fla., Nov. 14.—Nothing dismayed because local schools were filled to overflowing by the children of regular residents, 'tin-can tourists" encamped here have instituted their own school from curriculum to campus.

Following a mass meeting attended by some 200 of the demi-bourgeoise of the motoring public, most of whom are here as a result of the Florida land boom, the 'tin canners' decided to erect their own building, employ their own teachers and prescribe their own course of study according to the recommendations of a school board of their own election.

When Miss Isabelle Upham, employed to teach the school, which is housed in a temporary building thrown up by carpenters who are members of the colony, rang the bell for the opening session yesterday, nineteen boys and girls ranging from first to eighth grades, responded.

L. D. Modglin, owner of the tourist camp, is chairman of the "board of education."

SEWER BONDS SOLD TO PEOPLE

Campbellford Debentures Issued in Small Lots Were Quickly Snapped Up.

MANY DISAPPOINTED.

CAMPBELLFORD, Nov. 14. — Campbellford's financial reputation still stands at high-water mark among not only the bond dealers of Canada, but local residents who have money to invest. When the Town Council decided to offer on the home market the $7,500 10-year 5½ per cent. debentures in order to raise money to pay for the sewer on Kent and Napier Streets, the issue was made in small lots to give as many as possible a chance to invest. The bonds were offered at par.

When the debentures were placed on sale Friday they were disposed of as quickly as the transactions could be recorded, and many citizens were disappointed because they were unable to secure a share.

The $55,600 sewer debentures issued some time ago were disposed of to a Toronto firm of brokers at a premium which brought the rate of interest up to nearly six per cent.

THREE HUNTERS DIE IN 36 HOURS

Renfrew County Was Scene of Three Shooting Accidents.

TAKEN FOR DEER.

RENFREW, Nov. 14.—(Canadian Press).— Dr. J. J. McCann, coroner last night attended an inquest on the death of a third victim from shooting while hunting. Three men have been killed within 36 hours. On Thursday William Sly was killed at Folger, while yesterday, Martin Dahl, aged 25 years, of the township of Matawatchan, was shot, and A. Etminsky, of Barry's Bay was accidently killed by his son. Father and son were in the bush together, when the father was mistaken for a deer and shot through the knee from which wound he bled to death before assistance could be secured.

In all three cases death was pronounced accidental.

STATE EMBARKS ON PROGRAMME OF DEVELOPMENT

Backward Azerbaijan To Promote Extensive National Uplift Enterprises.

CURRENCY STABILIZED.

Country Has Lagged Behind in Intellectual Pursuits—Reduce Illiteracy.

BAKU, Nov. 14 (Associated Press).—Azerbaijan, heretofore one of the most backward states in Europe, has embarked upon extensive irrigation, railroad, engineering and agricultural enterprises which are eventually expected to rank it with the more advanced sister state of Georgia.

One of the government's greatest problems is to reduce the illiteracy of the people. Only ten per cent. of the population is able to read and write. For centuries the country has lagged behind all its neighbors in intellectual progress. In an effort to simplify education of illiterate classes, the complicated Arabic alphabet has been substituted for the more simple Romanic characters. Education of all classes is now compulsory.

Development of Azerbaijan is enhanced by the fact that the state has no political problems, the currency has been stabilized and all minorities have been given equality of position and opportunity in the promotion of national life.

The principal industries are agriculture and fishing. The state has nearly 300,000 acres of cotton under cultivation and the Soviet government is spending $20,000,000 on irrigation. The state is now producing several million pounds of caviar annually.

M. D. Orakhelashili, president of the Trans-Caucasian republics which embrace Azerbaijan, Georgia and Armeia, said the Karata-Kaloki Canal now being built will irrigate 150,00 acres. Several new railroad lines are under construction, the most important of which is the Julf-Baku line which will link Western Persia with Baku and other Caspian ports.

The part the American Near East Relief organization has played in forming the foundation for Azerbaijan's development is praised on every hand. Among the most destitute and ignorant the care which the relief offered through the American people is understood and appreciated. In these people, said Mr. Orakhelashvili, will be found the best expression of thanks and appreciation for the help given the thousands of orphans and refugees in this part of the world.

OBITUARY.

WILLIAM JAMES KEATING

CAMPBELLFORD, Nov. 14—In a pouring rain storm, a long line of cars, filled with relatives and neighbors, on Friday morning followed to St. Mary's church and cemetery, the remains of William James Keating whose death occurred Tuesday after a brief illness. At the church, which was filled to capacity, requiem high mass was sung by Rev. Father Phelan, who in his funeral address extolled the deceased as a kind and loving father and husband. The church, he said, had lost a zealous member and the town an upright citizen. The deceased in his life time had been recognized as a model neighbor and who had enjoyed the esteem of all who knew him.

A Man of Parts

The late William Keating had been a member of the Separate School Board and as a mark of respect to his memory the pupils and teachers of that institution attended his funeral in a body. Other special tokens of esteem were shown by his fellow members in Knights of Columbus, his former co-workers in the Western Shoe Company and the members of the Fire Brigade.

Among the mourners were the four brothers of the deceased: Thomas of New Ontario; Frank, Edward and Michael of Rochester and two married sisters, also from that city.

The pallbearers were George O'Sullivan, R. Cook, Vincent Farrell, Capt. P. J. Kelly, Harry Cassidy and T. Forstell.

Moving Towards Palestine.

JERUSALEM, Nov. 14. —(Canadian Press). — The Druse tribesmen are advancing toward the Palestine frontier in the region below Damascus and have captured Hasbaya, 40 miles south east of Damascus, according to despatches received here yesterday. One report stated that the Druses, after occupying Hasbaya burned the large Christian village of Kukebe and killed some of its inhabitants. Other Christian villiages in this district were occupied by the Druses and the inhabitants are fleeing to Palestine.

PEPALL HEARING WAS ADJOURNED

Crown Concluded Its Case Yesterday and Hearing Will Be Resumed Monday.

NON-SUIT MOVED.

TORONTO, Nov. 14 —(Canadian Press). — The crown yesterday concluded its case against Andrew H. Pepall, who faces charges of theft, conspiring and corruption in connection with the purchase and sale to the Province of Ontario of bonds held in England. There were four specific charges in the indictment, against the prisoner and his counsel, Arthur G. Staght, K. C., argued at some length that none had been proved and moved for non-suit. Mr. Justice Wright, however, decided that there was some evidence applicable to each of the charges and he ruled that all charges should go to the jury. The hearing was adjourned until Monday.

Vapors Check a Cold Overnight

There are many ways to treat a cold but only one DIRECT way—with vapors that can be inhaled.

Vapors penetrate immediately into every corner of the air passages and lungs, soothing and healing with every breath.

Vicks is so remarkably successful in treating cold troubles because it acts like a "vapor lamp in salve form."

When rubbed over throat and chest the body heat releases vapors of Menthol, Camphor, Eucalyptus, Thyme and Turpentine. At the same time Vicks is absorbed through and stimulates the skin like a poultice or plaster.

This double, direct action often checks the worst cold overnight.

TWO GIRLS HURT IN AUTO CRASH

Cars Came Together and Ran Up on Curb, Striking Pedestrians.

ANKLE BROKEN.

As the result of an auto crash at the corner of MacDonnel and George streets, which occurred at 5.15 last night, two girls standing on the sidewalk, Miss M. Cooper of Waterford Street and Miss Maybee were knocked down; the former sustained a broken ankle. Dr. A. G. Howson was going north on George street toward Nicholls Hospital and P. J. Tangney was proceeding east on MacDonnel and, as both drivers saw that a crash was impending they swerved to avoid it, Dr. Howson turning east on MacDonnel and Mr. Tangney north on George street. In doing so Mr. Tangney's auto was struck by that of Doctor Howson and it was pushed over to the curb and up on the sidewalk at the north-east corner. The two girls who were standing at that place were hurled to the pavement.

WARSAW CHILDREN HONOR ARMISTICE

Headed By Teachers, They Marched to Memorial For Short Service.

At about a quarter to eleven, Armistice Day morning, Mr. Currie brought the school children, numbering over sixty, from the school to the monument. The children marched down slowly and with steps to suit the little ones, rather a difficult feat for the older ones, but they did it well. The leaders carried Union Jacks and Ivan Drain a spray of flowers. When the children were ranged in front of the monument plot, they sang "O Canada," led by Miss Quinn, and accompanied by Mrs. George Taylor. After a short address by Mr. Currie, in which he explained why they were there; he spoke of what people should pray for during the two minutes of silent prayer, and each little head was reverently bowed. Afterwards Ivan Clements recited "In Flanders' Fields," and Cora Crowe recited "America's Answer to Flanders' Fields." Ivan Drain placed the spray at the foot of the monument.

Mr. Currie spoke of the sacrifice the men made that Canada should be saved. They had given their lives that the Canadian people might have Canada, and live happy as Canadians. He pointed out that as that great sacrifice had been made by so many, it was the duty of every boy and girl to live noble and good lives, so that Canada would be a better country for their having lived in it.

Dr. Munro gave a short address, in which he showed that selfishness was really the root of all disputes, quarrels, big and little, and of the Great War. "Wars will cease when men and women cease to think continually of the 'me,' and think of the other fellow," he said. If people would only try to do all the good they could in the world, instead of trying to get everything they could for themselves, with no thought of anyone else, there could be no war. After singing the National Anthem, the children marched back to school.

Quite a number of people congregated to witness the service and seemed to think it was a most fitting one.

The children did their part well, and stood very still and quiet, even were not disturbed when a little dog came out once and then again, barking at them, nor did they show that they saw the three coons that came to investigate.

INVADING A NEW FIELD.

The invasion of the American cities of New York and Pittsburg by the National Hockey League—Boston having joined the circuit last year—is viewed by Canadian followers of the game with mingled feelings of alarm and pride.

The alarm is occasioned by the fear that Canada will be drained of her best hockey material by the United States clubs; the pride arises out of the fact that this country is providing the Republic with a new professional sport that promises soon to be a major one across the line.

We have borrowed and adopted baseball from the United States; in return we now give our neighbors the fastest, most exciting and most thrilling game in the world.

There is no other contest that provides quite as many thrills per minute as an ice battle between two evenly matched and skilful hockey teams, and as the United States clubs have acquired some of Canada's most expert professional players, the sport-lovers of New York, Boston and Pittsburg should see hockey at its best during the coming winter.

The professional article should be well received across the border, and it would not be surprising if other American cities will be found shortly applying for franchises.

THE MOTOR LEAGUE.

The success of the Ontario Motor League in securing the refund of fines inflicted on motorists who violated an antiquated traffic bylaw in the village of Brighton is a demonstration of the value of this organization to the automobiling fraternity.

In fact, the Motor League has so often proven its usefulness that it is a surprise that a large percentage of Peterboro motorists have not yet seen fit to become members of the Peterboro branch of the organization.

It might naturally be expected that, in view of what the League has been able to accomplish in the way of better roads, uniform traffic regulations, useful road signs and many other activities, that every car owner in Peterboro would feel that there was a personal obligation that should be discharged by joining the local branch and lending a helping hand in its work.

Such is by no means the case, but the new proof that has been given of the benefits arising out of the Motor League's efforts should lead to many more members allying themselves with the organization.

The Ontario Motor League has been of great service not only to motorists alone but to the general public, for it has done much to educate car owners to adopt safety first principles in the handling of their automobiles.

THE NEED OF RETRENCHMENT.

The Royal Bank of Canada, in its November letter, issued yesterday, said much that will be popularly received when it stressed the necessity for a national policy of retrenchment in this country.

The Examiner has already expressed its surprise that so little attention was paid to this problem during the general election.

As the letter puts it, "We find ourselves seven years after the end of the war with a national debt of two and a half billion dollars. The road of national provincial and local taxation has continued to grow, and we are now faced by the necessity for a national policy of retrenchment."

A general election has been fought out in Canada, and the situation caused by our heavy burden of taxation should have been one of the matters discussed on every platform.

The leaders almost totally neglected it, and their followers, of course, followed their example.

There was little talk of retrenchment, few promises of tax reduction, no hint of a definite programme of economy such as the Coolidge regime has put into effect across the line.

The Minister of Finance, it is true, did say something about a possible reduction in the income tax.

And what followed Mr. Robb's somewhat indefinite promise?

The leader of the Progressive Party immediately assailed the idea of an income tax reduction.

That form of levy must be maintained.

Mr. Forke protested because it was "the fairest and most easily collected tax possible."

His attitude is not hard to explain, seeing that fewer than 5,000 farmers paid income tax last year, and a policy that promised to reduce the tariff and make up the revenue lost in this way through the income tax paid by other classes than that to which Mr. Forke was appealing for support suggested itself to the Progressive leader as good election propaganda.

That was the way one of the party leaders dealt with tax reduction, and the others did not give it much more attention.

Yet it is undoubtedly true, as the Royal Bank's letter expresses it, that "the time is ripe for all Canadians to unite in a decisive effort to reduce expenditure. Agriculture, industry and commerce have experienced prolonged costly and discouraging depression, and are now ready for a period of recovery. It is extremely important that this recovery should be given the added stimulus that comes from reduced taxation."

There is the problem: What about its solution?

At present the political leaders are manoeuvring for party advantage.

Ottawa is not the scene of earnest efforts to launch a programme of national economy; it is merely the locale of a political contest in which the various parties are seeking to find a solution that will best mend their political fortunes.

The game of politics goes on while programmes of national economy must wait until the politicians have finished their efforts to manoeuvre themselves into a superior position.

Nature is cruel. How many muskrats and minks and cats must die to make one sealskin.—Hurlington Hawk-Eye.

ENGLAND WORKS RIGHT ALONG.

During the past month there has been a keen discussion in England on the very vital question—"Is England Done?"

Many writers and lecturers maintain that England reached the highest peak of her greatness in 1913, and that she is now falling back into a second place in the affairs of the world.

Others maintain just as toutly that England has never before been as powerful and dominant as she is today.

Plenty of facts are being given on both sides. Those who believe that England is losing her grip, point to the terrific cost of the war to the British Empire—$50,000,000,000 in money and 1,000,000 of men. How, they ask, can a nation survive when it takes such a loss as this with indifference?

They point to the adverse balance of trade—$350,000 000 a year. They point to the fact that even with four times the taxation, the Government cannot balance its budget. It will have a deficit of about $200,000,000 this year.

The Government is weak, say the pessimists. It surrenders to the civil service—to the coal miners—to the Communists. It is making industry pay for social reform as well as for war. It is breaking the backs of the industrialists.

England is over-populated, they say; and the Dominions refuse to take the surplus. There are a million families in Britain whom nobody wants—who are being supported by charity.

Four-fifths of the English people, they point out, have crowded into the towns; and the land has been deserted. Both the land and the factories are on half-time. How, then, can England continue to support herself and pay her way?

On the other hand, the optimists point to the undeniable fact that there are more prosperous and contented people in the British Isles than there have ever been before, in any period of English history.

There are no beggars, they say. There are no rags. There is no hunger and cold. Here are nearly 8,000,000 people in Greater London, and not 10 of them slept outside last night.

The upper and middle classes have had heavy losses, they admit; but the great mass of the people have benefited. They have higher wages, shorter hours and more security from want.

There are 10 per cent. of the wage-workers unemployed, but what then? There was as high a percentage as this in 1886, 1879 and 1858, and it did not prove to be permanent.

There are no unemployed, they say, in these trades—radio, artificial silk, automobiles, rubber, house, building and roadbuilding. There is even a boom at the moment in a dozen trades.

The big stores are all prospering. They are packed with customers. Selfridge is making $6,000 a day net profit. Harrods' is making more than this.

The Bradford Dyers', during the week, paid a stock bonus and raised their capital to $30,000,000.

Courtauld's is making $19,000,000 net profits a year. Lever Bros. is making $20,000,000. And the Imperial Tobacco Co. is making $38,000,000.

There are still plenty of rich men in England say the optimists. Any day, on the streets of London, you may see the Duke of Westminster, or Lord Fitzwilliam, or Lord Cowdray, or Lord Derby, or Sir John Ellerman or Solly Joel, anyone of whom is worth over $100,000,000.

Even the national debt, enormous as it is, is being steadily reduced, say the optimists. It has been reduced by $150,000,000 since last April.

As for the weak Government, it is better to have King Log than King Stork, they say. This Government is at least letting industry alone. And during the week, it plucked up courage and arrested half a dozen of the leaders of the Communists.

There are still 87,000 private companies in Britain, say those who look upon the bright side of the situation. These companies, in spite of all losses, still have a capital of $20,000,000,000; and 8,000 new companies were organized last year.

Taking Britain as a whole, says a London banker—J. W. Beaumond Pease—it is making a net profit of about $500,000,000 a year, which certainly does not show that it is on the road to ruin.

So, here are the two sides of the case, both of them well buttressed with facts and opinions.

As for the average Englishman, it must be said that he does not shape his opinion altogether by facts and figures.

He has an unshakable faith in his luck. He believes that when an emergency comes, something will turn up and all will be well.

England's powers of recuperation have always been extraordinary. Moreover, there is a new class of men coming to the front quietly in England—younger men—war-hardened men. These men, whose names are not generally known, are coming to the front in most of the trades.

At present, there is no national leader in Great Britain; but the British people are expecting great things from their Prince of Wales, who has just returned to England from a 25,000-mile trip.

What Mussolini is to Italy, the Prince of Wales is to Great Britain. He is no longer a boy. He is mature, experienced, competent, courageous. Many people believe that he will eventually be the Man of the Hour when his country needs him.—Written from London by Herbert N. Casson for the Wall St. Journal.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

Christmas shopping should be well under way. Never was there a better assortment to choose from than Peterboro's stores are offering at the present moment.

The flapper, points out a contemporary, may trust to nature, but she keeps her powder dry.

Reports from the north say the woods are full of hunters—with deer not so plentiful as the pursuers.

Plenty of advice is being offered as to how Canada is to escape from the present political entanglement. The trouble is to get anybody to accept the advice.

Mr. Woodsworth, M.P., declares that the independent candidates, and not the Progressives, will decide the fate of the Government. And the Winnipeg Labour member may be right at that.

The Telegram's post mortems in various ridings are about as uncertain as the Star's before-the-election predictions in the same ridings.

That Christmas shopping might just as well be commenced now. Peterboro's stores are ready.

The exodus to the United States is growing worse, as far as hockey players are concerned.

A THOUGHT.

VERY HARD TIMES.

Very hard times mean nothing to a hen; she keeps on digging worms and laying eggs, regardless of what the newspapers say about conditions. If the ground is hard she scratches harder. If it is dry she digs deeper. If she strikes a rock she works around it. But she always digs up worms and turns them into hard-boiled profits as well as tender broilers.

Did you ever see a pessimistic hen?

Did you ever know of one starving to death waiting for worms to dig themselves to the surface?

Did you ever hear one cackle because times were hard?

Not on your life. She saves her digging and her cackle for eggs.

CATTLE, GRAIN AND PRODUCE

Peterboro—Toronto—Montreal
Winnipeg

TORONTO LIVESTOCK.

TORONTO, Nov. 13.—The smaller run of cattle this week made for better prices, but the exporters denied that this was so in their purchases. In the handyweight butchers there was no question of a betterment, and examples were cited in heifers, where the advance was 50 cents a cwt. over two weeks ago. On buyer pointed out a load of light steers, which cost $6.25 a cwt. and said he had bought equally as good two weeks ago at $5.35.

Rogers and Maybee did not pay over $8 a cwt. for export steers, and the average was not above $7.50 a cwt. Short keeps were obtained from $5.75 to $7 a cwt. Heifers certainly looked higher, with prices $6.50 to $7.40 a cwt. Export bulls cost $4.75 to $5.50 a cwt., and were unchanged. A few export cows were taken at $5 to $5.50 a cwt. Heavy cattle are reported to be getting quite scarce in the country, but the shippers are hoping to send out a full supply for a couple of weeks more.

Any good beef cattle were easily sold, but the quality did not warrant above a $7 a cwt. market. Bunches of good medium handyweights sold up to and even $6 a cwt, and poor mediums were around $5 a cwt. Butchers' cows were a good trade throughout the week. Top cows were $5 to $5.50 and good cows $4 to $4.50 a cwt. Common cows averaged $3, and all the canners were snapped up around $2.50 a cwt. Fewer stockers and feeders were on sale, and prices held quite steady. A supply of these from the West is expected for next week.

About four cars of calves were sent to Buffalo this week and this, with a light run made a stronger market by 50 cents a cwt. on the better grades. Top calves are now bringing 12 cents, good calves 10 to 11 cents, mediums 8 to 9 cents, common 6 to 7 cents a pound and grassers and heavy calves 5 to 5½ cents a pound.

Lambs were firm all week with light ewes 13¼ cents a pound. Heavy lambs are discounted as much as $2 a cwt., and bucks are bought $3 a cwt. below the ewes. Good to choice butchers' sheep are quite steady at 6½ to 7 cents a pound.

Hogs have advanced 25 cents a cwt. twice this week and are firm at the week end at $11.25 a cwt. f.o.b.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE

MONTREAL, Que., Nov. 13—There was a good demand from the United Kingdom buyers on the Montreal market today for contract grades of Manitoba spring wheat for prompt and nearby shipment and as the cables were strong, with firm bids 9d to 1s per quarter higher than on Thursday, exporters with ocean freight on hand were in a position to accept most of the orders that came forward and a fairly active business was transacted. Sales being estimated at 350,000 to 400,000 bushels. This created a good demand from local exporters for wheat on spot and in nearby positions and sales of some round lots of No. 1 Northern Wheat were made at 12 1-4 to 12 1-2 cents per bushel over the Winnipeg November option, No. 2 Northern at 8 1-2 to 9 cents over, and No. 3 Northern at 5 1-2 to 6 cents over, C.I.F. Montreal. Cables on oats and barley were also stronger and some business was worked with the United Kingdom.

The feature of the domestic cash grain market was the stronger tone for oats under a good demand but prices failed to show any change. Ontario and Quebec No. 2 White Oats were quoted at 52 1-2, No. 3 White at 51 cents, and No. 4 grade at 49 cents per bushel, ex-track, while car lots of Ontario malting Barley sold at 85 1-2 cents per bushel, ex-track.

A firm feeling prevailed in the local market for spring wheat grades of flour owing to the further strength that developed in the cash wheat situation at Winnipeg. The foreign demand for flour showed some improvement and as the prices bid in many instances were in line with millers views a fair amount of business was done. The movement for domestic account was steady and the market on the whole was moderately active.

A stronger feeling developed in the wholesale butter jobbing market and prices were advanced 1c per lb. under a good demand for supplies and sales of finest creamery were made at 45c per lb. in solid packages, and at 46c per lb. in 1 lb. blocks.

The receipts of cheese were 2,461 boxes, as against 5,506 for the same day last week and 3,377 for the corresponding day a year ago. Owing to the continued absence of any important demand from foreign buyers for supplies a weaker feeling prevailed in the market and prices were reduced 1-4c to 1-2c per lb.

EGG MARKETS

OTTAWA, Ont., Nov. 13—The undertone of the egg market continues strong. Toronto reports an advance in both fresh and storage; the advance in fresh is due to extremely light reeeipts, and in storage, to the higher markets in United States. Vancouver reports the market as unsettled.

Toronto jobbing fresh specials 68, extras 66, firsts 50, storage extras 44, firsts 41, seconds 35.

Montreal demand in storage eggs improved with sales made of extras at 45, firsts 41, seconds 35.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, Nov. 13—Big buying of Canadian wheat for shipment to Europe brought about a lively advance in wheat values today. Profit-taking on a large scale, however, wiped out much of the gain. The wheat market closed nervous, 1-8 to 1 3-4 cents net higher, new style, December 1.55 to 1.55 1-4 and May 1.47 1-8 to 1.47 1-2, with corn 1-4 to 1-2c up, oats up 1-8c to 1-4c at 3-8c and provisions varying from unchanged figures to a rise of 62c.

It was estimated that as much as 3,500,000 bushels of Canadian wheat had been purchased over-night to be moved as soon as practicable across the Atlantic, in addition there was brisk buying of wheat for December delivery in Chicago and the greater part of this future delivery buying was also ascribed to foreigners. The export demand was the largest in some weeks, and was deemed significant of the fact that the volume of wheat on ocean passage to Europe had just undergone a sharp reduction. News was also at hand that stocks of wheat at Liverpool are only 984,000 bushels as against 2,368,000 bushels a year ago.

Back of the sudden expansion of European demand were disquieting reports concerning the crop outlook in Argentina. One estimate current today was that the Argentine exportable surplus would be 25,000,000 bushels under a recent unofficial forecast of 160,000,000 bushels. Meanwhile, with arrivals of wheat in Chicago scarce almost to the vanishing point the December delivery here went to 8 1-8c a bushel premium over May, the greatest difference yet this season. This resulted temporarily in putting the Chicago market on a profitable basis for the shipment of wheat here from Minneapolis and had more or less to do with the late set-back here from the day's top price level.

HAS OIL SURPLUS.

Output From Mexican Railway Holding Exceeds Demand For Fuel.

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 14 (Associated Press).—Lands of the Mexican National Railways are producing more oil than the railways are for fuel, so an oil company, a subsidiary to the railways, has been organized to develop the railway's oil properties.

New wells are being sunk. Government officials hope that when the railways are returned by the government to their former private ownership the developed oil properties will be shfficiently valuable to offset some of the losses and depreciations in the railways.

Properties owned by the National Railways include both coal and oil fields.

PLAYS MUSIC IN COLORS.

We often have heard music described as "colorful." Now music in colors have become an actual fact. A machine recently invented by M. R. Ulrich of Portland, Ore., says Popular Science Monthly, projects music on the screen in the form of color-patterns that vary in delicate shade and form according to changes in the sound vibrations of melodies or harmonies being played or sung.

NO TRACE OF STOMACH TROUBLE FOR SEVEN YEARS

Health restored by "Fruit-a-tives".

Mrs. LAURA ALFORD

"For years I was a martyr to Chronic Constipation and Dyspepsia. I tried various Cathartics, salts, and so-called vegetable laxatives, but without relief. Finally I decided to try "Fruit-a-tives", and in a short time found they were all that is claimed of them. They always act naturally, never causing griping, or nausea, nor having that weakening effect which so many other laxatives have. I have been using "Fruit-a-tives" now for seven years and have never had a trace of constipation or stomach trouble since." —Mrs. Laura Alford, 28 Florence St., Ottawa, Ont.

"Fruit-a-tives" contain the health-giving properties of fruits combined with valuable tonics. 25c and 50c at all dealers.

YOUNG GIRL FOUND LOCKED IN BOX CAR

Decided To Run Away and Visit Sister—Fell Asleep in Car.

DETROIT, Nov. 14.—(Canadian Press).—Weak from lack of food and water and hardly able to speak above a whisper, Lucille Koroch, 4 years old, was found yesterday in a box car on a siding in the Michigan Central Railroad main terminal, where she had been imprisoned for two days. The girl, whose home is here, said she decided to run away on Armistice Day and visit her sister at Northville. She took a small parcel of clothes and $2 and went to the Michigan Central yards. A man told her, she said, that the freight train standing there was due to leave for Northville, and at six o'clock Wednesday evening she climbed into the box car and fell asleep. When she awoke in the morning she found the trainman had locked the car door.

IRISH POLICE RAIDS.

One Hundred Houses in Dublin Searched.

DUBLIN, Nov. 14. — (Canadian Press).—Under the authority of the recently passed treason act, which makes it illegal to maintain any military organization, the police Friday raided 100 houses in Dublin. A quantity of Republican literature, including maps and documents, was seized, and a number of arrests were made. Most of those arrested, however, were subsequently released, but two men were arraigned before a police magistrate and remanded.

Similar raids and searches are now part of the regular routine of the police force in Dublin and other places throughout the country.

BRITISH SUBMARINE IS BELIEVED LOCATED ON BOTTOM OF CHANNEL BUT IS BEYOND DEPTH OF DIVERS

Channel Bed is Strewn With Sunken Craft—No Hope of Rescue.

MANY BEREAVED.

Memorial Service in Dockyard Church Dashes Hopes of Relatives.

PLYMOUTH, Eng., Nov. 14. — All hope of rescuing ony of the sixty-eight officers and men of the submarine monitor M-1, which disappeared off the Devon Coast on Thursday morning while engaged in manoeuvres in the company of a number of other submarines, has been abandoned.

It is believed the sunken craft has been located in 225-feet of water off Start Point, and a last effort was to be made early this morning by a mine sweeper to get in definite contact with the boat. Divers, however, are unable to work at such depths, and the possibility of bringing up any of the crew alive is regarded as hopeless, although two divers volunteered to make the attempt when the discovery of the resting place became known.

Arrangements have been made for a memorial service at Portland Dock Yard Church Sunday, dashing the last hopes of wives and mothers whose men went down into the sea in one of Britain's largest submarines, whose loss is one of the most tragic chapters in the countries submarines experience.

Throughout Thursday night and Friday a fleet of rescue ships searched the waters ceaselessly within a wide radius of Start Point. At 2 o'clock in the afternoon a wreck was discovered, which, despite the fact that the channel is strewn with wrecks, is believed to be the missing submarine. The mother ship Maidstone, with Rear-Admiral Haggard, commanding the submarine flotilla, on board, proceeded to the scene last night, but the Admiral had no expectation that any of the men are alive, for he is certain signals would have been received.

The Admiralty has not yet officially announced the location of the wreck, but the speed with which the names and addresses of the officers and crew were announced is taken as indicating that the Navy officials have given up hope of rescue. No explanation for the disaster is offered, the officials insisting that the ship was seaworthy.

Had Permonition.

Friends of one of the members of the crew engine-room artificer Bell, say he had a premonition that the boat would not return from the exercises on which she set out Thursday morning in heavy seas. On a previous occasion, Bell told him, the M-1 suddenly sank by the stern and was righted and then the forepart submerged unexpectedly.

In its comment on the disaster, the "Star" says why the craft, heavily handicapped by a 12-inch gun, should have been sent out to exercise in November weather.

"The loss is tragic," it says. "Normal risks cheerfully accepted by the men who go down in submarines, are heavy enough without asking them to undertake supplementary exercises in a half gale in middle November."

CATTLE INFECTED.

Foot and Mouth Disease Spreads in England.

LONDON, Nov. 14 — Owing to the continued spread of the foot and mouth disease, the Minister of Agriculture has issued a "standstill" order prohibiting any movements of cattle over a large part of the Midland counties and South England. The Minister hopes the measure will be only temporary, but he points out that there are ten large infected areas and 150 outbreaks in sixteen counties.

PREMIER RESIGNED?

Hon. Herbert Greenfield, premier of Alberta, whose resignation is reported to be in the hands of his supporters.

TO RAISE U. S. SUB.

33 Lives Lost on Sept. 25 Last.

NEWPORT, Nov. 14.—With continued fair weather, navy officials here express the hope that the sunken submarine S-51, which was rammed on September 25 by the steamship City of Rome, with a loss of thirty-three lives, may be raised within a week or ten days.

It was said that the submarine and the bodies remaining therein will be taken to the Brooklyn Navy Yard when the craft is brought to the surface. Identification of the bodies will be made there and they will be sent to the various homes for interment.

HUNTERS DO BEST TO KILL OFF DEER

Fifty Trophies a Day Flood Toronto—Moose Are Plentiful.

(Special to The Examiner)

TORONTO, Nov. 14.—Deer have been pouring into the local Dominion Express office at the rate of from forty to fifty every day for the past week, the majority of these having fallen to guns in the Pickerel, Metagama, Parry Sound and Algoma districts and along the Sault Ste. Marie line.

As the heavy shipments have not yet begun and the bulk of the game is not expected to arrive here until after Sunday, Dominion Express officials deduce that deer is very plentiful all through Ontario and that this will prove a record hunting season. Considerable moose meat has been shipped down from Metagama and the Algoma district, but most of this has fallen to hunters from the United States. Moose antlers have averaged seven to eight a day for the past week, more than half of these being addressed to points in the State of New York. A large number of New Yorkers went into the bush early and before the season opened so that what moose is coming out now probably fell to the guns that were on the ground when the season opened. One party came out of Pickerel this morning with seventeen deer and one bear, the only bear reported from this district so far this season. The majority of the venison coming through this week has been billed to local points and fell to last 'week enders."

GRAIN EMBARGO TO WEST PORTS

Congestion at Calgary and Vancouver Because Wheat Must Be Dried.

TOO MUCH RAIN.

MONTREAL, Que., Nov. 14. — (Canadian Press).—Effective midnight to-night, an absolute embargo on all grain to the Pacific Coast will be imposed and will remain in effect until such time as conditions now prevalent are relieved.

E. D. Cotterell, superintendent of transportation, western lines, Canadian Pacific Railway, stationed at Winnipeg, is authority for the above statement. Mr. Cotterell, who reported to headquarters of the system here Friday, gave reasons as follows for the embargo:

"During practically the whole of October, weather conditions have been the worst for some years in the West. It has been cold and wet and even snow in some sections, with considerable severity of frost at times. On account of this, much of the western wheat crop has turned out tough and damp, and the necessity for treatment of this wheat has led to great congestion at Calgary and Vancouver, due to the limited facilities available for such treatment at those points. Until this congestion can be relieved it is obvious that the only and the best course to pursue is to impose an embargo on the carriage of wheat to Calgary and Vancouver, and this will be done."

WORK OF W.C.T.U. JUST STARTING

Prohibition Law Has Not Relieved Women of Old Endeavour.

41,000 RECRUITS.

DETROIT, Nov. 14 (Canadian Press)—More than 41,000 women joined the ranks of the Women's Christian Temperance Union during the past year, Mrs. Frances P. Parks, of Illinois, announced Friday at the fifty-first annual convention of the National organization.

"The work of the W.C.T.U. is just beginning," Mrs. Parks declared. "With the achievement of the first great objective—the outlawing of the legalized liquor traffic in the United States and the securing of the added prestige of the ballot—our program of service has been greatly extended."

Mrs. Parks paid tribute to the youth of the land, and asked that more young people be enrolled as "defenders of the Eighteenth Amendment."

"The youth of today is alert and alive, far ahead of any other generation," she said. "It has more pep, more vision, more real ambition and is doing more than any other before it."

Miss Grace Leigh Scott, field secretary of the social morality department, explained her work in the schools, churches and universities as seeking "a common sense attitude toward sex, and social problems, and an equal standard for young men and young women."

"During the late war," Miss Scott said, "I was employed in entertainment work in France. I met three young men who were facing the fundamental questions, and facing them fairly and frankly. Their example led me to enter this work."

MRS. VALENTINO SEEKS DIVORCE

Screen Sheik's Romance Will End in Paris Divorce Mill.

DECREE IN MONTH.

PARIS, Nov. 14.—The romance of the Valentinos is definitely on the rocks.

About December 15 the Paris courts will pronounce a divorce in favor of Mrs. Valentino on the usual ground of "grave insults."

The refusal of a husband to live with his wife is considered by the Paris divorce mill as the gravest insult a man can offer to a woman, and that is exactly what Valentino specifically declares in a letter to his wife.

The matter has been kept a strict secret until now only because up to a few days before Mrs. Valentino sailed for New York there was still a slight hope that affairs could be arranged.

Relented Too Late.

Having left Hollywood in a huff, the former Natacha Rambova remained firm just two weeks too long in her resolution for a one-year matrimonial vacation.

When she at last relented Valentino had himself decided that the marital vacation was not so bad after all, and consequently declined to resume marital life.

As soon as his letter was received three weeks ago, Mrs. Valentino decided to take her case to the court. Nothing can be done, however, until Valentino is served with a summons, selects a Paris domicile, and verbally or by writing to appear before a magistrate, signifies his resolution never again to share the domicile of his wife.

Confronting a judge will take place at the beginning of December. Valentino is scheduled to arrive here about November 25, only a few days before the return of his wife, who will then take possession of her new apartment in Boulevard Courcelles, where she will live permanently with the Hudnuts.

No financial claims of any sort will be contained in the divorce application.

The case will be tried in camera, the usual procedure. Present plans include the appearance of Valentino before the Judge, with his wife, and verbally repeating his written decision never to resume marital life with his wife.

This is the only formality required by law to constitute a formal case. Should Valentino change his mind and ignore the Judge's summons the decree will be handed down against him just the same, the only difference being that the case will be pronounced undefended.

Neither party will be able to remarry immediately. Two months' delay will be necessary before Valentino will be able to contract another valid marriage, while fully ten months must elapse before Natacha Rambova can wed again.

If Paris society gossip can be relied upon in this case, Mrs. Valentino is positively averse to any further marital venture, but rumors reaching here from Hollywood have Valentino tired of bachelor life and planning marriage with a well-known Hollywood leading woman.

GERMAN POPULACE AT PRE-WAR LEVEL

Birth Rate Has Been Steadily Increasing Since Signing of Armistice.

BERLIN, Nov. 14. — (United Press). — Germany appears to be well advanced on the road to making good the loss of population, if not of territory, suffered by the Versailles treaty.

Complete returns of the June census put Germany's total population at 63.3 millions. This represents a gain of 3.3 millions over the 10.9 census when the population had dropped from 67.8, in 1914, to 60 millions.

War and blockade were responsible for 20 per cent. of this shrinkage. The remainder was lost with the provinces ceded to France, Denmark, Poland and Czecko-Slovakia.

Despite these contributions to the toll of war and peace, Germany's present territory has already reached and surpassed its pre-war population. The birth-rate, far below the death-rate at the time of the armistice, has been rising steadily.

Danny—the Newsboy

HE'S a cheerful little fellow with clear-cut features and tangled yellow hair. His blue eyes are innocent as a babe's and he has a disarming, merry smile. You would think "butter wouldn't melt in his mouth". But hear him in the heat of argument with his friends and business competitors!

When you stopped to buy an afternoon paper, did you ever wonder where Danny came from, and why he, and such boys as he, are selling newspapers for a living instead of going to school?

Danny's father was a man in a good position. They lived in a comfortable house in a nice part of the town. The mother played her part in the social life around her. The family lived up to the family income. He died. The insurance amounted to $2,000.

That's practically the whole story. It's a common enough case.

Have you got a boy like Danny was? How much insurance do you carry? Two thousand dollars—that was all that Danny's father had. It lasted about one year.

Let us tell you about Mutual Monthly Income Insurance. It is a system that insures your family against foolish investments, against ill-judged expenditures and extravagances, against loss or robbery. It guarantees to your children an income for 20 years and to your wife an income as long as she lives.

"The Mutual Book" tells all about Monthly Income and the other Mutual Policies. It shows why Mutual insurance costs less. The entire net profits are divided among the profit-participating shareholders. We'll gladly send you a copy. Write for it today.

MALAY JUNGLE IS TOPSY-TURVY LAND

Fish Walks Down Trees to Bathe and Female Bird Fights for Male.

LONDON, Nov. 14.—An extraordinary account of the Malay jungle was given in a lecture delivered here recently by Carveth Wells, who has just returned to London after surveying the British railroad which runs through the jungle. Darwin, who visited the jungle, called it a "topsy turvy land," but this is the first time a full account of it has reached London.

"Nature seems to have been completely upset by the absence in the jungle of any marked seasons," said Mr. Wells. "You will find birds nesting in one tree and the same kind of birds moulting in another. You may have a tree in your garden with fruit, while your neighbor has the same tree blossoming.

"The jungle is still the home of tigers, panthers, elephants, rhinoceroses and snakes thirty feet long. There are butterflies more than a foot wide.

"The Malay bird, a small paroquet, called serindt, sleeps upside down. Another bird, the bustard quail, is peculiar because the female is larger than the male. She lays the eggs and he sits on them, and during the mating season she fights for him.

"The most amazing animal is a native fish which seldom is seen in the water. I saw one come out of a hole in the ground, hop, skip, jump and walk up to a tree and climb it. The fish seen to feel the heat, because one can see them take baths. This fish is named by scientists periopthalmus, or funny-fish.

"Crabs eat cocoanuts, fish eat coral and rats live in tops of tall trees.

"There seems to be a biggest and a smallest everything. There's the biggest insect in the world, thirteen inches long, and the smallest mammal, which weighs less than an ounce."

Mr. Wells showed slides of all the animals and conditions he described. He also demonstrated how the natives make fire by compressing air at such a degree of heat in a little bone cylinder that a spark is produced.

GERMAN ACTOR WILL ATTEMPT TO WIN ENDURANCE TALK RECORD

If Successful Will Beat Woman in Her Own Distinctive Field.

TO BE MARATHON

Record of 43 Continuous Hours Held by Miss Kitty Charlaye.

A mere man is starting out on a talk endurance test. He is taking on a bold plunge into woman's field.

His name is Horaz and he is a German actor. Horaz threatens to talk forty-eight hours consecutively and to break Miss Kitty Charlaye's non-stop talk record which now stands at forty-three hours flat.

Herr Horaz may talk for forty-eight hours. Men ride bicycles for days at a time around stuffy little bowls And not so long ago dancers went in for marathons, some of which lasted several days. Then there are the filibusters.

But if Herr Horaz talks for forty-eight hours, there probably will arise a number of Kitty Charlayes to retrieve woman's lost title For the speech centre in the brain of a woman is appreciably larger than than that in the brain of a man, and it is more easily excited. Broca's convolution, according to the physicians, is more highly developed in woman than in man. For this reason, they say, women talk more and faster than men. The female of the ape also chatters oftener and faster than the male.

Broca's convolution is the third fold of the brain. It takes its name from the French surgeon who first explored it. The speech centre lies to the front and, ordinarily, to the left side of the brain.

Not only do women talk faster than men, but the average rate of speed of speech in both sexes increases with time. For instance, stenographers' counts indicate that the speaker of today averages more words to the minute than speakers of ten years ago.

Some Rates of Speech.

Although there is a greater amount of statistics on the speed rates of public speakers than on those of private conversationalists, conversation proceeds at a more rapid rate than speech making. Conversation gushes like a fountain from the speech centre, while the formal discourse is poured out carefully, like liqueur from a carafe.

About 175 words a minute is the average conversational rate. Mme. Galli-Curci, in her divorce trial, talked at this rate. Her conversational word rate may reach more than 200 a minute. One hundred and fifty words a minute is the general rate for public speaking today. Ten years ago it was 130 words. The conversational rate probably has gone up similarly.

Perhaps Billy Sunday holds the American record for rapid-fire speaking. He works at a speed of 250 words a minute. The late William Jennings Bryan was one of America's most strenuous speakers. His clear, silver, unbroken stream flowed on at the rate of 200 words each minute. Most men who attempt any such high rate become entangled in their words. Theodore Roosevelt was such a man. He was a very slow speaker. He spoke about 110 words a minute. His voice cracked and broke into squeaky tones when he allowed his enthusiasm to hurry him into a faster tempo.

William Howard Taft and Charles Evans Hughes both speak about 120 words a minute. This was the rate of the late President Warren G. Harding. Woodrow Wilson, a man of much more nervous temperament, spoke 140 words a minute.

Why We Talk Faster.

Scientists attribute the increase in the speech rate of the present generation to the fact that this is a day of specialists in which men who know their ground thoroughly have a hold on a vast terminology. Consequently a greater flow of language ensues. Men are regarded as inefficient in small talk and, until they acquire an intimate and more or less profound understanding of some special subject, they remain comparatively inarticulate. It is small talk which has developed the speech convolution in the brains of women.

Woman developed the habit of talking through long necessity An enormous background of tradition lies behind the sometimes disconcerting fact of a woman's prattle. The development of Broca's convolution is a story continued from prehistoric times. It was back in the dim ages (which were no doubt vivid enough at that remote time) that women acquired the habit of talking. Man was a creature of freedom and little responsibility. It was his privilege and his habit to wander off alone. He was free to become a recluse, free to enjoy silences and vast solitudes. Woman was left to tend his young. It was her voice that dispelled the fears of the child, that bubbled in sympathy over the numerous little hurts and distresses.

At dinner in any average family it is the mother who passes back and forth a steady flow of chatter. The head of the house answers the sallies of his wife and his children in single statements, sometimes in single words. It isn't that he is innately rude or uninterested. It is simply that he is innately less articulate.

The Need to Talk.

Women will talk whether or no. But now that they are coming into more and broader activities, they find larger things to fill their conversation. Consternation no doubt will reign politically when women attain to filibustering.

The need to talk is apparent by the patter of conversation on every hand. Some psychologists maintain that people do not talk enough, that most of the troubles of the world could be averted by talk It is possible that many women take their troubles to a divorce court because their inarticulate husbands refuse to listen to their tales of household trials. If the iceman leaves muddy tracks on the newly scrubbed kitchen floor, the housewife wants to tell somebody. If her husband will not listen, she feels resentful.

But there is the other side of the question. The court records are overflowing with the I-do-not-remembers and the I-do-not-recalls of a legion of persons who have talked too much. The person who does his thinking aloud is perpetually in a conversational traffic jam, and there often are unpleasant consequences. So talk is not always cheap.

Herr Horaz promises to make it cheap for forty-eight hours. During the first thirty-six he will dictate the text of his forthcoming novel. Eight stenographers will take his dictation.

SOMETHING NEW IN CROSSWORDS

Examiner Invites Fans To Make Their Own—More Fun Than Solving

Cross Word Puzzle fans have become tired of working out puzzles. Some of them say The Examiner's daily puzzle is too simple.

Well, here's something new!

In these days of "roll your own" The Examiner extends an invitation to fans to "make their own."

You make the puzzle. The Examiner will print it.

Really, it's far more fun making up puzzles than solving them. It may come hard the first time, but so did solving. Try it twice.

Please do not make the puzzles larger than thirteen squares wide and thirteen deep. If you are superstitious, make them twelve each way. But remember, no more than thirteen.

Send your name and address to be printed with the puzzle—or a penname if you wish. Address your puzzles to "The City Editor."

The beet sugar industry was first introduced into the United States by David Lee Child, a New England journalist, who in 1836 made a special visi to Belgium to learn the proces of its manufacture.

CEDAR SARCOPHAGI ENDURE THE RAVAGES OF TIME AND YEGGMEN

SUPREME ART EXAMPLE

Painting Placed in Inner Surface For Pleasure of Deceased.

This "ka," residing in the body within the coffin, could, it was assumed, draw sustenance from the food pictured in the principal offering scene of the paintings, or could make use of the various other objects painted on the surfaces surrounding the mummy. Similarly, the wooden models placed in the tomb permitted the soul to enjoy the fruits of the labors performed by the servants, who worked perpetually for its benefit. For, to the ancient Egyptian—as to modern followers of Eastern theologies—the life of the soul in the next world was essentially a repetition of the life to which the human Egyptian had been accustomed on earth; its pleasures continued to satisfy him; its needs—food, drink, clothing, shelter—were the same, and its dangers must be guarded against by the use of charms and magical incantations. Long before the time when this burial was made, a special complete set of appropriate prayers and incantations has come into use to insure the safe passage of the soul through the underworld, and these texts formed what is kownn as the "Book of the Dead."

The pictures of food represented meat of many kinds, vegetables, and jars of beer and wine. Beyond these are shown attendants bearing similar offerings. Colored texts included prayers to the gods to provide for the dead. On another side are shown the Prince's personal equipment—his bed, toilet requisites, clothing, jewelry, weapons and such tools as he would find useful in the other world. Egyptian royalty and nobility of those days were fussy about their personal appearance, and the men used almost as much perfume and toilet preparation as the women. The head end of the outer case was devoted mainly to pictures of his supply of ointments and perfumes, shown in rows of sealed jars.

The models of about fifty-six ships and their crews were intended to transport the spirit of the deceased along the Nile of the other world, upon which he would supposedly spend much of his time traveling between his various spirit estates. The largest is a model of the princely barge, which, on long journeys, was to be accompanied by the kitchen boat, on the model of which the cook may be seen bending over his work in front of the cabin. Another model represents an armed dispatch boat, for there seem to have been river pirates on the Nile in those days as well as in modern times.

Spent Much Time on Own Tomb.

The finest carving represents a procession bringing offerings to the tomb. A priest with shaven head is followed by three women, two of them balancing baskets on their heads and carrying five birds in their hands. This model is delicately colored and well modeled and is on a larger scale than the others. Two other models represent husbandmen plowing and a group of brickmakers at work.

Dehuti Nehkt, in whose tomb all these things were found, was Nomarch or Governor of the Nome or Province of Hemopolis. From early in its history Egypt was divided into forty-two districts or nomes, and each local ruler or Nomarch owed allegiance to the King, paid taxes and tribute to him, but in other ways governed his nome quite independently. He was the civil, religious and military head of his province, absolute master therein He furnished contingents of soldiers for the royal foreign expeditions, often leading the division. He maintained his own treasury department with its scribes and storehouses, in which produce of all kinds, received as taxes, was stored and from which his officials paid it out for Government expenses. His courts of justice tried all the cases in the province. Wills, deeds and tax lists were kept in the State archives. Being religious head of the province, he often officiated in the temples.

All these and many more things about the history and daily life of the Egyptian people of ancient days has been learned by archaeologists from a close study of these tombs and their inscriptions, and from the sarcophagi found at Bersheh.

There are only a few of these wooden sarcophagi in existence, for they were in most cases destroyed by the plunderers to ane period or another.

The Germans are the largest growers of potatoes, and the Belgians the largest consumers, the Irish coming second in this respect.

STEER FEEDING TRIAL IS MADE

Twenty-three Steers Are Fed Grain Ration at Experimental Farm.

GOOD GAINS MADE

Twenty-three steers, averaging in weight 1,145.6 pounds, were fed for 113 days, making a daily gain of 1.94 pounds or 219 pounds per steer. The total gain for the twenty-three head was 5,046 pounds made at a cost of 8.15 cents per pound.

These steers were fed in an open shed and yard. Silage and grain were fed in a manger running the full length of the shed and handy to the silo and feed room. The roughage composed of cornstalks and straw was fed in the yard. The grain feeding consisted of a mixture of corn, barley, oats, oil meal, and Soy bean meal. The Soy bean meal was started in very small amount and gradually increased in the ration to one pound per day. The total grain ration at the commencement of the trial was two pounds per day, this was increased gradually to eight pounds per day near the close of the feeding period.

The steers consumed a total of 46½ tons of silage, ten loads of corn fodder and grain valued at $232.19 market price. The total feed cost valuing silage at $3.00 per ton and fodder at $10.00 per load, was $411.69.

The spread between purchase price and selling price was $1.25 per hundred pounds live weight.

The gain over cost of steers and feed was $175.39. The manure may also be considered a gain sufficient to cover the cost of labor.—L. Stevenson.

HEALTH AND STRENGTH FOR ALL WEAK MEN

All Breadwinners Who Find Their Health Declining Should Take Dr. Williams Pink Pills

There are thousands of men throughout Canada suffering from a failure of strength and a condition approaching nervous exhaustion without realizing that the trouble is due to a weak, watery condition of the blood. The symptoms may vary in many cases, but they are plain. The sufferer cannot keep his mind on his work; often passes restless nights, and is quite unrefreshed on arising in the morning. In other cases there is a failure of appetite, and what food is taken does not digest properly. A tired feeling persists even after slight exertion, while headaches often add to his misery. Then, too, there may be attacks of rheumatism of a more or less crippling nature. All these denote that the blood is weak and the nerves insufficiently nourished.

It should be realized that good, red blood is the chief controller of every action; the source of all the energy you possess. It builds up every substance of your muscles, nerves, sinews and flesh. It removes the poisonous waste products in your body, which, if allowed to remain, set up disease and weakness of every kind. Good blood gives energy and vitality to the nervous system besides regulating the functions of the stomach, intestines, liver, kidneys and other organs of the body. Briefly, on the purity and richness of your blood the health of your whole body depends. In all failures of the blood Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are the best remedy. These pills make new, rich blood which brings health and energy to every part of the body.

Could Not Retain Food.

The sufferer from indigestion is greatly to be pitied. This trouble assumes various forms such as pain after eating, gas on the stomach, sour stomach, and often vomiting after meals. The sufferer cannot get relief by cutting down his food to a starvation basis. That only still further weakens. What is needed is better digestion, not a poorer diet. And the way to get a better digestion is to so enrich the blood that the stomach will do the work nature intended. As a tonic for building up the blood nothing else can equal Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. As this new blood courses through the veins strength and tone is given the stomach and the pangs of indigestion disappear. Not only this, the whole system is strengthened and new life and vim comes to the former sufferer. The value of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills in cases of this kind is proved by the experience of Mr. E. G. Malcolm, Port Malcolm, N. S., who says: "For several years I was a great sufferer from indigestion. I could not eat meat or potatoes, and often could not retain the food I did eat. Only those who have been afflicted with this trouble can realize the suffering I endured. I took a lot of doctor's medicine, but it did not give me more than temporary relief. I also took other remedies recommended, with no better results. Then I read in a newspaper the case of a woman whose symptoms were like my own, who found new health through Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I at once got a supply of these pills and had not taken them very long when I began to find relief. Thus encouraged I continued the use of the pills, and I can but sum up what they did for me by saying that they made me feel like a new man. Every trace of the trouble has disappeared and I can now eat and enjoy my meals as well as any one."

Health Broken Down.

"It is not natural for me to sit down and write a letter in praise of a proprietary medicine as I had always been skeptical as to their virtues." Thus writes Mr Arthur Seguin, Storthoaks, Sask., who further says:—"But three years ago I opened up a general store here in Storthoaks and placed on my shelves a few lines of the best known proprietary medicines. Among these, naturally, were Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. As there were three of my customers who were obtaining good results from taking the pills, and as I was in need of a medicine I decided to try them myself.

"I had been suffering from catarrh for years, and my inside work had completely broken down my health. I was coughing all day, suffered from indigestion, and could not sleep until three or four hours after retiring. I started the pills, not with any great confidence, but by the time I had finished the second box I marked much improvement. At the fourth box I felt quite recovered, but continued them for some further time. My cough has left me, the indigestion has disappeared and now I fall asleep almost as soon as I am in bed. In my store now I do not hesitate to recommend Dr. Williams' Pink Pills to any who are feeling run down or without energy, as I think they are a blessing to mankind."

Suffered Untold Agony.

In the days of our grandfathers rheumatism was thought to be the unavoidable penalty of middle life and old age. Almost every elderly person had rheumatism, as well as many young people. It was thought that rheumatism was due to exposure to cold and dampness, and it was treated with liniments and hot applications, which sometimes gave temporary relief but did not remove the trouble. In those days there were many rheumatic cripples. Now medical science understands that rheumatism is a disease of the blood and that with good, red blood any man or woman of any age can defy rheumatism. The blood-enriching qualities of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills is becoming every year more widely known and the more general use of these pills has robbed rheumatism of its terrors. Their value in the case of rheumatism is proved by the statement of Mrs. Findlay Beaton, Blackstone, N.S., who says:—"I feel it a duty to tell you of the wonderful benefit I derived from the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I suffered untold agony from rheumatism and a run-down condition. The trouble left me incapable of work of any kind, and for a part of the time I was unable to move without the assistance of a cane. I took different medicines from doctors, and also other remedies that were recommended, but did not improve and had about given up hope of getting better when a friend advised me to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I did this with the result that within four months I was as well a man as ever I had been. I can say that I was a complete wreck when I began using Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and that this medicine completely built up my health. This was some years ago, and I have had no return of the trouble since. I give this statement hoping it will benefit others."

Now Strong as Ever.

The value of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills when the system is run down is shown by the experience of Mr. William Mitchell, R.R. No. 1, Bedford, P.E.I., who says:—"Some time ago I found myself in a badly run-down condition. My appetite was poor, I was easily tired and did not sleep well. I tried several so-called tonics, but did not get any relief. Then I decided to give Dr. Williams' Pink Pills a trial and soon found that I had got the right medicine. Gradually my strength came back, the dull, tired feeling disappeared, and after using the pills for about a month, I could eat heartily and was as strong and active as ever I have been. I can most cheerfully recommend Dr. Williams' Pink Pills as an unsurpassed tonic."

Weak and Depressed.

If you feel run-down it means that your blood is thin and watery—that your vitality is low. Your feet are easily chilled. You do not sleep well and you feel tired when you rise in the morning. You find no pleasure in your meals and are listless and dispirited at your work. You have no energy to enjoy yourself. To get new health and vitality the blood must be enriched, and to do this nothing can equal Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Read what Mrs. Horace Cuphill, Woodwards Cove, N.B., says:—"The first indication that my general health was not good was a shortness of breath after the least exertion. Then my appetite began to fail and after eating it seemed as if there was a lump in my stomach. I grew so weak that I could not walk a hundred yards without resting. Then I was taken with a numbness all over my body and was in a sad plight. I was under a doctor's care, but as I was not getting better, I decided to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. The first few boxes did not seem to help me, but my wife urged me to continue their use and I got four boxes more. Before these were gone I could eat a fair meal, the numbness was leaving me and I was feeling much better in every way. I took the pills for a while longer, and felt that I was again a well man. I still take the pills occasionally, but have had no return of the old trouble."

NATIONAL RESHUFFLING CAUSES GREATEST MIGRATION IN HISTORY

Treaties in Rearranging States Compel People to Vacate.

MISERY RESULTS

Armenians Now Scattered to Four Winds—Albanians Left Homeland.

By William Jourdan Rapp.

The sudden ejection of 30,000 Germans from the German frontier provinces of Poland and the simultaneous ejection of 20,000 Poles from Germany brings dramatically to our attention that a great reshuffling of populations is going on in the Old World. This Germano-Polish interchange of peoples is but one of many similar movements that have taken place in Europe and Asia since the end of the World War.

Great hordes of Greeks whose ancestors lived in Asia Minor, the Pontus, and the Caucasus since the days of Homer, along with others who followed the army in its invasion of Turkey, have been returned to Macedonia and Old Greece. A half million Bulgarians whose families cultivated the soil of Macedonia and Thrace since the Slavs overran the Balkan Peninsula in the fourth and fifth centuries are now back in the land of their forebears as refugees, eking out a mean existence within the restricted frontiers of Bulgaria.

An equal number of Turks, descendants of soldiers in the conquering armies of the Sultans Byazid, Mohammed, Selim and Souleiman which swept over Europe to the gates of Vienna, have, in the last year, been required to quit Macedonia and migrate to Anatolia. The Armenians, formerly concentrated in Ciicia (Little Armenia) and in Eastern Asia Minor and the Caucasus (Great Armenia), except those gathered under the Soviet aegis in Great Armenia, are now scattered to the four winds. Their huge refugee camps are in Mesopotamia, Syria, Greece, Bulgaria and Russia.

There is a steady movement of Jews from all Europe to Palestine. Groups of Albanians long resident in lands now part of Yugoslavia, who are on their way to Albania, are encountered in various parts of the Balkans. They have left their homeland forever. The Serbian officials will not often permit them to cross directly over the frontier into their own country so they go by way of Saloniki or Constantinople—a difficult and roundabout journey.

Thousands of Hungarians have left provinces of the former Kingdom of Hungary, which now belong to Rumania and Yugoslavia, to take refuge within their own frontiers. Germans from all parts of the Austro-Hungarian Empire have pulled up stakes and gone to tiny post-war Austria, already overcrowded with inhabitants. Many of these Germans have abandoned homes established by their forefathers centuries ago.

Ancient Migrations Outdone.

For a comparison to this post-war movement of peoples it is necessary to go back to the great migrations of the past. Even the largest of these does not compare in numbers with such tremendous migrations as that of the Greeks from Asiatic Turkey into Greece. Since the end of the Balkan Wars, in 1913, 1,500,000 Greeks, inhabitants of the former Ottoman Empire, under the exchange of populations clause of the Lausanne Treaty, have removed to lands within the frontier of modern Hellas.

We tend to overestimate the number of people participating in the old migrations. The migrations of the Huns, Vandals, Goths, Avars, Magyars, Franks and Slavs in the early centuries of the Christian era were the wanderings of pastoral tribes in search of richer pastures for their flocks. Similar migrations, more restricted in extent but probably not in numbers participating, go on in the Balkans and in Asia today.

There are the Kurtzo-Vlachs, who move back and forth each year with their tens of thousands of sheep and thousands of horses between Northern Macedonia and Thessaly. And there are the Bakhtari, who with fifty thousand men, women and children and half a million beasts migrate each year between the plains of Arabia and those of Persia.

It is doubtful if any of the barbaric chieftains, such as Attila of the Huns or Genseric of the Vandals, commanded more than 100,000 persons. The original Ottoman Turks who came out of Central Asia in the thirteenth century and settled in Northwestern Asia Minor were a tribe of a thousand families, but four hundred of which remained in Anatolia. Out of these four hundred families grew the power that in 300 years brought under its sway an empire stretching from Hungary to Persia and from Arabia to the Straits of Gibraltar.

In the last 500 years the population of the world has increased tremendously; and just as warfare today brings battles with armies of a size beyond the imagination of ancient Generals, so revolutions and the rearrangement of frontiers bring about movements of populations involving numbers equal almost to the total population of the ancient world.

Causes of Dispersion.

There are many minor and accessory causes for the recent great movements of populations throughout Europe and Asia. But the principal cause is the complete triumph of nationalism in the lands which once made up the Austro-Hungarian and Ottoman Empire, and its partial triumph in the former empire of the Romanoffs.

These empires included vast areas inhabited by peoples of many nationalities, different religions, varying sentiments and diverse languages. In the Austro-Hungarian Empire the hegemony over a large population of Serbs, Croats, Slovenes, Czechs, Bosniaks, Poles, Jews and Ruthenians was exercised jointly by the Germans of Austria and the Magyars of Hungary, both of whom were predominantly Roman Catholic. The different people of the empire were theoretically united in the person of the Emperor.

In the Ottoman Empire, the Moslem Turks held rule over Bulgarians, Greeks, Arabs, Armenians, Jews, Albanians and Circassians. Here all the inhabitants in the custom of monarchies were theoretically united in the person of the Sultan. As for the Russian Empire, although the Soviets have maintained hegemony over the Czar's old provinces in the Caucasus and Asia, they have lost the provinces in Eastern Europe and the Baltic, where nationalism's victory and the peace treaties resulted in the formation of the new States of Esthonia, Latvia, Lithuania and Poland.

In the breaking up of these empires into small nationalistic States it was impossible to draw the frontiers so as to include inside each State only its own nationals. Greeks and Armenians, for example, were hopelessly mixed with Turks throughout Asia Minor. Bulgarians, Greeks and Turks were seemingly inextricably intermingled in Macedonia and Thrace. Hungarians and Rumanians, Poles and Germans, Czechs and Germans, Albanians and Serbs, Greeks and Albanians, Poles and Lithuanians, Rumanians and Ukranians, Poles and Jews and dozens of other racial groups occupied adjoining villages and divided the population of cities in all the border provinces.

New Frontiers Found Not Racial.

As it was impossible to mark off frontiers on purely nationalistic lines, the makers of the various post-war peace treaties—the representatives of the different allied and associated powers who were the victors in the WorldeWar—naturally favored themselves and their proteges in drawing the new boundaries. Many Germans were included in the frontiers of Poland and Czechoslovakia. Poland also got large numbers of Lithuanians and Ruthenians. Yugoslavia's frontiers included numerous Austrians, Albanians, Hungarians and Bulgarians. Rumania has important groups of Hungarians, Bulgarians and Ukrainians. In the new provinces assigned to Greece the Turks, Bulgarians and Albanians outnumbered the Greeks.

In nearly every case, the allied and associated powers, in remaking the map of Europe and Asia, favored their own historical, economic, territorial safeguarding or military claims. Because the frontiers of Serbia under King Stephen Dushan in the fourteenth century included Macedonia, Yugoslavia acquired a large part of Macedonia regardless of how many Bulgarians and how few Serbs were in it. Czechoslovakia needed the mines of Teschen and got them, although the province was predominantly German in population. Italy wanted a strong military frontier and received half of the old Austrian Tyrol, which is inhabited almost entirely by Austrians. Similar examples could be cited unendingly.

To protect the minorities within foreign frontiers—they are, estimated to total 50,000,000 people—certain clauses were attached to all the peace treaties. These clauses gave the minorities the right of maintaining their national integrity through their own churches, schools and charitable and social institutions. The execution of these minority clauses were guaranteed by the League of Nations.

The League of Nations, of course, had no way of enforcing the minority clauses of the treaties or of punishing nations that violated them. All it could do was to investigate and give publicity to violations, which soon became extremely common. Many nations feared the minorities of nationals of neighbor States, not overfriendly, who lived in their frontier provinces. The hostility of the minorities to the various Governments under which they lived was often openly demonstrated.

The minorities instead of realizing that their happiness and prosperity depended on the good-will of the majority people, trusted to the interference of the League of Nations or the Governments of their own nations to secure their rights. The majority people, naturally, took offense at the idea of outside interference in what they considered an internal problem. They made life increasingly difficult for the minorities, trying often to induce them to emigrate voluntarily, and when this failed they sometimes expelled them by force. This sort of thing has been going on to a greater or less extent in a dozen different countries.

Nationalist Turkey has treated her minorities with the greatest severity. After repelling the Greek military invasion she expelled the Greek and Armenian population of Asia Minor at the point of the sword or by treaty exchange, and is doing everything possible to discourage from remaining the few pre-war resident Greeks and Armenians whom she agreed at Lausanne to allow to say in Constantinople.

Greece, to secure her hold on Macedonia, has made life there extremely difficult for the native Bulgarians, who have departed in vast numbers and who in retaliation, on arriving in Bulgaria, forced out the few Greeks who were there. Serbia also has compelled many Bulgarians to leave her part of Macedonia and has colonized their abandoned villages with Montenegrans. Rumania has made life intolerable for the Hungarians of Transylvania, and Poland raises many sorts of difficulties for the Lithuanians who stay on in the province of Vilna instead of going to Lithuania.

One hears the same stories from the minorities everywhere. Since so many have been provided with national homes the impulse is to induce them to go there. The police continually search the houses of the minorities without giving any reasons. People of the minorities are thrown into jail on the slightest provocation. It is impossible for them to get justice in the courts in a dispute with one of the majority people. Taxes are collected from them which, although on the statute books, are not collected from the majority people. Their mail is delivered late. Freight for them is sidetracked for long periods.

These and a hundred other abuses finally force them to leave. And when they go it is impossible for them to get anything like the true value for their property. Prospective buyers are intimidated and sometimes threatened with death if they buy above a certain figure set by a local Fascist or vigilance committee.

Nations More Homogeneous.

Misery and suffering have accompanied the post-war movements of populations. Refugee camps abound throughout Eastern Europe, the Balkans, the Caucasus, Asia Minor and Syria. Here you will find people of distinction, education and former wealth living in the most pitiful and squalid conditions. Typhus, typhoid, malaria and influenza epidemics run through these camps. In the hearts of the refugees burns a terrible hatred.

I have heard Bulgarians from Macedonia curse Greece and Serbia in a fanatical frenzy and swear to have revenge. A Magyar from Transylvania whom I met in Budapest kept me at a cafe all afternoon while he vituperated against Rumania. Many Greek refugees patiently await the beginning of another war with Turkey. Jingoist politicians like General Pangalos, the present Premier of Greece, exploit the sentiment of these unfortunates for their own political ends. The nationalistic newspapers of Germany are full of threats against Poland.

One of the dangers to future peace is thought to be these miserable and uprooted peoples; yet each nation gains in homogeneity by the repatriation of aliens.

Another significant movement of peoples in Europe which is somewhat happier than those already spoken of has been that of great numbers of Polish, Spanish and Italian laborers into France to replace the French laborers who were killed in the war. The war hit the French peasant harder than any other class. Their sons upon whom they had relied for help in cultivating their land returned from the front injured and sometimes they did not return at all.

To keep the fertile fields of France cultivated, laborers have been invited to enter from abroad. Many of these are settling in the country. The Italians are to be found mostly in Savoy and Provence, the Spaniards in the Gironde, and the Poles in Normandy and Champagne. Many of the Poles are miners. It is estimated that half a million of these emigrants have entered France since 1919.

WAR MEDALS VERY ANCIENT

Historical Sketch of the Practice of Giving Medals.

CHINESE FIRST

The practice of marking important events by medals is very ancient. Tradition says that military medals were used by the Chinese in the first century of the Christian era. In Britain the earliest instance of a medal being struck to commemorate a particular occurrence is the magnificent star and jewel given by Queen Elizabeth to Sir Francis Drake when he returned from his famous voyage round the world. It is preserved among other mementoes of the great circumnavigator at the old family residence of the Drakes, Nutwell Court, Devon. The first example of a medal intended to be worn as a personal decoration occurred after the defeat of the Spanish Armada, when Queen Elizabeth offered a gold medal and chain to the superior officers concerned in that great naval triumph. The only pity was that she did not spend the money with greater judgment, for had she done so she might have recompensed the entire crews in less precious metal. Lord Nelson highly valued naval medals, and is said to have been indignant with the Government because they refused to allow one for the battle of Copenhagen. Official neglect in this direction, indeed, was at one time considered a scandal, and attempts were made to supply the lack of national recognition by private generosity. There was actually a private medal struck for the battle of the Nile, and another for Trafalgar. In the latter instance, Boulton, the partner of James Watt, was authorised, with the King's "Warmest approbation of so laudable a design," to provide a silver medal for the officers and a pewter one for the men. The gallant tars, however, did not appreciate theirs, and most of them almost immediately threw the pewter medals overboard, holding them insulting after so strenuous a fight. After the victory of Russell at the battle of LaHogue gold medals were officially presented to the senior officers, and Government voted £30,000 to be divided among the men.

Military medals, to which an addition was made some time ago by the issue of one for "general service," in the Great War, were first struck by order of Charles I., but most of them were presented to officers holding high positions who had performed special services. It was in connection with the battle of Dunbar, fought in the year following the execution of Charles, that the first medal awarded alike to officers and men was issued, and it bore the profile of Oliver Cromwell. It was struck in two sizes, a small gold piece for officers and a large copper one for distribution among the ranks. The inscription on both was the same—"Word. at Dunbar, The Lord of Hosts, Septem. Y.3, 1650, on the obverse, and on the reverse a view in exaggerated perspective of Parliament in full assembly. After Dunbar no private soldier was ever awarded till Waterloo unless his conduct had been exceptionally deserving of recognition. The Waterloo medal was liberally distributed through the generosity of George IV. It was very gratefully welcomed. The method of distribution was widely discussed during Wellington's campaigns, and it was pointed out that the East India Company had awarded medals to all officers and men of the Bengal Army who had taken part in the 1780 campaign against Tippoo Sahib and his father. The Sepoys shared, and it was argued that if medals were good for them, British fighting men should have them, too. Popular opinion took this view, and men and officers equally received medals thereafter.

During the long wars between Britain and France in the reign of George III, not only did private individuals give medals at their own expense, but Commanding Officers cometimes presented them. A good example of this occurred at the close of the successful defence of Gibraltar in 1782. General Elliott—after Lord Heathfield—who commanded the garrison, caused medals to be struck at his own expense in gold and silver, and to be presented to the officers and men. The medals bore on the reverse the word "Furnace," with an engraving of a kitchen range, and below, the words, "Spaniards defeated by red-hot shot at Gibraltar, September ye 13th, 1782." The reference was to a catapult which General Elliott had constructed by a plumber, and used to "lob" shells into the Spanish lines. This is the last instance of a catapult being employed in European warfare.

BETTER AND BETTER FAILS

Dr. Emil Coue must revise his famous better-and-better health slogan to real almost every day, for this week while an audience waited in a lecture hall for Coue to tell them how to get better and better every day in every way, the little Frenchman was being attended by two physicians in his hotel, where he was suffering from a slight hemorrhage.

BLINDFOLDED, THEY SEE BY THEIR SKIN

French Girls, in Remarkable Tests, Read Without Eyes To Prove Strange Power.

Many times there had come to the attention of Jean Labadie, noted French scientist, the cases of men and women who claimed the uncanny ability of seeing while blindfolded; and in each case the claimant had proved to be a fraud. So it was with two grains of salt that he read, a few weeks ago, the report of a young woman of Paris who demonstrated the strange power which scientists call "paroptic vision."

In this case, however, a group of doctors in the Paris Hospital had testified that the young woman actually was able to read through the skin of her face, with her eyes covered. If she were a fraud, she must be clever, Labadie decided, so he got permission to test her himself.

He took the utmost precautions to close her eyes. Then he went into a dark room, and with his hands inside a black box, tore off at random a sheet of calendar pad. Without seeing this himself (for he wanted to do away with the possibility of unconscious telepathy) he showed it to the young woman.

"What do you see?" he asked.

"It is a sheet of a calendar," she said. 'It is the twenty-ninth of July."

Labadie looked at the paper. To his amazement, she was right.

Then he took a small wooden box and removed the lower half of one side. On the lid he attached an electric light so that it illumined a playing card laid flat on the bottom of the box. He held this box before the young woman so that her bandaged eyes were on a level with the bottom of the box. Any light rays from the card could not possibly reach her eyes in a direct line.

"Do you see anything now?" Labadie queried.

"Yes, it is a playing card—the three of diamonds."

Once more she was right. Seemingly the only explanation was that she had seen the card through the skin of her forehead.

Now profoundly interested, Labadie applied similar tests to three little girls, 11, 13, and 14 years old, living in Nay, southern France, who were reported to have even more remarkable powers. He found they could read pages of books opened at random, thread needles, and detect colors of cloth without using their eyes.

How was it done? Labadie does not pretend to know, says Popular Science Monthly in the December issue. He does not believe, however, that there is necessarily a special organ of paroptic vision in the skin. It is merely some peculiar sensitiveness of the skin nerves, which receive impressions of light and convey them to the brain in the form of definite images.

BALD MICE PRODUCED.

Hairless mice, suitable prey for the Mexican hairless dogs, have been produced in Dr. Francis B. Summer's "mouse house" in La Jolla, Calif., where he breeds mice for experimental purposes, according to Popular Science Monthly. Whiskers and long eyebrow bristles remain on the queer animals, but the rest of their skin is bald.

STRANGE NEW RAYS ARE DISCOVERED

Found Ten Miles Above Earth, Coming From Void.

MADISON, Wis., Nov. 14.—(Associated Press).—Scientists attending the National Academy of Sciences here are seeking a name for the powerful new rays discovered by Dr. R. A. Millikan of the California Institute of Technology. It is probable that the rays, still in an early stage of development and offering as yet little basis for a theory, will become known as Millikan Rays, in honor of the man who first found authentic evidence of their existence.

The new rays are "in-coming," that is they form outside of finite space. In this fact, and in the fact that they originate in the passing of atoms over atoms, scientists proclaim something novel in rays.

What the force collects in the way of electrons or other elements will be matter for years of investigation. Uses for the rays are not yet known. In fact, so little is known of their character that the discoverer is not indulging in theories as to what the future will bring to science when they have been further studied.

The power character of the rays, if it continues to increase, might have a disastrous result to life upon earth, although scientists discussing the rays do not believe this would happen.

The reason for this lies in the statements of Dr. Millikan that while the frequency of the "incoming" rays is great and their action is going on all the time, there is not enough of them to produce any tangible result on earth at this time. The tests were made more than ten miles above the surface of the earth by instruments attached to balloons.

The sun, it was stated, has no effect on the antomic action producing the rays.

The rays are believed by Dr. Millikan to have extraordinary absorbing power. Discoveries of the scientist are the result of research since the close of the World War, following out theories first advanced by German scientists on the possible existence of othe rays in space.

Scientists attending the academy believe the discovery of Dr. Millikan to be one of the outstanding scientific achievements of the year.

In describing his discovery yesterday Dr. Millikan said that the new ray had 1,000 times the frequency of the X-ray, with ionization the same at all times of the day or night and of 10,000,000-volt variety. The rays are due to atoms passing over to other atoms, with the sun having no effect on the action, he said. They appear throughout space and bombard the earth from all directions at all times.

Determining the velocity of light to a minute degree of accuracy is a possibility which may be established early next year, Dr. A. A. Michelson, head of the Department of Physics of the University of Chicago, said. He has come within "plus or minus" twenty miles a second of establishing the true velocity, the result of experiments with octagon mirrors in two mountains in the Sierra Nevadas.

FREIGHT TUBES FOR LONDON

London, which like New York is suffering from extreme traffic congestion on its streets, is considering building great underground freight tubes, says Popular Science Monthly. This would link railroad yards and docks with central depots for receiving and handling freight, and also would form a network of lines under the central regions of London. Such a system, it is estimated, would cost $160,000,000.

CLAIMS THE SOUL CAN BE MEASURED

French Mathematician Offers Proof That We Never Completely Die.

Out in the forest of Coye, in France, a distinguished mathematician worked in a lonely laboratory with delicate instruments, measuring, year after year, and calculating to the millionth part of a centimeter. The other day he appeared at the Corbonne and made announcement that caused as tremendous a sensation in France as if a bomb had been exploded. For Prof. Charles Henry declared that the human soul—that mysterious thing that is not a thing which man has accepted only through faith—now can be measured. It is the first time, says the December Popular Science Monthly, that science ever has admitted tangible proof of the soul's existence.

Religion is right, declared Professor Henry. We never completely die. There is a certain electrical radiation or "biological vibration" that goes on and on. Set free by death, it seeks another envelope or body, because only by doing so can it establish its equilibrium.

Scientists today have ways of measuring the radiation of all substances. Yet after calculating the radiation in a body due to heat, that due to electro-magnetic elements, and that due to the attraction of the earth, they find there is still some unknown force that is none of these. It is this elusive force that Professor Henry identifies as the soul.

Malay parents never punish their children.

There have been over one thousand different varities of potatoes, but only a few of these have been found worth cultivating.

"Whatever ails you, Jennie? You look so tired out"

"OH, I'm nearly dead. I never felt so fagged out in all my life."

"Are you sick?"

"Not exactly sick, perhaps, but I have not felt right for weeks. I can never get rested."

"Your health must be run-down."

"Yes, I suppose it is. Mother has been warning me that I am living too fast these days. 'Burning the candle at both ends,' as she says."

"Perhaps it's your nerves."

"Yes, I suppose it is. You know I am working every day at the office and I have been on the gad nearly every night until I can't stand it any longer."

"Why don't you use Dr. Chase's Nerve Food? That did me all sorts of good, and nearly all the girls use it when they are in need of something to tone up the system."

"Mother has been at me to use the Nerve Food, but I never liked to take medicine."

"You won't mind using the Nerve Food, for it is so mild and gentle in action that it will not cause you any inconvenience, and you certainly will feel so much better after using it for a few days."

"How long will I have to take it?"

"Oh, you may have to keep up the treatment for two or three months if you want to get your nervous system thoroughly built up. It slowly and certainly improves the quality of the blood so that the nerves and the system generally are nourished back to health and vigor."

"I will get half a dozen boxes to-morrow and go at it in earnest, for I don't want to have a nervous breakdown and spend weeks or months in bed. I am so glad you reminded me about this treatment."

HOW TO GET SERVICE FROM FUEL

Part I—Preparation of Equipment for Any Kind of Coal.

a. See that the grates are in good order.

b. Seal air leaks in ash pit and around clean-out doors, otherwise the dampers will not control the fire.

c. Cover steam and water pipes to prevent unnecessary radiation.

d. Provide suitable clean-out tools for boiler flues.

e. Save your coal by not operating your furnace in mild weather,—use fireplaces, gas logs, kerosene heaters, etc.

f. Prevent air leaks as far as possible by weather strips and storm windows.

g. Provide for recirculating air in hot air furnaces by convenient slides in the pipes.

Part II—Management of Furnace for Bituminous (Soft) Coal.

No change in grates is needed ot burn bituminous coal in furnaces heretofore using anthracite, except in the case of grates adapted to fine sizes of anthracite where the air passages are small and not easily cleaned. To burn high volatile coals without serious smoking may require change in equipment.

1. Keep heating surfaces clean.
2. Carry a deep fire 12 to 18 inches).
3. Do not let he fire burn too low.
4. For quick heat fire only a small amount of coal.
5. Study carefully the proper use of the three dampers. Usually it will be found that (a) the pipe or flue damper should be open when firing fresh coal and should be partly closed when the fire is well started; (b) the ash pit damper should be open to start up fire, open a little during the day, but shut at night; (c) the check-draft damper should be shut to start up fire, open partly the day and night as experience shows to be necessary.
6. When fresh coal is fired, admit air over the fire through the slide in the fire door until smoking ceases, and then close the slide.
7. Do not open the fire door to check the fire; learn to use the dampers to control the rate of burning. All air admitted above the fire in excess of that needed for combustion simply cools the heating surfaces which furnish the heat for the house.
8. When firing coal for a long run or "banking" for the night, push the live coals back or to the side and put a lot of fresh coal into the hole thus made; it will burn slowly and keep a long time. If large cakes of coke are formed in the furnace these should be broken up and the fire levelled.
9. Shake out the ashes when necessary, but do not waste coals into the ash pit. Close the ash pit door while shaking.
10. Do not let ashes pile up under the grates. In this way grates "burn out." Grates should last many years.
11. To save the heat made by burning coal, the following suggestions may appeal to some:

(a) Do not heat unused rooms; (b) let in sunshine; (c) pull down shades early at night; (d) do not ventilate unnecessarily all night; (e) do not overheat the house—65 to 70 is sufficient for most people; (f) get a thermometer and watch the weather.

To avoid the soft coal dust, the fuel should be well wet down before being put into the cellar and the front of the pile kept moist with an occasional bucket or two of water.

Part III—Rules for Burning Coke With Small-Size Anthracite.

a. Carry a deep bed of fuel—even above the level of the fire door.

b. Shake the grate to remove ashes and lower the fuel bed but stop when the first live coals appear.

c. Spread a thin layer of anthracite over the entire grate and allow a few minutes for this fuel to ignite. Next fill the fire pot with coke, and allow this to burn until blue flame appears, then add another layer of anthracite.

d. After firing and seeing that the charge is ignited, check off the draft to the desired point for slow burning.

e. When banking the fire for the night, use less coke and more anthracite, but otherwise fire in the same manner.

f. Anthracite pea or buckwheat can often be used alone with success. This will happen when the draft is unusually good and the furnace is amply large. It is best to fire one-half of the grate at a time, allowing the first half of the charge to ignite before adding the second half. Small sizes may be used in the fall and spring if not in winter.

HASTINGS NEWS

HASTINGS, Nov. 13.— On Wednesday evening, Armistice Day, a memorial service was held in the Town Hall by the citizens of Hastings to once again commemorate the memory of those who fought and died in the Great War.

The children of the Public and Separate schools marched in a body to the hall.

Reeve J. H. Hess acted as chairman and explained the object of all gathering together, and with him on the platform were Rev. M. L. Hinton, Rev. W. A. Pippen, Rev. Father Bretherton, Rev. D. A. Thompson, Col. E. Birdsall and Major Marryatt.

The programme was:

Hymn—Lead Kindly Light.
Address—Rev. D. A. Thompson.
Address— Rev. Father Bretherton.

Two minutes of silent prayer, those present standing.

Hymn — "Nearer My God To Thee."
Address—Rev. M. L. Hinton.
Address—Rev. W. A. Pippen.
God Save the King.

Col. Birdsall and Major Marryatt led the procession from the hall to the war memorial on the water front. The column was made up in order as: The clergy, the Reeve and council, members of the I.O. D.E., citizens and school children.

At the monument Mrs. P. M. Howard, Regent of the Hastings Chapter, I.O.D.E., read the names of the fallen heroes on the monument, and wreaths were placed on the monument and the Lord's Prayer was repeated in unison.

The Last Post was sounded by Sergeant Cyril Blackbourn in memory of those who failed to return.

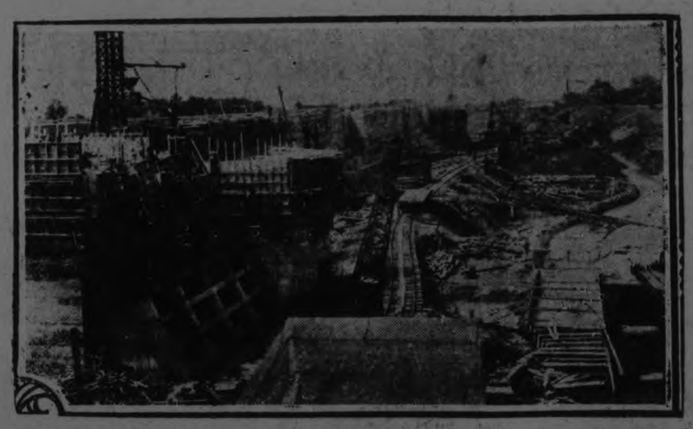
WELLAND CANAL IS ENGINEERING MARVEL



The Niagara peninsula is athrob at the present time with the work which is in progress on the new Welland canal. The thoroughfare, when completed, probably five years hence, will be one of the engineering marvels of North America and of the world. It will be five miles shorter than the present canal, and will only have seven locks, as against the 20 now in use. It will also offer a passage for the largest ships now sailing the great lakes, with nearly 200 feet to spare. A general view of Lock No. 1 is shown.

SMALL HATS OFTEN COVER LARGE MINDS

You Don't Need a Big Head To Be Brainy—Sizes Worn By Famous Men.

A few weeks ago a brilliant woman died in Washington. When her attorneys opened her will, they found she had left her brain to Cornell Univesity for study. Mrs. Helen Hamilton Gardener, famous as a writer, and the only woman United States Civil Service Commissioner, made this strange bequest in the hope of throwing light on the age-old question: Are women as smart as men?

In death she proved at least that the brain of one exceptional woman is as big as that of one exceptional man; for her brain was found to weigh 1,150 grams—exactly the same as that of Dr. Burt G. Wilder, distinguished scientist, who for many years was a member of the Cornell faculty.

Will further study of Mrs. Gardener's brain help establish the truth of the old belief that all great thinkers have big brains, and that a man's mental capacity may be judged by the size of the hat he wears?

Probably not, says Popular Science Monthly for December. Informed scientists now agree with the saying of Oliver Wendell Holmes that "You can't tell by looking at a man's head what kind of mind is inside it, any more than you can tell by looking at a safe how much money it contains." So if your hat size is small, remember that a large head may mean large cranial capacity, but not necessarily a large or well developed brain. And remember, too, that great men's heads, on the average, are no larger than those of the rest of us.

The average American wears a 7 1-4 hat. How does that compare with the sizes of his fellow-citizens, who have achieved fame? Very well indeed. Take, for example, men who have been elected to the Presidency. James A. Garfield wore size 7 3-4; but that did not make him a greater President than Abraham Lincoln, who wore size 7 1-8. William H. Taft, an all-around big man, wears size 7 5-8; Grover Cleveland and Benjamin Harrison wore size 7 1-2; and Theodore Roosevelt and Warren G. Harding wore 7 3-8—all well above the average. Yet Woodrow Wilson and U. S. Grant both wore the average 7 1-4, while President Coolidge wears size 7 1-8, slightly below the national standard.

Elihu Root, perhaps the most brilliant American statesman of his time, wears 7 1-8. William G. McAdoo goes him a split size better by wearing 7 1-6. Secretary of the Treasury Mellon wears size 7 3-8.

The same variation is noticeable in the hat sizes of the famous and successful in other fields of endeavor. John L. Sullivan, mighty man of his hands, wore a 7 1-8 hat. James J. Jeffries, almost as famous a ringman of his day, wears size 7 3-8. Christy Mathewson, who was baseball's most famous pitcher, wore size 7 1-8.

Chauncey M. Depew, who has brains enough to have lived well over 90 years and to have enjoyed them all, also wears a 7 1-8 hat. Robert G. Ingersoll, one of the greatest of orators, wore size 7 1-2; but so does Harry K. Thaw.

It is probable that the wide variations in men's mental powers is caused by varying qualities of brain rather than by differences in the size of brains. The Cornell scientists who examined Mrs. Gardener's brain found it to be not only as large, but as well formed as the brain of Doctor Wilder.

HUNTERS RETURNED.

The Windover Mountain Hunt Club Shot Their Number.

A party of hunters returned from the north last night, delighted with their outing, having brought down five fine deer. The party was guided by Harve Winover, who made everything comfortable. Among those who came down were J. Brightman, Roy Hutchinson, H. Gill, C. E. Smith and Harry Lacheur.

HOPE TO RECOVER A $60,000 STATUE

London Has Clue to Ancient Relic Stolen From Bagdad.

LONDON, Nov. 14.—The famous statuette of the Babylonian King Gudea that mysteriously disappeared from Bagdad, and for which the Colonial Office and Scotland Yard have been searching in vain, has recently been offered to the directors of the Copenhagen Museum.

M. Helge Jacobsen, one of the directors of the museum, made the interesting revelation in a recent interview. He announces that the offer came three days ago from a prominent London dealer in antiquities. M. Jacobsen refuses to reveal the dealer's name, but declares that he has known him for many years and that he is "scrupulously honest."

The statue is an 18-inch high soapstone portrait of Gudea, who was the King of Lagash, a Babylonian city, 4,275 years ago, and is worth £12,000.

It was subsequently bought by a Bagdad merchant, and soon afterwards was smuggled abroad. The offer to the Copenhagen Museum is the first that has been heard of it since.

CANVASS PLANNED BY ST. JAMES BOARD

Every Member Will Be Asked to Contribute—Hall Renamed.

At a recent joint meeting of the Official and Trustee Boards of St. James United Church, the Maintenance and Extension Fund was dealt with and it was decided to have an Every-Person Canvass during the week of November 22-29th, in accordance with the plan of the General Council. A committee was appointed to prepare lists preparatory to the canvass.

The meeting also approved the action of the Trustee Board in deciding to rename the S. S. building "Wesley Hall," so that in future it will be known as Wesley Hall of St. James Church.

This action was taken at the suggestion of the pastor, Rev. J. D. Richardson, who stated that in adopting the name "Wesley Hall," it would be an historic link with traditional Methodism.

It was also decided by the Board to renovate it at as early a date as possible.

WATERFALL DRIVES NEW CAR

A new railway car in Sweden carries its own private waterfall to run itself by water turbine. It has an internal-combustion motor of the usual type, says Popular Science Monthly, but instead of using gears or electric transmission, the motor operates a centrifugal pump. This supplies water under pressure to a turbine geared to the driving axle. The speed of the car is governed by the height of the artificial head of water created by the pump. With a 180-horsepower motor, the car goes 50 miles an hour.

MILBURN'S HEART AND NERVE PILLS

Mrs. F. H. Miller, 1843-11th Ave. East, Vancouver, B.C., writes:—"Five years ago my husband suffered terribly with severe attacks of palpitation of the heart and smothering spells, and two doctors stated that he could not possibly live six months.

A friend recommended Milburn's H. and N. Pills, with the result that my husband is still enjoying life at the age of 84 years.

He has improved so wonderfully that he can now climb the stairs without having those awful pains in his heart."

BARE-HANDED, KILLS CHARGING LEOPARD

Famous Explorer Tells of His Narrow Escape From Death in Jungle.

A gray-haired, mild mannered, soft voiced man sat in his New York studio recently and related in a matter-of-fact way how, with his bare hands, he once fought a wounded, snarling leopard to the death in the heart of African jungles. With no more suggestion of heroics than might be incidental to a discussion of the latest book, he told how, his left hand clutching desperately at a hairy throat, his right arm caught and torn in the grip of savage jaws, he managed to ram the fist of his injured arm with all his might into the ferocious animal's gnashing mouth.

"We both were getting weak," he recalled, "and at last we went down. Luckily the leopard was underneath, and as we fell my knees struck his chest, and I heard a rib snap. That gave me an idea, so I jumped up and down with my knees, while I still held my right hand in his mouth. I caved his ribs in, and finally he gave a gasp and released his hold."

The victor in that thrilling jungle combat was Carl E. Akeley, world-famous naturalist, taxidermist, inventor, sculptor, author, and lecturer. It was while discussing plans for his fifth visit to Africa this year for the purpose of studying wild animals and collecting specimens for the American Museum of Natural History, that Akeley described his narrow escape from death, as told in Popular Science Monthly for December.

Akeley was returning to camp in the half dusk when the leopard that he had wounded, and that had followed him, charged. He worked the bolt of his rifle hurriedly—the magazine was empty! And the furious beast was scrambling up the side of a bank on which Akeley was standing. Realizing that he had to load, and that he would not have time to do so if he stood still, Akeley dropped down the other side of the bank and ran, loading as he went. He had gone 10 or 15 yards by the time the gun was loaded, and he whirled to fire—just too late! The great cat was in the air as he turned, and before he could pull the trigger, 80 pounds of pain-maddened leopard was upon him. The gun went flying from his hands, and the angry cat seized his right arm in its powerful jaws.

Akeley grasped the leopard's throat with his left hand, and by keeping his arms inside the animal's front legs, prevented the terrible claws from doing more than shred his shirt. But the leopard was chewing his arm ferociously, and slashing constantly with its forepaws.

"I felt no pain," said Akeley, "but I certainly never thought for a moment that I was going to come out alive. I was rather calm, as a matter of fact, except for a tremendous and wildly pleasant thrill I felt, knowing that I was battling for my life.

"With my left hand at the animal's throat I pushed him down my right arm for he was chewing all the time. I dragged my whole arm through his jaws, and finally I got my right fist in his mouth."

Then followed the terrific final struggle, as related at the outset, in which Akeley, grappling with the weakened animal on the ground, battered its ribs until it realeased its hold upon him, and at last lay gasping in and helpless. Akeley finished it with a knife.

HINDENBURG HOPES TROUBLES ARE OVER

Expresses Hope That Locarno Treaty Will Lead to Liberation.

DARMSTADT, Hesse, Germany, Nov. 14.—(Canadian Press).—President Von Hindenburg made his first public reference to the Locarno treaties at a reception given him yesterday by the Government of Hesse.

"Let us hope that the most difficult times are now over," the President said, "and that the negotiations begun at Locarno will lead to liberating the occupied area, including Hesse, from its most onerous burdens and to restoring that freedom of action essential to life."

LABOR GOING TO SHUN MUSSOLINI

Will Not Attend Any Functions If He Visits Britain.

ASK ENDORSATION.

LONDON, Nov. 14.—(Canadian Press).—British Labor leaders and Labor members of Parliament, says the Westminster Gazette, intend to boycott Premier Mussolini of Italy if he comes to London to sign the Locarno security pact, and will not attend any function in his honor to which they may be invited. The paper adds that others may associate themselves with the action of Labor.

Charles Gamon, former Parliamentary Secretary for the Admiralty, is quoted as saying that the British public generally ought to endorse such an attitude and protest against Mussolini coming to England "in view of his suppressing the liberty of the people and the press."

MRS VALETINO HAS SUED FOR DIVORCE

Rudolph Says He Will Expedite Action in Every Way.

NEW YORK, Nov. 14.—(Canadian Press).—Rudolphe Valentino, screen actor, last night confirmed the report of Mrs. Richard Hudnut that her daughter, Mrs. Winifred Hudnut Valentino, had instituted a suit for divorce in Paris. The actor said he would expedite his wife's action in every way.

Valentino said he would sail for Paris on the Leviathan to-morrow to hasten his wife's action, begun several months ago, and to accept the pronouncement of the court, which is expected about December 15th.

Mrs. Valentino is seeking the divorce on the ground of her husband having refused to live with her.

"There is nothing mysterious about my unhappy domestic affairs" Valentino told a reporter of the New York World last night.

"My wife and I simply have found that we would be placed in better position if we were single and free to go our respective ways."

His wife's desire for an "individualistic and artistic career," as opposed to his wish "for a homemaker rather than a business partner," was blamed by Valentino for the "irreconcilable difference in viewpoint."

C.N.R. OFFICER LEAVING CITY

Harry Howard Was Given Case of Pipes By Fellow Employees.

GOES TO BROCKVILLE.

Harry Howard, the local Canadian National Railways special officer who is being transferred to Brockville was the recipient of a handsome presentation which took the form of a case of pipes. Carl C. Smith made the presentation on behalf of the staff. The address signed by Messrs MacNab and Clementi was as follows: "We, your fellow employees of the Canadian National Railways, Peterborough, have learnt with regret that you are about to leave us due to your having been transferred to Brockville. We felt that we could not let the occasion pass without some comment on our part, especially as it means the loss of one of our standbys on the softball diamond. You starred as a batter and a first base man but rumbur has it that it was your official position and train log that enabled you to act as a "pinch" hitter, "detect" a pitcher's weakness and catch them "stealing" home. We the members of the Freight shed staff and other friends around the Depot while regretting your departure from our midst feel that our loss will be Brockville's gain, and wish you every success in your new location. We would ask you to accept this case of pipes as a token of our esteem. May every puff bring you contentment and may all your troubles end in smoke.

Mr. Howard expressed his thanks in appropriate words, telling, too, his regret in severing the comradeship that had grown up through daily contact with the staff.

Among those present at the ceremony were: Alpine MacNab, Station Agent; Fred V. Clementi, Chief Clerk; George Soulby, Ernest R. Taylor, Albert Rundle, Carl C. Smith, S. J. Rowe, O. I. Smith, Harold Delahaye, Albert Delehaye, Glen Morphet, R. MacNab and W. J. Prindible.

CHRYSLER FOUR

Acclaimed everywhere as typical of Chrysler Quality

Canada has received the Chrysler Four with the declaration—heard from one end of the country to the other—that only such a master manufacturer as Walter P. Chrysler could produce such a car.

It was a foregone conclusion that so extraordinary a development of the four-cylinder principle and so outstanding a value, would be greeted with intense interest.

Conservative opinion hails the Chrysler Four as the most modern and the soundest contribution to finer four-cylinder engineering.

Unquestionably, there has never been a four at anywhere near the price that delivers the Chrysler combination of speed, smoothness, acceleration, pick-up, roadability, riding comfort and ease of handling, fuel mileage and charm of appearance. In every respect, it is a fitting companion to the famous Chrysler Six.

See it—ride in it—drive it!

We are eager to give you the opportunity to learn at first hand the many advantages of owning a new Chrysler Four.

ONT TIME OUTPOST LIKE CITY OF DEAD

Poacher Formed Basis of Jack London's "Sea Wolf" Story.

SEATTLE, Nov. 14 (Associated Press)—Dutch Harbor, in the Aleutian Islands of Alaska, once a military rendezvous of four nations, is like a dead city.

Before the fur treaty among the United States, England, Russia and Japan was consummated in 1911, Dutch Harbor was an outpost of intrigue. In 1893, when seal poaching was at its peak, America maintained five cutters and four gunboats there, while the British had three gunboats, the Japanese and Russians several war vessels.

Daring poachers roamed the seas, and raids were common. Probably the best known of the early pirates was Alec MacLean, the Wolf Larson of Jack London's "Sea Wolf." His last trip to the Arctic was made on the schooner Comancita, a vessel masquerading under forged Mexican papers. One of his best known exploits was when he eluded a pursuing cutter and anchored two barrels of seal skins to a buoy. Later he returned and picked them up.

In 1911, all governments involved in the seal industries agred to handle the killings themselves. Guards were stationed at the rookeries and sealing-at-sea was made unlawful. This treaty was drawn to run 15 years. The pact is expected to be renewed next year, although British Columbia sealers are opposed.

At present the entire patrol is carried on by four American coast guard cutters, whose greatest duties ile in administering relief to northern residents. Justice and food stuffs are dispensed by these guardians of the North, while poachers are of minor importance.

Meanwhile Dutch Harbor, nestled among the island mountains, slumbers, dreaming of a glamorous past.

CIVILIZED MEN AND WOMEN BECOME OLD PREMATURELY

One would think it would be the other way about. But this would leave out of the picture the effect of civilized peoples' denatured foods. Savages live upon foods just as nature provides them, thus they retain all their body-building properties. Civilized peoples refine out of their most important foodstuffs, the grains, their most important building materials, the mineral salts, vegetable fats and vitamins. Thus civilized bodies cannot so well stand the wear and tear of daily life, and they soon begin to grow old. White flour, refined "ghost cereals," white sugar, and refiners' syrup and other "denatured" foods do their work well in prematurely aging their votaries.

This aging tendency can be overcome to a great extent by resorting to natural, unrefined foods. Dr. Jackson's Roman Meal is a natural whole grain food, made from whole wheat, whole rye, flaxin and bran. It compensates the deficiencies of white flour, "ghost cereals," etc. Roman Meal renewed the youth of Dr. Jackson, its inventor, to such an extent that while at 55 he was a wreck, at 65 he won a 1,300 mile bicycle contest from a man 30 years younger, actually ran away from his young competitor.

Roman Meal has 1,600 food units while beef has only 952. Roman Meal is thus seen to be the best body-building and strength producing food known. You ought to use Roman Meal. At grocers.

AMERICA DRIFTING? RADIO WILL DECIDE

Tests to Tell Whether Our Continent Once Broke Away From Europe.

Good-bye Europe! Hello, Japan! Are we drifting farther from Europe and approaching nearer to Asia each year, as many scientists have believed? Radio now is to be used to answer this fascinating question, says Popular Science Monthly for December.

By means of radio time signals, a number of carefully selected spots around the earth, including Washington, D.C., and San Diego, Calif., will test variations in longitude. These tests, kept up for years, geodesists and astronomers believe, will prove or disprove the theory that the Atlantic Ocean was formed by the American breaking off from Europe and Africa.

Geogolists point to recent investigations which indicate that beneath the top layer of rock crust, which is about 60 miles deep, there is a semi-molten layer of lava covering the earth's solid core. On this, it is believed, the outer surface is continually slipping. Another reason for thinking that the Americas once joined Europe is the remarkable way in which the ragged eastern coastline fits into that of the west coast of Europe and Africa, like bits of a jigsaw puzzle.

A Dutch geodesist, Dr. Vening Meinesz, is planning to weigh the earth's crust under the Atlantic and Pacific oceans on a voyage of a Dutch submarine from Holland to Java. He already has examined the crust under the Indian Ocean. For this work he uses the most delicate apparatus for determining gravity while the boat is submerged about 50 feet, to avoid disturbance by the waves.

U.S. CROPS DAMAGED BY EARLY FROSTS

Potatoes Damaged Since Then Show Serious Injury.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14. —Serious damage from adverse weather conditions in October to unharvested crops of potatoes, beans and apples in the Northern States was reported on Friday by the Department of Agriculture, reports to the department an announcement said indicated that 30 per cent. of the potatoes dug since that time show damage ranging from "slight to almost total loss."

The quantity of potatoes remaining and available for market this season, the department's announcement added, seems likely to be less than usual in proportion to the production in the late potato states. This is pat ticularly true in some important states such as New York, where many of the late potatoes harvested were showing injury from slight orfield frosts by November 1.

Apples unharvested in the Northern belt suffered loss from October freezes with losses in Michigan in the worst injured sections averaging as high as one-third of the local crop the report said.

Indian Potentate Quits Racing in France.

PARIS, Nov. 14. —(Canadian Press)— Twenty-one horses, forming the bulk of the French racing stable of Prince Aga Khan, Indian potentate, who has decided to abandon racing in France, were put under the hammer on Friday, and brought 1,744,000 francs (about $69,760 at the present rate of exchange).

ADVICE TO GIRLS

By Annie Laurie

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I am a young girl in my teens and wish to get some advice from you. I am keeping company with a young man about my own age. He has a habit sometimes of going out with other girls, and still he thinks a lot of me. Tell me in some way I could convince him not to. ANXIOUS EDDY.

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I am a young girl in my teens and wish to get some advice from you. I am keeping company with a young man who is rather bashful. He keeps company with other girls and still seems to fall back to me. Anxiously waiting for a reply. CURLY.

CURLY AND ANXIUOS EDDY: (As the two letters appearing above seem to be dealing with a similar problem, one answer will probably do for both.) As the young man is not engaged to you—at least, you do not say so—do you not think he has a right to get out with other girls? Probably you do not care for the position he places you in at times, as being a sort of refuge when no other girl is handy? Well, this may be a sign of a complimentary nature. Probably he likes a "once in a while" girl occasionally and really thinks most of you. Or again, it may be an indication that you are not quite attractive enough to hold him together. It is all a matter of viewpoint. If you can be satisfied with a half loaf of attention from your friend, go ahead. The time may come when he will propose to you, and then, again, he may propose to one of the other young ladies. Why not have another engagement on one of the evenings that he decides to favor you with his company?

Emerald Green Coat Dress Trimmed in Gray and Silver Fox.

This dashing coat frock above is a smart example of the caped frock of the season.

The dress is shaped, as to bodice, to make it as slender as possible. It also gains slenderness through the deeply pointed collar. The small cape is lined with silver gray, and the narrow braid which trims the frock repeats this color.

The becomingness of the fur collar is another smart note. Fur next to the skin is always appealing, and this particular fur happens to be silver fox.

There are in India today about 25,000,000 Hindu widows, forbidden by their religion to remarry. Widows are often badly treated by their relatives because, according to the Hindu belief, the widows in a former incarnation must have committed sins involving the subsequent loss and punishment of their hus-

A Fashion Model's Diary

By Grace Thorncliffe

SHE TALKS ABOUT A COAT OF THE NEW-PATTERNED VELOUR.

Madame has been doing an entire wardrobe for one of the season's youngest debutantes.

"Miss Marks will also enjoy the distinction of being the season's best-dressed debutante if she keeps on letting Madame make all her clothes," Gaby remarked to-day, when the young girl arrived to do some more consulting with Madame.

"Madame does know the young thing's type to a T, and she can make clothes for her that bring out the best of her points, all right," I agreed.

"Madame just loves to dress a slim young thing like that," Gaby continued. "Just look at them, with their heads together over those samples."

I looked, and saw that Madame was showing Miss Marks the newest lot of samples she had—lovely, vivid-patterned velours.

I knew Madame was planning to launch a number of afternoon coats of this material, and I guessed that Miss Marks was to own the first one.

"Who could think of a more stunning combination than cherry, yellow and gray?" the young girl remarked, holding a sample of these colors at arm's length.

Just then Madame asked me to go and fetch the coat sketch I'd find on her desk, and I hastened to do her bidding. The drawing I found sent Miss Marks into a rapture of admiration, and it was such a vivid, gay, youngish coat that I am drawing another sketch of it here in my diary.

"The coat will be perfectly straight," Madame went on explaining to her client. "There will be a strip of plain gray velour up either side of the front, and the scarf and the cuffs will be plain gray."

"How about the fur that edges the scarf and cuffs?" Miss Marks queried. "Oh, that's to be the best-looking platinum-gray fox I can find," Madame answered.

"I see you have a hat in the sketch. Am I to have a hat to go with it?" the client asked.

"A cherry velvet," Madame told her.

STRANGER THAN FICTION

THE KING'S UMBRELLA.

By M. B. Levick.

Of the seven thousand and seventy kings who have hitherto reigned there are three in particular, and the first of these was a god.

If he said thus, it was thus, and if he said so, it was so, and when he walked in the presence of his people, by that grace the day became a great day and they bowed down before him.

He came forth with his retinue; and the women peeped through the hangings in their quarters—for while they knew that to glimpse his splendor might cause them to be smitten blind on the instant, nevertheless one glance (just a little one) was reward for the risk. For he was a handsome man and his beard was godlike.

He came in state, even though he wished nothing more than to breathe the air beyond the palace walls. Before him rode a company of the household guards, who also were handsome men. The sun glittered on their lances and the jewels of their headdress were like stars of a thousand colors, shining in the daylight.

Behind them came the masters of the horse and the masters of the foot and the music makers with cymbal and pipe; and then, after a hundred paces that were like a moment of suspense, the King himself, looking neither to the right nor to the left. His white horse walked like a king of horses and the gold fringe of its caparison caressed the ground. On the gauntlet that held the reins shone the ring that was the symbol of kinghood, and the King's sword swung at his side in its chased scabbard.

But the very sign and testimony of his godhead was the sacred umbrella whose silken stripes, all traced in gold and silver, reddened the glow of the sun as it fell on the royal beard. None may touch the sacred umbrella save the King and the four priests, whose life work is to bear it over him when he goes forth. Not the King's brother nor his son may touch it.

But the King has among his sons a little boy, his favorite, who comes galloping now on his pony. And as he overtakes the King the child snatches at the big bright tassel hanging from the umbrella. Now the King looks. The tassel is swinging. The boy laughs. The King frowns and pulls his beard and speaks. A black man with a curved blue sword steps forward. The boy is kneeling, in the roadway. The blade flashes, and from the winthe women's quarter there shrieks. The priests who bear sacred umbrella pray aloud as the boy's head spins in the dust.

The second King strides on a field between two hamlets, and the flowers of the field are covered with a carpet that shimmers like gold. Never has such splendor been seen. Beyond the glowing carpet the sun blazes now on a cuirass, now on a buckler, as knights joust. The King has traveled a hundred leagues to create his momentary palace here in the field. With him have come the Coroner of the verge, officers of the almonry, the cofferer of the household, kings-at-arms and the four pursuivants, Rouge Dragon, Blue Mantle, Portcullis and Rouge Croix.

There is also, in the train of the King, the Lord Steward, who presides at the Board of Green Cloth, is the chief of three courts of law, criminal and civil, and who bears before him the white staff which is his emblem and warrant of authority when he carries the King's message under the sign manual to the lords of the realm. There are revelry and feasting. The beautiful ladies look at the knights and the beautiful knights look at the ladies. But the King knows, and the lords know, and the Lord Steward likewise knows, that if the Lord Steward should lose the white staff which is his emblem all this glory and beauty would vanish as from the puff of a wicked magician.

The King strides across the golden cloth to a marquee, a magnificent tent, of a shape much like that of the sacred umbrella. Through it the glow of the sun reddens as it falls on the royal face. But the King beams, for within the tent is another King. They have met to feast and discuss the fate of an empire.

At a corner of the umbrella-like marquee a foot soldier looks askance. The King enters; the music sounds; the courtiers are so many jewels of sapphire and emerald. But the footman frowns. Furtively he kicks. He whisks the end of his pike. Beside him, where the ground-stays of the tent are loose, a cat has thrust her head in. A common cat, with green eyes, which had discovered that a cat may look at a King

And the third King sat on a chair. A faithful subject knelt before him. When kings sat thus upon a dais, faithful subjects (if especially favored) laved their feet; but when kings sit so on a common chair, the subject is the court chiropodist. From time to time the King said: "Careful!" Occasionally he glanced from his newspaper to observe the progress. The paper told him of parliaments and debates and the formalities of dispatching to him official thanks for words of wisdom uttered through the Ministry in power.

The door opened and the Lord Steward stepped in.

"Oh!" said the Lord Steward.

"Well?" said the King.

The chiropodist said: "Don't move."

"Merely," said the Lord Steward, "to ascertain when it would be convenient for your Majesty to receive an address."

"Hm!" said the King, "Have you got it with you?"

He had.

"Why not present it now?"

"Sire!" the Lord Steward cried. His face grew reddish, as if from the sun that passes through a sacred umbrella. Reproof struggled with fidelity. Then his face cleared. It could not be. The wand, the white staff, his emblem and warrant of authority—it was not with him. The Lord Steward began backing away in relief.

"Wait," says the King. "Take that for a wand." He points to a corner in which, at an angle, stands his royal umbrella, a slim, black umbrella with an ivory handle, its tag neatly buttoned.

Then the Lord Steward, in the attitude of those who make State proclamations, with the umbrella for wand, reads the address.

The chiropodist, who is a learned man (for a chiropodist), says nothing; but to himself recites his favorite Shakespearean quotation:

"There's a divinity that shapes our ends, rough hew them how we will."

And the King puts up the other foot.

The third King was Edward VII. The Lord Steward was Lord Pembroke. The chiropodist was merely himself. The incident was disclosed by Sir Almeric William Fitz-Roy, for twenty-five years clerk of the Privy Council, who by publishing his memoirs drew against himself a cry of indiscretion.

DAD'S LUNCH BOX

It's only a tin, or a leather affair, but it answers the purpose for dad. It holds what is needed, so why should he care if it's not quite the best to be had?

It's filled every morn and it's handed to him. There's surprise 'cause he hasn't a hunch what food mother's packed till it's filled to the brim, but he'll know when he sits down to lunch.

Imagine the feeling when noon hour arrives and cautiously off comes the lid. Why, honestly, dads have the time of their lives when they're finding the food that's been hid.

A sandwich of cheese and a corner of pie and a pork chop, the searching will bring. Whatever it is, it's a treat for the eye and a meal that is fit for a king.

It isn't so much what the lunch box may hold, but the fact that it's packed up with care. The truth of it is, when the story is told, is that Mom put some sentiment there.

BY WALLACE HAVELOCK ROBB

If the log cabin headquarters of the Merry Men of the Greenwood had remained half deserted ever since it was placed in position up until last week, it is not so easy to say it would be silent forever. Not much.

Things were brewing and stewing and boiling and buzzing in that little space all right.

Ever since the boys' fathers had tried to return to boyhood and play in the woods and the cave, the Merry Men had been uneasy about their cave and their cabin, but the colder stretch of weather, plus the surprise beating the Merry Men team got from the Yellow Cats when part of the cat team was made up of borrowed Merry Men, was too much for human nature to stand, so it drove the boys inside the cabin.

Once inside with the fireplace alive and warm with burning deadwood from the windfalls in the Greenwood, things took shape of their own accord.

The circle before the fire widened out into half moon, with Robin Hood Square before the fire and all the Merry Men sitting and waiting for a chance to get a word in edgewise.

Walter Wilder was nearest to the woodbox in the corner.

"Hey! Wilder yet! Can't you see the fire needs wood?" howled little John, above the chatter.

Walter Yet leaned backwards, as though to reach a stick of wood without rising. He had to tilt his spruce block seat quite a little before he could reach the wood and a spruce block is nothing but a section of log, round and so on, and taking liberties with it is not what it was made for, and Wilder Yet felt that knowledge coming to him but it was to late for him to save himself. He just naturally went feet over tip backward and pulled the woodbox over with him, with Gone Sour and Tommy Rot on top for good measure. In other words, Sam Sweet and Tommy Scott fell over too.

Yells of delight almost raised the roof when that happened, but what happened next almost burst the old logs of the cabin from their moorings.

"Look out!" yelled Presto Change, but he was too late.

With the upsetting of the woodbox came a shower of hickory nuts, in the midst of which scampered two squirrels.

Two squirrels? Yes only two — but there might just as well have been twenty-two.

Some fifteen boys in a small log cabin, several of them on the floor, mixed up with crooked and curled sticks of wood, a couple of million, more or less, hickory nuts rolling on the floor and providing nice uncertain footing for the crowd, with two badly scared squirrels trying to go somewhere in a hurry, and using their heads, arms, feet and faces of the boys for a high speed highway, with no traffic cops in sight. Good night!

The door burst open and the windows burst out, and no crowd of fighting monkeys and parrots ever moved faster or made more noise.

Every Merry Man was prepared to take his oath that at least one of the squirrels had ridden out to safety on the top of his head, but Presto Chango said that only two squirrels had popped out of the wood-box, so that the doubtful honors would need a little dividing up.

Well, that was that! And now that that was over, everyone reentered the cabin prepared to start with new dignity, the occupation of the Headquarters.

"Say, Robin Hood, tell us an adventure," said Warmer Bones, sometimes called Warner Jones in error.

"That's it," chimed in Friar Tuck, "we ought to begin our first real peaceful occupation of the Headquarters, by having Robin Hood tell us something a little exciting. This place needs to be livened up. I can tell you fellows, never a day went by in the old time forest of Robin Hood, but what somebody got a crack over the head for something."

"Well, I got a crack on the head alright this summer," said Robin Hood, beginning to yarn in answer to the popular demand.

"It was down in the Gulf of St. Lawrence, sometimes called the Laurentian Sea. You know there are some Bird Rocks which sit away out and alone, far from land, where the Gannets live."

"What's a Gannet?" demanded Little John.

"Oh I dunno," went on Robin Hood, "it's a kind of a goose in some ways, to look at, but it eats fish; it eats small fish. When mother sent me down to the sea, last summer, I had never heard of it before, but it is a dandy bird. It is no good just looking at waves and sea all day, you know. A fellow likes to see swell, sailing birds, diving and swimming and all that, don't you know? And would you believe it, fellows, people killed these dandy birds. Yup, they nearly sunk 'em without a trace! Our Government just got there in time to save the alst few, so they said to the Gannets, "Here, beautiful birds, we won't let silly and selfish people kill you any more, and you can stay on these Bird Rocks for good and forever, with us on guard."

"And that's how the Gannets got saved, so that they are now increasing."

"Well, what about that hollow head of yours, that got maybe some sense knocked into or out of it nobody knows which?" said the jolly Friar.

"Oh, that?" said Robin Hood. "Well, you see, I got a chance to go to the Bird Rocks with a Government game warden, and we had to climb dangerous places. I just got started up, when one of the big birds hit me a whack with its wing, knocking me off the narrow ledge and into the sea, where a big wave banged me against the rocks and the guide had to pull me out with a boat hook. However, I saw the little Gannets just hatching from the eggs. They chip and chip and chip, in a circle, from inside the egg, then the lid comes off, just as we lift the lid of an egg at home, and it is queer how the old birds seem to be able to tell their own nests from the others, for they all looked alike to me. And just think, fellows, these birds have been killed so much that they are only in two places now in America and..."

Bang! Bang- Bang! went the cabin door. The Merry Men turned with one accord and yelled "Who's there?"

The opened door revealed Tom Catt, leader of the Yellow Cats. "If you guys want to learn how to play football, come on over this afternoon and we will show you how," was the message.

"All right, we'll play you," said Robin Hood, "but you'll need a puss in boots to catch Bernie Brown, if he gets away."

GOOD NIGHT STORIES

By Blanche Silvar

MRS. HOPPY TOAD SETTLES A DISPUTE.

"I don't care what you say," snapped Johnny Grasshopper to his friend, Creeky Cricket. "I saw her myself, and she was out in that bush by the side of the millpond."

"I don't doubt your word as to that," piped Creeky Cricket. "Certainly she might have been there. But I do say, I'll bet you anything you were seeing things, if you say you saw Wiggy Mousie building a nest. Why, who ever heard of anything so absurd? I never saw a nest built in the bushes that didn't belong to some bird."

"Just the same, I saw her carrying bits of straw and string in her mouth," continued Johnny Grasshopper. "I could hardly believe it myself until I paid a visit to the bush and saw the nest."

"What does it look like, anyway?" asked Creeky Cricket, "or do you remember?"

"Certainly I do," snapped Johnny Grasshopper. "It looked for all the world like a tiny bird nest, only it was all roofed over. I had to hunt to find the doorway, which I finally located at the very bottom of the ball-like nest. My! Inside that nest was the loveliest bed of soft down. It looked like down from cat-tail or milkweed."

"You certainly were seeing things," laughed Creeky Cricket. "I'm quite sure you were peeking into a new bird nest. Did you see Mrs. Gray Mousie carrying things?"

'She Was Helping Her Cousin."

"I certainly did," replied Johnny Grasshopper. "And it looked like she had one of the youngsters with her."

"Well the plot thickens," chuckled Creeky Cricket, who was such a jolly little fellow he couldn't stay angry long. "We'll find out one of these days. Let's go and visit Mrs. Gray Mousie. We'll go to her old home in the barn."

"Yes, and get gobbled up by old Red Rooster in the barn yard," chirped Johnny Grasshopper. "Not me. But I'll bet you my fiddle that——"

"Wait-a-second, wait-a-second," croaked a hoarse voice, and Old Mrs. Hoppy Toad hopped upon a stone. "You folks are getting excited. Here's Johnny Grasshopper, betting away his little fiddle, and here's Creeky Cricket suggesting you get eat 'emup-alive in the barn yard, while I can straighten things out without any trouble at all."

"Then do tell me," chirped Creeky Cricket, "was Mrs. Grey Mousie building a nest?"

"Yes, she was," croaked Hoppy Toad. "But—not for herself. She was just helping her cousin, Mrs. Harvest Mousie, build her house. She came to visit Mrs. Grey Mousie and decided to build near her. The bird-like nest Johnny Grasshopper saw belonged to Mrs. Harvest Mousie. She is much smaller than Mrs. Grey Mousie." Then croaking merrily, the toad hopped off towards the pond.

Creeky Cricket looked at Johnny Grasshopper and Johnny Grasshopper looked at Creeky Cricket. Then they both laughed merrily and away they went over the meadows.

Three-Minute Journeys

WHERE WEALTH WAS RECKONED IN TURQUOISES.

Among the Indians of the Southwest, money meant nothing. Commodities were exchanged, goats were exchanged for ponies and corn for beads.

But the turquoise, symbol of all that was valuable to them, was the standard of wealth. By the number and the quality of his turquoises was the wealth of a man estimated. There was more than simply the monetary value attached to them. The turquoise was the symbol of all that was beautiful to these people. It was the color of their lovely skies and of the ocean. It embodied all that was lovely in Nature.

For a turquoise they would barter any number of their goats or ponies. A perfect stone of great age was absolutely priceless. The Indians of this region would travel for miles and miles to see a perfect gem or a necklace of great beauty. Without any notice they would seem to sense in the air the fact that some gem had been discovered and they would flock to the scene of the finding.

However, the Indians of the plain were by no means devoted to silent contemplation of their gems. They were the most indefatiguable workers in the world. House building was the greatest activity of their existence. As the population increased, larger kivas were built. A kiva was a large circular subterranean room inhabited by unmarried men.

All dwellings were owned by the women and when a man married he went to live in the home of his wife or his wife's people. All inheritance came through the women. For centuries and centuries the custom of living in your wife's house or her family's house had prevailed among the Pueblo Indians.

Using Turquoise as Money.

There was no plutocracy among the Bonitians. They lived simply, in houses which were all very much alike. Each man's work was like his neighbor's and each woman's was like her neighbor's. The government followed the principles of representation.

The clan leaders and elected members of the secret organizations elected what might be called the mayor and decided all questions of communal interest.

They were a busy, happy people, working hard, living sensibly and enjoying the beauties of the surroundings Nature had bestowed upon them.

YOUR HEALTH

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M.D., Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

A reader in Connecticut has heard about "Meniere's disease" and wants an article about it. I am glad to present it.

How do you know where you are when you are in the dark and whether you are standing upright or not? Is there some sort of a spirit level in the body to indicate your position in space and to assist you in maintaining your balance?

There is exactly that sort of a mechanism in your head. It is closely associated with the organ of hearing and is considered a part of the internal ear.

Deeply situated in the bone back of the ear are what we call the "semi-circular canals," three of them. If you will half close your right hand and place its edge on the palm of the other hand, you will see how the semi-circular canals are placed. One corresponds in position to the flat palm of the left hand. The second lies in the plane of the fingers and the third in the plane of the palm of the right hand.

Suppose each of these canals were a spirit level, you can see that one or another would always be so placed as to indicate your position in space. That is the purpose they serve in the protection of your body.

I need not go into greater detail, describing the special nerves and other features of this arrangeemnt. A part of the inner ear, known as the "labyrinth," has its place in this intricate plan, but I have told you enough so you know in a general way how to keep straight and safe.

What we know as "Meniere's disease," or "Meniere's syndrome," begins with buzzing in the ears and staggering in the gait. Dizziness and a sensation as if everything were turning around, cause giddiness and reeling.

The eyeballs may jerk and twitch. Paleness, feeling of illness, sickness at the stomach and vomiting are other symptoms.

These attacks pass off, only to be repeated every week or so, or even several times a day. Moving the head suddenly may bring on the attack.

There are many causes. Among them is poisoning of some sort. This may be from one of the contagious diseases, or it may be from a drug. Alcohol, tobacco, arsenic, quinine and salicylate acid are among such drugs.

Anything which disturbs the living levels I have described will cause the trouble. Bleeding into the labyrinth or semi-circular canals, the result of a fall or blow, may produce this group of symptoms. Tumors of the brain or serious brain disease may cause it, because the labyrinth is involved.

What can be done and what the prospect of cure is will depend on the cause of the irritation. Many causes make complete recovery.

ANSWERS TO HEALTH QUERIES

S. Q.—What is the cause of unpleasant breath?

2.—What can be done for stomach noises?

3.—What will increase the growth of the eyelashes and make them darker?

A.—Diseased tonsils, decayed teeth, intestinal disturbances, constipation, etc., may all be responsible. Find the cause and the treatment will suggest itself.

2.—Proper diet and regular intestinal elimination will correct this trouble. For full particulars send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and repeat your question.

3.—1% yellow oxide of mercury ointment applied to the eyelashes at night before retiring will make them darker and help to increase the growth.

King Victor Emmanuel of Italy celebrated his fifty-sixth birthday this week.

Tomorrow's HOROSCOPE

By Genevieve Kemble

SUNDAY AND MONDAY NOVEMBER 15 16.

Sunday's astrological forecast is for some anxiety regarding the health, and sounds a warning against duplicity or fraud. Disputes should be shunned and strict attention paid to the affairs.

Those whose birthday it is should care for the health and be on guard against treachery or fraud. Disputes, change and travel should be avoided. A child born on this day may be clever and accomplished, and should succeed in its affairs.

Sunday's horoscope shows sudden and important change or travel, but warns against new and untried projects, which may be fraught with trickery. With care success may be wrung from difficult situations.

Those whose birthday it is may have a year of success, wrought from slow and hazardous conditions. There may be important change or travel. Beware of new enterprises. A child born on this day should be active, energetic, and original and independent. It should make a fair success of its undertakings.

Chinese Flappers Acquire Latest Bobs and Waves

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 14 (Associated Press).—For the first time the beauty shop has invaded Chinatown. Two of them are doing a flourishing business.

The operators are Chinese girls, graduates of hair-dressing and manicuring schools, and on the walls hang diplomas informing customers that they are duly qualified.

Most of the patrons are Chinese girls who want the latest bobs and waves. However, an occasional Chinese sheik with pinch-back coat and 22-inch trouser cuffs, can be seen opposite the manipulator of orange stick, cuticle knift and buffer.

DINOSAUR EGGS WERE PURCHASED BY EXPLORERS FOR PIECE OF SOAP

Andrews Found Mongolian Woman Using 10,000,000 Year Old Shells as Jewelry.

STONE AGE TOOLS.

Skulls of Six New Types of Mammals Found in Gobi Desert.

The commercial opening up of Mongolia, one of the most backward countries, by the motor car, was described Tuesday at the American Museum of Natural History by Roy Chapman Andrews, who returned from his third expedition into the Gobi Desert with forty new dinosaur eggs, the skulls of six new types of mamals which lived contemporaneously with the dinosaurs and the tools of ancient stone age people that once lived in the heart of the Gobi Desert in Mongolia.

Camel caravans are trotting far into the interior of Mongolia and building up gasoline bases for the use of fast motor cars which rush sables and other furs, wool and other products from distant bases to Urga, whence they are sent to Peking, according to Mr. Andrews.

Three years ago the American scientists drove all over the Gobi Desert in touring cars and motor trucks, covering ten times the ground which would have been possible if they had relied wholly on camels, and business men made immediate use of this knowledge. The discovery having been made that the ancient camel trails were fine motor roads, automobile expresses have been built up by traders for all valuable freight. The great handicap is the fuel problem. The camel is the only tank car at present, and the price of gasoline is such that only high-class freight can go by motor.

Eggs Were Stone-age Jewels.

The primitive flint instrument of early human beings were discovered near the very centre of the Gobi Desert, near the place where the Dinosaur eggs were discovered three years ago.

"We found that the Stone-age people had anticipated us in the discovery of the dinosaur eggs," said Mr. Andrews. "They found the eggs about 20,000 years before we did and used square bits of shells for necklaces. Another type of stone-age jewelry which we found here was made of ostrich eggs.

"We were surprised also to find a Mongolian woman who had discovered the dinosaur eggs and was putting them to the same use that the stone-age peoples had. She made bits of jewelry with them.

"I offered her a cake of soap, if she would deliver an intact fossil egg. This seemed a bargain for us, since the last price paid for a dinosaur egg was $5,000, but she was satisfied. We reached a settlement by paying her half a cake of soap for the fragment."

The five mamal skulls found in the same rock formation with the dinosaur eggs, constituted a find of the highest scientific value, because there was only one previous instance on record where a mammal was found existing in the dinosaur period, Mr. Andrews said. It had been supposed that the evolution of mammals did no ttake place until a later period.

The primitive mammals, whose skulls were found, varied from the size of a mouse to that of a rat. To find them the scientists worked over a large area on their hands and knees, examining the ground inch by inch for tiny fragments of 10,000,000-year-old mammal bones. This special search was made on the arrival of a telegram at Urga from Dr. William D. Matthews of the American Museum of Natural History, saying he had found a bit of mammal bone in cretaceous rock (belonging to the Age of Reptiles) among the masses of fossils sent back by the expedition of two years ago.

"These six skulls are of prime scientific interest and importance, and alone justify the cost of the expedition," said Dr. Matthews Tuesday.

Mongolia the Oldest Dry Land.

Other interesting fossils belonged to several great families of animals which had been represented only by specimens found in America. Another result of the expedition, according to Mr. Andrews, was the determination of the fact that the oldest dry land is that of Mongolia. It has been up above the sea level for about 20,000,000 years, while every other part of the earth has been submerged for a part of that time at least.

The establishment of the extreme old age of Mongolia, the finding there of the earliest known reptiles—the protceratops, found on the last expedition—and the earliest known mammals are points of special interest in supporting the speculation of Professor Henry Fairfield Osborn, President of the American Museum of Natural History. Twenty-five years ago, Mr. Osborn predicted that the scientific exploitation of the Gobi Desert would prove that the main lines of land life, probably including man, developed originally in that part of the world. He based this prediction on evidence that the interior of Asia was the oldest land and on paleontological data which indicated that the fossil mammals and reptiles found in different parts of the world had migrated by trails leading from the interior of Asia. The American descendants of the Asiatic species are supposed to have crossed a great land bridge which once connected Asia and Alaska.

The expedition has failed so far to obtain evidence that the forerunner of human beings dwelt on the Gobi desert, but it has succeeded in producing the first proof of man's existence in the Gobi Desert at a fairly early period.

"The earliest human relics which were found were tools belonging to a race which lived there some 50,000 to 100,000 years ago," said Mr. Andrews. "They were represented by crude stone scrapers of the Mousterian type which are associated with a primitive type of human like the Neanderthal man.

"The very ancient remains of the Mousterian type were found on the surface of the ground, having been weathered out of the sandstone rock which had formed around them.

"The more advanced stone age remains, which correspond to the Azilian type in Europe, were found in strata at the bottom of a cliff where they had been gradually buried from 100 to 200 feet deep by sand and dust. We found here thousands of flint chips, scrapers, drills, hammers and old fireplaces containing ashes, bits of charred bone and wood.

"At a still higher level we found a neolithic or New Stone Age culture, with implements of a much finer workmanship—flint knives, finely worked spear scrapers, steel arrows and spear points and some crude hand-made pottery.

"These are the first remains of early man found in this part of the world. From the depth to which it was buried the culture of the Azilian type seemed to be much earlier than the Azilian period in Europe, suggesting that the Azilian style originated in Asia and was carried into Europe.

"There have been many to jeer at the theory that remains of ancient humans would be found in Asia, but it is perfectly clear that the whole region must be very rich in the cultural remains of early men.

"In the site where we made these finds there is no vegetation beyond a few small tamarisk trees. The region must have been very different at the time when it supported human life. Our topographers first reported signs of an ancient lake. Then our geologists took up the study and found the old lake shores and deposits. Then the archaeologists and paaseontolgists went to work, and it became apparent why an ancient human settlement had been possible here on the borders of the lake. Down until the last thousand years or so a lake existed there with fertile banks fit for human habitation."

Some of the other discoveries reported by Mr. Andrews were these:

The 3,000,000-year-old remains of a vast redwood forest extending in Manchuria from Mukden almost to Vladivostock, resembling the giant redwoods of California.

The feet and part of the legs of a Baluchiterium, the largest land mammal that ever lived. This particular specimen was caught in a quicksand and petrified in an upright position. Only the legs were remaining because the rock formation in which the Baluchitherium was embedded was cut away by erosion.

The skull of a two-horned animal about the size of a horse, but belonging to no known species of animal.

Evidences that in palaeozoic times an ocean extended through the Central Asia plateau from the Caspian Sea to the Pacific.

Evidence that the Central Asian plateau was free from ice, even when Europe was glaciated as far south as Spain and North America as far south as Texas.

Thousands of specimens of fossil fish, reptiles and mammals, including many new to science.

A herd of 50,000 antelope, which probably do without drinking water at all, getting all their moisture from vegetation, and a herd of 1,000 wild asses, which are almost equally dessicated.

Mr. Andrews said that they caught one baby wild ass, which was very tame and the party buttoned a chamois windbreaker over it. That night the young ass escaped, and, as far as is known, is still trotting about the Gobi with its front legs through the armholes of this garment and the buttons fastened under its ribs.

Twenty years is the most popular age for marriage among the girls of Japan.

A THREE DAYS' COUGH IS YOUR DANGER SIGNAL

Chronic coughs and persistent colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action—it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and kills the germ.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and destroys the germs that lead to consumption.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of chronic coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, catarrhal bronchitis and other forms of throat and respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or 'flu.

Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. Creomulsion Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

HOW TO RELIEVE CHILDREN'S COLDS

Avoid Serious Results By Using Baby's Own Tablets.

When a child shows the first symptoms of a cold, such as sneezing, redness of the eyes, clogged or running nose, prompt measures for relief may avert serious results. Mothers should always have on hand some simple, safe and effective remedy for immediate use.

Baby's Own Tablets act quickly contain no opiates or narcotics, are tasteless and harmless. Mrs. Joseph Cadieux, Holyoke, Mass., says:—"I have used Baby's Own Tablets for my children and find them a very satisfactory medicine. When my little boy had a cold I gave him the Tablets at night and he was well next day. I give them to the children for constipation and they always do good. I think Baby's Own Tablets are much easier to give a child than liquid medicine. I recommend the Tablets to all mothers who have small children and believe they should always be kept on hand."

Baby's Own Tablets are sold by all medicine dealers or will be sent by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

John Bull Troubled By The Spectre Of Prohibition

VIEWS WITH APPREHENSION VIGOROUS EFFORTS TO CHECK HIS PRIVATE DRINKING PRIVILEGES; INDUSTRIAL LEADERS TO START DRY CAMPAIGN

Finds That Present Liquor Woes Are Due to War-Time Restrictions and Influences—Churches and Women Are Massing on Side of Drys.

ULSTER SEEKS LO CAL OPTION LAW

Carlisle Experiment in England Nets Government Tidy Sum From Breweries—Taverns Lose Their Identity With Removal of Picturesque Old Signs.

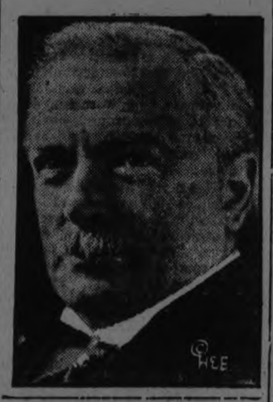
By W. G. Tinckom-Fernandez.

OF ALL international topics the most engrossing to the Britisher is the effect of prohibition in this country. He remembers that "Pussyfoot" Johnson sacrificed an eye to the cause of prohibition on British soil. He watches with alarm the efforts of his legislators to curb his ancient privilege of drinking liquor whenever and wherever he pleases, and notes that the most persistent of these is the American-born Member of Parliament, Lady Astor.

But the ncreasing attention given by his Government to his sobriety antedates our example, and John Bull is at last realizing that, like the rest of Europe, he owes his present liquor woes to the war. He finds that of all the war-time restrictions, those relating to his liquor alone survive today, and that his Government is still determined to control and regulate his ancient habits of convivial refreshment. Moreover, he sees the activities of various organizations supporting his Government in the matter. Protestant and Catholic churches, as well as the newly enfranchised women, have declared war on the liquor trade. A recent convention of the National Council of Women, composed of 132 national societies, passed resolutions for local option, and similar sentiments are expressed by the Labor Party.

Reports from Canada and the United States that industrial conditions are considerably better since prohibition have attracted the attention of leaders of the Liberal Party, including David Lloyd George, and various heads of large industries. Clyd and Tyne shipbuilding and engineering corporations, Manchester Mills, Sheffield steel works and London commercial houses are said to be lining up with prohibitionists.

Another sign of the times is the proposal of the dry majority in the Ulster Parliament to agitate for local option. Behind this majority is the Presbyterian Church, which secured Sunday closing two years ago, a custom that had hitherto obtained only in Wales and Scotland. But no notion of the new movement for local option in a traditionally wet Britain can be obtained without a glance at the sweeping results of war-time legislation.



The Carlisle Scheme

Chiefly, there is the famous Carlisle experiment, which seems to have become an accepte fact. For the first time in history the Government owns and runs breweries and public houses in the Carlisle area, no political party caring or daring to repeal the wartime measure. Thus Carlisle is a red rag to the drys, who, to all intents and purposes, are forced by their Government to approve the ma ufacture and sale of liquor. On the other hand, the wets fear the Carlisle suggestion of a nationalization of the l quor trade.

The every-day Britisher regards Carlisle as portentous. Since the war the breweries and public houses of Carlisle and vicinity have been owned by the State, which is making a large profit out of the job. The reforms there instituted have revolutionized the liquor business in Britain. Before the war the picturesque and ancient taverns immortalized by Washington Irving, Dic ens and Hardy, and dear to tourists, had degenerated from their traditional office of providing lodging, food and drink to travelers and become mere "gin-mills." But all that is changed.

It was in the second year of the war that Lloyd George determined to check inefficiency and waste, especially in munition centres, unnatural concentration of all huge bodies of workers removed from the traditional checks of their natal environment led to great increase in drunkenness. In a year Carlisle, inundated by workers, headed the list of eighty-five Crown Boroughs in England and Wales with 180.45 convictions for drunkenness per 10,000 of population. The State realized that prohibition, whether at Carlisle or throughout Britain, was impracticable.

In 1916 the State, acting under the Defense of the Realm Act, took over Carlisle's four breweries and 119 public houses, closed off-license "pubs" and canceled all grocers' licenses in order to stop home drinking. The State stripped all its "pubs" of the liquor signs that still smother many an old tavern.

Government Control Stays

From Carlisle the State control embraced the surrounding country, including the romantic little town of Gretna across the Scottish border, once famous for runaway marriages. Of the 953 convicted for drunkenness in Carlisle, 788 were munitions workers from abnormally enlarged population of Gretna. The total area over which State control extended, and where to-day it survives the war, included about five hundred square miles on both sides of the Solway Firth. Scotland has local option, but at the polling in 1923 the British wers were amazed to see the three Scottish burghs voting "no change" in the war-time control of liquor by the State.

John Bull may never vote prohibition, but the Government Blue Book on Liquor in England and Wales shows that more beer and less spirits are drunk today; that there has been a steady diminution in arrests for drunkenness as well as in the facilities for getting drunk; that local option is becoming a familiar political slogan, and that the liquor trade is worried. But John Bull is not worrying. He is undergoing a tional sobering process. Registered clubs increase, and convictions for dispensing or drinking methylated spirits are frequent.

No Liquor to Children

Carlisle is an omen, for the agitation for local option and further legislation centres about Carlisle and the reforms there effected. In 1916 the State anticipated juvenile legislation by raising the age of young persons permitted to enter its public houses in Carlisle from sixteen to eighteen years. How tardy was such legislation is shown by the fact that the age limit had only been raised to fourteen as late as 1908, when the Children's act denied the public bars to those under fourteen and forbade the sale of liquor to a child under fourteen except "in corked and sealed vessels in quantities not less than one reputed pint," and then for "off" consumption only, the real consumers presumably being the parents. In 1910 the Consolidation act had raised the age from fourteen to sixteen, in respect to the "on" sale of spirits, that is, for drinking on the premises, but with no restrictions as to beer.

In 1916, when the State took control of Carlisle, it instructed its managers not to "sell or allow to be sold to any person apparently under the age of eighteen years for consumption on the premises (1) spirits of any description; (2) ale, beer, stout, or porter, except for consumption with a meal." As in the rest of Britain, the proportionate age of the young among the munition workers at Carlisle was very high. And Carlisle and its vicinity, controlled by the State from 1916 to the present day, alone benefited by this law until, in 1923, Lady Astor's bill raised the age from sixteen to eighteen for the rest of Britain.

Under State Guidance.

British wets and the liquor interests resent the State making a large profit out of Carlisle. The last report of the Secretary of State, ended March 31, 1924, shows the State owning plant and working capital in the Carlisle area amounting to $5,594,610. After meeting all charges and paying itself for licenses, the State's trading profits for the year amounted to $557 535. The trading receipts for 1923-24 more than covered the expenditure for compensation and reduced the advances from the exchequer by $517,380.

The State policy, which to-day impresses Britain, consists in improving facilities for comfort and service, and not pushing the sales of its liquor. The State offers alcohol, but the salaries of its managers and barmaids do not depend on sales, and it offers counter attractions of good food and soft drinks. Since 90 per cent. of the public houses of Britain are "tied," that is, owned by a distillery or brewery, the liquor trade is worried, naturally.

But the war-time powers of "Dora," as the defense of the Realm act is called, alone does not account for the success of the Carlisle scheme. It was the Balfour act of 1904 that subtly prepared the way for diminishing drunkenness as well as for the revolutionary war control of liquor. The Balfour act provided a compensation fund in each district, to which each publican contributes a tax based upon the pro-rata value of his premises and business.

A Powerful Act.

This levy is collected with his regular taxes and credited to the local Compensation Fund. Nothing could be simpler or more equitable than to compensate a "pub," judged to be one too many for the needs of its district, from a fund to which it contributes, instead of from the national pocket. This compensation levy, the liquor trade now realizes, was the fulcrum for Government control.

Under the Balfour act, magistrates of the Licensing Boards of Britain obtained authority to close any public house that is unnecessary for its locality or whose trade has diminished; they always had the power of closing those breaking police laws. Thus the magistrates could refuse to renew licenses for plethora of licensed houses that were so conspicuous a feature from ancient times of British cities and towns. No public house, however old, may obtain its license for more than a year, though magistrates may grant a discretionarbe seven-year license subject to a clean police record Thus control over the annual license was another power reinforced by the Balofur act of 1904.

Under the compensation levy of the Balfour act there has been a steady diminution of public houses, while a corresponding decrease in drunkenness is shown in the latest Blue Book. An on-license enables a publican to sell liquor for consumption on his premises or for taking home, while an off-license confines him, like a grocer, to the home trade. In 1895, in the decade preceding the Balfour act, there were 103,341 unlicensed "pubs" in England and Wales, or 33.94 per 10,000 of population. In 1914, a decade after the act began to work, there were 87,660 on-licensed "pubs" in England and Wales, or 23.50 per 10,000 of population. Meanwhile convictions for drunkenness fell from 207,171 in 905 to 183,828 in 1914. The severe effects of war- me egislation reduced convictions from 135,811 in 1915 to 29,075 in 1918.

Ma istrates Have The Say.

Here are some of the reasons why magistrates refused to renew licenses in 1923: Not necessary for the neighborhood; misconduct in management; premises structuarily deficient; licensee not a fit and proper person. Offenses that lost publicans licenses in 1923 were: Selling drink to habitual drunkards; to drunken persons; to persons under age; permitting drunkenness on the premises, and violating the closing hours.

Some conditions under which new licenses are granted show the power of the boards. In 1923 the following conditions were imposed: No bars to be kept; liquor to be served at table where food may be partaken; no sale before noon or sales from 11 a.m., the legal time for other "pubs," to only 2:30 p.m., and from 4:30 to 5:30 p.m. These special hours vary with each locality and its needs, but no publican in Britain has any appeal from the restrictions. Or he may sell liquor only to bona fide guests or with bona fide meals; he must provide facilities for persons drinking water only; and as in the State "pubs" of the Carlisle area he must provide tea, coffee, cocoa, mineral waters and food alone, with liquor at his bar.

Prevention and Cure.

This campaign to sober John Bull has not only reduced his facilities for getting liquor but also attended to the quality of his drink. Said a character in one of Thomas Love Peacock's novels: "There are two reasons for drinking; one is when you are thirsty, to cure it; the other, when you are not thirsty, to prevent it. * * * Prevention is better than cure." While this was the State's attitude in the war and since cure meant the impossible step of prohibition, the quality and strength of John's liquor were changed. The legal pre-war standard was a dilution up to 25 degrees under proof for brandy, whisky or rum and up to 35 degrees under proof for gin. The so-called full-proof British spirits that were sold here before prohibition were never drunk in Britain.

By displaying signs like "All spirits sold here are mixed," or "No alcoholic strength guaranteed," the publican was within the law. In certain whisky liquors John got full strength liquor. But when war control came in 1916, spirits were diluted by law up to 30 degrees under proof and the publican was allowed to make dilution as he saw fit up to 50 degrees under proof, a legal privilege he was not slow to use when stocks ran short. Meanwhile the drinking of beer was encouraged.

The war-time Restriction act of 1916 sent the prices of beer and spirits about 50 per cent. higher. Beer before the war averaged 4 cents a pint, ale and stout averaged 6 cents a pint. After this act they averaged 7 to 10 cents a pint. The American pre-Volstead custom of observing the old German proverb, "Fill what you will and drink what you fill" has never obtained in Britain. The regulation "tot" is a Government measure of one fluid ounce and has always been filled by the bartender, no customer ever having the bottle at a British public bar.

Before the war a "tot" of whisky of bar stock averaged 5 cents of a well-known brand 6 to 8 cents. To-day a "tot" of any whisky costs 16 cents and is 50 degrees or more under proof. A bottle of whisky that cost 75 cents now costs $3.13 and is under proof by 50 degrees.

No Pubs, Then Clubs

Meanwhile John Bull is concerned about his liberties. He likes to quote that old saw about an Englishman's home being sacred. But by this he usually means his club. He invented Parliament, which now legislates on his liquor, and so he has invented the club to protect him from his Parliament. As soon as the Balfour act of 1904 began to reduce his "pubs" by compensation, John Bull began to increase his clubs.

Up to January 1, 1923, the Blue Book records 11,126 registered clubs, an increase of 463 in England and Wales in the preceding year. Since then it is estimated that the annual increase has doubled. All these clubs are licensed to sell liquor to their members, whether rich or poor. In 1905, a year after the Balfour act, there were 99,478 on-licensed and 25,405 off-licensed "pubs," compared with 6,589 clubs in England and Wales. In 1914 there were 87,660 on-licensed, 22,473 off-licensed "pubs" and 7,972 clubs. In 1923 the on-licensed "pubs" decreased by about 494, while clubs increased by 341. Taking the whole period since 1904 when the Balfour act began, the clubs have increased by 4,755 in England and Wales, while there was a decrease of unlicensed "pubs" by 18,449.

Clubs are plentiful in Wales, where, as in Scotland, Sunday closing obtains, but the club in its vicious forms, like the night variety, is largely an urban product. So flagrant has the night club become in London that the Home Secretary is now preparing a bill to deal effectively with it.

The crux of the club question lies in its immunity from police inspection. The new bill intends to place it on the same footing with the "pub" in regard to police regulations. It will also make the registration of clubs more difficult.

If the bill is passed the club will have to declare the object of its existence, along with other intimate information, before a license is granted. It will have, moreov to renew its license annually, like a public house, and show the same clean slate from the police. In short, the new bill will enable the police to stop the illigalities of the mushroom type of club used mainly for drinking under the excuse of dancing.

The liquor interests have not been idle. They have made various promises of reform, especially since the continuance of Carlisle and State control into the post-war world keeps alive the bogy of nationalization of the liquor trade. The alternative to State control so far urged by the west is the instituion of a disinterested management like a public trust. It would copy the Carlisle scheme but remain in private or semi-public hands outside State control.

The liquor trade, the British drys reply, is a strictly commercial enterprise which expects to sell as much liquor as possible for profit; therefore, how should the liquor trade become disinterested? Meanwhile John Bull is drinking more beer than spirits, and the brewers instead of the distillers are profiting. Winston Churchill began his term as Chancellor of the Exchequer in Premier Baldwin's Cabinet by startling England with the statement that the British brewer's profits had more than doubled since the year before the war. In 1913-14 the estimated profit of the brewers was $49,885,000; in 1922-23, despite restrictions and an enhanced price of beer, their profit was $93,000,000. The Blue Book comments on the increase in the per capita consumption of beer against a decrease in the available amount of spirits.

It is an axiom of British politicians that the workingman's beer is a sacred subject. When organizing the country for a second year of war, planning to check by heavy taxes the consumption of liquor and control in its naval, military and munition areas, Lloyd George felt it necessary to apologize for his step. He said:

"Of all the perplexing and disagreeable tasks that could fall to the lot of any Minister I think that any attempt to provide a solution for the drink difficulty is about the worst. * * * To agree upon the facts is bad enough, but to agree about a remedy is impossible. * * * Every Government that has ever touched alcohol has burnt its fingers in its lurid flames. Whenever you try to approach it there are barbed-wire entanglements on every road, and passions and prejudices and principles all of the most explosive character behind them."

While they differ in their solutions, yet both wets and drys agree that liquor is still a problem in British national life and that some means of increasing national sobriety must be reached this side of prohibition. Local option may come in England, as it did in Scotland, but John Bull, for all his fearful glances across the wet Atlantic at the condition of dry America, will scarcely let Parliament take away his beer.

Hlow The English Channel Foils Swimmers

ONLY FIVE OUT OF HUNDREDS HAVE SUCCEEDED IN CROSSING CHANNEL UNDER OWN POWER

Fifty Years Ago Captain Webb Amazed the World by Performing Feat—Argentinean Holds Speed Record He Set in 1923 Trial.

TIDES AND BRINE COMBINE

Experts Discuss Ability of Women Swimmers to Cross and Decide They Will Win Laurels — Cost is Almost Prohibitive—$2,000 for One Trial.

By L. de B. Handley.

THE English Channel—which recently conjured one of its ugly moods and foiled the game efforts of the girl swimmer, Miss Gertrude Ederle, of the Women's Swimming Association of New York, to cross its waters—has been the coveted goal of the world's greatest exponents of natatorial endurance as far back as man can remember. Long before it was crossed for the first time by a swimmer—exactly half a century ago—champions of many lands had pitted their skill against the Channel gods. By then, in fact, so many failures had been recorded that the feat was believed quite beyond human strength and stamina.

It was left to an Englishman, Captain Matthew Webb, who subsequently lost his life in braving the Niagara rapids, to demonstrate that the popular belief was unfounded and that the Channel could be conquered. In the Summer of 1875 he amazed the entire swimming world by accomplishing that supposedly impossible exploit in 21 hours 45 minutes.

Apparently Captain Webb's success served to arouse afresh the ambitions of other aspirants to Channel laurels, for a number of attempts soon followed and continued to be made yearly thereafter. But thirty-six years elapsed before another doughty waterman was able to emulate Webb's achievement. William Burgess, an Englishman—who has lately been training Miss Lillian Harrison, of Argentine swimmers—effected the crossing in 1911, but in slightly slower time than Webb, completing the trip in 22 hours 35 minutes.

Three Conquer the Channel.

Frequent trials have taken place each Summer since (except for an interval during the period of the war, when the Channel was forbidden territory); but not until twelve years after Burgess had triumphed did victory again occur. Then, strangely enough, came what may be termed the red letter season for Channel swimmers. No less than three fortunate candidates placed the notable feat to their credit in quick succession during the Summer of 1923.

Henry P. Sullivan of Lowell, Mass., was the first of the trio to go through. He attained the goal after a bitterly fought struggle lasting nearly twenty-eight hours. Next, Enrico Tiraboschi, an Argentinean of Italian extraction, made the punishing swim in 16 hours 33 minutes, beating by 5 hours 12 minutes Webb's record for the course and setting up a mark which has remained untouched to this day. Lastly, Charles Toth of Boston won his niche in the hall of fame by getting across in 16 hours 40 minutes—just seven minutes behind record time.

These five now share the glory of being the only ones, out of hundreds of honor seekers, who have vanquished the twenty miles of turbulent and tide-swept waters between Dover and Calais.

The chronicle of Channel failures would make interesting reading, for numerous swimmers, thoroughly equipped for the big test, have lost out after plucky and meritorious efforts, solely because circumstances went against them—often with success at hand. Take, for instance, Jabez Wolffe of England, who prepared Miss Ederle for her recent trial. He possessed not only the skill and physical resources necessary, but keen knowledge of Channel conditions; yet on several occasions he came within an ace of the goal, only to see himself frustrated at the eleventh hour by contrary tides.

Attempts of Women Swimmers.

Unfortunately, reports of unsuccessful attempts are not always reliable. At present interest is so alive that trials on the part of noted swimmers, at least, draw a full contingent of dependable witnesses. But it was different in the past; and even now the attempts of some candidates are made without an authoritative following. It is therefore unwise to take at face value all of the claims raised in such cases.

For this reason it is difficult to speak with assurance of the performances of some of the women swimmers who have tried the Channel. It is generally accepted, however, that previous to this Summer the best attempts were effected by Baroness I. Von Isacescu of Austria, Miss Lily Smith of England and Miss Annette Kellermann of Australia, said to have lasted in their trials approximately ten, six and five hours, in the order named.

This season there have been three exceptionally impressive feats: those of Miss Lillian Harrison, an Anglo-Argentine girl; Mme. Jeanne Sion of France and the American champion, Miss Gertrude Ederle.

Miss Harrison swam a bit more than half way across in 8 hours 45 minutes, then collapsed and narrowly escaped drowning. Mme. Sion was in the water 13 hours 30 minutes, and some reports stated that she reached within a mile and a quarter of the English coast—though her previous performances afford evidence that she lacks the speed to cover anything like the claimed mileage in the quoted time. Distances on the water are extremely deceptive and no doubt a mistake was made.

Miss Ederle had the bad luck to encounter very rough weather after seven hours under way, and broke down in consequence, having gone further, however, in 8 hours 46 minutes than has any other swimmer on the Channel course in that space of time.

These failures by mermaids of high rating again have raised the question, Does any woman possess the required physical and mental qualifications for making the Channel swim? Many think not. But experts best competent to judge attribute these failures to other than lack of essential resources. In Miss Ederle's case failure is laid entirely to the storm, which they believe would have stopped any swimmer. It is their viction that the great feat is well within woman's scope, past events notwithstanding.

Reasons for Failure.

One thing is certain: no man or woman can hope to swim the Channel unless conditions are favorable. Luck in finding fair weather throughout is indispensable—which obviously makes the element of chance a very large factor.

It goes without saying that excellence in watermanship, stamina, imperviousness to cold and dauntless courage are absolutely necessary. At the same time the best-equipped swimmer who ever lived would be doomed to defeat if the weather gods turned unpropitious. Not infrequently good conditions encourage a start. Then, when the trial is on, a sudden storm will arise. Before one knows it battering waves, through which no swimmer can proceed, are churning the Channel into a maelstrom.

But rough and very cold water (usually registering under 60 degrees Fahrenheit) is far from being the only difficulty against which the Channel swimmer must contend. Undoubtedly responsible for a goodly percentage of the failures is the fact that success depends on figuring accurately in advance the influence of the swirling tides. Of this one can never be certain.

To understand the problem which is faced in laying out plans for any Channel trial it must be realized that the Strait of Dover, where the swim is made, is formed by two sharp promontories, on either side of which land recedes abruptly. Swift tides sweep the course laterally, running approximately eastward and westward, back and forth, for periods of about five and three-quarter hours in each direction.

Salt Water Blindness.

Salt water blindness, due to the effect of brine on the eyes, is still another potential obstacle in the path of the Channel swimmer. Occasionally swimmers have been known to lose their sight completely for a time and to become incapable of following the piloting craft. The affliction is temporary; one soon recovers after leaving the water; but it may prove fatal to one's chances. Late water goggles have been devised to protect the eyes. Miss Ederle used them. But they are hard to fit and useless unless they are perfectly watertight.

Comes next the actual attempt, for which an ocean-going tug is essential, as well as a skiff with attendants to keep in close touch with the swimmer from start to finish. Nourishment when called for must be handed out and help must beavailable on the instant in case of emergency.

These items, combined with cost of travel, lodging and maintenance (not to mention the often high-mounting incidentals), serve to make any attempt to swim the Channel a venture which demands an outlay of $2,000 at the very least. The three-thousand-dollar mark is likely to be touched if a second or third trial is indulged in.

The widespread belief that the crossing of the Channel entails an actual swim of more than thirty miles is without foundation. Due to the lateral tidal drift, as explained, the route followed by the swimmer may show on paper a course of as much as forty or more miles, according to the number of hours in the water; but this is chart mileage. The swimmer negotiates, by his efforts, just about twenty miles, the distance between shores as the crow flies. The rest is tidal deviation.

This brings up the interest point of the merit of Tiraboschi's established record of 16 hours 33 minutes and the likelihood of its being improved upon in years to come. It is not that if devotees of the Channel school of swimming take to trying the Channel test—something they have not done so far—the Argentinian's mark will be bettered by several hours. Neither Tiraboschi nor Toth (and the latter almost equaled the former's time), begins to compare in speed with the average marathon racer of the present day. Though some claim that speed swimmers cannot last long enough to effect the crossing, this argument will not hold water. As we know the crawl stroke has been used for continuous swims of fifteen to seventeen hours, and it should not take an expert crawler more than twelve hours to cover twenty miles at the pace which must be held for such a distance.

Lavish Maharajah Startles Britain

Ruler of Patiala is Said to Have Abolished Poverty in His Realm.

SAVOY MADE OVER

Artists Paint New Pictures in Hotel for Chieftain's Pleasure.

The Maharajah of Patiala, India, who has been startling Britain with his display of wealth and luxury, is of the old school of benevolent despots. When in London recently he used an entire floor of the Savoy Hotel and lived like a Sultan in a fairy tale, surrounded by everything money could buy, including a fair Maharanee, a host of Indian courtiers, servitors and cooks. He went by way of Paris, where he spent two days, to Geneva to attend the meetings of the League of Nations, and there he appeared in clothes and turbans studded with jewels. It is said that he changes his costume—or at any rate his turban and jewelry for every different appointment, and that he has to spend as much time in his dressing room as a star in a period play.

It took a procession of twenty resplendent cars to carry the Maharajah and his suite from their London hotel to the boat train for France—not counting an earlier cavalcade that had escorted the Maharanee and her closely veiled attendants to their private railroad car, nor the motor lorries that brought the luggage. The Maharajah had 320 trunks—120 more than he brought to London. The new ones contained the trifles he had bought since he had been there. A special squad of detectives has to be provided by each country he visits to protect the potentate and his possessions.

When he has finished his business of representing the Indian Princes at the League of Nations Assembly the Maharajah will go back to London. Meantime seven artists are at work on the "millionaires' wing" of the Savoy Hotel, painting new pictures on the panels of the throne room and the official reception rooms, in preparation for his return. Half of the Indian cooking staff, brought specially from Patiala, have also remained in London, to see that the Maharajah's son (who has stayed behind there) has his food properly prepared.

Special Food by Trains de Luxe

But the cargoes of special foods, rice, ginger and ingredients for curries, which have been coming over from India ever since the monarch's departure, in order that he might have them fresh, have been diverted from London to Geneva. They make the journey from Patiala, a native State in British India, to Bombay by car, are placed in special care on board ship, and are rushed from Marseilles across France by the passenger "trains de luxe."

An incredulous world has been informed that the Maharajah has brought $5,000,000 worth of his gems with him on this trip to Europe. But these are nothing to what he has at home. There it requires twenty huge steel trunks to contain all the crown jewels. The twenty trunks are in charge of twenty old and faithful retainers, descendants of others who have been in the employment of the titular ruler of Patiala (and engaged in the same position of trust) for nearly 1,000 years.

Each of the twenty servitors has the key to one trunk, but no trunk can be opened except by a combination which has to be executed on the other nineteen at the same time, that is to say, in the presence of all twenty guards.

The palace of Patiala, according to current accounts, is something of an advance on the most fanciful dreams of theatrical scenic artists, and the hotels de luxe of Europe are hard put to it to provide the Maharajah accommodation in which he can even make shift to camp for a while.

Despite such background, it appears that he is nothing short of a model chieftain—for British definitions assert that Rajahs and Maharajahs, although Hindu princes, now rank not as Kings but as tribal chieftains in British India.

The Maharajah's income, like that of most rulers, is the fruit of taxation. But in Patiala the amount of taxation is graduated according to the year's harvest. When the harvest is a poor one the year's taxes are remitted altogether. In addition, all those in need receive reimbursements of their previous taxes from the Maharajah's treasury. When the harvest is particularly good the taxes, of course, are increased—but nobody grumbles.

Free Collegiate Education

Apart from the open Durbars, the Maharajah is also the High Court of Appeal in the ordinary course of law. He travels frequently among his subjects, who all know him. Recently, this native monarch introduced into Patiala the first traveling dispensaries in India. He gives large sums of money to medical and scientific research work both in his own territory and, for special purposes, abroad. Not only primary but also collegiate education is free throughout Patiala; and the Maharajah is now giving his close attention to social reform movements in Europe, with a view to choosing and adapting what he conceives to be the best of them, for his own people.

Three out of the four public appearances he made in London were visite to philanthropic institutions for thn purpose of gaining further informatioe as to social welfare work. The three were the British Humane Association, the Salvation Army and the Institution of the Blind.

The Maharajah is said to have given immense sums to charity during his reign.

IRISH TITLE IS NOT A SIGN OF MEANS

Sir Thomas Moore, Holder of Ancient Baronetcy Could Not Pay Rent.

DUBLIN (By Mail — Canadian Press).—A title in Ireland is not a guarantee of means. At Cork, Sir Thomas Moore, the eleventh holder of one of the oldest British baronetcies, created in 1681, has just had an order of ejectment made against him from his humble home because he had failed to pay a rent of 16 pounds. Sir Thomas is 81 years of age, and the magistrate put a stay of six weeks on the order.

Wireless To Rule Lives British Professor Says

London.

A fantastic picture of a world run by wireless in the year 2025 A. D. is painted by Professor A. M. Low, noted educator, who predicts that light will be broadcast by wireless, all means of locomotion will be controlled by wireless, and women will at last dress logically in a one-piece hygienic suit, warmed by wireless.

In a book called "The Future" the professor indeed makes the world of a hundred years hence an attractive place in which to live, if simplicity of existence be our aim.

Power for all purposes, always on tap, is the happy aid which the housewives will have to combat the servant question, if one exists then. Wireless will lighten the burden of the business man and also that of the burglar, according to Professor Low. Signatures to checks may be sent by wireless to the bank while the cashier watches by "television." Wireless will be equally helpful to the burglar, who will probably locate hidden valuables by portable radio surveying instruments and other electrical methods.

The average man of 2025 will be awakened by a radio alarm clock. He will take a few minutes of radio light treatment to keep fit and alert for the business day. Little time will be wasted in putting on his synthetic felt one-piece suit and his hat—the latter being worn almost continuously owing to the fact that baldness will be almost universal then.

At breakfast, which may come up by tube from a communal kitchen, a loud speaker will take the place of a morning paper, giving him all the news, while a "television" machine will replace the daily pictorial newspapers. He will then go to his office in his own car, which will be carried by an elevator to the door of his office. If he has to go anywhere on foot moving sidewalks will convey him without exertion, and automatic telephones will be everywhere and will get the right number all the time.

In the evening when a business man goes to the movies he will see half a dozen films being shown at the same time on the same screen. He will glance at the program and by setting his observation apparatus to the key number of the film he wishes to see, he will cut out all but that one. Then he will go home to his wireless bed, which will make sleep automatic.

STYLES IN CASKETS CHANGE OFTEN KEEPING PACE WITH NEW IDEAS

Coffins Were Custom Built in Peterborough in 1870 —Made To Measure.

NOW DE LUXE MODELS.

Cortege Was Impresisve Affair Replete With Black Waving Plumes.

According to a prominent Peterboro funeral service, fashions in caskets are suffering radical changes in these modern times. Now the sight of a horse drawn hearse covered with waving plumes would excite a frenzy of comment; to the same extent the coffin of the 19th century, with its shaped design and austere finish of black could not survive in competition with the variety of those used to-day. With the colored and highly polished surfaces which deck the modern receptacle and the high degree of efficiency shown in transport vehicles, death would appear to be losing some of its sombre hues. At one time within the memo. of most Peterboro people, the undertaker's assistant acted as an advance agent in preparing the incidentals of a funeral. If the obsequies were to take place in the afternoon the assistant visited the pall-bearers in the morning, doling out an equipment of black hat bands, arm bands and gloves. This visitation also served the purpose of getting them in the proper frame of mind. Black bordered funeral announcements were tacked on telephone poles for the purpose of acquainting all and sundry of the particulars; at the bottom was the legend: 'Friends and acquaintances kindly accept this intimation.' Pictured representations of the funeral cortege show the horses proceeding at a stately pace, and seated on the forward part of the hearse are the driver and undertaker, both in erect posture, and clad in the conventional high hats and long frock coats.

In 1870, coffins were made in Peterboro in the undertaking establishments, but they were made to order after the intended occupant had nothing to say in the matter of choice. There were no large stocks from which to choose a design and size suitable. Possibly the under--taker would have nothing to do with the actual burial proceedings. This was particularly true if the body was in some distant part of the country, in which case someone would drive into town, load the coffin on a wagon and depart with it. Most of the coffins were of shaped basswood, although some were made of iron or rolled steel. In that particular there is at present a slight tendency to revert to the steel casket, as many of the newer models are of metal.

Although bodies were often kept for a week before interment, embalming, as it is now practised, was not known, or if it was known, it had not been universally adopted. Now it is necessary that those who may prepare bodies for burial, must have a certificate stating that they are qualified embalmers.

Casket Improved.

The present day casket is a masterpiece of the cabinet maker's art, the price varies from $75 to $2500 according to the accumulations of the deceased or the munificence of his relatives. Much metal is being used now and it is thought that in time the metal caskets will oust the less durable wooden fabrications. Oak, walnut and cherry are favored woods because of the high polish which can be produced.

Caskets may also be obtained covered in heavy velour, velvet, plush or broadcloth, but at present the steel and bronze caskets are the more popular while a beautiful sample is one of a silver alloy, figured in varied designs. Couch caskets, which open from head to foot, and were popular many years ago are returning to public favor; of late years the casket when open showed only the upper half of the body. Some of the more expensive kinds are lined with copper and glass, these are hermetically sealed, and are used largely for those stricken with contagious diseases.

There has lately been perfected a steel vault into which the casket may be placed; the door closes on a rubber surface, and when an outer handle is turned a vacuum is created which alone would hold the door closed tightly. As an added precaution there is a combination lock which may be set on the removal of a screw.

Handles on caskets have changed materially, for instead of the individual handle, there is now a bar along each side made of bronze or Grecian silver, according to the trimming employed.

Science of Embalming.

Questioned as to the comparison between present day methods, and those employed by the ancient Egyptians the gentleman interviewed declared that there was far greater advancement now, in that the cosmetic effect was much better. When an Egyptian was mummified his features were lost, and he became unrecognizable. Spices were used to obtain a similar effect to that which follows the filling of an apple with cloves; the apple may be preserved for an indefinite period and the body when treated in that manner may be preserved in similarly. It is necessary however to mutiliate the body, use a certain clay, and then wind it with bandages. The meaning of the term embalming, as it is used to-day, is preservation, disinfection and sanitation. There is absolutely no mutilation entailed, while the process is exceedingly simple and thorough; neither is there any secrecy about it as is commonly believed, for people are allowed to remain in the room where the process is taking place.

Present day demands for the stringency of sanitary laws practically enforce the treatment of all bodies and it is because of this demand that embalmers must be qualified and pass tests before they are licensed to practise the art.

GOODRICH RUBBER CANADIAN COMPANY

Canadian Business Has Been Reorganized as Separate Company.

In pursuance of its policy of developing in Canada a thoroughly-Canadian industry, self-contained and distinctive, the Goodrich Rubber Company has decided to operate all its branches in this country under the name, "Canadian Goodrich Company, Limited." This is the final step in Canadianizing a great manufacturing concern which had its beginning, in this Dominion, as a branch organization, and the new name will embrace both manufacturing and selling departments of the Goodrich business.

There is no intention, for the present, of dropping the Sales Corporations which have been, in the past, separate entities in the Goodrich organization. These will continue to exist in a practical manner, but will be co-ordinated in the most complete manner with the manufacturing interests at Kitchener. The simplification of title entailed will be welcome news in trade circles, but the public in general will be interested in this recognition by the Goodrich corporation of the distinct identity as a company of their Canadian industry.

JACK-IN-PULPIT DIFFERS IN FALL

Poor Old Jack, Gone to Seed, Looks Like Big Red Hot Raspberry.

Walking in the sunlight woods of autumn, one comes frequently on a plant that somehow looks familiar and yet doesn't. Those three-parted leaves—surely one has seen them before; and yet, that odd, thick, crimson object between them, looking for all the world like a red hot blackberry multiplied by ten. Yes, that is the unfamiliar thing about it. What is this metamorphosed old friend, anyway?

It is only poor old Jack-in-the-pulpit, gone to seed.

All ramblers in springtime woods know the Jack-in-the-Pulpit. Many have even experienced the delights of rubbing the cut surface of its rootstock upon their tongues, or the still greater delights of introducing an unitiated brother into the cult of the Memory Root.

To some, however, the "Jack" is familiar only as a springtime plant; in his summer aspect, he is apt to be passed by unrecognized. He may still be known by the trifoliate leaves with their curious "closed venation—that is, with a vein running around near the margin and connecting up the ends of all the larger veins in the leaf; and also by the seed-head.

The "preacher" of the springtime pulpit is of course a stalk bearing rows of tiny flowers, each of which produces its seed surrounded by a thin, fleshy pulp, and all of them together forming a close cluster of bright red berries.

WILD BERGAMOT IS APPRECIATED

Flowers Along the Roadside When Others Have Faded Away.

USED IN WAR.

Along the weedy roadsides its blue flames are still burning, though the drought of late summer, and the frost-threats of early fall have quenched most other flowers. A tousle-headed, ragged, untidy, Handy-Andy of a plant, one passes it by in midsummer, when it first comes into bloom, and learns only to appreciate it when its less hardy companions are faded and gone.

The wild bergamot is one of the largest flowered representatives of the mint family that we have in our range. Its deep, long-throated flowers are much visited by bumblebees, which are about the only insects that have long enough tongues to reach to the nectar at their bottoms. A mint, too, its square, hard-angled stem proclaims it, as well as the powerful scent of its crushed foliage.

During the great war, when the valuable drug thymol was hard to get ,the usual German sources being cut off, a very close relative of the bergamot, known commonly as horsemint, stepped into the breach. It was gathered in quantities and steam distilled, yeilding fair amounts of the precious drug, and might have been wiped out in some sections, but that the armistice saved it by restoring the old supply.

Any one who follows the praiseworthy and poetic practice of making "weed gardens" of goldenrod, wild sunflowers, asters, ironweed and the like, would do well to plant a few clumps of wild bergamot.

SCHOOL ASSOCIATION.

Rev. Wm. Allan Gave Inspiring Address at Central School.

The regular monthly meeting of the Central Home and School Association was held in the school last evening, the president, Mrs. E. H. Howson, in the chair. A brief business session preceded an enjoyable programme. Discussion of plans for the winter's work took place and for the carrying on of the society's relief endeavors. Suggestions were also made as to the best methods of cooperating in relief work with the King's Daughters.

The programme included an inspiring address, puctuated with humorous allusions, given by Rev. William Allan, pastor of St. Paul's Church. Entitled "Odds and Ends" it referred mainly to the problem of parents in making their homes so attractive for the present day restless generation of young people as to make them willing to stay at home once in a while.

Instrumental numbers were played by Dorothy Gavine and Alda Bartlett, and vocal solos rendered by Miss E. Dix.

PROJECTED TUNNEL ECONOMIZE LABOR

Possible To Connect London With Cape Town By Railway.

By RALPH HEINZEN
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

PARIS, Nov. 14.—(United Press) —London and Paris to Rio de Janeiro and Buenos Aires in seven or eight days, with only five days at sea; London to South Africa without changing trains, and London to Paris in three hours without any of the discomforts of crossing the Channel with its choppy waves.

All that could be possible by two feats of engineering which, unfortunately, were sidetracked by the war. These include the building of a tunnel under the Channel at its narrowest point, from Calais to Dover, and the construction of a similar tunnel under the Straits of Gibraltar.

Fifty thousand men could be employed during ten years at these tasks which would require financing to the extent of more than a billion francs. But the eventual saving of time would be great, for the crossing of the Channel would be reduced to twenty-five minutes and the Straits to twenty minutes.

The plan of tunnelling under the Channel came near to realization a few years before the war. Commercially, it would advance the relations of Britain with the Continent to a great extent. It would eliminate the double handling of freight at both sides of the Channel and a train made up in England could carry its load to any place on the Continent.

The question of tunnelling the Straits of Gibraltar was brought up first by a French engineer named Berthier in 1898. He pointed out that trains from Paris and London could travel directly to Dakar, which would be developed into a great port from which lines of steamships would radiate to the principal ports of South America. Three days on land and five days at sea would connect London with Buenos Aires.

This tunnel would be 25 kilometres in length, but the depth of the Straits and the condition of the sub-soil would necessitate the building of the tube at a great depth, probably 2,400 feet below the sea. When this plan was first proposed the work could have been done comparatively cheap with colored native African labor.

As recently as last year, engineers took up the matter again and estimated the cost of the undertaking at 500,000,000 francs, a sum which it would be impossible to raise from the interested governments at this time. It is not wholly impossible, though, that private enterprise might take a hand, and at any rate, the question is again being studied by experts in Paris who estimate the time of building at ten years and the preparatory work, including the interesting of the nations concerned, at another ten years.

BACK FROM WILDWOODS

the party was travelling, ran into and killed a large bull moose.

Referring to the fox which they brought back, Mr. Jopling said that it was shot by Thomas Brightman, one of the local members of the party, and was, in Mr. Jopling's opinion, the finest shot of the season, Mr. Brightman killing it at a range of 150 yards. "Mr. Brightman was a father to us all," said Mr. Jopling, who attributed the success of the party to the genial manner in which Mr. Brightman handled the many cases which the different members brought before him for settlement in his official capacity as Judge. Roy Nikrenz and Harry Jopling were successful in bringing down two of the largest bucks ever shot in that part of the country, and all the way down in the train, members of the different parties were coming in to view them.

Not Badly Lost.

Mr. Jopling said that two of the boys went out and came across four deer which they shot before they could escape. He said one day three of the boys decided to go for a walk, and a few hours later when they did not turn up it was decided to organize a search party. They found them in the bush, not three hundred yards from the camp, surrounding by a heap of firewood which they had gathered, evidently thinking that they were hopelessly lost, and would have to spend a night in the open.

Crystal gazing is not all humbug; it might very well be used in scientific diagnosis, suggests Dr. Lee Edward Travis, of Iowa State University, for crystal gazing is a way of making a person daydream, and this is a border line of the hypnotic state. Doctor Travis himself, says Popular Science Monthly, uses crystal gazing in diagnosing certain types of insanity.

OTTAWA RUGBY FANS NURSING HOPES OF FIRST CHAMPIONSHIP OF INTERPROVINCIAL SINCE 1909

Game With Tigers This Afternoon Feature Event in Dominion.

FIELD IS HEAVY.

Capital All Agog With Excitement—Team in Good Shape.

The Rugby card for to-day:

Interprovincial Union.

Senior—Hamilton at Ottawa.

Intercollegiate Union.

Senior—McGill at Varsity.

Junior—Queen's at Loyola College.

Ontario Union.

Senior—Varsity at Balmy Beach; Camp Borden at Hamilton Rowing Club.

Intermediate—Hamilton at Galt, St. Catharines at Kitchener.

Junior—Ossingtons vs. Argonauts (Rosedale field); Dundas at Sarnia.

Interscholastic — Kingston vs. University Schools, at Port Hope; Oshawa at Peterboro; Oakwood at Burlington.

OTTAWA, Nov. 14.—Indications early this morning were that Tigers and Ottawa would meet to-day on a mud-soaked gridiron. Although every precaution was taken to protect the playing field, it is feared that the sawdust, shavings and straw will not provide a waterproof cover.

Tigers and Ottawas staged one grand old argument in the mud at Hamilton last Saturday, and the fans were praying for a dry field so that the two great teams might be seen at their best under favorable conditions.

Ottawas finished their workouts yesterday with a signal drill and a heart-to-heart talk by Dave McCann. The team is fit and ready for the battle and confident that to-night will find them alone on the top rung of the Interprovincial ladder. It will be a determined lot that will face the Bengals this afternoon, and the visitors should be forced to the very heights of football displays if they annex the decision.

No changes will be made in the Senator line-up from that which started in Hamilton. McCann is well satisfied with his squad and will depend on the men who have carried them through the last four games to bring home the honors in the final big four tilt. Tubman is being counted on to shoulder the lion's share of the burden, although much depends on Miller's hands on the half line with the captain.

Tubman has turned in nothing but star games this season, and the capital is pulling en masse for him to show another gilt-edge performance to-day.

Senator players were all under cover early last evening, and confidence was in the air around headquarters. The team is battling with the odds in their favor, and the oldest fans are as ardent as the youngest in hoping that the sun will break through the clouds that have overshadowed Ottawa's big four efforts since 1909.

STAR IS ILL.

Shorty Horne, who starred last year with the Grimbsy O.H.A. intermediate champs, and was offered a berth with the Montreal Maroons in the N.H.L., will be out of the game this season due to illness.

GRANGE LEAVES HOME GRIDIRON

"Red" Makes Last Appearance at Illinois Stadium.

CHICAGO, Nov. 14.—Red Grange to-day sings his swan song on the gridiron that brought him glory—the Illinois Memorial Field at Urbana.

It may be a lusty chant of returned kick-offs, long runs and accurate passes, accompanied by the admiring tributes of fans, gathering there to witness his final appearance against Wabash. Next week, against Ohio State, the untamed Wheaton iceman, drops out of the Western Conference football picture, to which he has given so many vivid splashes of color.

Grange's part in the game may be small, for Coach Zuppke plans to save him for the season's finale with the Buckeyes. But even so, the eyes of the football world follow him.

Intersectional interest follows the big green of Dartmouth with its passing game and deceptive repertoire into Chicago as guests of the Staggman. The Maroon field is muddy and this may aid Chicago in its efforts to stop Oberlander and the New Hampshire passers, who after making short work of eastern opposition, come west seeking new worlds to conquer.

Chicago, looking back to halting Grange in the Illinois game with the aid of the mud, counts on its defence. The soft field is a handicap to its offense, although McCarty may duplicate his gains of last week in the rain and slime.

The first Government vessel built on the Pacific coast was the monitor Comanche, completed at San Francisco in 1862.

BALL PLAYERS CODDLED NOW

Johnny Evers Cites Goslin Incident as Illustration of Change.

A VERBAL FEUD.

By HENRY FARRELL
(United Press Sports Editor)

NEW YORK, Nov. 14.—(United Press). — Several interesting stories of inside happenings during the late world's series are coming to the surface. One concerns the verbal fued between Goose Goslin, the hard hitting Washington outfielder and "Oil" Smith, the high-speed talking catcher of the Pirates.

Smith gave Goslin such a flow of language when he was at the bat that the Washington outfielder completely lost his goat.

The Pittsburgh catcher is said to have greeted Goslin, when he stepped to the bat, with a remark—"I never knew why they called you Goose until I saw that beak. They tell me that you're just a big bush leaguer and can't hit a hook."

Goslin complained to the umpire and also told Bucky Harris when he went to the bench, that he couldn't hit when Smith was talking that way. Later, when Smith continued his flow of conversation, a representative of the Senators it is said went to Commissioner Landis with a complaint. The commissioner said the umpire reported that Smith had not used any profane or insulting language to any of the Washington players and that there was no rule to restrict free speech on the field.

The authenticity of this story cannot be vouched for, but it came from several reliable sources and it aroused several old-time players.

"Just think of anything like that happening on a ball field," Johnny Evers ,one of baseball's greatest players in his day, remarked. Evers was one of the most fiery and aggressive players of all time and he fairly boiled when he was relating the story.

When I was playing, a player who made a complaint like that, even if the language was much more abusive woul' have been considered a molly, he said. "We had a way and a place for stopping talkers like that. If you couldn't lick 'em under the grandstand, you'd have to stand up there and take it.

"Ball players these days are coddled too much. They get to thinking so much of themselves that they can't be handled. Two ball players—Ruth and Goslin—were suspended last season because they would not obey orders and any manager, with a few exceptions, who tries to enforce old-fashioned rules of displine, is in danger of losing his job.

"The players get so much money that they are being spoiled. They figure their value at the gate and they are always quite certain that they will not lose their job if they are of any value to the club.

"I've had plenty of experience. In my playing days I was familiar with more exits in more ball parks than any other player. Maybe that was an accomplishment unworthy of a boast but still I'm glad I'd played ball in those kind of times."

It came as a great surprise when Eddie Moore, the young Pittsburgh second baseman and Carson Bigbee, utility outfielder, were sent to the San Francisco Pacific Coast League in part payment for the two star rookies, Waner and Ryne.

When the critics were discussing the future possibilities of the Pirates after they had won the world's series from the Washington Senators, no one ever thought that he would be in the minor leagues.

There were so many clubs in the major leagues that could use Moore or Bigbee or both that it was considered impossible to get waivers on them.

The fact that fifteen major league clubs told the Pirates that they did not want either player rather proves the existence of a gentleman's agreement among the club owners. This agreement which works—if you let me put over this deal I won't interfere with any of your—is one that has caused a lot of protest from the players and one of which the magnates have denied frequently the existence.

The departure of Bigbee was not so much of a surprise. Two years ago he was one of the star outfielders in the National League, but he became afflicted with sinus trouble similar to the ailment which forced George Sisler out of the game.

The release of Moore indicates that the Pirate management has a lot of confidence in young Ryne. He played shortstop for the San Francisco club and he may not be familiar with his new post but, as Johnny Evers says —"A good shortstop can play second base but every second baseman can't be a good shortstop."

The Pirates probably paid such a fancy price for Wanner to be prepared if anything should happen to Max Carey, who can't go on forever at his present speed.

CANUCK STARS.

LONG N.H.L. SEASON.

Each Team Scheduled For 36 Games.

OTTAWA, Ont., Nov. 14—The Journal in its sport column, Friday said:

"Each team in the N.H.L. race will play 36 games this year. It's going to be a long, hard grind, and the team that is well subbed would seem to have quite an edge starting away. There is no denying the substitute strength of New York. There will be no denying the sub strength of Ottawas, after all is taken into consideration. Senators haven't a weak man working out with them now."

HUGE GUNS FOR NEW WARSHIP.

Can you imagine nine tons of death-dealing metal being hurled for nearly 20 miles in a single broad side? Such an almost unbelievable blast of huge projectiles will occur whenever Britain's magnificent new 35,000-ton battleship Nelson lets loose her big guns. For, says Popular Science Monthly, the Nelson, newly launched, will have the most powerful armament of any battleship in the world—nine 16-inch guns, each firing a projectile weighing more than a ton. In addition, there will be a secondary armament of six-inch guns.

LEPINE SIGNED BY DANDURAND

Canadiens Have Other Amateur Prospects in Sight For Contracts.

PLAY ON WEDNESDAY.

MONTREAL, Que., Nov. 14. — (Canadian Press).—Hector Lepine, well-known Montreal amateur hockey player, was last night signed by Leo Dandurand, of the Canadien pro. hockey team, to a three-yea. contract. His acquisition by the Canadiens should fill a big gap as in the past two years Canadiens have lacked a first-rate substitute relieve Aurel Joliat on left wing.

The Canadiens also expect to sign other amateurs before the end of the present week. Manager Dandurand will not announce just when but he has been closely watching Gaudreault and Cormier, last year with the Banque Canadienne Nationals in the Bankers' Hockey League; Rene Fournier, a Montrealer who played in London, Ont., last winter; and Larochelle, a forward from Sorel, who has been signed for the Nationals of the Senior group of the Q.A.H.A., but who has been working out with the Canadiens in practice.

By the time Canadiens are ready for their game against the champions, Victorias at the Forum on Wednesday night they expect to have their roster complete and will use the new men in the tussle to test them under severe fire.

The Victoria Cougars, holders of the Stanley Cup, arrived here from Winnipeg this morning. At noon the Montreal pro. team will work out, and immediately after their drill the Patrick clan will go on the ice for one hour to shake out the train stiffness. They will probably put in another practice Monday prior to meeting Montreal in their first of the two-game exhibition series here Monday night.

With the increase in the schedule this season, giving each club 18 home games, Montreal will have 35 pro. matches here this winter, exclusive of possible play-offs should either of the local teams finish in the ton rungs. There has been some speculation among the fans.

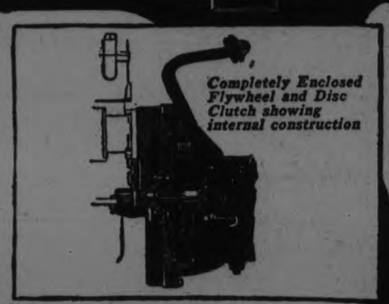
An important fact about CHEVROLET



Completely Enclosed Flywheel and Disc Clutch showing internal construction

THERE is a new type of clutch in the New Chevrolet. It makes gear shifting easy—it starts the car smoothly; a light pedal pressure operates it—it has more than a thousand pounds pressure action, delivering all the power to the rear axle without slippage—it is fully enclosed—it is simple—it has no internal adjustments—it requires no lubrication—what more can be wished for in any clutch?

INSIDE Ggolf.

Maker of 51 Golf Champions. "Golf's most successful teacher," says "Chick" Evans

By CHESTER HORTON

While discussing the midiron and its use, the player should keep in mind the idea of not bringing this club upward too quickly in the back swing. Keep it low, especially as you swing it away from the ball. Have the idea of swinging the club in behind you rather than up above you, and don't jab at the ball with the midiron. Finish the stroke, by which I mean throw the head of the club clear through the ball and out after it as far as you can reach. A good rule is to keep the left arm somewhat close to your side as the clubhead is thrown through the ball. Figure on taking a chip of sod when the grass is thin, but if the grass is thick and the ball has a good lie, just take the ball cleanly and never mind the divot.

RICKARD PLANS WINTER FIGHTS

Promoter Refuses to Hand Out Big Guarantees For Bouts.

PERCENTAGE ONLY.

NEW YORK, Nov. 14—Tex Rickard plans to stage championship fights this winter in every class, even Jack Dempsey's division, if he can come to terms with title-holders "without deeding them the New Madison Square Garden."

But the promoter, outlining his program Friday, declared he would deal with champions only on a percentage basis.

"I am through handing out exorbitant guarantees to champions," he said. "If they are assured big sums for their appearance, instead of working on a percentage scale, they lose any incentive to aid in the promotion of a show. No fighter is worth more than he can draw at the gate.

"Take the case of Walker and Shade. After I signed them up they went West and jeopardied the success of their bout here. Walker engaged in a couple of fights in which his showing reflected on the title match while Shade went to California, where a second-rater stayed the limit with him. Then they wouldn't come to New York to finish their training. They were sure of their guarantees and didn't care whether the show drew corporal's guard or not."

Rickard said he hoped to bring Benny Leonard back into the game again this Winter.

"Leonard owes it to the public to return to the ring. They made him what he is today and he is duty bound to return the favor."

PETERBOR' JOINS NEW ASSOCIATION

Miss Annie Burns is Second Vice-President of Ladies' Ontario Softball.

TORONTO, Nov. 14.—At a meeting of officers of the Ontario Softball Association and representatives of various district associations throughout the province, including Ottawa, Peterboro, Toronto, Guelph and other leagues not affiliated with any association, in the Central Y.M.C.A. last evening, the Ladies' Ontario Softball Association was formed and provisional officers elected who will complete the organization. Dr. Lamb of Montreal, secretary of the A.A.U. of C., acted as chairman, and there were over seventy in attendance at the meeting. In the early part there were signs of the conflict that raged during the past season, but gradually a spirit of harmony prevailed, due largely to the skilful manner in which the chairman handled the situation.

A nominating committee was selected to prepare the slate of provisional officers, and when this committee reported the nominations were carried unanimously as follows:

President, Miss Edith Anderson, Ottawa City League; First Vice-President, Miss Edith Wynne Price, London; Second Vice-President, Miss Burns, Peterboro; Third Vice-President, Miss F. Rosenfeld, Toronto; Secretary, Miss Mabel Ray, 16 Orchard Park Road, Toronto; Treasurer, Mrs. Cheriton, Hamilton; Advisory Board, W. J. Smith, W. McArthur and J. Jeffers, Brantford; rules committee: Elwood Elwood Hughes, J. S. Currie, Hamilton; H. Cobb, Toronto; W. J. D'Alesandro, Toronto; H. H. Stephens, St. Catharines; Tom Munro, London; A. J. Stubbings, Toronto; I. Heigham and Mr. Bell of Guelph. Miss Alex. Gibb made a most efficient secretary for the evening.

'BOB WHITE' TO BE GIVEN BY KIWANIS

Claimed to be Peer Among Productions—Catchy Musical Numbers.

"Bob White", selected by the Kiwanis Club of Peterborough for the benefit of under-privileged children, is claimed by the John B. Rogers producing company to be one of its peers in the line of musical entertainment. It will be staged for two performances only, on the nights of November 27 and 28, and indications even now are that capacity houses will see the entertainments. The professional director, Mr. Perkins, will arrived on November 15 to take entire charge of the rehearsing and staging of this splendid musical success.

The following are but a few of the principals in the production, which when the cast is complete will represent 100 of Peterborough's theatrical talent; Walter Byers, Miss Mahilde Masson, Miss Ernestine McManus, E. Vern Morphet, Norman Lang and Hugh Niven.

"Bob White" is an unusual farcical comedy, full of tuneful song and dance numbers that will fairly haunt you after hearing them sung. An additional feature is the "Bubbleland" number. All in this number will have different colored balloons and the feature will be one that Peterboro people will long remember. Their group dancing is especially pleasing.

The milk-maids and farmers in the song hit "Mandy", along with the "Jackie" chorus, both have dances that will be encored again and again, and are but a few of the many numbers in the show.

THEATRES

AT THE GRAND

"MY CHINA DOLL"

Lots of the prettiest kind of very young and athletic girls, mostly of gan to read almost every day, for panionable squad of soubrettes and comedians, are headed towards the City of Peterborough, when "My China Doll" stops on its coast trip to frolic and unfold its splendors before all who care to see.

A trip to the Grand Opera House will carry one through Melody Town, into the Land of Music, and from there to Story Book Land and the Land of Flowers, all to the accompaniment of lilting melodies and much clever dancing.

The story of the play is said to rival a trip to Fairyland, but it is all not quite so light. There are high moments of comedy, when, it is said, a sphinx would laugh, and there are real flesh and blood young lassies who endeavor to dance the soles from off their dancing shoes each evening.

In addition "My China Doll" comes recommended, something a bit out of the ordinary for a musical comedy. It has been two seasons on the road, and during al that time has quite won the hearts of all who saw it, so that no one has ever found it in his or her heart to say the show wasn't good, which is considered a remarkable record.

TELLING THE STORY BEFORE THE SHOWS COME TO TOWN

The succesful musical comedy of today is not simply a string of unrelated incidents hung together with catchy melodies and gay dancing girls. Instead it is melodies built around a story with a plot, which, if read apart from the stage setting, and even viewed without a chorus of platinum limbed beauties, would prove interesting enough to hold attention.

"My China Doll", a year-old musical comedy success of the better class, that is due at the Grand Opera House Saturday, November 21st, lays claim to a plot taken from real life. Charles George is the author; he also wrote the lyrics and music.

The locale is laid in New York's Chinatown, during the Fete of Lanterns— a holiday celebration. Peach Blossom is the daughter of Sing Song, a Chinese merchant. Her father objects to his daughter speaking to any of the sight-seeing parties that visit Chinatown. One day a newspaper reporter happens in the neighborhood and engages Peach Blossom in conversation. He is surprised to see how milk white her skin is, although she is living with the Chinese. He scents a story, and is on the trail, when the father takes the daughter away. Peach Blossom unknowingly has fallen in love with the reporter, as he has with her. The girl, in despair, takes to the poppy pipe, and is nearly ruined when a detective finally discovers her. She turns out to be a white child, who was stolen from wealthy parents. In the end, the detective restores the girl to her rightful estate and marries her.

AT THE REGENT

HUMOROUS MOVIE DRAMA PRODUCED FROM STAGE HIT

W. Somerset Maugham's "The Circle" Directed For Screen By Borzage.

Said to follow the original play by W. Somerset Maugham more closely than any recent production has followed its original, "The Circle," directed by Frank Borzage for Metro - Goldwyn - Mayer, comes to the Regent Theatre next week.

The production is an English comedy-drama with a satirical and ironic twist. It is filled with many humorous situations and although it has for a basis a serious subject, it has been treated in a light vein.

In a short prologue which precedes the play, the wife of an English lord elopes with their mutual friend. A lapse of thirty years occurs between the prologue and the play and the son of the deserted Englishman finds himself threatened with the same fate as was visited on his father. The situation is further complicated by the young wife who invites the runaway couple back to learn what their experiences have been.

Eleanor Boardman plays the part of the young wife in a convincing manner. Malcolm McGregor portrays the part of her lover and Creighton Hale is the irritating young husband. Alec B. Francis George Fawcett and Eugenie Besserer form the first triangle. Eulalie Jensen and Otto Hoffman have character roles.

The continuity was prepared by Kenneth Clarke. Chet Lyons was the photographer.

AT THE ROYAL.

Read what the New York newspaper critics thought of "Drusilla with a Million:"

New York Evening World says: One of the best pictures of its kind seen on Broadway in a long time. Here is a picture that is real. Movie fans who fell in love with Mary Carr a few years ago in "Over the Hill" will do the same with "Drusilla with a Million," for here they will see the same Mary Carr. She was ably supported by Priscilla Bonner, who gave a masterly portrayal of the orphan who became the wife of an outcast youth. There was one scene in particular in which she was superb.

New York Telegram says: One of the most dramatic parts of "Drusilla with a Million" comes in a livid court room scene, which we are tempted to call the best we have ever seen on the silver sheet. The atmosphere became so surcharged yesterday that we expected some spectator to get up and shout. The audience became so wrought up that they actually hissed Claire DuBray.

New York Staats-Zeitung says: — "Drusilla with a Million" is a wonderful picture—carries a million dollars worth of entertainment—one hundred per cent audience picture.

New York Times says: "Drusilla with a Million" is sending audiences away with wet cheeks. As this story unfurls one sees sequences which show flashes of inspiration. The director, F. Harmon Weight, deserves a great deal of credit. Mary Carr delivers a fine portrayal of Drusilla Doan. Priscilla Bonner is excellent.

New York Evening Post says: — "Drusilla with a Million" possesses many good, moving situations.

New York Daily Mirror says: If you have a moment to spare meet "Drusilla with a Million" this week. Priscilla Bonner is a comparative newcomer whom you will love. "Drusilla with a Million" is a sympathetic and appealing picture.

HOOT GIBSON COMING IN "SPOOK RANCH"

Thrills alternate with laughs to make "Spook Ranch" one of the cleverest and fastest moving Westerns ever shown at local theatres. Hoot Gibson is starred in this Universal Jewel production, which is coming to the Royal theatre Monday. A thrilling rescue of a beautiful girl, good comedy and one of the finest horse pursuits ever filmed go to make this the fastest moving picture Gibson has ever released. He is admirably supported by Helen Ferguson, Robert McKim, Tote Ducrow, Frank Rice and Ed Cowles. Direction was by Edward Laemmle.

AT THE CAPITOL

CORINNE GRIFFITH FILMS NEW STORY BY NOTED AUTHOR.

Edna Ferber's "Classified" Pictures Star as "Want Ad" Girl.

Corinne Griffith, star; Edna Ferber, author; June Mathis, scenarist.

Sounds like a pretty good combination where screen entertainment is concerned, doesn't it?

This triumvirate is responsible for the new bill to be offered at the Capitol Theatre Monday, when First National presents "Classified."

Thousands have read the story of that name as it appeared in Cosmopolitan magazine. Other thousands are familiar with June Mathis' achievements as a screen writer. And as for Corinne Griffith, it would be a daring thing to attempt to estimate the number of her admirers the world over.

"Classified" brings to the screen a new type — the girl who takes your want ad. over the 'phone. Also, it gives Miss Griffith a new opportunity at characterization, as she has never before attempted to portray this sort of personality. Her success is reported as having been complete.

Jack Mulhall and many prominent screen artists are enrolled with Miss Griffith in placing this delightful story of life in a New York flat upon the screen.

JOY IN ITALY ON DEBT FUNDING

Satisfaction When Agreement Was Reached Followed By Joy at Terms.

LEADERS LACONIC.

ROME, Nov. 14. — (Canadian Press).—The satisfaction which was shown with the first announcement that an agreement had been reached at Washington between the Italian debt mission and the United States debt-funding committee turned to joy when the details of the terms became known here to-day. Some newspapers and financial leaders at first displayed only laconic agreeableness, but Italians generally did not conceal their jubilation.

IF you never read a theatre advertisement in your life—read this one—read every blessed word of it!

DRUSILLA WITH A MILLION

Is One Picture In A Million!

Here at last is the motion picture about which an entire nation is talking — Here at last is the picture proclaimed by ten million women as the finest projected by the silver screen since the very dawn of the photoplay as an instrument of entertainment Here at last a production that tells in simple and human and vividly dramatic manner the soul secrets of womankind— of a sweet little country girl and her love for a fine, upstanding boy—of their chubby little babe and last but not least of the aged slavery in the charity home who inherits a million dollars and turns her mansion into an asylum for homeless infants!

And out of it all you will behold such drama as you have never seen before—such sentiment as the screen has never in the past revealed—such romance as you have always hoped for yourself—such comedy as you have never dreamed of—

Featuring
KENNETH HARLAN, MARY CARR, PRISCILLA BONNER and a Great Cast

You will be touched as you never were before by the pathos of the little old charity lady—you will be held spellbound by the courtroom scene—you will roar with delight at the antics of the babies—and as you laugh you will brush away a furtive, fleeting tear! It is indeed one picture in a million!

BODY OF WALTER CHAMBERS FOUND

alive and, now? Mrs. Brock could say no more.

Heard no Movement.

Those present at the home of Commandant Smith, say they neither heard nor saw anything which would indicate that the house in which Mr. Chambers lay dead, was occupied, although one member of the family stated that he had heard footsteps outside his window last night.

An exhaustive search by the Constables and Coroner Dr. T. W. H. Young, failed to reveal any evidence of violence or self destruction.

Lost Hope.

When the body had been inspected later, Dr. Young stated that the man had been dead approximately three days, and that death had resulted from exhaustion. The rain had soaked through his clothing, and when attempts to light a fire had failed he in all likelihood gave up all hope and lay down to die. In an effort to dry his outer garments he had spread them over the wood.

In Prime of Life.

The deceased man was only 38 years of age when so tragic an end overcame him. He was employed in a Peterborough plant for many years, but after suffering an attack by chlorine gas he removed to a farm in Harvey Township in an effort to regain his health. While here he suffered a nervous breakdown and came to Peterborough to visit with friends while recuperating. It was from the home of Mr. and Mrs. Roland Brock, 34 New Romaine Street, that he wandered away last Saturday.

An explanation for the mysterious occurrence is found in the amnesia to which Mr. Chambers had been subject since his accident. His memory had on previous occasions failed him, and he had walked for days without knowing his destination or his object. Some time ago he was found by the police after two days' absence.

In an effort to reconstruct the sad story, one man suggests that Mr. Chambers was overcome by this memory failure while out for his afternoon walk last Saturday, and wandered through the country for some days. Recovering, it is suggested, he found his way back to the city during the night of Tuesday or Wednesday, and, fearing to wake his friends, made his way to the house he had rented on King Street. There, attempting to dry his wet clothes and make a fire to warm his chilled body, he was overcome and gave up hope, or was conquered by a sleep that merged into the eternal.

ENGINEER WHO DROVE EXPRESS WAS ARRESTED

T. J. Carroll Faces Ten Charges of Manslaughter Following Accident.

PASSED SIGNALS.

Ran His Train Into Rear of Another in Fog—Officials Offer Bail.

NEWARK, N. J., Nov. 14. — (United Press). — T. J. Carroll, for forty years an employee of the Pennsylvania Railroad, is to be arraigned to-day before Justice of the Peace [illegible]m on ten charges of manslaughter incident to the rear end collision of the express trains near Monmouth Junction on Thursday.

He was the engineer of the Mercantile express from St. Louis, who in an impenetratable fog is believed to have run past a torch flare, a caution signal, and a stop signal before crashing into the slowly proceeding Washington express. Ten died and eighteen were injured as a result. Carroll had forty years in the service without a previous mishap.

Railroad officials said when he was arrested in Jersey City, last night, that they would furnish the expected bail of $10,000 for his release.

AMBASSADORS MEET.

PARIS, Nov. 14. — (Canadian Press).—The Inter-Allied Military Commission has concluded its examination of Germany's reply to the latest note of the Council of Ambassadors concerning the carrying out of the disarmament clauses of the Versailles Treaty. Technical observations and suggestions of the commission have now been submitted to the Allied Governments. The German Government will be informed of minor changes required by the Allies with the request that a reply be made with exceptional rapidity so that the Ambassadors' Council, meeting the coming Monday, may be in a position to recommend that the evacuation of the Cologne zone shall begin December 1.

FLIGHT OF BIRDS TO SOUTHWARD CAUSES WONDER

Questions Raised By Minds of Men About Nature's Secrets Unanswered.

WHO AND HOW.

Who Guides Them — How Do They Know When To Go.

It has already been going on for weeks, but so quietly and inconspicuously that we have hardly paid any attention to it. But now the real exodus is under way, and hardly a day passes that we do not see a little flock of birds flying south, or hear a larger cloud of them go twittering over the housetops during the night. Soon we shall see the squadrons of the ducks, and hear the high honking of the wedges and of the geese.

What guides the birds southward, and how do they know when the time comes? The questions are still largely unanswered. Failing food supplies, changing temperatures, changing length of day—these and a dozen other factors is possible causes have been conjectured on, but nothing proved. It used to be claimed that the old birds led the young ones; but in at least some species the younger birds leave first and make the flight without guides!

Not only the larger and more conspicuous birds make their migrations; many little ones go as well. Even the tiny hummingbirds, that one thinks of almost as a larger kind of moths or bees, have gone.

The guides of the birds are almost as little known as the causes of their flight. It is known, however, that where the rivers run in the right direction, they are followed faithfully by the water birds, and to a large extent also by the others. That they should be followed by the aquatic species is obvious; a possible reason for their use as routes by the songsters might be in the usefulness of the timber belts along their shores as shelter and as sources of food.

iers in the narrow thoroughfares that one is almost continually bumping in to rifles, picking ones way through barbed wire entanglements or stumbling across sandbag barricades.

All territory between Mount Hermon and Wadiajami, about 7,000 square miles, now is in the hands of the rebels. Druse tribesmen and their nationalist allies and French forces hold only six cities on the railway from Aleppo in the north to Dera in the south.

Fifty thousand troops or double the force now in Syria, would be required to restore order in the country, competent observers declare. Even when these reinforcements arrive, it is feared they will suffer heavy losses in the Guerilla warfare.

CHANGES MADE IN C.A.H.A. RULES

Defence Area Has Been Extended To Forty Feet From Rink End.

EFFECTIVE IN O.H.A.

Several minor changes have been made in the regulations and the playing rules of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association and they are effective this season in every branch of the C. H. A., including the Ontario Hockey Association.

In the playing rules the defence area has been extended to 40 feet from the end of the rink instead of 20 feet, as in the past. In this 40-foot area there can be no offside for the defending side.

The goal-keepers pads are to be 12 inches lying flat, instead of 14 inches Summarized, the changes are as follows:

To The Regulations.

Every player in the C. A. H. A. must hold an amateur card issued by the branch of the A. A. U. of Canada in which he plays.

All registration card duplicates are to be forwarded to the national registrar within 15 days of receipt by branch registrar, Feb. 10 is the final date for registration with the national registrar.

All games prohibited with teams of United States A. H. A., but Canadian teams may be permitted to play college or university teams in the United States upon securing sanction from their branch.

All branches of the C. A. H. A. must declare winners by March 5, senior and junior, to allow winners to engage in Allan Cup and O. H. A. Memorial Cup eliminations.

In all cup finals, senior and junior, the best two out of three games shall decide the winner.

To The Playing Rules.

Goal-keeperss pads — Maximum width 12 inches lying flat, instead of 14.

Goal-keeper may clear by throwing puck back of the net.

No body-checking on the forward line. Body-checking only permissable by defence men in their positions back of the 40-foot line, and they must not charge an opponent.

New defence area—40 feet from the end of the rink, instead of 20 feet from the goal line. In this area the 1 rule applies, viz., no offside for the defending team. All rinks must be marked with defence lines at each end of 40 feet from end of rink.

BRITISH LIBERALS WILL OPPOSE BALDWIN TARIFFS IN FALL TERM OF PARLIAMENT OPENING TO-DAY

Reassembly To-day For Short Session of Six Weeks—Long Recess.

LOCARNO DEBATE.

Government's Mining Subsidy Costing Huge Sum—Discuss Unemployment.

LONDON, Nov. 16.—(Canadian Press).—Parliament reassembles to-day without ceremony after four months' Summer recess for a short session of five or six weeks, mainly to pass the concluding stages of a number of bills of local interest.

The Locarno Treaties will be debated Wednesday and are certain to be approved by substantial majorities. The chief line of the opposition attack will be on the government's Mosul policy, its failure after a year in office to deal adequately with the employment problem and its disposition to depart from election pledges by consenting to reimpose protective duties under the Safeguarding of Industries Act, which were abolished by the late Labor government.

The question of how far the Baldwin government will yield to the demands of the numerous trades on such protective duties will have the greatest interest for the other nations.

The government will need to introduce a bill authorizing duties of probably 33 1-3 percent on gas mantles and leather and fabric gloves, which have already been approved by committees of the government appointed to consider the claims of these trades.

Refusal To Steel Trade.

Other committees are examining claims from the cutlery, worsted and similar trades. Premier Baldwin has already shelved the claim of the havy iron and steel trades that they be so protected.

Not all the Laborites favor strict free trade, but the party as a whole will cooperate with the free trade Liberal party in hostly contesting any new duties. One ground for the opposition attack will be that not only would a large extension of duties be in opposition to the government's pledges, but would risk provoking minor tariff wars. Such a conflict with Germany is already threatened.

Duties On Motor Cars.

At the present moment negotiations for revision of the present German commercial treaty occasioned by the re-imposing of duties on motor cars and accessories since the treaty was originally concluded, are going on in London, but without much prospect of a satisfactory settlement. The German delegates contend that arrangements are impossible until the British policy is completely defined.

The government will also need to ask parliament's sanction for further credit for the coal mining subsidy, which is now costing considerably more than £1,500,000 monthly, so that the £10,000,000 originally voted will soon be exhausted.

While being taken to headquarters Boyd made two unsuccessful attempts to escape.

Argentine Harvest Will Be One of Most Bountiful

BUENOS AIRES, Nov. 16.—(Canadian Press).—Argentina will harvest one of the most bountiful crops in its history for the season of 1925-26, it is indicated by the Ministry of Agriculture's first report of the season on conditions of cereal and linseed yields.

The report forecasts that the wheat crop will exceed that of last year by 1,198,000 tons and that the total crop will be 6,400,000 tons. The new oat crop is estimated at 1,200,000 tons, or 424,000 tons more than last year. The linseed yield is set at 1,900,000 tons, or 754,000 tons more than last year. The linseed yield is set at 1,900,000 tons, or 754,000 tons more than for 1924-25.

Only for the season of 1923-24 was Argentina's wheat crop larger than that expected this year.

Men Driven To Last Ditch Mustache Only Distinction

FAYETTVILLE, N.C., Nov. 16.—(Canadian Press).—Bishop Collins Denny advises every man to wear a mustache as the last distinctive badge of masculinity that woman have left him.

"Wear one," he told three hundred delegates assembled here for the North Carolina Methodist Conference. "That's all women have left us. They cut their hair and wear men's clothes, but they can't wear a mustache. It is your badge of masculinity."

The Bishop wears one himself.

498,752 ARRESTS.

Americans Get Drunk as Often as Ever, Survey Report Shows.

NEW YORK, N.Y., Nov. 16. —(United Press). — Americans are getting drunk as often as ever, despite prohibition, according to the Moderation League, which has made a survey of drunkenness in the United States from 1914 to 1924. "Our figures show that there was a steady increase in insobriety until 1924 arrests for drunkenness rebounded just about to pre-prohibition level." The League announces —"We cannot escape the conclusion that the Volstead Act has failed utterly to do what it was intended to do—promote temperance and sobriety." Drunkenness first showed a startling post-war increase in 1921, according to the report, and continued through 1922 and 1923. In 1924 there were 498,752 arrests for intoxication in all towns and cities of the United States over 5,000 population, the League says.

TWO MEN, DRAGGED BY HORSES, BADLY HURT AT CAMPBELLFORD

Jesse Locke Fell Between Team and Wagon When Seat Broke.

TERRIBLY HURT.

Clayton Rowe Shaken Up When Horse Ran Away, Upsetting Buggy.

CAMPBELLFORD, Nov. 16. — Jesse Locke, a young farmer who resides on the Seventh Concession, East Seymour, son of William Locke of Toronto, met with a serious accident Saturday afternoon, while driving into town with a load of hay. He was sitting on a board which projected in front of the load and in passing over a rough place in the highway, the jolting of the wagon caused the seat to break and Mr Locke fell behind his horses. The team took fright and started to run, dragging their driver with them. He was terribly injured before he could free himself. One side of his face was lacerated, one ear was almost completely severed and he sustained other injuries. He was removed to his home and his condition is regarded as serious.

Some years ago Mr. Locke's father was injured in a similar accident, while driving a load of hay to town.

Horse Ran Away.

Clayton Rowe on Saturday afternoon drove his wife to the residence of Dr. W. F. Loucks, and when Mrs. Rowe was alighting from the buggy the horse, a spirited animal, took fright at something in the vicinity and bolted. Mrs. Rowe was thrown clear of the vehicle and escaped unhurt. The horse made a short turn, heading for home, and th buggy was overturned with Mr. Rowe underneath. He was dragged for a considerable distance when the buggy righted itself but he held to the lines until they broke. He was covered with mud but unhurt. The buggy was wrecked when it struck a telephone pole and the horse ran to its stable dragging one of the shafts.

Mr. Rowe is an expert horseman and this is the first time in forty years' experience that a horse has got away from him.

MUSSOLINI SAYS DEBT AGREEMENT IS GREAT STEP

Italian Dictator Looks For Cordial Relations Between Countries.

"MAN OF IRON."

Premier Compares His Person to Iron Statue—Very Busy Career.

(By Thomas B. Morgan, United Press Staff Correspondent. Copyright, 1925, by United Press).

ROME, Nov. 16.—Premier Benito Mussolini is well pleased with the debt settlement negotiated by Italy at Washington. "The Americans,' he told me, in an exclusive United Press interview in the Chigi Palace, "have been loyal, generous and broad in the negotiations with the the Italian Debt Mission funding the Italian debt in the United States." Mussolini, who in the course of the talk described himself as "made of iron," appeared extremely pleased and quite affable, as he talked suavely in rich flowing tones of the fairness of the American Debt Commission in recognizing Italy's capacity to pay. "Botoh I and the Italian people at large," he continued, 'are more than pleased with the results of the negotiations and the arrival at a complete settlement. I am quite sure it will be a great step for cordial relations between our two countries and a great move forward, pregnant with possibilities for peace in Europe generally." There was an allusion to his escape from the recent plot to assassinate him. The man with the piercing eyes picked a pencil off his desk and tapped a little statuette. "My person is made of iron like that," he commented, closing the talk to devote himself to a calendar with listed twenty appointments with individuals, besides a mass of government business.

Canada's Opportunities Broadcast Over Britain

LONDON, Eng., Nov. 16 (Canadian Press Cable).—"I have just come back from Canada," declared Sir Robert Horne, speaking in Scotland, "and I cannot imagine that any man here would rather have a precarious existence, dependent upon charity than go to the great Dominion and gain a free existence for himself by the sweat of his brow."

The foregoing sentiments were broadcast over Great Britain Saturday night by Ralph D. Blumenfeld, chairman and editor of The Daly Express, who, added his personal suggestion that as Sir Robert Horne was now free of governmental office, he might devote his administrative and organizing ability to overseeing a scheme under which desirable people could emigrate to Canada with good chances of success.

WEATHER

Since the month of August there has not been a week-end in which it has not rained on either Saturday or Sunday, and with a few exceptions in August, and a couple previously that condition has prevailed since last spring. Sunday's rain gave .20 of an inch. The ground is apparently fully saturated, as many report water in their cellars, and the flow of water in the creeks is up to the spring time level.—W. P.

Peterboro Department of Health Less Than 13 per cent. Efficient

Such os the Analysis of District Medical Officer of Health Dr. Sutton in Address on Public Health to the Rotary Club.

That Peterboro's public health department only registers 12 7-10 points in efficiency out of a perfect score of 100 points was the emphatic statement made to the Peterboro Rotary Club today by Dr. N. H. Sutton, Provincial Medical Officer of Health in this district, in the course of an address on "Public Health" at the weekly luncheon today.

Dr. Sutton's point analysis of the activities of the local health department is given elsewhere on this page and will undoubtedly be read with keen interest.

The District Medical Officer of Health prefaced his remarks on local conditions by a brief history of the development of public health, showing the vast strides that have been made and pointing out the ideal of public health work as now held. The ideal public health work would take care of the mother of the child, supervise the conditions under which the child was born, see to it that every child was given a chance to grow healthily and to be protected, correct the faults that could in early infancy be more easily dealt with.

Dr. Sutton then read his report on the activities of the local health department and after dealing with the various matters listed therein declared that it would be impossible in a city the size of Peterboro to have an efficient health department until the services were available of an efficient health officer giving his whole time to the work could be available. Such a health officer should know public health methods and should be anxious to work, so anxious indeed that he would wish that there were more than twenty-four hours in the day. It was a huge task, Dr. Sutton declared, as it involved the co-ordination of all public health activities with the health department acting as the central clearing house. He urged the Rotary Club to remember that the Health Department was their department and that responsibility for public health work was the responsibility of every city. There was no more important work that Rotarians could interest themselves in than endeavoring to promote the efficiency of the health department.

Dr. Murray Fraser, Provincial Bacteriologist, was welcomed as a new member of the Rotary Club.

President J. H. Steels called the attention of Rotarians to the Kiwanis Musical comedy next week and the Rotarians decided to attend in a body on Friday night taking the first two or three rows in the balcony.

At next Monday's meeting a special effort will be made to have 100 percent attendance. Rev. W. Harold Young of Toronto, former member of the Peterboro Club, will be the speaker.

FASCISTS MAKE PLEDGE OPENLY AT BIG MEETING

Delegates From All Parts of France Attended Ceremony Yesterday.

"TROOPS OF ORDER."

Their Programme Calls For War on Communism and Left Parties.

PARIS, Nov. 16. — (Canadian Press).—French Fascism declared itself openly in Paris yesterday afternoon at a huge gathering of delegates from all parts of France. Thousands rallied to the call of the president of the "Young Patriots" for the ceremony of presentation of the colors.

As an organized national political force, this was the Fascists first public manifestation. It was made the occasion for a solemn announcement of their programme: "War on Communism; war on the cartel des gauches."

The French "blue shirts" or "troops of order," as they call themselves, declared through their spokesman, for "authority and discipline" and each delegation's representative as he stepped up to receive the tri-color banner, swore an oath of allegiance, promising to follow to the death the leaders of the Order in the fight against what they consider the forces of disorder.

VISITING HUNTERS HAD NARROW ESCAPE

Ten Americans Saved Only Clothes and Rifles When Hut Burned.

PEMBROKE, Nov. 16 (Canadian Press).—Escaping with only their clothes and rifles, a party of ten Americans from West Vrginia had a narrow escape from being burned to death, when the hut they were in caught fire and burned to the ground in less than ten minutes.

Coming from West Virginia for 10 days' deer hunting, the party was occupying a small cottake at Deep River on the Upper Ottawa. With a few articles of clothing, everything was burned, including cash amounting to nearly $700; return tickets to West Virgina, and licenses, ammunition, equipment, etc.

RICH DUKE LEAVES NOTHING TO POOR

Stated Super Taxes Made Such Action An Impossibility.

LONDON, Nov. 16.— The late Duke of Rutland left an estate valued at £930,700 or about $4,500,000.

The Duke is the father of the well known Lady Diana Duff Cooper.

In his will he pays a tribute to his wife, "the best and dearest woman ever born," to whom he leaves £20,500, his town house and effects there, the selection of a motor car, cob and carriage, and his locket containing the hair of his son, Lord Haddon.

He leaves "nothing to any hospital or charitable institution, as the heavy taxation and intolerable super-tax renders impossible any such action on my part."

Death duties on the estate amount to about £268,000.

Among the Duke's other bequests are £200 to Mrs. Arthur Bourchier, of 76 Seymour street, Hyde Park, W., and £20,000 upon trust for each of his daughters, Marjorie, Violet, and Diana (Lady Diana Duff Cooper), and their children.

FAREWELL PARTY TO MISS ACKISON

Representative of St. Paul's Church in Formosa—Now Unionist.

On Saturday afternoon a number of friends of Miss Maud Ackison met at the Y.W.C.A. to spend a social hour and to bid her farewell before she leaves for Japan, en route to her future home in Formosa.

During the afternoon Miss Ackison was presented with a purse, and the following address was read by Mrs. H. R. H. Kenner, and the presentation made by Miss C. Dickson.

Dear Miss Ackison:

During the years that you have been laboring as a missionary in far-off Formosa as a representative of St. Paul's Church, your many friends in Peterborough have taken a very real and deep interest in your work.

From time to time we have received with mingled feelings of pride and pleasure reports of your successful efforts as an ambassador of Christ in that distant isle.

We have realized, at least in part, the various difficulties you have encountered, and the many causes for discouragement you must have had along your pathway, and always we have admired the steadfast courage you have shown and the unceasing cheerfulness which has characterized your years of service.

Accordingly your Unionist friends from St. Paul's Church feel that this, the eve of your return to your chosen field of labor, is a fitting time to express in some small degree our appreciation of what you have been able to do in that remote portion of God's vineyard, especially as we can now add to our sincere wishes for the continued success of your work as a missionary, our felicitations on your approaching marriage.

We desire to wish you every happiness at this time, as we feel assured that the step you are taking, should make your life more complete, useful and contented. And, here, may we extend our congratulations to your finance on the fortunate and happy choice he has made in selecting a wife?

For him as well as for yourself we desire all that conduces to complete happiness. For you both, it is our hope and wish that in your lives united, your sphere of usefulness may be enlarged, that your days of cloud may be few, those of sunshine long and many, and that the home you are founding may be a living centre for all temporal and spiritual blessings to yourselves on account of the good service it may render unto others.

Signed on behalf of your Unionist friends from St. Paul's Church, Charlotte Dickson.

In a brief reply, Miss Ackison feelingly expressed her gratitude—not only for the gift, but also for the interest and sympathy these ladies of St. Paul's had always shown in her work, and which had been of so much help and encouragement to her.

Among those present were:

Miss C. Dickson, Mrs. M. Meredith, Mrs. Wm. A. Graham, Mrs. A. Porteous, Mrs. Thos. Leslie, Miss F. Dixon, Mrs. D. Mahood, Mrs. Chas. McKinnon, Mrs. W. F. Nelson, Miss M. Dunlop, Mrs. D. Stewart, Mrs. W. J. Mein, Miss L. Best, Mrs. E. Ferguson, Mrs. Moir, Mrs. Cormack, Mrs. E. Morrison, Mrs. Fraser, Mrs. Thompson, Mrs. Buchanan, Mrs. Hall, Mrs. H. R. H. Kenner, Miss M. Dickson.

KNITTING MILL BURNED DOWN

Fire of Unknown Origin Caused Damage of About $50,000.

. RUNNING FULL TIME. .

COLLINGWOOD, Nov. 16 (Canadian Press).—At ten o'clock yesterday morning the knitting mill of D. Graham and Sons of Inglewood, and A. J. Brown Co. was totally destroyed by fire, involving a loss of about $50,000. It is thought to have originated in the shipping room, but the origin is unexplainable as no fire had been used in the room since last spring.

The plant employed 25 hands, and was operating to capacity. Shipments were going out daily and many orders were unfilled.

"BRINGING UP FATHER" — Geo. McManus

SUICIDE FOUND BY HIS FATHER

Fred Hardiman, 20, Had Stuffed Up Doors and Opened Gas Burners.

ANOTHER DEATH.

TORONTO, Nov. 16. — (Canadian Press.)—Lying on a couch in front of the gas stove in the kitchen of his home, 38 Spruce street, on Sunday morning, Fred Hardiman, aged 20 years, was found dead by his father. Gas, the police say, had been escaping from three burners in the oven and the doors had been stuffed with clothing.

John Moran, aged 35 years, was found dead in bed on Sunday afternoon in his room. An autopsy was performed at the morgue, and Moran's death was found to have been from natural causes.

WOMEN'S INSTITUTE MET AT ROSENEATH

Wet Weather Served To Keep Attendance at Low Mark.

ROSENEATH, Nov. 16 — Although the day was stormy and rough the Women's Institute met at the home of the president, Mrs. Jas. A. Brown. Owing to the weather there were just twenty-four present. Those who did not attend missed a very interesting meeting.

The usual amount of business was gone through, one item being the discussion of sending fruit and pickles, etc., to the Cobourg Hospital.

The rest of the program followed: a paper by Mrs. J. Baxter on "The Guest Room." This was very interesting telling the requirements and comforts in good taste. There was next an instrumental by Mrs. C. W. Varcoe followed by a reading entitled "Keep the Bright Side Out"by Mrs. A. Halstead. A period of two minutes for silent prayer of Thanksgiving was allowed and the doxology sung.

The chief item of interest, however, was a demonstration of table setting and serving in charge of Mrs. F. Nichol, assisted by Mesdames A. Brown, A. J. Campbell and J. Brown. It was very good and likewise instructive and had taken much time in preparation.

The meeting dispersed after lunch had been served by the hostess to meet at the home of Mrs. Campbell in December.

Bell Dedicated

The congregation of St. James' Church held a very impressive and interesting service on Monday afternoon when the new bell was dedicated. This bell had been donated by the family and descendants of the late William Drape.

A supper was given by the Auxiliary ladies in the Orange hall and a concert given later in the town hall. There was a splendid crowd on all occasions.

Miss Bertha Clark found it necessary to give the pupils in the junior room a holiday on Thursday as she is suffering from a heavy cold.

There are still various cases of measles in the vicinity; in some cases with the adult folk they have proven quite serious.

SISTERS FOUND DEAD.

Death of Two Women Is Believed Due to Asphyxiation.

MONTREAL, Nov. 16.— (Canadian Press.)—Lying side by side on the kitchen floor of their flat, 4632 Park Avenue, Rose Goulet and Valeda Goulet, sisters, were found dead last night. It is thought that death was due to asphyxiation, thought there was no smell of gas in the house when the police made their way into the place.

COLDS THAT DEVELOP INTO PNEUMONIA

Chronic coughs and persistent colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with twofold action, it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and kills the germ.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, attacks the seat of the trouble and destroys the germs that lead to consumption.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of chronic coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, catarrhal bronchitis and other forms of throat and respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. Creomulsion Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

SILVER WINGS

Hard fighting had been in progress for some days, and the flying men had been kept desperately busy from dawn to dark on the various branches of their several works, when a "dud day"—a day of rain and squalls and hurricane winds—gave them a chance to rest.

Towards afternoon the weather showed signs of abating a little, and word came through to the squadron to which "Silver Wings" belonged asking if they could get a machine in the air and make a short patrol over the line on a special reconnaissance. A heavy and unpleasantly gusty wind was still blowing, but a pilot and machine were picked for the job and presently made the attempt. An anxious squadron commander and a good many of the pilots watched the trial and saw the quick result. The machine was brought out with mechanics hanging to the wing-tips to steady her against the gusts, the engine started and given a trial run up; then the pilot eased her off, looked round, felt his controls, ran the engine up again until his machine was throbbing and quivering to the pull of the whirling propeller, and waved the signal to haul away the chocks that blocked his wheels. His machine began at once to taxi up into the wind, still swaying and swinging dangerously, and then, in answer to the pilot's touch, lifted clear of the ground, ducked a second, rose again and swooped upward. The watching crowd let go a breath of relief as she rose clear, but before the breath was out it changed to a gasp of horror as the machine, caught by some current or eddy of wind, swerved, heeled, right under the desperate effort of the pilot, slipped sideways, and with a sudden swoop plunged and crashed on the ground. The machine was hopelessly smashed and the pilot was dead when they ran and came to him and picked him up.

The squadron commander would have abandoned or postponed the attempt to get a machine up, but the pilot of "Silver Wings" spoke to him and urged that he be allowed to have a try. "I'm sure I can get her off," he said. "I'll take her right over to the far side of the ground clear of the currents round the sheds. I know what she can do, and I'm certain I can make it."

So the major gave a reluctant consent, and they all watched breathlessly again while "Silver Wings" fought her way along the ground against the wind, lifted suddenly, drove level for a hundred feet, swooped sickeningly again until her wheels were a bare six feet off the ground, hoicked up and away. Everyone could see by her dips and dives and sudden heelings and quick righting how bumpy and gusty the air was, and it was not until she was up several hundred feet, and came curving round with the wet light shining on her silvery planes that the watchers on the ground heaved a sigh of relief, watched her streak off down wind, and swing in a climbing turn that lifted her farther and farther into the safety of height.

"He's all right now," said one. "Only, the Lord help him when he comes to land again." The hum of the engine droned down to them, and the shining wings wheeled again close up against the dark background of the low clouds and shot swiftly down wind toward the lines.

Over the lines she turned again and began to fight her way across wind and moving slowly north. The wind constantly forced her drifting over Hunland, and in accordance with his orders to hold close along the front, the pilot had to keep making turns that brought him facing back to the west and fighting slowly up wind, edging off a little and slanting north and watching the landscape slide off sideways under him. And so, tacking and manoeuvring buffeted and wind-blown, he edged his way along the front, his eyes alternately on the instrument-board and on the ground and puffing shell smoke beneath, his ears filled with the roar of his engine and the shriek and boom of the wind beating about him, his hands and feet in constant motion, juggling with controls, feeling, balancing, handling the throbbing horse-power and the wind-tossed fabric under him. And so at last, at the end of a hard-fought hour, he came to the spot he sought, circled and "sat over it" for five minutes, and watched and tried to pick up the details of the struggle that spluttered and spat in smoke-puffs and flashing jets of fire and leaping spouts of earth and smoke beneath him. He began to piece together the meaning of what he could see, and of what he had been told before he set out. A body of our infantry in the attack had gone too far, or their supports had not come far enough, with the result that they had been cut off and surrounded and were fighting desperately to hold off the infantry attacks that pressed in on them under a heavy supporting artillery fire. The cut-off party were hidden from the view of our front line by a slight ridge and a wrecked and splintered wood, and their desperate straits, the actual fact of their still being in existence, much less their exact location, was unknown to our side. This much the pilot knew or was able to figure out; what he could not know was the surge of hope, the throb of thankfulness that came to the hard-pressed handful below him as they saw the glancing light flash from his hovering "Silver Wings." They made signals to him, waving a dirty flag and straining their eyes up for any sign that he saw and understood. And with something very near to despair in their hearts they saw the shining wings slant and drive slowly up into the wind and draw away from over their heads.

"No good, Jones," said a smoke-and-dirt-grimed young officer to the man still waving the flag. "He doesn't see us, I'm afraid. Better put that down and go back and help hold off those bombers."

"Surely he'd hear all this firing, sir," said the man, reluctantly ceasing to wave.

"I think his engine and the wind drowns any noise down here," said the officer. "And if he hears anything, there's plenty of heavy gunfire all along the front going up to him."

"But wouldn't he see the shells falling amongst us, sir, and the bombs bursting, and so on?" said the man.

"Yes; but he is seeing thousands of shells and bombs along the line from up there," said the officer; "and I suppose he wouldn't know this wasn't just a bit of the ordinary front."

Another man crawled over the broken debris of the trench to where they stood. "Mister Waller has been hit, sir," he said; "an' he said to tell you it looks like they was musterin' for another rush over where he is."

"Badly hit?" said the officer anxiously. "All right, I'll come along."

"He sees us, sir," said the man with the flag, in sudden excitement. "Look he's fired a light."

"Pity we haven't one to fire," said the officer. "But that might be a signal to anyone rather than to us."

He turned to crawl after the man who had brought the message, and at the same moment a rising rattle of rifle-fire and the quick following detonations of bursting bombs gave notice of a fresh attack being begun. Still worse, he heard the unmistakable tat-tat-tat of renewed machine-gun fire, and a stream of bullets began to pour in on them from a group of shell-holes to their right flank, less than a hundred yards from the broken trench they held. Under cover of this pelting fire, that forced the defenders to keep their heads down and cost them half a dozen quick casualties amongst those who tried to answer it, the German bombers crept closer in from shell-hole to shell-hole, and their grenades came over in faster and thicker showers. The little circle of ground held by the group belched spurts of smoke, hummed to the passage of bullets, crackled and snapped under their impact, quivered every now and then to the crash and burst of shells. They had been fighting since the night before; they were already running short of ammunition, would have been completely short of bombs but for the fact of the ground they had taken having held a concreted dug-out with plentiful stores of German bombs and grenades which they used to help out their own supply. The attack pressed savagely; it began to look as if it would be merely a matter of minutes before the Germans rushed the broken trenches they held, and then, as they knew, they must be overwhelmed by sheer weight of numbers. Waller, the wounded officer, had refused to be moved. "I'll stay here and see it out," he said; "I don't suppose that will be long now"; and the other, the young lieutenant who was the only officer left on his feet by this time, could say no more than a hopeful "Maybe we'll stand 'em off a bit yet," and leave him there to push along the trench to where the fire and bombing were heaviest and where the rush threatened to break in.

The din was deafening, a confused uproar of rifles and machine-guns cracking and rattling out in front and banging noisily in their own trench, of bombs and grenades crashing sharply on the open or booming heavily in the trench bottom, of shells whooping and shrieking overhead or crumping savagely on the ground, and, as a background of noise to all the other noises, the long rolling, unbroken thunder of the guns on both sides far up and down the lines.

But above all the other din the lieutenant caught a new sound, a singing, whirring boo-oo-oom that rose to a deep-throated roar with a sharp staccato rap-tap-tap-tap running through it. He looked up towards the sound and saw, so close that he half ducked his head, a plunging shape, a flashing streak of silver light that swept over his head and dived straight at the ground beyond his trench, with stabbing jets of orange flame spitting out ahead of it. A bare fifty feet off the ground where the Germans crouched in their shell-holes "Silver Wings" swooped up sharply, curved over, dived again with the flashes of her gun flickering and streaming, and the bullets hailing down on the heads of the attackers. It was more than the Germans, lying open and exposed to the overhead attack, could bear. They scrambled from their holes, floundered and ran crouching back for the shelter of deeper trenches, while the lieutenant, seeing his chance, yelled and yelled again at his men to fire, and seized a rifle himself to help cut down the demoralised attack. He could see now how close a thing it had been for them, the weight of the attack that presently would have swarmed over them. The ground was alive with running, scrambling grey figures, until the bullets pelting amongst them cut them down or drove them headlong to cover again. Then his men stopped firing and watched with hoarse cheering and shouts the dives and upward leaps of the silvery shape, her skimmings along the ground, her upward wheeling climbs followed by the plunging dives with fire spitting and sparkling from her bows. The Germans were firing at her now with rifles and machine-guns until she turned on the spot where these last were nested, drove straight at them and poured long clattering bursts of fire upon them until they were silenced.

Then she turned and flew over the broken British trenches so close that the men in them could see the leather-clad head and arm of the pilot leaning over the side, could see him wave to them, the flung packet that dropped with fluttering streamers down amongst them. The packet carried a note jerkingly scribbled in pencil: "Hang on. I'm taking word of where you are, so that they can send help to you. Good luck."

The lieutenant, when he had read, handed the message to a sergeant and told him to pass it along round the men. And they read and shouted cheers they knew he could not hear to the pilot lifting the "Silver Wings" steadily into the sky and back towards the lines. He was high enough now for the "Archies" to bear on him again, and from their trenches the men watched with anxious hearts and throbs of fear and hope the black puffs of smoke that broke rapidly above, below, and about the glinting silver. He made desperately slow speed against the heavy wind, but fortunately had not far to go before he was far enough back to be over the lines and out of reach of the Archies. Then just when it seemed that he was safe, when the Archie shells had ceased suddenly to puff about him, the watchers saw another machine drop from the cover of a cloud, dive straight down on the little silver shape, saw the silver wings widen as they turned sharply upward to face the enemy, wheel and shoot sideways to avoid the dive. With beating hearts and straining eyes they watched the two dipping and curving, lifting and diving, wheeling and circling about each other. The battle noises drowned all sound of their guns, but they knew well the rapid rattle of fire that was going on up there, the exchange of shots, the streaming bullets that poured about both, thought at last they could catch the sound of the firing clearly, could see the black cross and circled red, white, blue, that marked enemy and friend as the two machines drifted back in their fighting down wind until they were almost overhead. Once the watchers gasped as the enemy dived on "Silver Wings" and she slipped sideways and came down a thousand feet nose first and spinning in dizzy circles. The gasp changed to a cry of relief as the "Silver Wings" righted, zoomed sharply up, whirled round, and in turn dived on the enemy machine, that had overshot his pursuing dive and come below her. And the cry changed again to a yell of applause, a burst of cheers, as the enemy swerved suddenly, slid drunkenly sideways and down, rolled over, and fell away in a spinning dive, swoop after sickening swoop, that ended crashing in a clump of wood half a mile away. A wind-blown torrent of streaming black smoke marked the place of the fall and the fate of the enemy. "Silver Wings" turned again and fought her way back towards the lines, with the Archie shells puffing and splashing about her.

Down in their trenches the isolated cluster of men set about strengthening their defences with new heart, made with a new hope preparations to withstand the next attacks. It was not long before they had help—a help that the guns, knowing now exactly where they were although they could not see, could send in advance of the rescuing attack. A barrage of shells began to pound down beyond them, out to their right and left, and even behind them. "Silver Wings" had dropped her message, and the shells brought the answer plain to the cut-off party. They knew that they were located, that the guns would help out their defence, that rescue would come to them as speedily as might be.

The actual rescue came presently in the shape of an attack over the ground they had covered the day before. Before it came they had to beat off one or two more enemy rushes, but this time the help of those barraging shells stood two more enemy rushes, but this time help of those barraging shells stood them in good stead the sweeping shrapnel prevented the enemy creeping in to occupy in comparative safety the shell-holes round the position, the steady fall of high explosives broke down the enemy trenches and checked free movement in them. The Germans were badly pounded on that portion of the front, so that when the rescuing attack was made, it fought its way rapidly forward, and the isolated party were able to do something to help it merely by hanging to their position, by rear and flanking fire on the Germans who held the ground between them and the attacking line. The attack resulted in the whole line being pushed forward to the ridge behind the separated party, holding it, and thrusting forward a little salient which took in the ground the party had hung to so stoutly, consolidated, and held it firm.

The rescued men were passed back to their lines, and—most of them—to the casualty clearing stations. And when the lieutenant brought the remnant of his company back to the battalion, he told the battalion commander his end of the story, and heard in return how the message of their whereabouts had been brought back and how it had directed the movement that had got them out. The lieutenant wanted to send a word of thanks to "Silver Wings" and her pilot, but this the C. O. told him he could not do. "The pilot was lifted out his machine and taken straight to the C. C. S.," he said. "He was wounded by rifle-fire from the ground when he first dived to help you beat off that attack. No, not seriously, I'm glad to say, but he'd lost a lot of blood, and he got rather knocked about landing and broke his machine a bit I believe."

"Wounded," said the lieutenant slowly, "and at that time. So he kept on diving his machine about and fighting after he was wounded; and went through that air fight with his wound, and shot the Hun down, and then came on back and gave his message—"

"Dropped a note straight into the signallers at brigade headquarters," said the C. O.

The lieutenant drew a deep breath. "We knew we were owing him a lot," he said. "But it seems we were owing even more than we thought."

HUGE CAVE FOUND IN URAL MOUNTAINS

One Branch of Tunnel is More Than Twenty Miles Long.

SVERDLOVSK (former Ekaterinburg, Nov. 16 (Canadian Press).—One of the largest caverns in the world has just been discovered in the Ural Mountains. Up to the present, only three miles of the cavern which is much larger than any of the caves in Kentucky, have been explored. A branch section of the great subterranean tunnel runs for a distanc of twenty miles. The cavern contains a "diamond grotto" of stalactites and a "polar grotto" with walls of solid ice.

There is also a "titanic grotto" more than 150 feet high. Excavations in the cavern which dates back to the period of primary formation have revealed the jawbone of a prehistoric horse with a trunk.

IS LIFE WORTH LIVING?

Inspiring Sermons Preached in Campbellford Churches on Sunday.

CAMPBELLFORD, Nov. 16.—To any susceptible individuals, who, after listening to the political Jeremiahs that passed up and down the land recently, may have reached the conclusion that the game of life was not worth the candle and that the forces of evil are getting control in the economy of the world, messages of hope were delivered from two Campbellford pulpits Sunday. In the morning at St. Andrew's, Rev. James Grier preached from the topic, "Is Life Worth Living?" and in the evening, in the Baptist Church, Rev. Edmund D. Forde's subject was the question, sent in by an anxious enquirer, "Is the World Getting Better or Worse?"

Life is Worth While.

Rev. Mr. Grier enumerated some of the leading gains and losses in life, and, balancing these against each other, reached the conclusion that anything lost usually resulted in a greater gain. The vitality of youth, for example, may depart, but it is succeeded by the wisdom of age. The passionate love of early years is replaced by the purer and more unselfish affection that comes with later years. The life that the Master came to earth, that his disciples might have it more abundantly, was worth while. The good exceeded the evil and the gains were greater than the losses.

Good-Will Triumph.

In his discourse Mr. Forde admitted that there was more evil in the world to-day than ever before, but there is at the same time more good. There is danger in considering too closely the question which formed the subject of his sermon. The pessimist,convinced that things are getting worse, may decide to let them take their course and refuse to take part in any effort to make them better.

There is more religious activity in the world to-day, and religion is being more than ever applied to social needs, but the forces of evil are active. The enemy is sowing tares in the Gospel wheat fields. Man's power and opportunities for evil are greater. There is, however, a public conscience such as there never has been before. The struggle between good and evil at present is intense, and the question contained in the text cannot be fully answered until the end is reached. What the final result will be Mr. Forde has no doubt. Right will eventually triumph just as it always has.

The speaker said that instead of wasting energy trying to solve such a problem, people should apply the question to themselves individually and ask, "Am I getting better or worse?"

Send in Subjects.

In order to find out what the people of the town are thinking about, Mr. Forde invites any one interested to send in subjects which they would like to have discussed from the pulpit. These subjects may be mailed to him or placed upon the collection plate, signed or unsigned.

THE MOTOR BUS.

Whatever the general opinion may be of the proposed combined street car and motor bus service for Peterboro, residents of East City are inclined to view the proposal with distinct favour, inasmuch as it includes a motor bus service to that section of the city.

East City people have been promised transportation facilities for years, and the announcement of a fifteen-minute service with modern motor buses in commission is hailed as the dawn of a new era.

There seems no doubt that the use of motor vehicles for public transportation will eventually drive most of the street railways out of business.

The new type of bus, speedy, easily handled, commodious and comfortable, has proved its dependability and usefulness not only in urban but in inter-urban routes, and it is easy to see that much of the patronage hitherto extended to street railways and steam railways will be absorbed by the motor bus.

The ever-growing popularity of the latter method of transportation provides many new problems in connection with road building, traffic control and franchises, but these will doubtless be satisfactorily solved, for the motor bus is here to stay.

TOBOGGAN SLIDES.

The decision of the city fathers to have a toboggan slide built at Jackson Park this winter will be popularly received, especially by those who remember the enjoyment that was provided by the old chutes at this point years ago.

The Aldermen are to be commended for making possible the splendid winter sport of tobogganing under safe conditions and amid such ideal surroundings as at Jackson Park, which should be the mecca for hundreds of Peterboro people each night this winter.

In these days of indoor recreation, with the movies and the radio having the tendency to keep young people too much inside, a healthful amusement that will cause them to get out into the clear, frosty air of a canadian winter's night and fill their lungs with ozone instead of gas fumes and tobacco smoke, should be looked upon as a decidedly deserving of support.

Municipal skating rinks and toboggan slides are investments in good health and should be regarded as such and not merely as an expenditure from which there are no returns.

The winter programme undertaken by the Parks Committee will be endorsed by the majority of citizens.

BETTER BATHING BEACHES.

It may not be a particularly appropriate time for the discussion of a mid-summer subject, such as bathing beaches, but the fact that before long the municipal election will be here and candidates will soon be in the field suggests that it might serve a very useful public purpose if the situation were reviewed and the opinion of municipal aspirants secured.

It is not necessary to dwell long on the desirability of adequate bathing facilities; swimming has become such a popular pastime with people of all ages and of both sexes that it is universally admitted that the city which does not provide the necessary facilities for its citizens in this respect is not keeping up with the procession.

The Examiner feels that this is true of Peterboro.

We have had, it is true, at Inverlea Park and at the foot of Lake street for the past few years what the Aldermen are pleased to call municipal swimming beaches.

They offer water in which to swim, some sort of dressing-room accommodation and supervision of a very sketchy nature.

Are these adequate facilities?

In the first place, the water is said by medical authorities to be polluted to such an extent as to be dangerous to the health of bathers.

A beautiful river is available, but because our civic bodies have not had the enterprise or the moral courage to put their foot down and declare flatly that pollution of the Otonabee must stop, we are faced today with the situation that the water in which our citizens are invited to swim is not fit for that purpose.

Then there is the question of dressing-room accommodation.

At Inverlea there is a tin-covered shed for the male bathers—a building originally intended for a tool shed, it is said.

It has practically no ventilation save through the entrance door, which to ensure privacy has to be kept closed.

The result is an atmosphere during rush hours that is suggestive in its temperature of the Black Hole of Calcutta and in the odors it carries of the stockyards.

No running water is available, and the floor speedily is covered with an inch of slime and water despite the best efforts of the caretaker.

Women bathers are provided with a tent in which there are no conveniences for hanging clothes and the earth floor of which is a mud-puddle. When the tent is crowded the conditions can be imagined.

As to the protection offered the bathers it is confined to the attendance of a caretaker, who is expected to look after the dressing-rooms, maintain order and act as lifesaver for a salary of about $20 a week.

It is too much to expect that such a generous stipend will attract men of the type needed as lifesavers, young men with a proper knowledge not only of swimming but of rescue work and methods of resusation.

At each beach, if anything like proper protection is to be given, there should be a qualified lifesaver, and the matter of a few dollars more in expenses should not stand in the way of the appointment of such officials.

The time has come when Peterboro should provide something better, safer and more sanitary in the matter of bathing facilities than at present are offered, and aspirants for municipal honours should study the matter and have something to say about it in the campaign that is shortly to open.

COMPASSIONATE MURDER.

Public opinion is not adverse to being divided, says the Montreal Herald. In fact, there is no subject on which it is wholly in accord. Excepting perhaps politics and theology, it is never quicker to disagree than when there arises some such incident as the Colorado physician's slaying of his imbecile daughter.

Many condemn the physician-father's act, while probably as many others would acquit him of the murder charge which he now faces. Here is a social problem to the solution of which civilization is probably no nearer today than it was a century ago, although the civilized world has given serious thought to it for centuries.

Dr. William D. Cutter, dean of the Post-Graduate Medical School of New York, believes to absolve the Colorado physician would be subversive of the nation's social and moral fabric. He explains his position with the statement that, "Whether such a crime, at once compassionate and premeditated, is justifiable depends largely on the moral status of the community in which it is committed. The answer would be simpler in a primitive land than in our highly complex civilization."

The other side of the story is told by the doctor's own court defense. Dismissal of the murder charge was asked on the grounds that the "victim" was not a human being. The daughter was an imbecile, she had neither arms nor legs, and she was deaf and dumb. Her father, knowing his own days numbered, chose to kill her rather than leave her alone in the world.

Is it not the right, even the duty, of society to quench such blighted existences and to put to a merciful end such misery? Or is life—even when so deformed—too scacred a thing to snuff out before its natural time?

THE EMBARRASSED CREDITOR.

Emerson said it is not easy to receive a gift. Had he lived in these topsy-turvy days he might have known the same thing applies to a debt. Usually we deem the creditor as having the debtor by the throat. Yet there are special occasions whereupon the debtor gets a sort of under-hold upon the creditor, causing the latter considerable worry. And just now the United States seem in this awkward position. The temporary breakdown of war debt parleys with France has the sole advantage of giving the bargainers on both sides more time to overlook the situation with all its implications. On the one hand, it is generally recognized that no business can be done and that business relations must stay flat until such time as the franc is stabilized, and every down jerk of the French fiscal thermometer lowers the commercial temperature in the United States. Washington watches the mercury line with deep concern. Yet on the other hand, if France is made sufficient for her obligations and has the capacity to pay, what effect will the discharge of her debt at the American figure have upon American home manufacturers and foreign trade? How will Box be affected by Cox when the debtor pays up the full five shillings? This is the query going the rounds in American financial circles and it is somewhat of a poser.

A national debt differs from the individual phase of indebtedness whether the proposed payment be in terms of cash or trade. Conditions are not the same. Trading interests and credits figure far more prominently in bargaining affairs between nations than in the I. O. U. transactions between one man and another. Mostly personal debtors can or must pay in cold cash. With nations it is otherwise. They must and can only pay in goods; at least, money is the minor portion of their return for loans; and it follows that any bargain between nations takes a shape of industrial barter. The private creditor can accept payment with thanks and channel his gains into another market. Not so the nation, without considerable difficulty and risk. Factories must be kept going. Thousands of toilers need a livelihood. The debtor may be a possible good customer. To drain or distrain him for debt means lessening of his purchasing power. Strange as it sounds, Uncle Sam, with half the gold in the world and pockets bulging with money, is not so fortunate as at first seems. He must perforce ask himself what o'clock it will be with his business outlook and export trade should this peaky customer pay up. The discharge of obligations may be in form of a muffler.

France may send him socks, shirts, shoes, silks, etc., all of which he has already for sale and more than he can dispose of. On the other hand he does not need money to jingle in his pockets and send the cost of living soaring. To complicate matters, the price level of commodities today, as compared with the time when the loan was advanced, requires twice the amount of goods to match the value of the gold, which means that two shirts must be packed for payment where one would have sufficed before. Once more, it has suddenly occurred to Uncle Sam that his tariff might scare the debtor and retard the squaring of accounts. Yet contrawise, should he let down the bars the adverse tide of foreign competition might rush in like the thunderous waves at the Bay of Fundy. Uncle Sam may be excused for tugging at his goatee in sheer perplexity. Meanwhile the French diplomats are alternately smiling and frowning, but all the same "marking time" like good recruits at morning drill. There is a story told of some Cambridge professor who invented a logical dilemma. Having hold of a tiger's tail, is it better to let go or hold on?—Montreal Gazette.

A THOUGHT.

MINTING

A piece of silver in a mint is assayed before being coined. The metal is carefully tested by the assayer to determine its quality. If it is not of the exact standard of fineness required it is refined to meet this required standard.

Standardized it is again tested before the stamp of the government is put on it, guaranteeing its quality so that it passes as legal tender anywhere.

The Kiwanis process is not unlike minting. We too must make a careful list of the raw material which knocks at our doors. We too must lift to the standards the men who fall short, before we can admit them to our ranks.

A Kiwanis button on the coat is our stamp of genuine manhood. It is the endorsement of one hundred thousand tested citizens that this man stands out in his own community.

We, too, mint out of raw material men who will pass as legal tender in any community.

We place our stamp on these blanks of pure metal which come to us and while we may add little to their value, that stamp tells the world that value is recognized.

At home no business or professional man should need the endorsement of an organization. He is judged not by a membership, but by his reputation.

But as our coin in foreign countries is judged by the stamp of our government so also are men away from home judged by the stamp of approval put on them by their neighbors.

Membership in a Kiwanis club is such a stamp. It is an endorsement by those neighbors who know the man best, a guarantee that he is worthy of the confidences of the public.

CATTLE, GRAIN AND PRODUCE

Peterboro—Toronto—Montreal
Winnipeg

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE

MONTREAL, Nov. 15 (Canadian Press).—The export trade in Canadian grain on the Montreal market Saturday was quiet owing to the fact that foreign buyers did not respond readily to the higher prices asked by exporters. Some cables came in stronger at a further advance of 4 1-2d to 6d per quarter for Manitoba wheat and some business was done in nearby positions, and there were also some orders for oats accepted. In the local market, sales of No. 2 Northern wheat were made at 8 1- cents per bushel over the Winnipeg November option, c.i.f. Montreal, on spot car lots of Ontaro and Quebec No. 2 white oats sold at 52 1-2, No. - white at 51, and No. 4 white at 49 cents per bushel, ex-track.

There was no change in the condition of the flour market, prices for Spring wheat grades being steady, but the volume of business in all directions was rather small, which is usually the case on Saturday as buyers generally provide for their wants earlier in the week. A firm feeling prevailed in the market for Winter wheat flour with a small business passing in car lots. The demand for white corn flour was limited at $6.80 to $7 per barrel in jute bags, delivered to the trade.

Since this day week a very strong feeling has prevailed in the local market for strictly fresh eggs and prices have advanced 3 cents to 5 cents per dozen and the indications are that they will go still higher in the near future owing to the fact that the production throughout the country is at its lowest ebb at this period of the year and in consequence some dealers have been compelled to make purchases in the British Columbia market which are expected to arrive early this week.

Owing to the continued strength in the storage egg situation in the United States and the steady upward tendency of prices of late a stronger feeling has developed in the local market and some dealers on Saturday marked up their prices 1 cent to 2 cents per dozen, but this change was not general throughout the trade. There was some demand from foreign buyers during the week and it was reported that sales of 2,300 cases of storage firsts were made at 41c per dozen seaboard. The domestic trade in round lots was more active the past week which indicated that some dealers were short of supplies, and the domestic consumptive demand was good, with the result that a larger volume of business was done.

Butter Price Gains.

A stronger feeling has prevailed in the local butter situation the past week, and prices closed with a net gain of 1-4c to 1-c per lb. This was attributed to the small supplies coming forward, the lighter stocks held in first hands as compared with a year ago and the increased demand from domestic and outside buyers. The volume of business was larger and the market was more active than it has been of late. Wholesale jobbing prices have been advanced 2c per lb. within the past ten days and are now firmly maintained at 45c per lb. for solid packages, and at 46c per lb. for 1 lb. blocks.

The receipts of cheese in Montreal for the week ending November 14, 1925, were 31,916 boxes which show a decrease of 3,89 boxes, as compared with the previous week, and an increase of 3,700 boxes with the same week last year, but the total receipts for the season to date have been 83,896 boxes in excess of the same period a year ago.

Cheese Market Weaker.

The export trade in cheese for the past week has been of a very limited character owing to the continued indifferent attitude of foreign buyers and in consequence of which a much easier feeling has prevailed in the market, with the result that prices paid at Belleville Saturday were 1 7-16c to 1 1-2c per lb. lower than a week ago, and the top price bid at Vankleek Hill was 1 7-8c per lb. down. There was some demand on spot and purchases of several thousand boxes of July, August, September and October Eastern - made cheese were made at 22c per lb, and Western early makes at 22 1-4 to 22 1-2 c per lb., with September-make quoted at 23 1-2c per lb.

Beans were selling at $2.40 per bushel.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, Nov. 14 (Canadian Press).—Black rust in Argentina, together with reduced estimates of the exportable surplus of wheat looked for both there and in Australia, gave a decided new upward swing to the wheat market here today. Closing prices on wheat were firm at 1 3-8 to 3 1-4 cents net gain, December 1.56 5-8 to 1.56 3-4, and May 1.50 1-4 to 1.50 3-8, with corn 3-8 to 3-4c higher; oats unchanged to 1-4c up, and provisions unchanged to 25c advance.

Enlarged trading as well as higher prices accompanied the news indicative of curtailed supplies of wheat from the Southern Hemisphere.

It had of late been a rather general belief that crop losses in Australia would be more than made up by an increased yield in Argentina. To-day's advices, however, implied that the total exportable surplus in Australia and Argentina together would show a reduction of 17,000,000 bushels compared with last year. Stillness of world shipments for the week tended further to lift values, one authority asserting that the amount of wheat on ocean passage would show a fresh falling off of 3,760,000 bushels.

GOLDEN WEDDING AT CAMPBELLFORD

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Hubble Fifty Years Married.

CAMPBELLFORD, Nov. 16.—Surrounded by their three children, twelve grand and five great grandchildren, Mr. and Mrs. William Hubble, of town, celebrated the fiftieth anniversary of their wedding to-day (Monday) at the home of their daughter, Mrs. Harry Cassan. Both are in vigorous health, typical of the pioneers of Northumberland County, with a fair prospect before them of long years of life together.

Mr. Cassan was born of a pioneer family 76 years ago at Wellman's Corners, his youth being spent on the farm of his parents. When he was 26 years old he was married to Elizabeth Hubble of Hubble's Hill, a descendant of the family for which that place was named. Forty years ago Mr. and Mrs. Hubble removed to Campbellford and took up residence in a house on Centre Street near the railway crossing, in which they have lived ever since, enjoying the esteem of a large circle of acquaintances.

Mr. and Mrs. Hubble have spent the two last summers in Windsor, where the husband has been employed as caretaker of one of the parks, returning to their home in Campbellford at the close of the season.

Both attend the services held in the citadel of the Salvation Army, and for the past forty years they have led a quiet and uneventful life, giving their children every advantage that a modern community affords. They are alone now, but have the satisfaction of knowing that their son and two daughters are well settled in life and that their children and the offspring of the latter had gathered from far and near to do them honor on their golden wedding day.

The three children of Mr. and Mrs. Hubble are Mrs. Harry Cassan, at whose home the celebration was held, Mrs. J. A. Vancise of Windsor and Fred Hubble, also of that city. Perry Cassan, an employee of the C. N. R., and now stationed at Napanee, who is a son of Mrs. Cassan, is married and has five children, the latter forming the fourth generation in the Cassan family.

Mr. and Mrs. Hubble received many expressions of good-will from friends and neighbors, as well as a number of handsome gifts from their friends and neighbors.

An Election In Sight.

For the first time Campbellford has a candidate for the Boys' Parliament, the young man chosen for that honor being Jack Haig, son of Dr. and Mrs. A. Haig. Jack is one of the senior and most promising students in the High School, prominent in athletic sports, and if personal popularity means anything in the coming contest, he should have no difficulty in achieving his objective. He finds himself in a three-cornered contest, the other two candidates in East Northumberland being Clarke Lawson of Smithfield and Will Brown of Brighton. Gordon Lapp, of Brighton, the present Premier of the Boys' Parliament, has passed the age limit and automatically retires. He has been appointed returning officer for the riding.

The three candidates mentioned will hold joint meetings during the campaign and one of these gatherings will be held in Campbellford on Tuesday, November 24, when the platform of each will be explained. The election will be held throughout Ontario on Saturday, November 25. Those eligible to vote are Sunday School, Tuxis boys and Trail Rangers, over 12 but under 21 years old on the day of the election.

Dr. Maguire Here.

Rev. Dr. Gabriel R. Maguire, F. R. G. S., was here Friday and in the afternoon gave an interesting talk to the students of the High School on life in the jungles of Africa. In the evening he lectured at a gathering of the members of the fraternal society.

Compulsory Voting in Australia Gives Government Larger Majority.

A RECORD POLL.

Early Results Indicate Re-election of All Members of Cabinet.

MELBOURNE, Australia, Nov. 16 (Canadian Press)—General elections throughout Australia, for which the recent seamen's strike was responsible have resulted in the return of the Nationalist-Country Coalition government of which Stanley M. Bruce is head.

Although the returns are incomplete they indicate an increased majority for the present government, with all members of the ministry almost certainly re-elected.

The elections were held under novel conditions, the new law making voting compulsory being invoked. For failure to cast a ballot, a penalty of two pounds sterling was provided. This brought a record poll, the women being especially prominent.

The standing of the parties upon the dissolution of the house was: Labor, 29; Nationalists, 27; Country Party, 14; Liberals, 4; Independents 1; Total, 75. While the Laborites were in the majority, the Nationalists and Country members formed a coalition by which the government carried on.

Communism An Issue

The government based its fight for return to power on an appeal against the Communists and Labor extremists. Premier Bruce in the campaign declared strongly that the government was opposed to Communism and that the present election was the most important in the history of Australia and involved the most farreaching issues ever put before the country.

Besides Premier Bruce, the following members of the Cabinet appear to have been re-elected upon the basis of returns thus far available:

Commonwealth Treasurer, the Hon. E. C. G. Page.

Postmaster General, the Hon. W. G. Gibson.

Minister of Works and Railways, the Hon. W. C. Hill.

Minister of Trade and Customs, the Hon. H. E. Pratten.

Matthew Charlton, leader of the Opposition and chief of the Federal Labor Party; Frank Anstey, deputy leader, and W. A. Watt, Speaker of the House of Representatives, Nationalist, have been re-elected. Former Speaker McDonald, who died the day before the election, was succeeded in his Queensland seat by Joseph Francis, his National ist opponent, uncontested.

Former Prime Minister William M. Hughes was re-elected for North Sydney on the Nationalist platform.

UNWRAPPING OF PHARAOH'S BODY REVEALS YOUTH

Tut-Aukh-Amen Mummy Exposed, But Not Removed From Coffin.

MANY TREASURES.

Young King Entombed With Gold Dagger and Rich Ornaments.

CAIRO, Nov. 16. — (Canadian Press).—An official communique issued by the Ministry of Works describes the difficulties encountered in the examination of the body of Tut-Ankh-Amen and the many rare and interesting objects brought into the light of day. The body was not removed from the coffin, but the wrappings were cut away, exposing the mummy which proved to be that of a male not yet adult. The communique says:—

"On November 11, in the presence of the government and scientific representatives, Howard Carter began the examination of the mummy of Tut-Ankh-Amen, which was carried on in situ, since the mummy could not be removed from the coffin without injury.

"The outer surfaces of the wrappings, which were in a very fragile condition, were first consolidated by means of a thin coating of melted paraffine wax after which Prof. Derry made a longitudinal incision from mask to feet. The outer coverings on being turned back exposed a layer of wrappings which were equally carbonized and decayed. In these circumstances any orderly unwrapping was manifestly impossible.

Many Gold Treasures.

"As the work proceeded a large number of interesting and beautiful objects were gradually revealed. At each stage of the proceedings both written and photographic records were taken. Among the objects brought to light the more important were amulet and collarettes, a superb gold dagger with crystal handle, bracelets of intricate workmanship, a large number of finger rings of divers' materials, some having scarabs bearing the king's name for their bezels (setting); a second dagger even more beautiful than the first, several large inlaid pectorals, beadwork ornaments, gold circlets, etc.

"Until the thirteenth the work of uncovering the mummy had proceeded only so far as to expose the lower party of the body and limbs, according to the opinion of the anatomical experts the evidence to the present reveals without doubt that the body is that of a male, not yet adult, in a much emaciated condition.

"Carbonized on the feet are golden sandals.

DESTRUCTION OF TREES.

WASHINGTON, D.C., Nov. 16.—(Canadian Press).—The joy that Christmas trees bring to children outweighs the damage that the cutting of these small trees does to forests, according to the United States Forest Service. The service has announced that six million evergreens constitute the yearly cut of Christmas trees in the United States.

Does That Cough Stick On Your Lungs?

Mr. Islay MacNab, Bognor, Ont., writes:—"I was troubled with a terrible cough that I could not get rid of, and my doctor told me that I had a slight touch of bronchitis. Nothing I took seemed to give me any relief until I got a bottle of

I got such relief by using it that I would advise all those who are subject to bad colds or coughs to keep a bottle of this remedy in their homes all the time."

INDIANA KLAN'S FORMER DRAGON MURDERED GIRL

Jury's Verdict of Guilty Carries Penalty of Life Imprisonment.

OTHERS ACQUITTED.

Stephenson Described as a Monster By State Prosecutor—Will Appeal.

NOBLESVILLE, Ind., November 16. — Canadian Press. — Life imprisonment in the Indiana State Prison at Michigan City, is the price which a jury determined that D. C. Stephenson, former Grand Dragon of the Indiana Ku Klux Klan, shall pay for the death of Madge Oberholtzer.

It took a panel composed of ten farmers, one business man and a truck driver less than six hours to reach the verdict on Saturday.

Earl Klenck and Earl Gentry, the bodyguards of Stephenson, and charged jointly with the abduction and attack on the girl last March 15, were acquitted. Miss Oberholtzer took poison in a Hammond, Ind., hotel after the alleged mistreatment and died at her Indianapolis home 29 days later. The men were charged with responsibility for her act.

Murder in the second degree was the finding of the jury. It carries automatically for 20 years servitude, which the Indiana law calls life imprisonment. Good behaviour can reduce the term by several years.

Stephenson took the verdict without flinching. A short laugh and a shake of the head were the only manifestations.

"Surrender, hell!" he said as he lay on his bunk a few minutes later, in the cell that has been his home for seven months. "I am just beginning to fight. The last chapter has not been written.

Will Appeal Verdict.

Floyd Christian of defence counsel, notified Judge Will M. Sparks that a motion of appeal would be filed.

The judge left the court immediately after the verdict without indicating whether sentence will be pronounced.

Stephenson will be removed to the State prison pending appeal.

Less than a year ago a dominant figure in Hoosier politics, Stephenson's fall was as sudden as his rise to prominence. Four years ago he entered the state unknown, without friends or money. A dynamic speaker, with a personality which was felt even in the court room during his trial, he ascended in the Ku Klux Klan to be its Grand Dragon, one of the most powerful positions in the order.

State legislators and others flocked to his office in Indianapolis, it was shown by testimony at his trial. He was in constant communication, the State charged, with a large group of state Senators and representatives sitting in the legislature last January and February.

"I am the law in Indiana," was the statement attributed to him by the State, a statement ascribed to him by Madge Oberholtzer in her dying declaration which played so big a part in his conviction, a statement which the prosecution rang in his ears again and again as it pleaded with a jury to sentence him to death.

Klenck and Gentry followed their leader back to his cell, scorning the knowledge that they were free. He finally prevailed on them to leave him.

Stephenson Called a "Monster."

Excoriated in the State's closing arguments, the three defendants were assailed with new fury to-day by Ralph Kane, who spoke for the prosecutor for more than two hours, and closed 16 hours of argument. He called Stephenson a "hideous monster" and a "serpant who should be put away for the protection of the daughters of the future."

The three defendants sat unmoved during the verbal lashing.

"These men are criminals," declarlared the prosecutor. "By their acts they drove that girl to the position that she believed life held nothing for her but shame, and she took poison. They are as guilty of murder as though they had stabbed her in the heart. Now is the time to act to protect the daughters of the future."

Reads Woman's Dying Statement.

The prosecutor then read from her dying statement a description of the mistreatment the woman said she had received at the hands of Stephenson and his co-defendants. This mistreatment, the state contended, caused infected wounds which caused her death, the poison she took with suicidal intent not having a fatal effect.

"Shamed and humiliated, she felt she had nothing to live for," Mr. Kane continued. "These men murdered her. I want to demonstrate to Stephenson, to Klenck, to Gentry, to Inman and all the rest, that in Indiana the law is supreme. Put them away so others will be safe from them."

OBITUARY.

MRS. JOHN RUTTA.

TRENT RIVER, Nov. 16. — In the passing away of Susan R. Insley, beloved wife of John Ruttan, Trent River loses one of its highly respected citizens. Deceased had reached the noon-tide of life in her fifty-first year. The funeral took place Thursday afternoon from her late residence, service being held at the church, conducted by her pastor, Rev. E. O. Seymour, assisted by Rev. Forbes Stillman (cousin of the deceased), of Norwood. The edifice was crowded to the doors and many could not gain admittance. The choir was augmented by former members and personal friends of the departed and sang appropriate numbers. Rev. Mr. Seymour read the first lesson, taking as his text "Her sun has gone down while it is yet day." He spoke very feelingly and referred to the many years Mrs. Ruttan had willingly served as organist and had ever been ready for service for the Master in her humble way. Rev. Mr. Stillman read a chapter and spoke very fittingly of the departed, having known her from childhood. The hymns, "Abide With Me," "Asleep in Jesus," and "Nearer My God To Thee" were sung. The altar rail was decorated in black for the occasion. The floral tributes were many and beautiful. The burial service was read at the house immediately following the service at the church, after which the funeral cortege proceeded to Centre church cemetery, where the last rites were under the L.O.A.B.A. No. 179, of which deceased was a member. The bearers were Messrs. Isaac Lawson, Harold Brown, N. Garneau, Arthur Waters, Harry Mann and Charlie Davidson. The funeral was largely attended by friends far and near and there were upwards of one hundred cars in line to the last resting place. Much sympathy goes out to the bereaved husband and family in their sad and sudden bereavement.

The Public school closed Thursday afternoon in respect for the late Mrs. Ruttan's funeral.

TWO DIE WHEN AUTO HITS BUS

Driver and Girl Almost Instantly Killed in Detroit Street.

ANOTHER HURT.

WINDSOR, Nov. 16 (Canadian Press).—A man and a girl were killed and another occupant of the vehicle was seriously injured Saturday night when an automobile driven by Wilfrid Peltier, 25, of Ford, collided with a motor bus near Twelve Mile Road, Detroit. Wilfrid Peltier, accompanied by Miss Kay Gloss, 21, of Detroit, and Clifford Peltier, a brother, 17, were the victims. Miss Gloss and Wilfrid Peltier were almost instantly killed. Clifford Peltier is in Highland Park General Hospital, with a broken arm and other injuries.

According to witnesses of the accident, the automobile was on the wrong side of the street.

Peltier's body will be brought here tomorrow morning and following the funeral services will be taken to his former home at Wallaceburg.

President Coolidge is the first President of the United States to attend convention of the American Legion.

Bronchitis More Than a Cold

Often develops rapidly into pneumonia—relief is found in Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine.

Any cold is serious enough when its dreadful possibilities are considered, but when there is soreness or tightness in the chest and a dry hard cough you can look for bronchitis, which is often confused with an ordinary cold.

It is usually known by aching limbs and body pains, chilly feelings, weariness and weakness, pain in the chest and a tight, tearing cough. Fever, dry skin, thirst, coated tongue and constipation are other symptoms.

Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine seems almost like a specific for bronchitis because it is so successful in loosening up the cough, aiding expectoration and preventing the inflammation from reaching the lungs.

ABOLITION OF SUBS PLEADED

Lady Astor Urges Women of Plymouth To Launch Agitation.

ANGRY DEMAND.

LONDON, Nov. 16.—As the sad news that "the Admiralty deeply regret they can no longer hold out any hope that the crew of the M-1 still survives" spread to the uttermost parts of the British Isles on Saturday, a demand for the abolition of submarines grew louder and angrier.

The outstanding public utterance was the speech of Lady Astor to the women of Plymouth, in which she asked them to join in a world fight "to scrap submarines" and volunteered to go to every nation with the plea.

Percy G. MacKinnon, chairman of Lloyd's, has issued a public statement calling for the abolition of submarines, which he declared is possible with the security afforded by the Locarno compact.

Cecil, Parmoor and Sydenham Join

Lord Cecil, apropos of submarine abolition, said:

"An excellent idea if you can secure agreement by all nations upon it."

Lord Parmoor, formerly British representative at the League of Nations, said:

"All support should be forthcoming to the proposal to abolish submarines. If the growth of the spirit of good will is to be a sequel to Locarno, now is the time when the abolition of such a deadly instrument of destruction should be considered."

Lord Sydenham said:

"I have never believed the submarine to be a weapon of real importance for our Empire."

Lieutenant Commander Kenworthy, a member of Parliament, recalled the fact that at the Washington Conference the proposal for the abolition of submarines was strongly urged by the British and American and Japanese delegates, but the French vetoed it.

"What we should do is demand quid pro quo for what we have done in guaranteeing France's frontiers," he said.

Viscount Jellicoe, Commander of the British Fleet at the Battle of Jutland, refused to be drawn into the controversy. But another naval man, Admiral Kerr, said:

"I would wipe out all the submarines to-morrow if I could."

The News of the World suggests that Britain should offer France to forego half of the French debt to the British if France would agree to give up submarines.

"Scrap submarines!" cried Lady Astor to her constituents. "I am quite willing to go around the world and try to rouse women on this question.

"I don't advocate total disarmament—we are not ready for that yet—but it is practical for women to say that there shall be no more submarines during peace-time. I am informed that they are not really necessary except in war."

Royal Family Send Consolation.

The Admiralty addressed the following letter to the next of kin of the submarine's crew:

"The circumstances in which the submarine disappeared leave room for no doubt that your son (or husband) has lost his life with the rest of the crew."

Following close upon expressions of grief over the disaster by King George and the Prince of Wales, Queen Alexandra, the widow of King Edward VII., sent this message to the Admiralty:

"I am deeply grieved at the terrible disaster to the Submarine M-1, and my heartfelt sympathy is with the relatives of those who have perished."

HOLIDAY SEASON IS QUIET AT BURNBRAE

Students and Teachers Under Parental Roofs the Only Visitors.

BURNBRAE, Nov. 14.—The holiday season passed quietly at Burnbrae. Several students, who are attending university, and others who are teaching at a distance, were home over the week-end. Special Thanksgiving services were held at St. Andrew's Church on Sunday with message and music appropriate for the occasion.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Little are receiving the congratulations of their friends and neighbors, due to their success in winning second prize in the province-wide competition for the best equipped and most highly improved cheese factory. The Menie factory is a model of cleanliness in the interior, while the surroundings have been beautified by the judicious use of flowers and painted stones bordering drives and walks. The name of the factory is printed with whitened pebbles on the bank in front of the building so that anyone passing will have the name of the Menie district firmly fixed in his mind. Altogether, the effect is very pleasing, and the effort expended on the improving of the factory surely merits the $50 prize which Mr. and Mrs. Little have won.

St. Andrew's Ladies' Aid met at the home of Mrs. W. A. Milne, Menie, on Thursday last. Owing to rain, the attendance was not as large as usual.

The township road gang began work on the eighth concession line on Wednesday. This road was taken over by the county some years ago, but little or no work has been done, and when, this year, it was thrown back on the township, the road was in a terrible condition and in places almost dangerous for motor traffic. Residents of the section are hoping that the township gang will be frequent visitors on this road until it is in good condition again.

Several Burnbrae people attended anniversary services at Zion United Church on Sunday last, morning and evening. Rev. Mr. Glover, a former pastor on the circuit, delivered splendid addresses, and singing of Mrs. Glover and Miss E. Meiklejohn was much enjoyed.

Personals.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Little motored to Baltimore on Sunday last to visit Mrs. Little's parents.

Jack Rennie is enjoying the wintry weather in his new coach.

Mr. Robt. Cleugh, Belleville, spent Monday last at the home of his brother-in-law, Mr. Ed. Wilson.

Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Milne and Mr. Max Anderson motored to Marmora on Wednesday. Mr. Anderson is spending a week with his brother there.

Mr. John Rannie, who has been ill with pneumonia for some weeks, is improving very slowly.

FARM NEWS AND PROBLEMS

CARISBROOKE FARM AYRSHIRES ARE SOLD BY F. M. RUTHERFORD TO J. GORDON MANN, PINES FARM

Smith Township Man Has Bought Old Established Herd.

OWNER RETIRED

Mr. Rutherford Was One of Oldest Members of Menie Breeders' Club.

CAMPBELLFORD, Nov. 19.—Thirty-one head of pure bred Ayrshire cattle, from the Carisbrooke Farm of F. M. Rutherford, Bonar Law, were shipped from the station here Monday to J. Gordon Mann and Son, near Peterborough, and in future will be known as the Pines Farm Ayrshires.

In the closing out of the cattle industry at the Carisbrooke Farm and the retirement of Mr. Rutherford from the livestock business, the Ayrshire Breeders' Club in the Menie district, of which Mr. Rutherford was secretary, loses one of the most successful members. He started on his own accord to raise pure bred Ayrshires eight or nine years ago, with three or four head, and gradually increased his herd, and improved it, not only in numbers but in quality, both as regards milk production, but for type. His success was demonstrated at the Fall Fair. Nearly all of the cows of milking age in his herd had been tested for milk production and have to their credit some real substantial records. R.O.P. work was carried on at the Carisbrooke farm for the tuberculine and milk testing, besides exhibiting at all the leading fairs in central Ontario, these being the methods adopted by Mr. Rutherford to bring his herd to the favorable notice of the public.

Some Noted Sires.

Some of the noted sires that have headed this herd were Bonnie Doon of Menie, bred by William Stewart, the pioneer Ayrshire breeder of that place. This bull was sired by Springbrook Dairy Boy and the latter's dam, Springbrook, while Floss had a two-year old record of 11,430 pounds of milk, with 430 pounds butter fat and a 13,000 three-year old record. Mr. Rutherford took three different shipments of Bonnie Doon's progeny to Sherbrooke, Quebec, for exhibition at the boys' clubs, organized by S. Boileau, under the auspices of the Federal Live Stock branch of the Department of Agriculture. One of the heifers shown by Mr. Rutherford headed the club at Compton, both for milk production at conformation, in a class of 14 and her calf took second place.

Carisbrooke Primrose, another Bonnie Doon heifer at Waterloo, Que., headed a class of 18 for milk production and conformation. This heifer averaged 45 pounds of milk daily for from months, the milk testing 4 p.c. fat. There are several animals of this breeding, including one full sister, in the herd just purchased by Mr. Mann.

Another noted sire that proved himself a valuable acquisition to the Carisbrooke farm was Springburn Golden Beauty, bred by Gilbert McMillan, of Huntington, Que., and owned for three years by Hector Wood and Sons, of Ivanhoe, and now the property of Mr Barnard of Peterborough. The sire of this bull, now 14 years old, is now located at the Agricultural College at Saskatoon.

Springburn Golden Beauty's dams Beauty, was one of Mr. McMillans foundation cows and was dam of some of his best show animals, including a cow which brought $1,725 at one of his sales.

The present sire in the herd just acquired by Mr. Mann is Robin Hood of Springbank, six times champion at London, grand champion at Toronto in 1924, second at Toronto and Ottawa this year, champion at Brockville, Campbellford and Lindsay, 1925. Robin Hood in 1924 headed the Ontario exhibits of Ayrshires at Milwaukee and was on the Ontario better livestock train last spring for three weeks.

Mr. Mann gets 11 head bred to this great sire, including Pride of the Valley the first prize milk cow at Peterborough, Lindsay and Campbellford, Woodlawn Ditto, first at Toronto in the R.O.P. class in Toronto and third this year and first this year at Peterborough in dry class, and winner of two silver cups for best dairy cow of any breed and Dairy Maid, a promising four-year old and a close second to Ditto in dry class wherever exhibited. This quartette was first at Campbellford for the best dairy herd of any breed in compeittion with some of the best Ayrshire, Holstein and Jersey herds in Northumberland and Hastings counties.

Mr. Mann has purchased at a price which represents a small fortune what may be termed a real going concern, a herd that is well advertised and which holds a Dominion-wide reputation. All who know Mr Mann are satisfied that he will continue to build up and improve the record of the high-class stock that he has just acquired.

MOISTURE IN FODDER FOR SILO.

It is essential that there should be sufficient moisture present in fodder at the time it is being placed in the silo to provide the water requirement tfor the ensiling process and leave the surplus necessary to have amply moist, well made silage after the fermentative and cooling processes have taken place. With sufficient moisture present in the ensiled mass there is little danger of the fermentation temperatures running too high. Corn in the glazed stage, or dried out through freezing or long delays in hravesting will require liberal wetting. The shortage in plant juices can be made up by the application of water in quantity sufficient to thoroughly wet the cut fodder. Water is best applied by running a small stream directly int the fodder cutter while the fodder is being passed through and blown up into the silo. With water under pressure a valve to control the flow, and a section of garden hose the process of weting the cut fodder is easy.—L. Stevenson O. A. C., Guelph.

CHANGE MADE IN NEED FOR MEAT FOR URBAN SALE

Only Recently Population of Ontario Was Almost Entirely Rural.

DEALERS PASS OUT

Large Abattoirs Are Now Supplanting Local Butchers.

The marketing machinery that has been set up to handle and dispose of the Ontario farmers' largest cash revenue product—live stock—is the result of three comparatively recent economic developments: (a) the growth of relatively large urban centres whose meat supply can no longer be wholly supplied from local sources; (b) the rapid strides made during recent years in improving the year round distribution of fresh and cured meats, and (c) the economies effected by large scale operation of the business of meat killing, curing and storing.

How Conditions Have Changed.

Previous to fifty years ago the population of the province was largely rural. The meat supply of those actually on farms was automatically found, while that of the urban dwellers in the villages and small towns of that day was provided by direct contact between the producer and consumer. In the few larger towns or cities, where there was sufficient demand, the meat supply in addition to the above method, was supplemented by the local butcher, who performed two general functions, (a) providing fresh meat at retail in all seasons; (b) acting as middleman between producer and consumer when the population of the centre became large for the immediate locally produced supply, or for proper contact for best service between producer and consumer. These local butchers became, so to speak, butchers and drovers. The centres to which they consigned this surplus stock were naturally the larger ones, growing and destined to continue to grow because of natural advantages as distributive centres. Consumption of meat was large. Local, direct producer-to-consumer supply in the carcass was limited, therefore the abattoirs and slaughter houses were relatively large.

Abattoirs vs. Local Butchers.

These large abattoirs had four important operating advantages over the local butcher businesses in the smaller centres: (a) larger volume of business meaning smaller unit operating costs; (b) a more varied consumer demand for all parts of the animal; (c) a better opportunity to develop uses and markets for more edible by-products; (d) volume sufficient to find and develop distant and foreign markets.

Spread of the Present System.

These advantages gradually created a new direction to the flow of live stock from farm to consumer. Briefly, the readjustments were as follows: The larger abattoirs and packing plants began to supply meat products to other cities and towns previously supplied by local butchers because their lower operating costs and ability to supply the exact products required for consumption in these places overcame the advantage of the local butchers' nearness to supply of raw materials. These larger abattoirs could also handle most efficiently all stages of slaughtering, processing and disposal of by-products, therefore, the increasing surplus animals began to flow to these larger centres on hoof rather than as dressed carcasses. This also necessitated the establishment of central live stock markets where producers and sellers of live stock could assemble and grade their offerings and meet the buyers on common competing ground.

Other Live Stock Agencies.

Thus we find the origin of such live stock agencies as the railway, the market, the live stock commission man and the packer buyer all rendering essential service in disposing of the farmers' live stock. Since many of the above agencies act on behalf of a large number of small, isolated and distant producers, individually lacking influence and acquaintance with this complex market mechanism, much distrust and suspicion, largely unwarranted, has arisen making it necessary for the Government to step in as an additional marketing agency, on the one hand to enforce such regulations on the other agencies as are deemed necessary to create public assurance of honest business practices, and on the other hand to act as an educative medium, through its supply, grading, and price service to assist producer to more accurately and rapidly interpret that consumer demand, on a knowledge of which depends ultimate success in production.

The local butcher in city, town and village, buying and killing his own animals, has not been entirely displaced by the meat retailers buying from central packing houses. The farm still automatically supplies the most of the meat consumed by farm families, also a percentage of the demand in smaller centres in the winter months. It is not a matter of wonder, therefore, with the large rural and small town population of Ontario that to-day somewhat less than one-half the animals raised for meat find their way to market through the large markets and packing houses.—A. Lietch, Dept. Farm Economics, O.A.C., Guelph.

Corn stover only partially takes the place of legumes. It is good filling material, but it requires nearly 200 pounds of shredded corn to supply a cow with as much protein as contained in twenty pounds of alfalfa hay.

SHE'S KILLING HERSELF WITH WORK!

Isn't It Terrible How a Farmer's Wife Has to Slave!—But Hear Her Tell Her Own Story of Her Work.

By Nina Moore Jamieson.

"... tell her she doesn't know what work is."

I wonder why it always insults a woman to tell her she hasn't much to do! Tell her she has an easy time of it—doesn't know what work is—and she is your enemy for life! Women take a certain pride in being rushed to death, known as "great workers," and without a lazy bone in their bodies. There seems to be a certain reproach conveyed when it is said of us that we know how to take life comfortably. Apparently somebody else is to suffer if a woman has any relaxation.

But you can't please her. She takes it amiss if you tell her she has too much to do. Somehow it always strikes me crooked when somebody says: "Oh, I wouldn't live on a farm for anything—there is so much work to do!" I feel like telling them the advantage, when they are so strong on the other side, but as a matter of fact we have never any shortage in the work crop—it is like the fool crop, for it never fails.

Farm folks belong to the working classes, so that it is to be expected they will have something to do, but I do not think any other laboring man or woman has any reason for exulting over us. The circumstances under which we accomplish what we have to do are usually very plea ant. At least we have all the sunshine there is, and that is something in an age when electricity lights stores and banks and factories and even many school rooms for hours of every day.

Moreover, we do not have the nervous strain that dogs the life of the city dweller. The very noises of the city, its honks and clanks and buzz and hum; the pounding of factory wheels, the clatter of many feet, the clamor of voices raised in an effort to surmount other noises are a burden to the nerves and are endured at the expense of tissue. The unhurried bawling of a cow or the nightly barking of a lonesome dog, or the busy voice of a hen about her business, or the pleasant rumble of a wagon load of grain on the gravel roads, have nothing strenuous about them. They do not afflict the hearer with a sense of uneasiness or worry. They are peaceful sounds.

Whatever has to be done in the house, a woman can handle without any oppression at the back of her mind

All Hands to Potatoes!

Suppose the children are out of her sight for a few minutes—they won't be down some alley with the menace of a city's industry threatening them in the shape of truck wheels or noxious germs. They will be out playing in the orchard, or tramping importantly across the fields with their father, or amusing themselves with the kittens, or following some desire of the childish heart.

When anything has to be done, all hands help. The city worker has his work apart from his home—his family knows nothing of it, has no part in it. But on the farm, we all work together. Potato picking time is coming on, and you will see whole families out in the fields, getting the potatoes picked up. The mother arranges her housework o that she can give a hand Perhaps on that day everybody makes his own bed, and meals are of the simplest—just what can be prepared in a hurry. Never mind any dusting . . . . the sweeping is cut down to the minimum. All hands to the potatoes! Even the little youngsters can run with their two or three and drop them into the pails.

When I lived in the city I had three small children. My girls were born there. I know what life was like then. When I wanted meat for dinner, I had to put my girls into the baby carriage—the boy being thank goodness, safe in the kindergarten—and dress myself for the street and go. When I came back, I had clothes to change, babies to arrange, and all for the sake of that one item. Now John gets me a roast of beef any day he happens to be in the city, and we have it roasted, cold, roasted again to finish it off, as I never give the full time at first—and then we have it in hash and stew and finis.

After it vanishes, I have only to make my trip to the pork barrel down cellar and bring up the day's rations. Left-overs? The farmer's wife is not afflicted with them. By the time the dog and cat are fed, there are no left-overs. Our menfolk are not the pick-and-choose kind. They must have hearty appetites if they are to keep fit for outdoor work, and it is most satisfactory to be cook where you know the demand will equal, and may e pass the supply.

We do not have the running to the store for our household supplies. We buy in quantities, as a rule, and that is much simpler. Nor do we have so much trotting up and downstairs. The city woman is forever on her stairs. In Hamilton, I had a certain day of the week I could use the clothesline. The woman in the flat above had her day, and the woman below had hers. I used to travel miles on a washday! When we moved into a house by ourselves, I had the downstairs at my own disposal then, but still I found the doorbell was forever calling me when I was making beds, or sweeping, or looking after the children, giving them their baths or washing their hair.

No City Worries.

I wonder if this helps to explain how the farm woman can accomplish her big task? How she papers and paints in her house, and makes quilts and rugs and stretches curtains and looks after her garden! She must get the time somewhere, and I believe she finds it because she is free of certain burdens that take the time of other women. We do not have half the cause for dusting that city housekeepers have. Our windows open on grassy lawns, or fields where the soil is bound together by the roots of grain or hay for the greater part of the year. We have only the smoke of one estzblishment to contend with, instead of the smoke and grime from hundreds of fires, and the dust from countless stirring individuals.

The day is full of work, but there is something to show for it. Start with the milking. Most of us give a hand with that. Milking means pails and straining cloths and aerator to wash and scald, a separator to look after if it is a cream or butter farm; churnings, butter utensils and quantities of fresh cold water to keep everything sweet; and it means something else, too. On baking day it means cream to bake with—and doesn't that simplify the program?

Take a city home where a son or daughter attends collegiate, and another is in business, as well as the father. Consider their clothes—shirts and soft collars, silk hosiery, daily changes. It must keep the woman of the house on the jump almost day and night. The question of clothes does not loom so large here—we can send our children to school very simply dressed, and often in warm weather they will go barefooted for pleasure. For ourselves, we feel no urge to change from our house dress in the afternoon unless we are entertaining or visiting, because we only have to change back again at milking time anyway.

The city woman says: "You have to work so hard on the farm!" for she imagines that we do all that she does, and our own special farm work as well, but in point of fact, I do not believe we work so very much harder than the average city woman when everything is considered. Year by year we are adopting labor saving devices more freely, and some day, when a mighty intellect evolves something that will dress a chicken for one thing, and get the hired man into bed on Sunday nights and out of it seven mornings in the week, the climax will be reached.

Crop Reports

WINNIPEG, Man., Nov. 19—Acy cording to the Canadian Pacific Railwat Crop Report, the weather throughout the West has been cold, with light snow flurries principally in Alberta. Considerable threshing has been done, with farmers generally working under difficulties and in many instances grain is turning out tough. Two weeks of good dry weather are needed to enable completion of threshing. Cattle receipts continue heavy, with prices in general showing downward tendency. Considering the volume of stock received, it is remarkable that a heavier price drop is not recorded.

In Manitoba since the last report, threshing has proceeded throughout the province, but showers and wind increased the difficulty under which this work was carried out. Considering all the wet weather through which the grain has passed it is, on the whole, in good condition. Heavy night frosts have held up farmers with their threshing each morning until well on toward mid-day. Ninety per cent. of the grain is threshed, and sixty-five per cent. of the Fall plowing is accomplished.

Conditions have improved over those of the previous week in Saskatchewan, but still not as favorable as might be for carrying on of threshing and plowing operations. In the south-western part of the province practically all the threshing is finished. In the West almost all is cleaned up and this territory has some of the heaviest crops in the province this year. Considerable threshing is still to be done in the north-eastern sections, and to a lesser extent, in the north-west. Taking the province over, there still remains fifteen per cent. of the threshing to do. Considerable proportion of grain threshed during the week has graded tough, but farmers apparently thought it best to thresh in this condition rather than have it remain out all the winter.

In Alberta, further snow and rain over most of the southern part again tied up the threshing but, in spite of this, however, some farmers in this section of the province continued to thresh. Better conditions were obtained in the central and northern porterns and a good headway was made with cleaning up of the balance of the threshing. In the southern districts, more particularly, the grain that is still in stocks will be graded down considerably. Contrary to expectations the straw, which has stood in stook so long and under such adverse weather conditions, is apparently going to turn out a very fair quality of seed.

"Great thoughts hallow any labor. To-day I earned 75 cents heaving manure out of a pen, and made a good bargain of it. If the ditcher muses the while how he may live uprightly, the ditching spade and turf knife may be engraved on the coat-of-arms of his posterity."—Thoreau.

BANK MANAGER AS A DAIRYMAN

John Elliott Has Done Much for Industry in Quinte District.

ANNUAL BANQUET

The good work in the interest of the dairying industry of the Quinte district and of Canada which has been carried on for many years by John Elliott, manager of the Standard Bank at Belleville, was recently marked by the 19th annual banquet to the dairymen and agriculturists of the counties of Hastings and Prince Edward who have association with the Belleville Cheese Board of Trade. Over three hundred guests assembled, including many who are prominent in the public, industrial, commercial, agricultural and financial life of the country. These annual dinners of Mr. Elliott have come to be regarded as events of national significance as typical of what can be accomplished in the cementing of rural and urban interests for the good of the whole community. Farmers, merchants, manufacturers and other business men have been brought to a realization of the value of co-operation in advancing the interests of all.

Mr. Elliott has not only done good work for the cheese industry in a local way but he has made several trips to England in connection with the development of export markets. He has played a real part in bringing Canadian cheese into a dominant position in the British marker, a position which it has now held for several years over New Zealand. Regarding his most recent visit to the British markets, Mr. Elliott said:

"The results of my visit in the year 1924 to Great Britain were highly satisfactory, and more advantageous to the cheese interests of this district than on any former occasion, resulting in an increased demand for cheese sold on the Belleville Cheese Board and other boards in the Bay of Quinte district, and the storing of a larger quantity of cheese in Belleville for British importers during the year 1925 than in any year since 1905."

Mr. Elliott in urging that farmers should increase their farm production and keep their sons and daughters on the land, took occasion to say that the Ontario government would give co-operation in securing farm help and that the banks in Belleville had an abundance of money that they would be only too glad to lend to assist farmers in increasing production. For fifty years hiw own bank had been loaning money to farmers and the experience had been so satisfactory that it was willing to continue the practice.—J.W.T.

Crop Reports

Fall harvesting and seeding has commenced. Beans are being pulled in the southwestern counties and some silos have been filled. Fear of further damage from the borer has speeded this operation on some farms. Corn for husking has been cut in Middlesex. Several lots of table turnips have been shipped in refrigerator cars to the United States; some of these reported to have been billed to Florida.

Fall wheat has been sown in several counties and indications are that with favorable moisture supply an increased acreage will be seeded. After harvest cultivation seems more general than usual in the central and western portion of the Province.

The weather has been ideal for grain and hay harvesting, but, in spite of this, owing to the unusually heavy crop considerable remains in the fields in Eastern Counties. Threshing reports continue to be very satisfactory from practically all sections. Peas are turning out very well in Huron—one farmer allowing this to be his best crop in 35 years. Considerable wheat is being marketed where time is available. Alsike is moving at from $7.50 to $10.00 a bushel, depending on quality. A few lots of alfalfa have been reported as sold at prices higher than those prevailing at the same time last year.

Dundas.—Ideal weather, a bountiful harvest of high quality grain and fairly good prices are leaving the farmer in an optimistic mood. Corn will be ready for the binder in 10 days all of which result to an early clean-up in the harvesting of all crops making it possible to commence the fall work at an early date.

WEEDS.

The cro producing capacity of many an acre in Ontario has during the past season been reduced by twenty-five per cent. This is too heavy a charge against the land and only the rich fellows can stand the losses occasioned by weeds.

Keep weeds off the farm by ploughing all the land that you intend to plough immediately after harvest. Cultivate as frequently as possible with the springtooth up to the end of October In early November rib up the land that the weed roots may be exposed to the weather. Ribbing attachments can be placed on the springtooth cultivator which makes it possible to cover a large area in a day.

Insist on careful cleaning of the threshing machine before it comes to your farm. See that all farm machinery is free from the roots of perennial weeds before going to another field.

Use only clean seed. A few thistle seed balls or couch grass seeds will add to an multiply your troubles in future years, so be sure tat you now wheat and nothing but wheat.—Dept. of Extension, O.A.C., Guelph.

WORK HELD UP IN WARSAW DISTRICT

Rain and Frost Have Delayed Root Harvest and Ploughing.

WARSAW, Nov. 19.—Turnips are not all in yet. All last week there were two sets of threshers to the north and west of Warsaw, and several farmers had to send men to both places. By noon, Monday, the last of the threshing in the immediate vicinity of Warsaw was finished, but the threshers are not through their work. Both outfits have moved north.

Gordon Payne threshed over two thousand bushels of grain, mostly oats. Much of it averaged over seventy bushels to the acre.

Alex. Calder was another man who had a very heavy yield.

This week, if the weather is at all fit, there will be quite a headway made in the ploughing. Low-lying land is too wet now.

There has been so much rain, frost and snow that the roads are badly torn up. Even the Dummer road is worse than it has been for a long time.

PRECAUTIONS IN THE USE OF PARIS GREEN

If a double quantity of good, freshly slaked lime or hydrated lime be mixed with the Paris green and then the mixture made into a paste with water and allowed to stand in this form some little time before diluting and spraying, the lime will combine with the greater part of the free arsenious oxide and rdmove its leaf scorching property to a great extent. So says Prof. H. Fulmer, O. A. C., Guelph.

Attach a chain to the plow-beam and fasten the free end to the end of the doubletree; leave enough slack that the chain will drag in the furrow. This will drag the grass and weeds into the furrow and they will be covered up completely.

There are entirely too many stale eggs sold. How few eggs reach the consumer that are actually fresh! The fault is not with the hen. She prodcese a fresh egg, but oo many people do not seem to realize that an egg is one thing that does not improve with age, otherwise they would not hold eggs any longer than necessary.

Farm inventories put down in January yield a harvest of knowledge the following December.

If the prospective home orchardist prepares the soil where his fruits are to stand as thoroughly as he does his garden before planting vegetable seeds, the subsequent rapid growth of his fruit trees will amply repay him.

FIRST EVIDENCES OF CHANGES OCCURRING IN ENSILAGE SEEN IN RISING OF TEMPERATURE

Production of Carbonic Acid Gas Also Occurs in Silage.

AIR USED UP

Molds Develop if Oxygen is Not Kept Away From Corn.

(Contributed by Ontario Department o Agriculture, Toronto.)

The first evidences of change in the finely-cut fodder are a rise in temperature and the production of carbonic acid gas. The heat can be demonstrated by hand and the presence of carbonic acid gas is always to be suspected, since the lessons learned during the old days of closed silos still remain firmly impressed on the minds of many. The oxygen in the mass of cut fodder is quickly used up early in the process of fermentation. The temperature remains around 100 degrees F, except at the surface or at points where air is admitted, going much higher. The continued presence of air or oxygen is not desired and their removal from the mass prevents the development of molds. Molds are harmful in that they destroy or use up the acids required for the preservation of the silage. Air-tight walls and a well consolidated mass are very essential in the control of fermentation.

How Corn Changes In the Silo.

The green corn changes to yellow, then brown and develops an aromatic odor and sour taste. The sourness is due to the development of lactic acid, the important preserving agent in silage making. Bacteria which cause decay and molds are inhibited in the acid poor medium of fermented corn. The total amount of acid formed is between one and two per cent. of the weight of silage. Other products of the fermentation are alcohol and sugar. The amounts of these are not large, being in the case of alcohol .1 to .4 per cent. of the weight of silage. The amount of sugar which disappears from the corn is almost exactly equivalent to the amount of alcohol and acid formed during fermentation. About one-hald the sugar present in the recently ensiled corn is cane sugar. This is broken up into glucose and then changed to alcohol and acid. These changes take place rapidly and are generally completed in 12 days, giving an excellent preservative medium, that will keep ensilage for years.

How Fermentation Is Produced.

The fermentation is brought about by plant enzymes carried by the corn, bacteria and yeasts, which may be attached to the cut corn or drift into the silo as it is being filled. The sugar in the green corn juice is attacked by the invertase carried by the plant cell and reduced to simpler forms. These simple forms are attacked by zymase and a small amount of alcohol is formed, Acid forming bacteria also attack the sugars and bring about the change, resulting in the mass being largely acid in character and therefore in a condition to keep.—L. Stevenson, Dept. o Extension, O.A.C., Guelph.

POOR STORAGE OF POTATOES IS CAUSE OF LOSS

Careless Handling in Transportation Also Results in Wastage.

USE CLEAN BAGS

Grower is Responsible for Arrival in Good Condition.

(Experimental Farms Note. S. G. Peppin, Assistant, Plant Pathologist.)

Improper storage of potatoes results in the loss of thousands of bushels annually. The careless handling of potatoes in transportation means financial loss and tends to have a serious effect upon the market.

Several factors influence the successful storage of potatoes. These are, temperature, ventilation, humidity, depth of pile, and sound stock free from dirt.

Potatoes should be stored in as cool a temperature as possible without freezing. A good average temperature ranges around 36 degrees F. Good ventilation is essential to assist in carrying off excess moisture, particularly where potatoes are stored in large heaps. Control of temperature, moisture, and ventilation can be obtained by using false floors, wall-racks and air-shafts. Too dry an atmosphere causes shrinkage, therefore, a certain amount of humidity is necessary. In a blight year careful grading should be practised. Potatoes showing rot should not be placed in storage. Avoid the development of certain rots in bruised and cut tubers by white-washing the interior of storage houses. Potatoes should not be removed from the field in a wet or dirty condition, as these elements increase the possibility of rot in storage. In harvesting, care should be taken to avoid cutting or otherwise damaging potatoes, since it is often through these cut surfaces that storage rots gain entrance.

A grower's responsibility does not end when his potatoes have been bagged. The use of clean bags is a factor which at times is not taken into consideration. Bags or sacks should be either washed or sterilized. Second-hand flour bags are good, providing they are not intended for storing any length of time. Salt or fertilizer bags should not under any consideration be used.

Directly or indirectly the grower is responsible for the arrival of his stock in a sound condition. Frost is by far the greatest obstacle to overcome. Care must be taken that the stock is not chilled during the trip from the farm to the shipping point. The liberal use of straw and blankets in the cold weather is essential. Similarly in the railway cars straw and paper will reduce the possibility of freezing. Careful handling at sidings where no loading platforms are provided will prevent bruising. It is not unusual for several potatoes in a bag to be badly damaged by rough treatment. Careful piling in the car lessens the possibility of bruising during transit. It is always advisable to so arrange the tiers that they will slant back and thus eliminate the danger of falling between the car doors where bulkheads are not used.

MUCH THRESHING AROUND WARSAW

More Than Thirty Barns Full of Grain Still Unthreshed.

There is still a lot of threshing to do. John Payne has over thirty barns yet to do.

Threshers report that all grains except buckwheat are good, have turned out well to the straw. Not always so much to the acre, though it had run as high as seventy bushels of oats to the acre.

Turnips are a fairly good crop and are being rapidly harvested.

Any apples left on the trees during the recent frost are useless now.

Buckwheat has turned out better than was expected.

DEALING WITH THE BROODY HEN.

Extensive and thorough experiments dealing with the broody hen problem have proved conclusively that broodiness can, to a very large extent, be bred out of a flock. To achieve this end, the prime essential is never to hatch chicks from eggs laid by the hen that is prone to broodiness. This, naturally, is a method that takes time. One or two years will not eliminate broody hens from a flock, but there will be fewer of them and they will not be so persistent in their broodiness.

POULTRY PARASITES WEAKEN THE BIRDS

Flourish Winter and Summer But Can Easily Be Banished.

A long winter generally means a weakened vitality to all animals, and anything that can be done to remove obstacles and supply the essentials should be done. One of the great obstacles to successful poultry husbandry is the invasion of intestinal parasites. These creatures flourish within the birds winter or summer, taking their toll unseen and irrespective of weather conditions. They are worse than potato beetles, which are honest enough to do their mischief in plain view, and work just eight hours a day for but six weeks of the year. The intestinal parasites infesting poultry have a union code of their own—"24 hours per day and 365 days per year, get all you can, why worry about the poultry-keeper's profits." At the O.A.C. the intestinal parasites infesting the poultry flocks were banished for good and fotever eighteen months ago. How was it done?

The Method.—A gallon of a mixture of wheat and oats, to which is added a small teaspoonful of concentrated lye, is cooked slowly for two hours and allowed to cool. The birds are given their ordinary feed one morning and then nothing else until the next morning, when they are given as much of the lye mixture as they will eat, with plenty of water. This is done two or three times during the season at intervals of one month.

The large, round worm infesting poultry may be as short as one inch, and the caecum worm only three-tenths of an inch, and one of tape worms only one-fiftieth of an inch long. Very easy to overlook—L. Stevenson, O.A.C., Guelph.

CORN.

The unusual weather conditions that have been experienced in south-western Ontario this year emphasize the value of the corn plant as a fodder crop to a greater extent than in recent years. Corn will fill the silos as in past years even if the hay crops have failed to fill the barns. If it were not for corn many farms would be short of cattle feed for the coming winter. Corn is certainly worth retaining as a crop for Ontario stock farms. There is no real substitute Do your duty in creating conditions unfavorable to the corn borer, and so drive the menace to corn from Ontario. Ensilo the crop. Plough the stubble under and keep it under.

May Start Goat Farm In Centreton District

COBOURG, Nov. 19—Mr. John Tripp, Oakfield, Man., has been visiting at the home of his brother, at Centreton. Mr. Tripp has carried on the work of breeding goats and sheep extensively in the West, and it is stated that he will locate in this district and go into the same business, if he can find a suitable farm and location.

ENJOYABLE TIME AT A.Y.P.A. PIE SOCIAL

Wet Weather Was Rather a Deterrent to Millbrook Young People.

MILLBROOK, Nov. 16.—The A.Y.P.A. of St. Thomas' church held its annual "pie social" on Wednesday evening, when a most enjoyable time was spent.

Unfortunately the wet weather lessened the attendance to a considerable degree, but the general feeling was that on no former occasion had a more genuine spirit of sociability been manifested.

No formal programme was arranged for, but games and contests that gave everyone a chance to take an active part, provided plenty of entertainment. The impromptu speeches, for which slips bearing the subject on which they were to talk, were passed to the young men, with the stipulation that no one must speak for less than one minute or more than two, created an abundance of mirth, and called forth some decidedly original ideas.

Full justice was done to the pies of many varieties which were provided in generous quantities as the concluding feature of the evening.

The A.Y.P.A. is evidently off to a good start for the fall and winter's work.

Interest in the Fourth Ontario Older Boy's Parliament, which meets in Queen's Park during Christmas week, is becoming increasingly active, and electioneering is now the order of the day among those who aspire as candidates to represent the various constituencies.

A meeting of the boys of the Tuxis Square and the Senior Trail Rangers, was held in the United Church on Sunday afternoon at the close of the Sunday School session, when R. L. Sainsbury and Willard Meldrum, of Port Hope, who are rival candidates for the privilege of representing East Durham, were present and addressed the gathering.

J. Larmer, of Millbrook, was in the running last year, but no local candidate is standing for the Parliament this season.

Owing to its size, Port Hope controls the majority of the votes for this riding, as at present constituted for the Boys' Parliament, and it is expected that a Redistribution Bill will be brought before the "House" at the next session, when different boundaries will be arranged for, leaving Port Hope a district by itself, the rest of the riding to have a separate representative.

It is expected that the candidates, Messrs. Sainsbury and Willard, will be present at the social evening, under the C.S.E.T. and C.G.I.T. auspices, to be held on Wednesday, November 25, in the United Church here, when the public will have opportunity to hear them, as each will speak briefly.

The Sunday School auditorium of the United Church was filled to capacity on Wednesday evening for the open meeting, under the auspices of the Woman's Missionary Auxiliary, when Miss M. Clazey, for some years a missionary to Formosa, delivered an address.

The ladies who were welcomed into membership in the Auxiliary from the former Presbyterian church when union was consummated, had the meeting in charge. Mrs. F. Smith, formerly president of the W.M.S. at Centreville, took the chair after Mrs. Howard had conducted the opening business period, the pastor, Rev. F. H. Howard, leading in prayer.

Mrs. Smith expressed her personal appreciation, and that of her fellow members, of the hearty welcome given them in the missionary organization of the United Church, of which they are now a part, the union of the three societies, Congregational, Presbyterian, and Methodist, having been effected by consummated in Toronto, on October 26, when the joint boards were in session. Miss Nellie Finnimore read the Scripture lesson from the 103rd Psalm, and Mrs. L. S. Clarry offered prayer. A quartette, "Speed Away," by Mr. and Mrs. M. McDowell and Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Johnston, was much enjoyed.

Miss Clazey was given a cordial reception, all rising as she came to the platform, and greeting her with a hearty clapping of hands. In her opening remarks she explained that before leaving Formosa on her furlough, the Christian women of the mission came to her and said: "Please take our greetings to the friends in Canada, and express to them our deep gratitude for sending us teachers who have told us the story of Jesus."

"The island of Formosa is perhaps one of the least known, particularly among our mission fields," she said, "and yet it is one of the most important places in the world from a commercial standpoint, because of its production of camphor. It used to be said that 'every pound of camphor costs a drop of human blood,' but this is not so true to-day. The camphor industry was formerly in the hands of the head-hunters, now it is under government control, so it is not bought at such a price.

"Formosa is situated 700 miles south of Japan, just across from the coast of China. It has an area of 14,000 square miles, with a dense population of nearly 4,000,000 souls, of which 3,500,000 are Chinese, 140,000 Japanese, and 120,000 are the aboriginal head-hunters, living in the hill country to the north of the Island. There is, as yet, no mission work among these head-hunters, for lack of men and means, and only a small amount among the Japanese settlers."

The inhabitants, Miss Clazey explained, are largely of the agricultural class, and though many improvements have been introduced since Formosa was handed over to Japan as a war indemnity some thirty years ago, yet "Western evils come faster than Western good does." Her college students are losing faith in the old gods and drifting into atheism. "Now is the strategic time when the church should teach them, and win them, for Jesus Christ."

A vivid description of the native houses with their mud floors, and thatched roofs, each with its god-shelf and ancestral tablet facing the front door, with other details of the religion of fear which dominates the people, and customs which prevail at funerals, weddings, festivals, etc., was followed by the information that, the former Presbyterian church, in its territory, now has forty-six preaching places, with trained native young men as workers, and nine self-supporting churches with an equal number of ordained native pastors. In addition, preaching bands go on regular tours of the villages and towns carrying the gospel message.

The one hospital, under Presbyterian control, was closed for six years owing to lack of workers, but was again opened last January and is proving a great evangelizing agency, in addition to its work of healing.

The speaker closed with an earnest appeal to the parents to "give us of your sons and daughters for the Lord's work in this part of His vineyard."

A thank-offering of about forty-five dollars was received at the close of Miss Clazey's address, Mrs. Smith explaining that until the end of the year the funds are kept separate and still go through the same channel in the Presbyterian church as before union was consummated.

The December meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. P. Stinson, the second Wednesday in the month, Mrs. T. H. Aiken's group being responsible.

Rev. Joseph Wilks led in the prayer of thanksgiving after the offering, and dismissed the gathering with the benediction.

Miss Clazey had a number of interesting curios and pictures which she explained to the many who gathered about the table at the conclusion of the meeting.

Mrs. W. E. Ball, Mrs. G. W. Sayles, and Mrs. C. C. Garside were the reception committee and offered a hearty welcome to all as they entered the room, attending also to the seating of the large audience, and passing the plates when the offering was received.

SUBMARINE THAT SANK WITH CREW

According to a wireless message from Portland to London, the missing British submarine M-1 has been located 12 miles south of Start Point, near the Isle of Vighti in water too deep to permit of diving and raising operations. The submarine, which carried 68 officers and men, submerged on Thursday morning during naval maneuvres and did not come to the surface again.

Friends in this city of Rev. Father Francis P. Duffy, the well-known chaplain of the "Fighting Sixty-Ninth," who has made several visits to Peterboro in the past, will be interested in the reference to him contained in the following extract from an American paper:

"The romance of a world cruise culminated in New York City recently when Dorothy Holmes O'Ryan, daughter of Major-General and Mrs. John F. O'Ryan, of New York, married Darwin Curtis, of Chicago. The couple met for the first time a year ago on board the Canadian Pacific liner Empress of France which was then making a tour of the world. It is feared they had no eyes for the world marvels which were unrolled before them on the tour, since it is stated they fell in love at first sight and could only see each other. The marriage was performed by the Rev. Father Francis P. Duffy, chaplain of the "Fighting Sixty-Ninth," a regiment commanded by the bride's father during the war."

TORONTO RECITAL.

Mail and Empire Lauds Four Peterborough Artists.

The Toronto Mail and Empire, in Saturday's edition, has the following account of the recital given by three Peterboro artists in the Hall of the Toronto Conservatory of Music on Wednesday evening of last week:

"Three clever young women from Peterborough invaded Toronto during the past week, and gave an excellent concert in the Conservatory of Music Hall. The artists were: Mrs. Dorothy Allan Park, soprano; Miss Edwina Palmer, violinist, and Miss Agnes Logan, pianist, and they had the assistance of Mr. Charles Peaker as accompanist. The concert was interesting because it indicated that the smaller cities of Ontario are much more lucky than they used to be a few years ago, in that most of them contain really accomplished musicians, who refuse to permit themselves to grow provincial in their artistic outlook. It was by no means a hackneyed programme that these artists presented. In fact, it was characterized by freshness and interest, and many a visiting artist of international reputation does not do as many unfamiliar numbers. Mrs. Park has a rather unusual mezzo-soprano voice, the high notes being less satisfactory that the dark tones lower register. A number of her songs were novel and pleasing. Miss Palmer and Miss Logan played with remarkably satisfying technique and excellent taste. These three young women deserve to be congratulated. It is the second time that Toronto has been invaded by the trio in a joint concert. The undertaking might almost be described as an intrepid one. It was carried through with genuine artistic sincerity.

FUR USED LIKE CLOTH IN COATS AND FROCKS

Soft Pelts Are Combined With Fabrics in New Suits and Wraps.

(By Annette Bradshaw.)

One of the distinguishing features of the new openings was seen in use of furs. So soft and pliable are the present short-haired furs, that the designers seem to forget they are furs at all, and to use them exactly as if they were kasha or broadcloth or any of the softer woolen fabrics.

We see simple sports frocks with fur collar and cuffs, the fur used exactly as if it were a trimming of contrasting cloth. We see cloth coats deeply trimmed with fur which is quite as soft in texture as the cloth itself.

The interesting little sports costume shown here at the left is a good example of this use of fur. The skirt is of pleated kasha and the pull-on worn above it is of matching mohair. The jacket of antelope fur exactly matches the kasha skirt in color, and around the edges it is bordered with kasha of brown and orange. The little felt hat repeats the kasha trimming.

The coat at the right is also of kasha, this time in a deeper brown Black caracul makes the high collar, the deep cuffs and the flared skirt section of the coat. This lower section flares in front only.

A great many of the new coats are flared. This treatment must always be managed with the most clever exactness, if the coat is to hang perfectly.

Since the tan and brown tones in cloth are popular, we see a great many furs dyed to match. When the cloth and fur match exactly, one can hardly distinguish between them, as they are of about equal softness.

On the Left Is a Sports Costume of Kasha Cloth and Mohair with Jacket of Antelope Fur. On the Right is a Coat of Brown Kasha with Black Caracul Trim.

THE HAPPY MEDIUM.

Skirts about twelve inches off the ground are the rule in Peterboro. The movies may illustrate dress that reveal a good deal of the knee, and a visiting dramatic company shows skirts on its high-class lady actors that make the widow of the piece look like a comic opera soubrette, but this city stops at the happy medium so often and highly recommended.

Convertible collars show the trend toward the old high neck style. There is something very dignified abou a high collar and nothing can be smarter than a high-necked blouse worn with a snappy suit and trim hat, that is, if the lady wearing it happens to be of the slim variety. A fat lady with a pudgy neck and a multiple chin and one of these high collars is another story altogether. But the favorite collar just now is the amiable type that will lie down or stand up with equal facility.

Long, close sleeves are being worn. The moderately tight type that ends in a trim small cuff or the sort that is called a "bishop" sleeve, are favorites. Some of the evening frocks show the sleeveless line, and there is no sign of the return of the little cap that was popular even last season.

The waistline still lingers at a low altitude, but it has a fairly definite place on some of the frocks with which belts are worn. The ultimatum that "belts are dead, absolutely dead," as uttered very recently by one of the young salesladies in a local store does not seem to have reached the ears of those who are still wearing them with trim little frocks.

Skirt draperies are voluminous and often unequal in hem line, with sudden pointed edges to some of the softer materials. Side godets and flares continue to be very popular and give an effect of airiness to even the darker-hued frocks.

Advancement of women in trade again is indicated by the appointment of Mrs. Hilda Anderson as representative of the Swedish-American Steamship Line at Boston.

REBECCA LODGE MAKES A VISIT

Members of Oakdale Lodge Went To Stirling For Social Meeting.

HUNTERS RETURN.

MADOC, Nov. 16.—On the occasion of the fifth anniversary of Oakdale Rebecca Lodge the members were invited to meet with Laurel Lodge at Stirling. Mrs. P. J. Alexander, who is the District Deputy President, and about thirty other members, attended from Madoc. Other guests were present from Belleville and Frankford. Community singing was led by Mr. Baker of Bonar Law. After the regular programme the evening wound up with cards and dancing.

Chapter of Accidents.

Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Harris had a streak of bad luck as they were motoring home from Picton. Two blow-outs were sustained, and to cap the climax, the steering gear broke. A rural mail box nearby was uprooted from the ground, but fortunately the car was not going very fast and the accident occurred on a level stretch of road, so that no further damage was done and neither of the occupants of the car was injured.

At the regular meeting of St. Andrew's W. M. S. at Tweed an interesting address was given by Mrs. Douglas Armstrong on her work in China. A full attendance was recorded and Mrs. Armstrong's talk was much appreciated. A number of Madoc ladies accompanied her to Tweed.

Rev. Mr. Armstrong, who was forced to return from China because of ill-health, has decided to accept a temporary charge at Durham as it will probably be some time before he will be in a fit condition to return to his mission field. He is to be inducted into his new charge on Tuesday, when a reception is also being held for Mrs. Armstrong.

A number of citizens motored to Belleville to see the presentation of "The China Doll," which was playing there last week.

Hunters Return.

Hunters from the northern wilds are beginning to return, bringing their quota of deer and their unlimited supply of deer tales. Carl Whytock and Dr. Third, of Kingston, spent last week-end at Bon Echo and returned with a fine specimen. Mr. Charlie Caverly and four friends from Niagara have returned with a deer for every man, while Percy Phillips' deer that has been tied up for some time has broken loose and he's still hunting for it. Dr. Grant Fraser motored to Midland to do his hunting and returned with five ducks.

Percy McCoy have preserved the respectability of the town and returned with a deer apiece.

A Fashion Model's Diary

By Grace Thorncliffe

SHE DESCRIBES A FUR-TRIMMED DAY FROCK.

Pam has a veritable passion for the new hunter's green.

"I'm perfectly happy, now that I can wear my favorite dark green at all times of the day," she declared.

"You've always loved green, and I know why," I assured her.

"I hope you mean because it's becoming to me," Pam answered. Then she admitted that was doubtless one reason she liked it so much.

"Well, tell me about the new frock you're planning," I urged her.

This was sufficient invitation, and Pam drew forth a little pad she had behind her back and proceeded to explain her drawing.

"As you must know, Madame is making her newest cloth frocks with light touches of fur at the collar and cuffs," Pam informed me.

"Indeed, I do know it," I assured her. "Haven't I modeled three of them in the last few days, and hasn't every client been simply crazy about the becomingness of a bit of fur up about the face?"

"It does make the skin appear softer and whiter," Pam agreed. Then she added:

"I thought of that when I designed my frock with a round, youthful collar and then with a tiny collarette of brown fur above it."

"Dear me, with the fur at the neck and with the stunning green of the dress, you're going to be as fair as a lily," I assured Pam. "Green of that shade is so flattering to fair skin."

Pam told me to be quiet and let her proceed, but she looked pleased, just the same, and went on explaining her drawing.

"The embroidery you see here and there is to be done in bronze metal threads," she told me. "It's applied around the belt, and down the front there's a slit to reveal the bronze-embroidered vastee beneath."

"Very effective way you're having the blouse part tie at the front," I said approvingly.

"That's to give ever so slight a suggestion of the bolero," Pam informed me. Then she asked:

"Why don't you ask me what the material is to be?"

"Do tell me," I urged.

"Wool crepe," Pam returned. "I love it because it's light weight and a bit warm at the same time."

WEDDING BELLS.

WALKER—CAMPBELL.

A pretty autumn wedding was solemnized in Bala United Church on Nov. 9, when Blair, elder daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Campbell, became the bride of Mr. Vaughn Walker, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. G. Walker of Peterboro'. Rev. C. Adsett, formerly of Bala, officiated. The church was beautifully decorated with flowers and foliage, when the bride entered on the arm of her father. The bridal gown was of ivory georgette and silver lace, with which she wore white kid shoes, and her veil of embroidered tulle was draped from a coronet of pearls and orange blossoms. She carried a shower bouquet of Ophelia roses and lilies of the valley. The maid of honor, Miss Ilda McDivitt of Bala, looked charming in a frock of orchid georgette over buttercup yellow and wore gold slippers and deep pansy velvet hat. She carried roses and lilies of the valley. The two bridesmaids were Miss Helen Campbell, the bride's sister, attired in blush pink georgette and silver trimming over mauve satin, and Miss Dora Young of Toronto, in a quaint basque dress of shot blue taffeta with pearl sequin. They carried old-fashioned nosegays of pink roses with mauve satin bows. Little Miss Joy Walker, sister of the groom, made a sweet flower girl, in pink silk organdy and rosebuds, carrying a basket of flowers. The groom was supported by his brother, Mr. Iveson Walker. During the signing of the register Mr. Thomas Jackson sang. The ushers were Mr. J Carr and Mr. Ralph Guy. Mr. and Mrs. Campbell received the guests later at their residence, assisted by Mr. and Mrs. Walker. Mrs. Campbell wore a black beaded canton crepe and corsage of American Beauty roses, and Mrs. Walker was in black satin and lace and corsage of roses. The happy couple left later on an extended motor trip, the bride travelling in a rosewood ensemble adorned with lynx and small hat to match. On their return they will take up residence in Peterboro'.

ADVICE TO GIRLS

By Annie Laurie

Peterborough, Ont.

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

We have been reading your column with interest for the past two months, and now come to you for some advice.

About a year ago we came to this city from Londonderry, Ireland. Recently, while we were at a masquerade we met two young men who seemed to be attracted to us. As we left before the unmasking we had no opportunity of getting acquainted with them. We have recently found out who they were and, as they do not know us, how would you suggest a way to gain their acquaintance?

Thanking you,

UNCLAIMED TREASURES.

UNCLAIMED TREASURES: Do you not know anyone who is acquainted with these young men? A mutual friend can usually manage these meetings in the best way. Possibly they belong to some church society or social club that might give you the opportunity of making their acquaintance. Or you may meet them at another dance or at the skating rink. However, why worry over these young men in particular, if you wish to make boy friends. There are many young men in the world, and hundreds of them in Peterborough.

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I am a young girl in my late teens. Is it proper to let a young man kiss you the first time you go out with him. What kind of girls do fellows like best, as I don t seem to be very popular with the male sex. I am not a petter—is that the reason.

ANXIOUS BUNNY.

ANXIOUS BUNNY: This question of kissing your escort, or allowing him to kiss you, is a debatable one. It depends on so many things. The majority of young men seem to be of the opinion that it is quite the proper thing, sort of an "end to a perfect day or "evening, rather. And then again you will find the odd one who doesn t look for osculation from the young women he escorts home. Possibly the reason of your unpopularity is the one you mention. "Petters seldom lack for escorts. If you are the sort of girl who is willing to gain such popularity by such means, then go ahead. It is really a question of individual preference. If you prefer to retain your own self-respect and also, to a great extent, the respect of the men who know you are not one of the "petting type, you may have to spend several evenings a week with girl friends, or books, or music. And later on, you may meet some man who hasn t gone in for second or third or fourth hand affection, either. You never can tell.

ONCE UPON A TIME — THE PUMPKIN PIE PRINCESS—I — by W. J. ENRIGHT.

YOUR HEALTH

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M.D.,
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

A young woman has written me asking about inflammatory rheumatism. Her fiance's brothers have had this disease, and she is anxious to know if it is something to be ashamed of, and if its presence in the family is an impediment to marriage.

There is no reason to worry over the social aspects of inflammatory rheumatism. It is not associated with immoral living.

I am assuming, of course, that the disease in question is actually inflammatory or acute rheumatism, or, to be more exact, rheumatic fever. There no mistaking this ailment, because it is associated with fever. It is not inflammatory rheumatism—in the acute stage, certainly—unless there is elevation of temperature.

The fever may not be high, perhaps not over 101 or 102. In exceptional cases it runs much higher.

It is unusual to have rheumatic fever without warning symptoms. A good many times it is a sequel of tonsilitis. But the first hint of its approach may be a general feeling of illness which persists for several days. Or there may be soreness and stiffness of the joints and muscles.

When the disease has really arrived, one of the large joints—the knee, ankle, or wrist—will be involved in swelling and pain. Redness, swelling, heat and pain are the classical symptoms of inflammation, and they exactly describe the condition of th joint which is attacked.

Several joints may be inflamed at the same time. In other cases one joint gets better and then another takes on the painful symptoms.

The symptoms subside or disappear in a couple of weeks. That ends the first spell, but it may not be long before another attack arrives.

Rheumatic fever is counted among the infectious diseases. It is due to a specific cause and runs a definite course.

Just what is the cause has not been definitely decided, but it is generally believed the infecting agent enters the body through the tonsil. This is why the disease may follow tonsilitis.

Rest in bed, with perfect quiet, is essential to the comfort of the patient and to his welfare. There is always danger of heart complication, so quiet is important. Since the involvement of this organ is the most serious feature of the attack, the importance of this precaution must not be overlooked. This is particularly true if a child is the victim.

The involved joint should be made secure by a splint and bandage. Perfect quiet of the joint will prevent pain.

Your doctor will prescribe the medicine and give directions for the diet.

Comical bird actions are worth looking for, if they are anything like the little goings on in an old ladies garden not long ago.

The telephone rang just about breakfast time, one nice bright autumn morning.

"Hello! Is that the bird man? — Well listen—have you had your breakfast yet? Yes? Well then, listen! Could you come up here right away? There's something queer about the way our pet Pug-Nose Bill, the Nuthatch, is acting. Bring your field glasses, as we cannot see very well; we are getting old and cannot go down on a damp lawn—well, hurry, all you can, before the thing disappears, it seems to be a ghost, or something worse, which makes—well come up and see, hurry, eh?

You may be sure I hurried. I grabbed my field glasses on my way to the door. Hopping into an auto took but a moment and she kindly consented to go on a frosty morning "without sugar and spice and everything nice," so I was soon on the way, and also soon there. There, by the way, means a big old-fashioned garden with many trees. Well I was there.

My old lady friends took me out on the verandah, where they pointed out an old hard maple tree, on which was a nice piece of suet, tied about half way up the trunk.

Pug-Nose Bill, the Nuthatch, was hopping down the trunk upside down (his head where his feet should be) and doing a side shift that almost made me cross-eyed following him. Just as he was going to help himself to some suet as though trying to steal it without being seen, up he would flip into the air and land on the trunk away up, but still coming down head-first.

I was very much amused but too curious to waste time on much laughing. I pressed the field glasses to my eyes to get a better view, and, lo! who also do you think was there? A brown creeper.

The brown creeper is mottled and very hard to see against the bark of the trees. My! how those ladies did enjoy watching the bark dance of those two birds. They told me later a still better incident, which I will relate to-morrow.

GOOD NIGHT STORIES

By Blanche Silvar

BILLY BEE TELLS OF A STRANGE CAFE.

When Billy Bee saw the stately looking plant he buzzed around a few seconds sniffing the sweet odor of honey that seemed to come from its green halls.

"Well, that's a good-looking cafe, all right," Billy Bee buzzed to himself. "I wouldn't mind investigating that eating place myself." But Billy Bee was a cautious little worker, and he never went into any place until he found out just what it was.

He sat on a wild rose-bud and sipped from her fragrant cups until Johnny Grasshopper came up and sat beside him.

"Good morning, Johnny Grasshopper," buzzed Billy Bee. "When did the new cafe spring up in the meadows?"

"Oh, it's just been here a short time, I believe," replied Johnny Grasshopper, "and, would you believe it, more meadow folks go in there than into any cafe in the meadowlands There, look! There go two silly flies this very second."

The two friends watched the two flies run up the yellow, seamlike road that led from the ground to the very edge of the leaf that cupped around like the mouth of a great green pitcher. As they went the two flies supped the sweet juices that seeped from the yellow seam. When they reached the edge of the pitcher-shaped leaf at the top they peeked over, then slowly crawled down out of sight.

"The queerest thing about that cafe," whispered Johnny Grasshopper, "is, I have seen a great many go into her doors, but I have the first time yet to see anyone ever come out. Why, do you suppose?"

"That's a Good Looking Cafe."

"Never come out!" exclaimed Billy Bee. "How silly!"

"Johnny Grasshopper is right," croaked old Hoppy Toad, who had overheard the whole conversation, "Many go into Mrs. Pitcher Plant's cafe, but none have ever been known to come out."

"It must be very lovely inside, then," suggested Billy Bee.

"Nothing of the sort," croaked Hoppy Toad. "You see that yellow seam running up the stem of the plant? Well, that is a line of sweet honey. The silly flies and insects sip along that honey line until they get to the edge of the leaf. Here they find even sweeter honey. Then, when they glance down to the bottom of the pitcher well they see a lovely pool of honey as clear as water. They think, of course, it's sweet, too, so down they go into the well. The way down is lovely, covered with the softest of little hairs on the stem road. But when they reach the bottom the honey is bitter, and, disappointed, they turn to retrace their steps. The hairs that were so soft going down rise up and pierce them as they try to make their way back into the sunlight, and after they are exhausted from their efforts to gain the top they fall back into the bitter honey well of the Pitcher Plant."

"How terrible!" exclaimed Billy Bee. Hoppy Toad. "It only catches the idlers, the lazy fellows who don't like to work for their living. You never see a Toad, a Bee, or a Grasshopper crawling up that yellow road. They haven't time to waste." And Hoppy Toad disappeared under the rose-bush.

The two friends looked at each other.

Johnny Grasshopper hopped one way and Billy Bee flew another. One never gets into trouble if he pays attention to his own business.

WHERE THE BARBECUE IS A POPULAR AFFAIR.

The barbecue is as typical an institution of the South and Middle West as the clambake is of Rhode Island and beans of Boston. In fact, almost every locality of our country can boast its own favorite food and method of serving that food.

But the barbecue originated in Georgia. From there it spread all through the Southern States, and even to the Southwestern and Middle Western States. And its popularity increases as it spreads to new territory.

This peculiar type of entertainment has played its part in every form of activity. It is used in political campaigns, in social life, in business. Many a man has gained his popularity as an employer and an office-holder by the lavishness of his barbecue entertainments.

Nobody knows just how the barbecue originated. But that it has existed for more than a hundred years is proved by allusions in history. There are even tales of bargains with the Indians sealed with barbecue viands.

The barbecue is nothing more than a huge open-air entertainment, either social or political, at which sheep or oxen are roasted whole. Hundreds of people can be fed at a single barbecue and things are always conducted on a gigantic scale.

Originally, it seems, the meat cooked in the barbecue was game, such as deer and bear, but as these animals became scarce, sheep, pigs and oxen took place. To-day almost any type of food may be used in the barbecue. Fish, beef, mutton, pork, chicken, duck, vegetables, especially potatoes and corn on the cob, all are used in the Barbecue.

An Old-Fashioned Barbecue.

There is scarcely any form of entertainment that is so popular in the South and Middle West as this of the barbecue. It has a hold on the people of the cities as well as on those of the towns and villages. On a festive occasion, the city inhabitants who wish to celebrate will betake themselves to the outskirts of the city and put up their barbecue with joy and hilarity.

There is an unspoken but recognized rule that everybody must be happy at a barbecue, and everybody obeys the rule.

In Peterborough Churches

ST. ANDREW'S.

Yesterday morning a large and greatly interested congregation was present to hear the facts concerning the tasks of the members of the United Church of Canada. Rev. Geo. A. Little, Editor of Presbyterian Publications, gave a most interesting and illuminating address, outlining the church's work at home and abroad. He especially emphasized the needs of our Canadian west in the non Anglo-Saxon communities and made reference to the 6,000 workers which the church has scattered over the whole world.

ST. LUKE'S ANGLICAN

That the citizenship of a person in Heaven is in the present and not at some distant time in the future, was the keynote in the sermon preached in St. Luke's Church by Rev. G. J. Bousfield, B.A. The text of his address may be found in part of the 20th verse of the Third Chapter of St. Paul's spistle of the Phillipians; "For our conversion is in Heaven." Years ago, Rev. Mr. Bousfield explained, the word "conversation" meant all kinds of associations with one another, and the text was, therefore, to be interpreted with that in mind. Religion today is largely measured by the extent of humanism or the way in which people deal with others. It used to be measured by the zeal and intensity for soul saving and character was judged by the manner of carrying out religious duties. The tendency of the age now is to beiefit humanity and accordingly there have arisen various organizations with that purpose before them.

Incorporated in the Prayer Book of the Church of England is a statement which was placed there at the troubled period of the Reformation: "It hath been the wisdom of the Church of England to keep the mean between the two extremes." Truth usually lies midway between two radical beliefs. In human relationships we are to look on all differences as they are in relationship to God. We must care for social relationships, but we must not forget that we have souls which must be saved, sad Rev. Bousfield.

"Saint Paul says our citizenship is in Heaven. It is not some future thng, but is actually there now. The idea of Heaven being in the future is wrong—it is a present possession. We worship when something is of tremendous importance to us, and he who worships only when it pleases him will not attain the citizenship."

Appetite Legitimate.

"All appetite is legitimate as long as it is controlled and unnecessary time and attention not devoted to them.

"Realizing that our Kingdom is in Heaven, we should realize that this world is no permanent abiding place and because the true citizenship is in Heaven we should remember that there is only a beginning here on earth where our duty cannot wholly be performed although eternal life may be experienced. Citizenship is one of the greatest words which denotes the relationship existing between a people and a nation. We should be glad that Paul used that word when speaking of the Kingdom of Heaven.

"While we should maintain human kinship and work for others," Rev. Bousfield said, "that is but half of our duty; there is the other part—the eternity of life which God has to offer."

Guided by the precepts of Christ we will make our way along the path toward that perfection of life and truly realize our citizenship in following the Master.

ST. PAUL'S PRESBYTERIAN.

The services in St. Paul's Presbyterian Church yesterday were marked by large congregations. Messages from the pulpit, having deep spiritual thought, and music of the usual high order, with the assistance of Miss Florence McNair, soprano, of Toronto.

In the morning Rev. Mr. Allan's theme was taken from the Acts of the Apostles, ninth chapter, verses 10-18, especially dealing with the words, "There was a certain disciple at Damascus named Ananias."

Mr. Allan referred to another man of the same name, who was famous as the husband of Saphira, but was also infamous as a man of lies, who latterly was suddenly stricken dead when lying about the Holy Ghost. The Ananias of the text was one of the quiet heroes of the Gospel; he had left his name on the scroll of fame through his connection with the conversion of Saul of Tarsus. He was a loyal disciple and Christian Jew. He was a type of the Christian not much seen and seldom heard from—an obscure Christian. But, as Mr. Allan pointed out, he was on intimate terms with God, always waiting for His voice; he knew how to come into touch with other men, as shown by his meeting the persecution with the words "Brother Saul"; and though obscure himself, he did not obscure God. He was always waiting and watching and ready to do God's work. There should be, and there are, many such men as Ananias, and our world and community should be enriched by these followers of the living God, ever ready to answer his call to do good.

The Evening Sermon.

The evening sermon was also inspiring. Mr. Allan holding his hearers with an eloquent discourse on the words, "I am the rose of Sharon" (song of Solomong, 2nd chapter). He told of Christ having many contemporaries, but no peers. He was continually doing good, and, like the rose of Sharon, noted for its beauty and delicacy, so did our Lord shed His rays of righteousness throughout the world. He had many titles to support the ideals he exemplified—the bread of life, the way of life, the door, and other paths whereby all might find strength and help in time of need.

The suggestion is here made of the ease with which we may reach Jesus. He seems to us to be walled in, but we can approach Him if we climb the hill called Calvary, and there lay our sins at His feet, and for ever see above the retaining walls of doubt and ignorance.

Then is suggested the wealth we may find in Jesus,—the beauty of the rose of Sharon was real; there was no veneer in the Son of God; His beauty of character, and His beauty of conduct. Beholding Him, in beauty of character and conduct, we can have lasting sweetness with God's presence. There is safety and satisfaction in living with Him. If we plant our lives with the rose of Sharon, we will be among the beauty spots of His Kingdom on earth; our lives will reflect that we walk with God, and our homes and community will know us as shining lights for Him.

The Music.

Miss McNair, who yesterday made her second appearance in St. Paul's Church, was heard in four solos, and also in the anthem solo: "Come Ye Blessed of My Father," and "Spirit of God," in the morning; "Fear Ye Not, O Israel," "Only a Little Way," and solo in anthem, "Seek Ye the Lord," in the evening. In her renditions she delighted the congregations, and her clear, musical tone, enunciation and expression were all that could be desired. The choir loft was filled, and their part in the praise was appreciated.

ST. GEORGE'S ANGLICAN.

"Be sure your sin will find you out," part of the twenty-third verse of the thirty-second chapter of the Book of Numbers, was the text chosen by the Rev. J. L. Hughes for his sermon at the evening service at St. George's Church yesterday. The speaker recounted the occasion when this was used, telling of the desire of the tribes of Reuben and Gad to remain on the east side of Jordan with their flocks, and the reproof given them by Moses, who thought that they wished to avoid the fighting that would be necessary before the Promised Land was captured.

"Does it not seem strange that the texts which promise punishment in this life are to men among the most unpleasant in the Bible?" asked Mr. Hughes, "while the texts which tell of punishment in the world to come do not seem to cause so much fear." This was ascribed by the reverend speaker to the fact that the future life seemed a long way off, although the punishment promised there is for eternity.

"Sin is its own detective. The sinner is haunted by thoughts of his sin, and he is punished by fear of being found out, and punished by sorrow for his act, or by the hardening of his heart and the lowering of his character."

The speaker called attention to the fact that the sin referred to in the passage quoted was a sin of omission, and referred also the Master's story of the judgment, when people should be punished because they had not fed or clothed those in want. He said that it was not by accident that the Anglican Prayer Book, in the general confession, mentioned first, "We have left undone the things we ought to have done," and second, "we have done the things we ought not to have done." Sins of omission he characterized as being worse than sins of commission. He also mentioned that, according to the Lord, the desire to sin was as bad as the actual act.

Mr. Hughes urged his hearers first to find out their sins and then to take them to the Master. While the earthly punishment must be endured, He would create a new spirit that would do better, and He would stand between them and eternal punishment. He spoke of the penitent thief, who died for his crime, but who was promised that he should be with Christ in Paradise.

TRINITY UNITED

At the morning service on Sunday, Nov. 15th, Trinity United Church congregation listened to an eloquent sermon by the Rev. Dr. C. E. Manning, of Toronto, who is General Secretary of Home Missions. Dr. Manning in a very able address called attention to the active principles in the uniting churches that ultimately brought about union. They were, first, a great ideal, and, second, a great task. The great ideal was a united body fulfilling the prayer of the Head of the Church, 'that they all may be one.' The task before the Church, he pointed out, is very great. Only six hundred million of the sixteen hundred million of the earth's population are even nominally Christian. In this country there are many sections of the great West that are yet without any regular religious service. The United Church has a great opportunity and a great responsibility. The need of the hour is the consecration of all the members of the United Church of Canada to the great and noble principles that brought this Church into being.

The evening service was taken by the pastor, Rev. A. J. Langford. The music for the day was interesting and inspiring under the direction of Miss Clarry, of New York.

KNOX UNITED.

In the morning the sermon was based on II. Cor. iv., 5, and dealt with the substance of Paul's preaching.

Sometimes there is a tendency to think of preaching as having become an unnecessary and useless part of the Christian economy. Rather, as an Anglican archbishop recently indicated concerning his own ecclesiastical group the need of the church is not less preaching but better preaching. The substance of preaching as exemplified by Paul is Jesus, the human, sympathetic, interested Jesus, but more than that. He preached Jesus as the Christ, the One Promised, the desire of nations. All nations, not the Jews only, but all peoples have sought after God, if haply they might find Him, and here in Christ Jesus is the fulfilment of their hopes. The missionary of today can say with Paul, "Whom ye ignorantly worship, Him declare I unto you." But Jesus the Christ even does not complete Paul's Gospel. It is Christ Jesus as Lord he proclaims. Jesus is the rightful Lord of men and nations and only in His absolute Lordship is there safety for any. He must reign, Whose right it is, from the rivers unto the end of the earth. "To this end Christ both died, and rose, and revived, that He might be Lord both of the dead and of the living." "The kingdoms of this world are to become the kingdoms of our Lord, and He shall reign forever and ever."

As an indication of His increasing sovereignty extending throughout the world, significant testimony is noticed from nations among whom Jesus was unknown a few decades ago. Gandhi, the mouthpiece of millions in India, says: "The man to whom I owe most and to whom all India owes most is a man who never set foot in India, and that man is Christ Jesus." Marquis Okuma of Japan says: "Christianity has penetrated and influenced every realm of thought and life in Japan." President Yuan Shi Kai of China says: "I am not a Christian; I am a Confucianist. But Confucianism is not strong enough for the crisis which is upon us. Only Christ can save China."

What is true of China is true of Canada. Only Christ Jesus as Lord can save Canada. In the light of this conviction what have people to say to the careful estimate that there are 3,602 Anglo-Saxon communitities in Canada that have not yet a Christian church? What of the Canadian communities that have waited from twelve to twenty years for the Gospel messenger? One missionary, Rev. Dr. A. D. Mackinnon, has a parish in British Columbia which is twice the size of Nova Scotia, twice the size of Scotland, and four times as large as Belgium. He tells of finding communities of Anglo-Saxon peoples there in which "some of the children were eighteen years of age and had never attended a religious service before." In Northern Ontario there is a missionary who has one thousand seven hundred and fifty square miles to cover, all within five miles of the railway. He tells of finding a community of forty families who, although there for some years, had never had a religious service held in their lone district. To meet such needs as these, there is now a Canadian Church, the United Church of Canada. As a church it is directly responsible for thirty millions of non-Christian people in eleven great foreign mission fields on four great continents. For that work it has abroad a working staff of 2,186 workers, with numerous stations, hospitals, schools and colleges, and several fine universities. But in Canada there is a special challenge. Already it is carrying on home mission work ministering to 3,602 communities, and the work must be extended if Canada is to be kept Christian. "We preach Christ Jesus as Lord of all lands, including Canada. For this cause we have abandoned denominationalism. Now with clear conscience and steady step we go forward in more than song—

'Lord of the lands
Make Canada thine own'."

ST. PETER'S CATHEDRAL.

Rev. P. Costello preached at the morning Masses yesterday at St. Peter's Cathedral. His text was taken from the Gospel according to St. Matthew xiii., 21-25: "The kingdom of heaven was likened to a grain of mustard seed——"

The tiny seed of mustard which, sown in the ground, took root and sprang up to become a tall tree in whose branches the birds of the air found refuge was compared to the doctrine of Christ, which had its humble beginnings in a stable at Nazareth and spread and increased until finally it permeated the whole world. It was like the leaven that works quietly in the bread. So the grace of God works silently and quietly in the hearts and souls of men and is the means of drawing them nearer to their Saviour. "Life is not just a passing shadow. Man is put here to know and to love God, to serve Him on earth, and to reap the reward of well-doing after death."

The reverend speaker referred to the growth and spread of the doctrines of the Catholic Church in every age and in every section of the world. "Many governments have raised the sword against the Church," but it still remains as an agent of God upon earth. Disobedient sons, such as Henry Eighth and Martin Luther, fell by the wayside and were cut off from the Church, like the dead limb from the tree, but the Church itself has continued to grow and spread like the little grain of mustard seed.

Last evening in George Street United Church the special preacher for the service was Rev. Dr. F. L. Barber, Bursar of Victoria College, Toronto. There was a fine representative congregation in spite of the disagreeable night, and they listened with unflagging interest to the speaker, as he presented the challenge of the church in the maintenance and extension movement which the church is now facing. Taking his text from the last few verses of the Sermon on the Mount, where Jesus tells of the man who built his house upon a rock, Dr. Barber spoke of the unique place the United Church of Canada holds in the ecclesiastical world, and from the place she holds certainly great things were to be expected of her. By graphic illustrations and vivid word picturings he pointed out how inter-dependent humanity is and always has been for every step forward in life, and if we as a church are to live up to our privileges we must accept a larger share of responsibility than ever before. He closed his address with a definite pronouncement that this four million dollars the United Church is asking for is after all a secondary thing in the life of the church; the all-imporant thing being the spiritual quickening and regeneration of the people as individuals.

An invention just patented is a golf bag with a small wheel at the bottom which carries the weight of the bag on the ground and thus relieves the caddy.

Bankruptcy was averted —The Business Lived!

Miller and Jackson had been partners in a hardware business for twenty years when, about one year ago, Jackson died very unexpectedly.

At Jackson's death, his heirs decided to sell out—to force a sale, if necessary—to get their money out of the business. On top of this, wholesalers demanded payment of money owing to them.

The crisis against which every partnership should guard—the sudden loss of a good partner and all his assets—confronted Miller.

And Miller would have been forced to sell out at a loss except for one thing—Business Insurance!

Several years ago, Miller and Jackson protected their partnership with Business Insurance. Each insured his life for $10,000, making the other the beneficiary. Premium payments were charged up as a regular item of business expense.

Thus, at Jackson's death, Miller received $10,000 cash. With this money he bought his partner's share; met the firm's debts; re-established credit; and carried on under his own name.

Ottawa Wins Big Four Rugby Title--Balmy Beach Senior O.R.F.U. Champions

SENATORS DEFEAT HAMILTON TIGERS 8-3, WINNING CHAMPIONSHIP OF THE INTERPROVINCIAL RUGBY UNION FOR FIRST TIME IN FIFTEEN WEARY YEARS

"Irish" Monohan Scored Touch For Champions in First Minute of the Game After Rayner's Kick Was Blocked.

JUBILANT CAPITAL THRONG CELEBRATED

Tubman and Miller Played Brilliantly For Winners—Tigers Fought Gamely Against Scoring Odds of Early Break.

OTTAWA, Ont., Nov. 16 (Canadian Press)—Great are the Ottawa Senators. After fifteen long, lean years of honest endeavor their championship hopes were at last realized here Saturday when they defeated Hamilton Tigers 8 to 3, in the deciding game of the Interprovincial Rugby Union and copped the Big Four honors.

Crowded into the big stand and in motors around the playing field was the largest crowd to see a rugby game in Ottawa for many, many years. There is a difference of opinion as to how many people were in attendance but it is safe to say that the number ranged around ten thousand.

The enthusiasm which has been pent up in the breasts of Ottawa fans for so many seasons burst like a racing flood as the timers' whistles piped the end of the battle and in no time at all the big field was a swirling mass of humanity, as thousands crowded down to pay tribute to Dave McCann's fighting Senators. Tubman, Miller, Connell, Lynch and in fact eevry member of the team was lifted shoulder high and borne to their dressing rooms as the band vainly endeavoured to make the strains of "See the Conquering Hero Comes" audible above the clamour of the acclaiming crowd.

Played Like Champions

For in every respect it was a brilliant victory. In winning the garlands the Senators played like real champions and in the vanquished Tigers they found foemen who also played like champions. There was not a weak link in either chain and but for a break in the opening minute of play when Ottawa secured a touchdown, it might have been a hair line decision that settled the issue. However, the break came to Ottawa, because they made it. It was unfortunate for Rayner that the line broke in front of him at this critical moment, but that does not detract from the great smashing offensive of Starr and Monohan that tore a gaping hole in the Tiger front rank and made it possible for the kick to be blocked and the touchdown secured.

Leading the Ottawas in their victorious march came that pair of backfield aces, the two Joes, Miller and Tubman. Such daring passing and clever ball handling has rarely been seen on any field. They both kicked and caught faultlessly and their great all-round work made the Ottawa victory possible. It was on the whole, an exact replica of the game played a week previously in Hamilton when the two teams battled to a two-all tie. There was a variety of conditions for the teams to contend with. The day was clear, but a strong wind blew from west to east the length of the field. The footing was not dry but firm, and little mud was in evidence. This kept the ball in good condition throughout and the combined fumbles of backs and linemen could be counted on the fingers of one hand. Both teams played air-tight defensively. Statistics bear this out when it is noted that Ottawa's only garnered one point with the wind in their backs in the second and fourth periods, while Tigers failed to register a single point with the wind behind them in the third.

Monohan Scored Touch

The champions scored in the first minute of play. Quinn was held at the Tiger 30 yard line on Emerson's kickoff and on the first down, Rayners' kick was wasted when Hannon got the gate for holding and Tigers were penalized ten yards. Rayner attempted to kick away on the second down, but Starr and Monohan blocked the kick and recovering the loose ball raced the intervening ten yards for a touch down. Connell took plenty of time, but against the wind, he missed the convert.

Ottawas 5; Tigers 0.

Rayner's kicks were continually hampered for the first half of the period but when he did get going he showed some remarkable punting. Miller and Tubman early showed stellar running and passing, and this, coupled with steady plunging, kept Tigers at bay until halfway through when Miller was run into touch behind the line on one of Rayner's sky-high boots.

Ottawas 5; Tigers 1.

Tigers got their next point on a break. Miller came ten yards out from the goal line on Rayner's kick. Plunging advanced it fifteen more and then Lynch dropped it in a plunge. A Tiger, sweeping through, booted the loose ball over the dead line, and Tubman had no option but to dribble it over the dead line.

Ottawa 5; Tigers 2.

Tigers' third point came before the end of the period, Tubman being thrown for a rouge by Veale on another of Rayner's big hoists. Miller took the kick and made a daring pass to Tubman behind the line, but the captain could not get out with it.

Ottawa 5; Tigers 3.

Second Period

In the second period with the wind behind them, Ottawas could only score once. After about five minutes' play, Tubman booted from centerfield to Languay behind the Tiger line. Timmy made a gallant effort, but Monohan caught him with a flying tackle that forced the Tiger youngster back over the line for a safety touch.

Ottawa 7; Tigers 3.

Just after, on a kick formation on the Ottawa side of center, Tugman repeated his Hamilton performance, by circling the Tiger right end on a fake kick and running 50 yards to the Tiger twenty where Rayner was knocked out bringing him down. Ottawa lost this advantage when they tried a drop and lost the ball. Gibb came into the game in Rayner's place, but he could not match the distance the latter had been getting.

Blanked in Third

The third period was a rare old tussle with no score. Tigers threw their all into the game and Ottawas resisted just as desperately. Three times Tigers threatened, but sustained plunging or brilliant back line running carried the Senators through.

When they changed over there was a noticeable difference. Fifteen minutes from a fifteen-year old championship, the Senators sniffed victory and tore into their opposition recklessly. Tiger attacks were smashed wide open while the Ottawa offensive was so intense that only a real game team could have held them as Tigers did. Early in the period after Tubman had worked the ball to Tigers' 55 on a kicking exchange, the locals made yards. On the first down, Tubman booted to Quinn for a rouge by Star. Ottawa 8; Tigers 3; and thus the score remained until the finish. In the closing minutes of the last period, the tired, fighting, beaten Tiger twelve hemmed in their own end of the field gave an exhibition of gameness and pluck that will long be remembered by those who saw it. They could not escape from the ever-tightening vise the handles of which were manipulated by Miller and Tubman, but they stayed gallantly with their tasks till the whistles sounded the end of the 1925 Big Four race, the death knell of Tiger hopes and the crowning of a new set of champions.

Senators' Stars

Miller and Tubman were immense for the winners. Miller's work in particular was outstanding, but his unselfishness brought Tubman into the limelight. On unmerous occasions, Miller would take the punt, draw tackles to him and then pass unerringly to the uncovered Tubman or Mulroney, allowing the two latter to romp away for big gains. In the second period he pulled a play that is seen once in a season. Catching a punt on his own ten, he ran it through three tackles to the right touch line and then booted on the run. The ball went over the heads of the Tigers' backs and rounded along, finally going into touch at the Tiger 25.

Tubman kicked splendidly and his 50-yard run on the fake kick was one of the brightest of the many sparkling plays which featured the game. Lynch, Connell, Monohan and Starr were prime factors in the victory. Connell played the entire game with torn ligaments in his side, but still showed a whale of a game. The remainder all starred. They drew plenty of penalties, but Murray and DeGruchy were ruling with an iron hand and there was not a semblance of foul tactics.

Standing out as an example of all-round ability and indominitable spirit came Captain Brian Timmis of the Tigers. Timmis rose to the heights of stardom with a smashing game which carried both ways. Quinn, Baker, Elford, Veale and Languay all turned in games that would have attracted worthy mention in any contest. Fred "Smit" Veale, playing outside wing worked like a beaver and the ex-Queen's star showed a tackling exhibition, that was second only to the deadly gunning of Young and Starr.

Hal de Gruchy and Tim Murray stood for nothing that was not in the book and both teams had to play within the code at all stages.

By CHESTER HORTON

Golf's Golden Rule for Direction is: Hit out into the imaginary line. In all shots of any length the player will do best always to hit out into this line—the line toward the hole ahead—as far as the arms will reach, with but one exception. This is the mashie pitch. The pitch shot calls for crispness and precision, and to strive to hit away out with the mashie blade promotes a loose sweep with this club that is not so good. With the mashie determine to hit for about four inches directly along the ground from a point at the ball to that far directly in front of it. This correct throw of the mashie head is accomplished by having a rather firm grip, with the wrists loose. Striving to reach away out with the mashie blade has a tendency to stiffen up the wrists.

DARTMOUTH TEAM FOOTBALL MARVEL

Undisputed Leaders of American College Grid Game.

NEW YORK, Nov. 16 (Canadian Press).— Hanover's gridiron comet has finished its course.

Meteoric Dartmouth brought back from Chicago to the New Hampshire hilltop one of the most brilliant records of modern football. Unbeaten for two season with a total of 340 points for eight contests this Fall—an average of almost 43 a game—Jesse Hawley's remarkable team lays aside the moleskins to rule the Estern gridiron front until another year with undisputed authority.

A worn and battered band, once daring to pursue and challenge, now silenced by conquest for miles around awaits the Green-hued pack. Yale, only two days ago at the head of the contenders; Pennsylvania, sensation of the early season; Syracuse, the hitherto unbeaten, and Army, conqueror of Notre Dame, all have tasted deep and damaging defeats which have added to the lustre of the Dartmouth conquest in its triumphant invasion of the Middle West.

OSHAWA'S FIRST RUGBY VICTORY HERE FROM P. C. I.

Nothing at Stake Except Keen Rivalry Between School Teams.

FINAL SCORE 17-9.

Peterboro Led 8-6 at Half Time, But Visitors Finished Strong.

The Oshawa High School outfit made rugby history at Riverside Park on Saturday when they defeated Peterboro Collegiate Institute twelve by 17 points to 9 in the last game in this group of the Interscholastic O.R.F.U. series.

It was the first time since the two teams began playing in the series some five years ago that Oshawa had won a game on the local grounds and the second time out of eleven games that P.C.I. had to sup defeat at the hand of the Lakeshore collegians.

Nothing was at stake in Saturday's game, University of Toronto schools having smothered both teams in winnnig the group title, but the keen rivalry between the two schools created considerable interest and the Oshawa youngsters were as delighted when it was all over as if they were well on their way to provincial honors.

It was a hard fought battle on a heavy field and the result was in doubt until well on in the last period when the winners cinched the argument by scoring their third touchdown. P.C.I. taking an early lead, were in front 6 to 1 at the end of the first fifteen minutes and 8 to 6 at half time. Oshawa, however, fought back gamely, shot in front by scoring a try in the third period and in the last session held the local sudents safely and then with five minutes to go settled the argument by registering a converted try.

P.C.I. completing one of the most disastrous seasons in the school record fought hard to wind up the year's operation with a victory but their own mistakes, rather than the superiority of the visitors beat them. An attempt by Doughty to return a kick from behind his own line resulted in the first Oshawa try and the last was another gift, Wood losing the ball as he was tackled in trying to run a kick out from behind the Petes line. This try was converted, so that two mishaps were responsible for eleven of the Oshawa points.

Oshawa Defense Good.

Oshawa's line work was better than that of P.C.I. and their plunging was on the whole more useful. The local students relied too much on passing runs and long passes, and handled these so slowly that the visitors almost invariably broke up the plays.

Hubbell, Oshawa's centre half was the green and white's most effective player. He punted nicely hit the line well and ran back kicks effectively. Up in front Gummow did some nice tackling and Clark plunged well.

Bookhout and Morrison were P.C.I.'s best ground gainers and the former's kicking was of much assistance to his team. Wood and Westbrook contributed some pretty runs.

Summary of Game.

Early in the game two spectacular gains by Morrison and Bookhout were responsible for P.C.I.'s first points. From a down at midfield Morrison ripped through the left side of Oshawa's line for a twenty-five yard gain and on the next play Bookhout smashed through, shook off the rear guard and galloped thirty yards for a try. Killaly converted neatly from a difficult angle and the Peterboro students were in front 6 to 0.

Oshawa came back strong and pressed for the balance of the period. A kick to the deadline was the limit of their scoring, however, Hubbell doing the booting.

Honors were fairly even in the second period with much of the play in midfield until Hubbell rammed a long punt which Doughty took behind his goal line. With Oshawa wings closing in on him he tried to boot the play out of danger but the ball went almost straight up in the air and dropped into the eager hands of Lick, Oshawa middle wing who had only to fall over the line for a soft touchdown, which was not converted. P.C.I. 6; Oshawa 6.

The Petes put on the pressure and before half time had taken the lead again, Bookhout booting over for a single and Wood returning an Oshawa kick for a rouge, just before the breathing spell, leaving the half time score P.C.I. 8, Oshawa 6.

Oshawa Push Ahead.

Oshawa had the edge in the third period but were held off the scoring sheet until the period was nearly over. Then a fine passing run by the visiting back division resulted in a thiry-five yard gain and put the ball on P.C.I.'s one yard line. One the first down Clarke easily smashed through for a try which was not converted. Oshawa 11; P.C.I. 8

Rowden returned Doughty's kick off and Bookhout running at top speed made a beautiful catch and carried the ball to Oshawa's quarter line. It was a royal chance but on two downs Bookhout was held to a total of five yards and elected to kick on the third, booting over for a single point. Oshawa 11; P.C.I. 9.

Two points down P.C.I. went into the last period determined to pull the game out of the fire but Oshawa kept their goal line safe and finally Hubbell, by fast following up his own kick, put the play into P.C.I. territory. Soon after he booted over the Petes' line and when Wood picked up the bounding ball and started to run it out the oval slipped out of his hands when he was tackled and Young dropped on the loose ball for an easy touchdown, which Hubbell converted. Oshawa 17; P.C.I. 9.

With five minutes to go Hubbell made it safe when he broke away for a thirty yard run, putting P.C.I. on the defensive and giving them no chance to get back any of their lost points.

CROWD OF 78,000 AT YALE DEFEAT

Princeton Wins "Big Three" Title in Famous Bowl.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Nov. 16 (Canadian Press). — Princeton has gained its gridiron pinnacle with another "miracle team." On the gale-swept gridiron in Yale Bowl Saturday afternoon, eleven clawing, inspired Tigers swept Yale's powerful team off its feet with a furious attack that rolled up a sensational triumph by a score of 25 to 12.

A throng of 78,000 in the great amphitheatre watched the men of Old Nassau spring possibly the greatest upset of a season of reversals and capture the Big Three championship for the first time since 1922. Coming on top of the smashing 36 to 0 victory over Harvard a week ago, Saturday's astonishing performance brings Princeton even greater glory than its "team of destiny" of three years ago.

Four times the Tigers flung their way across the last white line of Yale, with the Blues' vaunted line torn to shreds before a slashing drive. Yale scored twice herself but had no punch to match that of the Tigers' and in the final analysis was out-classed, beaten at her own game.

Twenty thousand Princetonians poured down on to the field as the final whistle blew, to stage a wild celebration snake-dancing a hilarious demonstration of triumph and tearing down Yale's goal posts. They cheered the Tiger team as it had seldom been cheered before, and foremost among the honored was Jake Slagle, 168-pound meteor, who shot from scrimmage in the second period to elude the entire Yale team and race 82 yards for the first touch-down of the game and thereafter was the dominating factor in the Princeton attack.

Slagle was the hero of the Tiger triumph, but he also shared the main laurels of a scintillating afternoon with Joe Prendergast, the "masked marvel" battering-ram, who plunged and swirled his way across for touchdowns on each of the two occasions he was put in to apply the finishing punch, and also with Tom Dignan, scored of the fourth Tiger touchdown, whose toe also was a big factor in the game.

M'GILL DASH BEAT VARSITY

Extension Run For 60 Yards in Last Five Minutes.

TORONTO DISMAYED.

VARSITY STADIUM, Nov. 16.—A sensational 60-yard run in the last five minute of play, by Ralph St. Germain, the brilliant young half back, gave McGill a touchdown and victory over Varsity by 11 to 10. In Saturday's game which closed the college season, Varsity was leading 10 to 5 and with the wind in their favor it looked like a sure win. McGill, however, pulled an extension run from beyond centre. Philpotts to Cameron to St. Germain and the latter rounded the Varsity right end and ran 60 yards for a touch down, which being converted, gave McGill the victory by the odd point.

Young St. Germain, who hails from Ottawa Rideaus, was the star of the game. He did all the kicking for McGill and caught faultlessly and did some brilliant running. Joe Cameron also played well on the back division. They took more chances than Varsity and opened up the play when battling against the wind.

Warren Snyder was the whole works for Varsity. He scored two goals from the field and forced most of the other points for his team. Coleman and Trimble plunged well on the back division, after showing timidity in the early stages.

WINNIPEG TEAM DEFEAT REGINA

Manitoba Rugby Champions Win Western Title By 11-1.

WILL COME EAST.

REGINA, Sask., Nov. 16 (Canadian Press).—Scoring the majority of their points by rouges until Dick Buckingham, the "Big Train" of the team snorted his way through a broken field for a touchdown three minutes before time, to put the finishing touches onto a convincing victory, the Tamany Tigers of Winnipeg, Senior rugby champions of Manitoba, defeated Regina's Rough Riders, 11 to 1, before a packed stadium at Park Hughes Saturday afternoon and took into their possession the gridiron supremacy of Western Canada. It was Winnipeg's second taste of a Western championship in two years, and as a reward for their triumph Saturday the team will go East in quest of Dominion honors next month.

Played on a snow-soaked field which militated against any sensational displays of speed, the game was pretty much devoid of the spectacular but abounded in hard knocks and at least a baker's dozen of players were laid out during the course of the battle. The teams were equally matched in weight and in the kicking end the incomparable Freddy Wilson had a considerable edge over Greig Warren, but the greater experience of the Tigers, who have been playing rugby every week since the start of the Fall season, proved the deciding factor, though the issue hung in doubt right up to Buckingham's sensational dash in the closing moments.

REGINA JUNIORS WIN.

Beat Edmonton Eskimos For Western Rugby Honors.

EDMONTON, Atla., November 16.—By the slimmest possible margin, the Regina Pats won the Western Canada Junior Championship here yesterday, the youngsters from the Saskatchewan Capital beating the Junior Eskimos by a score of 8-7. More experience, and a better system of team work gave the Pats their slight edge.

Right up to the time the whistle blew the result was in doubt, with the score at 8-7 and three minutes to go. The Pats were in possession of the ball on their own twenty yard line and managed to hang on until time was up, dashing the hope of local supporters that the Eskimos would get a kick to the deadline for the point needed to tie.

BALMY BEACH IN RUGBY PLAY-OFF

Won Ontario Senior Rugby Crown From Varsity Seconds.

TO MEET QUEEN'S.

SCARBORO BEACH, Nov. 15.—Balmy Beach settled the championship of the Senior O.R.F.U. Saturday here by defeating Varsity Seconds 16 to 6. It was a smart game despite the apparent one-sidedness of the score. The Beach team played back to early season form and always looked like the better team after the first period when Cawkell muffed one of Burns' punts and Snyder fell on it for a try for Varsity, that was Varsity's only score until the final period when they forced a rouge.

After Varsity's first touchdown the sturdy Beach line got going and overpowered their lighter opponents. They marched through them for yards a dozen times and hurled them for losses almost every time they tried to smash the centre, however, Wright and Creighton gave a sparkling exhibition in the college back field and with Roos formed a continual threat. Burns did some nice kicking and Snyder and Stewart backed him up with some great tackling.

However, the real stars of the day were Scotty Cawkell and Roxy Robinson in the Beaches' backfield. Both caught well. Robinson's kicking and line plunging was a treat, while Cawkell's broken field running and dodging was the best seen in Toronto this year. Crowe, Crowhurst and Ogden all bucked well and Keith and Finmark showed themselves to be a pair of smart outside wings. The Beach team played smart football everywhere and, on the performance, are a team which cannot be held lightly in any company.

OTTAWA, Ont., November 16. Canadian Press. — Members of the Hamilton Tigers and Ottawa Senators, with their friends, were entertained to a dinner party last Saturday night at the Highlea Tennis and Country Club, as guests of the Ottawa Football Club. About 150 guests made up the party which was presided over by Tom Clancy, a former Ottawa Rugby luminary, and now president of the Interprovincial Rugby Union.

Speeches were delivered by President Clancy, Dr. J. B Hand, President of the Ottawa Club, "Liz" Marriott, coach of the Tigers; Dave McCann, coach of the Senators; Captain Joe Turman, and Brian Timnis and Tommy Moore of the Hamilton Herald, and Eddie O'Meara of the local press

LAKEFIELD FUNERAL.

Public Service For Mrs. Snyder Largely Attended.

LAKEFIELD, Nov. 14—The funeral of the late Mrs. Leo Snyder was held on Friday afternoon, commencing with a brief service at the home of her parents, Capt. and Mrs. Frank Morin on Rabbit St. and at 2.30 proceeding to St. John's Church, where the public service was held.

The church was filled with relatives and friends who gathered to pay the last token of respect to a young woman, cut off in her youth, who, as a beautiful young girl, was known to the entire village. Rev. W. Cox was in of the service and delivered an address suitable to the occasion, speaking of the joyful hope of resurrection, which in the hour of deepest sorrow gives a ray of light to the Christian heart. Speaking of St. Paul, whose inspired words were read during the service, he spoke of the great affliction from which St. Paul suffered and yet, in spite of this he carried on gloriously his great work of an apostle of God. In the past century there lived another great man, who was also sorely afflicted, but whose life and works are remembered, Cardinal J. H. Newman, who's beautiful hymn, "Lead, Kindly Light," one of the favorites of the deceased would be sung at the close of the service. Cardinal Newman wrote this hymn in a time of deep sorrow and suffering and though it is thought by many to be a sad hymn we see in the latter part the bright hope of the Christian heart shining amid the sorrow of the world. Speaking of the young life, so suddenly cut off, Mr. Cox warned the parents present against the sin, so common at the present time, of allowing their children to grow up without the proper knowledge of God. Children are allowed to choose their own path regarding attendance in God's house, and in learning the Catechism. The State provides for the aged and various organizations have taken up the work among young people but the Church, alone, provides for the children.

In the case of the deceased, there was no parental neglect as she was well grounded in the knowledge of God and in the teachings of His Church.

Mr. Cox closed by a quotation from the beautiful hymn—"And in the morn those angel faces smile which I have loved long since and lost awhile," giving words of hope and comfort to these who are morning the loss of their dear one.

Interment took place in Hillside Cemetery.

BALL PLAYER WINS ODDEST GOLF MATCH

Gehrig, Yankee Player, Beats Golfer, Archer and Angler in Four-Sport Foursome.

On the course of the Belleclair Country Club at Bayside, N.Y., a few weeks ago, four men played what was probably the most remarkable golf match that ever took place. The contestants were Leo Diegel, Canadian open golf champion; Lou Gehrig, famous left-handed first baseman of the N.Y. Yankees; Edwin Harkins, well-known fisherman and fly-caster, and Dr. Paul W. Crouch, one of America's best archers.

In one sense, says the December Popular Science Monthly, only Diegel played golf. That is to say, he was the only member of the foursome who used regulation golf clubs to knock a regulation golf ball from tee to green. The other contestants used the implements of the sport in which each has achieved fame. Gehrig threw a baseball. Harkins cast with trout rod and reel. Doctor Crouch shot arrows from a bow. Each throw of the baseball, however, each cast of the fly, and each bolt sped from the bow was scored as a golf stroke, the man making the lowest number of strokes in completing the course being adjudged the winner.

Now, you'd imagine that Diegel, the golfer, would easily prevail in such a match. That, though, is not the way it turned out. Gehrig, the baseball player won the match by a single "shot," negotiating nine holes in 32 throws. Diegel and Doctor Crouch, the archer, were tied for second place, each turning in a card of 33. Harkins, the angler, was a bad fourth, with a score of 45.

Probably the most surprising thing about this freak match is that the baseball player won. Lou Gehrig, like any other big league player, can throw a baseball, of course, with amazing accuracy. Yet both Diegel, the golfer, and Doctor Crouch, the archer, "outdrove" Lou Gehrig almost three to one, a fact which one would expect after consulting the records in the three sports. For the longest throw that a man ever made with a baseball was 426 feet, acomplished by Sheldon Lejeune, a minor-league player, in an exhibition in the Middle West several years ago. On the other hands, a golf ball that Abe Mitchell, noted British professional, drove at the North Foreland Golf Club in England not long ago, struck the ground 915 feet from the tee, and C. D. Curtis, an archer, shot an arrow 918 feet 4½ inches in a competition at Pembina, N.D., last year.

However, when it came to ...ng his "shots" count, Gehrig's long practice at puting a ball where he wanted it stood him in good stead. His "approach throws" landed dead to the pin. When he attempted to hole out, he tossed the ball to the mark without a miss. So Gehrig's never-failing marksmanship sufficed to counterbalance the longer shots made by golfer and archer.

As for Harkins, the fly-caster, he trailed the field from the outset. Armed with a light trout rod, his chance for obtaining distance was comparatively nil. The longest shot ever made with a rod of the kind he carried was 131 feet eight inches, by G. G. Chatt, of the Illinois Casting Club, Chicago, in 1918.

Many Surprises in Saturday's Game—Even Sunderland Beaten.

ARSENAL'S VICTORY.

LONDON, November 16. Canadian Press Cable. — Surprises were the order of the day throughout the entire football league on Saturday, and the favorites, who had been picked confidently to win, in most cases disappointed their fans by dropping the points.

The League leaders, Sunderland, were not expected by even the widest stretch of imagination to go down before Leicester City; nor did soccer followers here suppose that Huddersfield town would run into their second trimming of the season at Villa Park, Tottenham.

Hotspurs were prepared for an uphill battle against Newcastle United, but a defeat on the Tyneside was not the upshot they had anticipated; while it had also been believed that Cardiff City, with all the reinforcements they have had in the past two weeks would be able to get the better of Leeds United. They did not, however, and such is the fortune of football.

Except in the indecisive tilt between Burnley and Sheffield United and the whitewashing of Notts county by Everton, all the home teams won in the first division. The most convincing victory was that of Arsenal who took Bury into camp by six to one, at Highbury. This match was memorable for the first appearance of J. J. Rutherford, son of the famous Jock Rutherford, Newcastle United's great Internationalist whose name was a household word among soccer fans two decades ago. The boy showed himself to be a chip of the old block by turning in an excellent display. The game also saw Harper, the ex-Hibernians' goalkeeper tending the nets for Arsenal. Harper's transfer was put through last week. The match provided one of the sensations of the day for Arsenal were one down to Bury at half time.

In the second period, however, a wonderful change was effected in the team, and within ten minutes from the resumption Brain had shot in two goals. He repeated the hat trick a few minutes later.

Sunderland Faded.

Sunderland had the best of the first half at Leicester, but they failed to take advantage of the opportunities presented. Following the interval the home team did most of the attacking and unleased a terrific offensive against the league leaders' nets. Their victory was well deserved and will go a long way to steadying the late second string aggregation.

The aspect of the league has undergone a slight alteration, but Sunderland continue to top the table.

Arsenal has narrowed the gap between them, reducing the margin to one point only, instead of three as heretofore. Aston Villa has moved up into third place, while Huddersfield Town has dropped to seventh.

Burnley crawled out of the cellar by virtue of their draw with Sheffield United, and their place was taked by Manchester City.

Second Division.

In the second division, Wolverhampton Wanderers went all out to smash Chelsea's unbeaten record, but the pensioners were equal to the task and their fine defence spoiled the Wolves' chances. Middleboro's 5-0 blanketing of Barnsley refects fairly well the vigor with which the Teesiders went after the Lancastrians, and served to boost Middlesborough's stock. Fulham performed a creditable piece of work in drawing wih Derby County. They should have won, but Pape missed a penalty kick.

RUGBY GAME AT RIVERSIDE TO-MORROW

TORONTO, Nov. 16. — It's off again, on again with the University of Toronto Schools-Kingston C. I. Interscholastic Union game. Originally it was thought that this game would be played at Oshawa, then it was switched to Port Hope for last Saturday. The field was rained out, however, and it was suggested that the teams settle the issue at Peterboro to-day. Kingston held out for to-morrow, and asked that the expenses be pooled. U.T.S. turned down the idea about expenses, and yesterday Secretary Broderick ruled that the game must be played at Peterboro to-morrow afternoon, starting at 2.30 p.m.

Lalonde of Toronto will be the referee and Abernethy of Queen's University will be judge of play.

TEXTILE WORKERS' WAGES UNCHANGED

Commission of Inquiry Has Investigated Question in Yorkshire Mills.

LONDON, Nov. 16. — (Canadian Press).—The court of inquiry which was appointed in August last to investigate the wage question in connection with the settlement of the strike of nearly 200,000 textile workers in the Yorkshire mills has decreed that the wages of textile workers shall remain unchanged for a year. The strike was precipitated by the workers' demand for increased pay.

PETES STAGE FIRST PRACTICE

The Peterboro Senior hockey club made a week-end visit to Toronto and had their first work-out of the season at the Arena. All of last year's players except Bert McLeod and Shorty Burgess, who couldn't make the trip, were out, as well as Bogardis, last year with Port Colborne, and Cox, formerly of Collingwood. Joe Dwyer was in the nets, and the others out were Harold Parker, Ray Rose, Frank Collins, Bogardis and Cox. The squad worked out for over an hour and showed fine form.

The Petes will defend the S.P.A. trophy won last year, and may have to play their first game the latter end of next week. It is possible they will go to Windsor for an exhibition game before the S. P. A. series begins.

CHINESE DISCOVERED AMERICA?

Who discovered America? Not Columbus, not the Norsemen, but a Chinaman, according to Scit Tou Fa, director of the Chinese Information Service in Paris. Five Buddhist priests, in 458 A.D., discovered an immense island east of China which they called "Fou Chang," he declares in Popular Science Monthly. Descriptions they left of it, he adds, offer convincing proof that the land was America.

THEATRES

AT THE GRAND

AUDIENCE ENJOYS RUSSELL OFFERING.

"My China Doll" a Sprightly Musical Play.

Full of novel electrical effects, colorful costumes and highly original, "My China Doll," a sprightly musical extravaganza which played at the Russell Theatre, Thanksgiving Day, afternoon and evening, proved to be a good holiday offering. Several members of the company displayed exceptional ability and also showed they are possessors of excellent voices. Weak spots in the offering were more than offset by the talent and versatility of those taking leading roles.

To Miss Cecil Manners as Peach Blossom and Ames Harper as Wallace Morgan, a newspaper reporter, most of the honors belong, both enacting difficult roles capably. Mr. Harper can sing well, has personality and ability, while Miss Manners was called on to enact more characters than falls to the lot of the average musical comedy leading woman.

Another character that of Melinda Botkins, a small town girl in Chinatown in search of a thrill, was well enacted by Bessie Delmore. Her "If You Get My Meaning," rarely failed to bring a laugh.

The plot is easily followed. Peach Blossom, a young white girl, is in the grip of Sing Song, a powerful Chinaman, in New York's Chinatown. She is in love with a newspaper reported named Wallace Morgan. Forbidden by her supposed father to mingle with white people, she seeks the solace of the poppy pipe and in her dreams is transported to the land of syncopation, and flowers, and meets all the characters in Fairyland, as well as her Prince Charming. In the end Peach Blossom, it is revealed, is a white girl kidnapped from her parents when a child and is restored to her home, the play ending in her wedding to her young American lover.

Several novelties proved popular, while the singing and costuming was above the average. In the last act, a delightful selection was sung by a trio in a most effective manner.—Ottawa "Journal."

AT THE ROYAL.

"DRUSILLA WITH A MILLION" HERE TO-DAY UNDER THE AUSPICES OF WOMEN'S COUNCIL.

"Drusilla With a Million" in its skilful screen version of the Elizabeth Cooper novel which swept like a prairie fire over the book world a year or two ago comes to the Royal for a run of three days to-day, and it proves a tasty dish of pathos and comedy stirred up in just the most appetizing proportions. With an unusual plot, distinctive treatment by Director F. Harmon Weight, and the splendid interpretation of a cast headed by Mary Carr, Kenneth Harlan and Priscilla Bonner, 'Drusilla' moves on rolling up charm and freshness like a snowball. The whole thing is as refreshing as an ocean breeze, taking up the difficulties which beset a kind-hearted old lady who has suddenly inherited a million dollars after spending most of her lifetime as a charity inmate of an old ladies' home. A delightful romance and one of the most powerful dramatic scenes ever filmed, help to make this a thoroughly entertaining story.

TO-NIGHT!

Stirring laughs and tears into a brilliant entertainment batter; adding heaping measure of powerful drama, and seasoning with a double handful of humanness, Associated Arts, producers of "Drusilla with a Million" have baker in the oven of human sentiment the most appetizing dish that has been set before motion picture patrons in a long time. With Director F. Harmon Weight acting as chief chef, "Drusilla," the adaptation of Elizabeth Cooper's popular novel of the same name, occupies the place of honor on any entertainment menu. Mary Carr, Kenneth Harlan and Priscilla Bonner are featured members of the cast. "Drusilla with a Million" will be shown for the first time at the Royal Theatre to-day; and those who fail to partake of this delectable offering will never cease to regret it.

AT THE CAPITOL

"FERBERIZED" FILM LATEST IN MOVIES.

You'll See One When Corinne Griffith Appears in "Classified."

"Ferberized films!"

Have you seen them? They're the latest thing on the screen.

"Ferberized films" are so called because they are practically stereoscopic in their startling humanness.

One of these psychologically amaging films make its first appearance at the Capitol Theatre today, when Corinne Griffith appears in "Classified."

"Classified," of course, is the product of the penetrative pen of Edna Ferber, one of the foremost women writers of America. No doubt exists as to the screenable properties of the Ferber product, as has already been exemplified by that other First National production, "So Big," in which Colleen Moore starred.

Miss Griffith is supported by Jack Mulhall in "Classified," and surrounded by players of uniform excellence, including such famous funmakers as Charles Murray and George Sidney. June Mathis adapted Miss Ferber's story and Alfred A. Santell directed its intriguing characters.

AT THE REGENT

"CIRCLE" MAKES BRILLIANT FILM.

Broadway Stage Hit Repeats Success in Borzage's Screen Version.

With marital troubles resulting from a double triangle as a basis, "The Circle," a Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer production directed by Frank Borzage, opens at the Regent Theatre to-night.

The screen production was adapted from the play by W. Somerset Maugham and is a thrilling contribution to pantomime art. None of the satire and irony for which the stage play was noted has been lost in transferring it to the screen.

The treatment has been made in a light vein and many humorous situations have been created. It opens with a prologue in which the wife of an English lord elopes with their mutual friend. A lapse of thirty years occurs between the prologue and the play. Alec B. Francis, Eugenic Besserer, and George Fawcett offer fine portrayals as the first triangle.

In the play, Eleanor Boardman, Malcolm McGregor and Creighton Hale form the second triangle. As the son of the deserted nobleman, Creighton Hale finds himself facing the same fate which befell his father. Eleanor Boardman as the young wife depicts the character in a most bewitching manner. Malcolm McGregor portrays the role of the young lover in a very forceful manner.

Eulalie Jensen and Otto Hoffman play character roles which complete the cast. The script was prepared by Kenneth Clarke. Chet Lyons was the photographer.

JARVIS SENIOR TESTIFIES FOR PEPALL DEFENCE

Toronto Financier Says Bond Deal Was Discussed With Drury.

SECRECY ESSENTIAL.

Reason Given For Writing Letters in Jarvis' Office.

TORONTO, Nov. 16 (Canadian Press) —Aemilius Jarvis, senior, testified on behalf of the defence when the hearing of four charges of theft, false pretences and bribery, laid against Andrew H. Pepall as a result of provincial bond transactions, was resumed before Mr. Justice Wright and a jury at the assizes to-day.

Mr. Jarvis stated that though he had discussed with Premier Drury the question of the Ontario Government's redemption of Ontario bonds in England, he had never taken the matter up with Peter Smith, then provincial treasurer. He also said that Pepall had first suggested that the stock be redeemed before the due date, that Jarvis & Co. should receive one and a half per cent. on the par value of the stock besides their expenses, and he (Pepall) was to receive the remainder.

Secrecy, which Mr. Jarvis had explained to Mr. Drury, as being essential to the favorable purchase of the bonds, was put forward by Mr. Jarvis as the reason for letters concerning the matter being written on Government stationery in the office of Jarvis & Co.

HUNTING STYLE CHANGED.

made in the road running to Katchucoma Lake, which is very noticeable this year, and when compared with previous years, the contrast is most marked. He said that the Bottle Lake Club had met with good success up to the end of the week and with almost a week to go it was almost a certainty that they would get their full quota of deer.

The Mayor stated that there were not as many parties hunting in the vicinity of Bottle Lake as in previous years, which may or may not have a tendency to leave more for those who are hunting this year. He said that when the hunters are numerous they tend to keep the game stirred up, thus creating chances for shooting which might not otherwise exist. He stated that trails through the woods were very wet, making travelling uncomfortable, the short bushes wetting one through in a very short time. He contrasted the present method of travelling to the hunting country with the old methods of 15 or 20 years ago. Then, he said, one would travel with a wagon and a team of horses which would be loaded with supplies, and then travel all night to reach that part of the country desired, to enable the hunters to pitch camp before dark the next day. The horses walked all the way—40 or 50 miles or more, and the hunters walked the greater part of the distance to keep themselves warm. Frequently, he said, after reaching the shores of the lake, a paddle of 5 to 10 miles followed, making the trip a long and a arduous one. The same method was used on the return trip, and one can only think "they were hunters in those early days." Nowadays, one who decides to go hunting does so on a different scale and under different conditions. He has breakfast at home, leaving about 7 a.m., travels the 40 or 50 miles by motor car in three or four hours over roads that have improved vastly since the old wagon days and arrives at the embarking point comfortable and warm. The car is unloaded and parked in the boat house ready to return when required, the trip to the camp by river is made in a boat that has an outboard motor attached, and is made without energy on the part of the hunters. The hunters are thus enabled to arrive at the camping grounds hours before the team and wagon mode of travel and without any fatigue at all. When comparing the advance made in mode of travel on land and water one may rightly say that the present age has established "hunting de luxe."

CONVICTION IN LIQUOR TRIAL

Fine of $500 and Costs Imposed on Dalton Dolan To-day.

APPEAL ALLOWED.

An appeal was granted in the case of Dalton Dolan, who was convicted this morning by Magistrate O. A. Langley, in a session at the County police court. The Magistrate presented a summary of the trial, and indicated that the evidence presented by the defendant was unsupported, and that accordingly there was no means of corroborating his statements. After a careful perusal of cases which had presented similar angles the Magistrate felt unable to credit the evidence as given by the accused and decided that it was his duty to return a judgment for conviction.

Regarding the question of liquor seizure he found that when liquor was seized under warrant it might be forfeited.

The defendant was sentenced to pay $500 and costs or in default to serve three months in prison, with one additional month. An order of seizure was to be prepared for 111 flasks and 7 reputed quarts of whiskey and one gallon of alcohol.

The appeal was presented by J. A. O'Brien acting for the defence.

HORSE DESTROYED AFTER ACCIDENT

Automobile Struck Animal at Aylmer and McDonnel Streets.

As the result of a collision with an auto driven by Arthur Hamlin of Rubidge Street, a horse driven and owned by John J. Menzies suffered a broken leg. The horse was later destroyed. Mr. Menzies was driving his bread wagon north on Aylmer, and when at the McDonnel intersection the leg of the horse was hit. Mr. Hamlin stated that he did not know that he had struck the animal until he heard it fall to the pavement. Two others who were with him said that they did not see the horse at the time of the collision.

CHANG'S FORCES FIRE ON ALLIES

Portion of Army Mutinied and Shot Down Russian Brigade.

MANY KILLED.

TSING TAE, China, November 16. Canadian Press. — Marshal Chang Tse Lin's fifth Shantung division becoming mutinous yesterday, fired from the rear on the Russian White brigade attached to Chang's forces. It is reported that a majority of the Russians were killed.

The Russians were endeavoring to stem the advance of Marshal Wu Pei Fu's alliance forces when fired on. The wounded lay without medical aid until foreign doctors from Tsinanfu daringly entered the fighting area and brought them out.

The Russian brigade fired on by the mutineers numbered 3000, and included an armour car party, all the members of which are said to have been killed.

Opening Rise In Wheat Was Lost as Trade Continued

CHICAGO, Nov. 16 (Canadian Press).—Although the wheat market showed an upward trend today at the outset, declines quickly ensued. The initial gains were ascribed to the fact that the amount of wheat on ocean passage had fallen off 4,200,000 bushels in the last week and that the crop reports from Argentina were construed as bullish. On an advance in prices, however, general commission house selling developed, and despite indications that the sales were chiefly to realize profits, the market underwent a material set-back. Opening quotations, unchanged to 1 cent higher, new style, December 157 to 157 1-2, and May 150 1-4 to 151, were followed by a drop to 155 3-4 for December and 149 3-8 for May.

Corn and oats swayed in sympathy with the action of wheat. After opening at 1-8c to 5-8c advance, December 77 1-2 to 77 7-8, the corn market receded all around to below Saturdays finish.

Oats started unchanged to 1-4c higher, December 38 7-8. Later, all months showed a slight loss.

Good Volume In Mine Trading Showed Mixed Trend

TORONTO, Nov. 16.— (Canadian Press.—With Argonaut, Goldale, Kirkland Lake, and Beaver absorbing the bulk of the trading, the market on the Standard Mining Exchange this morning showed a mixed trend. The volume of trading was fairly heavy. Kirkland Lake was sold up to 90, but eased from this mark to 86 1-4, at the noon close, a gain of two and a quarter points. Goldale advanced one at 29 and Beaver a half point at 54, but Argonaut closed a point lower at 14 1-2. Hollinger advanced 30, while Teck Hughes eased two at 212.

Many Small Declines In Trading At Toronto

TORONTO, Nov. 16.—(Canadian Press). — With a fair volume of trading taking place, the market on the Toronto Stock Exchange this morning showed no fixed tendency, but fractional declines were numerous. Smelters continued the leader. It was sold down to 153½ during the morning, but recovered to 155 1-8 at the close, a net decline of five-eighths.

Twin City was marked down three quarters and Atlantic Sugar one and a half points. Canada Steamships Preferred and Canadian Canners Common each gained a point and a quarter, and Imperial Bank a point at 210. The mines were strong, Hollinger advancing 30 cents to 16.90, and Dome 35 to 16.35.

HAWKESVILLE MAN BELIEVED DROWNED

Bert Ludwig Has Been Missing Since Early This Morning.

KITCHENER, Nov. 16 (Canadian Press) — Missing since early this morning, Bert Ludwig, aged 25, of Hawkesville, near here, is believed to have been swept to his death over the dam at that place. Ludwig left his home to visit his traps across the Conestog river and was last seen rowing a small boat. Owing to the recent heavy rains, the river is high and it is feared the strong current caused him to lose control of his craft.

POLICE COURT FOR RECKLESS DRIVERS

Frequency of Motor Accidents Leads Chief to Threaten Legal Action.

The great number of automobile accidents the total of which reached twelve during the weekend, has led Chief Newhall to a decision to bring the parties up in court on charges of reckless driving.

Collisions are becoming too common and are reported from even outlying corners, said the chief, while the C.P.R. gates at George street have been broken twice in three days by the same motorist.

He promises further offenders a visit to the Police Court and says that the slippery roads of the present time do not give an excuse, but are a reason for driving more carefully than ever.

MAJORITY FOR GOVERNMENT 21

Bruce Holds 48 Out of 75 Seats in Australian House.

MINISTERS RETURN.

MELBOURNE, Nov. 16 (Canadian Press).—Late returns show the government of Prime Minister Stanley Melbourne Bruce has been returned in the Federal general election in the House of representatives and a working majority in the Senate.

They gave the Government 48 seats of a total of 75 in the House of Representatives and 27 to the Labor party. This result will give the government a majority of 21 in the new parliament.

The election passed off quietly. All the ministers of the Government were stated to have been returned and former Premier William M. Hughes was re-elected in North Sydney.

Around The City.

When Victor Gilmour, of Campbellcroft, was driving his car north on George street on Sunday at 5.00 p.m., he collided with J. A. Tedford, of Wolseley street. Damage was done to a running board and a front bumper. Mr. Tedford acknowledged that he was at fault and would pay the damages. At the time of the accident it was raining very hard and the pavement was slippery.

The fire brigade received two calls on Saturday afternoon, one at 5.35 p.m., to 105 Auburn street, and the other at 6.15 p.m. to 531 Reid street. Both were chimney fires and no damage resulted in either case.

The film version of Scott's Lady of the Lake was shown at the local Y.M.C.A. on Saturday, 140 boys being present.

STREET LIGHTING SYSTEM CHANGED

On Friday night the core of a magnetite transformer at the substation blew out and certain changes were made necessary in the district supplied by it. By Saturday night the change had been effected and as there were lights Friday night there was no very noticeable lack of illumination.

The substitutions were made on George Street from MacDonnel to Smith and on Charlotte from Bethune to Monaghan Road. Where before there was a lamp at each interesection, there is now an additional light in the middle of the block so that the decrease to 600 candle power is not so noticeable. W. G. Henderson of the Utilities Commission is of the opinion that the substitute system is giving better service than the original, as the gloomy section between the intersections are lighted and the street presents a more uniform appearance at night.

IN MEMORIAM.

CLARK — In loving memory of my dear Father, Thomas Clark, who died November 16, 1921:

A precious one from us has gone,
A voice we loved is stilled,
His place is vacant in our home,
Which never can be filled,
Oft we sit and think of him,
And our hearts are sad with pain;
Oh, this world would be a heaven
Could we hear his voice again.

—Ever remembered by his loving Daughter and Son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Crouter.

IN MEMORIAM.

CLARK — In loving memory of my dear Grandfather, Thomas Clark, who died November 16, 1921:

Four years have gone since that sad day,
God called the one we loved away;
Forget him, no, we never will,
For in our hearts we love him still.
The blow was great, the shock severe,
We little thought his death so near.
And to the grave not far away,
Just four years ago to-day.
Remembrance is a golden chain,
Death tries to break, but all in vain,
To have to love and then to part,
Is the greatest sorrow of one's heart.

—Ever remembered by his granddaughters, grandson, Mrs. C. Harris and Violet, and Newton Downer

MEIGHEN ACCUSES LIBERALS OF FALSELY REPRESENTING HIM IN QUEBEC AS DRIVING SONS TO WAR

Conservative Leader Says Methods of Opponents in Recent Elections Most Dishonest and Dangerous in the Dominion's History.

GUEST AT HAMILTON BANQUET.

Quotes Quebec Premier's Utterance Blaming Meighen For Filling Cemeteries of Flanders With 60,000 Canadians,

HAMILTON, Ont., Nov. 17 (Canadian Press).—"I do not speak the language of resentment or of bitterness, I speak only the language of truth when I say that never in the history of elections in this Dominion has a great party stooped to methods at once so dishonest and so dangerous as did the Liberal party in the late campaign in the Province of Quebec," declared Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen, Conservative leader, speaking at a banquet given here last night by the Wentworth Conservative Association, in honor of Gordon O. Wilson, member-elect for Wentworth.

While the Prime Minister, stated Mr. Meighen, "was talking unity in English-speaking Canada, and was presenting himself as its only true guardian and apostle, his lieutenants were adopting every means known to the platform speaker or the pamphleteer to stir up all the old war animosities and to conjure new fears and new hostilities in the minds of the good people of Quebec." As evidence of this assertion, Mr. Meighen read a newspaper extract quoting Premier Taschereau, of Quebec, as having declared at a meeting in that province, near the close of the campaign, "that Mr. Meighen is the man of conscription, that it was he who sent our men to fight in Flanders Fields."

"New wars," continued Mr. Meighen, in dealing further with the campaign in Quebec, "were prophesied and were declared to be part of the programme of the Conservative party. A war with Turkey, indeed, was to come right away if the Conservative party were returned."

Gross Misrepresentation.

"Do not conclude from all this," emphasized Mr. Meighen, "that the people of Quebec are arrayed in sentiment against the rest of Canada, do not even conclude that there is any lack of fidelity there to British connection because these things were done. These were only plays, these were only phantasies conjured up by political leaders in order to mislead the people and gain an election verdict." The Province of Quebec had voted "against a gross misrepresentation of both our principles and our policy."

Declaring his belief that if the Empire were threatened and Canada again in danger that the Dominion would arise to respond as it did in 1914, Mr. Meighen felt that "in future it will be best for all that before a Government takes a step so momentous as the despatch of troops, the will of the people should be known."

Mr. Meighen in the course of his speech declared that

"The great object of the Conservative party in the late campaign was to obtain from the people of Canada in every province a decisive verdict on the fiscal issue. To this end, we concentrated our efforts. I am glad to say that in a large measure we succeeded. Canada has suffered severely, from the uncertain-

LIGHT VOTE IN THE FAR NORTH

Many Trappers Had Heard Little About Recent Elections.

NOT INTERESTED.

PEACE RIVER, Alta., Nov. 17 (Canadian Press) — Louis Bourassa, mail carrier, arrived here Sunday afternoon with eleven ballot boxes. The reports having arrived at Fort Vermilion on the night of October 28 and therefore was unable to deliver the ballot boxes to May River poll 290; Red River poll 289; John Dore Prairie poll 288; Stinking Lake poll 282. He was delayed by having to leave his motor boat at Carcajou point and drift in a row-boat down through the ice to La Crate Portage where he got horses and went overland into Vermilion. Leaving Vermilion on November 1, on the up-trip he was forced to use packhorses and come on the north side of the river until he reached Battle River, where he secured a team and sleighs, making the entire trip overland owing to the dangerous condition of the river. As was anticipated a very light poll was cast in the north due to several hundred voters being out on their trap lines while many others refused to take advantage of their franchise, not being interested in the election as they had heard very little about it. Two polls are still to be heard heard from. These are poll 278 Battle River on the Peace and Poll 280, Buffalo Prarie.

ATTACKS REPORT.

Dr. T. W. H. YOUNG
City M.O.H., who denies the truth of statements made by Dr. Sutton.

Tale Of Endurance Through Struggles Is Told By Sole Survivir Of Crew Of Overturned Boat

HALIFAX, Nov. 17 (Canadian Press)—But for the stamina and endurance of a 19 year old Bay City, Michigan boy, C. Taylor, engineer of the U. S. Coast Guard cutter, Morrill, the story of how eight members of the crew of that steamer went to their death amid the darkness and storm in Shelburne Harbor last night, would never have been told.

Soon after their sail boat left short for the ship anchored five miles out, the frail craft capsized and one by one the seamen lost their grip of the overturned boat and went down. Young Taylor and another man, J. R. Shea, 23, kept hold for three hours until they felt the down-hung mast strike bottom. They then decided to try to swim to shore. Shea gave out after a few strokes and then came the hardest time of all for Taylor. Shea in his dying struggle, grabbed Taylor and the latter felt himself being dragged down. Shea was done for, however, and as his numb fingers released he disappeared and Taylor was left free to struggle on towards shore. After a supreme effort he reached rocks and was washed against them, bruised and exhausted. He was finally able to scramble up through the bushes and after walking some distance his cries were heard by a small boy who took him to his home where he was put to bed. The nine men came ashore to bring a sick man to the hospital but he was found not to be seriously ill and was being returned to the Morrill when death overtook the whole party with the exception of Taylor.

'Barefaced Collection Untruths' Says Dr. Young of Score Card On Health Made by Dr. Sutton

Board of Health Discusses Bomb-shell Dropped By District Medical Officer Yesterday—City M.O.H. Challenges Veracity of Findings Reported.

"STATEMENTS ALL OVERDRAWN."

Chairman Will Arrange Special Meeting To Thresh Out Accusation of Inefficiency — Fireworks Develop in Wordy Duel Between Officers.

That the statements in the report made public yesterday by Dr. N. H. Sutton, District Medical Health Officer, were overdrawn and misrepresented, and that the majority had no basis in fact, were the declarations made at this morning's meeting of the Board of Health by Dr. T. W. H. Young, City Medical Officer of Health. He scorned to reply to such a "barefaced collection of untruths," Dr. Young asserted, adding that the purport of the score sheet and statements was a direct reflection on the city.

Up till a day or so ago, he said, there was not a single case of any communicable disease in the city, and gave that as an evidence of health work well done. In the majority of conclusions, Dr. Sutton had no instances to give, Dr. Young declared, and in several scorings admitted that his marks had been faulty, Dr. Young said that the percentages were not made up of actual cases, but were the results of his (Dr. Sutton's) personal conclusions.

M. McIntyre, chairman of the Board, states that he will consider arranging for a subsequent meeting at which the matter may be thoroughly threshed out.

Dr. Sutton Present.

Dr. Sutton reviewed the salient points of his score sheet. Regarding communicable disease suppression and prevention, he said:

"What effort is made to trace the source of diseases originating in the city? Recently there were two deaths from diphtheria—such a thing is a black mark on the health department of any city. One case arose September 10; there was no investigation of the family and there were no swabs taken at the time. Later swabs were taken by a private doctor but that is work of the medical heath officer. Do you wonder that when no steps are taken to trace the source of such diseases that I grave a marking of five out of eighteen?

No Education.

As regards educating the public, the Board of Health does nothing. If attendance is poor at meetings which outside agencies promote, it is because the public has not been properly instructed. Very important use should be made of the vital statistics, but there are many of these reports which are not available to the public. There is no co-ordination of the Board of Health with kindred organizations, and those who have phoned to the M.O.H. for information have been discouraged ——"

"That," said Dr. Young, "is a deliberate falsehood."

"It is not a falsehood," continued Dr. Sutton. "I know the names of a number of people who have been discouraged by you when requesting vital information."

"Give me their names," demanded Dr. Young. "Give me one name if you can."

Ignoring the request, Dr. Sutton continued: "It should not have been necessary for the Kiwanis and kindred clubs to take a census of the city to find out the underprivileged or crippled children. They should be able to get that information from the Health Board. Does the Board — does the oldest member on that board—recall ever advancing to the help of other organizations? It is the co-ordination of these agencies which is very valuable in order to prevent overlapping. Concurrent disinfection is, as far as the Board of Health is concerned, left as a private matter. In control of the water supplies, the Board need not worry, for that matter is taken care of for them. But do you know how many wells there are within the city limits which supply water for drinking purposes?

Chairman—"No."

Board Should Know.

Dr. Sutton—"Well, why don't you? Regarding the control of the milk supply, have you any knowledge concerning the number of tubercular cows supplying unpasteurized milk to Peterboro people? There is no record of the cases of bovine tuberculosis. While pasteurized milk is recognized as the only safe form the Board of Health has chosen to dodge the issue."

"One day I went into the Sanitary Office in search of some records as to the details of a diphtheria case. I was told that the provisions of the

'Petting' Is a Disease That Attacks Feeble-minded Men

CLAREMONT, Calif., November 17. — Canadian Press. — "Petting" is a disease that attacks feeble minded young men on dark nights. Girls who engage in the practice do so only as a matter of form.

Delegates to the annual conference of the Intercollegiate Women's Association meeting here, disposed of the petting evil thus by placing all the blame on the men. The conference was of the opinion that "petting" was the result of "false impressions."

PETERBOROUGH BECK MEMORIAL OBJECTIVE IS PLACED AT $10,000

Province Wide Drive To Be Made Next Week To Fund Sanatorium.

SERVICE TO POOR.

Since Opening Doors the Institution Has Treated 3,833 Patients.

Peterboro was committed last night, in the Chamber of Commerce, to a campaign with the purpose of raising $10,000 as a Beck Memorial Endowment to be used in the maintenance of the Queen Alexandra Sanatorium, which was founded by Sir Adam Beck.

Arthur C. Carty, of London, and B. F. Mulholland, of Toronto, presented the appeal before a number of interested people, including His Worship Mayor Turner, and after a lengthy consideration of the facts it was decided to enter into the work. An objection which carried some weight was the fact that at the same time the churches will be making their drives for increased objectives and the success of the memorial funding would be materially affected.

Mr. Carty presepted a stirring address and ably depicted the need for such an institution. The Sanatorium, he said, was a means toward providing relief for those suffering from the white plague. It was not intended as a military institution, although its services were available for that purpose. From the time of opening the doors to September of this year, 3,833 people had received treatment and 36 per cent. of those were unable to pay anything. Arrangements are made so that the members of the staff do not know who pay, and are therefore unable to discriminate in administering to their patients.

Specialist Treatment.

Service has attained a very advanced stage, said Mr. Carty, and there are several specialist branches. There are also installed the lung collapsing treatment and all the processes of X-ray treatment. A research laboratory is among the most effective of the departments. Sir Adam wished to eradicate tuberculosis, and to that end made provisions for the study of the disease. The funds subscribed will carry on the research work and aid in the ultimate prevention of the plague.

While Sir Adam lived there were no financial problems, as, out of his

Catholic Or Jew Should Be Nominee For President

NEW YORK, Nov. 17.—(United Press.)—To do away with the "miserable spirit of intolerance which has grown up in the land," one of America's major political parties should nominate for president either a Catholic or a Jew, former Ambassador James W. Gerard told a meeting of the Jewish Tribune Forum. Gerard blamed the Pilgrim Fathers for the inception of intolerance and said that discrimination and hatred against the Jew was brought by Central European immigrants. "The present intolerance is commercial jealousy," Gerard said.

CANADA IS NOW PROMISED LAND IN BRITISH MIND

Agent General For Ontario Says Influx Should Be Encouraged.

HAS ATTRACTIONS.

Immigration Policies Should Be Interprovincial, He Says.

WINNIPEG, Nov. 17 (Canadian Press).—"Since the war, Canada has become the land of promise in the minds of the British masses, and it is our duty to encourage a steady influx of desirable settlers and to sell our opportunities to people to seek to better themselves." This was the opinion advanced by W. C. Noxon, Agent General for Ontario in London, England, in extending the discussion of immigration at last night's session.

"Our greatest attraction to British migration is proximity, easy ability to return home; our greatest handicap is cold, but it is generally recognized that Canada's vast resources and capacity for trade offers unlimited opportunities. The people are there and we can get them," Mr. Noxon declared, "but any immigration policies should be interprovincial and the head of the administration should have the co-operation as an executive of the premiers or their appointees from each province."

Bootleggers Only People To Take Advantage Of Offer

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Nov. 17. United Press. — J. B. Madden, Deputy Prohibition Commissioner for Illinois, authorized a local newspaper to ask its readers to report to him the names of bootleggers.

The first day's mail under the plan brought Madden the names of every minister, banker and city office holder in Springfield.

The Prohibition Commissioner believes the bootleggers took liberal advantage of the offer.

EIGHT OF CREW OF COAST GUARD WERE DROWNED

Sailboat Capsized in Shelburne Harbor and Sailors Were Drowned.

ONE REACHED SHORE.

U. S. Cutter Morrill Was on Way to Boston From Detroit at Time.

SHELBURNE, N.S., Nov. 17 (Canadian Press)—Eight members of the crew of the United States coast guard cutter Morrill perished in the storm lashed waters of the harbor here last evening when the 26 foot sail boat in which they were returning to their ship capsized half a mile from here. One man, C. Taylor, engineer, second class, managed to reach shore three hours after the accident. The Morrill, which was enroute from the Great Lakes to Boston to lay up for the winter, had been lying off Sandy Point five miles from here for several days and nine members of the crew had been on shore leave.

Efforts to notify the ship of the tragedy by signal failed and because the Morrill was lying in such turbulent waters that no small boat could put out to her, news did not reach Commander Williams until several hours after the drowning when a wireless message telephoned to Halifax had been relayed via Camperdown and Cape Sable.

DETROIT, Nov. 17 (Canadian Press) — The coast guard cutter Morrill left Detroit, October 5, for Boston. For many years the vessel served on the Great Lakes and was stationed in the Detroit River here but this fall was ordered to Boston, where she is scheduled to become part of the coast guard fleet combatting rum running.

BODIES RECOVERED.

SHELBURNE, N.S., November 27, Canadian Press. — The bodies of seven of the eight men of the United States coast guard cutter Merril, drowned last night when their small boat capsized, were recovered this morning.

Six Men and Three Women Held on Fifteen Charges.

HAD EXPLOSIVES.

WINDSOR, Ont., Nov. 17.—(Canadian Press)—Fifteen charges were filed Monday in Magistrate Gundy's court at Windsor against six men and three women, arrested ten days ago there on suspicion of being members of a gang of blackmailers and bandits. Frank Sherbo, 329 Ann Street, faces charges of conspiracy to rob, possessing explosives and having offensive weapons; Frank Frustaglio, 500 Mercer Street, having offensive weapons and vagrancy; Raffaelo Vossio, 3101 Elmwood Avenue, Detroit, conspiring to rob and having offensive weapons; Albert Dasagno, Niagara Falls, Ont., having offensive weapons; Nicholas Ross, 319 Wyandotte Street East, assaulting and robbing Jacaelvine, of Windsor, of $265; Tony Montillo, 1209 Mercer Street, assault and robbery and vagrancy; Mary and Peggy Smith, 319 Wyandotte Street East, and Margaret Ross, same address, vagrancy. Bail was refused by Magistrate Gundy on recommendation of Crown Attorney James Hallam, who asked that trial of all the cases be held November 23. Pleas of not guilty were entered by the accused.

HOTEL BAR ROOM GUTTED BY FIRE ABOUT MIDNIGHT

American Hotel Blaze Was Confined to Bar-room By Firemen.

MAN RESCUED.

Firemen Brought Guest Down Ladder From Third Floor Window.

Considerable damage was caused by a fire which completely gutted the barroom of the American Hotel, Hunter street, this morning, shortly after midnight. The fire was first noticed by the bar-tender, who sleeps in a room immediately over the bar. He awoke coughing from the smoke which filled the building, and immediately set about warning the guests. When the fire brigade arrived it was thought that everybody was out of the building, but the firemen discovered a man in one of the rooms on the third floor. Assistant Chief Ward, Lieutenant Archie McBride, and Firemen Archie McDonald, brought the man to the ground by means of the fire department's ladder which they had erected against the buliding. The chief said it had all the appearance of being a bad fire and that they considered themselves fortunate in being able to confine it to the bar room. He said that 35 gallons of chemicals were used on the fire before it was extinguished.

HEAVY GLASS CAGE SAVED TELLER'S LIFE

Holdup Man Fired as Clerk Dropped, But Bullet Was Deflected.

DETROIT, Nov. 17 (Canadian Press)—Bullet-proof glass saved not only several thousand dollars for the Monterey Avenue branch of the American State Bank yesterday, but also saved the life of Clarence Bossow, a book-keeper, when a trio of robbers attempted to hold up the bank. The men, travelling in a sport model automobile, entered the bank and separated, one going to the teller's window, where Bossow was stationed, one to the window of Eddy the branch manager, and one staying near the janitor, who was sweeping near the door.

The man at Bossow's window asked for a dollar's worth of pennies, and as the book-keeper started to count them out, he swung a gun above the counter with the words "Put 'em up." At the same time the second robber drew a sawed-off shot gun from his overcoat and backed the janitor into a corner. Bossow, instead of following orders, dropped and pressed the alarm buttons, one of which sounded a big gong outside the door. The robber fired as Bossow started to drop, but the bullet struck the glass, which is three-quarters of an inch thick and bullet proof. The gong's uproar frightened them and they ran.

WORLD'S GRANARY BULGING WITH CROP 300,000,000 BUS. WHEAT MORE THAN 1924

Production in 32 Countries in Northern Hemisphere Estimated at 2,953,000,000 Bushels— Canada's Big Surplus.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17 (Canadian Press)—A world wheat crop of 300,000,000 bushels in excess of last year's crop was forecast by the Agriculture Department yesterday on the basis of estimates received up to November 12.

"Wheat production in 32 countries of the Northern Hemisphere," the department's announcement said, "is nearly 300,000,000 bushels more than last year, being 2,953,000,000 bushels compared with 2,684,000,000 bushels in 1924."

The output in the Southern Hemisphere, it added, is still somewhat uncertain, with indications for a crop about the same as last year.

The Canadian crop was placed at 422,000,000 bushels, compared with a previous estimate of 302,000,000 bushels and last year's harvest of 262,000,000. The statement estimated that "there should be available for export and carry-over from the Canadian crop this year, somewhat more than 300,000,000 bushels."

FRENCH OPPOSE MOVE AGAINST UNDER SEA BOAT

Are Willing to Join Conference to Limit Subs, But Not to Abolish Them.

CHEAP AND EFFECTIVE.

Not as Many Sub Accidents as Plane and Auto Mishaps.

By A. L. BRADFORD
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

PARIS, Nov. 17.—(United Press)—France looks with little favor on the British campaign to abolish submarines.

While a Marine Minister official indicated to-day, France would be ready to participate in a conference to discuss limitation of the weapon, he made it clear that France regarded the submarine as the "soul" of the French naval system — a weapon effective but cheap "for a poor nation."

"The French Government," said the marine spokesman, "holds that the question of abolition of the submarine has not yet been brought up between the governments. If there is a desire to restrict submarines, there should be convoked a conference similar to the Washington Disarmament Conference, to discuss the problem.

"The submarine is certainly the soul of a poor nation. France is limited in surface craft by the Washington Conference, and is further limited by her financial situation. France must consider the necessity of protecting her coasts.

"And the submarine is a weapon of war. Before abolishing weapons, one must first definitely abolish war."

FAVORED BY BRITISH.

LONDON, Nov. 17.—(Canadian Press).—The movement for the abolition of the submarine is attracting much sympathetic attention in the press and political quarters and among the general public. The question was the general topic of conversation yesterday in the lobbies of Parliament, where everybody agreed that the abolition was wholly desirable if all the chief powers would act simultaneously.

BALDWIN PLANS PROTECTION OF NEW INDUSTRIES

No Information on Tariff Proposals Available Until Committee Reports.

PARLIAMENT OPENS.

J. H. Thomas Asks For Explanation of the Charteris Incident.

LONDON, Nov. 17.—(Canadian Press).—The first day's sitting of the House of Commons provided no surprises. Winston Churchill, Chancellor of the Exchequer, announced that he considered the debt arrangement made with M. Caillaux, the former French Finance Minister, still effective.

Premier Baldwin declared it was the Government's intention to introduce a bill to put into effect the recommendations of the various committees which have inquired into the claims of several industries for import duties under the Safeguarding of Industries Act, but gave no information on the subject contenting himself with stating that no action was possible until the findings of the committees were made public.

Sir Philip Cunliffe-Lister, president of the Board of Trade, detailed the various inquiries afoot relating to wrapping and packing paper, brooms and brushes, enameled hollow ware, cutlery and worsted tissues, in addition to gloves, gas mantles and aluminimum hollow

OWNER CLAIMS STOLEN AUTO

Seeks Possession of Car Without Payment Under Quebec Law.

IN SUPREME COURT.

OTTAWA, Nov. 17.—(Canadian Press).— Possession of a large sedan, stolen in Syracuse and found in possession of a party in Montreal, is sought in an appeal heard Monday in the Supreme Court of Canada in the case of Grossman vs. Barrett. The former seeks possession of the car without reimbursing the purchase price paid.

The general rule in the Province of Quebec is that the sale of a thing which does not belong to the seller is null, under the civil code. The respondent, Barrett, pleaded an exception, however, contained in Article 1489 of the code, namely, that the automobile in question had been bought in good faith from a dealer in similar articles; and that, consequently, he had a right to the payment of the purchase price before being dispossessed. The appellent, Grossman, pleaded that the automobile in question was not bought from a dealer in similar articles, or that if it was, it was not purchased in good faith.

In the Quebec courts, the Court of Appeal reversed the judgment of the trial judge upon the ground that the respondent, Barrett, was in good faith. Judgment was reserved here Monday, after argument.

HURON ELECTION RECOUNT ENDED

More Than 300 Ballots Disputed and May Be Rejected.

"PROG" MAJORITY.

GODERICH, Ont., Nov. 17. — (Canadian Press).—Continued Monday before Judge F. N. Lewis, the argument on disputed ballots in the recount of the North Huron Federal election was heard concluding the case, but the judge's decision remains unannounced as yet.

Appearing on behalf of George Spotton, Conservative candidate, were Dudley Holmes, of Wingham, and Mr. Dennison, of Toronto, while R. V. Anston, of Wingham, and Mr. Barron, formerly judge of Perth County, appeared for J. W. King, Progressive candidate. After lengthy arguments, the case hinged on the action of the judge in counting ballots on which still remained counter foils that should have been removed by the deputy returning officer, Mr. Dennison intimated that legal action might be taken against the negligent D.R.O.'s.

The count as announced by the returning officer was: J. W. King, Progressive, 5,342; George Spotton, Conservative, 5,173, giving King 169 majority, but over 300 ballots are disputed, which, if thrown out, would give the Conservative a majority.

Tells of quick relief to aching, swollen joints

RELIEVED PAIN AND SWELLING OVERNIGHT

Long-standing case of rheumatism helped in a few hours

After having suffered with rheumatism for years, and tried all kinds of remedies in vain, thousands of people have at last found a way to get quick, sure relief.

"I have been a sufferer from rheumatism for years," writes one woman from Washington, D. C. "At times my hands are terribly swollen. Sloan's always gives me relief in a very short time. I have tried other liniments, but nothing equals Sloan's."

The marvelous effectiveness of Sloan's is due to its stimulating effect upon the circulation. Straight to the sick, aching tissues, it sends a healing tide of fresh new blood — clears out rheumatism germs—kills pain.

So pleasant and clean to use, too. You don't even have to rub. Just pat it on gently and you will get immediate results. All druggists—35 cents.

TORONTO, Nov. 17. — (Canadian Press.)—The market was generally strong on the Standard Mining Exchange this morning, with trading fairly heavy and Con West Dome Lake, Argonaut and Teck Hughes the active leaders.

Consolidated West Dome, of which 64,000 shares were traded in, sold two points higher at 14 1-3, Argonaut strengthened fractionally, and Teck Hughes closed the morning a point lower. Lake Shore advanced four, Premier three and Vipond and Keeley one point, while the silver leader, Mining Corporation, sold five higher and Castle Tretheway advanced two.

Rust In Argentine Wheat Sends Price Up At Chicago

CHICAGO, Nov. 17.—(Canadian Press.)— Word that black rust is starting in Argentina led to an early advance to-day in the value of wheat. Reports at hand said the very wet and extremely hot, weather in Northern Argentina was as dry, cool weather is needed to prevent crop damage. Besides, Buenos Aires advices were that threshing returns from the northern zone averaged only three to six bushels an acre. Opening prices, unchanged to 1c. higher new style, December $1.55 to $1.55 1-2 and May $1.49 1-2 to $1.49 3-4 were followed by something of a sag, but then by fresh upturn with May touching 150 1-2.

Corn and oats were easier as a result of better weather conditions in the corn belt. After opening at 1-8 to 1-2c. lower, December 76 7-8 to 77 1-2, Corn underwent a further decline that carried December down to 76. Oats started unchanged to 1-8 and 1-4 higher, December 38 7-8 and later showed a slight setback all around. Provisions were responsive to lower quotations on hogs.

Heavy Volume Of Trading But Trend Was Uncertain

TORONTO, November 17. Canadian Press. — Transactions on the Toronto Stock Exchange this morning reached fairly heavy volume but the trend was uncertain, and various declines were recorded. Smelters was the outstanding stock, opening at an overnight loss of 3½ points at 150, and selling down to 149. Recovery set in however and it closed the morning at 151 3-4, a net loss of 1 3-4 points. Brazilian was another weak spot being sold at 75¼, a loss of 1¼ points. Atlantic Sugar was a point lower at 29. Commerce, leader in the active bank section, strengthened ½ point at 223½. British Columbia Fishing and British Empire Steel second preferred were fractionally stronger.

JUVENILE BAND.

Salvation Army Temple Was Scene of Splendid Concert.

A good musical programme was put on in the Salvation Army Temple last night by the Juvenile Band, under the direction of Com. A. Smith. Mr. R. C. Braund ably acted as chairman, and also expressed his pleasure at being asked to do so. He himself is very much interested in boy and girls and was delighted to have such a fine band in his Sunday school. The programme consisted of marches and selections by the band, vocal solo by Mrs. M. Shadgettfi and recitation by Mrs. John Cunningham, cornet duet by Bramwell Smith and Gordon Braund, piano duet by Ernest Braund and Gerald Routley; sextette by Stanley Peryer, Fred Perrer, Harry James, Garth Braund, Ronnie Routley and Eldon Braund; chime solos by Bandsman Barton and two selections by the scout orchestra. Sergt. R. C. Braund commended Com. Smith on the splendid programme rendered. A good crowd was present and was very appreciative.

Left Home to Roam; Came Back to Die

"The bravest battle that ever was fought!
Shall I tell you where and when?
On the maps of the world you'll find it not—
'Tis fought by the mothers of men.

"No marshalling troops, no bivouac song,
No banner to gleam and wave;
But, Oh! their battles they last, they last,
From babyhood to the grave."

"From babyhood to the grave." When Edward John Scully was a baby, his mother held him in her arms. She watched over him, cared for him, saw him grow to young manhood and then she bade him good-bye. He went away, eighteen years ago. Once, four years later, he came back home at Christmas time, the homecoming time of the year, and then he went away again. For fourteen long years, she heard nothing of him. Whether he was living or dead, she did not know. No echo of his passing came back from chance visitors to the cities where he might have strayed and no hint of his well being drifted home to the mother heart, waiting and longing and yearning for a sign from the wandering boy.

Then, illness laid its hold upon him. He had visited many cities in his footloose days. Work and amusement and light hearted companions had held him until he grew sick and then he thought of home. Death had set its seal on his forehead. There was no hope for him of any further earthly lingering. Then his thoughts turned back. From the hospital where he lay in the big city surrounded by strangers with a black-skinned doctor ministering to his wants, he sent out a last passionate cry for the mother and father he had left behind. To the police of Peterboro came the telegram from the hospital authorities, telling them of the request of a patient, John Scully, for news of his people at home. And to the mother who had waited through weary years came the sick boy to linger for less than three days and to die in the arms of the woman who had borne him.

"John, why didn't you write, or why didn't you come home long ago?" his mother asked him as he lay dying in the home of his own people. "Mother, I was coming to you all the time," he said.

Vincent Scully went to Detroit last week to bring his brother home. "Tell me one thing, are father and mother still alive? If they are dead, I don't want to go home." But his parents were still alive, and so John Edward Scully came home. "And father and mother were there with me all the way home," he said. To his feverish imagination, turning once more to the parents he had longed for, they stood at the foot of his stretcher through the long way home. He arrived here on Sunday night and died this morning at nine o'clock.

"I often wonder how you can stand the trouble you have to go through," said the grey-haired mother in her low, patient voice. "They say to those who haven't any children, 'If they don't make you laugh, they won't make you cry.' But there is one thing I am thankful for, I know where his poor body is. But he doesn't look like himself. He is wasted to nothing but bones."

Five of her ten children have gone the way of the Dread Valley. There was Matthew, who died at twenty-one, the eldest of the family, and Bridget, a girl of twenty-two. And there was Joe and Bob, who died in France in the Great War. Wives and children they had, those two, but they enlisted with Canadian forces and marched away, to come back no more. Joe was killed by a shell just a week before the Armistice was signed, and on the eve of his departure for England on leave. A white cross somewhere in France marks the resting place of this son, but Bob, killed at Passchendaale, has no earthly burial plot. The third son, John Edward, goes on Thursday to lie beside his brother and sister in St. Peter's Cemetery. Less than a short week his mother had him with her until he had to let him go again forever. John Edward was in his thirty-ninth year, and had been an employee at one time of the local packing plant, taking up this work again during his stay in the United States.

"I often wonder what mothers live for. I didn't want any of them to go away, but you might as well try to turn the water back as stop a man when he wants to go wandering away." Joe came to tell her of his desire to enlist when she was "fixing the henhouse," and she dropped whatever she had in her hand and began to cry. So he soothed her then and helped her with her task. "But when he took the notion again, he didn't come to tell me at the henhouse. He went up and came back with the suit on him."

And the needs of men for ministration from these women who suffer and long for them in after years was well illustrated by the cry of her little grandson, running in to "grandma," to ask her to fix his boots for him, and the patient look in the blue eyes as she promised to do it in just a minute.

Living in Peterboro are the parents of John Edward Scully, Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Scully, 346 Aylmer street, with three sisters and two brothers, Mrs. M. Conway, Mrs. E. Rex, Mrs. Wm. Phelan, William and Vincent.

The funeral will take place from St. Peter's Cathedral at nine o'clock on Thursday morning, to St. Peter's Cemetery.

HATTIE TO GET A YEAR'S WORK BELOW GROUND

Definite plans have at last been consumated which will assure the Hattie Gold property at least a year's steady development and, if operations are satisfactory, sufficient additional funds for a 200-ton mill.

Montreal and New York capital is providing the necessar funds, and the property will be operated under lease, similar to that first given to American Smelting and Refining Co., by the British America Mines Operating Company, of which P. J. Demetre, of Montreal, is treasurer. This company has authorized capital of a million dollars in hundred dollar shares. Of the total $100,000 are being sold to finance the Hattie development. The Hattie will reopen as soon as the $100,000 is in the British America treasury, probably around September 15th. This sum will ensure uninterrupted operation of the property and development, including lateral work down to the 400-foot level and across to the north shaft.

Resumption of operations on the Hattie on a steady scale will be watched with considerable interest in mining circles. Hattie's market history has been one of vicissitude after vicissitude, and mine development has suffered in consequence, the property never having had a real chance. Notwithstanding this competent engineers unconnected with the company who have visited the property, admit it to be a really likely prospect in view of ore already opened. Its thorough development therefore will be an important step forward in the Painkiller Lake camp. Under the terms of the lease the British America bear all expenses, and Hattie receives 45 cent. of earnings.

Financing Hattie Mine.

Announcement is made that P. G. Demetre, local capitalist and theatre owner, has become interested in British America Mines Operating Co., Ltd., and accepted the position of treasurer. It has undertaken to operate under 40 year lease the Hattie Gold Mines Ltd. of Northern Ontario. The operating company is obligated to spend not less than $100,000 in further development work and to erect a mill with a capacity of not less than 200 tons daily. Mr. Demetre has just completed the sale of his interest in the race track at Niagara Falls to James R. Nelson and associates of New York. Mr. Nelson is a Montrealer and was for many years connected with the C.P.R.

SCHOOL COUNCIL.

Rev. J. W. Gordon Elected President at Annual Meeting.

The annual meeting of the Home and School Council was held in the Chamber of Commerce on Friday evening, November 13. The following officers were elected for the next year

Hon. President—Mr. E. B. Fowler.
President—Rev. J. W. Gordon.
1st Vice-President—Mrs. W. R. Morris.
2nd Vice-President—Mrs. A. Mowat.
Sec-Treasurer—Mr. G. Mattice.

Rev. J. Douglas Paterson gave an address, taking as his title, "Our Gift to the New Age," and brought out the idea that educaton was not only to give a child an amount of useful knowledge or to fit him to hold a certain position but to prepare him to hold an honorable position in all the varying changes which the coming half century may produce.

The training necessary to hold a position thirty years ago would not be asufficient for present day needs, but the broad outlook would make a man efficient to adapt himself to any circumstances. The changes we can expect may be political, social or economic, but there will always be a demand for the trained man whose training has not narrowed his outlook but enlarged his sphere of usefulness. He urged parents and teachers to give the children a vision of what has to be done—to study the child's line of development and to save money for his sake.

Mrs. W. R. Morris also spoke briefly on the Collegiate situation, pointing out the disadvantages under which the students and teachers in the main school carry on their work, as well as those in the Commercial Department in the old South Central School.

In the Main School there are four First Forms and each September, practically the whole of each form has to be passed on the Second Forms, owing to the large number passing the Entrance Examinations and seeking admission to the Collegiate. The pupils in the Second Forms are also pushed into the Third Forms, whether ready for the work or not. This means classes made up of pupils who have covered the work in the previous term and those who have not, a most unsatisfactory condition for teachers and pupils.

The condition of things in the South Central School is deplorable. This school has no system of ventilation; overcrowded classes; no heat in corridors, though five furnaces are kept going night and day The pupils in this school—210—have no share in the community activities of the Main School and an artificial division is made between the two groups, which is most unfortunate.

The Board of Education has unanimously agreed upon a Vocational and Academic extension of the Collegiate, which would accommodate city and county pupils and permit a variety of courses, suited to the various groups of students. The Council has been requested to provide the money for this extension but refuses to take the responsibility of doing so. The Board of Education can request that a by-law be put to the property owners asking for the necessary amount. This by-law would be voted on by only 38 per cent of the people, although the other 62 per cent pay taxes indirectly in their rent. As this does not seem a fair way of dealing with a proposition that concerns all the people and as the Council postesses the power to grant the amount needed, the Board of Education will continue to request the Council to accept the responsibility placed upon them by the Municpal Act. The Board of Education is entirely willing to face its responsibility in pushing this matter.

Mrs. Morris suggested that those interesting in securing this school make this clear to the Aldermen.

DEFINITE MOVE FOR REVOLUTION IS SEEN IN SYRIA

Is Developing From Hitherto Sporadic Druse Outbreaks.

FRENCH ARE BLAMED.

Both Druses and Foreigners Condemn Actions of Mandatory Rulers.

BEIRUT, Nov. 17. — (Canadian Press). — A definite revolutionary movement appears to be developing from the hitherto sporadic outbreaks against the French. Druse leaders accuse the French authorities of trying to foment a religious war. Europeans here condemn the alleged action of the French in arming the Christian civilians along the Mediterranean coast and sending them inland to oppose the Druse advance, as tending to inflame the old religious prejudices. The insurgents, whose strength is estimated at from 20,000 to 25,000, have established headquarters at Hasbeiya, 38 miles west of Damascus. The French have received only 1,000 troops in reinforcements in the last fortnight, and there is considerable nervousness in the foreign colonies. People continue to arrive in Beirut from Damascus, where another uprising is feared.

SOLUTION OF YESTERDAY'S CROSSWORD PUZZLE.

The other day, we were talking about a couple of birds which were doing a jazzy kind of bark-dance. It is rather interesting, so we will talk some more about it.

One of the birds was Pug-nosed Bill, the pet Nuthatch which had been coming to the old ladies' garden for suet on the trunk of an old maple tree. The other bird which could not be seen without field glasses, unless at very close range, was a brown creeper.

Most folks know Pug-nosed Bill, the Nuthatch, with his short tail, white breast, and general grey color, especially as he has a long and slightly pug-nosed or up-slanting bill. He can land on a tree trunk in more different ways than an aerobat can land in the net when he misses his trick and falls, but Pug-nose never misses. He can run around a tree by side shifts. He can go up a tree tail first.

The brown creeper is so well disguised in his mottled coat, that he could not be seen by the old ladies, from their veranda, and, until I loaned them my field glasses, they had missed the peculiar tree trunk work of this bird.

"There must be a bird or squirrel ghost on or near that suet" said the old ladies, "for Pug-nose is dancing around that bark as though he were avoiding something we cannot see."

They were right. Mr. Brown Creeper was moving about that tree, trying to get some suet too. Soon, with the field glasses, Brown Creeper's special trick could be seen. He lands at the base of a tree and works up, in a spiral twist fashion. His track up is cork screw like. In this way he never misses a bug.

Well, here's what happened: Neither Pug-nosed Bill, nor Brown Creeper would let the other fellow have a peck at the suet, so along comes Mr. Red Squirrel. Now, Mr. Red Squirrel hates Pug-nosed Bill, because Bill steals Mr. Squirrel's seeds, so there was a regular fight, with squirrel hair flying. Neither of the birds got any suet that morning. First they could not agree and then they united to fight the squirrel, but too late.

Simple Application That Dissolves Blackheads

No more squeezing and pinching to get rid of those unsightly blemishes, blackheads. There is one simple, safe, and sure way to get them out, and that is to dissolve them. Get about two ounces of peroxine powder from your druggist—sprinkle a little on a hot, wet cloth—rub briskly over the blackheads for a few seconds—wash the parts, and every blackhead will be gone. Pinching and squeezing out blackheads make larger pores, and you cannot get all of the blackheads out this way—while this simple application and peroxine powder and water dissolves every particle of them and leaves the skin and pores in their natural condition.

THE AUSTRALIAN ELECTION.

The outstanding feature of the Australian election, which has returned the Bruce Government to power, is that the verdict must be looked upon as an unmistakable reverse for Communism.

The extremists have been defeated in a straight fight with the forces representing the principles of constitutional government, and on that result the people of Canada, happily free from Communistic activity, except in very isolated cases, will congratulate their Australian brethren.

The Commonwealth has had an overdose of revolutionary activity and propaganda, Socialistic leaders being much too successful in imposing their will upon those in authority.

As a result Australia has experienced disturbances from which Canada has been free—the seamen's strike is one of the latest examples—and the success of Premier Bruce in taking a firm stand against Communism in the election just finished and in securing a victory on that platform is a matter for rejoicing in all parts of the British Empire.

It is to be hoped that the effect of the setback will be permanently felt.

STREET NAME SIGNS.

It is a matter for much satisfaction that at last the erection of street name signs has been commenced in Peterboro.

For years the Examiner has urged that this very important matter should be taken in hand, in the interest not only of our own citizens but of the thousands of visitors who enter the city limits each year.

Strangers have had the greatest difficulty, especially in the winter, when the street names stamped in the concrete sidewalks were buried out of sight by the snow, in finding their way to any particular street or in being certain that they had reached the right street even when it was finally located.

The old signs have long since disappeared, with the exception perhaps of three or four hardy survivors.

The new signs are easily read, and care is being taken to have them located in the best possible position so that motorists will have little trouble in locating themselves.

The work should be extended as soon as is practicable to cover every street in Peterboro, for there are thoroughfares here that even citizens of long residence would have difficulty in naming.

PETERBORO WILL DO IT.

That Peterboro will do its full share in the campaign to raise $500,000 as a Sir Adam Beck memorial endowment for the Queen Alexandra Sanitarium the Examiner has not the slightest doubt.

The service rendered by Sir Adam Beck on behalf of the people of this Province in connection with the Hydro-electric movement, his loving interest in the Queen Alexandra Sanitorium, which he founded and practically supported, and the knowledge that it was his deathbed wish that the institution should be endowed, combine to constitute a challenge to the people of this and all other communities in Ontario.

The campaign has already received the endorsation of prominent Ontario citizens, including the leaders of the political parties, and the views of these citizens are well expressed in the words of W. E. N. Sinclair, K.C., Ontario Liberal leader, who declares that he considers it "a privilege and an honour to be associated with a Provincial move to do honour where honour is due," and adds that "the people of Ontario of all political faiths ought to enlist unitedly behind this really worthwhile project of commemorating the memory of one who has done more for his Province, particularly for the people, than we at this short distance can appreciate."

This city can be trusted to raise the quota that is asked of Peterboro, for here, as everywhere in Ontario, the unselfish devotion of Sir Adam Beck to the idea to which he gave all his genius and energy is appreciated by all classes in the community.

THE OTTAWA POWER SCHEME.

Mr. W. P. Chapman, M.E.I.C., whose suggestion in regard to power development on the Ottawa River created considerable interest when published in the Examiner a few days ago, in a second letter to this paper declares that the proposition is one wholly for the Hydro-Electric Power Commission of Ontario to develop, although that body, he fancies, has perhaps been more interested in the larger plan for the development of the St. Lawrence River.

In regard to the latter scheme Mr. Chapman says: "Upon the merits of the two schemes for quick and permanent results to Canadians I have no doubts whatever, and with much of our surplus grain passing through the Pacific gateway, I do not believe that a further heavy burden upon the people is warranted for the deepening of the St. Lawrence River."

Mr. Chapman makes out a strong case in favour of his proposal, which he says has much to commend it.

It is free of international complications and can be carried out in sections as the market for power may demand.

Incidentally, the writer suggests that possibly a point for development 50 or 60 miles west of Pembroke, near Rockcliffe, would better equalize the distribution, as that immediate area is not likely to require the volume of power as may be reasonably expected will develop directly south and east of Pembroke.

"It would seem to be a most desirable proposition for the city of Peterboro," declares Mr. Chapman, "offering advantages that could not come from a St. Lawrence development."

EQUALIZING INCOMES.

A reader inexpert in finance or economics but sincerely concerned about the inequalities of living comfort asks if some compromise could not make the poor richer with no appreciable reduction in the standards of the rich? He looks at spectacular fortunes like those of a Ford or a Rockefeller, and thinks how much they could do to raise the level of his limited circle of acquaintance. His fallacy is that he does not cover enough territory.

If by some geological change in the earth's surface the entire Rocky Mountain range, together with the Appalachians, the Alleghanies, and the Adirondacks could be leveled and distributed over the surface of the United States, the altitude would not be measurable in feet; it would be a matter of inches. The same is true of the Swiss Alps and every other mountain range in Europe, if every valley could be exalted, and every mountain and hill made low, as the Psalmist says. The difference there would be even less—perhaps five inches all told.

The reason is that the eye instantly sees the mountain range, but, with a range of vision of not more than twelve miles at sea level, cannot realize the extend of the plain. One of the ablest statisticians in the world, Sir Josiah Stamp, says, in this week's Barron's, that if all the incomes in Great Britain were put into a common pool and redistributed, the increase would not amount to five shillings a week. Congressmen see the large salaries of railroad presidents and base great hopes for the shipper and the worker on the reduction of managemen texpenses.

But it was shown in these columns a very few years ago that if every salary paid by the Pennsylvania Railroad were scaled down to $3,000 a year and the balance distributed among the wage earners, the result would be a doubtful addition of ten cents a week for each of them. There is no such reserve fund as our kindly-hearted reader supposes. The large incomes, moreover, are not greatly spent upon the comfort of the owners of them. They are used in production, with far more effect in raising the general standard of comfort than they would have if they were distributed in the way he suggests. They would cease to have any employment usefulness at all.

It is not difficult to see here the basic absurdity of the Communist and even the Socialist attitude. Theirs is a counsel of desperation, a suggested equality of all others the least to be desired. Without knowledge they instinctively feel that it is impossible to make every man rich. All they can offer is the dreadful alternative of an equality of destitution.—Wall St. Journal.

ANTI-PROHIBITION MOVES.

Mr. William E. Johnson, the prominent advocate of prohibition, better known as "Pussyfoot," has issued a warning to the drys of the United States that an international organization to secure the repeal of prohibition in their country has been formed, is now at work, and will be behind a campaign to be launched at Washington early next year.

There are other evidences that an effort to secure a repeal of the prohibition amendment is contemplated and is even in operation in a preliminary way. Europeans in the liquor trade may sympathize with and even give support to it; but they will not be its strength.

That is centred in the United States itself.

Prohibition was adopted in that country as the immediate result of an organized effort of a vigorous minority of the population copiously supplied with funds.

First Congress, then the Legislatures of the States, succumbed to the arguments that were presented by the crusaders; and almost before the country knew, the constitution had been amended.

Then the Volstead law was passed to make the amendment effective.

A measure less drastic might have provoked less antagonism; but that is a matter on which differences of opinion exist.

From the first prohibition was treated as a joke.

The mass of the people did not desire that it should be enforced.

There has been notime when alcoholic beverages could not be freely obtained by those who had the price to pay for it.

Sometimes the stuff was wholesome; often it was a vile concoction.

"Rum rows" were established off the coast near large centres of population and maintained in spite of the efforts of officials whose duty it was to make the law effective.

Canada became a source of supply for a large section of the country from Maine to Oregon.

The West Indies developed a great transport trade with the Southern States.

Illicit stills operated in the country itself, and provided for the market preparations that on being diluted became palatable alcoholic beverages.

In places at least it was fashionable to break the law, and there seems justification for the allegation that the illicit tipplers include many young women.

The facts were notorious, and may even have been broadcasted by the active opponents of the law, with the purpose of bringing it into contempt.

Some who were appointed to enforce the law were not efficient, and their honesty has been impugned.

Some months ago a change was made in the direction of the enforcement service, but seemingly without bringing about better conditions.

Those who dislike the law find much to urge in their contention that it is not enforceable.

By dwelling on its failures they spread the idea that it was a mistake to enact it.

They can claim, too, that it has not tended to decrease crime, which in its more violent forms is now attracting even world-wide notice.

The movement that threatens prohibition in the United States is domestic in its origin and its operations, and needs no guidance from abroad.

The task it has undertaken, though, is a great one.

To amend the constitution of the United States is a job that takes years and the consent of a majority of the States as well as of Congress.—Montreal Gazette.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

Peterboro will do its full share in helping to put over the Beck Memorial Endowment.

Winnipeg school children are being supplied with a Communist paper urging them to be Bolsheviki in deed as well as in word. An excursion to Russia for those responsible for its printing would seem to be in order.

Gustave Evanturel, member-elect for Prescott, says he ran as a straight Liberal, has been all his life a straight Liberal, was elected by the Liberals of Prescott, and is a loyal and most devoted supporter of the King Government. All of which seems to indicate that he is not going to be of much assistance to Mr. Meighen.

The fate of the boa constrictor in the Hamburg Municipal Zoo, who was choked trying to swallow itself, is a timely warning to politicians who may be tempted to try the same process.

YARDMASTER KILLED.

James French, T.T.C. Employee, Was Crushed in Car Barn.

TORONTO, Nov. 16 (Canadian Press).—While at work in the Toronto Transportation Commission car barns this morning, James French, yardmaster, aged 52, was badly crushed when a station car backed up. He was rushed to hospital but died shortly after being admitted.

A THOUGHT.

Think not that God's delays are God's denials. Time proves His wisdom, and faith and patience are the evidence of your worthiness of His bounty.

It is the commonplace human, who recognizes no difference between himself and those on a higher plane; ignorant unappreciation is the very thing that keeps him commonplace.

Patience to wait, fortitude to endure, these truly are ingredients of character necessary to success and without which, true happiness is utterly impossible.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE.

NOT FARMING.

To the Editor of The Examiner:—

Sir,—The item in The Examiner giving a circumstantial account of my removal to the North country has given me a lot of trouble and perhaps you will allow me to correct it.

It was true insofar as that I have bought land at Ketchecoma Lake with a view to selling it again, not to farming it.

J. H. BURNHAM.

THE SCHOOL QUESTION

To the Editor of the Examiner:—

Sir,—The important point in the recent dispute in which the ratepayers are vitally interested is the year-to-date cost per pupil.

But this is precisely what the correspondence failed to make clear, as only an estimated amount of annual operating expense was used, and this amount was divided by one correspondent by the total October enrolment, and by another correspondent by that of January, all of which is surely unscientific. A cost per pupil based upon actual year-to-date operating expense, and year-to-date average enrolment would be better.

And this should be easily ascertained from the books.

But for comparison with other places the annual figures should be used.

Failing the immediate publication of the former, let us hope that promptly after the end of the year the ratepayers will be favored with the latter.

Let there be light!

J. C. SMITH.

CRUELTY TO ANIMALS

To the Editor of Examiner:—

The Ontario Society for Prevention of Cruelty to Animals (S.P.V.A.) have issued a few practical suggestions which if followed will eliminate a lot of cruelty caused through ignorance.

1. Do not leave small animals at summer resorts. It is an act of cruelty and punishable by law.

2. Horses are faithful animals and are entitled by law to care and comfort. Do not check too high. If blinders are worn see to it that they do not fit too closely or too loosely striking the eye. Lameness should be investigated and corrected. Do not leave horses unblanketed on cold days.

3. Filthy unventilated stables are a disgrace to the owner and a cause of disease and suffering to the horse. Keep stables clean well-ventilated and well-bedded.

4. All animals need plenty of water. Working horses require a great deal and to withhold it is cruelty of the meanest type. Thirst is torture and water is cheap.

5. The motorist who deliberately runs over a small animal is a menace to the community and should be treated as such. Deliberate cruelty is usually an accompaniment of the more unpleasant forms of mental defectiveness. Should an unavoidable accident occur the motorist who drives on without stopping to aid the injured animal is guilty of an offence and liable to punishment. All motorists break the law who do not stop when striking an animal. (This is very strictly enforced in City of Toronto.)

6. Overloading—Humane officers and citizens must be guided by common sense. When a horse or team is seen to be straining or sweating and the whip is being freely used the driver should be arrested or summoned. The condition of the horess together with condition of roads should be considered.

7. Many worthy people believe performing animals are trained by kindness. A few may be so trained but most of them are trained by torture. This has been proved by those who have investigated. Do not purchase tickets for trained animal shows. This is the only effectual way at present to stop these horrors.

8. Keep only neutered male cats for pets. If a female cat is kept destroy female kittens at birth except those required for breeding. This is the only cure for the stray and back alley cat problem and will stop inhumane persons from dropping unwanted kittens thus causing them to be homeless for which there is a heavy penalty.

9. Report cases of cruelty to your local Society or the Ont. S.P.C.A.-Headquarters Toronto and aid will be rendered.

Pepall Had Arranged Loan For Lighting Equipment Supplied Smith.

TORONTO, Nov. 17 (Canadian Press).—Andrew H. Pepall was placed on the witness stand when the hearing of four charges of theft, false pretences and bribery, laid against him following Provincial bond transactions, was resumed before Mr. Justice Wright and a jury today. Pepall declared that he had first become acquainted with Peter Smith, former Provincial Treasurer of Ontario, in 1919, when he had installed a lighting equipment on Smith's farm near Stratford, Ont., and for this installation Smith had borrowed money. He declared that his family and Smith's had become close friends, he had arranged the loan for Smith and in February, 1919, he said, Smith owed him $6,036.

CONFUSION IN PUBLIC MIND ON DEEP WATERWAY

Opinion in Both Countries Has Not Yet Reached State of Crystalization.

CONTINENTAL ASSET.

Canada Is Majority Shareholder in St. Lawrence, Says General Mitchell.

WINNIPEG, Nov. 17 (Canadian Press).—"The present situation with respect to the St. Lawrence Waterway project finds citizens and public bodies in both countries in some confusion," declared Brig.-Gen. C. H. Mitchell, of the Toronto Board of Trade, at the Dominion Conference of Boards of Trade and Chambers of Commerce here.

"It can hardly be said," he continued, "that public opinion in either country has yet reached a state of crystallization, but it appears to be not far off."

General Mitchell said that the St. Lawren River and Great Lakes were union assets of the North American Continent, assets of which Canada was a majority shareholder, and as such had a grave responsibility in the administration and conservation of their resources.

"Commercially," said General Mitchell, "free and adequate access from the sea to the interior of the country has unlimited possibilities."

OTTAWA, Nov. 17.—(Canadian Press).—Because of good behaviour during 4 years and 9 months of his confinement in Portsmouth Penitentiary, John Doughty, former secretary to Ambrose Small, missing Toronto millionaire, will probably obtain his liberty early in the New Year. The exact date of his release is indefinite.

KIWANIANS HOLD FIRST REHEARSAL

Director Compliments Members and Ladies on Ability and Aptitude.

The dining-room of the old Oriental Hotel rang last night with the choruses of "Bob White," the musical comedy to be presented on November 27 and 28 by the Kiwanis Club of Peterboro. Si. Perkins, the professional director, arrived after a little jump from Virginia, and got right into his stride. He is authority for the statement that never before has he met so good a turnout for the first rehearsal of a production, and never in all his coaching for "Bob White" has he had a cast that fell so naturally into the music or took so well to the roles allotted. In fact, Si. sees a treat in store for the people of Peterborough.

About a hundred Kiwanians and ladies were on deck for the opening chorus — the men managed by Charlie Cook and the ladies shepherded by Mrs. J. A. McKone. Difficult though the choruses are, the parts were well taken, and the musical obstacles were hurdled with an ease that shows the talent of the performers.

The rehearsals will continue daily until the night of the first performance.

SWEEPING ATTACK ON LOCARNO PACT BY GERMAN NATIONALISTS

Menace to Germany's Future Declares Party Convention in Berlin.

LUTHER TO SIGN.

BERLIN, Nov. 17.—(Canadian Press).—Ruthless opposition to the treaties of Locarno on the ground that they fail to take into account Germany's vital interests is demanded in a resolution by the Nationalist convention yesterday. Two thousand delegates were in attendance.

Charging that the government's commitments at Locarno offer no guarantee against sanctions or invasion, preclude the revision of the Eastern frontiers and fail clearly to define Germany's obligations under Article XVI of the League convenant, the German reactionaries demand the adjusting of "the work of Locarno which is a menace to Germany's future and freedom."

The resolution brands as wholly insufficient the allies' concessions in the Rhineland especially as no alleviation is promised for the second and third zones and no date is fixed for a plebiscite in the Saar Basin.

The Nationalists are also dissatisfied with the Government's alleged failure to emphasize Germany's renunciation of war guilt.

Parliamentary circles learn that the Government's plans to sign the Locarno Treaties December 1 will be carried out. Dr. Luther will present them to the Reichstaf next Monday, where a comfortable majority is assured.

The cabinet yesterday discussed the note of the Ambassadors' Council, which will be made public today. This relates to the evacuation of the Cologne zone.

The womans' parachute jumping record—32,000 feet—is held by Miss Helen Barger, a San Diego stenographer.

OXFORD GRADUATE HELD AS VAGRANT

University Men Destitute in Sarnia Jail.

SARNIA, Nov. 17. — (Canadian Press).—Adversity has overtaken Roland Sewell, a graduate of Oxford University, in his old age. Sewell is in the county jail facing a charge of vagrancy instituted because he was becoming a problem to the authorities. Sewell had for weeks made his home in a discarded apple pit on a farm near Brigden. A few boards formed the canopy of his underground home, and he had subsisted largely on the kindness of the neighborhood farmers. He has been in this district for five or six years, is of an unusually cultured nature, and at one time, it is understood, contributed widely read articles to leading eastern newspapers. He is 65 years of age.

TORONTO, Nov. 16.—(Canadian Press). — His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales won his first prize at the Royal Winter Fair this morning, when his Shorthorn bull, King of the Fairs, from the Royal Alberta ranch, won first money in the aged Shorthorn bull class. There was keen competition in the seven animals exhibited. Amos and Black of Moffat, Ont., were second, and Max Walton Farms, Ohio, were third.

Safeguard their Eyes

CORRECT Lighting is always easy on the eyes. Buying Edison Mazda Lamps, to keep your children's eyes alert, is much better than buying glasses to correct damage caused by wrong lighting.

Electric light has become the least expensive of all modern comforts. The average family pays less for light than for cream for the breakfast coffee.

For your portable and floor lamps use all white Edison Mazda Lamps. Incidentally, you will be surprised at the wonderful difference an extra floor or table lamp will make to your living room.

Near you is an Edison Mazda Lamp Agent. There you can obtain real information about good lighting.

FADED GLORY OF OLD VICTORIAN CHAMBER BEING RESTORED FOR SIGNING OF LOCARNO TREATIES

Reception Room in Foreign Office Witnessed Many Brillian Functions.

ELABORATE PLANS.

German Representatives Will Be Entertained By King and Queen.

LONDON, Nov. 17.—(Canadian Press).—The old reception room of the Foreign Office, which has not been used except as an office for stenographers during the war since England was ruled by Queen Victoria, will be the scene of the signing on December 1 of the Locarno treaties.

This typically Victorian chamber, elaborately decorated in the formal style of the Victorian period and buried in the heart of the Foreign Office building, is being polished and cleaned for the occasion. A squad of decorators is restoring the former regal lustre to the faded walls and laying a new floor, for the old floor suffered cruelly from ink spots and furniture castors during the war days.

This room with a banquet hall and ballroom were the scenes of most of the diplomatic functions before the reign of Edward VII. Here Englishmen entertained distinguished visitors from many lands, including the former Kaiser. Since Queen Victoria died, however, entertainments have been fewer and have been transferred elsewhere and the scenes of those brilliant Victorian gatherings are now merely offices.

The delegates of the signatory powers and a small party of other distinguished men and press representatives will assemble at 11:15 o'clock the morning of December 1, and the fixing of official signatures will begin at once. It is estimated that this will require at least two hours. Afterwards the delegates and their wives will be given luncheon at the Guild Hall by the Lord Mayor of London. In the evening the King and Queen will give a banquet for the visitors at Buckingham Palace, and this will be the first time since 1910 that representatives of Germany will be officially entertained in this intimate way by the British sovereign.

DEFEAT OF LABOR IN AUSTRALIA DUE TO SUSPICION OF RED TINGE

Failed Repudiate Charges of Support From Communists, Hughes Says.

BRUCE SECURE.

MELBOURNE, Australia, Nov. 17.—(Canadian Press Cable via Reuters).—The government's position last night as a result of the election on Saturday was practically unchanged from that reported during the day. The Senate returns were still inconclusive but the latest indication was that the government would secure the great majority of the vacant seats in the Senate.

Victoria, Queensland and Tasmania are likely to return all the government candidates to the Senate.

Matthew Charlton, the Labor leader, admitted in an interview that it now appeared that the Government would have a majority in both the House of Representatives and in the Senate. The forces arrayed against the Labor party in the election campaign, Mr. Charlton said, had caused the people to believe that questions of constitutional government and law and order were involved, while the press propaganda influenced the people who were unable to attend the meetings and hear both sides of the political questions.

Former Premier W. M. Hughes declares that the Labor party has been defeated in the federal election because the people have a deep-rooted belief that the Labor party is in the toils of the communists. Mr. Hughes, who himself was prominently identified with the Labor party some years ago, say that if Leader Charlton had repudiated the charges made in the election campaign that the Labor party was working with the communists, and had placed the question beyond a doubt with the electors, he has no doubt but that the Labor party would have secured a majority of the votes on Saturday.

NEGLIGENCE OF DRIVER CAUSED TRAFFIC DEATH

Harry Jackson, of Coboconk, Fined $100 For Fenelon Falls Accident.

BOY WAS KILLED.

Dangerous Condition of Road Surface Not Taken Into Account.

LINDSAY, Nov. 17.—A judgement of interest to automobilists has just been delivered by His Honor Judge Swayze, of Lindsay in a County Court action. It is the case of King vs Harry Jackson, of Coboconk. The accused was charged with criminal negligence while in charge of a motor vehicle in the village of Fenelon Falls, the indictment being that he "did" by wanton driving and wilful neglect do bodily harm to James Bedford Brandon. As a result of this bodily harm, the said James Bedford Brandon, a boy of about five years of age, died a few hours after he was injured."

It appears that while the accused was driving his car two boys started to cross the street in front of it. The accused sounded his horn and one of the boys turned back, the other, the deceased, kept on. The horn was again sounded and the accused turned the car into the curb, to avoid striking the deceased. The front wheels went over the curb, the hind ones striking the boy. The accused claimed he applied the brakes when he first noticed the boy and before he sounded the horn, that he was not going more than fifteen miles an hour when he first saw deceased, and when sixty feet from deceased, not more than eight miles an hour.

The Crown did not controvert any of the statements of the defence as to circumstances in connection with the boy's death, and did not allege any criminal negligence in respect of the conduct of the accused, the rate of speed being within the limit and not subject to objection under ordinary conditions, and accused efforts to avoid the accident embracing all that could be expected to be done.

Care Required

What the Crown alleged was that the condition of the road or pavement at the time of the accident was most unusual and most dangerous for travel with a motor vehicle, thus requiring extraordinary care and precautions.

His Honor held that the Crown's contentions in regard to the condition of the roadway were well founded—the conditions made car driving very dangerous. The driver should regulate his speed and have his car under absolute control, if that were possible under such conditions. "A car that skidded 90 feet, struck the curb as this one did, turned around and slipped backward 30 feet before stopping, as the evidence shows, was not under control," said the judge.

The speed limit in Fenelon Falls, being fixed at 25 miles an hour, does not, His Honor held, imply a license to run to that limit regardless of conditions, nor does the observation of the limit exonerate a driver under all circumstances from liability either civil or criminal.

Was Fined $100

The accused was found guilty, as charged in the indictment, and a fine of $100 and costs was imposed. In fixing the penalty the Judge took into consideration the past record of the accused, his conduct at the time of the accident, which would have been apparently blameless.

Gospel of Prohibition Must Be Preached to Rest of World.

AMERICA'S DUTY.

W.C.T.U. Informed That the "Situation is Serious" Under Volstead Law.

DETROIT, Mich., Nov. 17.—(Canadian Press).—The challenge of an unfinished task was emphasized by National Law Enforcement Officers, and State and National Temperance leaders addressing the Fifty-first Annual Convention of the National Women's Christian Temperance Union Monday.

General Lincoln C. Andrews, chief of the Federal Prohibition forces, Dr. Ernest H. Cherrington, general secretary of the World League Against Alcholism; Rev. Scott McBride, general superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League of American, and others stressed the seriousness of the present situation in this country, the necessity for awakening a national consciousness and inspiring a great and united effort for effective law enforcement.

The purpose of the United States prohibition forces, Dr. Cherrington said, is to take "the gospel of prohibition to the rest of the world."

"We must enlist the moral forces of other countries to bring such pressure on their governments, as will help free our international border of rum-row and smugglers' row which under the protection of foreign flags are seeking to break down our laws and defy the legislation of this nation."

LAKE ERIE GALE SWAMPS BARGES DROWNING FOUR

Convoy Wrenched From Tug and Dashed Against Breakwall.

COMPLETE WRECKS.

Four Lives Lost in Monday's Storm Off Buffalo Harbor.

BUFFALO, N.Y., Nov. 17—(Canadian Press).—Four lives were lost when a fierce gale tore three barges from their tow and dashed them to bits on the breakwall of the Buffalo Harbor early yesterday.

The dead: George Dahl, of Tonawanda, skipper of the barge Jerry V. Petrie.

Mrs. Dahl.

Michael O'Brien of New York, of the barge Annie J. O'Connor.

Victor Jensen, or Kurki, address unknown of the barge Sherman Petrie.

The three barges and the barge Carroll K. West were in tow of the tug Barryton, bound for Buffalo from Cleveland. Lake Erie was lashed by a 70-mile an hour gale which whipped up huge waves, burying the barges time after time and finally snapping the two ropes between the first and second barges.

Wm. Smith, the lone survivor of the barge crew, related that the tow was about seven miles from Buffalo when a particularly heavy blow was encountered. He heard a shot-like noise which told of the parting of the tow line but owing to the pitching of his vessel, the Carroll K. West, it was some time before he was able to communicate this information to the tug. When he finally succeeded, Captain Clark of the Barryton sent out an S.O.S. call to which the Buffalo coastguard crew responded. Three tugs also set out to help locate the lost barges. In the darkness and storm, however, the tugs were not sighted and the three dashed against the breakwall. By morning they had been reduced to match wood.

The storm raged all day with the wind diminishing only slightly and all boats scheduled to sail remained in port.

AGREEMENT MADE IS NOT AFFECTED

LONDON, Nov. 16 (Canadian Press)—Winston Churchill, Chancellor of Exchequer, told the House of Commons that the resignation of M. Caillaux, as French Minister of Finance, does not affect the agreement in principle already reached between Mr. Churchill and M. Caillaux for the settlement of France's debt to Great Britain. The Chancellor said, however, that the resignation had inevitably delayed further discussion of the outstanding conditions to which the agreement was subject.

GROWTH OF CANADA SUBJECT OF SPEECH

Mr. Wearing Addressed the Young Men at "Y" Weekly Supper.

Joseph Wearing gave a very interesting and instructive talk to the young men of the "Y" at their weekly supper last Friday evening. His subject was the "Growth of Canada," and he dealt with it in such an admirable manner as to fill the young men present with pride and hope for Canada.

Mr. Wearing spoke pointedly of Canada's rapid, giant-like strides from a small colony governed from London to a large self-governing nation. He mentioned the fact that Austen Chamberlain, speaking after the Locarno treaty, said he could not bind Canada to that treaty which he, as Britain's representative, had signed. Mr. Wearing illustrated this rapid growth dramatically when he said these changes had all happened during the life time of a remarkably old man who had just died the day before.

The speaker traced Canada's legislative progress through the Quebec Act, the Act of Union, the Constitutional Act, the Rebellion of 1837, Lord Durham's report and finally the British North American Act or Confederation. He spoke glowingly of the wisdom of Lord Durham, the wise and upright young English statesman, who practically gave his life for Canada. Those Fathers of Confederation—Howe, MacDonald and Brown—set aside their absolute difference of opinions and principles and joined together, shoulder to shoulder, to knit the colonies together as the Dominion of Canada, said Mr. Wearing.

J. F. H. Wallace acted as chairman in his own inimitable way and the men joined heartily in peppy songs.

G. H. Roper reports that the boys have lined up a fine array of men to speak at these Friday evening suppers. This week C. H. Rogers of the Peterborough Canoe Company will speak on the "Story of Canoes."

BUSY BEES Y.W.A. SOCIAL EVENING

Presentation Made to Young Lady Who is Leaving Burnbrae.

NEW BUSINESS.

BURNBRAE, Nov. 17.—The Busy Bees, Y.W.A., held a social evening at the home of Miss Irene Thompson on Friday, Nov. 13. The regular monthly programme was given and business discussed. During the evening Miss Dorothy Baker, who is leaving the community, was presented with a ring as a small token of remembrance from her friends and co-workers in the Young Ladies' Organization. During the years that Miss Baker has resided in the Menie district she has endeared herself to a large circle of friends and acquaintances, who regret her departure from their midst.

Mr. Will. Hume is in Toronto this week exhibiting seven head of choice Humeshaugh Ayrshires at the Royal Winter Fair. Mr. Alex. Hume also attended the show for a few days.

Mr. Lorne Hay, who returned on Thanksgiving Day from a trip to Western Canada, is busy renewing acquaintances throughout the district.

Burnbrae people are interested in the new business partnership recently formed in Campbellford, that of Stephens & Clark, flour and feed merchants. Both of these gentlemen are old Burnbrae boys. Chas. Stephens has for a number of years resided in Minneapolis, U. S. A., while Mr. Clark sold his farm on the 7th concession and moved to town some few years ago. Many of their boyhood friends and schoolmates reside here, and they join in wishing Messrs. Stephens and Clark every success in their new venture.

"85 years of age, yet full of energy"—writes one of the hundreds of Wincarnis users who have told us of the wonderful benefits they have derived from Wincarnis. This sturdy old man attributes his present health to the regular daily use of Wincarnis for the last five years.

Before that time he found himself tiring quickly, having sleepless, restless nights, and frequent spells of mental depression—the results of a run-down condition.

Medical research has definitely proved that one of the causes of a run down condition of the body is a shortage of certain mineral elements, including iron, potassium, calcium, sodium and phosphorus, and until a sufficient supply of these minerals is restored to the body, good health is impossible. Wincarnis contains every one of these elements in addition to other health giving ingredients, and in a form in which they are most rapidly absorbed into the blood and carried to every part of the body to be converted into vital force.

Wincarnis has been recommended by over ten thousand physicians in cases of nervousness, anaemia, sleeplessness, and the general debility that accompanies a run down body. For fifty years this strength giver and nerve restorative has brought new life and happiness to weakened men and women.

THRESHING HIT BY SNOW FALL

But Work on Prairies Progressed Rapidly Last Week.

PLOWING DELAYED.

WINNIPEG, Man., Nov. 17.—(Canadian Press).—Threshing has made good progress in the Prairie Provinces during the past week, though carried on under difficulties, owing to snowfalls in some districts and the damp condition of the grain, according to the weekly crop report issued by the Agricultural Department of the Canadian Pacific Railway. While the grain has suffered loss in grade in many areas, states the report, on the whole the situation in this respect is much better than anticipated, considering the lengthy period of unfavorable weather. Very little plowing has been done, and the acreage will be considerably less than usual when the season closes.

Threshing in Saskatchewan, after many delays, is nearing completion, and only about five per cent. of the crop, in scattered districts, remain unthreshed. In Manitoba threshing is ninety per cent. complete, and in Alberta one week of good weather will see all the grain threshed. Most of the grain in Alberta is threshing tough, but the grade and color is showing up remarkably well. All threshing is completed on the Edmonton, Dunvegan and British Columbia railway.

All crops have been harvested in British Columbia, and the root crops have been gathered in under excellent conditions.

The driver of the car escaped unhurt.

ty and haphazard, downward revision of the last four years. These dire consequences had gone to every province. In most provinces of the Dominion we found the Government and government speakers striving desperately to confuse this issue, and to divert the public mind from the result which had flowed from their own drift and folly. In Ontario, they failed; in British Columbia, they failed; in the Maritime Provinces, they failed; only in the Province of Quebec did they succeed. I do not speak the language of resentment or of bitterness, I speak only the language of truth when I say that never in the history of election in this Dominion has a great party stooped to methods at once so dishonest and so dangerous as did the Liberal party in the late campaign in the Province of Quebec.

Taschereau's Statement.

There was indeed much concealed, but sufficient was spoken from the house-tops and thundered in the press to make clear for all time the character of the campaign. I will quote only the utterance of one man, and he a very eminent man, the Prime Minister of Quebec. Speaking on the Island of Orleans on the 26th October, the Hon. Mr. Taschereau used the following words, as quoted in Ie Canada, a Liberal paper, edited by a Liberal member of Parliament, in its issue of the following day

"'In the present contest you have to choose between two men, Mr. King and Mr. Meighen. I do not wish to be lacking in Christian charity, but I believe I am guilty of no wrong when I say that Mr. Meighen is the man of conscription, that it was he who sent our men to fight in Flanders Fields. It is he who by his conscription has filled the cemeteries of Flanders with 60,000 Canadians. Has he grown better since? Has he reformed? Has he had perfect contrition? No.'

"I do not mention the utterances of obscure individuals or of pamphleteers. Those in high authority in the Liberal party harped on the tragedies of war and ascribed all that Canada had suffered to the Conservatives of today. Illustrated sheets were distributed by the thousand, depicting your humble servant as a tyrant and a man-eater, driving the sons of Canada with a whip to be slaughtered in foreign lands.

Beyond Comprehension.

Your humble servant was depicted for example as ready to despatch the sons of Canada to wars all over the world even without the authority of Parliament. How men can find it in their hearts to utter such words passes my comprehension. The Conservative party believes in British connection, and believes in the British Empire, so does the whole of Canada, so does the Province of Quebec. The Conservative Party believes in exerting the whole influence of Canada within the Empire to make sure and ever surer the lasting peace of the world. The Conservative Party believes that within the Empire the security of this Dominion can best be sought, and the Conservative Party believes that the whole of Canada is ready at all times to take every honorable step to make our security certain. This and no more is what we have always said, and what we have always done, this and no more ..

"In the late war, as in every war, the Government had to decide its course and subject the course to Parliament. Never did we think of sending troops from Canada until Parliament had approved our decision. Parliament met on the first day it could be called and gave its unanimous support to participation by this country. Never would any government so much as dream of sending troops beyond our shores unless the authority of Parliament was first obtained. Indeed I would go farther. I do not anticipate that we of this generation will ever be called upon to take part in war again, and I earnestly hope that our children and our children's children may be free from the curse of war, but if ever the time should come when the spectre of 1914 should again appear I believe it would be best, not only that Parliament should be called, but that the decision of the Government which, of course, would have to be given promptly, should be submitted to the judgment of the people at a general election before troops should leave our shores. This would contribute to the unity of our country in the months to come and would enable us best to do our duty. It would not mean delay. Under the stress of war, delay might be fatal. Let me make clear what I mean. The government would have to decide, and decide quickly what was best in the interests of Canada. The Government would have to act on its judgment, but before there was anything in the way of participation involving the despatch of troops, the will of the people of Canada should first be obtained.

Would Respond Again.

I have myself not the slightest fear but that if danger threatened Canada again, this country would respond as it responded in 1914, but I believe in future it will be best for all that before a Government takes a step so momentous as the despatch of troops, the will of the people should be known. Canada wants peace, the whole Empire wants peace, and our policy will be directed to that goal. Never at any time have I spoken words conflicting with the sentiments uttered tonight. I have spoken as I have, just to make clear how unmerited are the allegations which for political purposes have been hurled at my head. I believe the sentiments I have expressed are shared by Canadians in all provinces."

DROP IN POPULATION.

BROCKVILLE, Nov. 17.—(Canadian Press).—Figures presented to the Town Council last night by the Assessor, E. A. Geiger, indicate a population of 9,087, a reduction of 32 when compared with that of last year. At the same time, the assessment has been increased by $85,900 to $8,464,250.

ware, on which the committees had already reported. But he added that it was not in the public interest to publish the result of the inquiries, whether favoring or against duties, until the time came to submit legislation to parliament.

Opposition Attack.

The opposition was prompt in opening its guns on the government. The Prime Minister had moved a resolution, asking that government business have precedence for the remainder of the session. Ramsay MacDonald, the Labor leader opposing the resolution, declared that his party was against any extension of the Safeguard Act, and also demanded from the government the clearing up of its policy in Irak and Mosul, and an explanation relative to the speech of Brigadier-General J. V. Charteris, who had been quoted as saying that the Germans had produced fats in war time from the dead bodies of soldiers, which fact, however, General Charteris denied.

Other members of the opposition heckled the Government, but Mr. Baldwin's motion was carried under closure, 285 to 121.

Feeling Aroused.

In the course of the debate, J. H. Thomas, Laborite, asked whether the government would permit discussion of the Charteris incident because of the feeling it had aroused in America. The Prime Minister replied: "I have not followed that matter but will look into it. If feeling has been aroused it would appear desirable that some statement should be made."

His Honor Judge Swayze pointed out that the accused did what so many auto drivers are daily doing, disregarding the dangerous character of the automobile when brought into operation on the highway—taking chances—assuming their liability to control a car under all circumstances — and not realizing the seriousness of their responsibility in case of accident through carelessness or negligence which they should know to be likely to endanger human life.

WONDERS OF CIVILIZATION FAIL TO THRILL ESKIMOS OF NORTH

Movies, Street Cars and Other City Sights Cause No Excitement.

LIKE TOBACCO.

Smoking Is Only Pleasure of City Man Which Appeals To Them.

MONTREAL, Nov. 17.—(Canadian Press).—Eskimos whose first visit to civiliation does not apparently thrill them, are at present in Montreal. They are four young Eskimo seamen who manned the Jean Revillon, an Arctic fur trading schooner, when she had to be brought to Liverpool, N.S., for overhauling. No sights of the city have caused any surprise to the natives, despite the fact that they have never before seen anything nearer a state of civiliation than the 9 feet high hut in which they live. Captain W. H. M. Robertson of the Revillon has taken them to the movies, on street cars, and shown them all the sights of the modern city.

The only thing that modern man likes to which they have become partial is tobacco, fo rthey smoke Saturday night the Eskimos left Montreal for Pagwa, Ontario, where they will stay for the winter. It will be impossibe to send the boat north before spring, so the natives are being kept at Pagwa until an opportunity occurs in the spring to take them overland to their home at Baker Lake.

TRAIN FALLS TEAM.

Walter Obernesser Takes Charges of Niagara.

HAMILTON, Nov. 17. — Walter Obernesser left Monday morning for Niagara Falls, where he will act as trainer for the Senior O. H. A. team this winter. The Falls club has been negotiating with "Obie" for some time, but he was so busy grooming boxers that it was not until Saturday that he finally decided to accept the position. Howard Mayberry will have charge of the training of the "string" during Walter's absence, but the latter will be on hand any time that any of his boys is in real action. There is not a better man in the country for conditioning athletes than Obernesser, and if the Falls team does not win another title it will not be through lack of condition.

WOLVES AND FOXES PREYING ON GAME

Have Increased in North Ontario and Quebec.

OTTAWA, Ont., Nov. 17.—(Canadian Press).—Reports from hunters who have returned from Northern Ontario and Quebec hunting grounds in the last few days are that wolves and foxes have united in a drive on bird and game life that has reached a very serious stage.

Never were wolves and foxes so plentiful as now, the hunters say. It is not an uncommon thing this year to see specimens of both quite near, which is most unusual. Tracks of the animals are seen frequently. Deer are plentiful, but hard to get and not in good condition for eating where wolves are after them. Hunters agree that the remarkable scarcity of partridge is due to the fox. Some hunters assert that in places where partridge were plentiful in former years, they did not even see one this year.

The cutting of the bounty in Ontario is blamed for the increase in the number of wolves. They have not been harried and hunted as formerly. Hunters think that the larger Ontario bounty should be restored and the Quebec bounty raised to equal it. It is also urged that steps be taken to encourage the park rangers to join in the fight to extinguish the wolves.

CHAPERONES FOR VANCOUVER GIRLS

Chairman of School Board Wants Them Appointed For Girl Scholars.

VANCOUVER, B.C., Nov. 17 (Canadian Press)—Chaperones for the girl students of Vancouver city schools will soon be appointed, if Dr. F. J. Nicholson, chairman of the school board, has his way So far as known, they will be the only officials of their kind in Western Canada.

While Dr. Nicholson does not offer any criticism of the conduct of the school girls of the city, he declares that he sees a need for capable mentors and guides in order that the girls may be safely instructed in hygiene, dress, with special reference to health, comfort, propriety and economy, social conventions and ethics generally.

Under Dr. Nicholson's plan the girls would be taken in small groups for instruction and these classes would not interfere with the general educational programme of the schools.

Questions of employment in summertime; advice along vocational lines and guidance in vocational matters would be given by the women chaperones, or deans. Dr. Nicholson believes that those officials would be of material assistance in social service work and might act as chaperones at school parties and dances.

The Secrets Of Charm

By Lucrezia Bori

The time when cool weather arrives is an excellent time to take stock of your claims to beauty.

The change of seasons, as a rule, affects our complexions more than anything else about our appearance. For this reason, I advise you to give your complexion a close scrutiny in the best light possible. Take your hand-mirror to a window where the light can fall on it over your left shoulder, and don't be afraid to face the facts.

Is your skin smooth and lovely, or are there blemishes which you would like immensely to wipe away?

After the hot Summer weather, many of us are likely to find signs of the touch of Summer on our complexions long after the cool weather has arrived. If this remnant of Summer lingers in touches of tan which have lost their attractiveness, there is no better bleach than:

Lemon juice and Peroxide.

Mix these ingredients in equal parts, and rub the lotion over your skin with a bit of soft absorbent cotton. Do not use it too frequently, as the result may be too drying, but a judicious use of this bleach will help to soften and whiten your skin. It is often wise to use a light application of cold cream or skin food after applying the mixture.

Also, I advise generous use of cold cream for cleansing your skin. For the heat of Summer may have left the sking dry and in need of a bit of oil. Then, too, the air of our steam-heated houses is very drying in its effect on delicate skins, and we need something which will counteract this effect.

When you find a good cold cream which agrees with your complexion, either a cream you have mixed from one of my formulas, or one of the standard creams on the market, do not be afraid to apply it generously when you cleanse your skin. Rub it well into the pores, leave it there a few minutes, then remove it. I advise this treatment at night before you go to bed, as it leaves the pores of your skin free to breathe during the hours you are asleep. Wash your face with clear cold water in the morning.

If you use a skin food for added nourishment, you may apply it several times a week. A good time to do this is before you take a warm bath at night. The heat of the bath will allow the skin food to get well into the pores of your face, then you can wipe the remainder of it off before you go to bed.

BARACA CLASS HELD SOCIAL GATHERINGS

Sing-song on Sunday and Evening Meeting on Monday.

The Baraca Class, the live organization of young men of Murray Street Church, had a musical programme and sing-song after the church service Sunday morning. There were about fifty men present who joined heartily in the hymns to the accompaniment of a splendid orchestra. Francis Sutton, A.T.C.M., was the song leader.

The programme was composed of a violin solo by Mr. Sutton; a fine vocal solo by Miss Trucia Pearson, and a duet by Miss Barr and Mr. Sutton. The programme was followed by refreshments served by the young ladies class.

On Monday evening the same class of young men gathered in the basement hall of the church for their monthly social evening. S. R. Armstrong, city clerk, was the speaker, and he dealt with a subject of which he is very well acquainted "Municipal Government, as it Relates Especially to Peterboro." This talk proved educative as well as interesting to his audience.

A splendid luncheon was served and it was, brightened by peppy songs, led by Graeme Eastewood and accompanied by Cecil Lapp on the organ.

WHY DID YOU BOB?

Question of the Hour Bobs Up Once Again.

It's a lively question — and "Bobbed Hair" is the liveliest serial The Examiner has offered its readers in a long time. Like "The Flapper Wife," it is full of adventure and romance.

An unusual! No one author could have written so entrancing a story, so twenty famous authors collaborated. In this story you have the joint product of a score of the best writers.

"Bobbed Hair" will start in The Examiner on Saturday.

One remarkable feature of the "Guardianship of Infants Act", which has just become effective in Great Britain, is that the mother of an illegitimate child now acquires a legal status, as her consent must be obtained for the marriage of the child.

THE PASSING OF THE "ZIPPER."

Black velvet shoes for evening wear are the very latest thing in footwear circles, and they look extremely attractive. They come in the plain pump, with a very trim cut to the vamp, bound with black satin, or in the high gore pump with trimming of dull mat calf. The "spike" heel, a variation of the Cuban, is used for these pumps, which are said to cling well to the foot of the wearer, and, despite their somewhat expensive price, give long and excellent wear.

To fit the shoe to the personality is the aim of one of the city's retail dealers, who says that the type of pump that will look well on a thin girl, for instance, should never be worn by the girl with a plump ankle.

For strictly evening wear, silver shoes are the most in favor. These are of silver cloth, in a diamond-shaped design, with one strap and a moderately high heel. Next in order come black velvet, satin and patent leather.

For snowy weather, the golosh will again be worn this winter. For comfort and warmth the golosh can't be beaten, apparently, and this is one instance where women appear to be satisfied to subordinate their desire to look well to a consideration of health and comfort. The golosh isn't a strictly beautiful article of apparel. It can hardly be called that. But it is sensible and warm and as long as everyone else wears goloshes, they will be fashionable.

The golosh with the dome fastener that is adjustable will probably be highest in favor this year, as it promises to do away with the ugliness of a gaping upper portion. Two tabs at the top of the golosh have adjustable dome fasteners that can be regulated to any size desired.

The "zipper" that appeared to be such a convenience in the golosh line has lost some of its popularity. It appears that the "zipper" would not stand the pressure of a high heel on the boot inside. When the high heel shot into place, the "zipper's" fastenings flew open, it is said, and it would tolerate only a moderately low heel. This is a matter of regret, as there was something very fascinating abbut the working mechanism of the "zipper" when it was functioning properly.

LARGE ATTENDANCE AT Y.P.L. MEETING

Literary Department Was in Charge of Meeting at Marmora.

MARMORA, Nov. 16.—There was a record attendance at the Young People's League at the United Church on Wednesday evening when the programme was in the hands of the Literary Department. On account of it being Armistice Day, the meeting commenced with the reciting of "In Flanders' Fields" by all standing. Mr. W. Linton gave a very able talk on Martin Luther, in which he sketched the character of the great reformer rather than his part in the Reformation. A duet, "Hold Thou My Hand," was rendered by Mrs. W. A. Sanderson and Mrs. F. Wells.

A debate followed in which it was resolved that the public library is of more benefit to the people of Marmora than the moving pictures. The affirmative side was represented by Misses Jennie Connor and Jean Thomson, while Miss Nellie Williams and Mrs. N. Mitchell took the negative. The three judges appointed gave their verdict in favour of the affirmative. A highly interesting contest brought an entertaining session to a close.

The three church bells tolled and scholars and teachers at the schools paused for two minutes as the hour of remembrance once more came around.

ONCE UPON A TIME — THE PUMPKIN PIE PRINCESS—II — by W. J. ENRIGHT.

OACH NICHOLSON OF THE M.A.A.A. RGES CHANGE IN THE RUGBY CODE

e Interference on the Line Suggested as Aid For Attack.

REVIEWS SEASON.

ONTREAL, November 17 — adian Press — The Gazette in its ting columns to-day, says: anadian Rugby Football Rules been the subject of much criti- recently, Montreal football lead strengthening their objections to t they claim are ominous weak- es in the game, while this fall e of the heads of the game in onto are also advocating the l of a revision.

Coach Nicholson, of the Montreal Four Team, which finished sec- in the league race, is a staunch cate of changes, and it would n that the least Nicholson wants five-yard interference rule to al- as he states, the offensive an or- ized chance against the organiz- defence pitted against it.

Nicholson has gone so far as to e that the Canadian game is a e bit of English Rugby, Ameri- football and soccer, and has lit- that is distinctive in itself He ad- there are some features that are d, the kicking for rouges and the ral passing game, he admires, but chief complaint is that there is chance for team play; that a one- team can beat a squad drilled ombined offensive, and generally can see little chance of improve- t unless a definite step is taken er towards interference or a re- ion to the English code. If it is be at all possible for a team to ance the ball on combination y.

le points out that in the Intercol- ate, McGill in last Saturday's e in Toronto, scored the only chdown made all season b a col- e team from a scrimmage, and y a few more were made from a mmage in the Interprovincial tests this fall.

The English Game.

Nicholson's statement regarding belief in the necessity for a nge in the Canadian game, either ards interference as practised in United States, or the adoption of English style of Rugby, comes as interesting point to many who nessed MacTier Cup game at the Gill campus Saturday afternoon, en the University of New Bruns- k defeated the Montreal English m in a game under the English e. The Collegians from Freder- n gave a display of the English me in the first half of the contest, ich showed the English type of gby at its best. The brilliant pass of the three-quarters of the Mari- es team, their clockwork precis- in snapping the ball from one to ther, the individual brilliance of players, and the initiative they owed both in their lone efforts and m work, gave the 2000 spectators e open Rugby in the first twenty nutes than they have witnessed in ny games under the Canadian le. There was not the same hand- hand type of football which makes nadian Rugby a stirring type of tball which the crowd could ap- eciate. Scrums with the chance y provide as to which side gets ball, are not always popular to lowers of Canadian Rugby, but turday's contest brought to light y by forwards of both sides which s a perfect exhibition of pack rk and which tended to convert ny who previously had seen ill- ined scrums floundering about the ld.

Popular on Pacific.

"In connection with the move to pularize the game here under the glish code, the move made in Cali- rnia in the pre-war days provides interesting point. In the south- stern states around 1910, there de- loped considerable opposition to e American style of football. Stan- rd University, the University of alifornia, and other leading colleges California, decided to adopt the glish game of Rugby. The game took on at once. Competion was keen and big crowds attended the contests. The game developed amazingly and the chief battles became the annual fixtures at Christmas with representative teams from British Columbia, where the English code flourishes almost to the exclusion of Canadian Rugby California teams played off with one another for the right to meet the western Canadians for the final honors on the coast.

Then the war came and the big game became out of the question as British Columbia sent all her footballers overseas, and the game lapsed for the war period.

With the big fixture of the year gone the California teams lacked big competition and were forced to revert to the American code However the short life the English game had there as a major sport established the game and since the war English Rugby has been played at top form by Stanford and University of California students. The annual games with the University of British Columbia 15 are big drawing cards in the Christmas season and the honors in recent years have been well divided. All this despite the competition they meet from the big American football tussles.

"Undoubtedly English Rugby h should benefit from the visit of U. N.B. team last Saturday, with McGill, University of Toronto and city teams in Montreal and Toronto in competition, the nucleus for smart competition is there, and a serious effort by the different teams to field well-coached fifteens will go a long way to add an impetus to the missionary work already done on behalf of Rugby in Eastern Canada.

"Whether the game will outdo Canadian Rugby as at present played is a question, but certainly this season has shown that it is increasing in popularity."

Four Of Princeton Team Are Honor Men In Studies

PRINCETON, N.J., Nov. 17 —Four members of Princeton's championship football team are honor men academically. John Crago, guard, and Bob Hobson, who won his letter in the Harvard game, both seniors, stand high in their class, the latter having attained a first group average last year. Ernie Bartell and Charley Weekes, members of the Class of 1927, are also honor men. The former played in the Harvard game, but Weekes was kept out of both contests by a leg injury sustained in the Swarthmore game.

BOSTON SCHOOLS DEVELOP HOCKEY

Avoid Importing Canadian Stars For Amateur Game.

BOSTON, Mass., Nov. 17.—An attempt to foster ice hockey among the Boston school boys as a means of obviating necessity for importing Canadian stars for the amateur game in this country will be made by the Boston Athletic Association, according to Albert Geiger, chairman of the athletic committee, who left Monday for the A.A.U. convention in Pittsburgh, Pa. The official declared he would attempt to interest the A.A.U. in his plans, which call for the retention of a regular coach to give instruction to any Boston school boy who desires to play. The arena here will be turned over to the school boy sessions on certain days, should the plan go through, he said, and the school boy movement may be made national.

"We have begun all wrong in ice hockey in the United States," Geiger declared. "The bringing of Canadian stars to American teams has undermined our whole system. Giving men jobs and inducing them to come to the States to make up hockey teams is all wrong. The proper method is to teach the youngsters. We at the B.A.A. stand ready to furnish the best ice hockey coach money can obtain, turn over the arena surface to them for practice, put on regular games and even go outside and work on the playgrounds.

"There are lots of troubles in amateur ice hockey. I expect that they will be ironed out at the meeting of the A.A.U. Perhaps we can get the national body to help us make the attempt to teach ice hockey to our youngsters a national movement."

ANOTHER RUGBY PLAYER HURT

MONTREAL, Que., Nov. 17— Another serious accident in rugby football happened to Captain Enright, of the Columbus football team, who was badly injured in an exhibition game here Saturday between Omus and Loyola College. The victim was yesterday lying in the Western Hospital suffering from concussion of the brain and severe bruises. Doctors think he has a good chance of recovery.

LOST TO ONTARIO.

Ontario is to lose another good golf professional. Capt. C. H. Perkins, of the Brantford Golf Club has gone to Vancouver at the request of the Vancouver club to discuss his application for the position there. He is a veteran of the great war, in which he rose from the rank of private to that of captain. A good teacher and one who will be missed by all the golfers in the district.

INSIDE GOLF.

Maker of 61 Golf Champions "Golf's most successful teacher," says "Chick" Evans

By CHESTER HORTON

The use of the mashie calls for several different methods of applying the clubhead to the ball, and in this the mashie differs from the other clubs, which is what makes it the most interesting club in the bag. In short run-up shots the arms and wrists should be stiff — no play in them at all. Also keep the arms snugly close to the body. Many golfers have perhaps observed too that deliberately stabbing the blade into the ground appears to yield a good mashie pitch. This practice is not a bad one at all where the pitch is short, but for longer distances—50 yards or more, the blade should by all means go clear through the ball. It is better, of course, to follow through on even the short ones, but if you get results that satisfy on short pitches by stabbing the blade into the ground keep on doing it. There are things which need not always give way to correct form.

PLAYS GREAT GAME.

Harold Grange, the powerful football player of the Illinois University gave one of the best indiivdual performances in Philadelphia that is found in sport records. At running, dodging, plunging, passing, tackling and directing play he was supreme. He made three of the four touchdowns credited to his team, and he carried the ball thirty-six times for a total of 363 yards, an average of ten yards to each attempt.

RUGBY GOSSIP..

Lou E. Marsh in the Toronto Star says: If Balmy Beach repeat the game they played against Varsity Saturday afternoon down at Scarboro velodrome next Saturday afternoon up at Varsity stadium, Queen's, strong and all as they are, should have a mighty busy afternoon maintaining her place in the sun!

The Polson coached, Reid managed, Dibble boosted squad played high-class rugby in the mud and wind to beat Varsity 16-6, and win the O.R.F.U. senior title.

While Ottawa newspapers are loud in their praises of the Ottawa Senators for their 8-3 victory over the Hamilton Tigers, which gave them the Interprovincial title on Saturday, the visitors also receive a generous share of credit as good losers:

The Citizen said:

"To the Tigers must go the credit for staging one of the best losing performances ever played by any team. They were titleholders up against big odds. The best they could do by winning Saturday's game was to create a tie, and they would still have had to beat Ottawa again before connecting with their third successive Interprovincial title. Added to this was the break in the first minute of the game which gave Ottawas a five-point lead. This "break," although a perfectly executed play on the part of "Irish" Monahan, must have been disheartening to the Tigers. But there was no outward sign of demoralization. Instead, the Yellow and Black jumped into the task of overcoming what proved to be a winning lead, with rare courage. That they were unsuccessful was not because they did not give everything they had, for they went down to defeat with colors flying. It has been said that a good loser is equal to a good winner. Tigers were good losers."

The Journal says:

"For Senators, perhaps the more glamorous game was played by Tubman, but in praising the squire of New Edinburgh, one shouldn't forget his counter part, Joe Miller. Leadley and Batstone have a vogue as two of the great and most perfectly-related running halves in Canadian football. This twain have rivals in Tubman and Miller, whose plays Saturday were perfectly attuned. Wherever Tubby went Miller scampered alongside him ready to receive passes. It was more often the trudging Tubman whose brogans carried him at steam engine gait alongside of the twisting, squirming Miller and took pass after pass which was perfectly timed, to the consternation of awaiting Tiger tacklers, thrown off the scent by Miller's uncanny ability to outguess them."

This is the first season since the Interprovincial union was formed in 1907 that Tigers have finished worse than second in the race, says the Hamilton Spectator. Although they had a chance for the title right up to the last game, the defeat at Ottawa put them in third place with two victories, one tie and three defeats, Montreal finishing second with three victories and a like number of defeats. It is the second time that Ottawa has won the title, the other occasion being in 1909, when they defeated Tigers in a play-off game at Rosedale. The Ottawas lost but one game this season, that being to Argonauts in the game at Toronto. Tigers and Argonauts have each won the championship six times and Montreal twice, so that it was about time the east got another look in. There is no doubt that the Senators deserved the title, for they have played good football all season, and in Tubman and Miller have a pair of half-backs who work well together. But watch the Tigers in 1926. The youngsters on the team benefited greatly by the experience gained this season, and they will be a mighty hard team to beat next year.

Tigers left a splendid impression behind them in Ottawa on Saturday. Football teams, as a rule, have considerable difficulty in securing quarters at the Chateau Laurier, but Tigers were made welcome owing to their previous reputation, and when they checked out, Secretary Chilman was congratulated by the hotel management and thanked for the conduct of the players. The management also intimated that the Bengals were the only team in favor with the Chateau management.

Co-operative Society auction sale of butter held here today, there were 350 packages offered of which 150 packages No. 1 creamery were sold at 42 3-8c per lb, and 41 1-8c per lb. was bid for 200 packages No. 1 pasteurized creamery and refused.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, Nov. 16 (Canadian Press).—Wheat values here underwent a material set-back today, largely as a result of free selling to realize profits for recent buyers. Incidentally, the wheat price difference between Minneapolis and Chicago on December delivery narrowed to such an extent as to leave but little chance at present for the purchase of spring wheat northwest to be shipped to this city. Wheat prices here closed weak, 3-4 to 2 1-4c net lower, new style, December 1.54 1-2 to 1.54 5-8 and May 1.49 1-4 to 1.49 1-2, with corn 3-8c off to 1-8c up; oats unchanged to 1-4c down, and provisions unchanged to 50c higher.

At first, the Chicago wheat market displayed an upward trend owing to 4,200,000 bushels decrease in the amount of wheat on ocean passage and because of continued adverse crop reports from Argentina. The advance in prices here, however, quickly brought about general commission house selling in which holders of wheat took the lead. Later an increase of 132,000 bushels in the United States visible supply total had a depressing influence, but not until after a rally due to considerable buying based on the fact that the increase looked tiny as against 3,453,000 bushels increase a year ago. Much of the wheat sell- i : today was of December delivery here against buying of May. The spread in prices separating the two months fluctuated rapidly, being about 7 cents at one time and yet narrowing to around 5 cents later. Contributing to the weakness of the market was word that the weather in Canada continued favorable and that threshing operations there were making big progress.

A Pathfinder and Pacemaker in Industry

In 1880, when the Bell Telephone Co. of Canada was incorporated, there were only 5 pulp and paper mills in Canada. Now there are over 125.

The industries using lumber now produce $600,000,000 a year.

To meet the steadily increasing demands of industry there are now over 545,000 Bell Telephones in Ontario and Quebec.

"ONE week the trees are standing in the forest—and the next week newsboys are selling the latest news on the streets. Long Distance has made such speed and economy possible."

The customer telephones his order—the order is telephoned to the mill. When the cars leave the mill they are traced by telephone until they reach destination. That's the profitable way.

In YOUR business—are you using the telephone to fullest advantage?

GERMAN TEAM VISITS OXFORD

Rugby Players From Frankfort Were Well Received By British.

OXFORD, Nov. 17.— (Canadian Press.)— While German deep sea divers and British navy men fraternized yesterday awaiting the cessation of the gale which prevented the Germans from attempting to locate the lost British monitor submarine M-1 in the English Channel, there was another display of Anglo-German fellowship in Oxford.

Th. Frankfort football team, holders of the German rugby championship played a match with the Oxford Greyhounds, composed of players selected from the various colleges of Oxford University. It was the first time since the Great War that a German team had played in England and both their hosts and the spectators displayed a most friendly spirit towards the visitors. It was a lively and interesting game, but the Germans were completely outclassed.

BRITISH TROOPS PROTECT JEWS

Have Been Ordered to Check Invasions By Druse Tribesmen.

WATCH FRONTIER.

LONDON, Nov. 17 (Canadian Press) — British troops, according to a Jerusalem despatch to the Daily Express, have been ordred to check the invasion of the rebellious Daily Express, have been ordred to side of the River Jordan. Troops have been rushed to Metuallah, a Jewish colony on the Palestine-Syria frontier and the whole area is declared to be a military zone virtually under martial law.

British airplanes, a despatch says, are reconnoiting on the French side of the boundary, where the French have virtually abandoned their posts.

THEATRES

AT THE CAPITOL

CORINNE GRIFFITH IN "CLASSIFIED."

A special attraction at the Capitol Theatre for the first three days of this week is the addition to the regular picture programme of a demonstration of the Charleston dance, given on the stage by Miss Marion May Perry and Mr. Ed. Canton. Last evening, this was greeted with a great deal of enthusiasm by the audience, which filled the theatre, who demanded a repeat performance as an encore, and continued applauding through two curtain calls for the dancers. Miss Perry, who wore a very attractive gown, also received a pretty bouquet of flowers. The two performers gave a very creditable demonstration of graceful ability under the handicap imposed by the peculiar muscular intricacies of the Charleston.

The feature picture is very entertaining. Although the heroine is rather a glorified specimen of a New York working "goil," and goes in to a certain extent for the "Salamander" activities delineated in the famous novel of that name, or, in other words, starts out as an energetic little gold digger, who takes the risk of being insulted every morning by the men who motor her down town, rather than ride in the prosaic subway car, she is interesting from start to finish. Corinne Griffith as Babs Comet, the dweller in a small East Side flat who yearns for the glitter and gold of Broadway, and finally turns down a millionaire to marry a garageman with a salary of forty dollars a week, does some very nice work. She is a temperamental young person who goes for a midnight ride with a Fifth Avenue swain and then walks home when he proposes a visit to a roadside inn. This is one of the funniest episodes in a picture that depends for a great deal of its interest on its humorous touches; the spectacle of Babs, with mud-stained slippers and minus hat and coat, riding home with a milk-wagon driver, an aged, deaf gentleman, who presents her with a bottle of milk and an apple, while her furious philandering admirer speeds along in his fast little roadster, pursuing his errant lady.

Characterizations in the picture are extremely good. The scenes in which the Comet family have their daily scraps, the portions showing Babs at work in her office, the "Classified Ad" section of "The Times" establishment, and the bit where Babs goes to dinner with two Jewish gentlemen, tries on their gorgeous gowns and then departs in haste, with the irate Hebrews after her, hold plenty of entertainment for the movie fan.

It has a nice story-book ending. The young lady, after appearing as a heartless sort of creature, intent on a good time, falls in love with the jaunty young man who has courted her in a peculiar way and flouts the millionaire in his favor.

The comedy is a hilarious one, with a crooked baseball player as its main actor.

A sub-title in the feature picture that aroused a great deal of amusement last evening had to do with the qualifications necessary for dancing the "Charleston."

—Jeannette.

JAMES CRUZE'S "PONY EXPRESS" DUE AT CAPITOL

Picture Hailed as "The Covered Wagon's" Only Rival, Opens on Thursday.

The widely heralded and long expected western special, "The Pony Express," which Jas. Cruze directed for Paramount, with a brilliant cast of several thousand players, headed by Betty Compson, Richardo Cortez, Ernest Torrence and Wallace Beery, will make its local debut at the Capitol netx Thursday.

This mighty frontier cinemaster piece gives Cruze the unique distinction of producing the only photoplay that seriously threatens the supremacy heretofore maintained by the first great epic, "The Covered Wagon." And there is much these two classics have in common.

Like its distinguished predecessor, "The Pony Express" is a powerful story, combining historical fact with the element of romance that characterized the West of pioneer days. But although its climax is as tremendous, and its ending as emotional and beautiful as that of "The Covered Wagon," its love theme is more appealing, its background more fascinating, and its dramatic episodes more startling, more thrilling, and more colorful.

The action of the plot is laid in 1860, in the dark days just before the Civil War, and deals with the struggle between the North and the South to gain control of California with its prestige and enormous resources of gold. In this bitter political contest, with its plotting and intrigue, gunfighting and bloodshed, the crack riders of the Pony Express played a significant and important part.

Besides the heroic achievements of the Pony Express, the production vividly and authentically depicts the violent yet picturesque life of the primitive West. Of the many historical characters who are portrayed, particular interest attaches to the youthful Mark Twain, the stripling, Buffalo Bill, and the famous Mormon leader, Brigham Young.

Henry James Forman, former editor of Collier's Weekly, and Walter Woods, one of the most experienced scenarists in the film industry, collaborated on the story of "The Pony Express."

AT THE GRAND

"MY CHINA DOLL" PRESENTS BEWILDERING SETTINGS.

Bewildering in its scenic splendor, perhaps best conveys the marvelous beauty in stage settings in the musical sensation, "My China Doll", coming to the Grand Opera House, Saturday, November 21st.

New York's Chinatown, the opening scene, with its customary cramped houses, chop suey palaces, tea and novelty shops and temples of idol worship, is a sample of the exacting stagecraft in this musical masterpiece. Then, aided by a series of transformations follows, the Land of Storey Books, in its entirety, presenting a scene that measures up to the most vivid imagination in picturizing Grimm's well know tales.

Melody Town—which brings to light the brightest spot from a novel scenic standpoint during the entire performance, is a brilliant black and white fantasy, with the setting representing musical instruments in which the gay dancers romp in and out during the transformation of staid music to "ragtime." This novel scene is encircled by a patent leather cyclorama, which by the aid of colored lights convey a kaleidoscopic effect of figures and shadows.

The Valley of Flowers presents a symphony of color with an abundance of beautiful roses and spanish moss hanging in profusion over great arbors while a mystifying effect of flowers pass through space. It seems that the Producers have heaped one thing upon another in hopes to fulfill the desire of an eagerly awaiting public to see something startling in novel and scenic and light effects.

As a fitting finale to the many remarkable scenes that have preceded it—comes a setting of silver and lace which forms a background for a smart wedding scene in a palatial home in uptown New York. Nothing prettier has been done in the pictureland of the stage than is presented in this gorgeous production.

AT THE ROYAL.

"DRUSILLA" OPENS TO PACKED HOUSE.

It looks to us as though another "Over the Hill" has hit the screen. And "Drusilla With a Million" is the picture which has all the heart appeal, human interest and wonderful acting of the former success. And this later offering is more artistic and just as well acted by a superfine dramatic personnel. You hear of pictures with souls, but seldom see them. Well, here is one and it is a photoplay that is going to reach for the hearts of the nation with its human, colorful, clean, dramatic story. And we'll wager the women everywhere will be aroused to heights of enthusiasm over this one.

Mary Carr, who won fame over night through her work in "Over the Hill," again leads the cast and in a role that has just as much pulling power on the emotions. Miss Carr as Drusilla, an aged inmate of a charity institution, who suddenly finds herself with one million dollars and who forthwith dedicates her fortune to caring for babies abandoned on the doorstep of her palatial residence, contributes to screen literature one of the finest character paintings of many years and one which is going to be remembered. And right here we want to tell the word that Priscilla Bonner reaches the heights with a magnificent performance.

Folks will not soon forget the entrance of Drusilla into her new mansion, the antics of her baby charges, the scene in which Collin wrecks his car to save the life of Sally May, whom he soon marries; the episode in which Daphne persuades Sally to leave Collin so that he may have his chance in life, the birth of Sally's baby and so, on and so forth through a long series of wonderful moments that lead up to the powerful court-room sequence which is going to raise patrons out of their seats as if they had a hoisting machine pulling them up. Everyone is going to like Drusilla. By the remarks overheard, everyone is going to see it.

All the shorter features are extra good. A clever comedy, "Cleaning Up," had the large audience in constant laughter. A novelty hand-colored fable acted entirely by beetles is out of the ordinary. The Sport Review and News round out what we would say is one of the best programmes shown locally in some time.—Fan-Fan.

DRUSILLA WINS ALL AUDIENCE

Picture Came to Peterborough Under Auspices Council of Women.

REPEAT TO-NIGHT.

"Drusilla with a Million" captured the hearts of her audience at the Royal Theatre yesterday. The big picture, which was such a success in Toronto recently, and which comes to Peterboro for three days, under the auspices of the Local Council of Women, is one of those heart interest stories that holds the attention. It runs the gamut of thrills and romance and human interest, and an intent audience last night that packed the Royal for its first evening presentation, seemed to enter individually into the longings and heart aches and adventures of the characters that surround "Drusilla" and her million.

The art of two women, one an elderly actress, the other very young, makes this picture a notable production. Mary Carr, the veteran of so many heart interest dramas of the screen, is "Drusilla," a wonderful Drusilla. The character is not over-drawn. Drusilla in the charity institution, her grey locks straggling over a worn face, washing the dishes with a bent back and feeding milk to a stray mongrel cur, is a pitiful old figure, but she does not carry her woes into the realm into which she is transported when she inherits her million. With the cheerful heart that was hers in the poorhouse, she enjoys her wealth to the full, and turns immediately to a way of helping others. Drusilla embarks on the business of looking after stray babies, and incurs the wrath of her neighbors in consequence.

The plot of the picture is rather a remarkable one for the silver sheet, which usually allows its plot to be subordinated either to characterization or theme. "Drusilla with a Million" has a real plot and carries it out to a very satisfactory conclusion. Kenneth Harlan is Collin Arnold, the spendthrift son of a rich man who is cast off by his father, meets the little Sally May Ferris (Priscilla Bonner) and marries her. Priscilla Bonner is the other woman who makes this picture exceptional. Her acting is wonderful. Her role in this picture is said to have "made" her as a screen actress, and anyone who sees her in the trial scene in "Drusilla with a Million" will not wonder at the assertion. It is rather a harrowing scene and somewhat lengthened out, but Sally May has an extraordinary opportunity for emotional portrayal, and uses it to the full. It is one of those scenes that keep an audience up on its toes and is artistically dramatized.

The "other woman" of the picture, the girl who was engaged to Collin in his palmy days and has her eyes on the million which his angry father left to Drusilla instead of to his son, is another good character part. She does her level best to part Sally May from her husband and succeeds for a while. The girl, persuaded that she is hampering the life of the man who has been accustomed to richer ways, leaves him and works as a waitress in a cafe. One of those coincidences that occur in life is cleverly handled in the episode in the cafe, where Collin, discouraged and weary in his search for his little wife, is having a meal, while the girl he seeks goes out to get another job and passes his table.

Drusilla with her million and her desire to take care of stray babies, falls foul of her rich neighbors, and finally lands in court. The trial scene, in which Sally May, having left her baby on Drusilla's doorstep, is the chief witness, is the big episode of a picture packed full of human interest and little incidents that round out the story perfectly. It is an eminently satisfying production, full of the heart throbs of ordinary people, with a compelling atmosphere, a dramatic plot and plenty of attention - holding episodes.

The music that accompanies the production is well handled by the Royal orchestra.

The programme is excellent throughout. There is a hand-colored short reel enacted by real live bugs, a sport picture showing ladies only, and situated at another "Peterboro," and a clever comedy "Cleaning Up," showing the manifold trials of a man who essays to clean up his house in the absence of his wife. His task is complicated by the arrival of Abner, his wife's sap-headed brother, described as "the answer to a squirrel's prayer," and he has some terrible times that include the bestowal of the contents of a feather pillow over his best room, the flooding of the bathtub and the visit of the fire-fighting team.—Jeannette.

The members of Mt. Hebron and Hiawatha Encampments will meet to-morrow (Wednesday) night at 8 o'clock to complete arrangements for their visit to Lindsay.

PAINLEVE BILL TO FINANCE DEBT SENT TO HOUSE

Debate on Measure Is Expected To Take Up Entire Week.

FOREIGNERS HIT

Any Person Habitually Living in France Liable To Levy.

PARIS, Nov. 17 (Canadian Press)—The text of Premier Painleve's bill, "instituting exception national contributions for the redemption of the public debt," has been printed and sent to the members of the Chamber of Deputies, together with the voluminous report of Lucien Lamoureaux, of the Chamber's Finance Committee.

Nothing appears to stand in the way of the commencement of a debate in the Chamber of the measure.

The expectation is that the general debate will take up the entire week and that night sittings will be necessary to finish the work by Saturday.

Canadians and other expatriates in France will be hindered by the "national contributions" act, unless—which appears improbable — an amendment exempting them is introduced during the passage of the bill through the department. Article 16 provides that the levy is payable onl "real or personal property retained abroad by persons of French nationality or habitually residing in France."

Deficit This Year.

PARIS, Nov. 17 (Canadian Press)—There will be a dificit of at least five billion francs in the budget during the current year.

Revenue returns for the first ten months show total receipts of 22,800,000,000, while the revenue is budgeted for just about 33,000,000,000 leaving some 10 billions to be made up in the last two months of the year.

DR. YOUNG SAYS SCORE UNTRUE

Health Act had been carried out—"

Dr. Young—"Pardon me, Mr.Chairman, but the speaker is not referring to Mr. Stapleton—he is referring to me—he came into my office."

Dr. Sutton—"Yes, I went into your office and asked for that data, and you refused to give it to me."

Dr. Young—"Well, what right have you to come butting into my affairs?"

Dr. Sutton—"I have the right to do anything in my power in improving the health conditions of this district." (The speaker pointed out a provision in the Health Act, which he said, bore out his statement.)

"Regarding food and meat inspection, what is done about that? What is done about inspecting public buildings?"

"I conduct regular inspections of all slaughter houses and factories," interrupted Mr Stapleton.

Dr. Sutton—"Do you inspect the meat that is on the market?"

Mr. Stapleton — "I do; and I have seized a number of carcases."

Dr. Sutton—"Well, I was told by a lady that she got a bad bag of potatoes at the market, but summing up I have made full allowance for any discrepancies and have been extremely liberal in some of my findings. The score of 12.7 per cent., is a charitable one so far as the Board of Health work is concerned. There is sufficient work here for a full time medical health officer. The important work of the Board is not being done; the unimportant work is attended to carefully."

Preceding the hearing from Dr. Sutton it was decided that action would be taken against those people who had not acceded to the demands of the Board regarding sewer connections.

Accounts were read and passed.

Present were His Worship Mayor Turner (chairman), M. McIntyre, Dr. T. W. H. Young, M.O.H., C. Rogers and Dr. J. O'Brien.

BECK MEMORIAL DRIVE IN CITY

resources he supplied to its need liberally. Dying, he left a spiritual last will testament to the people. It says: "To the people of Ontario, I entrust those poor sufferers from tuberculosis, who in their affliction turn with anxious hearts to Queen Alexandra Sanatorium. God forbid that their poverty should bar the door. My course is ending. Carry on!"

Public Service Miracle.

Sir Adam, while he lived, wrought a miracle for public service and a fitting memorial to perpetuate his name would be the Queen Alexandra Sanatorium, in which he had invested his pride and highest thought.

Mr. Mulholland, as a representative of the Hydro Commission, stated that that body was very interested in the work. It was applied to a good purpose, he said, and every one should thrill with the pleasure and honor of putting it through.

Concerning organization, Mr. Carty said that $500,000 had been apportioned pro rata to Ontario, and of that sum $10,000 had been considered a fair allotment to Peterboro. Mr. Carty suggested that the best method would be to select six captains, each with a team of five, and that each man canvass fifteen people. This arrangement was not arbitrary. Service clubs were also largely responsible for taking a considerable onus.

Pledges to the fund would be spread over a period of two years.

On the proposal of His Worship Mayor Turner, the objective was adopted. Present were: W. H. Bradburn, M.P.P., Aldermen Green, Phelan and Crowe, City Clerk Armstrong, Ross Dobbin, and Robert Hicks.

IMPERIALISM OF HON. MR. MEIGHEN REPUDIATED BY CONSERVATIVES OF QUEBEC TASCHEREAU REPLIES

Real Secret of Conservative Failure in Quebec, Premier Asserts.

ISSUES STATEMENT.

Emphasizes Mr. Meighen's Absence From Province During Election Campaign.

QUEBEC, Nov. 18. Canadian Press. — Premier Taschereau issued the following statement last night in reply to Hon. Arthur Meighen's charges in his address in Hamilton on Monday night, denouncing the Liberal party for alleged misrepresentation of the Conservative leader in Quebec during the recent elections:

"The Hon. Mr. Meighen, in the course of an address delivered yesterday at Hamilton, and which was reported in the press, gives free rein to the spite and bitterness that the last elections have caused him. After taking care to throw a few bouquets at our province in order to cover his attack better, Mr. Meighen declared that the Liberal party in Quebec had resorted to dishonest means and that our good people had been deceived.

"In order to support his assertion he has deigned to pick upon myself and to reproach me for what I am supposed to have said to the electors of Montmorency—the only constituency in which I participated in the campaign.

"The citation of Mr. Meighen is incorrect—even if he did take them from a Libtral newspaper. One can not attribute to a public man everything that a reporter makes him say in the course of an electoral struggle. But I have no objections to repeating in substance what I said to the good people of the Island of Orleans.

Deceived Electors.

"The Conservative party," I remarked, "had deceived the electorate on the question of conscription. In 1916, Mr. Meighen was a member of the Borden Cabinet, then in power. At the beginning of the 1916 session, Sir Robert Borden, the Prime Minister, from his place in the House of Commons, made the following declaration:

"'In the first few months of the war I declared clearly to the people of Canada that we did not propose to establish conscription. I repeat this declaration with emphasis today.'—(Mr. Taschereau here repeats the last sentence in English.)

"However, we had conscription. I do not discuss the necessity for it. It will belong to history to delve into that question. But I affirm that the Cabinet broke its word and that it deceived the people.

"That is exactly what I said to the electors of the Isle of Orleans. I added that they had to choose between Mr. Meighen, a party to this deception, and the Liberal leader, who

SINN FEIN CONVENTION.

Eamon de Valera, President, at Annual Meeting.

DUBLIN, Nov. 18.—(Canadian Press).—Eamon de Valera presided yesterday at the annual Sinn Fein Congress, which included twelve Republican members of the Dail Eireann.

Maude Gogne MacBride placed a placard on the platform stating that three Republican prisoners for insisting on their political status recommended by a Dublin jury are in handcuffs on bread and water in the basement dungeon of Mount Joy Prison.

After the opening of the proceedings the Congress held a session in private. Mr. de Valera gave a reception to the delegates last night.

AN ILL WIND.

FRAMINGHAM, Mass., Nov. 18 (Canadian Press).—A gust of wind caused Peter Plemis to lose his balance and fall into a ditch on a side street here directly in front of a trench-digging machine. He was caught in the machine and killed.

Bagot By-Election Writs Call For Vote December 7

OTTAWA, November 18. — Canadian Press. — Writs for a by-election in Bagot (Quebec) will be issued to-day. Nomination day will be November 30, and polling, Dec. 7th.

The seat was rendered vacant by the death of the member-elect, J. E. Marcile, Liberal.

MUSSOLINI MAY HAVE TO MOTOR

Union Men on English Railways May Refuse to Drive Train.

BOYCOTT INTENDED.

LONDON, Nov. 18 (Canadian Press).—With Labor opposing the cist Premier of Italy, comes to England on December 1st to sign the Locarno pact, it is possible he may be compelled to motor from the port at which he lands to London. It is thought that in view of the report that Labor leaders and Labor Members of Parliament intend to boycott Mussolini, no locomotive engineer will agree to drive the train on which he is a passenger.

This is the talk among trades unionists. Although the Locomotive Engineers' Union has taken no action in the premises, John Bromley, its secretary, says a refusal by trainmen to bring Mussolini to the Capital would not surprise him.

The Daily Express says that the problem of safeguarding Signor Mussolini in London is exercising Scotland Yard authorities.

LONDON, November 18. — United Press. — With Labor oposing the coming of Italian Premier Mussolini to attend the Locarno peace pact signing on December 1, the Daily Express to-day, without confirmation from other sources, reported from Rome that Mussolini had appointed General Badoglio as his successor in the event of his assassination.

(This alleged move apparently had in mind the recent assassination plot against him in Italy, rather than referring particularly to the possibility of such an event in England.)

The Express understands that Mussolini has decided to attend the Locarno ceremony, and that Scotland Yard operatives will guard him specially.

Burglar Kept His Promise Held Up Same House Twice

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Nov. 18 (United Press)—Ten years ago Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Beardsley, of Elkhardt, Ind., testified here against a burglar who had robbed their home. He was convicted and as the officers were leading him away he turned to Mrs. Beardsley and said he would come back and have revenge. He came back yesterday and at the point of a revolver again robbed the Beardsley home.

Secession of Provinces Was Ridiculed as Idea Lacking Support.

WINNIPEG, Nov. 18.—(Canadian Press).—An earnest plea for common justice, a fair share in the benefits as well as the partnership of confederation and serious consideration of their problems as a national obligation was the dominent keynote of a frank presentation of the difficulties confronting the Maritime Provinces by leading delegates of these provinces at yesterday's session of the National Economic Conference here. Many matters were brought to the attention of the conference, and despite the congestion of scheduled business it was unanimously agreed to afford every opportunity to the Maritime representatives to fully recite their cases.

The secession of the Maritime Provinces was ridiculed as an idea which at present would not find support of "consequence."

THE WEATHER.

At this date last year we were having our first taste of winter, and snow falls were frequent until the close of the month. In the Northwest conditions have been of a decidedly wintry character up to a few days ago. They are at present of a spring-like nature, and will likely be reflected here later. Highest temperature yesterday 46 degrees; lowest 30.—W. P.

KING SAYS HIS PLAN IS BEST; WILL NOT SEEK SEAT JUST NOW

Issue May Be Decided at Will of Leader of the Opposition.

PREMIER'S STAND.

To Bring on By-Election Now Would Delay Meeting of Parliament.

OTTAWA, Nov. 18 (Canadian Press).—"To bring on a bye-election under any conditions or circumstances in order to secure my presence in the House of Commons on the opening days of the session would be to render my colleagues and myself liable to a charge of deliberately adopting a course of procedure which would not permit of Parliament assembling at the earliest practicable date, since the date of the assembling of Parliament in such circumstances would immediately become contingent upon a fac-

Turk Seeks To End Life In Movies For Family

CONSTANTINOPLE, Nov. 18. — (Associated Press). — A Turk desires to enter into a contract with a moving-picture concern under which he may be put to death by being buried alive or hanging or commit suicide through taking poison. The method of his death is to be left to the company with which he signs the contract.

He stipulates that 20 per cent. of the money received from the proceeds of the film shall be used for the education of his six children. He says he can relieve them from poverty and leave them a dowry only by sacrificing his life. His offer is to remain open until January 15.

LEAGUE ASKS HELP.

Needs Assistance in Delicate Task of Reforming Calendar.

GENEVA, November 18. Canadian Press. — An appeal for help in reforming the calendar has been despatched throughout the world by the League of Nations, which especially craves assistance in the delicate task of establishing a fixed date for Easter. Calendar reform has been entrusted by the league to a special committee.

France Must Settle War Debt Before Her Currency Can Be Stabilized and The National Budget Balanced

PARIS, Nov. 18 (Canadian Press)—The necessity of the settlement of war debts before normal financial conditions can be restored in France was the theme of the first speakers in the debate which opened in the Chamber of Deputies Tuesday. The discussion was on the bills whereby M. Painleve hopes to raise six billion francs additional revenue annually.

Jacques Duboin, who is a banker as well as a deputy, declared emphatically that foreign, as well as domestic, debts must be provided for before the franc could be stabilized, and that without a stabilized franc all measures to balance the budget and renovate finances would come to naught.

M. Dubois asserted that the government was basing its plan on present conditions as if they were bound to exist forever.

"But," he added, "present conditions cannot be prolonged indefinitely.

ONE LIFE LOST WHEN STEAMER BURNED IN RIVER

Some of Passengers on Clyde Steamer Lenape Had Narrow Escape.

BOAT STILL BURNING.

Feared That Vessel Will Be Total Loss—Fire Broke Out Twice.

LEWES, Del., Nov. 18 (Canadian Press)—All the passengers and crew of the burned Clyde liner Lenape, except twenty who are aboard the coastguard Kickapoo, have been landed here. Those aboard the Kickapoo also are reported about to be brought ashore. About 150 passengers and nearly 100 members of the crew were assembled here. The ill-fated Lenape is still burning, and it is feared she will be a total loss.

Only one person's life was lost. Late this morning a fisherman picked up a body off Lewes which was later identified as that of Robert Leverton. The coat bore the label of a Holyoke, Mass., tailor.

Many of the passengers had narrow escapes with their lives, when flames swept the vessel anew just as safety apparently was assured.

Many were forced to jump into the water or hang over the side of the vessel on the end of ropes to escape the scorching heat. All were picked up by coastguard rescuers.

The fire started in an afterhold before 11 o'clock last night, and the liner immediately headed for the Deleaware breakwater.

Although S.O.S. calls were sent out immediately when it became known that the ship was threatened the first efforts of the crew to combat the flames appeared so successful that no attempt was made to remove the passengers before reaching the breakwater.

Proffers of assistance from several ships speeding toward the Lanape were declined, Captain Devereaux said.

VESSEL SCUTTLED.

NEW YORK, Nov. 18.— (Canadian Press.) —Following the safe removal of all the passengers, the steamer Lenape was scuttled inside the Delaware breakwater, the Clyde Line Company announced today. Officials estimate the damage to the cargo and the vessel at three million dollars.

ALDERMAN JAILED.

Stratford Solon Convicted of Assault.

STRATFORD, Ont., Nov. 18. — (Canadian Press): — William M. Buller, city alderman, was sentenced Tuesday by Judge Killoran to two months in common jail on the charge on which he was convicted a week ago of assaulting Andrew Patterson, occasioning him actual bodily harm.

In imposing sentence His Honor said that it was obviously a premeditated attack, but that there had been provocation. "The evidence showed that Patterson is a troublesome man, given to making cutting and insulting remarks," he said, in pointing out that the trouble had arisen because of "Patterson's evil tongue." He is apparently a man given to going out of his way to mix in the affairs of other people and making cutting and insulting statements. His injuries have been brought upon him by himself, and I trust that this will be a lesson both to Patterson and to Buller."

REBEL JUNCTION THREATENS TWO CITIES OF SYRIA

Correspondent Says Beirut and Damascus Are Both in Danger.

BEIRUT UNPROTECTED

French, He Says, Would Not Hesitate to Bombard City if Captured.

LONDON, Nov. 18 (Canadian Press)—The correspondent of the Daily Mail at Damascus lays stress on the seriousness of the situation due to hostilities between the Druse tribesmen and other rebels and the French forces. The correspondent represents both Beirut and Damascus as being imperilled by a threatened junction of the tribesmen with the forces of Said Altrash, brother of Sultan Pasha Altrash, Chief of the Druses.

Such a combined force, the despatch adds, could easily seize Beirut which is defended by only a few guns and it is understood that if the rebels capture it the French will not hesitate to bombard the city.

VILLAGES OCCUPIED.

LONDON, November 18. Canadian Press. — An Evening News Beirut despatch dated Monday and delayed in transmission, reported to-day that Ceid El Atrap's rebel forces had now occupied all the villages between Hassaya and the Leontes River.

They were reported to be under a former Turkish officer trained in the military school at Berlin, and now recognized as the chief of staff of the Druse Sultan. Continuing fighting was reported.

The above despatch tends to indicate that the Druse tribesmen are bringing the insurrection closer to Beirut, which yesterday was reported in fear of a rebel siege and capture. The Leontes River is between 20 and 30 miles to the east of Beirut, which is a centre for American missionary and relief work in the Near East.

THORNTON GUEST OF LLOYD GEORGE

Baldwin and MacDonald Were Also Among Those Present.

LONDON, Nov. 18.— (Canadian Press.)—Sir Henry Thornton, president of the Canadian National Railways, was entertained at dinned in the House of Commons last night by Lloyd George, former Liberal and Coalition premier. Among the guests were Premier Stanley Baldwin and former Labor Premier Ramsay MacDonald.

Winston Churchill and J. H. Thomas, Deputy Leader of the Labor political forces, were also present.

Sir Henry Thornton spoke of the opportunities awaiting the investment of British capital in Canada. He expressed the belief that Canada was on the threshold of great prosperity.

Men Must Show Necks Say Fashion Dictators

PARIS, Nov. 18 (United Press) — French and English style dictators have declared that well dressed men this winter shall show as much of their necks as possible. Meeting recently in London, these style designers exchanged views and the best they could decide upon was lower collars.

"Look at the women," they say. "Women are comparatively free of throat ailments. High collars are to blame for men's feeble throats. Besides it is more aesthetic to show than to hide the neck."

Boulevard stores are already showing collars only high enough to hide the collar buttons.

Canada's Trade Increased Over Last Year's Figures

OTTAWA, November 18. — Canadian Press. — Canada's total trade increased $197,000,000 during the seven months ended October, in comparison with the figures for the corresponding seven months of the previous year.

The increase in the export trade was $129,000,000 and in imports $68,000,000.

GOLDSMITHS OF ANCIENT EGYPT HIGHLY SKILLED

Elaborate Designs on Objects Found in the Tomb of Tut-Ankh-Amen.

EVIDENCE OF ART.

Doctors Decide King Was About Eighteen Years of Age.

CAIRO, Egypt, Nov. 18.—(Canadian Press).—The preliminary examination of the mummy of Tut-ankhamen bears witness to the great refinement of the goldsmiths' art of the Eighteenth Dynasty. Among the most important objects found at the unwrapping Saturday and Sunday were two groups of finger rings, numbering thirteen and twenty circlets. The whole chest was covered with magnificently encrusted gold pectorals, two of which were in the form of the upper Egyptian vulture Nehkbet and the lower Egyptian serpant Buto. Beneath these were smaller, but even more beautiful pectorals, intricately designed, including winged scarabs and sacred eyes.

There was also a marvellous flying vulture, exemplifying the finest goldsmiths' art. This was encrusted with lapis lazuli and carnelian, and resembles jewelry of the Middle Empire in its refinements.

The body of the pharaoh is in a bad state of preservation, but it is hoped that the head, from which the protective mask has not been removed, will prove to be in better condition. Doctors who have made an examination now maintain that the king was about eighteen years of age.

Besides the precious stones and jewelry, the investigators are gratified at the amount of religious data discovered.

BOMBARDMENT OF DAMASCUS COST 135 LIVES AND RESULTED IN DESTRUCTION OF 250 HOUSES

General Sarrail Gives Account of Actions Before Deputies.

NOT AN "AN ACCUSED."

Question of Deputy Ferry Brought Sharp Reply From Ministers.

PARIS, November 18. — Canadian Press. — One hundred and thirty-five persons were killed and 250 houses destroyed in the French bombardment of Damascus during the outbreak of October 20th, General Sarrail told the joint Army and Foreign Relations Committees of the Chamber of Deputies to-day in giving an account of his tenure of office as High Commissioner in Syria. The rising in Damascus was the culmination of a revolt in Syria growing out of a pan-Islamic movement similar to that in Morocco, he said.

The General appeared before the Deputies in full uniform, wearing his military medals.

A violent incident occurred at the outset of the hearing when Deputy Desire Ferry inquired whether the General was before the committee-men as an "accused."

Foreign Minister Briand and War Minister Daladier protested sharply, saying that General Sarrail was there at the invitation of the government, ready to give all information, and answer every question put to him. He had been relieved of his professional secrecy for that very purpose, the Foreign Minister said, but he must not be insulted.

The General explained that the bombardment of Damascus was necessary to repress the Druse rebellion.

Answering a query whether the British were responsible the General remarked that he had no reproach to address to British government but that he had much complaint to make of some local British agents who had failed to act with necessary reserve.

Deputation Is Assured Of Grant For Indigents Isolated

TORONTO, Nov. 18 Canadian Press). — A deputation representative of Ottawa, Peterboro, St. Thomas, Kitchener, Galt and this city, was assured by Hon. Lincoln Goldie, Provincial Secretary, that a favorable decision would be made in a few days on their request that isolation hospitals be put on the same basis as general hospitals, so far as the daily allowance of 60 cents for indigent patients, granted by the Province is concerned. The Minister thought the giving of the grant might be arranged.

The deputation included Dr. Radford, Galt, and Mayor Turner, M. M. McIntyre, and City Clerk Armstrong, of Peterboro.

TOWERS GUILTY BUT IS INSANE

Former First Officer of Melita To Be Detained "During King's Pleasure."

CAPTAIN SLANDERED.

WINCHESTER, England, Nov. 18 (Canadian Press)—Thomas Towers, on trial for the murder of Captain Clews, of the C.P.R. liner Melita, found guilty of the slaying but insane. Towers will be detained "during the King's pleasure."

In reviewing the situation leading up to the shooting, Crown Counsel Rogers said reports damaging to Captain Clews' reputation had been spread in the ship's company and this had resulted in a heated scene between the Captain and Towers and another of the ship's officers, Allan.

Allan's denial of spreading the stories against the Captain were accepted by Captain Clews, who, however refused to accept a similar denial from Towers to whom he said, "Towers, it is quite clear that this is not all. I know more than you think."

Towers had appeared to think, continued the Crown Counsel, that Captain Clews had kept him back from getting command of the Melita.

LOCARNO PACT TO BE RATIFIED

All Parties Are in Favor, Although Amendments Are Introduced.

WANT DISARMAMENT.

LONDON, Nov. 18.—(Canadian Press).—The House of Commons to-day began the debate preparatory to the ratification of the Locarno Security Pact. The Government would have liked ratification without division as an indication of the solidarity of all parties behind the security agreement, but both Liberals and Laborites have prepared amendments. The Liberals give general support, but regret that the Dominions were not consulted and their approval secured. They also urge that the pact be promptly followed by efforts toward international disarmament and the inclusion of Soviet Russia in the League of Nations.

The Laborites likewise consent to the ratification but express regret that the treaty contains no definite provisions for disarmament. They also demand the inclusion of Russia in all European agreements.

Morons Needed In Life Says Catholic Professor

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18 (United Press).—There is a place for the moron in the general scheme of life. Morons are needed to perform the menial work in our social system, the Rev. Dr. Thomas V. Moore, Professor of Psychology at the Cathodlic University told the National Council of Catholic Women. "I am making honest plea to you, as a representative group of Catholic women," said the Rev. Dr. Moore, "to aid in caring for the moron, as it is paganistic to aid only the normal child."

Presbyterial Convention Closed With Inspiring Messages to Congregation.

DOCTRINE UPHELD.

History of the Presbyterian Church Inspires Those Who Uphold It.

"I am not sure that the history of Christianity shows that the blessing of God rests only on the large bodies of Christians and is absent from the little minorities, for time and again God has shown His disfavor to the large bodies who have wieldly to worldly things and has shown His favor to the little bodies. But some of those of us who may be called hard-boiled Presbyterians are anxious for the future of our Church, not with regard to her size or her influence in the nation, but we are anxious that we who are in opposition to the judgment of the courts of our own church and in opposition to the majority of our brethren, and who have assumed a responsibility when we said, 'As for us, we are going to continue the Presbyterian Church, whether it be small or large,' should feel that we have this responsibility laid upon us, of making this Presbyterian Church the best possible church and of the largest possible service to our fellow men and for the extension of the Kingdom of God, and that

SERIOUS PROBLEM.

Warning Notices Are Found Necessary in Timber Limits.

SUDBURY, Nov. 18 (Canadian Press).—Hundreds of hunters from the cities of old Ontario and the United States who fill the woods of this district at present, are this year presenting a serious problem to Sudbury district lumbermen. Red capped sportsmen have shown themselves ignorant of the significance of tote roads and blazed trails and lumbermen, in order to protect their employees, have found it necessary to post warning notices on trees throughout their limits.

CITY'S NEEDS.

Pruning of Trees is Necessary Work, Mayor Turner Thinks.

Many things are desirable in every municipality and Peterborough is no exception to this rule said Mayor Turner when asked by the Examiner if he had any ideas for the beautifying of the city. He thought that the pruning of live trees and removing dead ones was a matter that should have more attention paid to it. He stated that during the last few years various Councils have supplied small amounts for this purpose, perhaps as high as $500 some years but he considered this sum was altogether inadequate to cover the City, as the work on many occasions that has been commenced has had to cease due to the appropriation having been spent. Nothing whatever, he said, has been provided for many years to plant young trees to replace those that have died, or to supply trees on the new Avenues that have opened up, and thought that this matter should engage the attention of next year's Council.

There must be some Scotch blood in the little bird clans, for it is common history that the Scotch clans were always in some small row or other among themselves, but let a common enemy appear and the clans of Scotland would stop their petty rows and unite and fight shoulder to shoulder against the invader. And they always put the enemy out. That's history.

Bird clans are much the same. They squabble over little or nothing, among themselves, from weed seeds to back-yard fences; but just let a sneaking cat or a squirrel appear and all the decks are cleared of bird troubles. The birds unite and help each other.

It was so in the garden where I was called not long ago to see Pug-nosed Bill, the Nuthatch and Mr. Brown Creeper doing a fancy bark dance, squabbling over some suet which some kind old ladies had placed there for the birds. Maybe Pug-nosed Bill was sure it was his alone, because he remains here all winter, or perhaps Brown Creeper felt that the suet was meant for him as a special treat on his way south. At any rate, they could not agree, and both played dog in the manger, until the sudden dash of Mr. Red Squirrel, which altered matters very much.

Down came the squirrel, nut in mouth, looking for trouble, for he remembered that Pug-nose Bill had stolen some sunflower seeds he had carefully saved. He made a rush at Bill and let the nut fall to the ground, in order to be able to seize and pull out two of Bill's tail feathers. And that is just what he did. Then the fight was on good and proper.

Mr. Brown Creeper was not going to stand for that, so he took a quick peck at the squirrel and missed, but he drew the squirrel's attention, which let Pug-nose Bill have a chance, and, you know, that bill of his is a nasty thing for squirrels to feel, and Mr. Red Squirrel felt it. Pug-nose Bill gave him such a whack that Mr. Squirrel lost his hold and fell to the ground, and Bill dropped a big wad of fur after him, real squirrel fur. Mr. Squirrel was not so sore but what he could pick up his nut and make off. Then Brown Creeper and Pug-nose remained friends and did no more dancing, but ate the suet, side by side.

PRESBYTERIAN MINISTER MADE ADDRESS OF GOOD WILL WHEN SPEAKING AT UNITED CHURCH

Rev. James Grier Spoke of Assurances of Rev. Wesley Elliott's Friendship.

MENTIONED DIVISION.

Occasion Was Annual Dinner and Large Crowd Was Present.

CAMPBELLFORD, Nov. 18. — Rev. James Grier, pastor of St. Andrew's Church, who spoke for the first time in St. John's United Church, since coming to Campbellford six months ago, brought a message of goodwill from his congregation, and spoke at some length on the recent division in the denomination which he represents. Time and again, he said, during his short residence in town, he had received assurances of the personal goodwill of Rev. Wesley Elliott, and felt himself justified in regarding him as a friend, and he valued the friendship and goodwill of a brother in the same calling.

"I should have been here," said the speaker, "whether I had been given a complimentary ticket or not. It is worth much more than 50 cents to me to have such an opportunity as is presented this evening of claiming spiritual kinship with you and with all others who hear the same Name. For that is primarily why I am here. I want to demonstrate insofar as my presence may, that I do not believe in such a thing as schism in the Church of Christ. The Church is a spiritual entity, and its members are bound together by bonds that overleap the limits of organization. Therefore

"We are not divided,
All one body we."

That is the doctrine I preach and that is the doctrine I am here to practice.

"Events of recent date have written a sad chapter in the annals of Canadian Church life. In the efforts to form a new organization hearts have been made to bleed, homes have been divided, and friendships of life-long standing have been severed. But it will never do for Christian men and women who find themselves in the midst of such circumstances to allow themselves to be governed by the spirit concomitant to such happenings. The Pauline rejoinder is here again very appropriate: 'But ye have not so learned Christ.' We need to-day men and women of heroism, the heroism that will meet the perils of an un-Christian strife and in the noble ways of mutual endeavor will seek to reconcile antagonisms that, as we see it, have arisen out of a mere question of method.

"I am very anxious that we understand each other. To this end we need the mind of good fellowship to drive away the dust of recent good fellowship. That controversy has resulted in the driving of a wedge between us on what we believe to be a mere question of method. Whether we all see it or not, it ought to be acknowledged at once by both sides, that each party has a right to its own opinions. If you believe that the Christian church should be administered from a single seat of government—well there is room for your labors in this broad Dominion, and we honestly say, "God bless you." We, on the other hand, do not believe in such uniformity, and we think there is also room for us. By whatever name we are called we are the church of Christ, only Providence in making us made a wonderful variety and the various branches of the true vine can appeal, and with wondrous results, to the sinners of its own type. We believe that you will find many people who will be better served through you owing to their traditions, their early training, their convictions, and their sympathies, and we also believe we shall find in this vast expanse many whom we are in a better position to serve. Men and women in Canada we believe, will be better because of the varied services our respective churches stand ready to give. Naturally you will seek to have adhere to you as many as hold similar convictions and you may also take it for granted that we do not want to lose one single person who has been trained in our way. Therein lie our respective fields as we see matters.

In these circumstances, therefore, the Christian injunction, "Let brotherly love continue," is as good a practice as it is beautiful in creed. Or it may be stated in yet another well known formula, "Equal rights to all, special privileges to none," or, again, "Live and let live."

"Mr. Chairman, I am candid tonight, I am also honest. So far as I know my own heart there is neither hypocrisy nor cant in what I have said nor in what I shall now say. Thus far we have had no voice from your church to say to us in the midst of our labors, 'God speed.' Tonight I know that my commission here from the Presbyterian Church as I know it and from St. Andrew's, Campbellford, in particular is to say in all sincerity, 'The Lord bless you and keep you; the Lord make his face to shine upon you and be gracious unto you, the Lord lift up His countenance upon you, and give you peace'."

A Successful Function.

Over 900 persons sat down in relays to the abundant repast which was provided by the ladies of the congregation, and in the gathering every denomination in the town was represented. The cash receipts at the door totaled over $300 but the full amount of revenue will not be in until all the tickets are returned. Everything was conducted in systematic order, and the vast crowd was handled without a sign of confusion anywhere.

An excellent programme was rendered with Rev. Wesley Elliott in the chair, while the crowd waited their turn at the tables, they were entertained with choice selections by the Northumberland Regiment Band. Besides the speech of Mr. Grier, there were addresses by Rev. C. D. Daniel and Rev. H. B. Kenny of Belleville, formerly pastor of the church, who was given a hearty welcome by all denominations represented in the gathering. The choir rendered several selections; there were violin solos by S. Serrall; vocal solos by Herb Leonard, and a duet by Dr. Lillian Young and Mrs. F. J. Smith.

SEARCHING LAKE FOR TWO MEN

George Rogers and George Winslow Are Missing—Canoe Found Bottom Up.

AT KOSHABOG.

WARSAW, Nov. 18. — George Rogers and George Winslow, residents of the Clarina district, are missing and believed drowned in Koshabogamog Lake, and a large party, led by their hunting companions, Thomas and David Drain, of the same district, left Warsaw this morning to search for them. The canoe in which they were to cross the lake with two dogs was found floating bottom up by the two Drains, who were, however, unable to turn it over.

The party of four men, all natives of the Clarina district except Winslow, an American who has been living there for about five years, were hunting at the lake, and on Monday morning the Drain brothers left the camp. On their return to the lake they were to come back to the other side, from where they had been camped, and during their absence the other two men were to paddle across with the two dogs in a canoe.

The Drains reached the new camp site, but their companions didn't show up, and yesterday morning the canoe was found bottom up in the lake. The men were unable to turn it over, as the two dogs were chained to it, and they feared that the bodies of their companions might also be caught in the canoe; so they left the boat and came into Warsaw for help. A large party of men set out this morning to aid them in righting the canoe and searching for the bodies.

STATION AGENT LEAVES VILLAGE

Mr. Chant Has Been Transferred to Unionville—In Lakefield 21 Years.

HUNTING IS GOOD.

LAKEFIELD, Nov. 18.—Word was received in the village last week that the C.N.R. agent, J. H. Chant, is being transferred to Unionville in two weeks. Mr. and Mrs. Chant have been in Lakefield twenty-one years and their departure is a matter of regret to the many friends they have made during their residence in the village. Mr. Chant has been treasurer of the Presbyterian church for the past twelve years and has been active in Masonic and I.O.O.F. circles. Mrs. Chant has taken a prominent part in the W.M.S. of the Presbyterian church and its kindred organizations including the Mission Band and is Social Serivce secretary of the Presbytery of Peterboro W.M.S. of the United church.

Mr. and Mrs. Chant leave the village with the best wishes of many friends for their good health and prosperity.

The fire brigade were called out on Monday morning by a bad chimney fire at Mrs. Wingett's on Concession street. With the aid of a chemical engine the fire was extinguished, the damage being slight.

Rev. W. Cox of St. John's church gave, on Sunday evening, a stirring sermon on Rev. H. F. Lyte's last hymn "Abide with Me," written in the hour of loneliness when it seemed that all his friends had forsaken him, and now one of the best known and beloved hymns.

W.M.S Meeting.

The W.M.S. of the United (Presbyterian) church will hold its annual thankoffering meeting on Tuesday afternoon at 3 o'clock in the church schoolroom. Mrs. Mackinnon of Peterboro will give an address.

Rev. C. F. MacIntosh of Toronto, formerly of Campbellford was in charge of the services in the United (Presbyterian) church on Sunday, both morning and evening, and Wesley church in the afternoon.

Hunting Is Good.

News from the hunting camps is good and although there are many more hunters than usual this year the old reliables are finding very good sport. The hope of the hunter is for a cold wave but all through the season to date the weather has been mild.

The two games played by the girl's soft ball team brought forward the suggestion that, while the team has a fairly good aggregation of players, it shows need for a competent manager and a trainer, and that it might be a good plan to have a girl's soft ball league consisting of five or six teams from which representative of Lakefield team could be chosen to play outside teams. It is too late in the season to begin such a league but it may be started in the spring. Keene and Warsaw have sent teams who played snappy ball and one can easily arrange games with Peterboro girl's teams.

If the weather permits an exhibition game of soft ball will be played between the Selwyn team (winners of Rink Co's Silver cup) and a picked village team taken from the three teams which represented the village in the league. This should prove a good game and one which will draw a bumper crowd. Selwyn has a good strong team, always on the job in good time for the games and efficient at bat and in the field. Probably the game will be deferred till the return of the hunters as some of the heavy hitters of the village are at present among the disciples of Nimrod.

IMPERIALISM OF HON. MR. MEIGHEN

had followed the policy of Laurier, in recognizing the sovereignty of the people in this matter.

"As a citizen of Quebec, I was present at a meeting in the auditorium where the Conservative leaders invited the young men to sign their registration cards. The Hon. T. C. Casgrain, then Postmaster-General, said to these youths: 'Sign—we want to know the strength of the nation; but there will be no conscription.'

"Our clergy were also requested to urge the young men to sign these cards, with the assurance that no question of conscription was at issue. Our bishops yielded to the demand and had to affirm later that the cards served as the basis for conscription.

Would War on Turks.

"Without engaging in any discussion on conscription, I believed it my duty to reproach Mr. Meighen and his friends for having deceived our province, and for having broken faith on this point. I added that apparently he had no regret since 60,000 Canadians had scarcely been buried in the cemeteries of France when Mr. Meighen was ready at the first threat of war with Turkey: — 'Ready, aye ready!'—and that without consulting either the Parliament or the people.

"The Liberal party, on the contrary, had taken the stand that there would be no participation in war without the electorate first having been consulted. Moreover, that was the attitude adopted by Mr. Patenaude and his candidates.

"If Mr. Meighen is now ready to make assertions that conflict with his past—such as he made at Hamilton when he declared that in the case of a new war the decision of Parliament, before the departure of troops, should be submitted to the judgment of the people, which is a good Liberal doctrine, why has he not the courage to come and expound his new point of view to the people of Quebec? The hour was solemn enough; the questions at issue were sufficiently vital for the leader of a great party to make it his duty to address the second great province of the Dominion, which comprises almost one third of the entire population of Canada. Sir John A. MacDonald and Sir Robert Borden, both of whom have gained victories in Quebec, did not disdain to establish contact with our people, who have a sufficiently open mind to understand the value of the arguments submitted to them.

"Mr. Meighen was the agent of his own defeat in Quebec. He had no right to ignore us. I said so to the people of the Island of Orleans and they shared my opinion. Mr. Meighen did not reproach me for this declaration, but he nevertheless lost a tremendous opportunity to explain himself in the matter.

Repudiated by Patenaude.

"With regard to his imperialism, of which there has been so much discussion in Quebec, how can he denounce us for calumniating him in this respect, when Mr. Patenaude himself, from the beginning of and in the entire course of his campaign, declared publicly that he did not approve of the imperialistic idea of Mr. Meighen; moreover all the French-Canadian Conservative candidates, with perhaps the exception of Mr. Armand Lavergne, have declared themselves followers of Mr. Patenaude. Was not that the equivalent of a clear repudiation of the Imperialism of Mr. Meighen and his past conduct with regard to the province of Quebec? That is the real secret of the Conservative disaster in Quebec, and Mr. Meighen is unjustified in attributing his defeat to what he calls the dishonest and dangerous declarations of his opponents. Did not Saskatchewan [illegible] as Quebec did? Can it be said that the population of that province was also deceived? And how does Mr. Meighen explain that forty per cent. of the electors of Ontario voted the same as Quebec?

"No; it is not solely the attitude of Mr. Meighen with regard to Imperialism and conscription that has influenced the vote of the Province of Quebec. And additionally, since Mr. Meighen can not foresee the wars that may take place 50 years from now, he could have explained himself also on that point in Quebec. In 50 years he may have succeeded in getting into power, and we would like to know what he proposes to do?

Ignored Quebec.

"The province was in all truth awake to the questions of vital interest for Canada. Why did Mr. Meighen not come here to expound to our manufacturers, to the workmen, and to our farmers, his policy on the tariff, on the transportation problem, and the railways, on the conservation of our natural resources and our commercial treaties? Why did he not go to Montreal, our great metropolis, and tell what he thought of the St. Lawrence-Great Lakes project, of the Hudson Bay Railway, of the National Railways? Did he have nothing to say on these? Was he afraid to compromise himself? Was Montreal not big enough to enjoy his confidence? Was Montreal not worth as much as Toronto, Halifax, Saint John, Winnipeg, Vancouver?

"One of his principal organs, 'L'Evenement,' had repeatedly invited him to Quebec, and Mr. Meighen should have remembered that he was given a hearty welcome here in 1921. Why did he not come? It is possible that in the course of the electoral campaign his speakers went too far—such a thing can occur in two camps. But is it right to withold responsibility from the directing spirits?

"What does Mr. Meighen think of his friend, Mr. Essery, who said at London, Ont., recently that if Mr. Ferguson dared to touch Regulation seventeen, all that would be left of him would be a pair of boots and braces?

"Mr. Meighen is wrong in allowing himself to speak from spite and bitterness. Let him be assured that the British bond, loyalty to our constitution, the respect for all faiths and for all opinions are as well sheltered in our province as anywhere else and that we here are also as profoundly interested as other provinces in political and economical questions.

Start out by filling in the words of which you feel reasonably sure. These will give you a clue to other words crossing them, and they in turn to still others. A letter belongs in each white space, words starting at the numbered squares and running either horizontally or vertically or both.

NATURE LORE.

Many Examiner readers have commented favourably on the "Nature Lore" feature that has been published in this paper for some time, the articles being voted as of a most interesting and instructive nature.

It may not perhaps be generally known that these articles are the work of a Canadian naturalist, Wallace Harvey Robb, now a resident of Belleville, whose activities along this line have been winning much attention.

His stories are written in a style that is most entertaining to young readers, and at the same time that teaches them the things they should know about nature lore in a manner that they will remember.

Older readers, too, find much food for thought in Mr. Robb's work, which seems to be filling a long-felt want in providing Canadians with natural lore that is Canadian in its origin and in its application.

PETERBORO WILL CARRY ON.

The citizens of Peterboro are to be asked to subscribe $10,000 to the Beck Memorial Endowment Fund of $500,000 which the Province of Ontario is to raise in memory of Sir Adam Beck, the money to be used in maintaining the Queen Alexandra Sanitorium.

The objective is not large for a city of over 21,000 people, and as the subscriptions are to be extended over a period of two years, making it easy for everybody to assist, the local campaign should be carried out to a triumphal conclusion.

Sir Adam's spiritual last-will testament supplies the keynote for the campaign. The founder of the Sanitorium, the public-spirited citizen who had done so much for the people of this Province in providing cheaper light and power, left this charge to Ontario:

"To the people of Ontario I entrust those poor sufferers from tuberculosis who in their affliction turn with anxious hearts to Queen Alexandra Sanitorium. God forbid that their poverty should bar the door. My course is ending, 'Carry on.'"

With that challenge ringing in the ears of the people of Ontario, can this Province fail to provide the endowment needed?

Can Peterboro fail to raise the $10,000 alloted as this city's share in the great drive?

MUST CONSIDER THE CONDITIONS.

Local motorists would do well to study the judgment given by His Honour Judge Swayze of Lindsay in a case arising out of a traffic accident which caused fatal injuries to a Fenelon Falls boy.

The evidence was to the effect that the defendant in the case had not been driving faster than the speed limit and had done everything possible when the emergency developed to prevent an accident, but in spite of his efforts had not been able to avoid running down the unfortunate boy.

The Crown admitted all these factse, but contended the defendant should be convicted because the condition of the road was such as to call for extraordinary care and precaution in driving.

His Honour took the same view and declared that the fact that there was a speed limit did not imply a license to run to that limit, regardless of conditions, and that the observation of the limit did not exonerate a driver under all circumstances for liability, either civil or criminal.

Many Peterboro motorists seem to be unaware of this point of law; they apparently think that so long as they stay within the speed limit they are free from liability.

But there are times when ten miles an hour becomes a dangerous speed.

On a rainy day at this time of the year when the pavements covered in some cases with wet, slippery leaves, the motorist who thinks it safe to drive twenty miles an hour on the city streets is flirting with disaster.

Yet many local drivers have been guilty day after day of what must be regarded as dangerous speed under the prevailing conditions, and the judgment in the Lindsay case should serve as a sharp warning to the offenders that they are liable to civil and criminal action in the event of an accident caused as a result of their neglect in this respect.

UNUSUAL STATISTICS.

Some amazing statistics have just been published by the United States Moderation League in what is called a national survey of conditions under prohibition.

It is stated that the League regarded the figures for arrests for drunkenness published in 1924 by the World League Against Alcoholism as so startling that it was decided to make a much more comprehensive survey in order to learn just what the conditions are in the United States.

Accordingly, the League communicated with the police department of every city or town in the United States having a population of 5,000 or more, and from the figures received from these sources have compiled a number of schedules.

One of these shows that in the 350 towns or cities reporting as to the arrests for drunkenness in the period between 1914 and 1924, these arrests amounted to 506,737 in 1914, dropped to 226,070 in 1920, the first year of the Volstead Act, and by 1924 had climbed up to 487,752; almost to the pre-prohibition level.

In 457 cities or towns reporting from the period 1920 to 1924, the figures show that while there were only 258,974 arrests for drunkenness in 1920, there were 565,026 such arrests in 1924.

The League maintains that there has been a very marked increase in the number of drunken motorists arrested, showing that in Massachusetts, for example, while automobiles increased 162 per cent. from 1919 to 1924, the revocation of licenses of drunken drivers increased 693 per cent. during the same period.

Further, it is claimed that drinking among boys and girls has been steadily increasing, although it is admitted that there is a paucity of authoritative statistics on the subject.

The police department of Washington, D. C., reports that while the arrest of persons under 22 years of age averaged 44 a year for the four pre-prohibition years, 1914-1917, a bone-dry law was enacted for Washington before national prohibition became effective and in 1918 73 people under 22 years of age were arrested for drunkenness, while in 1924 the figure had grown to 282.

OUR CITY.

The reputation of a town is as delicate as that of a woman. A few slighting remarks will ruin it. If these remarks come from citizens they are as dangerous as slighting remarks about the woman from a member of her family.

No man should knock the town which gives him his living. If he is not satisfied with the town there are trains leaving every hour. He should hold his criticism until such time as he has proved his sincerity by moving away. Every citizen should have an optimistic attitude towards life in general and the town in which he lives in particular.

One of the problems of every small city is to hold tight to its youth. The young man who has finished his education, tends to drift away to the larger cities looking for larger opportunities. That town that can hold fast to the youth it develops in its schools and colleges and tie them into its civic life has spelled success.

Nothing more inclines the young man to drift away than the words of some pessimistic business man belittling the home town. Most of such pessimistic talk is thoughtless. It would be a real service to the home town if every citizen would make it a rule always to speak well of the city and its future and "call down" the man who does otherwise. A few quiet words to the man who defames the city from which he gets his living, in many cases would cause him to think before speaking next time.—Adapted from the Kiwanis Magazine.

WHERE WOULD ONE LIKE TO LIVE?

An English newspaper has been asking its readers where they would best like to live. The answers are interesting, and somvetimes pathetic, revealing, as ever, futile human longings. To most of the writers far away pastures seem green, and they pine for a villa in sunny Italy, or in the south of France, or somewhere near the blue Mediterranean. Others long for the South Sea Islands, famed in song and story, little pictured Heavens in the far Pacific, where human worries are supposed to be unknown, and where dusky maidens go through life in song and love and laughter. Still others ask for a cottage by the English shore, or near the craggy Scottish cliffs, or by the lakes or glens of Erin.

Where would one like to live?

It is a fascinating question. In the cinematograph of recollection one thinks of some spot which stands like a light in memory; of perhaps a humble cottage not far from the sea, where schooldays were passed, and where one might pass life's twilight far from strife and care; of sun-kissed California, with its white bungalows and cloudless skies and flowers; of a multi-colored garden in Bermuda beside a white sand beach washed in the cleanest of water; of a golden farm in our own great West, with far horizons, and vast spaces of land and sky; of an orchard grove in the Okanagan, where one might watch apples turn from green to scarlet, playing golf and reading the while; or of a mountain top in the Kootenays from which you can see a hundred peaks, most of them yet unnamed.

And one dreams, too, of those South Sea Islands, which Cook immortalized, and of which Stevenson sang. One thinks of the coral reefs of Roratanga, lapped by a sea of the bluest blue; of Papete, with its quaint harbor, its dreamland drives through groves of haunting beauty, its beautiful maidens and lovely fisher boys; of the harbor front at Suva, where the Fijians, who fifty years ago were cannibals, now sell copra to great ships, where lithe, willowy Samoans dive into the water for shillings, and where beautiful maidens deck you out with wonderfully colored beads.

And then there is Hawaii—Hawaii, which somebody called the "fairest garden anchored in the Pacific;" Hawaii with its palms, hibiscus, bougainwillea, and those night-blooming trees that scent the sea-air for miles; its rainbow fish, its volcanoes in whose craters you may walk on half cooled lava, its lines of white surf ridging a blue-and-purple ocean where you can "shoot the breakers" on a board at thirty miles an hour; its laughing people who sing "Aloha oe" in greeting and farewell, to the unforgettable cadences of the haunting ukelele.

And yet—there is always a but. And if one has a brain that gets hungry now and then for a more rugged, stirring life, for more of turbulence and toil, Honolulu is not the place. Neither is Bermuda. Somewhere, in the very core and marrow of our breed, there is a something which calls for struggle and high adventure, a something that challenges strife—the something that has sent our race all over the rough spots of the earth. When this spirit calls, when one is tired of voyaging or dreams, it is not the hills of sunny Italy, not the palms or maidens of South Sea Islands, not the orchards of California nor the pineapple farms of Australia, for which one longs. One thinks, then, of the breath of the North, of our own Canadian glorious autumns, of her snow-clad hills, of the incomparable beauties of a Canadian June.

Yes, far-away pastures seem green! But when one has tasted or dreamed of their joys, there comes hunger for the frets and satisfactions of a sterner land; a land still much unspoiled by the "civilization" of older countries; a land where opportunity and hope still reach their blessed arms to all; and where the best of the world's thought and faith and friendship does not pass you by.—Ottawa Journal.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

A controversy over public health methods will at least serve to arouse an interest in a matter about which the public has shown too little concern.

Ballot boxes are still being brought in from the northern part of the Peace River riding, a fact that throws some light upon the extent of the constituency and the difficulty of transportation.

Dig out that list of presents and get the Christmas shopping started.

Peterboro's low fire loss this year is a matter upon which both the citizens and the Fire Department are to be congratulated.

Peterboro's potato prices on Saturday still reigned near the top of the list, although there was an improvement over last week. Brantford, for example, reported sales at $2.25 to $2.50, while Woodstock's prices were $2.00 and $2.25.

The week-end list of tragedies from all parts of Ontario read pretty much like the casualty reports received during the period of the war.—Guelph Mercury.

BARN DESTROYED.

Victoria County Farmer Loses Crops.

LINDSAY, Nov. 18—A fire of a mysterious origin occurred on Monday on the farm of Mr. George Ivory, of Dalrymple, Victoria County, when his barn and contents, including the season's crops and implements, were totally destroyed by fire. The building and contents were only partly covered by insurance.

A THOUGHT.

FOR THE YOUTHFUL TO THINK ABOUT.

So many restless, unhappy women do I meet that at times I am inclined to think that women generally, in their desire for the so-called large life of business, have lost rather than gained.

Then I come to know more intimately than usual, some busy girl or woman who has retained the womanly genius of home-making and I am hopeful that time will reveal to all women that there is nothing gained in sacrificing a heritage for an uncertainty.

It seems to me worse than foolish to discard or destroy the womanly talents and characteristics that are generally inborn, in an effort to achieve in fields afar.

Reviewing the activities of the most successful women in business and professions, whom I know, I can make but one deduction; these women have been too intelligent to do this, they are womanly women, home-loving, home-making women, who, because of these very natural qualities, have made good in chosen fields, outside the home.

SHOWER GIVEN FOR NOVEMBER BRIDE

Friends of Miss Hazel Bolton Contributed Many Gifts at Happy Affair.

A very enjoyable and pleasant evening was spent at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Bolton, Douro, on November 12th, when a miscellaneous shower and dance was given to about sixty guests in honor of their niece, Miss Hazel Bolton, Lakefield, whose marriage to Mr. Melville J. Johnston, Peterboro, takes place the latter part of November.

As the early part of the evening was spent in amusement, precisely at 11 o'clock the bride-to-be was invited to come to the centre of the drawing room and occupy the lofty throne, which had been prettily decorated with streamers and roses for the occasion. Immediately afterward her two small cousins, Verna and Lillian Bolton, entered, drawing a beautifully decorated wagon laden with presents of every kind for the bride.

Miss Violet Bolton read the following address:

Dear Hazel: As we are gathered here tonight, we realize that the day of your marriage is approaching and that soon, too soon, you will be leaving the midst of our happy throng to make your home in a new place and perhaps among strange faces.

In your going we feel that we are losing one of our most cheerful and happy pals. We have always found you as the one ready to help the other fellow. If you had cares or worries we knew not for they were hidden behind a sunny smile.

We can only wish that the path you have chosen will be strewn with roses of life, love and prosperity.

In your parting from us, we take this opportunity to ask you to accept these miscellaneous gifts, which your many friends have so willingly and lovingly brought here tonight.

Again we must add that the gifts are far too small to show you just how much we have appreciated your companionship and good times spent with us. But we know that our loss is some other person's gain.

We all join in wishing you the best of luck and many long and happy years of married life.

Signed on behalf of your many friends.

Although taken completely by surprise the bride unwrapped the dainty parcels, read the verse accompanying each and thanked the one who kindly contributed it. After the presents were displayed on the side table the bride made a witty little speech on behalf of herself and Mr. Johnston who was unable to be present, thanking her friends one and all for their kindness and appreciation and also her aunt and uncle who had so willingly and kindly opened their home to her and her friends on this happy occasion.

After a dainty lunch was served the young folks continued to trip the light fantastic toe until the wee small hours.

Winnipeg — Egg market steady, fresh receipts continue light with quality showing a large percentage of held eggs.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, Nov. 17 (Canadian Press).—With Europe buying on a big scale and with sensational crop damage reports at hand from Argentina, the price of wheat suddenly shot upward today as much as 5 1-4c a bushel. Not all of the gain was held, and at the close the wheat market was nervous, 2 7-8 to 4 3-4c net higher, new style, Dec. 157 1-2 to 157 3-4 and May 153 3-4 to 154. Corn finished at 1c decline to 1-4c advance; oats 1-8c off to a shade up, and provisions unchanged to 25c lower.

Export sales of wheat to Europe were variously estimated at 2,000,000 to 3,000,000 bushels, most of it to be shipped from Canada. Foreigners also were active in the purchase of future deliveries here and so were speculators who had been conspicuous yesterday on the selling side of the market.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE

MONTREAL, Nov. 17 (Canadian Press).—Cables received by Montreal exporters today were stronger and the prices bid for Manitoba grades of wheat were 1s per quarter higher and in consequence a fair volume of business was worked with United Kingdom buyers for prompt and nearby shipment. The trade in coarse grains was reported quiet. On spot sales of No. 2 Northern wheat were made at 9 1-4 cents per bushel over the Winnipeg November option, c.i.f. Montreal.

Owing to the strength that prevailed in the Western markets for coarse grains today, the local situation was very firm, but there was no actual change in prices to note. A moderate amount of business was done in car lots of Ontario and Quebec No. 2 white oats at 52 1-2 cents, No. 3 white at 51 cents, and No. 4 white at 49 1-2 cents per bushel ex-track, while No. 3 Canadian Western were quoted at 1-2 cent higher at 57 1-2. No. 1 feed at 53 1-2 and No. 2 feed at 51 1-2 cents per bushel, ex-store. The demand for Ontario malting barley was steady and sales of car lots were made at 85 1-2 cents per bushel, ex-track.

The feature of the millfeed trade was the stronger feeling that developed in the market and millers generally advanced prices for all lines $1 per ton, which was attributed to the continued good demand for supplies and the very limited offerings, notwithstanding the fact that the mills in most cases were operating to their full capacity which indicates that large sales have been made for shipment to the United States for some little time to come.

The trade in wholesale butter jobbing was reported fair and prices were unchanged at 45c per lb for finest creamery in solid packages, and at 46c per lb. in 1 lb. blocks.

The receipts of cheese were 6,148 boxes, as compared with 10,569 for the same day last week, and 8,660 for the corresponding day a year ago. The trade was without any new feature to note, business in all directions being still of a very limited character and in consequence the undertone was easy.

The offerings of butter and cheese on the local curb market were small and trade was quiet. Some No. 1 pasteurized creamery butter sold at 43 1-8c per lb., and No. 1 creamery at 42 1-8c per lb., while cheese brought 19 1-8c per lb, delivered here.

Beans were unchanged at $2.40 per bushel.

GERMANS DOUBT FRUIT OF PACT

Decide To Sign Locarno Treaties, But Not Satisfied.

PRESS HOPEFUL.

BERLIN, Nov. 18.—(Canadian Press).—The Cabinet, it is understood, reached the decision to sign the Locarno Treaties with no light heart, not being completely satisfied with the alleviations granted by the Allies in the Rhineland. It was moved rather by the hope of seeing in the treaties the beginning of a new era in Europe.

The German press is none too enthusiastic about the concessions and the possible delay in the complete evacuation of Cologne until February 20. But, except for the extremist papers, which talk of "the Locarno bankruptcy" and "humbug and jugglery," the moderate organs adopt the Government attitude of hopefulness.

GEORGE ROBEY'S SONG SILENCED

Birmingham Bans "I Stopped, I Looked, and I Listened."

BARE LEGS BARRED.

BIRMINGHAM, Nov. 18. (Canadian Press). — George Robey, the noted English comedian, has been forbidden by the magistrates of Birmingham from singing in public in that city, the song, "I Stopped, I Looked and I Listened."

Robey has sung the song before Their Majesties King George and Queen Mary.

The song was originally given in a wartime revue by the well-known "Byng Boys," Canadian soldiers under Lord Byng, the present Governor-General of Canada, who commanded the Canadian Corps in 1916.

The Birmingham magistrates recently issued an edict against female dancers appearing on the stage of any theatre in Birmingham with their limbs uncovered, except in the case of juveniles, to whom the edict does not apply. Madame Pavlowa's ballet dancers perforce had to conform to the new rule last week when they appeared in Birmingham, and a member of the company, Mademoiselle D'Arcy, who usually performs a certain dance without the encumbrance of tights, yielded to the magisterial edict and wore tights while doing her special dance in that city.

SIGHTS OF CITY DAZZLED BOYS

Two Men From Peace River District Had Never Seen Town of More Than 500.

VISITING TORONTO.

TORONTO, Ont., Nov. 18. — (Canadian Press.) — Oscar Gublaughon and Vern Johnson, boys and girls swine club champions of Alberta, who are visiting Toronto and the Royal Agricultural Winter Fair as guests of the Canadian Pacific Railway, are making their first trip into civilization. Since they were born, fourteen years ago, they have lived in the Peace River district, fifteen miles beyond the present end of steel. Never, until they arrived in Toronto yesterday morning, had they been in a town of over five hundred souls. With eyes filled with wonderment they sat at Pantages last evening, nor did they move an inch in their seats until the curtain had fallen upon the glimmering stage. "What do you think of Toronto?" they were asked on their return to the hotel.

"You've got some fine cattle here," young Johnson said.

"But what did you think of the show."

"Gee, it's too bad there isn't something like that every night," was the reply.

During the course of the afternoon they shook hands with nearly every one connected with the Ministry of Agriculture in the Dominion. They had only one question to ask, "Where are the pigs?"

ABANDONED CAR NEAR PRESCOTT

But No Trace of Kingston Prisoner Who Fled Police.

CAR UNDAMAGED.

KINGSTON, Ont., Nov. 18. — (Canadian Press). — Word was received Tuesday by Chief of Police Robinson to the effect that the car in which John Lett made his getaway from this city on Thursday last has been found in the vicinity of Prescott, about sixty-five miles east of this city.

The car, which is the property of Col. C. F. Constantine, commandant of the Royal Military College, was in excellent condition, the only thing wrong with it being that the license plates are missing. Lett evidently having discarded these in his efforts to evade identification.

Lett, who was remanded on the charge of breaking his parole from the penitentiary, escaped last Thursday from an auto in which he was being taken from the police station to the jail.

BAD LUCK STALKS CHATHAM FARMER

Home Destroyed Three Times in Five Years.

CHATHAM, Ont., Nov. 18. — (Canadian Press).—Fred Caron, Paincourt farmer, although stalked by bad luck, is not going to allow himself to be discouraged by his unfortunate experiences of the past five years. In that time his home has been consumed by fire thrice. The first time his dwelling was destroyed by fire of an accidental nature. The second time the fire, which destroyed his home and farm buildings, was thought to be the work of an incendiary. Last week his home was destroyed when a quantity of gasoline exploded as his daughter was occupied in cleaning clothes. Tuesday he drove to the city to file papers to claim partial insurance on the last fire loss. One of his horses, bought recently at a price of $175, slipped on the icy pavement near Chatham and fell in such a way that it injured its spine and had to be shot.

ALLIES PREPARING NEW PROOFS OF GOOD WILL TOWARD GERMANY BY RELAXING ARMED OCCUPATION

Evacuation of Cologne Will Be Completed By February 20th.

MORE CONCESSIONS.

Confident Germany Will Reciprocate Release From Miltary Tenure.

LONDON, Nov. 18. — (Canadian Press).—Important correspondence issued by the Foreign Office last night, embodying the substance of recent conversations of the Ambassadors' Conference with Germany, shows that it has not only been decided to complete the evacuation of Cologne, or the first zone, by February 20, but to proceed shortly to reduce the occupying forces in the second and third zones to conform with the pre-war strength of the German garrisons, to vacate the land and buildings and abolish many war ordinances and restore the jurisdiction of the German courts, except in cases of a pronounced military nature.

The documents emphasize that the Allies, in thus showing confidence in the good-will of the German Government and people, are anticipating reciprocition of such confidence and goodwill.

Evidence of Goodwill.

The principal documents are two notes signed by M. Briand, the French Foreign Minister, in behalf of the conference, dated November 14 and November 16. The former states that the conclusion of the Locarno agreements testifies to the desire animating the governments who were parties to the agreements to introduce into their relations a spirit of good-will and confidence. Confident that the German Government will reciprocate these sentiments, the note announces the decision to "introduce into the occupation all alleviations compatible with the treaty of Versailles."

The note, recalling the concessions already announced, intimates that the Rhineland Commission is prepared to grant large measures of amnesty on satisfactory assurances being given by Germany with regard to the position of individuals having relations with the occupying armies.

The Rhineland Commission furthermore has a far-reaching plan of reforms under consideration, having a two-fold purpose—first, a considerable reduction of the number of occupying troops, and, second, the taking of all measures within the framework of the Rhineland agreement to facilitate the free exercise of German administration in the occupied territories.

To Vacate Buildings.

The note indicates the advantages of the foregoing to the German population and its relations with the occupying forces—that the reduction in troops to figures approaching normal will enable the return of lands and public buildings heretofore used for billeting troops and the suppression of the system of delegates entrusted with liason duties between the occupying troops and the German authorities.

Arrangements will be made to bring within the purview of German jurisdiction certain categories of cases, which now are within the competence of military courts. Finally, the ordinances in force will be revised in the same spirit of confidence and appeasement.

The high commission, it is declared, has been authorized to define the views of the interested governments and take all measures necessary to bring this new regime into force, and it is added that the German Government will doubtless afford the commission the fullest co-operation in the execution of these measures.

Oxford Graduate Prefers Dugout To Jail Quarters

SARNIA, Ont., November 18. — Canadian Press. — Roland Sewell, elderly Oxford University graduate, arrested on a vagrancy charge after making his home for weeks in a discarded apple pit, pleaded not guilty to the charge Tuesday, and was remanded for a week He said his camp was quite comfortable and warm and that he was much better there than with his companions with whom he had been quartered in jail since his arrest. He said he came to Canada 25 years ago, and had been a trapper, hunter and school teacher during his life time. He had often slept on harder places than the old apple pit, he told the court.

MINERS READY TO NEGOTIATE

President John L. Lewis Suggests "Spirit of Compromise."

NO PROGRESS YET.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 18. (Canadian Press).—The anthracite mine workers stand ready to negotiate a new wage contract "in a spirit of compromise and give and take" said John L. Lewis, international president of the United Mine Workers in a statement last night. They also stand ready, he said, to meet the operators "in amicable negotiations to work out a contract for from one to five years' continuous operation of the mines."

At Hazleton employees of the Jeddo-Highland Coal Company, one of the largest independent operators, received letters signed by the company showing the amount of wages they had lost in the last eleven weeks and suggesting that they urge their leaders to accept arbitration and enable the men to receive a Christmas pay.

"Don't be fooled by false news about an early settlement," the letters declared. "Almost every one who knows the facts believe this strike will last until next spring or longer unless arbitration is accepted."

To this Andrew Mattey, president of the Hazleton District of the United Mine Workers, asserted that a chance had been offered to the operators to renew the old contract at the same rates. When the attention of John L. Lewis, international president of the miners, was drawn to Mr. Mattey's assertion, he said that Mr. Mattey evidently referred to the proposal made after the Jacksonville soft coal agreement that the anthracite operators enter into a long term agreement on the wage contract then in force.

Declaring that the miners would not go back to work until they received an increase in wages, Father Curran of Wilkes-Barre urged members of the City Business Club at a luncheon to use their influence in obtaining this advance—"not a big raise, but something."

"Now the question is, if the miners get more money, how about the price of coal at the mine?" he continued. "The miners say the operators can make them an advance in wages on their present profits. I do not know whether they can or not. I am in favor of putting a little more on the value of coal to cover the increase to the miners. I feel the American people would be willing to go along.

"The miners in the anthracite fields to-day are just like children, waiting for the order of John L. Lewis, and Lewis will not give the order to the miners until they receive an advance in pay.

Discussing his conference with Mr. Lewis, Father Curran said he would continue to try to bring about a resumption of negotiations for a new working agreement. He thought something definite would take shape within a week.

WILL RECOUNT QUEENS VOTES

Request of Defeated Liberal Minister Granted—Result Was Close.

DOUBTFUL POLE.

CHARLOTTETOWN, P. E. I., Nov. 18.—(Canadian Press).—The constituency of Queen's, Prince Edward Island, returning two members to the House of Commons, which furnished probably the closest polling in the general elections of October 29, and was in the doubtful column until declaration day, will be featured by a recount, the petition of Hon. John E. Sinclair, Minister without portfolio in the King Government, having been granted yesterday by Judge W. S. Stewart. Hon. Mr. Sinclair was defeated by John A. Messervey, one of the Conservative candidates, by 32 votes. W. F. O'Connor, K.C., of Ottawa, will watch the recount proceedings in the interests of the Conservative candidate.

R. H. Jenkins, Liberal, led the polls, and his election was not in doubt at any time following the first return. He polled 8,167 votes. In the case of the three remaining candidates, Hon. Mr. Sinclair, John A. Messervey and D. McKinnon, Conservative, the voting was so close, that it was not known until declaration day proceedings, which were delayed several days to allow four isolated polls to make their returns, which of them would be declared elected. Each of the three was reported to be leading at times during the period between election and declaration day. Mr. Messervey was then declared elected with 7,432 votes. Mr. Sinclair got 7,400, and McKinnon 7,392.

The recount will be made Friday next.

TARIFF BOARD SCHEME URGED

Advocated By President of Montreal Chamber of Commerce.

WINNIPEG SPEECH.

WINNIPEG, Man., Nov. 18. — (Canadian Press). — The appointment of a tariff commission to act as an advisory board to the Federal Department of Trade and Commerce and to the Minister of Commerce, was advocated by Paul Joubert, president of the Montreal Chamber of Commerce, speaking at a Kiwanis luncheon here Tuesday.

In such a step lay about the only hope of solving the political confusion evidenced in the Federal elections, which Mr. Joubert said, had satisfied no one.

Mr. Joubert was hopeful of successful results from the present economic conference in session here. The discussion at least served as agencies for enabling one section of the Dominion to appreciate the viewpoint of the other. Only on this basis could there be founded a nation-wide amity.

CENTRIST PARTY RUPTURE HEALED

Dr. Joseph Wirth Makes Peace With Colleagues in Reichstag.

DRAMATIC SCENE.

CASSEL, Germany, Nov. 18. — (Canadian Press).—The Centrists' convention, in session here, which adopted a resolution of unanimous acknowledgment of the German Republic as laid down in the Weimar constitution, was the scene Tuesday of a dramatic reconciliation between Dr. Joseph Wirth and his party, and thus definitely disposed of the rupture between the former Chancellor and his party colleagues in the Reichstag.

Dr. Wirth was applauded as he announced his intention to continue to work in the party's ranks; whereupon Dr. Wilhelm Marx, leader of the party and also a former Chancellor, rushed up and grasped Wirth's hand, as the six hundred delegates cheered.

Dr. Wirth seceded from the party's parliamentary group last September declaring that he was opposed to apparent attempts to force the Centrists into a political orientation towards the Right.

OBITUARY.

HARRY BURKITT

CAMPBELLFORD, Nov. 17. — Mr. Joseph Douglas is mourning the loss of his nephew, Harry Burkitt, aged 19, who met a tragic death on Armistice Day while working as a lineman for the Bell Telephone Company at Port Perry. The young man was up a pole when the signal was given for two minutes of silence, and happened to touch a live wire having on no rubber gloves at the time. A shock of 23,000 volts passed through him and his body was burned almost to a cinder. He fell across the wire and remained suspended in the air, and great difficulty was met with in rescuing the remains.

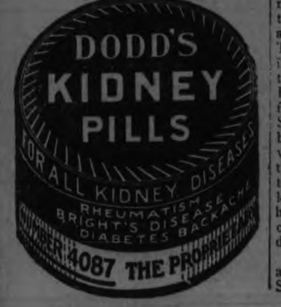
The young man was born in Madoc, where the funeral was held on Friday. The mother of the deceased resides in Peterboro, a sister lives at Sault Ste. Marie, and a brother at Corbyville. Among the relatives at the burial were the mother and brother and Mrs. Douglas of Campbellford; Thomas Burkitt of Madoc, grandfather; Mrs. Will Collins of Corbyville; Mrs. Archie Long of Peterboro; Mrs. Sam Tweedie of Ivanhoe, and Mrs. Mel Rose of Madoc.

The deceased enjoyed the goodwill of his fellow workers, and all who associated with him. Among the floral offerings at his funeral were wreaths from his employers in Port Perry, from the Bell Telephone employees at Oshawa, from the sister at Sault Ste. Marie, from Miss Hall and the Hall family with whom he boarded in Port Perry.

GEORGE TWIGG.

BETHANY, Nov. 18—The funeral service of the late George Twigg, which was held on Saturday afternoon, November 14th, was largely attended. Although the day was wet and disagreeable St. Paul's church was crowded to the doors with many standing outside. The Scripture lesson taken from the 15th Chapter of 1st Corinthians was read by Rev. T. A. Weir of Omemee, a former pastor and friend of the Twigg family. Rev. Mr. Feirheller chose his text from the 15th chapter of 1st Corinthians and part of the 34th verse: "Awake to righteousness and sin not for some have not the knowledge of God." His message was very comforting to the friends and relatives who mourn a good friend and kind neighbor. The pallbearers were two brothers-in-law, John Cisson and Wm. Davis; two nephews, John Staples and Byron Davis, and two intimate friends, J. R. Eakins and Lewis Staples. The floral tributes which banked the casket were many and very beautiful. Interment was in the family plot in St. Mary's cemetery at Lifford. Left to mourn a kind husband and loving father are his wife, Frances Graham, daughter of the late Captain Graham and one daughter, Pearl.

Among those from a distance to attend were: Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Swales and Mr. and Mrs. Bert Foster, Midland; Mr. and Mrs. H. Vance, Mr. and Mrs. John Douglas, Mrs. M. Weir, Mrs. P. Fitzgerald and Mrs. Mildred Soden, Peterboro; F. Bowen, M.P.P. and Mrs. Bowen, Orono; Mrs. F. W. Galbraith, Port Hope; Mr. W. F. Skitch, Peterboro; Miss Hannah Staples, Toronto; Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Eakins, Miss Grandy, Mr. and Mrs. T. Harkness and Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Douglas, Millbrook; Mr. John Staples, Lindsay; Mr. Wm. Davey, Orono; Mr. Geo. McCartney, Peterboro; Mr. Thos. Graham of Cornwall, and Mr. and Mrs. James McMullen, Lotus.



A SOCIAL EVENING.

Mr. and Mrs. John Nichol Entertained Their Friends To Fine Supper.

ROSENEATH, Nov. 18.—On Friday evening Mr. and Mrs. John Nichol were host and hostess to some of their friends when a bountiful supper of good things, including oysters, was served to over fifty guests.

The first evening of their arrival home from their honeymoon some of the men and boys called upon them—to use an old-time term—to chivaree them, when it was decided to hold the oyster supper. This same bunch wished to show their appreciation in some tangible way, so during the course of the evening Mr. and Mrs. Nichol were called to come forward and accept a Coleman gas lamp, which, although a surprise, was deeply appreciated.

The remainder of the evening was spent in friendly games of euchre, etc., and all felt that they had spent a very enjoyable evening.

Personals.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Grigg went to Toronto Saturday to meet their son, Mr. Charlton Grigg, who is attending the Ontario Agricultural College at Guelph, and also to visit the Winter Fair while in the city.

HUNTERS BRING HOME FULL BAG

Campbellford's Meat Supply Augmented By Steaks of Venison.

FARM IS SOLD.

CAMPBELLFORD, Nov. 18. — If there was anything like a fresh meat famine in Campbellford, it would be relieved by the amount of venison that is being brought in by hunters returning from the wilds. "We got our complement," is the invariable answer of every club to the query, "What luck?"

The Campbellford Hunt Club of which John Gay is president, secured seven deer, the largest of which, and one of the first taken, was shot by Harry D. Atkinson.

The Long Lake Hunt Club, among the members of which are A. L. Riendeau and Dr. O. C. Watson of town, and whose camp is located somewhere in Haliburton, secured seven deer. Four of these were shot by Dr. Anderson, a confirmed Nimrod from Wooler.

John Harnden and party hunted near Bancroft and have returned with four deer, the largest of which weighs 260 pounds. This is the biggest prize so far reported.

The Long Lake Club were unable to bring out their trophies of the chase, as owing to the recent heavy rains, it was impossible to get a team or motor truck into the camp. Every pond had become a lake and every stream had become a frozen river. Only the hunter who was a sturdy swimmer, felt absolutely safe as he left the camp for the deer trails.

The oldest hrunter to go to the woods from this district is J. R. Rees of Wooler, who is 86 and who has not missed a season since he was big enough to know which end of a gun was the danger point. He is still in camp, so that the measure of his success is not yet known.

Free Farm Sold.

A. S. Free has sold his farm home out the Hastings Road to A. G. Watson of A. G. Watson and Company, town, and the new owner, who has disposed of his present residence on Sebastapol Street, will take possession in a short time. Mr. Free will have an auction sale of his stock and implements and part of his household effects on Saturday.

The place which has just changed hands is situated on a leading thoroughfare just outside the town limits. The house, a two-storey brick, built by the late B. F. Frederick, stands on an eminence and commands a fine view of the surrounding country in every direction. It is the ideal home, containing as it does, all urban and rural advantages and with fertile land attached sufficient to make the desirable farm. Mr. Free has owned the place for the past 25 years, and disposes of it now only because of advancing years.

Mr. and Mrs. Free will move into the brick residence which they built about three years ago to the east of their farm and near the municipal boundary.

C. E. at St. Andrew's.

The regular meeting of St. Andrew's Young People's Society of Christian Endeavor was held on Monady evening with a good attendance. Bert Stephens occupied the chair in the absence of the president. The committee on constitution, gave their final report, and this was considered.

Miss Kathleen Connor gave a splendid paper on the topic of the evening "The Spirit of Lawlessness and How to Prevent It," dealing with the great amount of lawlessness there is at the present among people who are not church-goers. This was followed by a humorous reading by Miss Margery Ackerman. After the singing of a hymn, the meeting closed with the Mispah Benediction.

The next regular meeting of the society will be held on Monday evening next, and all the young people of the congregation are cordially invited to attend.

LAKEFIELD NOW FIFTY YEARS OLD

Village Was Incorporated in 1875—Has Had Several Names.

BOULTON REEVE.

LAKEFIELD, Nov. 18.—Fifty years ago Lakefield was incorporated as a village with the late Major Boulton its first reeve. There are many of the older residents of the village who remember the event, which naturally was regarded as most important. Lakefield as a "post village" was in existence for many years previous to its incorporation and was known in its day by various names, including: Selby, Herriott's Falls and North Douro. The first post office was established in 1847 and was situated at the foot of the Mackenzie Hill, later the post office was moved to the frame building, now occupied by E. J. Millage and later still to the frame building at the corner of Queen and Reir Streets, owned by Mr. W. H. Casement and in 1915 moved again into the fine brick structure on the corner of Queen and Bridge streets. Mr. Robert Casement was the first postmaster and was succeeded by his nephew, Mr. W H. Casement who still holds the office. The town hall was at one time in the frame building on Water street at present used as the municipal stables. The brick structure which is well remembered was built about 1889 but was totally destroyed by fire December 27, 1918. The present structure was built to [illegible] the burned building and was [illegible] formally on January 25th, 1921.

DEBATE HELD AT HIGH SCHOOL

Affirmative Won, Upholding Benefits of Great War to Canada.

GOOD PROGRAMME.

CAMPBELLFORD, Nov. 18. — At the meeting of the High School Literary Society held Monday afternoon the subject debated was, "Resolved that the benefits of the Great War to Canada exceed the evils."

Dorothy West and James Newson, who upheld the affirmative, maintained that the war had raised this country from the status of a colony to that of a nation, that it had given Canada a place in the League of Nations and that it had proved the patriotism of the people and strengthened the bonds that hold the British Empire together.

Loretta Sarginson and Grant Thain took the negative side of the question and handled their task ably, but the judges, Helen MacDonald, Jack McAvoy and Stuart Carr, gave their decision in favor of the affirmative by a score of 9 to 7.

The students of Form IV. provided the following programme:

Piano solo—Irving Clemens.
Current events—Mabel Inkster.
Solo—Doris Mason.
Violin solo—Ted Blute.
Reading—Margery Ackerman.
Instrumental duet—Ranie Watson and Monica Blute.
The Highland fling—Ada Bond.
Solo—Cherrie Turner.

D. McComb, the President, was in the chair. Speaking for the judges and critic, Stuart Carr said that while some of those who took part in the programme had not spoken very loudly, the meeting had been well conducted.

MILLBROOK, Nov. 18. — The local school board held its regular meeting on Friday evening, routine business receiving attention. The chief item to come up for consideration was the awarding of the Dr. Norman Allen Scholarship, Robert Shaw having the honor of being the winner this year. If taken according to the directions, together with Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Purgative Pellets, I am convinced that there is no better tonic. ANIVERNSARY OF MARMORA CHURCH

Sermon Delivered By Rev. L. Jull, of Lakefield, Revisiting Congregation.

SPECIAL MUSIC

MARMORA, Nov. 18.—Very imposing services at 11 and 7.30 marked the anniversary of Marmora United Church on Sunday last. For the occasion the church was prettily adorned with geranium, fern and other foliage. The musical portion of the morning service was most effectively taken by the Deloro Choir and the Deloro String Quartette (Messrs. S. B. Wright, A. V. Yates, R. Hunter and W. L. Rigg). Mrs. Ross Hunter very ably accompanied on the organ. Instrumental selections were rendered in the following order:—Prelude—Choping Chorale—Mendelssohn; Interludium—Glazounov; Gloria from Mass in B-flat—Haydn. In their rendition of "Intercessory Hymn" (Ed. German) and Kipling's Recessional as anthems, the finely balanced choir excelled itself.

Marked interest was displayed by the large congregation present in the sermon delivered by the Rev. P. L. Jull, B.A., of Lakefield, who was revisiting for the day, scenes of former ministerial labours. The reverend gentleman chose for his text, 1 Cor., 6:2—"The saints shall judge the world."

He commenced by noting how most people are afraid of the name "saint" and are slow to associate themselves with such, thinking a saint to be dreamy and surrounded with an halo. The saints Paul referred to, were commonplace men and women of the Jews or Gentiles, who were touched with the spirit of Christ, therefore the message of Paul is applicable to professing Christians today. They, too, shall judge the world. Paul cast shame upon Corinthian Christians for going to heathen law for redress of wrongs done to each other among themselves, thus dragging their good name in the mire. "Know ye not" he enquired, "that the saints shall judge the world?" This idea of judgment was not new. It is to be found in the 19th Psalm and in the gospels of Matthew, Luke and John, as well as in the Revelations of John. Such references, the early Christians took in a literal sense. They looked for Christ's return in their own lifetime. They were disappointed however, in their dearest hope. Whatever the fullest significance of these references, we know this. There was the belief in the heart of Christ that He and His cause would ultimately prevail. He pointed to the day when love should prevail over hatred and suspicion, generosity over greed and Christ over anti-Christ. "Fear not, little flock," He said, "for it is your Father's good pleasure to give you the Kingdom." If we are following a victorious Christ ought we not to live in His glorious spirit? Is it not a fact that there are a lot of cowards in the Church? In the days of the war, there was not a man with British blood who did not believe but what we would win. We have dark days in the Church, but yonder is the Christ, who says, "Let the whole line advance." It is the men and women who live in the spirit of Christ who set the pace of the world's life. They are the world's conscience. What would the world have of true manliness and womanliness without the men and women of God? The saints are judging the world now. There is a day for speech as instanced in the lives of Elijah, Nathan and others. So long as the Church of Christ is breeding prophets, then it wil be judging the life of its time and doing the service of Jesus Christ. It is to be noticed that there is more heroism on the Church's mission fields and elsewhere in days of peace than on any of the battlegrounds of the world-war does not decide which side is right in the end. It only decides which side was stronger. The saints of God must denounce war as a means of settling disputes between nations. Then again the ballot of the illiterate foreigner is at present equal to that of the intellectual Britisher. It then follows that we should put forth effort in Christianizing the ideas of our foreign residents. "We are on the bench and honoured in being judges," Rev. Jull concluded by a four-fold appeal to men and women, and to young men and young women to render judgment as always given by the Man above men.

The spirit of rejoicing was carried into the evening service when the attendance was again good. Mrs. W. Litt presided at the organ. Bright hymns were again sung and the anthem, "Praise ye the Father" well rendered by the regular choir. A very attractive discourse was again forthcoming from the Rev. P. L. Jull, based on thewords "Launch out into the deep." Briefly, his message was that success often lies very close to failure and the spirit of the come-back should be exercised that refuses to accept defeat as the final word. The pastor, in course of the service, announced the possibility of Dean N. W. DeWitt, of Victoria College, Toronto, being the preacher on the next Sunday.

Following the evening service, a very fine Mendelssohn Recital was given in the following order.—

Soprano, Miss Lorraine Bell; contralto, Mss. F. R. Wells; Tenor, Mr. W. M. Lester; organ, Rev. F. J. Horwood, Mus. Bac. 1, Biography of Mendelssohn; 2, Allegretto (Hymn of Praise) organ; 3, "O For the Wings of a Dove," soprano; 4, Overture to "Elijah," organ; 5, "If with All Your Hearts (Elijah), tenor; 6, Prelude in G, organ; 7, "O Rest in The Lord" (Elijah) contralto; 8, Songs without words—No. 30. 30—Spring Song; No. 27—Funeral March; No. 42—Traveller's Song, organ; 9, Wedding March from "Midsummer's Night Dream," organ.

OMEMEE CELLARS WERE FLOODED

OMEMEE, Nov. 18.—The heavy downpour of rain, which commenced on Thursday evening and continued all night and at intervals on Friday, Saturday and Sunday, caused many cellars to be flooded with water, which for years past had not been affected. Furnace fires were quenched and could not be reached until the water had subsided. In several places on the low roads, the water stretched from side to side and washed out the embankments. Owing to the previous rains, the highway between Lindsay and Peterborough, has suffered. Motorists state the road has not been in so choppy a condition for years, and many have already taken the train rather than travel by car.

The farmers in this vicinity have been working under difficulties in order to get the balance of the harvest and root crop saved. A few fields of flax and buckwheat may yet be seen standing. The ground has become so saturated that it is impossible to put a binder on them. Other fields may be seen in shocks, but they have been drenched so often, the grain is not worth saving. The quality in many cases, is poor, owing to the early frosts when the bloom was at its height.

Red clover has been fairly well saved, but the quality is also poor, many blackheads being prevalent.

The root crop has been garnered in but many farmers are fearing the heavy frosts which struck the mangolds while they were still in the fields, and as soft ones are already appearing, much waste will have resulted before the crop is fed.

The potato crop in this vicinity has been probably more favorable than in many districts. Many residents will have enough for their own provision, while others have some for sale. The price has not reached the extreme of some markets. Up until a week ago, the retail price was from $1.50 to $1.75 per bag, but the market has now advanced to $2.00. Many complaints of rot, since being put in winter quarters, are being heard, and before spring they may be a luxury. The small white bean is already in demand by those who wish to prolong the potato supply.

The ploughing is far from being completed and many fields will not be fit for cultivation this fall, and farmers in general are becoming discouraged plunging through mud, and hoping the ground may soon freeze up.

The hog market has been pleasing, the price offered for last week's shipment was $11.25 per cwt.

Dairy butter is becoming more plentiful since the cold weather set in, the retail price being 43c per lb. The egg production is at its lowest period and is fast failing off. The price per doz. is 80c.

Many fatalities to animals are being reported this fall, while Mr. David Weir was threshing on Friday, the straw stack fell, burying a cow and calf, both of which were smothered.

Mr. B. Pogue suffered the loss of a valuable heifer, last week. The animal wandered into the barn while feed was being put down through a trap door in the floor, and she fell to the ground beneath. The veterinary surgeon attended but she had been hurt internally, and she only lived a short time.

Mr. Fred Hart had the misfortune to lose one of his sorrel team last week; death being due to indigestion.

A horse belonging to Mr. John Lowes suffered a broken hip, recently and had to be shot, to relieve its agonies.

Messrs. Eli and Ed. Dancey shipped a car-load of cattle to Toronto on Saturday. The latter's brother accompanied the car.

While several head were being driven to Omemee by Messrs Wm. J. and Stewart Bannon, five of them became crazed and jumped into the river by the mills. They swam up the pond and huddled in a heap near some bushes and a boat had to be secured in order to bring them to land, where they proceeded to their destination without any further trouble.

ATTENDANCE AT SCHOOL IS IMPROVED

Daily Average in British Columbia Is Now 82 Per Cent.

VANCOUVER, B.C., Nov. 17 (Canadian Press)—British Columbia has more than 96,000 children in her schools, with an average daily attendance of 82 per cent. This proportion has been growing from 56 per cent, when British Columbia joined Confederation. There were only about 1,000 pupils in 1871.

The cost of the Provincial Government of its department of education is a little over $3,000,00 annually, covering 760 school districts.

Cities of the first class, such as Vancouver, now receive $460 from the department for each teacher employed; those of the second class get $520; of the third class, $565, and in rural municipalities and organized rural schools, the grant is $580 for each teacher.

CAR SIDESWIPED BY RUNAWAY TEAM

Damage Slight in Exciting Dash at Omemee.

OMEMEE, Nov. 18.—A runaway team of horses is almost as uncommon a sight in Omemee as one could think of, but on Monday afternoon, those who were on King Street about 4.30 o'clock had the experience of witnessing this unusual sight while Mr. Hickson, of Reaboro, son of Fred Hickson, was loading bags of chop at the grist mill, the horses became frightened and made a sudden dash for liberty. They turned the corner at the foundry and up King street and, when noticed, the tongue of the waggon was down, scraping on the pavement. When they reached the Post-office corner, two tugs broke and the whiffletrees followed the horses, leaving the waggon, which when following its own course came in contact with a McLaughlin car which was standing in front of the Temperance House. The car was facing the wrong direction on this side of the street but only a broken fender resulted. The horses continued on their flight until they reached Mr. E. Jamiesons' blacksmith shop at the Western section of the village and it is a miracle that no more damage was done, other than the wreck of the two vehicles.

OBITUARY

Miss Sarah Beatty.

In the death of Miss Sarah Beatty, Omemee has lost one of its old and most highly esteemed citizens. Miss Beatty passed away on Wednesday afternoon following a brief illness, having sustained a stroke on Tuesday from which she never regained consciousness. Deceased lady, who was a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. George Beatty, was born in Omemee, and spent all her life here. She was a member of Christ Church and a worker in the Women's Auxiliary of that church. The funeral which was held on Friday was very largely attended by friends from far and near. Rev. A. T. Weir, of Christ Church, conducted the service and spoke feelingly of the "gap" left in the home, the Church and the Auxiliary.

Many beautiful flowers adorned the bronze casket, in which the remains were tenderly borne to their last resting place in the Emily cemetery by Messrs. E. Dancey, H. Jones, J. Williams, R. Grandy, F. Evans and J. Bent.

The sympathy of a host of friends goes out to the bereaved sister, Miss Margaret and two brothers, Messrs. John and Joseph T. Beatty in their deep sorrow.

COLBORNE COUNCIL WILL BUY CHAIRS

Three Hundred Will Be Purchased For New Hall.

COLBORNE, Nov. 18.—At the regular meeting of Colborne village council it was decided to purchase 300 chairs to be used in the new hall.

On Tuesday evening a number of friends gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. F. C. Morrow to honor a bride-to-be, Miss Mabel Turney. A very happy evening was spent and the prospective bride received many pretty gifts.

A pleasant event took place here on Friday evening when about fifty friends took possession of the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Cotton to honor them upon occasion of their silver wedding. Mrs. Colton was asked to don wedding finery, and with her husband entered the room, where their friends were assembled, to the strains of Lohengrin's Wedding March played by Mrs. J. F. Wilson. Mrs. E. Clark read an address and Mr. J. F. Wilson presented the happy couple with a handsome reflector and a basket containing 21 beautiful roses. The address was signed by F. Clarke, A. T. Fleming, F. M. Brintness and S. C. Moore.

Mr. and Mrs. Colton made appropriate replies.

With Rev. S. C. Moore as chairman, who gave a brief address, an interesting programme was carried out with a song by Eileen and Jean Vandervoort; recitation, Mary Comstock; duet by Miss Clarke and Mrs. Colton; readings by Mrs. S. C. Moore, Mrs. Edwards and Miss Sinclair and selections by the Rainbow Orchestra.

A dainty lunch was followed by toasts made by H. W. Vandervoort, Rev. S. C. Moore, and A. T. Fleming, and ably responded to by Messrs. J. F. Wilson, F. M. Brentnell and Mrs. Sinclair.

Death Of Dr. Fowler.

Dr. R. V. Fowler, formerly of Colborne, passed away at Perth. He was a son of the late George O. Fowler, for many years Customs Officer at Colborne. Besides his widow, formerly Miss Edith M. Hogg of Perth, he leaves a son, Arthur C. Fowler, student at Toronto Medical College and one daughter, Mrs. J. E. Johnston of Owen Sound.

Damaged By Fire.

The home of Mr. Todd, formerly the D. L. Simmons place, was considerably damaged by fire on Wednesday, which probably originated from the pipes. The family was away at the time but the brigade promptly responded and kept the fire from going below the second storey of the main part of the structure and also saved the wing. Contents were considerably damaged by water and smoke.

Successful Anniversary.

$300 was placed upon the plates at the Thankoffering services of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church which were held on Sunday. Rev. Dr. McTavish of Belleville was the preacher for the day. The choir gave excellent service with Mrs. Byers as soprano soloist.

A lecture given recently to the students of the School of Pharmacy in London marked a record in the eighty-four years of the Royal Pharmaceutical Society, for the reason that it was delivered by a woman, the first to do so in the society's history. The lecturer was Dr. Winifred Cullis, professor of physiology at the University of London, and one of the most striking feminine personalities in the British medical profession.

Kidney Troubles brought Pains in the Back

Mrs. Wm. Walker, Webbwood, Ont., writes:—

"I was sick for several months with my stomach. I had pains in the back, and how I used to dread wash day for my back would pain so that I couldn't lie down when night came. I also had gas on my stomach, and my appetite was so poor that sometimes I did not care whether I ate or not. At last I started to use Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, and although I have only used three boxes, I am quite well again, and able to do my work both in the house and outside.

"And to think I was poisoning my own Baby!"

"I couldn't see why he didn't gain. I never dreamed that my constipation was responsible until the doctor told me.

"He explained that faulty or slow elimination of waste matter allowed poisons to form and be absorbed by the blood—and this meant tainted milk for baby.

"He prescribed the Nujol treatment and it made a world of difference to both of us. Now that I know how dangerous constipation is and how easily it is prevented, I am never going to allow myself to get into that condition again."

Nujol helps Nature in Nature's own way

Mothers are the best friends of Nujol. When precious new lives are at stake they seek the remedy that medical authorities approve because it is so safe, gentle, and natural in its action.

Constipation is dangerous for anybody. Nujol is safe for everybody. It does not affect the stomach and is not absorbed by the body.

Nujol simply makes up for a deficiency—temporary or chronic—in the supply of natural lubricant in the intestines. It softens the waste matter and thus permits thorough and regular elimination, without overtaxing the intestinal muscles.

Nujol can be taken for any length of time without ill effects. To insure internal cleanliness, it should be taken regularly in accordance with the directions on each bottle. Unlike laxatives, it does not form a habit and can be discontinued at any time.

Ask your druggist for Nujol to-day and begin to enjoy the perfect health that is possible only when elimination is normal and regular.

LABOR SENATOR SAYS VOTE LAW EFFECTS RESULT

People Vote For Candidates Who Oppose Direct Action.

ONE MINISTER OUT.

Fate of Senator R. V. Wilson is Still in Doubt—90 Per Cent Vote.

HOBART, Tasmania, Nov. 17.—(Canadian Press.) — J. E. Ogden, Labor Senator for Tasmania, in a speech here last night expressed the belief that the compulsory voting system which was in operation at the general election in the Commonwealth last Saturday for the first time, had considerable effect on the result of the election. He said the latent power of the unattached vote was not exercised as it would have been normally, but the forced vote cast the weight of the electorate on the side of the candidates who had offered the best security against direct action by the Communists."

SENATOR NOT ELECTED.

MELBOURNE, Australia, Nov. 17.—(Canadian Press.)— All the ministers of the Bruce government have been re-elected with the exception of Senator R. V. Wilson, where fate is doubtful at present. It is estimated that 90 per cent. of the electors voted on Saturday.

KING SAYS HIS PLAN

tor for which I myself or the Government would be solely responsible," states Premier W. L. Mackenzie King, in a statement issued late last night, explaining the reasons which have caused him not to seek a seat in the House of Commons before Parliament assembles.

Indicating the probability of Parliament meeting next month, to test and decide the contention that the Government is not entitled to "carry on." Premier King states that "It is obviously desirble and in every way in the public interest that all doubts in this matter should be speedily removed.

"Once the question on party majority is settled, adjustment of Parliament can be made to enable whichever party may be entrusted with the duty of carrying on the government, time within which to conduct the necessary bye-elections and have in readiness the further work of the session. Fortunately this can be arranged before the present year is out in a manner which wholly accords with the customs and practices of parliament."

The statement continues: "The Right Hon. leader of the Opposition has challenged the right of the Government to continue in office. To test and decide the contention that the Government is not entitled to carry on, Parliament is beinb summoned at the earliest practicable date. The test can be made just as soon after the members assemble as the leader of the Opposition cares to raise the issue. "In former years, when Parliament was summoned in the Fall or early Winter months, an adjournment over Christmas and New Year was invariable practice. In recent years the practice has been not to call Parliament together till on towards the end of January or of February. The interests of the country will, therefore, in no way suffer, if as soon as parliament meets, the question of majority support is decided and an adjournment is to be made to permit of the party enjoying the support of the majority of the House of Commons making the necessary arrangements for the continuance at the proper time of the work of the session. On the other hand a course of procedure which might prolong into the New Year the settlement of this one question upon which all subsequent governmental action is contingent, could scarcely prove to be other than vexatious and prejudicial to the best interests of the country both at home and abroad."

CAVAN PERSONALS.

Mrs. B. F. Carley has returned to her home in Toronto after a short visit with friends here.

How old is 65?

Dr. Robt. G. Jackson says it's mere youth. Last year at 65 he won the $1,000 Physical Culture prize and a 1300 mile bicycle contest against a man 35. Dr. Jackson was formerly a physical wreck but Roman Meal, milk and vegetables transformed him into a vigorous "Youth at 65", 98% perfect physically.

'Y' GIRLS HELD SUPPER MEETING

Girls New To Association Were Initiated in Splendid Manner.

FIRST OF SEASON.

The first membership supper of the season was held at the Y. W. C. A. last evening, with an attendance of nearly sixty of the members, including about forty girls who were new to the "Y," and were put through an initiation ceremony that brought home to them the ideals and purposes of the institution. The tables in the supper room were prettily decorated with yellow crepe paper and flowers. The supper was provided by members of the "Y" committee, with convenors in Mrs. H. Wightman and Miss A. Wood. After supper, there were songs and words of welcome from Miss Margaret Hamilton, vice-president of the Y.W.C.A., followed by a very amusing stunt in two acts, in which several girls took part. This represented the trials of various young ladies who received assistance and succor at the "Y," and had a wonderful time after their admission to its membership. Those taking part were: Miss Nellie Francis as Hannah Homeless; Miss Marion Bowerman as Jennie Jobless; the Misses Verda and Dorothy Graham, as Hattie and Hortense Healthless; Miss Hazel Jackson as Bertha Brainless; Miss Lillian Nesbitt as Frieda Friendless; Miss Lena Zimmerman as Susie Styleless; Miss Violet Perryer as Priscilla Pepless; and Miss Margaret Storey as the Nice Girl. Miss Caroline Littlefield acted as the gymnasium teacher, and the verses of the stunt were read by Miss Leta Brownscombe.

CRYPTIC WORDS OF MUSSOLINI CAUSE COMMENT

"New Revolutionary Act" Is Puzzling Italian Politicians.

EXPECT NEW STROKE.

Success is Believed to Depend on Lack of Publicity.

ROME, Nov. 18 (Canadian Press) —Twice recently Premier Mussolini, usually blunt and absolutely direct of utterance, has given Italy a mysterious phrase to conjure with, and speculation now is rife about a startling "trump card" which it is asserted the Fascist dictator is preparing to play.

The first phrase which is gathering echoes in political circles is a veiled prediction of a "new revolutionary act" contained in an interview printed in The Ordine Fascistua in which Mussolini referring to his opponents said: "At a certain point some action will be taken which will stop all this noise and this will be a new revalutionary act destined to complete the revolution and direct it towards its inexorable goal."

The second remark was to an audience of Milanese Fasciste: "I give you an appointment for next year. The place of our meeting is unknown."

Political observers point out that botoh phrases were left unexplained, and express the opinion that the Premier is preparing some stroke, the success of which depends upon the lack of publicity.

TORONTO, Nov. 18.—(Canadian Press).—Andrew H. Pepall was again placed on the stand to-day when his trial was resumed before Mr. Justice Wright and a jury. He faces charges of theft and bribery, arising out of the Ontario Government transactions in bonds in England.

Pepall was questioned as to his accumulations and exchanges of bonds. He swore that he had never received Saskatoon five per cent. bonds, coupons from which had been found in the bank deposit of Peter Smith, who was Provincial Treasurer of Ontario from 1919 to 1923.

VETERANS' MEETING.

Unattached Men Are Asked To Express Views on Veterans' Unity.

In the Armories at 8 o'clock on Friday evening, Nov. 20, a meeting of unattached veterans will be held for the purpose of hearing several prominent returned men speak to the question of "The Unity of all Veterans and Veteran Organizations in this Dominion," as expounded by Field-Marshal Earl Haig during his recent visit to Canada.

This meeting will afford an opportunity to a considerable body of veterans of this city and district who have not as yet been heard from on this question.

The delegate representing this district at the Dominion Unity Conference to be held at Winnipeg on the 25th November, will be present and has promised to take up there any resolution for the good of the cause that may be adopted.

Great War and other attached Veterans will be welcome.

NORTH MONAGHAN COUNCIL

The November meeting of the Township Council of North Monaghan was held at the Court House on Monday, November 16, with Reeve Rye in the chair.

A deputation composed of Messrs. Deck and Sucee called upon the Council for the purpose of asking that the drain along the 11th concession line might be deepened for the purpose of draining Mr. Deck's property. They were informed by the Council that their request was for the benefit of private property and that the Council could not see its way clear to do anything in the matter. Mr. Deck was given authority, and agreed to accept it, to put tile in the bottom of the drain from his place to a point where there was considerable fall, near Sucee's creek, at his own expense.

The Council passed a resolution authorizing the Road Commissioner for road division No. 5 to notify those property-owners having fences across the lane north of New Romaine street to remove the forthwith.

A communication was read from F. C. McRae, Agricultural Representative, asking for a grant of $10 for the Peterboro County Ploughmen's Association. This request was granted.

The Brinton Carpet Company wrote asking permission to lay a water connection to the Otonabee River. This request was also granted, covering crossing township roads only.

The following charity bills were passed and ordered to be paid:

W. J. Fitzgerald, wood, $4; A. E. Saunders, groceries, $21.69; W. J. Byers, groceries, $3.98; Peterboro Fuel and Transfer Co., wood, $7.

A resolution was passed that Archie Patterson be paid the balance in full for the dump ground property on the deed being handed over to the Council.

The meeting adjourned. The next regular meeting will be held on Tuesday, December 15.

NEW KIND OF WHEAT OFFERED FARMERS

Garnet Wheat Has So Far Shown No Weaknesses in Tests.

OTTAWA, Nov. 18. — (Canadian Press)—Wheat production promises to receive a new impetus. It will, perhaps, be given a new stimulus as was received when Marquis wheat first was developed and made available to the farmers.

A new kind of wheat is about to occupy the stage. This is Garnet wheat which, unless final tests, which are to be made in the course of the next few months, show weakness not hitherto discovered, is to be made available for seed purposes next spring.

BATHING BEACHES ARE BETTER NOW

Mayor Points Out That Sewage Will Be removed Soon.

In an interview with the Mayor this morning regarding the bathing beaches, His Worship pointed out the difficulties which faced the Council and the Board of Health in the matter of taking sewage out of the river, and said that after much thought and many meetings, the work is now well under way, and by the time the new sewage disposal plant is in operation, sewage that is now entering the river will be diverted through a sewer that is to be built this fall on Simcoe Street to clean up that part of the water front. While the accommodation for dressing facilities, he said, are not as adequate as desired, this difficulty will be gradually overcome and eventually the accommodation will be sufficient and of a kind in keeping with the needs of the work. Every year shows improvement, he said, "but we can only progress as we have money to pay." Each Council, he said, has an objective before it, and eventually some council will reach the final stage when all has been provided.

ORLAND NEWS

ORLAND, Nov. 18. —The prolonged heavy rains have given the farmers a big setback in ploughing, hauling in buckwheat and turnips.

Wallace Mutton's mill dam broke away again for the third time in the last 10 months.

Austin Dingman has purchased the Frank Strong farm from the Provincial Government and will move on it as soon as Thomas Gilbride's lease expires next spring.

Willet Simpson, Kenneth Ames and Ira King have gone to the northern wilds to try their luck and skill in securing deer.

Samuel Hazelwood still remains at Wellesly Hospital, Toronto, where he went some days since for an X-ray. He is reported to be slightly better.

Chas. Lawson and W. J. Latimer have gone to Brighton to make some alterations in the interior of the Clarendon Hotel.

Walter Reycraft sold a carload of 480 bushels of Swede turnips to W. J. Latimer who is buying for a firm in Brantford, who had them shipped to N.Y. state. This is the first car of turnips ever shipped from Brighton.

Mrs. A. Dewey has gone to Brighton to work in the Dominion cannery.

Many people claim that their dwellings leaked during the heavy rain, and also cellars were more flooded than at any time previous.

Rev. Woodland closed the special meetings here Sunday, November 15th. The congregations were large considering the bad weather.

Geo. Stacey, who died in Ottawa on Friday, was a brother of the late Jas. Stacey of Trenton. He leaves a widow who is a sister of Mrs. Jas. Wright of this place. The funeral services will be conducted at his home Monday, November 16. Mr. and Mrs. Stacey resided for many years at Portage La Prairie, Man., previous to their coming to Ottawa.

Maurice Ames is making extensive additions and repairs to the United church parsonage in Hilton.

The weekly dances held in the town hall at Hilton were brought to a close on Thursday evening by the Township Council cancelling the lease of Mr. Fred Kemp, general merchant here.

Phillip Grosjene reports seeing twelve pheasants lately which are undoubtedly the product of eggs furnished by the game department to farmers in this locality.

Walter Reycraft had a pig stolen from the pen and was not alone in his losses as he found that on the same night Mrs. Willet Simpson lost a quantity of butter and Keith Montgomery a large flock of geese.

A culvert on the Campbellford and Trenton County Provincial Highway at D. R. Hennessy's was so damaged by the heavy rain that it had to be planked over that traffic might not be interrupted until permanent repairs can be made or a new culvert installed.

Willet Simpson's threshing outfit is stranded in the Orser neighborhood at the farm of McGuire Bros. on account of the new high grade of heavy clay at that particular place, which is very soft and wet.

Some of the trappers are certifying their success by the powerful aroma that taints the atmosphere. Frank Cooper has been successful in capturing 16 of these beautiful animals.

MIAMI BOOMING IN PROSPERITY

Once Sleepy Town Dreaming of Affluence and Population Now Has Both.

LESS SPECULATION.

MIAMI, Fla., Nov. 17.—The city of Miami, with its various tributary and neighboring winter-resort developments, has outgrown itself until it is like a 12-year-old boy in a pair of size 2 rompers. But, while those growing pains are most uncomfortable for a lot of people who live, work and drive automobiles in Miami, they are not worrying about it. The good times that this once sleepy town of 30,000 despaired of seeing are here.

Up north, on the road down here and in other Florida cities, we heard with clicking tongues the prophecy that the bottom would fall out of the Miami boom within six months. But Miamians do not see it that way. They have a population now of 71,410, according to a 1925 State census and a greater Miami population of 100,000. The opinion of a number of old-time residents who have been studying the real-estate skyrocket is that the peak in prices will not be reached until the population is trebled.

Speculation Less Brisk.

However, it is apparent that speculation is not so brisk as it was, although building progresses more rapidly every day. Miami is getting materials through its shallow harbor from four-masted windjammers, while other cities of the State to the north are tied into double bowknots in their construction programs by railroad embargoes. The "binder boys" have departed from Miami, leaving in their wake mussed titles and inflated values, which somehow stay up. A recurrence of practice of tying up acreage and city lots by small "binder" payments is keeping L. W. Crow, President of the Miami Realty Board, from enjoying his tradewind sleep. He urges adoption of a trading practice that would demand at least 10 per cent. initial payments, closing dates ten to fifteen days instead of two months, and that abstracts be kept up to date.

Just what Miami has done in growth is shown in comparative figures for a decade. In 1914, the Assessor's valuation of city property was $6,635,837. In 1925 he says it is worth $87,469,874, a 614 per cent. increase. Postoffice receipts increased correspondingly, from $67,547.62 in 1914, to $414,380 in 1924. The Federal census of 1910 gave Miami 5,471 persons, ten years later it was 29,649. The State census of 1923 was 47,021, and today it is 71,419 in the city proper. Upwards of 30,000 more persons live in the immediate area.

Great Building Growth.

Building permits in 1914 were $617,525. In 1924 they were $17,038,164. For the growth of October this year alone they totaled $10,182,425. A building growth in ten years of 2,662 per cent. Bank clearings in 1924, first year of the Miami clearing house, were $101,-747,021. For the nine months of this year the total is estimated to run above $700,000,000.

Money is in the air here more so than in any American city today, not excepting New York and Chicago. There is more in these cities, surely enough, but it is not talked as awesomely. Here, such men as Carl Fisher, builder of the Indianapolis speedway, who built Miami Beach in the last twelve years, eorge E. Merrick, dreamer of Coral Gables, and a few others, by the size of their programs for a winter playground, started the boom that has spread all over the State.

Carl Fisher and E. G. Sewall, President of the Chamber of Commerce of Miami, are having a beautiful battle of page advertisements in the local newspapers—the Herald yesterday refused to print Sewall's latest—over a proposed harbor development that would permit vessels of deep draft to tie up at the water front. The channel is now eighteen feet deep. Seven years ago Fisher offered Miami Harbor Island for its cost, $65,000. Now it is said to be worth $20,000,000. Sewall said then that he wouldn't give $15 for the island. Miami is all steamed up over the row.

GOOD NIGHT STORIES

By Blanche Silvar

MRS. HUMMING-BIRD CHATS WITH DOTTY.

Dotty tossed the hammer and nails aside and sat down on the stone with a pout on her pretty lips.

"Well, what's wrong now, Miss Dotty?" laughed a tiny voice, and Squeedee, the wee elfin from Joyland, hopped down beside Dotty and tipped his hat. "Couldn't you make your doll house look right?"

"No, I can't, Squeedee," laughed Dotty. "I'm sorry you caught me in a fret. But I sure did wish I could build something to suit. That's what I get for being so small. Little folks never can——"

"Just a second," laughed the wee elfin. "Size has nothing to do with it. Why, hello there!" and Squeedee lifted his hat as a tiny little fluttering bird sailed down as if it had dropped from the very sky. "How are you, Mrs. Humming-bird, anyway? I want you to meet Dotty. How are things coming?"

"Couldn't be lovelier," chirped the wee tiny bird, tipping her pretty head with its long, sharp beak. "I'm mighty glad to know you, Miss Dotty. I've watched you many a day playing around the yard here. I want to thank you for allowing me to build my nest in your yard."

"My goodness!" laughed Dotty, softly, "I didn't know you were living in my yard. I have never seen your nest."

"That's one thing Mrs. Humming-bird prides herself on," chuckled Squeedee, "in being able to hide her nest so folks won't find it. Where are you living now, Mrs. Hummingbird?"

"Right here in the rose bush at

"I Want to Thank You."

side of the front porch," chirped Mrs. Humming-bird, "and it won't be long now until my two babies will hatch from the eggs. I don't mind if you peek in at my nest. But please don't tell anyone where I have it hid." Then she sailed up into the air.

"Why did she fly up into the air first?" asked Dotty. "Why didn't she go right to it from here?"

"Mrs. Humming-bird never flies straight to or from her nest for fear enemies might be near," replied Squeedee. "She first rises in the air and just drops into the nest." They ran over to the rose bush. Squeedee parted the leaves and there on her tiny nest nestled Mrs. Humming-bird on her precious eggs. "Mrs. Humming-bird builds a firmer, neater nest than any bird around and she is the very smallest of them all. So, you see, size has nothing to do with building. It's keeping at it until it's completed."

It certainly was a dear little nest, made in the shape of a cup, fashioned of soft moss, with seeds of plants which she had gathered and tucked in. These, pressed and moulded together, made the nest look as if it were made of felt. On the outside Mrs. Humming-bird had fastened moss, which she told Dotty she had put there with a glue from her own mouth.

"You see, the rough moss hides the nest from the passerby," she stated. She moved over and showed Dotty two tiny eggs, no larger than two very small beans. "They will soon be hatched. Then you must come back and see them."

Dotty promised she would come back and thanked Squeedee and Mrs. Humming-bird for her pleasant visit and went back to her building. And then, by dinner time, she had completed a dear little doll house.

JAIL BREAK FAILED WHEN TOOLS FOUND

Believed To Have Been Intended to Free Nanimo Bank Robbers.

NEW WESTMINSTER, B.C., November 18. — Canadian Press. — With the discovery on the grounds of the New Westminster Penitentiary of a cache of saws and other tools, the guards at that institution have found what was planned to have been one of the largest jail deliveries in the history of the Pacific Coast.

Believed to have been primarily directed at the release of the Nanaimo bank robbers, four of whom are under sentence now, it is thought by the officials that the "break" would have resulted in several other "long term" prisoners getting their freedom.

SIX TONS LIFTED BY HUGE PLANE

French Pilot Stayed Up For Hour and Twenty-one Minutes.

TOTAL 14 1-2 TONS.

LEBOURGET, France, November 18. — Canadian Press. — The French pilot, Lucien Bossoutrot, yesterday set a new mark for birdmen to shoot at when he reached an altitude of 3500 metres (11,500 feet) remaining in the air for 1 hour, 21 minutes and 12 seconds, with a machine weighing 14½ tons, 6 tons of which was "useful" weight. This is said to be the first time a heavier than air machine has lifted a similar load from the ground.

The Bossoutrot machine is the same super-goliath plane with which last week he broke the altitude and distance records for planes carrying four tons of useful cargo.

NEW MAYAN OPERA TO BE BROADCAST

Composition is Based on Mayan Mythology and Music Forms.

GUATEMALA, Nov. 1 .—(United Press).—A new opera, Quiche-Vinak, based not only on Mayan mythology but also on Mayan music forms, has been completed by the composer Jesus Castillo and plans have been made to produce it in New York next winter.

Portions of the opera presented here were received enthusiastically by the public. It is also planned to broadcast music from the opera from the Pan American Union in Washington.

Castillo spent years studying the cutoms and music of the ancient Mayas before composing his opera. His score is marked by the weird sounds of Indian wooden trumpets, the wailing of the Xul, the dull boom of the Tun, and the shrilling of the Chirimia. He has adapted these primitive music forms, weaving them into his opera as an Indian motif harmonious with the jungle background and ancient Maya festivals of Quiche-Vinak.

CIRCLE SQUARED.

Klondyke Sourdough Has Figured Out Correct Formula.

VANCOUVER, B.C., Nov. 18 — Lying for eight months in a sick bed as a result of an industrial accident, a veteran sourdough of the Klondike gold trails has figured out a method of accomplishing the geometrical riddle once thought impossible of solution — squaring the circle.

John Hockin is the sourdough's name. He is a Lynn Valley contractor and for years has made mathematics and geometry his hobby. Years ago he was a school teacher.

The outstanding characteristic of Hockin's method is that for the first time he has established a principle by which the circle can be unfolded and laid out in a straight line with an ordinary square and compass. University professors have tested the formula and declare it to be correct. By actual trial in a five-inch circle the variation was only 8-10,000 of an inch.

Cried Self to Sleep Called "Pimple-Face

Brooklyn, Mrs. Elsie Fel writes:—"For months I tried in vain to clear my face of horrible pimples. Once I overheard my dearest friend refer to me as 'pimple-face' and everyone laughed. I cried bitterly. I read about Carter's Little Liver Pills being used successfully to clear complexions and finally tried them. Well, my picture tells its own story, doesn't it?"

Carter's Little Liver Pills in many cases will do more to encourage a healthy complexion than all the known beauty treatments. They cause the bowels to move in a gentle manner relieving the intestines of their poisonous matter.

PETERBORO' HAS CANOE EXHIBIT WEMBLEY SHOW

Canadian Canoe Co. Created Interest in the Empire Exhibition.

KEY TO CITY.

J. S. McKinnon Remembered He Has the Freedom of Peterborough.

"No Exhibit in the Industrial Section of the Canadian Building at Wembley has created greater interest than the Canoes shown by the Canadian Canoe Company of Peterborough," said J. S. McKinnon, Director of Industrial Exhibits, Canadian Building, British Empire Exhibition. "They have been greatly admired, and practically every visitor to the Canadian Building has seen them, occupying as they do, most prominent position."

When asked, Mr. McKinnon informed your correspondent that the large key which adorns one of the walls of the office at Wembley was presented to him at a Banquet given to him at the Empress Hotel by the manufacturers of Peterborough during his term of office as President of the Canadian Manufacturers Association. The key is about 2 feet in length. On one side is embossed "Peterborough," and on the reverse side "Welcome."

The key has occupied its present position during the entire British Empire Exhibition in 1924 and 1925, and is one of Mr. McKinnon's most cherished possessions.

PURCELL'S MUSIC.

Influence of Poetic Imagination is Seen in His Work.

The influence of poetic imagination and love of poetry, upon the work of a composer of music, is well illustrated by the case of Henry Purcell, greatest of English composers. His mind was attuned to poetry, and it instinctively wedded to the words of poetry music which admirably reflected them. In this regard he was far in advance of his time, for it was not until a hundred years later that Gluck established the claim of words used in music to the consideration they deserve, and the place they now hold in vocal music. That is one of the reasons for our reverence of Purcell as one of the greatest of all musicians.

A Fashion Model's Diary

By Grace Thorncliffe

SHE DESCRIBES AN EFFECTIVE DAYTIME FROCK

Pam has been most enthusiastic all Fall about the beauty of the new clothes that are being launched.

Today she came in, aglow after a brisk walk on the avenue, and proceeded to describe what she had seen in the most enthusiastic terms.

"If there is anything more effective than the straight line simplicity of the new Fall frocks, I can't imagine what it is," she announced.

"From your rapt expression, I should say you have been seeing some particularly lovely models," I replied.

"It's just that I love warm Fall colors so, and the colors all about one this season are so particularly lovely," Pam answered.

"I suppose there are browns and reds in abundance on the avenue today?" I queried.

"Numbers and numbers of them," Pam answered. "There are all the different tones possible, for a brisk cool day like this always brings out the gayest colors."

"Now tell me what pleased you particularly," I urged.

"Well, there was one simple Chinese red reps that I covet," Pam admitted.

"Describe it," I commanded.

"The softness of the material and the clearness of the lovely red were what pleased me to death about it," Pam confessed. Then she continued.—"As for the dress, it was simply made. There was a most adaptable neckline sloping down in a graceful V, with one of those smart scarf continuations. Then there were stunning little flared-backcuffs to finish the long sleeves, just touched with black embroidery."

As Pam spoke she sketched, and I saw a replica of the finished garment under her agile fingers.

"The buttons are covered with the reps," she explained.

"That section of belt with the gathers beneath leaves room for walking, which I think is an excellent feature in a dress," I remarked.

Charming Frock of Rep in Rich Shade of Chinese Red

"I like that, too," Pam said. "I can't be bothered with skirts that don't give me room to move around, and the fuller ones can be quite as modish if they are cleverly made."

MRS. TURNER'S RECITAL

A representative audience in considerable numbers gathered in the Conservatory of Music Hall last evening, the occasion being the debut in song recital of Mrs. Ford Turner, contralto, and pupil of Mrs. Dorothy Allan Park. Mrs. Turner was ably assisted by Miss Agnes Logan, who, besides adding to the charm of the programme by her piano solos, acted as accompanist.

It may safely be said that the material of the programme was excellent, extending from the open number in oratorio, it led through classic, dramatic, modern and folk-song music, a comprehensive ensemble of real merit.

In the rendition of her programme Mrs. Turner was all successful. The preparation and delivery of a programme of some seventeen numbers without the aid of a music score was in itself a triumph, and stamps Mrs. Turner as a devoted student. Her voice is contralto of singular warmth and purity in quality, but capable of extended range, her upper notes reaching often into the soprano sphere with good effect. In addition she possesses musical intuition to a high degree, and her numbers were given with true musicianly understanding.

Mrs. Turner's opening number was from Dvorak's "Stabat Mater," Inflammatus et Accensus, and was admirably given, followed by Brahms' "Sapphic Ode," "Marguerite's Cradle Song" and "To a Water Lily" by Grieg, Schuman's "Greeting" and "When at Morn," the classic group ending with Schubert's "Gretchen at the Spinning Wheel."

Goring Thomas' "Swallow Song" and Gluck's "Che Faro Senza Eurydice" (Orfeo) formed the group in the dramatic field. The Gluck number was particularly well done and might be accredited as one of Mrs. Turner's best numbers.

A charming group of modern songs, Cadman's "Memories" and the same writer's "My Lovely Rose," Cyril Scott's "Sleep Song," "Happy Thoughts" by Bantock and "The Years at the Spring" by Beach was given adequate treatment by the singer, and these with a group of folk-songs closed a delightful programme.

Miss Agnes Logan, our own admired pianist, played the accompaniments with real taste and co-operation, and contributed to the programme Lizst's "Liestraum," an old favorite, and splendidly played, also a group composed of "Pastorale" by Scarlatti, the always popular "Morning," by Grieg, and a brilliant "Valse Oubliee," by Lizst. As may be expected, these numbers were most delightfully played and thoroughly enjoyed.

It was a pleased and satisfied audience that left the hall, in good time, after a real feast of good things.

Mrs. Turner deserves much commendation and congratulation for her fine effort, and her teacher, Mrs. Dorothy Allan Park, is entitled to a full share in her talented pupil's success.

It is but fair to say in reviewing this event that Mrs. Turner made her appearance last night after some ten days' confinement to her home with a severe bronchial cold, and her work therefore is all the more to be commended.

ODDS AND ENDS.

Scarves are gorgeous this season. They come in beautiful all-over designs and figured effects that are not so much Oriental as giving one the impression of a huge spider web with various colors woven throughout. One of silk crepe de chine is backgrounded in dull brown with a cobwebby effect in blue and cerise covering its entire length, without a single inch of plain material showing. Another has a lattice-work mauve design covered with huge pink roses and ends with deep knotted silk fringe. Squares and checks are in these scarves, and they come in stripes in odd combinations, like brown and yellow and green, or blue, grey, yellow and mauve.

For evening wear immense flowers, rose-pink predominating, are worn, made of silk velvet, and perched precariously on the shoulder of the wearer. White gardenias and also the colored variety are used on fur pieces and coat collars are ornamented with big single mums.

A dainty conceit for the head of the party-goer is a filet of crystal small leaves, interspersed with tiny metallic balls. These pretty things come in grey, blue, green and yellow, and may be worn on bobbed or unbobbed heads.

The gauntlet glove still holds the centre of the picture and varies its styles with picot edged cuffs embroidered in bright colors or in self shades.

Sport stockings in ribbed effects and in striking designs still remain in the foreground, along with the envelope type of under-the-arm purse, the umbrella with the stubby end and the beaded bag. Some of these beaded bags are gorgeous things, and the jewellers are showing a variation in the purse form of small flat samples, made with tiny enamelled pieces joined by silver and gold links.

In the stores, too, are the new pins, enamelled lovers' knots in bright colors and old-fashioned ladies and Dutch twins, also in enamel.

TOWN TREASURER CHARGED OF FRAUD

W. D. Dykes, of Whitley, Arrested in Connection With Security Deal.

WHITBY, Nov. 18. — (Canadian Press).—Charged with fraud in connection with certain transactions in securities, Town Treasurer W. D. Dykes was arrested Monday and taken to Toronto, where, before Crown Attorney Frank Moore, an application for bail was made and Dykes was released upon a $5,000 bond. The preliminary police court hearing was set for December 2.

The amount of the alleged fraud, it was learned, was in the neighborhood of $2,330.

A ROYAL BRIDE.

PRESBYTERIAL CONVENTION OPENS IN ST. PAUL'S CHURCH

Rev. R. D. Dickie and J. G. Inkster Opened City Session.

FIRST GATHERING.

Spirit of Bitterness Must Not Be Countenanced, Speakers Declare.

In an atmosphere pregnant with determination to go on in spite of mountainous difficulties, the initial meeting of the Presbyterial Convention of the Peterborough Presbytery was held in St. Paul's auditorium yesterday afternoon. The room was well filled and the listeners were thrilled with the encouraging addresses presented by Rev. R. D. Dickie, D.D., of Montreal, and J. G. Inkster, B.A., Toronto.

That the spirit of bitterness should not be countenanced was the great plea iterated by Dr. Dickie and encouragement should be found in a study of the traditions which were a glorious background for the Presbyterian Church. There had been dissentions before, he said, the Presbyterian Church itself was born of a great dissention and the members should take comfort in that fact.

"One of the first needs of the church, Dr. Dickie declared, "is an opportunity for an exchange of opinions. Church members have passed through a trying experience but should be patient." Provided that there is a bartering of ideas, some wise Christian counsel will come out of this conference. We have been obliged in the last few months to contend with our brethren and separate from some of them so that considering this pessimistic fears are apt to arise. It has been a very painful and confusing experience, but you may find some reassuring facts if you study history and particularly Presbyterian history.

"The church has had ample experience with division, but it is impossible to put a finger on any one separation and say it was a calamity to the cause of God. The Presbyteryian Church began with a division from the Christin brethren. There was more religion in Scotland and Europe, too, after the Reformation than before it; it was painful but fruitful of good results and perhaps rocked the whole religious life of Scotland. That is the same experience which we have been passing through, but I will venture to say that the feelings of animosity were much stronger in '43 than they are now. As a result of that experience there was much house-cleaning done in the old church, and more devotion on the part of individuals in the new one. In a similar manner good will result from the upheaval so recent in our experience, for on both sides there has developed something of a new spirit. One man has said that he had never known before the extent of his love for the Presbyterian Church. I am sure," stated Dr. Dickie, "that there are more men coming forward to offer their services in church work than have ever done so before. We are experiencing something of a revival—certainly a revived interest is manifest.

"I have still the old Presbyterian conviction that the Lord, Jesus Christ is at the head of the church and I cannot think that our ruler has abdicated at this particular juncture. We must look the facts in the face and try to improve matters for we are present confronted by confusion of teaching within the precincts of the church. Comparing pulpit messages of today with those delivered twenty or thirty years ago we find that there is not evidenced now the same unanimity in the presentation of the truths. It is imperative that we get back to some sort of harmony and order in our teaching.

Dr. Dickie declared that while there might be some excuse for an embittered spirit and while some must have felt that the shoe was pinching unfairly, laced more tightly in some instances by those from whom should be expected better treatment, yet it should be remembered that God's blessing cannot be hoped for by spirits hostile to his wishes. People of the church must realize their duty to retain a fellowship with all mankind and must refrain from singing a veritable Hymn of Hate. "Surely," the speaker said," we can afford to be as charitable with the Unionists today as we were with the Methodists before."

When the framers of the Presbyterian polity erected the structure of the church they left no place for ecclesiastics for there was nothing which the Presbyterian church needed so much as to mind the business which God placed in its keeping. The spade work must yet be done and the church is nothing apart from several congregations, said the speaker.

Traditional Background

The Presbyterian Church today stands out in bold relief from its historic shrouding of 3 1-2 centuries.

In speaking of traditions some may think of heirlooms, dust and debris but it is really the pioneer of good things with a long history.

One of the most outstanding qualifications in the Presbyterian Church is its sobriety. It is not unemotional but its emotion is not of the explosive type. The emotion of the Church has been directed toward learning and as an indication of this it is a fact that no church has ever produced a ministry more interested in education than has the Presbyterian. The preaching of the church has been sober and solemn and has not aimed at tickling the ears of the people. It is true that some may be accused of falling asleep during the service but was it not better for a man to be sleeping under the essential truth presented by a Presbyterian minister than awake and tittering at the levities used by some pastors in maintaining some semblance of interest."

The speaker declared that the church had followed a practise of giving the young sound instruction. No little book, he said, had ever had a greater influence than the shorter catechism and it was by means such as this that the Presbyterian church dug into the marrow of Christian tradition.

It was a liberty loving and democratic Church. Even at the time of its inception it caused democracy to flourish in Scotland. The gallant Covenanters refused to allow anyone to dictate religion to them and were not responsible to any court.

"While the Presbyterian Church is only one branch of the Christian bodies it is nevertheless a distinctive entity and has a traditional background which we commend to God for His glory," concluded Dr. Dickie.

J. G. Inkster, B.A.

Taking as the basis of his dissertation, Revelation 2, 1-7, J. G. Inkster showed wherein the saints of Ephesus had failed and coupled that with the dangers which present day conditions presented. Mr. Inkster declared that the purpose of Revelation was not to supply people with data for linking up the past with the future from a prophetic standpoint but to tell of the glory which would be incidental to the second coming of Christ.

When Christ first came to the earth, he assumed the vesture of simple flesh and humbled himself. Revelation shows that his second appearance on the earth will not be accompanied by any form of humility but by the regal splendor of a universal monarch.

The seven letters mentioned depicted the dawn, development and doom of the church at Ephesus, and the latter phase was expressed in the sentence, "I have lost my first love."

The church has been called the bride of Christ, Mr. Inkster said. When the love of a woman for her husband fails, she is a fallen woman, and is no longer a bride, for she has lost her love. That parallel applied to the church at Ephesus. She had lost her love of Christ and until such time as that love was restored, the Church was doomed. Christ said, "Remember from where thou hast fallen and repent." It is necessary to remember repent and reform. The three were co-existant. "God does not deal with masses," said Mr. Inkster, "He deals with individuals. In the church today, we need overcomers for "to him that overcometh will be given the Tree of Life!

"The lack of love is the problem of problems and it is present wherever you go. It is essential today that the smaller congregations be linked with bonds of love to the larger ones that the destiny of the church be fulfilled.

Following the meeting a general discussion was held, and problems concerning foreign and home missions received consideration. The difficulties of supply for the ministerial field were thought to be serious, but there was some relief in the fact that the lay members of the church were becoming more active.

Do you know that Bon Ami comes in two forms—cake and powder? Both are made from the same ingredients—both have the same wonderful gift of cleaning and polishing without scratching.

For some purposes you'll want the Bon Ami powder in its handy, sifter-top tin—it's so easy to shake out on a damp cloth. For other uses you'll prefer the solid Bon Ami cake that you can rub on the cloth like soap.

Most housewives keep both the cake and powder always on hand. These two "partners in cleanliness" are unequalled for cleaning and polishing all the things listed at the right.

SMART U. T. S. RUGBY MACHINE SWAMP KINGSTON COLLEGIATE

Toronto School's Goal Line Still Uncrossed in Season's Series—Have Scored 190 Points on Opponents—A Clever Squad.

KINGSTON DEFEATED BY 35-0.

(By F. D. C.)

Mike Rodden's smart University of Toronto schools' team found little difficulty in maintaining their unbeaten record here yesterday when they beat the Kingston Collegiate in a sudden-death Interscholastic O.R.F.U. game at Riverside Park by 30 points to 0. The Toronto youngsters have not been scored on this season and in four interscholastic fixtures have piled up the huge total of 190 points to nil, their victims including the local Collegiate twelve.

They were too fast, shifty, clever and well drilled for the Eastern boys here yesterday for K.C.I., although they maintained a stubborn defence at times found themselves on other occasions quite powerless to stop the steady march of the Toronto squad who, smartly led by that clever young field general, Quarterback Cook, unreeled a series of well masked, well timed and ably executed plays that ripped through or around the Kingston line with almost monotonous regularity.

Never In Danger.

U.T.S. were not in any danger of being scored on themselves for their opponents were never in possession of the ball in Toronto territory at any stage and found it well night impossible to gain yards through the winners' line. The game early resolved itself into a question of how many points U.T.S. would get and that of course was merely a battle between the clever offensive of the Toronto Collegians and the game defensive efforts of the Kingston students who earned generous applause on several occasions by a gallant stand in the shadow of their own goal posts throwing back the invaders when a score seemed certain.

U.T.S. were good everywhere. Their line was fast and well drilled, blocked well on the defensive and made wide holes for their backs to shoot through when on the attack.

All the winners' backfield shared in the glory. Sinclairs' running and plunging featured, the big half getting three nice trys. Baillie gained repeatedly when called upon. Park showed speed and dodging ability of senior calibre and kicked splendidly and Cook at quarter not only handled the repertoire of plays smartly but contributed some fine individual work on his own account. The passing and running of the backs was a treat. Up in front the plunging of Stollery and Metcalfe was of great assistance.

Buck Was Good.

The most useful man on the Kingston line up was Buck the little half back who, although about the lightest man on the field, caught punts beautifully, showed a nice turn of speed and booted well in spite of bad passing by his centre man and very poor protection from his line. McKelvey, the big middle wing was called on repeatedly but his plunges were so slow in getting under way that he was usually smothered.

A fair sized crowd including a bunch of rooters from the two schools saw the fixture.

The teams:

U.T.S.
Flying wing—Moore.
Halves—Park, Baillie, Sinclair.
Quarter—Cook.
Snap—Keith.
Insides—Wesley, Northam.
Middles—Stollery, Metcalfe.
Outsides—Hutchison and Power.
Subs—Garfat, Oile, Grey, Ferguson, Spence, Watts, Irvine, Andras and Gibson.

Kingston C.I.
Flying wing—Gray.
Halves—Day Buck, Graham.
Quarter—Edgar.
Snap—Bews.
Insides—Smith, Dupre.
Middles—McKelvey, Connolly.
Outsides—Gray, Saunders.
Subs—Boyd, McCartney, McDonald, Patterson, Anglin, Reuton.
Referee—Lalonde, Toronto.
Umpire—Abernethy, Kingston.

How They Scored.

Kingston pulled a well disguised delayed buck right off the reel and gained fifteen yards on the first play. They grew too ambitious, however, and lost the ball on downs at midfield and U.T.S. started a march of uninterrupted plunges and end runs that speedily resulted in Metcalfe smashing through Kingston's left wing for a try, Park missing an easy chance to convert.

U.T.S. continued their successful offensive after the kick off and a series of smart plays took the ball to K.C.I.'s forty-five yard line. An extension run around Kingston's left end let Sinclair clear away and the tall U.T.S. back dashed over for a try, on the longest run of the day, Park added another point by converting neatly and U.T.S. were 11 to 0 in front.

Back they came again with another series of clever plays until they were halted at Kingston's line. They only had a yard to go on the last down but K.C.I. smothered Cook and the attack failed by inches. Then on the first play a Kingston fumble gave the ball back again to U.T.S. as the quarter ended.

The second period started with U.T.S. in possession only six yards out but once again K.C.I.'s defence temporarily saved the day throwing back three attacks and recovering the ball.

It was only a momentary respite, however, for K.C.I. were forced to kick and U.T.S. on a long pass to Park resulting in a twenty yard gain and a long plunge by Sinclair added another touchdown which Park failed to convert. U.T.S. 16; Kingston 0.

The winners kept the Easterners on the defensive and a safety touch and a kick to the dead line by Park added three more points before half time.

The Second Half.

In the third period Kingston made a determined stand holding U.T.S. scoreless for almost fourteen minutes, although the play was constantly in K.C.I. territory. Finally, however, as the period was almost over, U.T.S. recovered a loose ball on a Kingston fumble twenty yards out and on the third down, Baillie squirmed through for another try which was not converted.

U.T.S., 24; Kingston, 0.

The last session was a reflection of the third; Kingston's stubborn defence in the face of a relentless attack holding the winners until time was nearly up. Then a long pass to Park enabled that shifty youngster to gain twenty-five yards and on the next play Sinclair hurdled through for his own third and U.T.S.'s fifth touch down of the afternoon.

Just before the final whistle blew Park lamned a long punt over the Kingston line and Buck played it safe by batting the bounding ball into touch-in-goal, giving U.T.S. another point, and making the final 30 to 0.

INSIDE GOLF.

Maker of 81 Golf Champions. "Golf's most successful teacher," says "Chick" Evans

By CHESTER HORTON

A very small distance on the ground is equal to a big result in the golf shot if the small distance in question varies the golf player's customary stance. After the golfer has been at golf a few years he learns to take the stance as a matter of course, and the longer he plays the coarser is the way his stance may begin upsetting his shots without his being conscious of the source of trouble. If the shot is to be exact, the stance must be exact, for in a large measure the stance controls the flight of the ball. If the feet sneak a couple of inches forward the player may see every ball he hits with a wood roll along on the ground, and it is safe to say that the larger proportion of ordinary players stand too far forward of the ball. When your shots are particularly bad, take a look at your feet. Chances are the toes will be pointing straight. Point them out some—and see the immediate difference.

HOCKEY NOTES.

Brantford has selected material for the intermediate O. H. A. team but is not certain of "Ab" Stanley former Hamilton player, whose work makes him uncertain. A number of newcomers of known ability are ready for the first turnout.

Harry Watson, former Olympic team star, and now coach of the Parkdale Canoe Club juniors, had his squad out for the first time Monday night. Ross Paul and Freddy Miller, in superb condition after playing with Argos this season, featured the workout. They give promise of sensational playing in the junior ranks.

The Stratford seniors will meet the Port Arthur Allan cup holders in an exhibition game at Stratford on December 10. The Indians have two games scheduled at Grimsby before this contest.

Woodstock juniors will be a stronger threat than ever in the O. H. A. this winter, they having lost only one of last year's regulars and expect several star newcomers out.

Mile Neville is making a great effort for a regular place on St. Pat's team. He has been outstanding of the rookies in all the practices. The Irish will get their first taste of battle in a two-game series with the Victoria Cougars, that starts at Toronto next Monday.

Leo Dandurand, of Canadiens, has signed a star amateur of Montreal, in Roger Cormier. The contract is for three years.

Manager Percy LeSueur, of the Windsor arena and senior O. H. A. club, announced his line-up last night. Freddy Brown, former Rowing Club star, will be at center, with Wentworth, another former Hamilton boy, on the defense. Farrell, of Galt, will be in the nets, and Kentner, Butterfield and Guest the other regulars. Brown and Kentner looked very smart in a fast practice last night.

The Niagara Falls seniors are fast rounding into shape and look to have the strongest team that has yet represented this city.

TO MANAGE BISONS

BUFFALO, Nov. 18 (Canadian Press) — Wm. J. Clymer, famous baseball manager and coach, signed a contract Tuesday to manage the Buffalo (International) League Club for two years. Clymer last year was scout and coach for the Cincinnati (National League) Club.

QUEENS TEAM HAS MANY CASUALTIES

Six of Regulars Are on Hospital List at Present Time.

KINGSTON, Nov. 17 (Canadian Press).—For the first time this year Queen's Seniors have an extensive casualty list, with no fewer than six of the regulars under the weather. The chances are, however, that most of them will be in shape for the Balmy Beach game in Toronto on Saturday.

"Pep" Leadley is suffering from an attack of lumbago; Harry Batstone and Jimmy Wright both were in hospital yesterday. Batstone with a severe cold, and Wright with a sprained ankle. Bill Muirhead suffered an injured shoulder in Saturday's game, while "Red" McKelvey and "Bozo" Norris had injuries to the knee which were very painful.

BACK TO PLAY.

W. Beattie Ramsay, member of the Canadian Olympic champion hockey team at Chamonix in 1924, has gone to Princeton University, where he will resume his duties as head coach of the hockey squad. Mr. Ramsay spent the summer in Western Canada, being employed as resident engineer on the Provincial highway north of Regina, Saskatchewan.

WINNIPEG TEAM DECIDE TO COME

Western Champions Will Compete in East For Rugby Title.

KEEP IN SHAPE.

WINNIPEG, Nov. 18—Western rugby fans, with the season in the west closed, are looking forward to the east and west clash for Dominion honors, which will take place in the east.

Tammy Tigers, Winnipeg's champion team, which captured the Western Canada title by defeating Regina, Saturday, has definitely decided to take the trip east in quest of the Canadian title.

The team is being hailed by local critics as the greatest gridiron squad ever developed in the west. In eight games this season the Tigers' goal line has only been crossed once, and on that occasion on an on-side kick. The team is powerful in all departments with a line-up of bulky and speedy athletes. It is confidently predicted that the Tigers will prove to eastern fans the enormous strides made in rugby in the west during the last few years.

Starting tomorrow, the Tigers will train daily until their departure for the east, about December 1. They will meet an all-star local team in an exhibition tussle here next Saturday.

Coach Roth will be assisted during the trip east by Fred Ritter, considered the foremost rugby mentor in the west.

Rugby Notes

St. Michael's College, champions of the West, will play McGill University in a sudden-death game for the Intermediate Intercollegiate championship at Varsity Stadium Friday afternoon. The winner will qualify to play the Montreal C.N.R., Quebec champions, in the C.R.U. semi-finals, and the Irish have great hopes of going the distance in the intermediate series. Owing to the lateness of the season it was decided to play only one game to decide the Intercollegiate honors.

Loyola College juniors, on Montreal, will travel to Kingston on Saturday for the third game with Queen's juniors in the intercollegiate play-downs, the two teams having ended the home and home series in the eliminations tied at 25 points each, Loyola winning by two points at Kingston and losing to Queen's Saturday by two points. The date and venue for the game was set by Bobby Bell, of McGill, president of the Intercollegiate Rugby Union, after a conference with the interested teams.

Season of Low Scores

Ottawa scored seven touchdowns during the Interprovincial campaign one of which was against Tigers, it coming in the first minute of play last Saturday. In winning the championship, the Senators mustered a total of 48 points, 10 less than Tigers scored to win it a year ago, and 12 less than the Bengals scored when they won the title in 1923. An average of eight points a game appears to be a low one on which to win a championship, and it seems to uphold the claim that something should be done to permit of more scoring, the present rules making strong defensive play possible for an otherwise weak team. The Tigers scored but three touchdowns all season, and their line was crossed the same number of times. They got two against Montreal, one in the game here and the other in the game at Montreal, the third being against Argos in the early part of the opening game here. Montreal failed to cross the Bengal line, but Argos did it twice, once here and once in Toronto, while Ottawa got the other. Tigers scored but 38 points all season, a rather poor showing, compared with what the striped crew did in past seasons. But it was a season of low scores, and other teams fared worse than Tigers when compared with their records in past campaigns.—Hamilton Spectator.

Juniors at Ottawa

OTTAWA, Ont., Nov. 18 (Canadian Press) — Ottawa rugby fans will see another championship game on Saturday afternoon when the Montreal Amateur Athletic Association's junior twelve invade the capital in quest of Eastern Canada honors, and will meet Rideaus, junior champions of this district.

Rideaus last year worked their way to the Dominion finals, losing out in the deciding game to Toronto Canoe Club in Toronto. This year they have annexed the city title for the third consecutive time and are out to make another big bid for the Canadian title.

CITY LEAGUE IS DISCUSSED

Meeting To Arrange For Local Hockey Circuit To Be Held Thursday.

TROPHY OFFERED.

What about a City Hockey League for the coming winter? The subject will be discussed at a meeting called for the Chamber of Commerce on Thursday night at eight o'clock, to which all hockey fans are invited. A revival of the interest displayed in the senior city series of some years ago is on the way and local moguls are lining up teams in preparation for the winter pastime. With the probability that the O.H.A. team will play a number of its games away from home, the opportunity presents itself for a local organization that would embrace senior and junior divisions, to get underway and enjoy a prosperous season. Juding by past experience, a strong city league with well-balanced teams is certain to attract popular support.

Already one trophy has been offered and there are other indications that fresh effort in the interest of the younger players will be well supported.

Tomorrow night's meeting should bring togther a large number of hockey enthusiasts.

SENATORS IDLE NEXT SATURDAY

Big Four Winners Await Result of Queens-Balmy Beach Game.

ARE WORKING HARD.

OTTAWA, Ont., Nov. 18 (Canadian Press) — A day of rest was ordered in the Ottawa rugby camp yesterday and the new Interprovincial champions took things easy for a change. It was intended to start them against Dave Harding's Camp Borden team in an exhibition tilt on Saturday but these arrangements have now been cancelled and the Senators will have nothing but practice formations until they meet their opponents in the Dominion final.

Queen's and Beaches hook up on Saturday and the following week end, the winners come to grips with the Senators. Whatever the outcome may be the locals will enter the fight full of determination and confident that they can at least give a good account of themselves

McCann started them back on the heavy grind Tuesday afternoon and on a snow covered field, they were drilled for nearly two hours. Highly elated over winning the Big Four honors, the Ottawas are in no way confident of their ability and are making no predictions as to their further accomplishments. McCann will whip them through their paces every day this week, and it is likely that a sun practice will be held on Saturday afternoon.

MINORITIES ARE NOT NEGLECTED

it shall follow along the lines of the best traditions of the Presbyterian Church. In looking back over the history of that church, we may recall some things that were not entirely creditable to the church of God, but still we can recall many things that were worthy of our very best traditions."

The above sentences formed the opening of the address on "Presbyterian Doctrine," delivered by Rev. R. D. Dickie, D.D. of Montreal, last night at the closing session of the Presbyterial Convention held at St. Paul's Church yesterday afternoon and evening. Rev. J. G. Inkster, B.A., of Toronto, also spoke on "Bible Reading on the Holy Spirit." Both addresses were given with authority and eloquence, and were listened to with earnest attention by a good-sized audience. The speakers were introduced by the pastor, Rev. Wm. Allan and Rev. D. A. Thomson led in prayer. The full robed choir was in attendance, with M. B. Chenhall, senior, at the organ.

Sound Doctrine.

"I would like to remind our friends here tonight that the Presbyterian Church from its very earliest days has set great store by what the fathers call 'cound doctrine' Those of us who can look back a good many years in the history of the church and think of the preaching which we heard when we were young, must admit that it was very solid, sober preaching The old-fashioned preacher, who spoke with conviction and earnestness, was a man with a great sense of reality The paramount business of the preacher is to preach that precious truth concerning spiritual things which man cannot discover for himself That was the conception of the ministry held by the fathers of the church, but we must confess that of late years there has been a change. Men and women are saying, "We do not care for, and we are not interested in doctrine." Is it of no interest to men that they should know the truth concerning spiritual things? Christian or sound doctrine is nothing more than a statement of truth concerning spiritual things as it has been revealed in our holy religion. Perhaps the reason for this impatience with doctrine is the confusion in the minds of a great many people with regard to it. Only about thirty years ago, in the Presbyterian Church, there was a great consensus of opinion with regard to doctrine, and if you listened to a preacher in London, or Edinburgh, or New York, or Toronto, speaking on the same subject, you might be sure of hearing substantially the same declaration. Now, for better or worse, that is no longer true with regard to the Protestant churches, speaking generally.

"One hears great variations in the doctrine expounded, from the lowest form of Arianism to almost the highest type of Calvinism. Now the constituted minority of the church speaks in voices confused and conflicting, and how can you expect any great regard for doctrine in such a condition?

"Historically, the basis of the teaching of truth in the Protestant church has been the Bible. In Christendom, before the Reformers came, the final authority was recognized as the consciousness of the Christian Church as organized in the Councils of the great, Roman Church. When they spoke it was final. When the Reformers came, they said of this church: It is a church which is not in agreement with itself It is a church which has not in its life the marks of a Divine institution. It is a church (I am speaking of the 16th century church) which in many points runs counter to the clear teaching of the Word of God. We appeal from this church to the Bible." They made the Bible their final court of appeal in the teaching of truth and only comparatively recently has there been any question in the Protestant church as to the final authority of the Scriptures in spiritual matters. But now there is a change. Not that the teachers of religion have something else as the foundation of religious truth, but they are looking at the Bible in different ways.

Two Views of The Bible.

"There are two distinct views of the Bible in these days. One is the view held by the historic Protestant churches that here we have a supernatural revelation of truth from God which man could never have arrived at, truth which is of the first importance in the salvation of the soul. It does not say that every jot and tittle of the Bible is infallibly inspired. It does not deny that there is a progressive revelation, a clearer and larger conception of God and His purpose and that the perfect life comes at last in Jesus Christ.

"The new view says that the Bible, it is true, is inspired. But so were the Meditations of Marcus Aurelius and of Thomas a Kempis. The Bible is inspired in the same sense as these were inspired. It perhaps shows a greater genius for religion, but the inspiration of the Bible is in the same class as many other works of human genius. They say that the revelation which came through holy men of old was a revelation which was subject to the limitations, intellectual, moral and spiritual, of the men of that age. They have no hesitation in saying that Elijah in certain respects had not a true view of God or of duty, and that, although St. Paul was one of the greatest geniuses of his age, that he misunderstood Christ and looked at Him through the eyes of the Pharisee. They say of the Evangelists that they were simple, honest, well-intentioned men, subject to the intellectual limitations of the time, who could not grasp the Person or the Thought of Our Blessed Saviour, leaving us the inference that the men of science of today may grasp these conceptions in a better way. Of miracles, they say that they are impossible because they contravene recognized scientific laws.

"When a man takes the attitude of want of confidence in the Bible, and claims the right to pick and choose what is right or wrong therein, then the Bible is to him no longer a book of authority. It is a radical departure from historical Christianity and a contravention of the foundation stone of Protestantism that so many people are embarking upon nowadays. It seems to me that they are going back to a more insecure position than that taken by the Roman Church, which said before the Reformation that the final authority in Christian faith and morals was the organized consciousness of Christendom. And we must admit that that church is as well organized today as it was then. The Reformers said: "We appeal against the organized consciousness of Christendom to the Word of God." The Modernist says: "We accept as our final authority, not the organized consciousness of Christendom, but the unorganized consciousness of any man, whether a Christian or not, to say what is or what is not, Christian or spiritual truth I submit that that course can lead to no other place than a barren wilderness in which Christian religion will be entirely dissipated. It seems to me it is either the religion of the Bible that must be chosen or the religion of a sloppy sentimentality that has no foundation in real truth.

"In the Presbyterian Church, every man who becomes a minister or an elder does so by virtue of his signing a declaration that he believes our standards (the subordinate standards as contained in the Two Catechisms and the Westminster Confession of Faith) to be the Word of God. There is no modern Protestant church that is better safeguarded so far as the ingenuity of man can safeguard against false doctrine. If you have not studied the Confession of Faith, you owe it to your Presbyterian ancestry and Presbyterian faith to do so, and you will find it sound doctrine. Many people nowadays are finding fault with it, because it takes less courage to pitch stones at the Confession of Faith than to pitch stones at the Bible. If a man who holds the office of minister or elder finds himself out of sympathy with his church and the Confession of Faith, it should be a point of honor with him not to remain in that church and insidiously worm in points of view contrary to the doctrines of the church. He should say, 'You believe this but I do not believe it, and as a gentleman, I cannot hold office in your church.'

"There are enough liberal churches in Canada today for those who want them. Let us keep the Presbyterian church of our fathers—not a narrow church, but a Catholic-spirited church, with one authority and only one; the supernatural revelation that God has given to men for the salvation of their souls, to show them the way to heaven that they could not learn of themselves, but which has been given to them in His holy Word."

Rev. Mr. Inkster's Address.

Rev. Mr. Inkster, the second speaker of the evening, gave an inspiring address on "Bible Reading on the Holy Spirit." Prefacing his discourse with the reading of several portions of Scripture relative to his subject, he went on to say:

"There are things that you want to do and yet cannot do and there are things that you want to attain to, and yet cannot attain. There is not a man or woman here to-night but wants to be good, in the best sense of the word. There are certain things that you strive after, parents wishing to help their children, teachers desiring to assist their scholars, and business men to solve the problems that engage their attention. You want to do certain things and yet you feel a lack of power. If the Word of God is true, you may receive that power through the Holy Ghost. There is not a man or woman here to-night who does not long for that power, and is willing to pay the price for it. And what is that price?

"There are three persons in God, the Father, the Son and the Holy Ghost. When the Holy Spirit came down on that first Pentecost, he descended upon Peter, the fisherman of Galilee, filled with all the faults of his class. Impetuous, good-hearted, impulsive, he was always making a mess of things for himself and everybody around him. But when the Holy Spirit came down upon him, he was given the power to preach one of the most profound and eloquent sermons that ever came from the lips of man. He had been a coward, afraid of one little Hebrew maid, but he was made courageous enough to face, not one little maid, but a multitude of men.

"What are the conditions of receiving the Holy Ghost? None can read the Acts of the Apostles from the first chapter to the ending without realizing that the early Apostolic Church, in its first century was under the dominating influence of the Holy Spirit. The Holy Ghost came down at Pentecost and lived with that church on through the Middle Ages, but he was deposed in the sixteenth century. The Roman Catholic Church dethroned the Holy Ghost and put the Pope in His place, and the Catholic Church today, while seemingly strong, is spiritually weak because it has dethroned the Holy Spirit. But the Protestant church of the Reformation was man made, and that is the weakness of the Protestant Church today.

Repenting and Believing.

"To get the Holy Ghost and realize His power in your lives you must repent and you must believe. It is possible to repent and yet not believe and also you may believe and yet not repent of your sins. Simon the Sorcerer, spoken of in the passages just quoted, believed, but he never repented. The Ephesian Christians repented, but they did not believe and there are thousands of men and women in the churches today who are like Simon and the Ephesian Christians. If I were asked to distinguish between the Presbyterian and the Methodist churches, I would say that the Methodist church has been believing without repenting, and that the Presbyterian church has been repenting without believing.

Rev. Mr. Inkster spoke of the third requisite necessary to the reception of the power of the Holy Ghost, the offering of one's body as a living sacrifice to the Lord. "You must not postpone this until the moment that you are going to die, but now, when you are able to present an acceptable sacrifice to God. The moment you do this, you will be able to do what Peter did." The reverend speaker cited the case of Rev. Jonathan Goforth as of one who, repenting and believing, had taken the final step in sacrifice to God, and had been inspired by the Holy Spirit in his work of converting the heathen.

"But this is the last thing that the devil will let you do. He will let you give your money and your brains and our time, but he will not let you give yourself. There are mothers and fathers here to-night who would spurn their children who would come to them with offers of money or time and would refuse them the gift of their love. That is what God wants of you, yourself, your love and your heart. He did not refuse to give His only begotten Son for the salvation of the world. He gave Himself for you, and that is what He wants, a complete surrender of your living bodies, so that you will be willing to say to Him; "Here am I, Lord. Send me.' God is waiting for us to lay our all before Him."

INDIAN BATTLE REAL THRILL IN "PONY EXPRESS."

James Cruze's Successor to "The Covered Wagon" Due Here To-Morrow.

The Sioux Indians took part in the greatest battle their tribe has fought for forty years during the filming of James Cruze's new western epic for Paramount, "The Pony Express."

Not since the last battle of the last Indian war in the United States—the "Ghost Dance War" in Wyoming in 1886, have the Sioux been engaged in a battle of such magnitude.

A band of more than one thousand Sioux Indians was brought to Cheyenne, Wyoming, from their reservation at Pine Ridge, North Dakota, for the purposes of this stupendous picture.

Decked out in fantastic war paint, wearing little else than loin cloths, and mounted bareback on spirited Indian ponies, they were given the order by Cruze to attack the town of Julesburg, Colorado.

In a minute they had swooped down on the town, circled it, firing arrows and old-fashioned muskets, driving off the stock, and sustaining wounds from the barricaded townspeople, firing from windows and doors.

Then in came the soldiers—1887 cavalry, recruited from companies of real soldiers at Fort D. A. Russell More than seven hundred of them swooped down on the village, led by young Billy Cody, played by Johnny Fox, Jr., and the greatest Indian battle of this century took place. Foot by foot the Indians were driven out. The battle continued long after it was out of range of the camera. So realistic did the battle become on the outlying hills that Cruze had to send out special riders to call it off, for soldiers were still trying to round up red men, and red men were still running down and attacking isolated soldiers.

"The Pony Express," coming to the Capitol Theatre to-morrow, features Betty Compson, Ricardo Cortez, Ernest Torrence and Wallace Beery. The screen play is by Walter Woods, from an original story by himself and Henry James Forman.

AT THE ROYAL.

AMATEUR NIGHT THURSDAY AT ROYAL.

Again the popular amateur nights at the Royal. To-morrow night is the night.

Mr. Harris has a new version of Cohen on the Telephone, new songs, local musicians and singers, and Hoot Gibson's newest production, "Spook Ranch." It all sounds like the usual good entertainment you expect at the Royal.

TWO SHOWS TO-NIGHT FOR "DRUSILLA" AT 7 AND 9.

The Royal has not been large enough to hold the crowds wanting to see "Drusilla," and in fairness to those turned away and also hundreds who have purchased their tickets from the Women's Council, two performances will be given to-night at 7 and 9 p.m. Doors open at 6.30.

STRAND FILM PALPITATES WITH THRILL OF WEST.

Gibson's "Spook Ranch" Built For Speed Star.

Because he hit a Chinese lunch wagon man over the head with a plate in self-defence, Bill Bangs, a Texas cowboy, paid for his prank by finding himself in a complication of events which led him through many critical dangers and humorous episodes which are presented by Hoot Gibson in the new Universal-Jewel production which will be at the Royal Theatre on Thursday.

The first of these was the arrest of Bill, played by Gibson, and of his negro valet. The sheriff promises them their freedom if they will investigate Spook Ranch, where strange happenings have been going on for a long time. The town's bad man has just returned utterly cowed by the things he saw there.

Not knowing the reputation of the place Bill and the valet set out on their adventurous expedition. First they bump into ghostly fears and then Bill steps into a plot in which a beautiful girl is being held as hostage by a band of ruffians. Their plan is to obtain the secret of a hidden mine on the ranch property.

TWO PERFORMANCES OF "DRUSILLA" AT ROYAL TO-NIGHT, 7 AND 9 P.M.

Owing to the demand all over Canada for the feature production, "Drusilla With a Million," it is impossible for the Royal to hold it over for a fourth day. To satisfy the hundreds turned away last night and to give everyone a chance to use their tickets purchased from the Women's Council, two performances will be given to-night at 7 and 9 p.m. Doors open 6.30 p.m.

DRUSILLA LEAVES TOWN TO-NIGHT

The last chance to witness "Drusilla with a Million," the charming screen version of Elizabeth Cooper's novel of the same name, comes at the Royal Theatre tonight at 7 and 9 p.m., where this "different" photoplay has been delighting large audiences for the past two days by its smooth combination of pathos and comedy. Mary Carr, the screen's greatest mother, has never been seen in so appealing a role. A story of young love and of a golden old heart sweeps up to a mighty dramatic climax. Priscilla Bonner and Kenneth Harlan are other featured players in the cast.

AT THE REGENT

MORE FUN THAN "CHARLEY'S AUNT."

Syd Chaplin Has New Comedy Hit in "Man on the Box."

The Regent Theatre will feature a Warner Bros. Classic of the Screen when "The Man on the Box," starring Syd Chaplin, begins a 4 days' engagement on Monday with one of the most remarkable casts of the season.

The picture is said to be even funnier than "Charley's Aunt," Syd's last production and one of the biggest box-office bets ever screened. In one sequence Syd impersonates a flirtatious maid, and with his handsome features disguised with wig and make-up, was quite an attractive figure on the Warner lot during the making of the picture.

It is said that Bull Montana, seeing this young lady from the distance, asked for an introduction to Syd Chaplin. At any rate, the photoplay is claimed by reviewers in other cities to be a complete "knockout."

"The Man on the Box" is an adaptation of the celebrated novel and play from the pen of Harold MacGrath. On the stage, Chaplin's role was played by Henry E. Dixey. The story concerns the romantically amusing adventures of Bob Warburton, young, wealthy and charming, who hires out as a coachman.

Charles "Chuck" Reisner not only directed the production but appears in the supporting cast that includes David Butler, Alice and Kathleen Calhoun, Theodore Lorch, Helene Costello, E. J. Ratcliffe, Charles F. Reisner, Charles Gerrard and Henry Barrowes.

AT THE GRAND

"MY CHINA DOLL" COMING.

"My China Doll," a fantastic musical extravaganze under the management of Le Comte and Flesher, which is coming to the Grand Opera House, Saturday, November 21st, is the most remarkable success produced in a long time. It embraces every detail known to modern stagedom, lights, bewildering effects, a masterpiece from a scenic standpoint, novelties without number, a tuneful musical score, and presented by a brilliant company, including a corps de ballet.

The story is told in two acts and eight novel scenes. The locale of the play opens in New York's Chinatown during the Fete of Lanterns, a holiday celebration. Peach Blossom is ruled by an iron master Sing Song, her father! he forbids her to mingle or even speak to white people. Peach Blossom is in love with Wallace Morgan, a newspaper man who is a casual visitor to the oriental quarters on sight seeing tours. Seeking cherished revenge she adopts the forbidden poppy pipe and in her dream becomes the Fairy Queen Cindrella with her Prince Charming and meets all the characters in Grimm's Story Books. A transformation whisks her to the land of music where she is made the reigning Queen of Syncopation, Harmony, Miss Steinway, Song and Mr. Steiff protest against her appearance, but the public calmor for Ragtime and her success is assured.

Following the many novel scenes, a transformation brings us to the Land of Flowers, the little Chinese girl is Rose the Queen of Flowers in love with King Bee; love and intrigue in plot and counter plot holds sway but love finds a way and the blue bell rings out the message of their wedding.

Awakening from her dreams Peach Blossom discovers she is a white girl kidnapped when a child, she is returned to her parents and the marriage of Morgan and his beloved child sweetheart is enacted. No more gorgeous settings have ever been seen entour.

PRESENTATION TO DEPARTING SISTER

Eastern Star L.O.B.A. Met To Say "Au Revoir" to Sister Agnew.

A large number of the members of the Eastern Star Lodge and their friends gathered at the home of Mrs. Ed. Huffman, 161 Adaline St., on Monday, Nov. 16, to give honor to a member, Sister Agnew, by holding a travelling shower for her and wishing her a happy holiday. Sister Agnew, whose home is in Scotland, left the city Wednesday to spend the winter months at her home and among friends there. The evening was spent in progressive euchre after which a very dainty lunch was served. Those in charge of the refreshments were as follows: Sister Gerrard, Sister Huffman, Sister Berturn, Sister Flossie Brown and Mr. Huffman.

After lunch the following address was read by the Worthy Mistress, Sister Effie M. Staples, as follows: Dear Sister Agnew: We, the officers and members of the Eastern Star lodge and our friends, have gathered here this evening on the eve of your departure to wish you a safe and pleasant journey to your homeland. As a member of our lodge you have been a regular attendant and faithful worker. Now as you are to leave us for a time we ask you to accept these our gifts with all our good wishes for enjoyable holidays.

We pray the Heavenly Father will guide and protect you on your journey and in due time return you again to us to help carry on the good work as you have always done in the past and as you are travelling homeward remember us sometimes. Remember—

Some one is waiting in Scotland
For a lassie kind and true,
Friends in the days of childhood
Are watching there for you.
'Ere the winter month have long passed by
Or the flowers bloom again
Friends you have here in Canada
Await your return to them.

Sister Edith Brown, Deputy Mistress, then presented the gifts, which were placed in a prettily decorated box trimmed with white and green leaves.

Sister Agnew then made a suitable reply after which two verses of "God Be With You Till We Meet Again" was sung. Sister Huffman then called upon Mr. Smith, Mr. Guthrey, Bro. Freeman, Sister E. Brown, Sister Sexsmith, Sister Staples, Sister Freeman and Brother Jack Brown for speeches, all of whom responded very suitably. The evening's event then came to a close by singing "God Save the King."

TRUTH VERSUS ERROR.

There are those who tell us, there is no "death," that man is more alive after "death" than before. There is no Scriptural warrant for such statements, except what is found in Gen. 3:4. We are told "death" is a friend, a mere gateway that leads to a better land. Apart from the plain statements of Scripture, in regard to "death," and the great ransom price paid by Jesus in order to deliver men from "death," surely anyone who has come to years of maturity, must come to the conclusion that "death" is not a friend, but a hideous enemy. Those who propagate the idea of "death" not being "death," methinks prove by their actions that they do not believe their own doctrine. We are told that the wages of sin is not "death," but life in endless torments. We are also told that man is on probation, in this life to avoid endless torments, and gain an entrance into heaven. They tell us that few make good in escaping this awful doom. The doctrine of endless torment is of such a character, that words fail to express the horribleness of this blasphemous, God-dishonoring doctrine. And yet are told that this doctrine emanates from the Bible. A change is coming; men are beginning to see the truth. The veil that has been over men's hearts and minds is lifting. Read Habakkuk 2:14, Jeremiah 31:34, Isa. 25:6, 7, Isa. 46:11, 55:11. The days of famine are not yet gone by, not a famine of bread and water, but of hearing of the words of the Lord.—Amos 8:11. The hungry and mournful ones shall be comforted and satisfied, by-and-bye.—M. T. Butcher.

WOOLER NEWS

WOOLER, Nov. 18.—Mrs. E. Terrill is spending a week with Mrs. Julia White of Bloomfield.

Mrs. E. M. Wessels, accompanied by her sister-in-law, Mrs. Harry Anderson of Pittsburg, are spending a few days in Buffalo, N. Y.

On Thursday morning at the early hour of 6 a.m. Mr. and Mrs. L. H. Rowe and Mr. and Mrs. S. T. Terrill motored north as far as Millbridge, then engaged a team and wagon, driven by Mr. James Brown, to drive them into the Big Eddy Camp. The drive of seven miles was over rocks, through bush and bog holes full of water and black muck.

The lack of snow and so much water in the marshes make it difficult for the dogs to track deer, so the hunters say.

On Sunday Mr. and Mrs. A. Birchard of Millbrook and children, also Mrs. (Dr.) Gear of Lindsay and Mrs. Harry Hart of Cannington, motored to Wooler to call on the "Terrills."

Mr. and Mrs. S. L. Terrill are in Toronto this week attending the Royal Winter Fair.

Mr. Elgin McMasters had the misfortune to let his fine team run away on Saturday, but, fortunately, no damage was done.

Mr. and Mrs. Ellis of Castleton were the guests of Mrs. Ellis' parents, Mr. and Mrs. Fitzgerald, on Sunday.

DR. YOUNG ASSERTS CRITICISM BY DR. SUTTON IS MISDIRECTED

Many of Arguments Are Turned By M.O.H. Against Provincial Board.

NOT UTOPIA.

To Give Service Demanded By District Officer Beyond City's Means.

Taking the items on Dr. N. H. Sutton's score card as a whole and then one by one, Dr. T. W. H. Young, City Medical Officer of Health, today told The Examiner the tabulation is absurd and irregular, and in many instances not founded upon a vestige of fact.

Dr. Young was reluctant to answer the accusations brought by the District Officer of Health, but acceded to the request that he explain the duties and rights of the City's Health Department. The citizens, he admitted, are entitled to know both sides of the question.

The City Medical Officer has no right to trespass on the private practice of any physician, provided the question is not one of public import, and does not threaten the health of other members of the community, Dr. Young said. This had reference to a criticism made by Dr. Sutton to the effect that the Board of Health had not taken swabs or investigated two cases of diphtheria. The City M.O.H. could not intrude on a private practitioner to take swabs of his patients, and there was no necessity, since the private doctor was handling the cases efficiently. Dr. Sutton had accused him, Dr. Young said, of being practically a murderer because he had not taken the swabs in these two cases, which was a serious and unwarranted charge. The duty of the M.O.H. was discharged when precautions were taken against spreading the disease.

Up to Provincial Board.

Many of the criticisms made by Dr. Sutton, who is a Provincial officer, should have rightfully been levelled against the Provincial Board of Health, Dr. Young declared. As an instance, he cited Item 16 on Dr. Sutton's chart, which gives no marks for sewage disposal. Peterborough has, through many years, endeavored to decide and build an efficient sewage disposal plant, and just now, when it is about completed, is no time to detract from the achievement. The sewage disposal plant has been threshed out and approved by the Provincial Board of Health, and if there is anything wrong with it, the fault is the Provincial Board's. As a matter of fact, Dr. Young considers it one of the most up-to-date in the country.

Another point that has been laid at the door of the wrong party, Dr. Young said, is the condition of the water at the bathing beaches. All waters, rivers, lakes and streams are under the jurisdiction of the Province, and the matter of their condition is a question for the Provincial Board of Health, of which Dr. Sutton is an officer. If firms and individuals are fouling the waters, Dr. Sutton should take the matter up with them. Everyone knows, the M.O.H. continued, that the waters are fouled above the city by cottagersr and farm dwellers along the banks of the river and on the lake shores. This is, Dr. Young suggests, a fruitful soil for Dr. Sutton to cultivate.

Regarding the typhoid case on Rogers Street to which Dr. Sutton referred, asserting he had traced contagion to Inverlea Bathing Beach Dr. Young questions the source because of the isolated case. If one case was contracted there, why was there not an epidemic, he asks. And in any event, the streams are under the jurisdiction of the Provincial Board of Health, for whom Dr. Sutton acts in this district.

City Best Protected.

As for the city's drinking water supply, Dr. Young believes Peterborough's filtration plant the most efficient and safeguarding in Canada. It was built by the city at great expense, and filters thoroughly six million gallons a day. The citizens are fully protected by this, and no legitimate criticism can be made.

The deduction of marks because the Board of Health does not conduct school medical inspections is founded upon ignorance of the facts, Dr. Young said. The schools are not under the Board of Health. There is a provision, recently added, that when a vacancy occurs in the school medical staff, the work may be brought under the City Health Board, but that eventuality has not transpired in Peterborough.

Until that time the administration of school health affairs is vested in the school medical officer acting under instruction of the Board of Education. As a matter of fact, Dr. Young said, he had examined hundreds of school children who came to him under certificate from the school doctor and the school nurse for examination for adenoids, tonsils and teeth.

Tuberculosis

If Dr. Sutton knows of any cases of bovine tuberculosis he should report them, Dr. Young said. It is not in the province of the City M.O.H. to inspect cattle in the country — his jurisdiction extends only to the city boundary. Dr. Young does not know of any cases of bovine tuberculosis, and declares that is part of Dr. Sutton's work as District Officer of Health.

As an aside, Dr. Young smilingly said he did not know of any cows that give pasteurized milk, and questioned the meaning of Dr. Sutton's declaration that some cows were giving unpasteurized milk.

The attendance at meetings and conferences of the Board of Health sets a high mark in civic business, and does not admit of criticism from Dr. Sutton, the M.O.H. said. Personally, Dr. Young has only missed two meetings in five years. On one occasion he was ill and on the other he was attending a medical convention. The other members of the board are equally regular, and Dr. Young professed himself mystified by the giving of only one mark out of three for this point.

Milk Test

Peterborough has the most efficient milk test of any city in Ontario, Dr. Young declared, and had an efficient test system before the Provincial laboratory located here. Dr. Sutton, he said, gives full credit to the Provincial Laboratory, which is not correct. Dr. McNair simply took over the work when he came here. The test is made under the milk by-laws of the city, and no people in the Dominion are better protected than the citizens of Peterborough, the M.O.H. declared. The milk has a short haul to the city and is not cooked in the sun and stirred up on trains as the Toronto supply is. It is, therefore, a good natural milk supply, and is what the people desire. Even goats' milk is tested regularly.

Referring to "Terminal Fumigation," for which Dr. Sutton allowed one-tenth of a point, Dr. Young said of personal knowledge he knows this is regularly done, since he attends with the Sanitary Inspector after a case of infection is allowed out of quarantine, and conducts the fumigation. When the placards are put up the people are given instruction as to what they must do to prevent the spread of contagion, and in the event of a family being unable to purchase disinfectants or fumigants, these are supplied free by the city.

Not Work of M.O.H.

The issuing of serums and antitoxins is not the work of the City M.O.H., Dr. Young said. No one has ever complained of the work done in this line by the Provincial Laboratory. Neither is it the duty of the City M.O.H. to give lectures on health matters, or to intrude on the private practice of physicians in such cases as kidney and heart disease, covered by Item 14 of Dr. Sutton's tabulation which allowed no points for this work.

It has always been Dr. Young's contention that one nurse is not sufficient to look after the 3,000 public school children and the 1,200 separate school children in the city, although this does not come under his jurisdiction. The children in the separate schools, he says, are better looked after by the sisters than are the public school children, and fewer cases of contagion are traced to the separate schools. The public school nurse does good work, but there are too many children for her to care for them all. The Health Association nurse also is doing good work.

Not a Utopia

Peterborough is not a Utopia, Dr. Young admitted. People still become ill, and some die, but not through negligence of the Health Board. The work of the Board of Health is done efficiently, so far as the resources of the city will allow. The sanitary inspector is indefatigable in inspecting houses, buildings, meat, vegetables, and in all the ramifications of his position.

It cost the city last year $23,000 for indigent patients in hospitals and another $10,000 for administration of the Isolation Hospital. The City cannot afford the idealistic work outlined by Dr. Sutton, the M.O.H. said. It would cost, on a conservative computation, at least $25,000 additional. This figure was arrived at by the chairman of the Board of Health and Dr. Young.

If the people of Peterborough want the "frills" outlined by Dr. Sutton, with the additional expenditure of $25,000, they should so signify. At present there is no ground for complaint with the work that is being done.

In conclusion, Dr. Young declared that he still feels that Dr. Sutton's explanation of his chart is not sufficient apology to the Board of Health, or to the citizens of Peterborough.

Other advices, however, were that Argentine weather conditions remained unfavorable, and that the crop estimates for Argentina must be reduced more than 18,000,000 bushels. Chicago opening quotations 1-8 to 1c. lower, new style, December 157 to 157 1-4 and May 153 to 153 1-4, were followed by declines which carried December down to 156 1-8 and May to 152 5-8.

Corn and oats sympathized with wheat weakness. After opening at 1-8c. to 1-2c. lower, December 76c. to 76 1-4c., the corn market underwent a moderate further drop.

Oats started at 1-8c. decline to a shade advance, December 38 7-8, and held near to initial figures.

Provisions were responsive to a downturn in the hog market.

Fear Of Tighter Money Caused Collapse In New York

NEW YORK, November 18. — Canadian Press. — Another sharp collapse in stock prices took place in to-day's market with selling again inspired by fears of further tightening of the money rates. Efforts to restore speculative confidence on the long side by bidding up some of the motor stocks 2 to 5 points, were quickly abandoned when a gigantic flood of offerings appeared, converting these early gains into losses of 5 to 17½ points. The selling movement reached its greatest intensity in the early afternoon when Chrysler advanced from 202 to 209¼ and fell back to 195. Hudson dropped from 104 5-8 to 97½ and Mack Trucks from 220½ to 216. U. S. Steel Common sold down to 128 and General Electric to 303¼.

Decrease In Trade Volume; No Definite Trend at Toronto

TORONTO, Nov. 18 (Canadian Press).—The market was again without any definite trend on the Toronto Stock Exchange this morning, and a further decrease in volume of trading took place. Smelters, the leader, opened strong at 154 1-2, then sold down to 150. It recovered to 151 1-2 at noon, a net loss of a point and a half. Barcelona eased five-eights at 27, and Brazilian three-quarters at 75 1-4. Twin City closed the morning a half point lower and B. C. Fishing down a fraction, while Bell Telephone and Winnipeg were slightly higher.

Advances Moderate In Firm Session Mine Market

TORONTO, Nov. 18. (Canadian Press)—General firmness characterized the market on the Standard Mining Exchange this morning, though advances were moderate. Consolidated West Dome Lake, Goldale and Preston accounted for most of the heavy volume of trading.

West Dome sold up to 17 during the session, easing to 15½ at the morning close, a net gain of half a point. Goldale gained three-quarters at 31¾ and Preston sold un changed. Teck Hughes and Castle Tretheway were each marked up 2 points, while Newray and Vipond were a point higher.

Wheat Price Gets Setback On Reports From Argentine

CHICAGO, Nov. 18.—(Canadian Press.)—Wheat prices here underwent a quick early setback to-day, influenced by the fact that Liverpool market was unresponsive to yesterday's sharp advance on this side of the Atlantic. Besides, some of the crop news from Argentina to-day was of a reassuring kind.

BIRTH

HAMILTON.—To Mr. and Mrs. A. R. Hamilton, nee Helena R. Bruce, of Detroit, Mich., on October 29 a son, John La Verne Bruce.

IN POLICE COURT

Edward Harran, a Peterborough man, appeared before Magistrate O. A. Langley, charged with being found intoxicated on Rogers street. Examined by the Chief he disclosed the fact that he had purchased the liquor from Abraham Cherney. He said he paid four dollars for a bottle and identified the one shown as the same bottle. The contents made the witness drunk and he testified that there was no doubt of its power as a stimulant. It was whiskey.

Harran said he went in the second hand store owned by Cherney and asked for a drink. "He wouldn't sell me a drink but wanted me to buy a bottle and said it would cost $4. I said 'all right,', declared the witness.

The transaction was made last night between 7 and 8 o'clock and Harran was brought to the station at an early hour this morning. The Magistrate imposed a fine of $10 and costs.

Mr. Cherney next appeared and declared he was not guilty. He was not yet prepared to go on with the case as he had not consulted his lawyer. He had been given no time to do this, he said because the police had failed to notify him that the arrest was going to be made.

He was equally reluctant to remain in custody and to promote arrangements for bail. Declaring he was sick, he also desired time to have a doctor and he expressed grave concern as to the safety of the goods in his shop. The Chief reassured Mr. Cherney somewhat by informing him that there was a man guarding the place.

On the premises a quantity of alcoholics and other incidentals were found, which may provide an interesting exhibit when the case is revived on Monday. The magistrate, in remanding him, hinted at a former conviction which had been made last year in December and which may have some bearing on the judgment.

CAVAN NEWS

CAVAN, Nov. 18.—Some of the deer hunters are returning, some with their quota of deer, others without.

Mr. John Mitchell was away for a few days. He did not succeed in getting a deer.

Mr. George Coulter, Millbrook, spent a few days visiting his sister, Mrs. Eber Syer.

The Cavan Women's Institute will hold its November meeting at the home of Mrs. Eber Syer, Eighth Line on Thursday afternoon. The hostesses for the day will be Mrs. Jas. Paul, Mrs. Ray Syer, Miss Aleitha Kelly and Miss Eleanor Pritchard.

Mrs. Howden and Miss Jessie Shaffer will be responsible for the programme.

Mrs. Nelson went to Peterboro on Monday morning to visit her cousins, Mrs. M. J. Richardson and Miss Miriam Richardson and other friends. From there she will commence her return journey to Ennisfree, Alberta, visiting cousins in Toronto and other points enroute.

Mrs. Falls returned to her home Bailieboro, on Friday, after spending a week visiting her sister, Mrs. F. Staples.

Miss Helen Syer, Otonabee, spent the week-end with friends in Millbrook.

Messrs. Offa and Gerald Lifford Staples spent Sunday in Cavan.

There is a great deal of ploughing yet to be done; but the weather continues very unfavorable for accomplishing much farm work.

Turnips are being trucked into Peterboro in large quantities, where they are on sale at an unusually high price. This is doubtless due to the scarcity and high price of potatoes.

A huge truck load was left highway for some time on Friday, owing to tire trouble.

The roads are in a very bad condition.

Messrs. T. J. Lang and S. S. Staples shipped car loads of hogs from Cavan station on Monday.

STREET RAILWAY ISSUES DEFINED

Mayor Turner Suggests Fancy Price May Be Result of Negligence.

Referring to the story which appeared in The Examiner a few days ago with reference to the suggested re-arrangement and adjustment in the street car system, by the Hydro-Electric Power Commission, to include 'buses run in conjunction with street cars and operated over streets not now served in any way, the Mayor, when interviewed by The Examiner to-day, said that this opened up the question as to what was best in the interests of the city. It is a question of the consideration and ultimate purchase of the present street railways system at a favorable price and making extensions and alterations along the lines suggested by the Hydro and building up the utility in service and value, ultimately reaching a paying basis, or else the granting of a further franchise of streets for operating motor 'busses to allow the Hydro-Electric Commission to build up the utility to a paying basis, and then have them sell it to the city at a price made on a different basis from their present offer.

"The question is simply this," said the Mayor, "what is best for the City? Have we faith enough in our future as a city to continue negotiations at the present time for the street railway at a satisfactory price, or shall we have the street railway built up and run for us by the Hydro and then have them sell it to us for a fancy price?"

BRITISH COMMONS RATIFIES LOCARNO PLEDGES BY VOTE OF 375 TO 13 ON GUARANTEES AGAINST WAR CHAMBERLAIN CONGRATULATED BY OPPONENTS

Approval of Ratification Almost Unanimous—Majority of Laborites Supported the Government—Chamberlain Reviews Locarno Conference.

MAKE WAR INFINITELY MORE DIFFICULT.

Dominions Not Consulted But Are Left Free To Take Their Own Action—A Move Toward Disarmament.

LONDON, Nov. 19 (Canadian Press).—The spirit of Locarno pervaded the crowded House of Commons last night, when approval of ratification of the European Security Pact—the Treaty of Mutual Guarantees—was voted 375 to 13. A Labor amendment was defeated previously 332 to 130.

When the Speaker put the motion presented by Austen Chamberlain, Secretary for Foreign Affairs, calling for approval of ratification there was an almost unanimous shout in its favor. But back bench Labor members persisted in calling for a division. The maojrity of the Laborites voted with the Government, but about a score abstained from voting.

As the vote indicated, it was a sympathetic house which greeted Mr. Chamberlain upon his appearance in Westminster to render an account of his stewardship at the recent international conference at Locarno and seek authority from the Commons for signing in London on December 1 the treaties initialled there.

Praised by Opponents.

After the Foreign Secretary's recital of the Locarno proceedings, both Ramsay MacDonald and David Lloyd George paid tribute to his work. The Labor leader said it had advanced the cause of peace substantially, while Mr. Lloyd George added his characteristic light touch to the debate by expressing his desire to add a humble Welsh leek to the many nosegays Mr. Chamberlain had already received because of his efforts for European peace and security.

Mr. Chamberlain recalled how for the first time nations who had been enemies in the Great War met at Locarno on a footing of perfect equality and there evolved a series of treaties bringing assurance of peace to many countries which felt themselves threatened and insecure. And in so doing they hastened the possibility of dealing effectively with the problem of European disarmament, and at the same time brought new support to the prestige of the League of Nations.

Make War Difficult.

"I do not say that these treaties when ratified will make war impossible," said Mr. Chamberlain, "but I do say they will render war infinitely more difficult. With these agreements in operation, it will be difficult for a signatory nation to make war without clearly putting itself in wrong before the whole civilized world and bearing the odium of such wrong-doing."

The Labor and Liberal critics seemed thoroughly satisfied on the question of Great Britain's new pledges to the European countries by the Foreign Secretary's explanation, which made it clear that Britain's obligations were carefully restricted and that military intervention on the Continent could not be brought about until the British government itself had decided that an alleged violation of international rights constituted an unprovoked act of aggression.

Dominions Not Consulted.

The Labor amendment expressed general agreement with the Government's action at Locarno, and the debate resolved itself into variations of such approval. Great Britin's new Continental obligations were scarcely touched upon during the seven-hours' debate, but two points that brought the most fire from the Opposition benches were the position of the Dominions, which were not consulted, and Russia's place in European affairs.

On the second point Mr. Chamberlain satisfied Ramsay MacDonald that there was no plot to keep the Soviets out of European affairs, but Moscow's policy of isolation had been formulated at Moscow and strictly adhered to despite the efforts of the Allies to get Soviet envoys to European council tables.

On the Dominion issue, the secretary insisted that the Dominions and India had been left free to take their own action, and the whole question of the Locarno treaties would be placed before them at the next Empire conference.

Disarmament Omitted.

The Laborites also insisted that disarmament should have been dealt with at Locarno. Mr. Lloyd George received loud ministerial cheers when he agreed with Mr. Chamberlain that it would have been impossible to do so.

"Other nations must be represented best those who were at Locarno in order to deal with disarmament effectively," the foreign secretary explained.

S. Saklatvala, the Communist member, had a moment in which to denounced the Locarno treaties as an intrigue by international financiers against the workers. He would support neither Mr. Chamberlain's motion nor the Labor amendment which pretended to oppose it, but did not. The United States Ambassador, Alanson B. Houghton, was one of those who listened to the debate.

Glasses, Cups and Chairs Are Forceful Arguments

CHEMNITZ, Saxony, Germany, Nov. 19. — (Canadian Press). — A thousand beer glasses, five hundred coffee cups and six hundred tables and chairs were used as arguments with smashing effect in a discussion of the topic, "Lenin or Hitler," staged by the local Fascisti last evening. Hitler is the Bavarian Fascist leader. When the beer mug battle was over sixty of the participants required bandages and one was so severely hurt that he died.

The meeting called by Herr Dr. Goebbels of Duesseldorf, a follower of Hitler, was packed by Communists, who took such violent issue with the Fascist arguments that a free-for-all fray ensued.

BISHOP O'BRIEN IS WELCOMED BY HUNDREDS OF PARISHIONERS

Stirring Reception Accorded His Lordship Returning From Eeternal City.

PLEASED TO BE HOME.

Inspiring Message Delivered in St. Peter's Cathedral After Greeting.

"It is with the happiness and joy of a father returning to the midst of his family that I find myself back in my own cathedral, and amongst you again, after an absence of about two months. I like to return to my own home. Home to any man means not only the four walls of the house he lives in, but the companionship of his neighbors and friends, and home to me means not only the companionship of those of the household of the faith, but it means the friendship of every individual in the City of Peterborough, the place where I was born and have lived amongst you for half a century.

"I am grateful to Almighty God for a safe return, and I am grateful to you all, to every citizen, whose friendship I value highly, and who have been kind to me on many occasions. I am thankful and grateful for your kindness when I went away, and for this splendid welcome on my return."

With these opening words, Bishop O'Brien, returning to Peterboro last evening after an absence of nearly two months abroad, commenced his acknowledgment of the royal welcome accorded him last evening on his arrival in the city. Stepping off the 8.15 C.N.R. train, accompanied by Dr. James V. Gallivan, who was his companion on his trip, and by many of the priests of the diocese, who boarded his train at different near-by points along the route, His Lordship was manifestly astonished and delighted at the crowd which thronged the station, including citizens from many different sects and creeds in the city. Parishioners and friends

'Rattlesnake Bill" Dead; Visited Every Jail Once

NEWTON, N.J., Nov. 19.—(United News.)—"Rattlesnake Bill" Van Horne, who boasted that he had been in every jail between Maine and Florida at least once, is dead. Van Horne (he was born William) died at the home of Mrs. Avert Sipley last night.

When he was not in jail, "Rattlesnake Bill" captured and sold rattlesnakes. His customers were zoological gardens and when these did not purchase his entire catches he skinned the serpents and made hat bands and belts for sale.

IMMIGRATION IS TOUCHED ON AT BOARD MEETING

E. W. Beatty, C. P. R. President, and Sir Thomas White, Spoke at Banquet.

CONFERENCE OVER.

Both Speakers Said Increased Population Would Improve Condition of Country.

WINNIPEG, November 19. — Canadian Press. — Addresses by E. W. Beatty, president of the Canadian Pacific Railway, and Sir Thomas White, former Minister of Finance, featured the banquet last night as the climax to the three day conference of the Associated Boards of Trade and Chambers of Commerce, of Canada.

Mr. Beatty gave a comprehensive sketch of the history of the Canadian Pacific Railway, outlined its achievements and stressed the need for an immigration policy that would swell considerably the population of the country.

Sir Thomas White, former Federal Minister of Finance, also touched on the question of immigration, declaring that if Canada could get this immigration—and he thought it could—and went ahead with the development of the vast resources of the country, then he had absolutely no lack of confidence in the future of the Dominion.

Canned Music and Radio Raise British Appreciation

LONDON, Eng., Nov. 19.—(Canadian Press Despatch).—The gramaphone, the pianoplayer, the broadcasting apparatus—all these are raising the appreciation in England of good music, according to Sir Landon Ronald, Principal of the Guildhall School of Music, and one of the most eminent musicians of this generation.

Whether the actual patronage of concerts is increasing Sir Landon has just celebrated the completion of fifteen years as Principal of the Guildhall School, which is under the control and maintained by the City of London Corporation. He is no high-brow, for he has encouraged the study of such works as Gilbert and Sullivan, with the results that many students have stopped straight from the Guildhall School to leading parts at the West End theatres.

Former Kaiser Maintains Regal State As In Potsdam He Says Future Of England Is Terribly Insecure

LONDON, Nov. 19 (Canadian Press)—"Just like Potsdam," is the impression of the former Kaiser's life at Doorn, brought back by Rt. Hon. Alexander Carlisle, 71 year old friend of the Kaiser, who has just spent a week end at Doorn.

Carlisle, who is a member of King George's Privy Council and a former head of the famous Belfast shipbuilding firm of Harland and Wolff, long has been known as an intimate friend of the former German emperor, though the friendship ceased during the war.

Carlisle is a militant Orangeman and an ultra British patriot. On his return Carlisle emphasized the personal nature of the conferences but consented to talk of the regal state of Potsdam which the Kaiser still keeps up.

"The Kaiser was in a glittering uniform at dinner; decorations and medals gleamed on his breast. The Kaiserine was magnificently dressed. The staff was in uniform.

"The Kaiser and I talked about all sort of things," he said. The Kaiser said: "I always have had friendly feelings toward England. I am attached to England by family ties. I am confident that if honest diplomacy had been used and if certain members of the cabinet had visited Berlin before the world war, things would have been very different. To some extent it was a war of lawyers, and I have always disliked lawyers."

Talking of England's future, the Kaise: said: "I think her future is terribly insecure. Her financial burden would appear intolerable."

Regarding the yellow peril, the Kaiser said gravely: "The great danger to the future of England and the world lies in the East."

LINDSAY CLERGYMAN BEATEN ABOUT HEAD BY UNKNOWN MAN

Rev. E. O. Gallagher Was Assaulted at Garage Door.

SERIOUSLY HURT.

Was Left Unconscious on Ground and Found By Neighbours.

LINDSAY, Nov. 19. (Special to The Examiner).—Rev. E. O. Gallagher, curate of St. Paul's Church here, was the victim of a dastardly assault at the hands of an unknown man last night. He was in the act of running his auto into his garage after attending a rehearsal of young people at the Sunday School, when he was suddenly confronted by a man, who ordered him to throw up his hands. He then assaulted him, leaving him unconscious on the grass, where he was found some minutes afterwards and taken to Mayor Graham's residence. He was revived somewhat, but later fainted away. He received a severe blow on the head from his assailant, who fled after assaulting him.

Butler Went To Carry Game Huntresses Carried Him In

CHICAGO, Nov. 19. (Canadian Press). — Each year J. Ogden Armour, millionaire packer, grants twenty hunting permits, allowing society members of Lake Forest to shoot game in his 2,000-acre estate, Mellody Farm.

But there will be no more hunting there this year. A score of society women, armed with shot guns, went rabbit and squirrel hunting on the estate yesterday. Mr. Armour's butler went along to help bring in the game.

Instead, the huntresses brought back the butler. He had been shot in the back by one of the Nimrods.

Last night Mr. Armour cancelled all the permits.

AMERICAN LOAN OF $100,000,000 FOR MUSSOLINI

Flotation Arranged By Banking Syndicate Headed By J. P. Morgan Co.

7 PER CENT BONDS.

Italy Plans to Restore Gold Standard—Issued Next Friday.

NEW YORK, Nov. 19.—(Canadian Press).—A loan of $100,000,000 to the Italian Government, ensuring financial support for the restoration of the gold standard in Italy has been arranged through a group of American banks headed by J. P. Morgan and Company.

Negotiations for the financing virtually were concluded yesterday and formal flotation of the loan was tentatively scheduled for next Friday by a nation-wide banking syndicate. The issue will take the form of bonds maturing within 20 or 30 years and yielding the investor more than seven per cent. While actual terms have not been made public it is expected that the bonds will bear a seven per cent. interest rate and be priced slightly below par.

Approximately half the proceeds of the new loan will be used to retire the $50,000,000 credit extended by J. P. Morgan & Company to the three Italian banks of issue last June for the stabilization of the lire. The funds which will be made available to Italy by the present financing also will be held for exchange stabilization purposes. The re-valuation of the lira on a gold basis probably will be announced as a part of yesterday's new financial programme.

Christmas Club Savings Amount To $314,154,800

NEW YORK, N.Y., Nov. 19. (United Press). — Christmas stockings in the United States will be bulging to the brim this year if the amount of Christmas club savings is indicative.

The seven million members of these clubs will be mailed cheques totalling $314,154,800 by the 6,800 banks throughout the country which have adopted this plan of saving. This is about $70,000,000 more than in 1924. New York will receive $35,000,000, but Massachusetts leads in per capita Christmas club savings.

QUEEN MOTHER SERIOUSLY ILL SUFFERS FROM HEART ATTACK

Queen's Physicians Say That Her Condition is Critical.

81 YEARS OLD.

Her Strength Has Been Failing For a Number of Years.

LONDON, Nov. 19.—(Canadian Press).—Dowager Queen Alexendra, mother of King George, is critically ill from a heart attack, it is officially announced. The Queen, whose eighty-first birthday falls on December 1, suffered the attack this morning.

A statement issued from her home, Sandringham Castle, this afternoon, reads:

"Her Majesty Queen Alexandra, who for some time past has been failing in health, suffered a severe heart attack this morning. Her Majesty's condition is critical. —(Signed) F. G. Williams, Sir Thomas Horder."

King George and Queen Mary are at Sandringham, where they have been staying at York Cottage since last Saturday.

Living In Quiet.

Queen Alexandra's strength has been failing for a long time, and for a considerable period she has been living in the quiet of Sandringham Palace.

More than a year ago it was announced that she would not appear at any further public functions, and last year for the first time she was unable to appear on Alexandra Rose Day, which has long been a feature of her life.

This afternoon's announcement by the Queen Mother's physicians was the first intimation the public had that the aged Queen was not in her usual health. As the evening papers containing the news appeared on the streets, great crowds rushed to buy them, for no member of the Royal Family in the history of the Empire has had a firmer place in the hearts of the people than Queen Alexandra.

REV. DEAN KELLY HIGHLY HONORED

Bishop O'Brien Tells of Raising to Dignity of Domestic Prelate.

An honor conferred by Pope Pius 11th, and made known to its recipient on the arrival home of Bishop O'Brien last evening, was the raising to the dignity of Domestic Prelate, which carries with it the insignia and title of Monsignor, of Rev. Dean Kelly of Trout Creek, as a reward for his faithful missionary endeavors in a large portion of the northern section of this diocese. Rt. Rev. Monsignor Kelly has labored for the past thirty-three years in the more remote and isolated sections of the diocese or Peterborough and has built within that time five churches in that district. He has been stationed at Trout Creek for some years.

SPIDER IN THE WEB ATTITUDE TAKEN BY CITY HEALTH BOARD ISN'T IDEAL SAYS DR. SUTTON

District M. O. H. Declares Dead Herrings Dragged Across the Trail.

DEFINES ISSUES.

Duties of M. O. H. Include Instruction in Methods of Preventing Disease.

The following statement regarding the Health controversy between th health officers in Peterborough is given today by Dr. N. H. Sutton, District Officer of Health:

In view of the importance of the present campaign for better Public Health in the City, it is necessary to take some cognizance of the interview in yesterday's issue, in which the M..O.H. pleads so strenuously for the continuance of the present conditions, even while he admits that they are far from Utopian. If improvement is needed, it is reasonable to show that such is the case. For this purpose, a standard is needed to measure against, and the one used for this purpose was a score card of international fame and use. In scoring the method adopted was to allow marks for work done; no marks were "deducted" either for work not done or for active or passive obstruction of progress in Public Health matter. If marks had been "deducted" the score would have been very low indeed. On the other hand, no marks were allowed for much very valuable work being done by Public and Private bodies throughout the City, and it was distinctly stated that only Board of Health work was being scored. If all the health activities of the City were totalled, the score would have been, at last, 50 per cent. If all these efforts were unified, guided and encouraged, by a real live, effective Health Department, the score would rapidly rise to first-class honors, for there is a very keen interest in the health and welfare of the city, among the reliable citizens of all walks of life. The situation might be fairly well likened to a log jam where thousands of feet of valuable timber are held up by one log. To release this useful timber and make its qualities available for the most effective service to the community, it is necessary to show up things as they are. I shall take an early opportunity to show what can be accomplished by a good Health Department: today, I shall only remove certain dead herrings which have been dragged upon the trail.

Sugar Beet Farmers Call For Sarnia Citizens' Help

SARNIA, Ont., Nov. 19.—(Canadian Press).—Sugar beet farmers in the neighborhood of Mandaumin and Wanstead are faced with disaster unless 100 men can be secured immediately to pull the beets still in the ground. Representatives of the beet growers in the district came to the city yesterday to appeal to the manufacturers and citizens of Sarnia to release 100 men who would be willing to go to the beet fields to-day to help in the emergency.

It was stated that even an inexperienced man can earn from $5 to $7 a day at the work, the only equipment required being a pair of canvas gloves.

It is estimated that one hundred men for two days can save the threatened beet crop.

PRIEST ELOPED WITH PUPIL AND WAS ARRESTED

Declared That Girl's Age Was 22 and Was Convicted.

GIRL ONLY 17.

Dispensation From Vows Was Refused, So Elopement Resulted.

WINCHESTER, Eng., Nov. 19.—(Canadian Press).—A romance in which a former Catholic priest was one of the principals, culminated at the Winchester Assizes to-day in the former priest being sentenced to imprisonment for three months for having made a false declaration in order to procure a marriage certificate.

The priest was friendly with an army medical colonel and his family, including a daughter of the age of 17. He gave the daughter lessons and fell in love with her. He asked for a dispensation from his priestly vows, and this not being granted, he eloped with the girl early one morning and married her in Winchester. In order to obtain a certificate, however, he had given the girl's age as 22, and this resulted in his conviction at the assizes here.

ALIEN SMUGGLERS BELIEVED CAUGHT

Round Up at Windsor By U. S. Immigration Officers.

WINDSOR, Nov. 19.—(Canadian Press).—United States immigration officers uncovered yesterday what they believe to be the centre of one of the largest alien smuggling rings on the border when they arrested Joseph Mooney, Paul Masse and Ralph Rosso, deckhands of the Walkerville and Detroit ferry-boat "Wayne," with four aliens, at the Joseph Campeau docks.

Since the arrest, Immigration Inspector Brooks of the investigation department, Detroit, and his officers have been quietly assembling evidence, and it was announced that the alleged smugglers with the aliens will be arraigned before the department shortly. The arrest was made after months of investigation by Secret Service agents.

According to officials, Mooney was the head of the organization on the boat, while an Italian, Alessandro Benedicti, residing at an unknown address in the Border Cities, obtained the business. Benedicti charged each alien $75.

EXILED RUSSIANS TURN TO NICOLAS FOR LEADERSHIP

Grand Duke is Hardened Campaigner and a Born Leader of Men.

ON VERGE OF SEVENTY.

Says He is Willing to Make Any Sacrifice For His Country.

By RALPH HEINZEN.

(United Press Staff Correspondent).

PARIS, Nov. 19 (United Press).—The three million Russians forced into exile by the Revolution of 1917, have turned for a leader to the Grand Duke Nicolas.

A refugee himself, drifting from Constantinople to Rome and Genoa, to Antibes, and eventually to a home in a quiet, carefully guarded castle a short distance from Paris, Grand Duke Nicolas Nicolaevitch, uncle of the murdered Tzar and once commander in chief of the Russian Armies, a popular and almost legendary figure with the older Russian peasantry, has been definitely placed at the head of the Pan-Russia movement.

A soldier since he was able to walk, a hardened campaigner, a keen student of economics and politics, Nicolas is a born leader. A picturesque cavalryman of gigantic stature Nicolas was perhaps the best liked soldier of Old Russia. He was popular as General Inspector of the Imperial Cavalry, but he was even greater as commander of the Russian Armies on the Western and Southern fronts.

When the Tzar took full command of the Russian Armies, Nicolas was relieved of his command and shifted to the Caucasus, where he continued to win surprising victories.

Eight years have worked their changes in the man. He is to-day at the age when a soldier ordinarily retires, being on the verge of seventy. His lean, strongly chiseled face, bears traces of his age, but he is physically strong and his spirit is undaunted. His courage is that of his father, the great Nicolas, whose victories over the Turks in 1877 form one of the brightest pages in the history of Russia.

"I am ready to make any sacrifice in the interests of Russia. That is why I finally consented after being petitioned for three years to assume the leadership of the Pan-Russia movement," he told me. "I had hoped some other leader could be found, but now I am willing to carry on. I would gladly give m life if necessary to free Russia."

He made it clear that the Pan Russia movement is not a step towards the restoration of a monarchy. It is merely a movement towards the restitution of what the "whites" call a rational government. Whether Russia would choose a monarchy of a republican form of Government would depeen upon the national wish, once the present Government is superseded and order restored, according to "Pan-Russian" plans.

The selection of Nicolas as leader of the new movement is a result of the application of the theory of the survival of the fittest over the contenders.

The anti-bolshevists, weakened by internal friction, finally realized that unless their affairs were put in the hands of a capable chief, they would drift helplessly. Nicolas was an almost unanimous choice, his election pleasing every faction because of his determination to restore order in Russia independent of the question of accession to the throne and even of the eventual form of government.

Thus, to-day, Nicolas is the outstanding figure among "white" Russians in and outside of Russia. He is not only the leader of the political movement which has as its aim the destruction of the Third International and the present Bolshevist regime, but he is also commander in chief of the Russian armies, not altogether a bare title.

There are in Europe about 200,000 soldiers of all grades of the armies of Wrangel and Denekin. There are also many of the officers of the old Russian Imperial and White armies available for service, but scattered in two hemispheres. These officers have formed a Section and they persuaded Grand Duke Nicolas to command them. Thus the day when Nicholas marches into Russia, he will have available not only a complete cadre of officers, but a trained army as well—needing only arms and equipment. And there is where America may come in.

Begum of Bhopal Would Not Send Grand-daughters to University.

ABSORB ENGLISH WAYS

Gave Interview Cloaked in National Costume With Eyes Alone Showing.

LONDON, Nov. 19 (Associated Press)—Of all the ultra modernism about the English girls of 1925 only the short skirts are a shock to the orthodox sensibilities of the Begum of Bhopal, the only woman ruler of the 700 potentates of India, who is in London taking in western civilization through her Mohammedan veil.

The most advanced woman of her race and among the most progressive of the Indian rulers, the Begum, despite her 67 years, has come to London with her son and heir to learn the ways and manners of the land of her suzerain.

Her Royal Highness wants her grand-daughters to learn a woman's work but she would not think of sending them to universities. Such institutions are a good place for boys but not for girls.

"I don't think women need to know as much as a man," she added, in dismissing the subject of women's place in the sun.

The Begum has established herself in an English mansion in the heart of Mayfair which contains nothing more suggestive of her native land than an axminster carpet. Her household of 32 members are mostly court officials and personal maids, and it is an English butler who opens the pretentious door and a Cockney maid who pours out afternoon tea. The Begum is in purdah all the time, as the laws of her religion demand and it is only a piar of sparkling eyes that one is permitted to address.

But the Begum is not travelling in state. Quite the contrary, for the representative of The Associated Press who called upon her was taken without ceremony into her private sitting room and presented to the Begum as she threw aside a piece of highly colored embroidery upon which she had been working.

"I am quite attracted to English girls but I cannot believe they should go about in such short skirts and or without guardians," the Begum told her interviewer. "But I suppose short skirts are the fashion."

The two sons of the Begum have several daughters and in the rearing of these children the Begum takes a personal interest.

"I want my grand-daughters to learn a woman's work," she asserted. "They must learn to run a household, supervise cooking and know needlework but I would not think of sending them to Universities. That's a good place for boys but not for girls."

Her Royal Highness herself received a part of her education from tutors sent to her parents by the British government. From them she learned English, French and elementary mathematics. But for other subjects this powerful ruler has a natural dislike.

The heir to the throne, who accompanied his mother, has spent most of his time in driving through the downtown streets and marvelling at the shop windows.

Her Face Was Covered With Large, Red Pimples

Miss Greta Carlisle, 23 Leonard St., Brantford, Ont., writes:—"A short while ago, my face was completely covered with large red pimples, and it seemed that it was almost impossible for me to get rid of them, as nothing I took seemed to do me any good.

One day I noticed an advertisement of

and I will never regret the day I bought it, as, now, my face is entirely cleared up of blotches and pimples of every kind."

For the past 47 years B.B.B. has been put up only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

STRANGE TRICKS PLAYED BY FATE ON H.B. STEAMER

Fog, Mirages, Faulty Soundings and Storms Delayed Baychimo's Voyage.

CAUGHT IN ICE.

Twelve Attempts Were Made to Free Way Through Heavy Fields.

VANCOUVER, B.C., Nov. 19.—Fogs, mirages, faulty soundings and stormy weather played cruel tricks with the Hudson's Bay company trading vessel Baychimo during its long voyage in the Arctic, and it was only through a strange turn of fate that she was able to reach here safely after being imprisoned for twenty-nine days in the ice off Herschell Island.

After being caught in the ice late in August, twelve attempts were made to buck the heavy fields without success. The strongest gales roaring down out of the north, failed to break up or shift the huge pack and the Baychimo was helpless in its grip. Several times the vessel worked its way clear of the floes only to be held back after a few hours and locked in a more powerful grip than before. Finally it was decided to prepare the ship for a winter in the Arctic.

On Sept. 20, however, some members of the crew who had landed at Herschell Island, reported having seen clear water. The following day the Baychimo made another break for the open and succeeded in crashing through. Fog, however, which had settled on the water for days, lifted and open water was seen ahead without a trace of ice. The vessel ploughed ahead over the Arctic seas for four days and four nights. Then the unexpected happened. The weather suddenly turned colder. Snow-laden guests of wind drove across the Baychimo's bows. At night an ice "blink" or reflection from the sky was visible. A solid wall of ice suddenly loomed ahead, stretching for miles and towering fourteen feet high, an unbroken stretch of ice— the Polar pack.

"Full astern" was ordered and the ship, in the nick of time, backed away. Had she hit, her bows would have crumpled like an eggshell and the ship and crew would have gone to the bottom. It was concluded that the soundings had been misleading, that the Baychimo was lost. But at daybreak Captain S. A. Cornwall saw through the haze what appeared to be a church steeple. He doubted his own vision at first. Then he heard the yelping of dogs. A miracle had brought the little trading vessel out of the Arctic wilderness to the village of Point Barrow, which was then rounded and the vessel headed for Dutch Harbor, Alaska, to replenish her fuel supply to carry her to Vancouver.

HIGH SCHOOL 'AT HOME.'

Teachers and Pupils at Norwood Held Successful Social Evening.

NORWOOD, Nov. 19 — The teachers and pupils of the Norwood High school held a very successful "At Home" in the Government Armories on Friday evening last. The evening was spent in promenades, games and dancing. A vocal solo was rendered by Wilson Roseborough, one of the pupils, and the music for the evening was supplied by the High School orchestra. A number of ex-pupils were in attendance. Mrs. Copen of the "Brown Betty Tea Room" supplied the lunch.

ATTENDANCE SMALL DUE TO WEATHER

Rev. G. McCord Preached in Roseneath United Church.

ROSENEATH, Nov. 19.—Owing to the inclement weather there was a very small attendance at the Union services on Sunday evening. Rev. T. McCord preached an excellent service and those who were absent missed a treat.

Henceforth both congregations will worship in the former Methodist church, but owing to some minor placing in the Presbytery both congregations will carry on their work separately until such time as the difficulties have been arranged. Then the Rev. J. Lovelace will be the pastor while Rev. McCord will take Bethesda, Gores Landing and Plainville. In his work here he endeared himself to the members of both congregations.

Mr. Jas. Timlin had the misfortune to fall from a horse, dislocating his shoulder.

A large number from here are enjoying themselves in the north woods hunting the deer. Among those are Messrs. Alex Shearer, Jas. Braithwaite, W. Walton, Rev. J. Lovelace, Amos Shearer, Frank Shearer, Sal. Leach, Robert Macklin, Wm. Taylor and Fred George.

Alderville school is closed owing to the epidemic of measles which is in the community.

The work on the country road is held up for the time as the gravel pit is flooded with water.

Mr. and Mrs. B. Thackeray and Mr. and Mrs. C. Thackeray visited Cobourg on Saturday last.

DELORO DRAMATIC SOCIETY'S MEETING

All Officers Were Re-elected By This Successful Organization.

MARMORA, Nov. 19.—The ever thriving Deloro Social and Dramatic Society held its annual general meeting and smoker at the Hall on Monday evening, November 17th. The attendance was large and representative and possibly the best since the Society was inaugurated some twenty-five years ago. Previous to the chair being taken by the president, Mr. R. A. Elliott, a safety first film on safeguarding was shown and the card tables utilized. The first item of business was the adoption of the minutes of the last general meeting which were read by the secretary-treasurer, Mr. S. B. Cheeseman. The president then presented his report in which he briefly reviewed the activities of the past year. He referred to the purchase of the new piano, the rearrangement of the stage and erection of new curtain. The membership of the Society was stated to be in the neighborhood of two hundred at present. It was also intresting to hear that the Hall is in use five out of every seven days. Mr. S. B. Cheeseman gave the treasurer's report which came in for very thoughtful discussion though readily passed. The election of officers was next proceeded with. On the nomination of Mr. R. A. Elliott both honorary presidents were re-elected in the persons of Mr. S. B. Wright and Mr F. A. Bapty. Both gentlemen on being called to address the meeting spoke very suitably. Mr. R. A. Elliott was re-elected president. Past officers re-elected in turn were: Vice president, Mr. A. V. Yates; secretary-treasurer, Mr. S. B. Cheeseman and librarian, Mr. K. B. Patterson. Mr. A. R. Pengilly was elected master of ceremonies. The management committee is strengthened in number for this year and includes Messrs. H. A. McNally, R. Hunter, A. Hart, W. Regan, R. Parker, W. R. Reynolds, W. Simmons, C. H. Buskard, H. R. Haacke, F. Groves, and F. Melvair. A second safety first film was shown entitled "Paying the Price." London School Population Falls 100,000 Since 1914

LONDON, Nov. 19.—London has lost 100,000 children since 1914, according to public school attendance figures for last April. At the latter time 797,140 children were on the school registers, 3,982 less than in 1924 and 96,799 less than 1914.

The decrease is attributed almost entirely to the decline in the birth-rate, but a contributing factor is the removal of families to new settlements outside the metropolitan area, with little counterbalancing inflow.

A PROVINCIAL ELECTION?

That the people of Ontario may early next year have to go through the turmoil of a Provincial election with Government control as the chief issue before the electorate is an opinion that seems to be steadily gaining ground.

Evidence to confirm this impression is to be found, it is said, in the failure of Premier Ferguson to provide for by-elections in the ridings in which Provincial members resigned to enter the Federal contest, and in the declaration made by Mr. Ferguson to the hotelkeepers recently that there would be no more plebiscites, and that the Government would take full responsibility for its legislation in regard to the liquor question.

It is asserted that the vacancies will not be filled before the next session, and that Mr. Ferguson will introduce Government control legislation and then go to the country on that issue.

All this, of course, is surmise, with the Premier so far refusing to admit that the ever-increasing rumours having any sound foundation.

The theory, of course, of those who claim that the Government's programme will be as outlined is that Mr. Ferguson's 4.4 amendments having offended the dry forces and disappointed the wet voters, a shift to Government control offers the most advantageous political course for the Government.

SAFE BATHING.

The local Medical Officer of Health declares that the responsibility for dealing with the pollution of the waters of the Otonabee, causing undesirable conditions at the local bathing beaches, rests with the Provincial Board of Health.

Whatever body may be responsible for action along this line, the Examiner believes that the people of Peterboro want these conditions dealt with before the next bathing season arrives.

It was a shock to many bathers when Dr. A. W. McPherson, School Medical Officer, declared early in the autumn that the water at both bathing beaches were so polluted as to be unsafe.

This is no reason why such a condition should be found, and the present argument will not be futile if it leads to the question being vigorously dealt with.

It should be an easy matter to locate the sources of pollution, and if, as Dr. Young asserts, the question is within the jurisdiction of the Provincial Board of Health, then the people of this city have a right to demand that the firms or individuals who are responsible be compelled by the Provincial Board to stop using the Otonabee as a cesspool or a receptacle for waste material.

Peterboro wants safe bathing, and should be able to get safe bathing.

And even the new sewer service mentioned by Mayor Turner will not guarantee this condition, especially in connection with the Inverlea beach.

THE CHRISTMAS APPEAL.

Dear Mr. Editor:

This is the fiftieth year—the semi-centennial of the Hospital for Sick Children. It is the golden anniversary of an institution which started out in 1875 with a six-bed equipment to cure children medically of their illnesses and to rid them surgically of their disabilities. Fifty years have passed and the tiny hospital has grown into one of the greatest institutions of its kind in the whole world.

The people of this Province demanded this service—and they have made it possible by their Christmas time gifts. They are rewarded by the knowledge that thousands of Ontario children will grow up into manhood or womanhood blessing the "little blue cots" wherein they were restored and strengthened to play a full part in the battle of life.

To win back health for six thousand boys and girls was the measure of the hospital's ward-service alone this year. Besides that there were over half a hundred thousand attendances in the out-patient department, where the less serious cases are treated. All this costs a great deal of money, even though the doctors give freely of their skill and the nurses of their care. There is board and lodging and laundry to be provided, besides the best that can be procured in the way of all the medical and surgical supplies required to treat the myriad ailments and accidents to which children are subject.

In order to maintain its high standard of efficiency and also to widen the scope of its service through clinics conducted all over Ontario, the hospital is compelled to borrow heavily during the year. On the occasion of its fiftieth Christmas an appeal is made to the public for the funds which will allow the Hospital for Sick Children to enter upon its second half-century of service with its courage renewed by a credit balance in the bank.

It is indeed a noble cause which I feel sure you will cordially commend to your readers.

Faithfully yours,
IRVING E. ROBERTSON,
Chairman Appeal Committee.

Note.—The hospital does not receive an appropriation from the Federation for Community Service Drive.

HEALTH MATTERS.

Out of the heat of the present controversy between Dr. N. H. Sutton, Provincial Medical Officer of Health for this district, and the local Board of Health may come changes that will be generally beneficial, but there is some reason to regret that the criticism voiced by Dr. Sutton may be given an interpretation outside of Peterboro that was perhaps not intended by the District M.O.H.

The impression that will doubtless be created among those not conversant with local conditions is that Peterboro is in a very bad way indeed from a health standpoint.

Outsiders will jump to the conclusion that Peterboro pays no attention to the purity of its water supply, that there is no medical inspection in the schools, that no public health nursing service is available, that no vital statistics are at hand—in fact, that this city is hopelessly behind the times.

Dr. Sutton's study of the situation credited the Health Department with few or no points in these branches of health work, because, for the most part, they are dealt with by other local agencies.

That paves the way for people outside of Peterboro to gain the impression that these things are not dealt with at all here, and the result will be a decidedly poor advertisement for Peterboro.

As a matter of fact, the city's water supply is carefully guarded by the Utilities Commission and is considered absolutely safe; medical and dental inspection is being very efficiently carried on in the public schools under the direction of the Board of Education; the vital statistics are carefully kept by the City Clerk's department, and public health nursing service is being supplied by the Peterboro Health Association to excellent advantage, as many local families are in a position to testify.

Dr. Sutton doubtless is right in his contention that an ideal health department cannot be expected until a full-time health department is instituted, and it may be that before long it may be considered desirable to create such a department under a full-time medical officer of health who would co-ordinate and direct all the local health agencies, if the citizens are willing to face the financial burden involved.

But it is unfortunate that the impression should be allowed to get abroad that Peterboro from a health viewpoint is in a very sad plight.

Local citizens know the reverse to be the case—but it is outside of the city that the damage to Peterboro's reputation will be done unless there is an explanation from the District M.O.H. to the effect that his complaints were not so much that certain health precautions were not being taken here, but rather that they were not being taken by the Board of Health.

BOOK-KNOWLEDGE.

This is Children's Book Week, and no doubt many of our young readers have been benefited by the special arrangements made to interest them in good literature, says the Hamilton Spectator. Practically every one admits the value and the absolute necessity of a taste for reading in these days of keen competition. In the first place, it is mainly from books that the knowledge essential for success in business or in a chosen profession is to be got. But, even better than that, it is from books that the greatest pleasures of life are to be derived. The boy or girl who has not learnt to enjoy reading is to be pitied. The older a person gets the greater the consolation and profit to be had from books, and the best of it is, in these days of public libraries, the reading habit can be indulged in practically free of cost. The very choicest literature is available without trouble and without price. No wonder librarians are anxious to tell boys and girls about their opportunities, and to persuade them to take full advantage of them.

We have often before spoken on this subject of reading because we consider it to be one of the very greatest importance. It is surprising to know that there are people who take a different view, or profess to do so. We have just been reading the life of Mr. Henry Ford, for instance, in which the automobile magnate is stated by his biographer to have expressed his dislike of reading, because books, he said, "mussed up" his mind. Now Mr. Ford is, of course, a highly successful man and his opinions are worthy of all respect. Other eminent men have spoken to the same effect as Mr. Ford, that reading confuses their thoughts and destroys their originality. But they are exceptional. Great thinkers and inventors may want to work out their ideas undisturbed by suggestions from outside; but if we all depended upon our own thoughts to get along, we should not get very far. Almost all we do and all we know depends upon what others have done and learnt. The results of their knowledge and experiences are enshrined in books for any one to read and imitate. And it seems, from this same biography of Mr. Ford, that he is more dependent upon books than he realizes or admits. In one place his fondness for the Bible and for the philosopher Emerson is referred to, and in another place it is stated that his wife reads the principal new books to him, so that he gets literature second hand, at any rate.

Let no one be afraid that reading will "muss up" the mind. It will form the mind and develop it. Because it is possible to hit upon some new useful idea which brings fortune, without the possession of a cultivated mind, it is no argument against the benefits of cultivation. An unlettered man may be a good mechanic, but his skill would not suffer through book-knowledge, but would almost certainly gain.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

Among the unpopular prophets is the fellow who says that potatoes will be $10.00 a bag before spring.

Despite the threat of a $10 fine for failure to vote, it is estimated that 300,000 Australian electors failed to exercise their franchise last Saturday. A nice bit of revenue if it is all collected.

The health controversy is at all events creating a healthy interest.

The argument between Dr. Sutton and the local Board of Health will give aspirants for municipal honours another issue to talk about.

The early Christmas shopper gets the best choice and the best service—two, perhaps, selfish considerations that should cause more people to tackle their Yuletide purchasing earlier than usual.

A THOUGHT.

TALKERS WORSE THAN LIARS.

Truth is a good dog, but often barks so close to the heels of a mule that he gets his head kicked off, all of which is another way of saying it is not necessary to tell all the truth to only those who have a right to know it. Then let all the truth be the truth.

1. When the wall between imagination and inclination in a man's brain-box is so thin that information leaks through, the man, in my estimation, is quite certain to be untruthful, and you know it is the untruthful bits of information that actually live longer than lies.

We look upon the liar as a malicious beast inclined to injure, but why get excited over a man we understand. The liar is the best advertised thing on earth. Everybody has him sized up as big fish out of water and on dry land. He flops and flounders for a time, but if you keep your fingers away from his flopping fins, the fish will not hurt you. Let him alone and he will not live long.

I never fear this "big fish", (the liar,) but always try to steer clear of the fellow that leaks information—the swivel-tongued talker who passes out unnecessary information to those who have no right to receive it—the rapid-fire talker that has a jerky mind and jumps from politics to poems, from skinning eels to electing Senators, from Mahamet to Moses—the unthinking talker that resembles a broken pitcher where everything runs out.

So you see my these is not so much about Truth or concerning the Untruth as it is about the Loose Talker.

The Loose Talker is as dangerous as dynamite and twice as explosive. The liar is a landed fish that soon flops his last flop.—The Silent Partner.

THE HEALTH QUESTION.

To the Editor:

The matter which has just come up regarding Dr. Sutton's expose of health conditions in Peterboro is one of vital concern to every citizen and particularly to the parents.

Facts speak for themselves. Dr. Sutton's remarks are confirmed by the history of health conditions in the city in recent years. Epidemics are now annual events in Peterboro which we unfortunately are beginning to consider inevitable. Very few children escape these epidemics and their subsequent effects.

Dr. Sutton has clearly shown us why Peterboro has such a bad record and has suggested how conditions may be improved. Why won't the Board of Health accept his suggestions in the spirit in which they were given, viz., to promote the welfare of the citizens of Peterboro His criticisms are constructive and I am sure they were not intended to be considered as personal slights to any member of the Board of Health. I for one, would like to see his suggestions followed up and acted upon for I cannot feel that his charges are a "barefaced collection of untruths." The Board of Health should make a serious study of the facts as presented to them by Dr. Sutton and should co-operate to make Peterboro 'safe for the kiddies!'

Thank you.

CATTLE, GRAIN AND PRODUCE

Peterboro—Toronto—Montreal

TORONTO LIVESTOCK.

TORONTO, Nov. 18.—On Tuesday, 1,668 cattle were sold at the Union Stock Yards, and practically all on offer were disposed of. Receipts since yesterday morning are 91 cars, 1,153 cattle, 274 calves, 2,132 hogs and 2,171 sheep and lambs. The exporters were active buyers of anything on sale this morning, but this was mostly heifers and cows. A few good steers were bought at $8 a cwt., and one for domestic beef was taken at the same price. Some feeding steers cost $6 to $6.50 a cwt. Export heifers cost $6.50 and $6.75, and cows, $5.50 a cwt. One load of Western feeders rather rough and averaging 900 lbs. each, sold at $4.50 a cwt.

Butchers' cattle with any fat had a receptive market, and choice handyweights were $7 to $7.50 a cwt. Good butchers were $6.50 a cwt., and rough heavy steers sold at $5.70 a cwt. Frank Hunisett got a small bunch of baby beeves from $8.75 to $11.50 a cwt. Butchers' cows were fully steady, and a Kosher cow brought the same as the exports, $5.50 a cwt. One choice heavy bull sold at $5.35, and bolognas were $3.50 to $4.25 in price. There was a good undertone throughout the market, and the buying will take care of all the offerings.

The Buffalo market on calves eased up somewhat on Tuesday, and buyers here were more cautious today. The light supply kept the market firm, and top calves were 11 to 12 cents, good calves were 10 to 10½ cents, and mediums 9 cents.

The demand keeps good for the light lambs, but those much over 100 pounds are not wanted at more than 12 cents a pound. The bulk of today's ewes and wethers sold at 13½ cents a pound. Sheep are firm with a top of 7 cents for handyweights. One bunch of nine select lambs sold at 14¾ cents a pound.

There was no settlement reached on hogs this morning, but the packers were not expecting a lower price than $12 a cwt. f.o.b.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, Nov. 18 (Canadian Press).—Heavy selling, much of it on orders from the Northwest, Winnipeg in particular, had a good deal to do today with setbacks in the value of wheat. Failure of Liverpool quotations to respond to yesterday's sharp advance here counted also as a depressing factor. Wheat closed weak, 5-8 to 2 1-4c net lower, new style, December 1.55 1-2 to 155 5-8 and May 152 1-8 to 152 1-4 Corn finished 1 to 1 1-4c down; oats unchanged to 1-4c higher, and provisions unchanged to a decline of 42 cents.

Advices that Argentine weather remained unfavorable and assertions in some quarters that crop estimates for Argentina must be reduced more than 18,000,000 bushels, led to rallies which at one time carried the market to above yesterday's close.

Increased offerings of wheat came on the market, though, when prices advanced. As a result values fell lower than before. Meanwhile, export business attained no such volume as on the day previous, being estimated at 600,000 bushels. Besides, fine weather for threshing prevailed in Canada, and farmers there were reported as making deliveries to country elevators at the rate of 5,000,000 bushels a day. Minneapolis, too, piled up something of an increase of the stock of wheat on hand.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE.

MONTREAL, Nov. 18 (Canadian Press).—The demand from foreign buyers for wheat on the Montreal market today was slow, which was attributed to the higher prices asked. The enquiry for oats was fair and as cables in many cases were stronger at an advance of 6d per quarter, exporters were in a position to work a few loads, but the trade on the whole was quiet. On spot exporters sought some round lots of No. 2 Canadian Western oats at 10 to 10 1-2 cents per bushel over the Winnipeg May option, c.i.f. Montreal. Several loads of No. 2 feed oats were bought by local houses at 2 3-8 cents per bushel under the Winnipeg May option, c.i.f. Bay ports, while No. 2 Canadian Western oats sold at 8 cents per bushel over the same option, c.i.f. Montreal.

A moderate amount of business was transacted in coarse grains in the domestic market, there being a steady demand from local and country buyers for car lots. Oats were steady with sales of car lots of Ontario and Que. No. 2 white at 52 1-2 cents, No. 3 white at 51 cents, and No. 4 white at 49 1-2 cents per bushel, ex-track.

The condition of the market for Winter wheat flour was unchanged, prices being fully maintained on account of the continued light offerings from Ontario millers, and the small stocks held on spot. The demand was quiet. A steady feeling prevails in the market for white corn flour with a small trade passing at $6.80 to $7 per barrel in jute bags, delivered to the trade.

There was no important change in the condition of the market for potatoes, prices being fairly steady with a moderate amount of business passing for local account, and sales of car lots of Quebec varieties were made at $2.50 to $2.75 per bag of 90 lbs, ex-track.

The receipts of cheese were 2,991 boxes, as against 8,271 for the same day last week, and 1,983 for the corresponding day a year ago. There was a little better feeling in the market owing to the slight improvement in the demand from some foreign buyers for supplies and the fact that purchases of some fair-sized lots were made by spot operators.

BOMBARDMENT OF DAMASCUS WAS NECESSARY SARRAIL AVERS WITH WARNING OF ISLAMIC REVOLUTION

French Commissionee in Syria Appears Before Committee Upon His Recall.

DEFENDS POLICY.

Shelling of Historic City Checked Rising—French Force Inadequate.

PARIS, Nov. 19. — (Canadian Press).—The rebellion against the French administration in Syria is not simply an internal quarrel, but the symptom of a vast religious and racial revolt that is sweeping through the Islamic world. This was the warning which General Sarrail, recently recalled as French High Commissioner in Syria, voiced before the members of the Joint Army and Foreign relations Committee of the Chamber of Deputies, before whom he appeared yesterday.

But, he added, the flames had been fanned by the attitude of his predecessors toward the family of Sultan Altrash, who, fired with his ambition to be a second Abd-el-Krim, is leading the Druses with their adherents, the Bedouins and certain Transjordanian elements against the French.

Bombardment Necessary.

General Sarrail in describing the outbreak at Damascus, declared that 135 persons were killed and 250 houses destroyed in the French bombardment of that city; that the bombardment was made necessary by the native rising and that it prevented the rioting from becoming more tragic.

The French forces, now amounting to 20,000 effectives in Syria, he contended, were insufficient, and he lay stress on the need of reinforcement, especially white troops. Defending his policy as High Commissioner he made sharp complaint against certain British agents in Damascus; he charged them with sending "colored" dispatches and provoking a panic, but testified to the co-operation which he had received from other British sources.

At the conclusion of the hearing M. Dadier, the War Minister, announced that he was planning to send reinforcements to Syria.

VILLAGE CAPTURED.

DAMASCUS, Nov. 19.—(Canadian Press).—Syrian and Bedouin rebels are reported to have captured the village of Merj Ayun, on the Palestine frontier. The defenders of the village, a thousand Lebanonese volunteers, are said to have surrendered.

FORMATION OF DOMINION BOARD OF TRADE PLANNED AT WINNIPEG

Operate on Basis Similar To United States' Chamber of Commerce.

CONFERENCE ENDS.

WINNIPEG, Manitoba, November 19. — Canadian Press. — Formation of a Dominion Board of Trade, recognition of Maritime aspirations, creation of a non-political advisory board on colonization and agriculture development were endorsed in a resolution formulated yesterday at the final session of the first Dominion-wide economic conference.

Action which will follow will place in concrete form the results of the three day deliberations of the conference which was participated in by industrial leaders from every section of Canada.

The importance of the conference was emphasized in the closing hours by M. Belding, Saint John, N. B., who said: "You are truly the second Fathers of Confederation. A confederation of mutual understanding and good will I trust we have builded better than we knew."

Proposal Acclaimed.

The adoption of the resolution calling for the permanent organization of a Dominion Board of Trade was the signal for an outburst of spontaneous enthusiasm.

The functions of the new body, Mr. Dawson, president of the Montreal Board of Trade, explained, would be to act as the business intelligence of the Dominion, operating continuously, and giving constant thought to the new problems of the country as they arise.

The National Board, he said, would work on a similar basis as the United States Chamber of Commerce. It would be expected to reflect the views of the various Boards of Trade throughout Canada. Important questions would be submitted to a referendum of the membership, and when the will of the members was ascertained, the results would be printed in pamphlet form and eventually presented to Parliament. Such a weight of opinion, Mr. Dawson believed, would establish in the minds of the Legislature a policy of open frankness.

"Some of the questions that our Dominion Board of Trade could consider and pronounce upon, embrace tariff, taxation, trust legislation, merchant marine, railway legislation, national budget, industrial relations, unemployment, and many other matters of paramount importance.

Watch Legislation.

In the course of time, Mr. Dawson continued, it would be expected the board would organize a research department which would give attention to the needs of the business man, watch the passage of all bills submitted to parliament, and keep the members of the various boards posted on the progress of matters before Parliament. An educational service would be established, which would take an active interest in the development of individual efficiency in school systems, teacher training health and physical education, education laws and their administration. Housing and city planning would be given attention, departments formed to deal with problems of immigration, domestic distribution, natural resources, and a large number of other matters coming within the sphere of national concern.

Famous Jurist Was Taken For Beggar By Ambassador

LONDON, Eng., Nov. 19.—Canadian Press Despatch).—In his reminiscences just published, Viscount Ullswater, formerly Mr. J. W. Lowther, Speaker of the House of Commons for sixteen years, tells the following story of Lord Morsey, the famous jurist who, incidentally, conducted the enquiry into the loss of the Empress of Ireland.

The story is concerned with the funeral at Windsor, in March, 1917, of the Duchess of Connaught. Lord Mersey was late and vainly tried to find a taxicab to take him en route to Windsor. Seeing the automobile of the French Ambassador outside the Embassy he divined that Mons. Paul Cambon was bound on the same journey as himself. At that moment the Ambassador came out of the Embassy. Lord Mersey advanced with the intention of asking him for a lift. Not recognizing Lord Mersey, but imagining him to be a beggar Mons. Cabon waved him away, exclaiming, "No, no. Go away. I give you nozzing."

FAMOUS GERMAN FLIER RETURNS TO NATIVE SOIL

Body of Baron Von Richthofen Received With National Honors.

TO BERLIN TOMB

Premier German, Ace Was Shot Down in 1918 By British.

KEHL, Baden, Germany, Nov. 19. (Canadian Press).—Baron Manfred Von Richthofen, Germany's ace of aces, had a triumphal home-coming Wednesday. The body of the titled flier, who painted his plane scarlet as a continual challenge to enemy airmen, and who vanquished eighty adversaries before he himself was shot down in 1918, was turned over to his countrymen by the French and started on its journey to Berlin for permanent entombment.

Kehl's entire population was at the station yesterday morning when the train bearing the coffin left for the capital. About the bier was a guard of honor of former German fliers, and the train was escorted for the entire distance by a squadron of airplanes.

RESPECTED BY BRITISH.

LONDON, Nov. 19.—(Canadian Press).—Baron Manfred Von Richthofen, whose body has been returned to Germany by France, was one of the few men in the German army who inspired kindly thoughts among the British soldiery during the war years of bitter hatred.

The young ace, who was Germany's premier airman, was known throughout the British forces as a "good sport"—a clean and chivalrous, although fierce, fighter.

He seemed imbued with the spirit of the cavaliers of old, battling for pure love of the game rather than because of any rancour in his heart.

The Baron's red-winged battle plane — his squadron was called "Richthofen's circus," because of the variegated colors of its planes—was known the length and breadth of the British front, and he was the most feared and at the same time most sought aviator among the enemy.

It was every British airman's hope to come to grips with the famous Baron, who wrought so much havoc among the Allied planes, and Richthofen was hunted far and near until his death.

Many found him, and some failed to return. Yet always there was the same story—Richthofen was a terrible opponent because of his fearlessness and skill, but he played fair.

His Last Flight.

Richthofen's end was no less spectacular than his career. He had been battling a British plane near Fricourt in the Somme, and, having the advantage, was chasing the latter toward home. The British plane was in difficulties and the Baron was "on its tail"—above and behind the other pilot, the strategic point sought in these aerial duels—as they reached the British lines.

They were flying only a few hundred feet up. It was a typical Richthofen stunt of daring and fool-hardiness. English rifles and machine guns opened up on him, and before he could get away his red-winged plane crashed, just in front of the lines.

German aerial observers flashed back word to the batteries and the German gunners clamped a barrage about the plane in an effort to prevent the British from getting to it, but without avail.

Honored By Foemen.

When the machine was dragged in the British found Richthofen dead, strapped in his seat. Underneath his aviator's suit he wore blue silk pyjamas. His body was treated with the greatest reverence, a special lead coffin was procured, and for a time he lay almost in state in a tent near the fighting lines, with a guard of soldiers. A sentry stood over the fallen plane.

He was buried in the Fricourt Cemetery with fullest military honors, while a great fleet of Allied planes circled overhead. Distinguished French, British and Belgian officers came long distances to do him honor, and the last rites were among the most impressive seen along the front during the war.

EXODUS OF MONEY FROM FRANCE UNDER THREAT OF CAPITAL LEVY

Proposed Measures For Financial Relief Alarm Even Working Class.

CHAMBER WARNED.

PARIS, Nov. 19. — (Canadian Press).—More currency inflation, an intensified exodus of capital, economic derangement with idleness among French workmen were dangers against which the Chamber of Deputies was warned yesterday with the prophecy that these things would come if the Chamber voted in favor of Premier Painleve's financial proposals for restoration of the Treasury.

Maurice Bokanowski, of the Nationalist bloc and former reporter of the budget, presented the arguments of the opposition which produced the first animation the present financial debate has shown thus far. The exodus of capital, he declared, was the principal cause of the depreciation of the franc. M. Bokanowski was a member of the Caillaux debt mission.

Money will flow out of the country faster than ever, he continued, unless business, commerce and capital are relieved of the menaces contained in the Government's financial measures. Small capitalists as well as the big financiers, he said, are exchanging their francs for dollars, and he cited the case of a striking workingman in the North of France, who, when arrested, was found to be in possession of a comfortable sum in dollars.

Charles Lamoureaux, the present reporter of the Finance Committee of the Chamber, and also a member of the Caillaux mission, speaking for his committee, asked the Chamber to vote the Government's proposals as a first step toward the Relation of the Liver and Kidneys

Such that each suffers when other deranged—Both regulated by Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills.

When the liver becomes sluggish or torpid in action, the kidneys have to help out with the work of filtration. When the liver fails the kidneys have all the work to do.

Hence the beginning of trouble is usually biliousness, indigestion and constipation and after a time the kidneys begin to be affected and there comes backache, urinary derangements and kidney disease.

The remarkable success of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills is due to their unique combined action on the liver, kidneys and bowels. They get at the cause of trouble and remove it no matter how complicated it may be. Promptly and thoroughly they cleanse the bowels or intestines, arouse the liver action and thereby relieve the overworked kidneys.

FRENCH DEPEND ON SUBMARINES FOR COMMUNICATION TO AFRICA

Abolish Them If All Forms of War Craft Are Suppressed.

A CHEAP WEAPON.

PARIS, Nov. 19. — (Canadian Press).—French experts on Naval warfare and the protection of trade routes are reluctant to subscribe to the agitation for the abolition of submarines, it was revealed yesterday in the course of extensive inquiries.

The Ministry of Marine, on account of Minister Borel's pre-occupations in the Chamber of Deputies, refused to hazard even a semi-official opinion.

"We would be ready to abolish the submarine when all other nations have agreed to suppress all other forms of war craft." This statement from Deputy Franklin-Bouillon, chairman of the Foreign Affairs Committee of the Chamber, was the only expression available for publication.

Other authorities pointed out France's need for assuring communications with her African colonies, contending that submarines could keep open on the routes between Casa Blanca and Marseilles in wartime at a small expense compared with the cost of dreadnaughts, cruisers, and other sea facilities. France would prefer an international engagement limiting the use of submarines to coastal defense rather that a blanket agreement outlawing their use altogether some of the experts said. She is not contemplating the creation of a large fleet of submarines with a wide cruising radius, but intends to protect the vital line linking the mother country with her rich African provinces from which her "black army" might come in her hour of need.

FRENCH BONDS TAX.

Levy of 15 Per Cent Is Recommended.

PARIS, Nov. 19 — (Canadian Press).—The French National Defence bonds will be subject to a fifteen per cent. tax, the Chamber of Deputies Finance Committee decided at a meeting held Monday to iron out discrepancies in the financial bill which goes to the Chamber to-day.

The committee had decided on the text of a measure eliminating the taxation of these bonds, but members who considered the question later pointed out that such exemption would seriously reduce the revenues coming in to the amortization fund.

Great for Children

ALMOST any morning in the year many a Mother faces the problem: "For breakfast today what shall I give the children that is satisfying, tempting, and, above all, healthful?" In the morning youngsters are usually restless, eager to get outdoors and play. And there is always the probability that breakfast will be eaten in haste, "swallowed whole", as our grandmothers said. Morning food must be easily digestible. THEATRE CASHIER PLOTTED HOLD-UP

Confession of New York Engineer at Montreal.

MONTREAL, Nov. 19.—(Canadian Press), — Confessing that he held up the cashier of the St. Denis Theatre last Sunday night and stole $582 at the point of an unloaded revolver, John Boyd, New York consulting engineer and inventor, yesterday pleaded guilty to the formal charge, turned King's evidence, and branded A. Finlayson, the theatre engineer, as the master-mind of the project.

Boyd was remanded until November 24 for sentence. Finlayson was committed for voluntary statement on the same day, bail of $5,000 being set.

Boyd swore that while inspecting boilers in the theatre, Finlayson suggested that they hold up the cashier of the house. Finlayson made the plans for Boyd's getaway, but in his excitement, the latter took the wrong exit and was arrested.

WEDDING BELLS.

HART—SUMMERS.

OMEMEE, Nov. 19.—A pretty autumn wedding was solemnized at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Grant G. Summers, Talbot street east, Aylmer, on Wednesday, when their eldest daughter, Mildred Irene, was united in marriage to Dr. Harry Jemison Hart, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Hart of Omemee, Ont.

The bride was attired in peach georgette with lace trimmings, wearing a rope of pearls and carrying a shower bouquet of sunburst roses. She was given in marriage by her father.

The ceremony was conducted by Dr. J. H. Arnup of Toronto, uncle of the bride.

Little Miss Mary Summers, in a dainty frock of powder blue crepe, trimmed with lace and ribbon, was her sister's only attendant.

Dr. and Mrs. Hart left later on a motor trip and on at present the guests of the former's brothers, Messrs. Cyrus and Percy Hart, near Omemee.

UNIQUE PROGRAMME.

Grandmothers Provided Entertainment For Elmvale Institute.

COBOURG, Nov. 19.—A unique character was given to the last session of the Elmvale Women's Institue, Hamilton township, when it took the form of "Grandmother's Day". There were thirty ladies present and eight of these were grandmothers and upon the latter fell the duty of largely supplying the programme. A chorus by the grandmothers, "Silver Threads Among the Gold", was much enjoyed feature. Miss Ruby, President, presided over an interesting programme. Mrs. T. W. Phelp gave an excellent paper on the practical theme, "Does Active Middle-Age Life Surpass Youth in Joy and Life?" It was well thought out and full of good points. Mrs. J. Rowe delighted all with her paper "Housekeeping fifty years ago and housekeeping today."

A collection of antique articles brought by the ladies provided a very interesting half hour, as each recounted something in connection with these of special interest. Another unique function was the answer of "roll call" with an illustrations from "Old Customs."

Lunch was served and the afternoon was voted a great success.

SIX GIRLS ARE FOUND AMONG COMPETITORS WHO WON TRIP IN PROVINCIAL BACON RAISING

In Three of Eight Provinces Girls Won the C. N. R. Prize.

MEET AT TORONTO.

Will Compete There For the Championship of Canada —Competition Keen.

MONTREAL, Nov. 19.—(Special).—Six girls will be included in the sixteen youthful contestants who are to meet this week at the Royal Agricultural Winter Fair at Toronto, in order to determine the winners of an inter-provincial championship established by The Canadian National Railways, in order to encourage the work of the boys and girls swine clubs, and the raising of select bacon hogs in territory tributary to their lines. The six young misses are those who won the provincial championships of Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, and Manitoba. In the other five provinces competing boys were winners.

Competition was keen throughout the Dominion and the second year of the contest far exceeded in interest the most successful results of last year s event. Each of the sixteen contentants winning his, or her way to Toronto, goes as the guest of the Canadian National Railways to compete for the Challenge Cup, presented by W. D. Robb, vice-president. Each boy and girl will receive a gold medal as a souvenir of the occasion, and each will have an opportunity of viewing the features of the most important winter agricultural exhibition held in the Dominion.

The departments of agriculture of the Dominion and of eight provinces, British Columbia not competing, have co-operated completely with the Department of Colonization, Agricultural and National resources, Canadian National Railways in this movement, to encourage the work of these junior clubs and it is reported that considerable progress had been made not only in the spread of such organizations, but also in the development of the good hogs of bacon type.

To Improve Industry.

The general purpose underlying the movement is to instill in the minds of Canadian farmers the necessity for adopting a definite policy of production and make swine raising a stable branch of the livestock industry. In the Provincial competitions now ended, the contest was open to teams of two boys, or two girls, or a brother and sister, between the ages of 12 and 21 years, such teams representing a boys and girls swine club of at least ten members, and raising not less than 30 pigs, while each member of a team entering the competition must have cared for at least three pigs until the latter are six months of age.

At Toronto, when these sixteen boys and girls meet to compete for the W. D. Robb Challenge Cup, the competition will be divided into two parts. The first on next Wednesday afternoon, when they will appear in a judging competition and the second on Thursday morning next when they will appear in a demonstration contest. At the conclusion of the event the championship team will be named at a gathering in the offices of the Dominion Live Stock Branch, in the Postoffice Building, Toronto.

Mr. Robb will then present the challenge Cup to the winner and the medals to all competitors. Mr. Robb will be accompanied by Dr. W. J. Black, Director of the Department of Colonization, Agriculture and Natural Resources. The competition will be under the supervision of A. A. MacMillan, Chief of the Sheep and Swine Division, Dominion Department of Agriculture.

Guests of Packers.

After the contest the boys and girls will have an opportunity to view all the features of the Royal Agricultural Winter Fair, while on Friday they will be guests of the Industrial and Development Council of Canadian Meat Packers, on a tour of plants and at a special educational display. The winners in the Eastern Canada competitions were: Nova Scotia, Lottie Austen, Skyeglen; and Annie Cameron, Mabou; New Brunswick, Alice Davis and Lillie Davis, Port Elgin; Prince Edward Island, Harold Smith and Edmund Robertson, Pownal; Ontario, Chester Brown and Archie Campbell, Ilderton; Quebec, Howard R. Parnell and Thos. A. Woodward, Lennoxville.

The names of the winners in Western Canada are not yet available.

First and Last Threshing Distinction of Burnbrae Man

BURNBRAE, Nov. 19.—Mr. Harry Bedford, 7th Concession, has the distinction of being the first farmer in this district to thresh this year and also the last. Mr. Bedford's crop of wheat was the first job threshed in this vicinity in the latter part of August, while on Wednesday the threshing at the barn completed this distasteful job so far as Burnbrae is concerned.

POTATOES ARE NOT PLENTIFUL

Nor is Crop of Very High Quality Around Marmora.

SOME IMPORTED.

MARMORA, Nov. 19.—The local crop of potatoes is by no means bountiful this year and in some cases the quality is not of the best. Importation will have to be relied upon to cope with local demands. A whole carload made its appearance at Deloro last week from which customers were served in that village and also in Marmora. At present, they are being retailed at $2.40 a bag.

APPLE FED HOGS AT BAILIEBORO

Bumper Crop and Ruin By Frost Combined to Give Pigs Plenty of Fruit.

WILL BE SCARCE.

BAILIEBORO, Ont., Nov. 19.—This year since the apples have been such a bumper crop throughout this district, many farmers who had good orchards have raised large lots of hogs on comparatively nothing else with the exception of apples. A number of farmers who have tried this experiment have stated that sufficient apples and a quantity of skimmed milk is sufficient to raise a pig up to the weight of two hundred pounds.

There are still hundreds of barrels of good apples in the orchards that had fallen upon the ground before the heavy frost came which ruined so many thousands of barrels of Ontario's good winter apples. These apples on the ground are being fed in bags to the farmer's hogs, and thus the hogs are being raised at a very slight cost to the producer.

One Bailieboro farmer made the jovial remark recently that his hogs had lived on apples since the latter end of August up until now, and now when they saw him coming toward the pen with the pails of apples they would actually make a wry face at him.

It is generally thought in this locality that apples will yet be scarce before spring, as there was such a bumper crop this season that a number of the farmers did not take the trouble to pick them, and scarcely any of the orchard owners were fortunate enough to get their apples nearly all picked.

The rains of the past week have again put activities on the farm at a standstill. The ground has been too badly drenched for ploughing to be resumed, and very few farmers have yet succeeded in finishing up their fall ploughing, and there is still considerable ploughing to be done.

The men with the threshing outfits are also having their difficulties in shifting their heavy outfits about on the soft roads, and trying to thresh between showers.

One advantage of the heavy rains is that the wells and cisterns are all full and overflowing. Surely throughout the rural districts there cannot be any shortage of water during the coming winter months.

FARM DENTISTRY

Stumps Extracted Without Pain

By Malcolm Macdonald

DUNCAN stopped his flivver and announced to me his intention of "stumping" Matt Hobbs' slashing.

For a moment I was myself stumped. Normally, "stumping" means pulling stumps up by the roots; but during elections it means much the same as "chewing the fat." Duncan, dour and silent, doesn't fit in with this latter.

At length I tumbled. Matt Hobbs' slashing is an eyesore of a place where blow-adders go fishing for toads. It has lain in pasture since the timber was cut and Matt has decided to bring it into civilization. Besides numerous decayed snags of beech, maple and elm, there are—or rather were — a dozen well-preserved pine stumps. I asked Duncan where his stump-puller was.

"In back," he replied with a nod towards the aft of the flivver.

"In the suit-case?" I asked.

In the suit-case," replied Duncan.

So I got in the seat beside him. It had come to this: That a stumping outfit could be packed in a suit-case. Stump pulling was among the dark deeds of my youth. There were no dynamite bombs nor hot-shot batteries about it, just monster chains, huge machinery and hard labor.

However, ours was the up-to-date of the day, and we were proud of it. The machine was a "stilliard.' Dynamite cannot despise a stilliard more contemptuously than a stilliard despised the primitive "screw", and no doubt the screw in its day had something to despise. The bringing-up father notion isn't as modern as it looks.

The stilliard outfit had three legs, braced in various ways. In the place of a screw it had a "drawbar.' This had notches, so it could be raised by the stilliard, and held when so raised. At the lower end swung a chain made of inch iron rod to wrap round one of the roots. The stilliard—a lever twelve feet long made of two pieces of steel [illegible] inches broad, [illegible] pended from the [illegible] link and at the rear by a "fan [illegible] in pulleys. There were six ply of chain in these blocks. Thus, when the "fall' went out ten feet the lever was raised one. This, in itself, was some purchase; but it was not all. At the front end of the lever were several holes, armed with a drawbolt that caught the notch in the drawbar. The first hole was called "first-purchase." It was but six inches from the fulcrum link that suspended the end of the lever. Thus, when the full length of the fall chain went out, and the rear end of the lever was raised to the top, the stump was raised but six inches. At "second' purchase it would go up a foot; at "third" a foot and a half. When a stump was thus loosened the bolt would be put in "fifth," and the pulling completed in a single draw.

Drawing out the "fall" was the job of the oxen, Duke and Dime. They were muscular fellows, boned up to stumping standards, with horns three feet long, tipped with brass knobs that I suspected at the time were artificial tho' Archie assured me they grew there. Archie was chauffeur to this menagerie. His main function was to holler "Heigh, Duke, Dime, Heigh:" He had a powerful voice and Duke and Dime seemed to enjoy it. He always go out in front when he sang to them; and gesticulated with a hideous whip he called a gad.

I never saw him hit Duke or Dime with the gad, but he frequently poked them in the slats with the end of it; he said it tickled them—acted like the bagpipes on the Scotch. Archie never put them in "high", none of us ever broke the speed limit. But there was a dynamic poetry in their action [illegible] being they seemed a part of [illegible] draw was due a spasm [illegible] colonel of horse about [illegible] death there would be a booming thrill [illegible] "Duke—Dime," a gesture with the gad eloquent as Laurier; horns clicked as though that was an agreed signal of readiness; the great beeves bowed their necks and eased their huge briskets against the yoke. There were no reins to guide them. They knew neither gee nor haw. They went where Archie went. He didn't command, he hypnotized. They were not Archie's slaves, they were Archie. He would crouch as if in desperate effort, and grunt as if he were doing it all himself. I've seen Archie quite "winded" after a big draw.

Horses bored him—filled him with a grouch. "Gi' me the cattle," he would say. He regarded horses as many to-day do the auto car—as an unjustifiable innovation.

I have set down the substances of my recollections on the way to Hobbs' slashing. Now for the modern stumping outfit.

Duncan opened the suitcase and exposed an electric battery and some sticks of brown mud he said were dynamite. Then he strung some wire to one of the stumps. With a bar he made three holes in the ground beneath the stump, wired his sticks of mud and shoved them carelessly in. We went back to where the battery lay, and while I looked about for a safety-first tree to shelter me from a vague, uncertain peril, something at the stump went "Poof-bang." I looked. A little cloud of smoke and dirt rose in the October sunlight. Beneath it was parked, in three pieces with mangled roots sticking out in a ghastly way, the pine stump.

Duncan was off with his crow bar and another bunch of mud sticks. He came back, and again the stumping outfit sputtered.

After the fourth stump had been torn from bed, I went over to the car and sat down. o darn excitement about this," I told Duncan.

"Not much—a fact," he agreed.

"Ee- our ping has lost its charm. It's a [illegible]e. The soul has gone out of it.

Too blame monotonous.

SHORTHORN GENERALLY KNOWN AS THE BEST COW FOR FARMERS

In Early Days Breed Was Used for Both Beef and Milk.

SPLENDID TYPE

Breed Has Always Been Most Popular Among Ontario Breeders.

While there are a large number of breeds that are used for beef, only a few of these breeds which may be classified as beef breeds are extensively bred in Ontario. Chief amongst these breeds are the Shorthorn, Hereford, and Aberdeen Angus. In fact, these are the only beef breeds which have made any considerable progress in the Province. It is true that other breeds such as the Galloway and Devon are, or have been, bred in Ontario, but they never have made headway. The Brown Swiss and the Red Polled are also sometimes considered beef animals but they are more of the dual-purpose type and have never become popular in Ontario. The West Highland, a distinctly beef breed, is another that has not come into prominence in the Province.

It will be noted that all these breeds named had their origin in the British Isles with the exception of the btown Swiss. The establishment of the breeds in Ontario marks the beginning of progress toward a diversified agriculture in this Province. Mixed farming in Ontario really had its beginning with the establishment of the live stock business through the importation of breeding stock from the Old Land.

The Shorthorn.

The Shorthorn breed, which has always been the most popular amongst the beef cattle breeds in the Province, had its origin in the counties of Durham, Northumberland, York and Lincoln in the north-east portion of England, bordering on Scotland and the North Sea. This portion of England comprises a rich valley district with rolling land on either side. It is claimed that cattle somewhat resembling the present-day Shorthorn were bred by the dukes and earls in Northumberland and York before the year 1600. Of course, the origin of the breed is obscure. No doubt, cattle brought in by the Romans, Normans and other invaders were crossed with English stock. Blackhorned cattle were common in Yorkshire, while in Lincoln, white, red and spotted cattle prevailed. Early in the eighteenth century the Teeswater cattle, produced in the valley of the Tees, became famous, while in Yorkshire the Holderness cattle were the favoured breed. Later, the Teeswater cattle were called Durhams.

About 1780, after the foundation had been laid by the use of two great bulls, Studley and Hubback, Robert Bakewell, who had been carrying on experimental work with sheep, discovered that by a close concentration of blood of choice animals rapid improvement could be made, and following this system the Colling Brothers, Charles and Robert, between 1780 and 1800, made the first systematic improvement of the breed, the former working at Barmpton and the latter at Ketton. These men were followed by Thomas Bates, Thomas, John and Richard Booth and Amos and Anthony Cruickshank. The Collings originated among others the following families: Phoenix, Wildair, Princess, Red Rose, Bright Eyes and Daisy families. They were interested in big, strong, deep, thick, heavy cattle noted for their beef producing qualities. The herd of Charles was dispersed at auction in 1810, and in 1818 and 1820 Robert sold out his cattle.

It was not till about 1837 that Amos Cruickshank, an Aberdeenshire Scotchman born in 1808, and who had recently taken possession of a farm called Sittyton, began breeding Shorthorns. This real founder of the modern Shorthorn type made careful selections from English herds, always picking the smooth, deeply fleshed, blocky, low-set types, and commenced breeding what later became known as Scotch type Shorthorn cattle. He, with his brother Anthony, made wonderful progress in the breeding of Shorthorns up until the time the herd was dispersed in 1889.

Shorthorn cattle are among the heaviest of the beef cattle breeds. In fact, they are often considered to be the heaviest breed, although they do not exceed the Hereford very much in weight. Mature breeding cows should weigh from 1,300 to 1,500 pounds and, of course, many are considerably heavier than this, some ranging as high as 1,700 and 1,800 pounds. A mature Shorthorn bull is considered under size if he does not weigh more than 1,800 pounds and many of the leading bulls of the herd weigh from 2,200 to 2,500 pounds.

Shorthorns may be red, white, or roan or any combination of these colours. Very light red is objected to, as is also a spotted intermingling of the three colours. Many breeders also object to cattle showing white hind legs, although it is no disqualification, but is a marking that is often passed down generation after generation. Black should not occur and dark muzzles are decidedly objectionable. Dark red is always preferable to the light red and a dark roan is generally a little more in demand than a light roan. While some of the best animals of the breed have been white, buyers sometimes discriminate against this colour. There should be no reason for this discrimination for, in the history of the breed, some of the best breeding bulls and cows and many of the outstanding show-ring winners have been white in colour.

In conformation the Shorthorn should conform to the beef type showing a short, broad head, full, yet placid eye, and a fine, flat horn, preferably coming out straight from the poll then turning inward and slightly downward. The neck should be short, clean cut, and blended smoothly into the shoulders. Individuals of the breed are sometimes criticized for roughness of shoulder and lack of heart girth. This being true, it is well to select animals with smooth well laid in shoulders and a great spring of rib giving a large heart girth. The back should be straight and strong with a broad, level loin carrying evenly into well set in hook bones. There is a tendency, in some Shorthorns, to be a little too prominent over the hooks, which makes them appear slightly rough. The quarter should be long, level and well filled and the thighs full and meated right down to the hocks. The underline should be straight and parallel with the top line, which means that the fore and rear flanks should be well let down. The entire body should be covered with a deep coat of mellow fleshing evenly laid on and the skin should be soft and pliable as an indication of quality. Most good Shorthorns carry an abundant coat of fine silky hair. Scotch breeders lay a good deal of emphasis on this point, always claiming that a thick mossy coat indicates good feeding qualities.

The Shorthorn is possibly the most popular beef breed of cattle known and certainly stands first in favour in Ontario. It has also made great progress in the Argentine, South Africa and the United States as well as in the home of the breed. Records show that the breed was first introduced into Ontario about 1832, but the first cattle to be imported direct from the Old Land were brought out by George Miller, who came to York County, Ontario, bringing with him a few head in 1833. From that small beginning, steady growth took place in the Province until the breed is distributed throughout all the beef-producing countries.

In the early days of the breed s history in this Province, cows were used for both beef and milk and consequently the Shorthorn became established as the farmer s cow. Later, the most popular strains from the standpoint of pedigree breeding and showring conformation were developed along beef-producing lines more than for milk production. This tendency was worked to such a degree that in the past few years an effort has been made by a number of breeders to increase the milk production of their cattle, and at the present time there are throughout the Province considerable numbers of breeders of dual-purpose Shorthorns, a branch of the breed in which milk production has been placed on an equal footing with beef production, if not, in some cases, held in higher esteem. The cattle that have been most prized as dual-purpose Shorthorns have been more of the old English type, not quite so low set as the Scotch cattle and not quite so pronounced in beef type. Breeders, however, have for the most part recognized that breed type must be preserved, and with few exceptions have endeavoured to retain the best possible beef type. It must also be remembered that a good Shorthorn cow, even if pronounced beef type, should at least give sufficient milk to raise her calf in a thrifty condition. Extremes are dangerous. A beef cow that will not milk can only be kept at a loss and a Shorthorn that cannot be made into reasonably good beef is not worthy of the name. In the spring of 1913 the record of performance was opened to Shorthorn cattle, and since that time a number of Shorthorns have qualified in the R.O.P. with very creditable records. It is believed that the aim of the breeder of dual-purpose Shorthorns should be the production of about 8,000 pounds of milk without deteriorating to any appreciable extent the beef producing qualities of the breed. Notwithstanding the fact that more interest is now being taken in dual-purpose Shorthorns in Ontario, by far the greatest percentage of Shorthorn cows are allowed to nurse their calves and greatest demand at public sales is usually found for the straight Scotch cattle as contrasted with the plainer-bred Scotch-topped or English types.

CANADA'S CATTLE EXPORTS

Exports to Great Britain totalled 74,906, as against 54,100 in 1924, and exports to the United States, 36,499 as against 68,748 in the preceding year.

WET WEATHER HAS HELD UP WORK ON FARMS AT BURNBRAE

Farmers' Hopes For Fair Weather Were Dashed By Further Storms.

BURNBRAE, Nov. 19.—Just as local farmers had begun to hope that fair weather had arrived, they were greeted with another deluge on Thursday and Friday last. This rain made all the other showers look like so much dew, and has effectively halted ploughing except on high sod fields. Fields that on Thursday were fairly dry are now miniature lakes and at this late season of the year, little hope is held out for dry weather. From all appearances there should be no lack of water in wells or cisterns during the approaching winter.

This has been a very poor fall for tractor ploughing. Mr. G. V. Taylor, 8th Con. Rawdon, who runs his farm with modern equipment, including a gas tractor was forced to stop ploughing for a neighbour even before the last rain, because the loose, muddy ground would give no traction. Old Dobbin may have to be the farmer's standby for a while yet if the weather-man continues his pranks.

Harvesting Turnips.

Robt. Miller, on the Rawdon Boundary, has a three-acre patch of turnips which are partly under water, and he is wondering how to harvest them. In this connection, an interesting, supposedly-true story was recently heard concerning a farmer in this county who found his turnip patch flooded with water from the near-by creek. Being of an engineering turn of mind, he built a dam of logs below the patch and held back a considerable head of water. Then equipped with rubber-boots, he waded in and pulled his turnips. Having topped them, he threw them into the water, and when the job was completed, pulled out his stop-logs. The turnips were carried down the stream and pulled to shore and loaded on wagons at the first solid place in the bank.

Cheese Prices Drop.

Cheese prices have taken a slump for October sales and are now down to the 21c mark. Importers from the Old Country do not seem to want October cheese, probably due to the fact that it is what is commonly called "fodder cheese", i.e., cheese produced when cows are fed on rations not consisting mainly of grass.

COBOURG FINDS FEW POTATOES

Farmers Seem To Be Reluctant to Bring Crops to Market.

COBOURG, Nov. 19.—Cobourg merchants state that very few potatoes are coming into the town and none appear to be very heavily stocked. Farmers appear to be waiting for a higher price. On the market here some bags were sold for $2.25 a bag, but not many loads were offered. Buyers who are going through the district, seeking spuds for shipping report poor luck in securing large quantities.

Eggs and butter are two other commodities that are skylarking. Firsts sold on the market here for 60c a dozen, some going for 55c. Pullet eggs were 55c. Butter is selling from 45c to 50c, and dairy butter is not plentiful.

Treat hard water that is to be used in spray materials. Some fruit growers use soap to do the job, but if the water is very hard, an excess of soap may cause a lot of grief. The soap reacts chemically with arsenate of lead, and burned foliage may be the result. Quicklime or hydrated lime (two pounds of either form to 100 gallons of spray solution) will soften hard water. The lime should be added to the water before spray materials are put in. Other materials that can be used are skim-milk and calcium caseinate. If hard water is a serious problem in your spraying operation, put in a water softener. They cost $130 and up—cheap as a good cistern, and more desirable.

YEARS OF SEARCH.

Spahlinger Has Been Experimenting For Period of Fifteen Years.

GENEVA, Switzerland, Nov. 19.—If all the cattle in the world were freed of tuberculosis infection, this dreaded disease would cease to trouble mankind. That is the theory of Henry Spahlinger, world-famous bacteriologist, whose experiments and successful cures of tuberculosis here are attracting the attention of the medical profession everywhere.

"It is not clearly understood," said Mr. Spahlinger, "how widespread is this disease among cattle and how intimate is the connection between the infection of milch cows and the spread of tuberculosis among people. I am hoping for the day when laws everywhere will compel the eradication of this disease breeding source."

Mr. Spahlinger's search for methods of combating tuberculosis has extended over a period of 15 years. In 1910 he began experiments with guinea pigs and after two years announced he had prepared toxins, anti-toxins and vaccine which showed remarkable effects in curing the disease in these little animals.

Results Encouraging.

The co-operation of other distinguished scientists and physicians was elicited and further experiments were carried on, making use of other and larger animals. The first experiments upon human patients were conducted under the direction of Dr. Lardy, president of the board of examiners in medicine of Geneva University, in 1912 and 1913. The results were encouraging from the beginning.

The work was done at a laboratory and farm which formerly were a part of an estate of the Spahlinger family. A part of the fine old residence has been converted into the laboratory and the other buildings are used for the purposes of the farm in maintaining the animal used for experimentation.

This work has been carried on in a remarkably philanthropic manner. Mr. Spahlinger, who wishes to be known as a scientist and not as a physician, has constantly refused to have his discoveries exploited financially and will not take pay for the materials, he provides physicians for treatment of tubercular patients.

Greatly Impressed.

Dr. Thomas Watts, a member of the British Parliament who visited Geneva to investigate the work of the institute, said:

"We are greatly impressed by Mr. Spahlinger's liberality. He has a staff of 10 assistants all of whom he pays out of his own pocket. Not only has he refused fees from patients, but I am credibly informed that his researches during the last 12 years have swallowed his whole fortune."

Mr. Spahlinger's experiments have been conducted upon the theory that there are a number of varied causes for the different attacks of tuberculosis. "The different symptoms of intoxication," he says, "are due not to varying manifestations of the same poison, but has prepared his serums of a composit of different toxins procured in different ways.

One is an anti-toxin which is the product of secretions of Koch's bacilli in a culture medium. Another is called an "anti-endotoxin" obtained from poisons derived from the bodies of dead bacilli. A third is a serum obtained by injecting into the veins of a horse, first dead and then living microbes, after the animal has been prepared by a long series of progressive vaccinations.

Different Serums.

Out of these three ingredients, Mr. Spahlinger has prepared serums of different kinds for treating the different forms of tuberculosis. For pulmonary tuberculosis he uses a serum in which there is a predominance of the anti-toxin; for surgical cases—that is, where bones or glands are diseased, a serum containing a larger proportion of anti-endotoxins is used.

The treatments are by subcutaneous injections two or three times a week, and in some cases even several times a day. The length of the treatment varies according to the gravity of the case and the amount of serum administered.

"It is pretty generally known," said Mr. Spahlinger, "that even in cases of advanced tuberculosis which have been given up as incurable, have sometimes improved and slowly recovered without special treatment. Hence it appears that the defenses of the body are of themselves sufficient under certain circumstances. Thus we find if we are able to give some artificial assistance we may be able to turn the balance in favor of recovery. Our treatment aims at the slow destruction of a part of the tuberculous and mixed infectious poisons."

The clinical records of the Spahlinger institute are voluminous and appear to offer conclusive proof of the success of the method of treatment. Numerous medical commissions, including representatives from the British Ministry of Health, deputations from the British Parliament and physicians from Canada and Australia have visited Mr. Spahlinger and have reported favorably upon his work.

GREAT DEMAND FOR FARM LAND

Is Well Maintained as Price of Wheat Keeps Up.

One of e definite indications of improved conditions in Western Canada is the revival of demand for farm lands. The head of a Western trust company reports that his firm has disposed of more lands in the past five months than in the previous five years; other companies report improvement to a greater or less extent. As the harvest progresses to completion under generally favorable conditions, with the price of wheat well maintained, there is a real and substantial improvement in buying sentiment which is reflected in the movement of goods through wholesale houses. Confidence grows that the crop of 1925 will place the Western provinces on a sound basis. The West is still carrying a burden of debt but in the past couple of years it has been reduced, and this year's satisfactory dollar crop promises not only sufficient income to meet current obligations and provide a substantial margin of new buying power, but it also provides new confidence, and with it a more satisfactory credit basis. This refers to practically all sections with the exception of areas in Southern Alberta and Saskatchewan which suffered from drought. These areas provide one of the great problems which Western Canada has to solve. They are not proving satisfactory for wheat farming. Irrigation may reclaim portions of them but some sections may eventually go back to grazing land.

Out of the Depression.

All factors considered, it is the judgment of The Financial Post, based on first-hand study by the editor, who has just completed an extended trip throughout all sections of the Prairie Provinces, that the 1925 harvest will see Western Canada move out of the period of depression which has prevailed for several years. Nothing like a boom is to be looked for. Experience has bred a conservative spirit which is in marked contrast with the unreasoned optimism of the boom days. The feeling to-day is one of new confidence and from all available evidence it is well founded.

This view of the situation which is the result of wide inquiries in Winnipeg and throughout the West finds confirmation in the statement of C. M. Bowman, chairman of the executive of the Mutual Life of Canada, that "beyond the shadow of a doubt the 1925 crop will make the purchasing power of Western Canada greater than ever before in its history; if grain prices keep up, the net returns for the year will be larger than in any other single year." Mr. Bowman made this statement at Winnipeg after an inspection tour of the prairies. For some years he has been a close student of agricultural conditions in the West and an active propagandist for mixed farming. No business man of the East is in a better position to judge of the situation of which he speaks.

Further confirmation of this movement in western land is found in an official report of the United States Bureau of Immigration which states that the number of farmers settling in the Canadian prairies from a large portion of the United States is fifty per cent. greater than for last year and that the two railways and the Hudson's Bay Company had sold more land in Western Canada than in any similar period for ten years.

Favorable Tourist Trade Balance.

On our tourists as well as our new settlers, the country is realizing in a large way. Too much emphasis cannot be placed on the development of this remunerative industry. It was predicted by opponents of the gasoline tax in certain provinces that the tax would kill the tourist industry. Instead, every province reports a much larger volume of this business than ever before. It is estimated by the National Parks Board that the tourists left $150,000,000 in the country last year. A similar United States organization reports Canadian tourists to have been worth $20,000,000 to the different States. This gives us a favorable balance of $130,000,000. There is evidence that this figure is short of the mark, and in any event, it will be much greater this year. The fact that this amount comes into the country with virtually no encouragement or development serves to illustrate the possibilities of such an industry organized under the administration of some central board established to co-ordinate the efforts of the various provinces and municipalities.

CHURCH OF ENGLAND CONFRONTED BY A GRAVE CRISIS AT PRESENT

Controversy Over Prayer Book and Re-union With Rome Exists.

THREATENS UNITY.

Harmonious Fellowship Among Different Divisions Is Difficult to See.

(By P. W. Wilson)

The ancient Church of England, a State Church, established and endowed by law, is today confronted by a threat to her unity. For more than three centuries she has lived under a compromise perfected by Queen Elizabeth and this compromise is breaking down. The crisis is brought to a head by a revision of the Prayer Book in which the compromise is embodied. Questions have been reopened on which the Church cannot longer halt between two opinions. he must take either the Catholic or the Protestant view. The question is, which?

The struggle touches the Christian religion throughout the world. It is studied with attention by Roman and Eastern Orthodox Catholics and by the evangelical churches all of which are indirectly affected. For Episcopalians the issue is of a profound concern. The Archbishop of Canterbury belongs not alone to England. As Primate and Metropolitan, he sits in the seat of St. Augustine. To council in Lambeth Palace he invites Bishops from the United States, the Dominions and missionary dioceses. And recently the Episcopal Church of Sweden declared her spiritual unity with the Anglican Church by including English Bishops in the ceremony of consecration on which depends her apostolic succession.

The Elizabethan compromise was based on the principle that the National Church must include the nation, Protestants and Catholics alike. The Church, therefore, has had three dimensions. It has been "High," or ceremonial. It has been "Low" or evangelical. And it has been "Broad," or liberal. These differences hitherto have been regarded as healthful. Recently, the Archbishop of York has pleaded that they stimulate thought and vision, which is the case for the compromise.

But the compromise has never been the success that was hoped. Despite severe persecution, the Irish remained with Rome: the Scots would not tolerate Bishops; and in England and Wales "the dissenters" broke away, fighting desperately for their rights as citizens — which rights, in due course, were extended to the Jewish faith. Finally there were "the lapsed masses," who had drifted out of all churches, especially in the cities. The position today is, then, that the Church of England is no more than one among other religious bodies, taken together, do not now embrace one-half of the people.

Repudiated Doctrines.

At the Reformation the Anglican Church was declared in plain terms to be Protestant. By the Thirty-nine Articles of Religion, included in the Prayer Book, Roman doctrines, especially transsubstantiation, are expressly repudiated. In the United States the associated Church is entitled "Protestant Episcopalian." And in Ireland the episcopacy stands sharply contrasted with Rome. On paper, that side of the case is clear.

There is this also to be said: If the Established Church does not remain Protestant she must sacrifice her connection with the State. The various Acts of Succession stipulate that the King of England shall be "a faithful Protestant," and the test of his Protestant faith is membership in the Established Church. It is on this understanding that the Church has been appointed to crown the King: that she has held the cathedrals and other venerable fabrics, and has supplied a chaplain to the House of Commons and replates to the House of Lords. These privileges, originating in the Catholic era, were continued only on the assumption that the Church had submitted to the Reformation.

Disestablishment of the Church of England is thus becoming a political possibility. There is no establishment of any church in the United States or the Dominion. Under Roman Catholic pressure, the Establishment was brought to an end in Ireland. The evangelica Churches have insisted that it be brought to an end in Wales. And in Scotland the Established Church is not Episcopalian but Presbyterian. The State "connection" in England thus stands alone, a picturesque and dignified anomaly, scarcely to be defended in logic, yet continued in affectionate loyalty to the past.

It is the Catholic upheaval within the Protestant Church which has transformed the landscape. The Anglo-Catholic Party is well organized and its power is the greater because the Church is short of clergy. In the decade, 1915-25, the candidates for ordination were 2,850 fewer than in the decade before. And the average age of an Anglican clergyman to-day is 52 years. The stipend are inadequate. Nor is this the moment when any Bishop would willingly alienate the forces under his care by driving into the Roman Communion many of his most zealous parish priests.

Ninety years ago the Catholic upheaval began as the Oxford Movement and was led by Newman, afterward Cardinal. Manning, who also was destined to be a Cardinal, began his career as an Anglican priest. To-day there are in the Church of England thousands of eager clergymen whose sympathies are with Newman and Manning. If they are not converted to Rome it is because they believe that the day is coming when Canterbury and Rome will be reconciled.

The general argument of the Anglo-Catholics is that at the Reformation the Church did not suffer any break in her continuity. She never ceased to be a part of "the Holy Catholic Church throughout all the world." And recently this claim was supported by the Patriarch of Constantinople, who has declared that the Anglican orders of bishops, priests and deacons are valid and that the sacraments administered by them are efficacious.

This pronouncement is endorsed in effect by the Russian Church and by the Patriarch of Alexandria, who speaks for the Coptic Christians. On the other hand, Rome resolutely declines thus to approve the Anglican orders. By a bull, Apostolicae Curae, dated 1895, Pope Leo XIII declared that these orders are null and void. The Anglo-Catholics who, like Viscount Halifax, appeal to the Vatican for recognition of their orders are met with a firm negative.

Will Not Take "No."

But they have refused to take "No" for answer. With the object of bridging the gap between the Roman and the Anglican Churches they have adopted what so high an ecclesiastic as Bishop Gore has called "the whole practical working system and ceremonial of Rome." The Bishop of London, agreeing with Dr. Gore, complains of "a little band of men who are not really loyal" to Anglicanism. And in The Guardian, the most representative of Anglican journals, we read of three clergymen, staying at a Swiss hotel.

"Coming to mass with us?" asked two of them.

"No, worse luck," answered the third, "I have been had to read the lessons in our own church!"

The recent Anglo-Catholic Congress at Southampton declared for "the Sacrament of Penance," for the rosary, as "the only form that seems to make regular prayer a possibility for many people" and for "the use of holy water" as "specially valuable."

Again, it was the Bishop of Winchester who endeavored, unsuccessfully, to counteract this attitude. The Anglo-Catholics desire also to add saints to the English calendar. They sing hymns in honor of the Blessed Virgin Mary and celebrate the Feast of Corpus Christi. At their instance the Bishops have been asked to draw up a service known to the Roman Church as "Prime." Dr. Gore calls this "half-Romanism." Some, it may be, would suggest that the proportion in many instances exceeds fifty-fifty.

Recognition of "Primacy" Urged.

The Anglo-Catholics have long been led by Viscount Halifax, now far advanced in years. He recently startled even the secular press by proposing that the Church of England shall now recognize the "primacy" of the Pope, "with all its implications." He argues that until this "primacy" is acknowledged, reunion with Rome will be impossible.

The late Bishop of Zanzibar, while attending an Anglo-Catholic conference, even sent a telegram to the Pope and greatly stirred the dovecotes. It should be added that Lord Halifax assumes certain concessions on the part of Rome, namely, the use of a prayer book in English and of the Bible as thus translated. The assumption that such autonomy would be allowed is supported by the encyclical of the present Pope, published at the tercentenary of St. Josaphat, in which—addressing "all who, for whatsoever motive, separated from her"—the Holy Father says that "in such a union, all peoples will enjoy the same rights, whatever be their race or tongue and whatever be their sacred ceremonies." Those words were addressed to the Eastern Churches. Apparently Lord Halifax has applied the principle to the Anglican case.

That the Bishops have lost control of the more advanced Anglo-Catholics is manifest from many utterances. In the addition of ornaments to their churches and of services to their liturgy, certain extremists, at any rate, are a law unto themselves. Their zeal, their poverty, their disinterested service preclude the idea of renewing the former policy of prosecution in the courts for what appear to be breaches of statute law. But the Protestant wing of the Church is to-day aroused as never before. To the Laymen's Assembly, the North of England has returned a powerful contingent of Low Churchmen. The Anglican Church in Ireland now disestablished, expresses similar sentiments.

Two Battlefields.

The struggle is proceeding at the moment on two battlefields—first, reunion; second, the prayer book. The Lambeth Conference of 1920 authorized the Archbishop of Canterbury to promote the reunion of the churches. In pursuance of the resolutions there have been meetings between the Bishops and leaders of "the Free Churches"—that is, the Presbyterians, the Methodists, the Baptists and the Congregationalists. In England there is no result. Dr. Jowett has preached in Durham Cathedral—that is all. But in South Africa such reunion has made progress. And in Canada the recent union of Presbyterians, Methodists and Congregationalists greatly interested the Episcopalians. It is such a reunion of Protestant Churches, on an evangelical basis, that has been so vigorously advocated by Dr. Karl Reiland, rector of St. George's Episcopal Church, New York.

Hence the astonishment when the Archbishop of Canterbury disclosed that, with the "cognizance" of himself and the authorities at the Vatican, reunion between Canterbury and Rome was under discussion at Malines, where Cardinal Mercier's guests included Bishop Gore and Viscount Halifax. Among Roman Catholics in England the question was asked why Cardinal Bourne, head of their Church in that country, had not been represented at the round table. But the most pointed comments came from the Low Churchmen in the English Episcopacy itself.

The Bishop of Liverpool—in which city is arising a noble cathedral—thinks that "the time is not ripe" for reunion with Rome. The Evangelical Alliance declares that reunion "would simply mean absorption." The Bishop of Durham (Dr. Hensley Henson) inquires why the Anglican Church has been represented at Malines by "men who are well known to dislike and disclaim the Reformation." Even the Bishop of London insists that a preliminary to reunion must be an abandonment of the claim to infallibility by the Supreme Pontiff. And leading Wesleyan Methodists, who perhaps are nearer to the Anglican Church than any other nonconforming body, state plainly that reunion with themselves on one hand and with Rome on the other is impossible.

Parting of the Ways.

The Anglican Church is thus—as Sir T. W. H. Inskip, the Solicitor General in Prime Minister Baldwin's Government and a leading evangelical, puts it—at "the parting of the ways." He asks: "Could it be true that the Archbishop of Canterbury is a defeatist?" Was he really "willing to sell the pass"?

It is in this atmosphere that the Prayer Book is under revision. And the point at which a schism is threatened may be found in the communion service. The Anglo-Catholics have obtained the approval of the Bishops for permission to reserve the Sacrament. This permission is limited to the use of such reserved sacrament for the sick. But it is argued that the reservation, if allowed at all, will become a pretext for adoration in the churches—a devotion wholly in accord with the Roman faith, but excluded hitherto from post-Reformation Anglicanism.

The Low Churchmen, therefore, have promulgated "a call to action," powerfully signed by leaders—among them Dean Inge. On reservation they declare that they will never give in. And sixteen evangelical members of Parliament have indicated their purpose to fight the new Prayer Book on the floor of the House of Commons if necessary. Among other matters of acute disagreement are the authorization of mass vestments and public prayers for the departed.

"Mechanical" Religion Charged.

The protagonist of the Evangelicals is, curiously, the Bishop of Birmingham, of which diocese Dr. Gore was the first "father in God." Dr. Barnes, a distinguished mathematician and Modernist, accuses the Anglo-Catholics of elaborating a "mechanical" practice of religion, words which have evoked the deepest resentment, especially when they were followed by a strongly controversial sermon in Westminster Abbey and by a discourse at Brighton in favor of birth control.

As President of the English Church Union, the Anglo-Catholic vanguard, Lord Shaftesbury has appealed to the Archbishop of Canterbury to restrain these utterances on the part of his colleague. The Archbishop has, however, no authority to exercise such restraint.

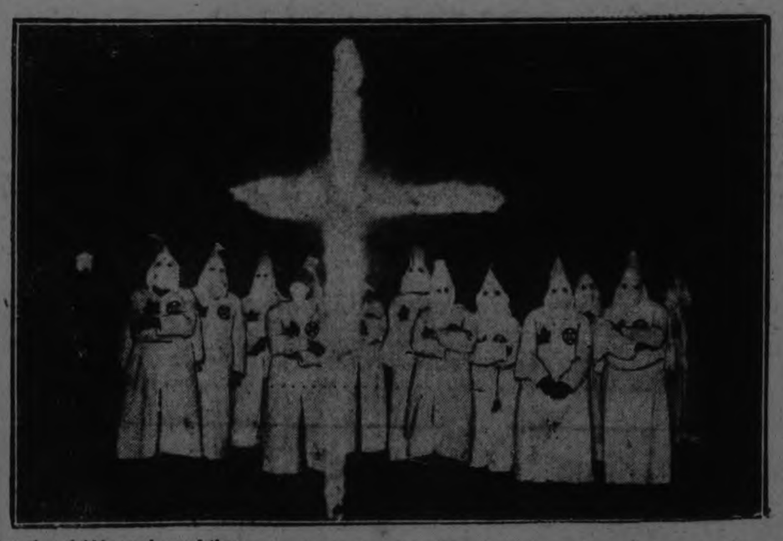
Faced by these confusions, the Church has decided that the revised Prayer Book shall be optional, not compulsory—an arrangement already adopted in the case of the revised Bible. This will mean that the two parties, instead of using the same liturgy, but in different senses, will be able to develop what will be, in effect, two orders of worship, in many respects contrary the one to the other.

Each parish will have to decide which Prayer Book to accept; and if the new is preferred, how much of it, and how little. To this compromise there are manifest objections; yet any attempt now to abandon the revision might impel many of the Catholic clergy into the Roman Church.

Nor has modernism provided a solution to these perplexities. On the contrary, criticism of the Bible and of the Thirty-nine Articles, however justified it may be, tends for the moment to weaken the bulwarks of Protestantism and to clear the way for the ecclesiastical authority advocated by the Anglo-Catholics.

It is safe to say that, since the days of King Henry VIII, the Established Church of England has never been subject to a strain and stress approaching in gravity her present rapid transition. Nor is it easy to foresee how contraries so direct as these can be included in one harmonious fellowship of daily co-operation.

KU KLUXERS AT WORK



More than 1,000 members of the Invisible Empire of the Ku Klux Klan of Kanada assembled in an open Dorchester field, near London, Ont., one night recently for the "naturalization" or initiation of a hundred new members. Both men and women were present in the regalia of the order. Four fiery crosses were burned as a part of the ritual. A number of the hooded members are seen above in front of one of these blazing emblems.

EXPLORER HAS OPENED GREAT NEW TERRITORY

District in Northern British Columbia is Little Known to White Men.

MANY CURIOS

Wild Life is Plentiful—Great Waterfall Found in District.

PRINCE RUPERT, B.C., Nov. 17—A vast new area teeming with objects of unusual scientific interest and of unparalleled scenery has been explored during the past few months by Harlan I. Smith, of the field staff of the Victoria Museum, Ottawa.

This area, little known to the white man because it is locked away many miles from transportation facilities and can be penetrated only by rough trails which wind over mountains and through dense forests many miles from the centres of civilization, has been given the name of Mackenzie Park. In this park Mr. Smith has found, among other things, one-fifth of the known petroglyphs of Canada; a great waterfall which in point of height may prove to be among the first five in the world.

Huge glaciers stud the mountains in this region, grizzlies and other wild game is abundant and the Indian types offer a rich field for anthropological study.

The district was named after Sir Alexander Mackenzie, the first white man to cross Canada and one of the few men who led an expedition over the Bella Coola trail.

The great waterfall noted by Mr. Smith is said to have a drop of 828 feet, which would make it the highest in Canada, the second highest in the Western hemisphere, and the fifth highest in the world.

From a zoological standpoint, the Bella Coola district has few equals, if any, in Canada. Here is a district where mountain goats have been shot from the side of the road; where fourteen bald-headed eagles have been counted on a single tree; where huge sand sharks and sea fans are to be found in the deep fiords which indent the coast.

For the lover of romance, the artist and literary person, few districts afford the same opportunities as Bella Coola. Among the human types that may be encountered in various parts of the district are Norwegian fishermen living according to the traditions of their land; Indians who are among the crack horsemen of the continent; cowboys, French-Canadian trappers and the ubiquitous Chinese and Japanese fishermen.

SOUTH AFRICA WILL WITHDRAW WHEN ALL AGREE

Union Has Right To Leave Empire But Cannot Secede Now.

WOULD BE FATAL.

Will Exercise Right When It Is In Her Interests To Do So.

CAPETOWN, South Africa, Nov. 19 (Canadian Press).—The question of South Africa withdrawing from the British Empire some time was touched upon by Premier Hertzog in a speech at Eastron, Orange Free State, last night. He said that although the Nationalists (of which party Premier Hertzog is the leader) had won the right for the country to secede from the Empire, the Nationalists knew that such a step would be fatal.

South Africa would exercise the right to draw out of the Empire, Premier Hertzog continued, as soon as it became apparent that it was not in her interests to remain in the Empire. In any case, he assured the audience, the right of secession would not be exercised until the sentiments of both English speaking and Dutch speaking inhabitants were agreed in the matter.

B. C. CITIES TRY MANAGER PLAN

Several Places Are Considering Placing One Man in Charge.

NEW TO PROVINCE

VICTORIA B.C., Nov. 19 (Canadian Press). — British Columbia cities may soon give the city manager system a tryout.

So far the plan has not been adopted in any municipality of the province, and the nearest approach to the system was in South Vancouver when the Provincial Government appointed a commissioner to take charge of the municipality's affairs when they became seriously dislocated following the collapse of the realty market during the war years. As soon as the municipality's conditions returned to normality, however, it went back to the reeve and council system, which prevails in all towns too small to have mayors and aldermen.

It is possible the Provincial Government will bring down legislation at the present session to authorize municipalities to vote on the city manager plan and adopt it without further formality in the event of a favorable vote. The system has been considered in several cities and municipalities during the past few years as a means of providing more efficient administration, but in no case has the matter passed the debating stage. A referendum was presented to the ratepayers in Victoria several years ago, but was defeated.

DIED SEEKING HIDDEN GOLD

Old Man Has Searched Many Years for Treasure Cache.

MURDER INVOLVED

TELEGRAPH CREEK, B.C., Nov. 19 (Canadian Press).—T. H. Kinder, a veteran prospector, died near here while searching for hidden gold, and with him died the secret of where the treasure was planted.

It is a romantic story and a pathetic one, the search for hidden gold by Kinder, who died perhaps only a few days or a few hours before finding the long-sought fortune that would have made him wealthy and fulfilled his dreams of many years.

Harry Johnson, a trapper on the Naas River, was one of the few men who was told the story by Kinder, but even he does not know the location of the hidden gold. Probbaly it will never be found, for Kinder was the only man who knew the secret, and he is dead.

In 1897 three prospectors started for Dawson by way of the overland route through Hazelton. They lost their way and landed at the headquarters of the Stikine River. They commenced prospecting here and struck rich pay. They took about 60 pounds of gold altogether before striking out over the trail with the gold. Two of the trio carried out a plot to kill the third member of the party so as to keep the gold for themselves, and at an old log cabin later known as Dead Man's Cabin, another murder occurred, the killer determining to keep all the gold for himself. He lost his nerve, however, and buried the treasure, planning to return later so as to avoid suspicion. But as years passed by his fears grew and on his deathbed he revealed the secret of the murders and of the hiding place of the gold to Kinder, his friend.

Eventually Kinder started for the North to find the gold. Those who followed after him found several notes pinned to the walls of cabins in which he had spent his nights. Each note carried the inscription: "Will be back next summer. In search of the hidden gold."

But Kinder never returned. He was found dead in Dead Man's Cabin and with him went the secret hiding place of the gold.

Easy To Gain Weight With Yeast and Iron

New Combination of Yeast With Vegetable Iron Builds Up Weight in Three Weeks

Thin, run-down and underweight men, women and children can improve their health, increase their energy and put on from five to twenty pounds of good solid flesh in three weeks.

A new combination of yeast vitamines with vegetable iron, renews the action of sluggish blood cells, drives out dangerous body poisons, increases energy and endurance and supplies the system with the vitamines that build up weight.

For years yeast has been known as a rich vitamine food, but not until we perfected "ironized yeast"—which comes in concentrated tablet form, was it possible to take yeast and iron in the right proportions to build up weight.

Vegetable "Iron" when combined with yeast is quite easy to digest, therefore better for the system. And "yeast" when ironized, becomes just twice as beneficial as ordinary fresh or cake yeast.

Ironized Yeast tablets are composed of concentrated food elements, therefore they are pleasant to take and free from drug-like effects. It makes no difference how old you are—or how young you are—how long you have been under-weight—or how much underweight you are, "ironized yeast" tablets are positively guaranteed to pick you right up, and add from five to twenty pounds of good firm flesh in three weeks' time. If they fail get your money back.

Sold by druggists, at $1.00 for a large 60-tablet package, or sent direct from laboratory on receipt of price. Harold F. Ritchie & Co., Ltd., Toronto.

K. C. SCHOLARSHIP FOR 1925 AWARDED

Girls Prominent in Ontario Competition For Prizes.

Ottawa, Ont., Nov. 19 (Canadian Press)—The Ontario Knights of Columbus Scholarships for 1925, awarded from the results of special Junior Matriculation examinations conducted through the department of education of Ontario, are announced by the state executive of the Order here today.

The winners of the scholarships, with their schools in order of merit, are:

Thomas Vernon Kennedy, aged 17, Duerosin, Ottawa Collegiate Institute; Mary J. Fitzpatrick, aged 16, Hamilton, Loretto Academy, Hamilton; Frances J. McNamara, aged 17, Eganville, Eganville R.C. Continuation School; Mary Dixon, aged 16, Sudbury, St. Joseph Academy, North Bay; Eileen M. M. McCarthy, aged 17, Prescott, Prescott High School; Joe Vale, aged 16, Newmarket, Newmarket high school; John P. Ceghlan, aged 17, Fort William, Fort William Collegiate Institute; Patrick J. McAndrew, aged 17, Sudbury, Sudbury High School.

The standing obtained by the winners was remarkably high, the official announcement points out. Had it not been that not more than three of the scholarships could be awarded to girls, the pupils of that sex would have taken a much larger proportion of the scholarships, as 16 out of the 21 pupils with highest standings were girls; six of the first eight being of the gentler sex.

The scolarships were created at the Ontario State Council of the Knights of Columbus held in Cobourg in June, 1924, and are open to all Catholic students of the Province of Ontario, irrespective of the schools at which they pursue their studies. The scholarships are payable in annual instalments of $100 during the currency of the course chosen by the successful student provided he or she maintains a standing average of not less than 66 2-3 per cent throughout the entire course, and complies with the rules governing the awards as to conduct, character, etc. It provides that in case the winner of a scolarship elects to take one or more years on his or her university course at a local high school or collegiate institute, the scholarship instalments of such year or years will remain to his or her credit, to be paid to the student when he or she enters upon continuation of his or her University course.

GOLD TO BE TAKEN FROM BLACK SANDS

Scientists Has Plan to Extract Precious Metal Long Desired.

PRINCE RUPERT, B. C., Nov. 17. — Ever since the early da of exploration along the West Coast of British Columbia, th gold bearing black sands of Graham Island, one of the Queen Charlotte group, have been regarded as an interesting phenomenon and a subject of speculation on the part of mineralogists.

Not until now, however, has any attempt been made to convert the gold bearing sands into profitable use. During the last few years Charles T. Cabrera has been working on a process to extract the old and now claims to have interested sufficient Toronto capital to give his project a reasonable prospect of success.

From September 26 to October 6, 72 tons of sand were d from the beach on Graham Island, which is 500 miles north of Vancouver. These were sifted and the screenings — amounting to 48 tons—were treated with cyanide. Three and five-sixths ounces of gold were recovered, valued at $76, an average of $1.06 per ton of sand. Cabrera expects that within a few months a cyanide mill will be erected on the island, and that the beaches of Graham island will become one of the province's important sources of gold.

Attempts to make use of the black sands of British Columbia rivers, are meeting with similar success. A cyanide mill is now operating at Bonner's Ferry, Idaho, just across the international border, designed to make use of these deposits taken from streams in the southeastern part of British columbia.

The origin of the Queen Charlotte gold sands is still a mystery and the object of much speculation and investigation. Whether the Mother Lode is at the bottom of the sea, or somewhere on the islands has not yet been ascertained.

On Saturday, Nov. 7, 1925, at 12 o'clock noon, a very pretty wedding took place at the home of Mrs. Eleanor Edmunds, Chesley, when her daughter, Edith Pearl, was united in marriage to Mr. William J. Hunter of Mount Pleasant.

The bride entered the drawing-room on the arm of her uncle, Mr. John Moehnke of Chatsworth to the strains of Lohengrin's Wedding March, played by the sister of the groom, Miss Alice Hunter of Toronto. The bride looked charming in a gown of white Canton crepe, with trimmings of silk allover lace and pearls. She carried a beautiful bouquet of sweetheart roses.

The ceremony was performed under an arch of greenery and wedding bells. The Rev. Roy Geiger of the United Church of Chesley performed the ceremony. The house was beautifully decorated with bronze and yellow mums. After the ceremony the bride's mother led the way to the dining-room where a sumptuous repast was served to 25 guests. The bride's mother wore black satin, trimmed with cream silk lace. The happy couple left for Toronto, where they spent a few days before leaving for their home in Mt. Pleasant. The bride travelled in a gown of coral crepe de chene and brown pressed plush coat with collar and cuffs of Canadian fox and hat of midnight blue velvet. The bride received many beautiful gifts. The groom's gift to the bride was a double rope of pearls with sapphire clasp, and to the pianist a set of sterling silver bracelets. Mr. and Mrs. Hunter will reside in Mt. Pleasant.

TELLS HOW TO AVOID LAMENESS AFTER EXERCISE

Athlete advises a simple method of keeping muscles in trim

Men who put their muscles to the strain of hard exercise have learned a quick, sure way of taking out pain and stiffness.

"In my training work," writes a well-known athlete, "I have used Sloan's Liniment for the past five years and found it most effective for soreness caused by vigorous exercise. Also an incomparable remedy for stiff neck." (Name and address of writer given on request.)

It is marvelous how ache and stiffness in lame muscles yield to the magic of Sloan's. Just a little patted on lightly, and healing new blood tingles through the hurt place.

Away go "fatigue-poisons." New tissue gets needed nourishment. Sore muscles limber up and stop aching. Get a bottle today and have it on hand. All druggists—35 cents.

COMMUNISTS ON SEDITION TRIAL UNDER 1797 ACT

Twelve Leaders of British Party Charged With Fomenting Mutiny.

PROSECUTION FAIR.

Defense Counsel Pays Tribute to Prosecution of the Crown's Case.

LONDON, Nov. 19.—(Canadian Press Cable).—The defence in the trial of 12 leading British communists charged with seditious conspiracy and violation of the neitment to mutiny act of 1797 was begun late yesterday by Sir Henry Slesser, Labor M.P. who was solicitor-general in the Ramsay MacDonald Government, with an open-handed tribute to the fairness of the prosecuting counsel.

"No attorney-general ever presented a case with greater fairness," Sir Henry said; "what I complain of is not his presentation of the case for the prosecution, but of a point of law."

Continuing Sir Henry said: "I submit that the documents complained of (papers seized in connection with the arrests) have to be shown to be seditious libels and that there is a combination to publish these libels. It does not enter into the case whether these men as communists have an intention to overthrow society or not."

In quoting precedents Sir Henry referred to the time when John Burns, the noted Labor leader, who subsequently became a minister in the government of Mr. Asquith and resigned the presidency of the Board of Trade at the outbreak of the war in 1914) addressed a meeting in Trafalgar Square and afterwards walked behind a red flag into Pall Mall where certain windows were broken. The test laid down, Sir Henry said, was whether the language used was calculated to bring about violence and disorder immediately.

Discussing the sale of Communist literature by the accused, Sir Henry Slesser urged that these writings were sold openly and important parts of one of them had been on sale by the government itself. He warned the jury that vague references to Russian money and rumors of more wars which had been made in connection with the case were calculated to influence such prosecution, but these men were not charged with treason, he declared. It was immaterial whether the Communist party was illegal or associated with Russia, he contended.

Earlier in the day some of the defendants obviously enjoyed themselves cross-examining the detectives in the case. They elicited the information that detectives were eavesdropping at a certain meeting and were themselves arrested by colleagues who had failed to identify them.

COYOTE CAUGHT IN HAMILTON

After a chase of a mile through the streets of Hamilton, William Trasher overtook the coyote shown above, following a fifteen minute battle in which the animal tore his shoes and heavy gloves to shreds, succeeding in effecting a capture. How the animal got loose in Hamilton is as much a mystery as how the timber wolf, recently shot near Fingal, ever came to be in Elgin county. It will likely be presented to the Dundurn Park Zoo.

DIRECT SELLING OF TEA UPHELD

Lindsay Magistrate Dismissed Charge Against Ocean Blend Company.

PEEL PRECEDENT.

LINDSAY, Nov. 19. — Police Magistrate Bradford yesterday rendered judgment in a case which will be of interest to municipalities generally. The case in question was The King vs. The Ocean Blend Tea Company, Limited.

On August 28 last, Chief of Police Umphrey laid an information against the above company, charging it with exercising the calling of hawkers within the limits of the town without first having obtained a license as required by a local bylaw. It was charged that tea was sold to ctizens who were not wholesale or retail dealers in such article.

G. E. Parkinson, of Toronto, counsel for the defendant Company, did not dispute these facts and admitted that orders for tea were taken. No samples were carried, however, and delivery was to be at a future date. Counsel for defendant company also admitted that no license had been taken out under said bylaw, and contended that the company should not be convicted because they were manufacturers of tea and coffee, and as such were exempt from obtaining a license under the Municipal Act and the bylaw; also that the defendant company was not a dealer within the Act, not having carried samples, the orders being merely taken for future delivery.

In dismissing the complaints without costs, Police Magistrate Bradford inclined to the view that the contentions of counsel for defendant company were correct. It was also pointed out to him at the time of the trial that an appeal from a magistrate's decision at Brampton on a similar set of facts was pending before the County Judge of Peel County. Magistrate Bradford said he would feel bound by this decision, the County Judge of Peel allowing the appeal and quashing the conviction of the magistrate.

SUNDAY SCHOOL CONCLAVE MEETS

East Northumberland Body Meet at Wooler and Arranged Conventions.

OFFICERS ELECTED.

(By a Staff Reporter.)

WARKWORTH, Nov. 19. — A meeting of the County Conclave of the Interdenominational Sunday School Workers Association for East Northumberland, was held here on Tuesday morning and afternoon with C. F. Wessels of Wooler, president, in the chair. The membership of the conclave comprises all the county and township executives with the ministers and superintendents of Sunday schools.

Miss Lane, superintendent of children's work for the Ontario Religious Educational Council, was present and was one of the chief speakers at both sessions.

There was made a general survey of the work of the county with the result that it was decided to hold a tour of all township conventions in June, 1926.

These conventions will be held in the same week, the days agreed upon being as follows: Seymour, Monday; Percy, Tuesday; Cramahe, Wednesday; Murray, Thursday, and Wooler, Friday. The dates will be announced later. Following the Wooler convention another meeting of the conclave will be held.

It was the unanimous opinion that by holding all the conventions in the same week it would be easier to sustain the interest than by spreading them over a longer period of time.

Indicate Extent of Illicit Trade—Made in Switzerland.

FOR MANCHURIA.

GENEVA, Nov. 19.—(Canadian Press).—Seizures of morphine totalling 299 pounds, and prepared and raw opium, exceeding 15,890 pounds, during the past few months, reported to the League of Nations by the British Government, indicate the extent to which drug syndicates are operating in the Far East.

If the seizures reported are any indication of the extent of the traffic the illicit trade has increased stupendiously since the Geneva conferences. Most of the morphine hydrochloride seized was shipped from Antwerp on the Japanese ships Haruna Maru and Amuzon Maru, consigned to Dalny, Manchuria, via Kobe. Marks indicate the product was manufactured by the MacDonald Company of Basel, Switzerland.

CHRISTMAS TREAT TAKING NEW FORM

Children of Bethany United S. S. To Be Taken For Sleigh Ride.

BETHANY, Nov. 19.—The quarterly executive meeting of the United Sunday School was held on Monday evening in the classroom, with thirteen members present. At the request of the superintendent, Mr. Monk, Rev. Poulter took the chair, and read a portion of Scripture and offered prayer. Miss Jean Thorndyke, the secretary, then read the minutes of the previous meeting, which were confirmed, and signed. Several items of business were talked over and some re-arranging was done. Then the Superintendent, Mr. Monk, asked what was the wish of the executive regarding a Christmas entertainment for the school. The pros and cons were well talked over in an open discussion and in view of the fact that the Adult Bible Class was holding its annual bazaar the first week in December and the Young Ladies' Mission Club was staging a play just before Christmas, it was thought wise to withdraw the annual Christmas entertainment and tree for this year, but that the children might not be entirely overlooked it was decided to have a Congregational Social evening in the church on the Wednesday between Christmas and New Year's. This is to take the form of an indoor picnic, and if the afternoon is favorable and sleighing good, the children are to be taken for an hour's sleigh ride, and their return supper will be provided in the basement of the church with an impromotu programme following. The parents and adult members of the church are to be asked to join with the teachers and superintendent in helping to make this evening long to be remembered by the children. This was moved by P. C. Brown and seconded by W. A. Jakeman and carried unanimously.

After a number of committees were appointed to successfull carry out this project, the superintendent, Mr. Monk, offered prayer, and the meeting was dismissed.

Hawk Bit Off More Than He Could Easily Chew And Was Driven From Tender Chick He Coveted

Consernation reigned among the feathered population in the farmyard of Alex Sanderson, Chemong Road, when a large hawk appeared in the vicinity. There was a general rush for cover as the winged tyrant swooped down on a chicken that was just a second too late in seeking safety in flight. The hawk endeavored to beat its victim into insensibility by repeated blows with its wings. It made several attempts to fly away with its prey, but without success as the weight of the chicken was evidently too much for the carrying capacity of the would-be devourer. A neighbor of Mr. Sanderson's who was watching the episode, appeared on the scene and chasing off the hawk, rescued a very much frightened young chick which, apart from being slightly stunned by the blows it had received, was little the worse for its adventure.

WARSAW INSTITUTE.

Meeting Was Held and Class in Sewing Arranged For.

WARSAW, Nov. 19.—The regular meeting of Warsaw Womens' Institute was held on Thursday afternoon.

A letter was read from Mr. McCrae stating that a class in agriculture was being arranged for February, to last four weeks, and asking if a class for girls and young women in either Domestic Science, Home Nursing and First Aid, or Sewing and Millinery could be arranged. It was dicided to ask for the class in Sewing and Millinery. The Institue must provide a heated room, and the department provides the rest. This is not just for Institute members, but for all in the community who wish to avail themselves of the lessons. So as to arrange to have proper space, it is desired that those who wish to join the class will hand their names to some Institute member by December 9th.

Mrs. David Miller was appointed delegate to the convention.

Mrs. Sargent gave an excellent paper on "Women Helping in Home Finances." She outlined the position of woman in the home.

Woman can help in the finances by careful use of materials, by saving the little things, bits of soap, of food, by proper mending, and other things.

She named several ways by which a woman may definitely increase the income, principally, perhaps with poultry, and poultry products.

Some of the Tedford and Miller hunting parties have returned, reporting indifferent success.

Mr. Wyler and Mr. O. McIlvena returned on Wednesday.

Some few farmers whose turnips crop is in low land, are leaving them. They are small and there is so much water, harvesting them is next to impossible.

Much land is so wet it cannot be plowed nor cultivated.

The near road to Lakefield is in a very bad condition, so is the Boundary.

Thos. Cooper is still losing sheep. When the bear was killed, some thought the trouble was over, but several have been killed since, and some when Mr. Cooper had the flock near the barn.

75 SHOTS BEFORE ONE DEER KILLED

Another Hunter Missed Buck Few Yards From Him.

APSLEY, Novemebr 18. — The continued wet weather is somewhat dampening the ardour of the hunters, but they are meeting with a fair amount of luck. Stories of their prowess are beginning to leak out, some of them not reflecting much credit on their skill as marksmen. One party is credited with firing no less than 75 shots at one unfortunate deer before it was brought down, while another man with a reputation of being a crack shot, missed a big buck, standing within a few yards of the hunter. A member of a U. S. party, firing at a deer, cut a telephone wire in two; it doesn't follow, however, that the deer was flying when this remarkable shot was effected. In justice to the hunter, it should be explained that he was on a hill and the deer on another hill, while the intervening wire was just on a level with the quarry.

Injured in Car Crash.

Elijah McKay sustained severe injuries in a motor car accident on Saturday, when it crashed through the protecting railing of a high embankment on the Clannicarde road, and turned completely over three times on its descent. Three other occupants of the car miraculously escaped without a scratch.

The injured man, besides a severe wound on the head, received, it is feared, internal injuries, the extent of which is not yet known Dr. Shepherd is attending him.

The Rev. F. H. Hartley, of St. Matthias Church, Toronto, and who was curate to Rev. Canon Harding here 34 years ago, was the special preacher of St. George's church on Sunday last in connection with the commemoration of the Jubilee of the Apsley Mission.

ART STUDY CLUB FIRST MEETING

Mrs. H. E. Connolly Read Instructive Paper on Mosaics.

CANADIAN NIGHT.

Mrs. H. W. Morphet, Hunter Street West, was hostess to the Art Study Club last evening. At this, the first meeting of the year, the winter's programme was planned, after which Mrs. H. R. Connolly read an instructive paper on "Mosaics." In her paper, Mrs. Connolly described the method of making mosaics, and named the many different kinds of materials which were used in this interesting art. Mosaic is essentially a Roman art, and it is in Italy that the finest and greatest variety of mosaics are found. Not only are there mosaic pavements, pictures, vaults, but there is also most delicate mosaic jewelry. Mosaic probably reached its highest excellence in the twelfth and thirteenth centuries.

Tuesday, December 1, will be Canadian night in the Study Club. Mrs. F. C. Neal will read a paper on Paul Peel, and the response to the roll call will be a Canadian artist, his birthplace and the name of one of his paintings. Mrs. R. J. Kidd will entertain the club.

The Secrets Of Charm

By Lucrezia Bori

Foot comfort is so directly related to beauty that I feel called upon to mention it occasionally to my readers.

In the first place, if your feet are tired and aching, your expression registers your feeling perfectly. It is almost superhuman to be able to keep the features calm and untroubled when one is suffering from footache. It most often registers in two deeply etched vertical lines down the center of the forehead, between the eyebrows. And all of us know how this detracts from beauty.

In the second place, where true beauty exists, the body is beautiful in every line. This means that the feet are slender and strong and well-proportioned. It means that the toes are straight and not cramped and bent into awkward positions from wearing the wrong kind of shoes.

Now, if there is really something seriously wrong with your feet, the thing to do is to go to a specialist and have the matter put right.

If your trouble is only a matter of temporary fatigue, I can recommend a certain kind of bath which will do much to help them. But before I tell you of this foot bath, do let me warn you against ill-fitting shoes and stockings.

You must wear shoes that are comfortable—and they can possess this quality and be fashionable at the same time. You must wear stockings that are neither too small nor too large, and you must change your stockings and your shoes often. It is not best to wear the same pair of shoes every day. If you can alternate, your feet will gain beauty by this practice. A fresh pair of stockings daily is easily managed, for it is an easy matter to wash out a pair of stockings each night, even if you have only one pair.

All you need is:

A footbath filled with hot water.

Castile or any good, pure soap.

About two handfuls of bran.

Make a good soapsuds in the footbath and put in the bran just after you have a good suds and before you wash your feet. The bran will help to stir up your circulation, and you will do well just to sit with your feet in the restful, bracing bath for some few minutes.

When you remove them, a rinse in clear warm water will not be amiss. Dry your feet thoroughly and put on fresh stockings and a pair of shoes with different heels from those you have been wearing. This change in itself is very restful.

Miss Motoda, who is looking towards the teaching profession, studied English in the Government school in Tokio, and specialized in a postgraduate course, which qualified her for the position of Japanese teacher of English. Another daughter of Bishop Motoda is studying at a university in Baltimore.

NURSES' RESIDENCE CAVELL MEMORIAL

Tablet Will Be Erected in Western Hospital's New Building.

TORONTO, Nov. 19.—(By Canadian Press).—The corner-stone of the Edith Cavell Memorial Nurses' Residence, in connection with Western Hospital, was laid recently by Premier Ferguson. Separate rooms for 175 nurses are planned, each room with running water. A large gymnasium and a tiled roof garden are other features which take into account the fact that attention must be paid nowadays to the needs of the nurse when off duty.

A tablet to commemorate the heroic nurse, Edith Cavell, will be placed in a prominent place in the residence and the one to Nursing Sister Davis, Western Hospital graduate, who died on war service.

BIRTH CONTROL ADVOCATED BY UNIVERSITY MAN

Dr. Little Would Have Mental Defectives and Criminals Weeded Out.

TOO MANY CHILDREN.

Slow Down Production To Point Where All Can Be Cared For.

LANSING, Mich., Nov. 19 (Canadian Press)—Sterlization, to weed out mental defectives and certain types of criminals and birth control to prevent the production of so many children who cannot be cared for properly, were advocated by Dr. Clarence Cook Little, president of the University of Michigan, in an address here last night.

"There is need to slow down the production of children to a point where a child can be guaranteed proper care and education," he said.

"In the slums of some of the big cities, children are worse off than in so-called barbarous foreign countries. These are dumped out to die or survive and to meet possible mental and moral depravity. There are worse things than preventing the formation of a child when it cannot be cared for properly after birth."

BRITISH ARTIST STARTED 'Y' HUTS

Mrs. Alice Tweedie Also Had Half Million Books Sent to France.

VISITS CANADA.

VANCOUVER, B.C., Nov. 19.—(By Canadian Press).—Mrs. Alice Tweedie, author and artist, interviewed here on her way home to England, proved an interesting personality. She is a Fellow of the Royal Geographical Society, of the Royal Asiatic Society and of the Royal Colonial Institute. It was directly through her efforts that the first forty Y.M.C.A. huts were erected in France early in the war and the task of sending the first half million books to the trenches and hospitals of the Allies was undertaken and accomplished by her. "I realize very keenly the fact that we should not encourage our women to come to the Dominion without special training along some useful line," she is reported as saying.

"The dignity of housework is something that should be instilled into every girl, in fact, I tell English girls the only chance they have of ever getting married in Canada is to be good housekeepers. After all home-making is the woman's field, and we must realize that it can be made a very dignified profession. Personally, I am far more proud of trimming a hat or of making it out of nothing at all than I am of writing a book. Both jobs take brains, and in my opinion it is more important to be a successful home-maker than to be a successful story writer or picture painter."

MRS. PLUMTRE RUNS FOR BOARD

Toronto Social Worker Seeks Election as School Trustee.

COLLEGE GRADUATE.

TORONTO, Nov. 19—(By Canadian Press).—Mrs. H. P. Plumtre who was for several years on the staff of Somerville College, Oxford, where she had previously graduated, taking final honors in modern history, political science and political economy, will be a candidate for the Board of Education next January. Her voluntary services include the Presidency of the Ontario Red Cross Division, of the Toronto League of Women Voters and directorship on the Educational Board of the Social Hygiene Council of Canada. In acceding to the wishes of the delegation Mrs. Plumtre said, "I don't pretend to think that it is easy work or pleasant work to take an elective position, or submit one's self for election in a public way." Social service was part of the fabric of modern life, and it seemed to her that men and women serving on civic committees and boards were themselves engaged in the very highest type of social service work. To undertake such public responsibilities was not to go outside the work of the Church, but rather fulfilling its teaching.

HATS AND "UNDIES."

Little metallic hats to wear with furs are in the stores. They come in satin and gold and silver lace combinations, or disport themselves in plain black with touches of the rakish-looking monkey fur. The close-fitting style still appears to be the favorite in headgear and will probably will be in vogue as long as the bobbed head holds its own. Some of the bobbed heads, however, appear very well in the large black velvet hats that have uneven brim lines.

A pretty detachable trimming for small dark hats is the new colored felt novelties shown in the stores. Coming on cards, they show bright-colored felt flowers and fruits that may be used as hat or dress trimmings.

In neckwear, the "Bobby" sets are good. They are combination of silk crepe and lace, with lace side tabs attached to a tie of the crepe.

Colored lingerie is still as good as ever. It comes in plain mull or washable crepe, with cream lace edgings, or in satin with self stripes. One dainty soft silk nightie has diagonal close lines of fine pin tucking, another mauve combination is trimmed with pale yellow lace and yellow ribbon, and still another has a picot edging of frilled net. A tailor-made sample shows a soft purple foundation edged with wide neck and arm bands of pale orchid satin.

Visitors to the tomb of the Unknown Warrior in Westminster Abbey so frequently leave gold and silver trickets, medals, brooches and rings on that sacred spot that a collection of several hundred pieces has already been made by the authorities.

WHEN the body is weakened by illness the digestion is also impaired. At this time ordinary foods will not build up bodily strength because the system cannot easily assimilate them. Often the patient's fastidious appetite will not even accept them.

Builds-up Brain, Nerves and Body

ONCE UPON A TIME — THE PUMPKIN PIE PRINCESS—IV — by W. J. ENRIGHT.

Mr. Corkscrew would be a better name for the little bird called the Brown Creeper, or possibly Mr. Corkscrew Climber.

This little brown fellow is a wonderful tree cleaner. He flies through the air merely to get somewhere, which is to say that he does not frolic in the air as some birds do. I have only seen him quietly going about his bug finding business. He lands at the base of the tree and works his way up, by a series of little sidewise hops, generally to the one side, which, of course, keeps him going upwards and around at the same time. He performs a spiral stairway trick all his own and when he has covered the tree trunk in this manner, there are not many bugs or insect eggs which have escaped him.

The Brown Creeper does not creep, for creeping means slow movement, as that of a worm. If he had been named the Spiral Climber, or almost anything, it could not fit him worse than his present name. However, names do not make people, for I know a lazy man named Quick and another man, a regular string-bean or bean pole of a fellow, six feet six inches in his stocking, and his name is A. L. Short. This man would never tell what his initial mean, but somehow or other the secret got out. It is said that someone had to take him to court because he sold stuff on a short measure scale, and when the case came up, he had to give his full name and it was A. Little Short. The Judge said it was a matter of being short too long, so maybe the name fitted after all.

At any rate, Mr. Spiral Climber, the little brown creeper, is a hard worker. Sometimes, when I remain quiet in the wood, he will inspect me thoroughly for bugs, but he never has landed on me, which I consider a compliment, but another man has reported that a migrating brown creeper, away out to sea, flying across the water, landed on this man's leg, on the deck of a steamer, and went all over him, looking for bugs.

That seems to be a bad giveaway on the man, but perhaps the little fellow was exhausted and had to cling to the man's clothes as everything else on a ship is painted and smooth and gave the bird no rough surface to hang on to. Who knows?

YOUR HEALTH

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M.D., Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

What can be more important to the welfare of a human body than the uninterrupted circulation of the blood?

What does the blood do?

It carries the essential oxygen from lungs to the tissues of the body.

It carries the food from the digestive organs to the most remote parts of the system.

It carries the waste materials and the surplus supply of fluids to the skin and kidneys for expulsion from the body.

It carries the products of the ductless glands to the parts of the body where they can be utilized for our food.

It has an important part in regulating the temperature of the body.

So important is the circulation of the blood that to stop it five minutes would be fatal to the strongest man.

It isn't enough merely to have the heart beat and to have the blood circulate through the blood vessels. It must be good blood, rich blood, blood containing the essentials and in proper proportions.

We cannot consider the heart and circulation by themselves. We must consider them in connection with the manner of breathing and the way we treat the digestive organs.

Without an abundance of oxygen which we get by deep breathing and a supply of food which is gained by proper eating, the circulation of the blood must fail to measure up to its possibilities, and, indeed, to the proper perfo mance of its assigned functions.

My mail is filled with letters asking me to recommend a "blood medicine." There is a popular idea that out of a box or a bottle may be taken some sort of "dope" which will enrich the blood. This is nonsense.

Good blood comes from good food, good water, plenty of exercise to keep the heart active, and deep breathing to supply great quantities of oxygen.

In our foodstuffs is an important chemical or force, a mysterious agent which for want of a better name we call the vitamin. I frequently refer to it as the "soul of the food." It is associated with the mineral carrying part of fruits and vegetables, with the cream of milk and with the sunshine.

Without abundant supplies of vitamins, the circulation of the blood seems impaired and it fails to carry with it the health and vigor which all of us so ardently desire to possess. On this account we cannot have an effective circulation without eating the right food.

The food is not "oxydized" and made useful without the aid of oxygen. To have this we must open our lungs to pure air. We must avoid contaminated and vitiated atmospheres and must dwell where the air is clean and rich.

With a good heart and good circulation you may look forward to eighty years of efficient life.

ARTICLE No. 13

The writer was much surprised the other day to receive a letter from a correspondent asking the definition of an "original bid." Perhaps there are others who are in doubt. An "original bid" is the first or opening bid of the hand, whether made by the dealer, second, third or fourth hands. It is also called the "initial bid." It is very important to understand this distinction for there is a very great difference between "original bids" and "forced bids," that is, those bids made after another player has already bid. Original bids by dealer or second hand must always show two quick tricks, either in a suit or no-trump bid. Original bids by third or fourth hands must show at least three quick tricks. These requirements are arbitrary and should be closely followed. Original bids offer the best opportunity to give partner exact information and unless these requirements are closely followed, partner is given incorrect information, usually to his disadvantage. After another player has bid, however, bids may be made freely that would not be justifiable original bids. For example: Suppose the dealer has bid one club, the following hands justify a bid of one diamond, one heart and one spade respectively:

Hearts — 4, 2
Clubs — 10, 7, 4
Diamonds — A, J, 8, 7, 6
Spades — K, 10, 2

Hearts — Q, J, 9, 4, 2
Clubs — 7, 2
Diamonds — A, 4, 2
Spades — 10, 7, 6

Hearts — A, 2
Clubs — 8, 4, 3
Diamonds — 10, 3, 2
Spades — K, J, 7, 4, 3

None of the hands contain a justifiable original bid. Note, however, that in each case the hand contains at least one and one-half quick tricks and at least one-half trick in the suit bid.

The same correspondent also asked whether or not original bids were the only ones that could be doubled informatorily, that is, to force a bid from partner. The answer to this is simple. The question as to whether or not the bid doubled is an original bid is immaterial. If partner doubles before you have bid and at his first opportunity, his double is an informatory double and is asking you to bid. It is always wise to be able to distinguish an informatory double from a business double, that is, one made to defeat the contract.

An informatory double is a double of a suit bid of one, two or three, or of a no-trump bid of one, if made at the first opportunity and before partner has made a bid. The fact that the doubler has bid is immaterial. If he doubles after he has bid but at his first opportunity, he is still asking his partner for a bid. For example, the dealer bids a spade, fourth hand bids two hearts and the dealer doubles, he is doubling at his first opportunity and therefore asking for a bid. Note the distinction very carefully. But get this right. When you have made a bid of one no-trump, second hand bids two hearts, and your partner doubles, he is not asking you for a bid. He means: "Partner, I was just about to bid two hearts myself, let this double of mine stand."

Answer to Problem No. 6

Hearts — 7, 4, 2
Clubs — Q, 7, 2
Diamonds — none
Spades — Q, 6

Hearts — K, J, 9	Y	Hearts — none
Clubs — 10, 6, 5		Clubs — J, 4, 3
Diamonds — none	A B	Diamonds — J, 10, 5, 4, 3
Spades — K, 10	Z	Spades — none

Hearts — Q, 10, 6
Clubs — K
Diamonds — K, 6, 2
Spades — 7

There are no trumps and Z is in the lead. How can YZ so play the hand that they will win five of the eight tricks against any defense? Z should play the king of clubs and Y should play the seven so that he cannot be forced in the lead on the third round of clubs. This play by Y is very important and the key of the problem. Z should now play the seven of spades. A can either win the trick and return spades or allow Y to win the trick. His better play is to win the trick with the king of spades and lead another spade which Y wins with the queen. Y should now play the queen of clubs. B can play a low club or the jack of clubs. If he plays a low club, B will be forced in the lead with the jack of clubs on the next round. He will then be forced to play diamonds. Z can take two tricks in diamonds by refusing to win the first trick. If B plays the jack of clubs at trick four, A will be forced in the lead on the next lead of clubs and must lead a heart up to Z's hand thus allowing Z to make both his heart trick and the kind of diamonds. In either event, therefore, YZ must win five of the eight tricks against any defense. It is an interesting and instructive problem because it involves many points of play that come up very frequently, particularly forcing an opponent in the lead to his disadvantage. Also note Z's play of the diamond suit in case B won the fourth trick and A's lead of the low heart when forced in the lead on the fifth trick. Bad play by either A or Z in these situations would cause the loss of a trick.

Problem No. 7

There is another angle to consider. Suppose A should win the second trick with the king of spades and then lead the king of hearts and follow with the nine of hearts. How can YZ so play against this defense that they may win five of the eight tricks? This point will be considered in the next article.

Three-Minute Journeys

Temple Manning

WHERE THE GROCERY IS A HUNDRED MILES AWAY.

Distances are measured by different standards in the city and in the open spaces of the outdoors. In a great city the modern housewife would be exceedingly put out if her grocer was not located within a block or two of her kitchen. In a smaller community it may be necessary to walk a mile or two into the village proper for supplies But in Pueblo Bonito, New Mexico, the nearest grocery is a mere matter of a hundred and six miles away.

In fine weather, when the roads are dry, the trip may be made in fourteen hours. But when the rains have made the roads muddy and sticky, it may be a week before the messengers return with supplies.

Pueblo Bonito has the distinction of being the site of the first large apartment house in the country. It is true that the building was of stone and was not equipped with many of those conveniences that we deem essential to an apartment house. But, nevertheless, it housed some twelve hundred people at one time.

This "apartment house" was a structure of four stories covering acres and acres of land. It was a sort of communal building and comprised the whole village of Pueblo Bonito. Five hundred years before the discovery of America by the white men, this community existed in the midst of a highly organized civilization.

One of the most striking features of that civilization, to us, is the fact that the wife was the head of the household. Women owned the property and ruled the homes. The men simply provided for the families. The corn in the fields belonged to the men, but as soon as it was dried and brought indoors to be stored, it belonged to the women and they had the privilege of deciding how it was to be used and when.

In return for these privileges, however, the women worked about every hour of the day. Their tasks were unending. Blankets had to be woven skins tanned; there was the pottery to be done and the corn to be ground. All these, of course, were done with crude instruments and involved hours of most tedious and minute application.

To-day Pueblo Bonito is a mass of ruins, long deserted and occupied only by geologists who are interested in discovering the secrets of this civilization. And since they do not raise their food as the ancient inhabitants did, they must travel a hundred and six miles to the grocery to get their supplies.

FAMOUS FORTUNES

JOHN D. ROCKEFELLER—THE FIRST BILLIONAIRE.

When asked to assist in preparing a biography of his life, John Davison Rockefeller, architect of the most efficient organization in history, whose benefactions will send his name down through the ages as the greatest benefactor to humanity the world has yet produced, said, "I have done nothing worth writing a book about."

"I began to give away a part of my income regularly from the time I earned $25 a month," said he. "My mother taught me to help others."

Finally he went into the commission business himself and did over $500,000 the first year. During those creative years Rockefeller's father often loaned him money, and then, when least expected, he would demand payment. After young Rockefeller had hustled around and got it, Rockefeller pere would give it back with the remark that he wanted to test his son's resourcefulness and ability to meet sudden emergencies.

When refineries began to spring up, preparing crude oil for illuminating purposes, Rockefeller, already a shrewd business man at twenty-two, saw its unlimited possibilities, though he had no vision as big as the subsequent realities. Spectacular fortunes began to be made in oil.

The Standard Oil Company of New Jersey is now the parent company of the whole Standard Oil organization of thirty-two companies. Alfred C. Bedford became president in 1916, which marked the passing of the old regime "John D." is the only survivor.

GOOD NIGHT STORIES

By Blanche Silvar

DORIS'S PLEASANT DAY IN AN AUSTRALIAN JUNGLE.

Doris left her aunt's house whom she was visiting in Australia, in search of adventure. She had promised not to go very far into the woods, but she was quite anxious to meet some of the jungle friends.

She hadn't gone very far until she felt a tugging at her apron string and turning around, she saw a merry little elfin face smiling up at her.

"Oh! Happy Giggles," she cried. "You dear! I'll bet you knew I was going into the wilderness, didn't you?"

"Yes, I did," said the merry elfin, "and that's why I came along. If you are going out to meet my Australian friends, I want you to meet them right. Oh, oh, look who's here!" Then Doris looked up into the happy face of a great big kangaroo. "I'm mighty glad to see you Mrs. Kangaroo," laughed Happy Giggles shaking Mrs. Kangaroo's paw. "This is my friend, Miss Doris from North America. She's visiting down here.'

"I am glad to know you, Mrs. Kangaroo," said Doris, holding out her hand. Just then out peeked two wee heads. Doris patted their bright little faces. "What a wonderful thing it is to have such a lovely pocket," she said, "and what a lovely pocketful!"

"I'll say they are a lovely pocketful,"

"What Do You Eat?"

chuckled Mrs. Kangaroo. "I don't know what I would do without that pocket. You see when kangaroos are born, they are very tiny, blind and helpless. They are born bare. So by carrying them in my pocket, I can keep them from harm. I'd have a dreadful time taking care of them, if they could walk when they were born."

"I've often wondered," mused Doris, "how you tall folks get your food. What do you eat anyway, if I may be so bold as to ask?"

"We kangaroos are vegetable eaters," replied Mrs. Kangaroo. "We get down on all fours when we eat grass and root. When I am disturbed and want to get away in a hurry, I run, and hop on my hind legs, and anyone who wishes to catch me has to do some sprinting. For I am a swift runner."

"Yes, and your tail helps you a lot in running, too," suggested Happy Giggles, putting the little baby kangaroo he had taken from the pocket, back into its furry folds again, "besides being of great service in protection."

"I'll say it does," chuckled Mrs. Kangaroo. "I don't like to fight, unless it's forced upon me. Then I face my enemy, raise my body on my tail and strik with all your feet. See these fore-feet of mine," and she held them up to show Doris the large, strong nails on them, "they will go a long way in keeping back my enemies.

"Now take a squint at these toes on my hind-legs," and she held up one of her hind legs. "They will scratch, but I use them mostly for cleaning and combing myself and the children. But I'll tell you one thing, if anyone ever gets those nails on my front feet planted in his face, he will leave me alone.

"My! I'll bet Daddy Kangaroo thinks something has happened to me, so excuse me, folks." Then, pushing the wee heads back into her pocket, Mrs. Kangaroo lifted herself on her tail and away she hopped and ran.

Happy Giggles and Doris watched her ought of sight; then they scampered along the path in search of new adventure.

UP-TO-DATE MUSICAL LIBRARY.

The New York Public Library has organized a special musical library in addition to its collection of scores available for perusal on the premises. The new branch contains a large collection of modern music which may be borrowed and taken home. The object mainly in view is that of giving musical students opportunity of understanding new music in performance in New York concert rooms, much of which, necessarily, is difficult at a single hearing. The valuable departure is being worked through a Music Library Fund which private subscribers, and the Directors of the New York Philharmonic Society, jointly maintain, and part of the first subscription has been spent in the purchase of new music, and folk-song collections, in Europe. The library is described as the foremost lending musical library in the world.

Forestall them with "that Kruschen feeling."

Avoid That Fall Cold

Chilly mornings, chillier evenings. Now's the time, if you remember, when that fall cold gets its grip on you and refuses to be shaken off when winter comes.

Just getting into thicker clothes does not make you chill-proof. Your freedom from disease and illness depends chiefly on the clearness and virility of your blood. This fall cold of yours is a small enough thing in itself; but it goes to show that your blood stream is at fault.

Every day the white corpuscles of your blood are fighting a pitched battle with invading germs; this in addition to their other function of keeping your system sweet and clean. Every day millions of them "go under." Every day millions of them must be recruited. If your system is not provided with sufficient of the vital salts that strengthen the white corpuscles the reinforcements will not be forthcoming, the invading germs will triumph, and you'll fall ill.

You need Kruschen Salts to put and keep you right. As much as will cover a ten cent piece every morning, tasteless in your breakfast cup of coffee or tea, will keep your blood in perfect condition.

It's the daily little dimeful that does it.

Every little pinch of Kruschen contains the six vital salts that are essential to your well being. And there's the case for Kruschen in a nutshell.

The tiny, tasteless dose sends new, vigorous blood pulsing gloriously through your veins. You are fit to the finger tips with a tingling vitality that is proof against all autumn ills. You can afford to snap your fingers at a regiment of germs.

You buy 160 doses of "that Kruschen feeling" for 75c. Don't wait for that cold to come. Get a bottle at your druggist's straight away and start the Kruschen habit of health to-morrow.

MAGRATH URGES USE OF POWER OF ST. LAWRENCE

As Matter of Temporary Relief H.E.P.C. Chairman Suggests More Water From Falls

TELLS ENGINEERS.

Premier Ferguson Says His Government Will Urge Ontario's Rights.

TORONTO, Nov. 19. (Canadian Press).—Taking up the torch of Hydro development and progress laid down by Sir Adam Beck, C. A. Magrath, successor to Sir Adam in the chairmanship of the Provincial Hydro-Electric Commission, addressing the Ontario Engineers at a dinner last night, urged the prompt development of the water powers of the St. Lawrence River. As a measure of temporary relief, he suggested an increase of water allotments to both nations from Niagara which, he firmly believed, could be done without injury to the scenic beauties of the Falls or the navigable utility of the river.

His audience included nearly 700 engineers and business men, representative of every phase of Ontario's industrial life. It was a public tribute on the part of nine engineering organizations—a "tribal shout or acclamation," as the chairman, Prof. H. E. T. Haultain, Dean of the Faculty of Mining in the University of Toronto, put it, and of joy that the work of the late Sir Adam Beck was in good hands.

Premier Ferguson said that it was the purpose of his Government to urge Ontario's rights on the St. Lawrence and go forward with the power development scheme there.

Italian Dictator Will Not Be at Locarno Pact Ceremony.

ROME, Nov. 19 (United Press)—Premier Mussolini, it was stated semi-officially today would not attend the signing of the Locarno pact at London on December 1st.

In the meantime, however, a considerable agitation has developed in England in Labor circles against his attendance.

Up to noon yesterday officials understood that Mussolini's announcement was only technical and that he would make a dramatic appearance at the last moment. Now, however, it was said to be regarded as doubtful that he would attempt this, if indeed he ever contemplated it.

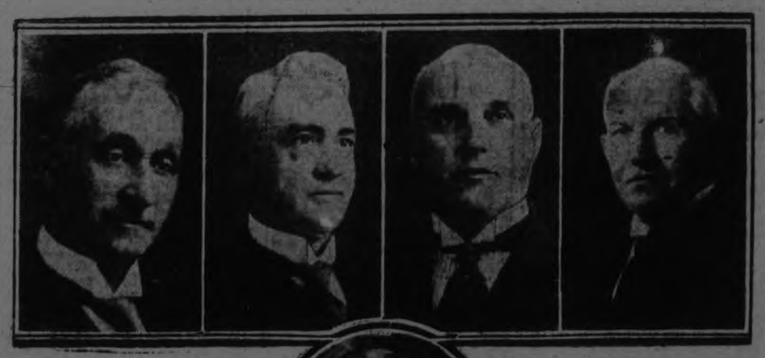
MINISTERS HAVE NEW DEEPARTMENTS



Under a cabinet reorganization recently announced by Premier King six ministers, who were defeated in the general election, retire from office, while their portfolios are taken over temporarily by others. In the upper row, from left to right, are Hon. James Robb, minister of finance, who becomes minister of trade and commerce as well; Hon. Dr. J. H. King, minister of public works, who will also have charge of the labor department; Hon. Charles Stewart, minister of the interior ,who also becomes minister of immigration; and Hon. Senator Murphy, postmaster-general, who takes over the duties of secretary of state. Below is Rt. Hon. G. P. Graham, minister of railways, the only defeated minister besides Premier King who remains in the cabinet.

BISHOP O'BRIEN RETURNS HOME

pushed forward to grasp the Bishop by the hand, and an excited crowd of little boys surged and thronged about him as he made his way down the platform. The Bishop, who takes a special religious instruction class at St. Peter's High School, has been greatly missed by the children there, and they have been enquiring anxiously about his return.

Proceeding from the station was a parade of nearly four hundred men of the parish, who accompanied His Lordship on his way down to George street, thence up Hunter street to St. Peter's Cathedral, where double overhead rows of electric lights had been strung for occasion. A large illuminated cross appeared on the front of the Cathedral, which was decorated also with large flags and the Papal ensign in gold and white. The same Papal colors were used in the decorations of the altar, which blazed with dozens of electric lights and candles. The gold of bright yellow 'mums against the white of the altar and the soft radiance of globes on standards that supported seven lighted lamps, made the sanctuary beautiful in its warmth of light and color.

Many Clergy Present.

The Bishop robed in St. Mary's Convent, and proceeded to the Cathedral behind a number of small acolytes, with Rev. Father Butler bearing the Crucifix, and accompanied by Rt. Rev. Monsignor McColl, Rev. Father Garvey, of Lakefield; Rev. Father Moloney and Rev. J. J. O'Brien, of the Sacred Heart Parish; Rev. K. Corkery of Cobourg; Rev. Father O'Sullivan of Wooler, Rev. J. McCarthy of Norwood; Rev. J. J. Ferguson, of Warkworth; Rev. P. McQuire, Rev. C. S. Bretherton, of Hastings; Rev. Jas. Guiry and Rev. J. McAuley of Ennismore. Other priests in the sanctuary were the newly-created Rt. Rev. Monsignor Kelly, of Trout Creek, and Rev. Father Scanlon of Grafton.

Observing the canonical rites followed out by a chief pastor returning to his cathedral, the Bishop knelt for a few minutes at the priedieu placed near the door, just inside the entrance, then entered the sanctuary, where he was presented with an address, read in clear, audible tones by Mr. V. J. McElderry, and received a purse of two thousand dollars from his parishioners, presented by Mr. John Corkery, Sr. A group of representative men of the parish circled the outer sanctuary rail as the address and presentation took place.

His Lordship, acknowledging the gift from his people, went on to say: "It was a great happiness to see the Holy Father and to kneel at the shrines of the saints and say Mass at their tombs, but equal to this happiness is the pleasure I feel in once more getting home. It is a sweet, happy consolation to be with you this evening."

Explaining the reason for his trip, the Bishop said it was on the invitation of the Holy Father, to make the Jubilee, to ask God's blessing upon the diocese and gain the blessings and indulgences, "not for myself, but for the entire diocese," to present his quinquennial report to the Holy See, and finally, to make a pilgrimage "in which I prayed for your spiritual and temporal wants. The children were uppermost in my mind. Children were very near and dear to the heart of Our Lord and so they should be with me. It was a wonderful privilege to be present at the ceremonies of Holy Year and to talk over the affairs of the diocese with the Holy Father.

"I am thankful indeed for your kindness and goodness and benevolence to me, and my thanks for this welcome and this splendid address are said from a full and grateful heart to everyone of you. I want to thank my people too, for this offering, which I will use in procuring necessities for the Cathedral, and in particular, for a new set of vestments.

"The burden of the Episcopate is not a small one, but it is lightened by the goodness of the people. I want to thank Monsignor McColl for his careful administration of the affairs of the parish in my absence, Father Costello and the priests of the diocese for their faithfulness and loyal devotion, and all the priests who came to meet me to-night, to the Sisters of St. Joseph, for continuing their good work in the schools and other parish institutions, and to all the people. I accept this welcome of yours as an act of faith and piety, not to the individual, but to the office which has been Divinely established and which was conferred upon me by the Holy Father. I have seen four Popes: Leo 13th, when I was a student in Rome; Pius 10th, in 1907; Benedict 15th, in 1920, and now in 1925, Pius 11th."

Again reiterating his expression of gratitude to those who had accorded him such a splendid welcome, for St. Peter's Cathedral was packed to the doors last evening, with a crowd of people standing at the rear, His Lordship then imparted the Apostolic Blessing to the congregation, and said Benediction, assisted by Rt. Rev. Monsignor McColl.

A very interesting portion of the service was the singing by the children's choir, in which about two hundred and twenty-five pupils of St. Peter's School took part. The children sang beautifully, in splendid tone and rhythm, and their hymns were in keening with the occasion. Especially appropriate were the two special hymns, the welcome to the Bishop in "Ecce sacerdous," and the rejoicing over the homecoming of their spiritual father in "Vivat pastor bonus," while the Benediction music was equally well rendered. Miss L. Hurley presided at the organ.

Ushers at the Cathedral last evening were: Messrs. J. J. Duffus, A. Costello, Wm. Hickey, Sylvester J. Hickey, Gerald Conroy and Ed. Riley.

Another pleasing item in the arrangements was the presence of the band of the Peterborough Rangers, who performed in great style. They played "Home, Sweet Home" for His Lordship at the station, and rendered "O Canada" while waiting for the Bishop to robe at the Cathedral.

The marshalling of the parade and the looking after the crowds at the station and the Cathedral was in the capable hands of a number of police officers, including Chief Newhall, Inspector Reid, Sergeants Deannard and Thomas, Constable Thompson and Detective Carey.

SILVER WEDDING IS CELEBRATED

Mr. and Mrs. Parkes Were Married Nov. 14, 1900, in England.

MANY GIFTS.

Mr. and Mrs. Tom Parkes celebrated their silver wedding on Saturday last at their home, 86 Braidwood Avenue.

A most enjoyable evening was spent in games, dancing, singing, etc., and violin solos were rendered by Mr. Brown and Mrs. A. Robertson, also selections on the piano by Miss K. Robertson and Miss L. Kay.

During an interval in the frolics of the evening, the guests formed a circle around the bride and bridegroom of 25 years ago, and showered confetti and streamers upon them, which brought back to the happy couple memories of their wedding, which took place in England on November 14th, 1900.

In the course of the evening dainty refreshments were served by members of the family.

Among the guests present were: Messrs. Sam and Alick and Kate Robertson, Mr. and Mrs. Brown, Mr. and Mrs. Moscrop and daughter, Miss M. Hann, Mr. and Mrs. Kay and daughter, Mrs. Williams, Sr., Mr. and Mrs. T. Monks and Mrs. Williams, Jr., and son Delbert and Miss E. Scott.

Mr. and Mrs. Parkes received many beautiful silver presents, which included cutlery, cake dishes, and many other articles, also a rolling pin, which was much in evidence during the evening, causing much fun.

IMMIGRATION NOT POLITICAL SUBJECT

S. A. Officer Says It Should Be Handled By a Commission.

VANCOUVER, B.C., Nov. 19. — (Canadian Press).—That the problems of immigration should not be made a subject for politicians but should be dealt with by an independent commission of business men and students of economical requirements of this or any other country in the Empire, was the point stressed in an address by Commissioner David Lamb, of the Salvation Army, London, England, at a Canadian Club luncheon here yesterday.

IT PAYS TO ADVERTISE

SPIDER IN THE WEB ATTITUDE OF BOARD

The matter of control of waters in rivers, lakes and streams of Ontario and preventing of fouling of same is under the jurisdiction of the Provincial Board, as are all other matters of health in the province. The duty of preventing the fouling of streams, is laid by the Act, upon the shoulders of the local municipalities. It is for the Provincial Board and its officers to see that they do this work efficiently. For this reason, the Provincial Board backed up the complaints of neighboring municipalities and compelled the City of Peterboro to put in an up-to-date sewage disposal plant, now almost completed. It is typical of local conditions, that the local Board of Health took no part in urging steps to prevent fouling of the river. Sometime ago, I visited the local Board of Health and drew their attention to the fouling of the river by sewage directly passed into it, in its course through the City at various points. As a result, I am pleased to say that work is now about to be undertaken at the instance of the local Board, which provides sewage facilities for plants along the rivers edge from the Quaker Oats to the C.P.R. Certain so far ineffective motions have been made to have the Auburn Woollen Mills sewage sanitarily disposed of. I have been told that for some years the archives of Canadian Woollen Mills have held plans for effective disposal of their sewage, which plans would only be brought to fruitition when the local Board of Health gets real busy. Any disease traceable to river water in Peterboro, is due to fouling of the waters of the river within the City boundaries.

At the meeting of the Board of Health on Tuesday, I asked what steps had been taken to trace up the origin of some seven typhoid cases which had arisen within the city or on its boundaries, stating that it had been reported to me that one of these cases might quite probably be due to contamination in the water at Inverlea Beach. So far, I have received no answer to this question. I scarcely expect one, for the real answer is nothing has been done.

Filtration Plant,

The M.O.H.'s praise of the filtration plant and the efficient safeguarding of the water supply of the city is most thoroughly deserved. The drinking water supply by the City of Peterboro, through its Waterworks Commission, is deservedly famous throughout Ontario and well known in health centres in the U.S.A. and even in England. It is subject to constant test by the Waterworks engineer and by the Provincial Board of Health laboratories and supervised by the Division of Sanitary Engineering of the Provincial Board of Health. The local Board of Health had no part in this. With a perfectly safe public water supply, they still allow the danger of private wells to exist within the city. At the Board of Health meeting, I asked how many wells were still in use within the city on streets provided by city water mains. The answer was they did not know. They should know. In the interests of the health of the city, these wells should be closed. Since the installation of the filtration plant, the only active interest I have known the local M.O.H. to take, was to enquire of Dr. McNair, whom he met on the street, how the city water was now, as he wanted to tell the Board of Health at the meeting that morning. The paragraph in The Examiner that evening told the citizens what a fine water supply they had now. A stranger coming to the city, wishing to know what was being done to safeguard the drinking supply of the city, would have to go to the Water Commissioner and their engineer. He could not get reasonably thorough information from the Health Department.

School medical inspection, as everyone knows, is only done here under the auspices of the Board of Education. No credit is therefore allowed the Board of Health, whose M.O.H. does not even encourage it.

That part of yesterday's interview, in which he deals with the nursing problem, even hints that school nurse and medical service is inefficient and of little use. May I again state, that in the scoring, no marks were deducted even for active obstruction of effective public health work by the local Board of Health or its executive officer, the M.O.H.

Tuberculosis.

Were it not for the efforts of the Health Association, the situation, as regards to tuberculosis in Peterboro, would be deplorable. No enquiry has been made by the Local Board of Health, as to prevalence of the disease in the city. In a disease of this kind, it is utterly useless to sit in an office for cases to be reported, after the manner of a spider in a web, waiting the arrival of flies. It is necessary that a thorough effort be made to know how many cases of tuberculosis there are in the city; to know how many of these are active cases to which other members of the family are exposed and liable presently, to become additional cases of tuberculosis. If the cases are to get well, it is necessary that the Board of Health and its M.O.H. see that poverty, ignorance, or carelessness shall not be allowed to contribute to the infection of those close by, as in the family or work shop. In should be known which cases are bovine in origin, from drinking tuberculous milk, but it is useless to ask for a report on this, for the information has not been gathered. That the prevalence of bovine tuberculosis is a present danger, is evidenced by the recent condemnation of two herds nearby, following their being tuberlin tested. In the present condition of the dairy herds, pasteurized milk is the only safe milk. To say Peterboro has the most efficient milk test of any city in Ontario, is only bosh. To say that it is fairly well done, is the truth and to say that the credit for such being the case, undoubtedly belongs to Dr. McNair is equally true. In the time of the former M.O.H., milk testing was established. Following the arrival of the Provincial Board of Health Laboratories, Dr. McNair found that all testing of milk in the City of Peterboro, had ceased. After consultation with him, I visited the local Board of Health, strongly advising that the facilities of the Laboratory be used to check up the milk supply of the city. By resolution of the Board, this was begun, samples being collected by the sanitary inspector. After a few months, this was again allowed to lapse. Dr. McNair at quiet for some months to see whether this was an accidental or intentional oversight, on the part of the executive officers of the Board, and then again brought pressure to bear to have the test again instituted. Since then the test has been done regularly. Dr. McNair urges that all milk in Peterboro be pasteurized. The taking of this step has been opposed by the M.O.H. and Peterboro has not yet a safe milk supply.

Duties of the M.O.H.

These may be summed up in a few words: To do everything in his power to safeguard and preserve the health of the city, by whom he is employed. About the most important duty and privilege of the M.O.H. is to educate the public on how best this may be done. If this includes lectures on health matters, these should be given. It includes the fostering, developing, and encouragement of private or public bodies engaged in the promotion of health. It includes searching out all possible sources of contagion, which is much more than sitting in an office and causing a placard to be put up when a case of communicable disease is reported.

The positive benefits to be obtained by a proper health service, is the part of the campaign in future to be emphasized. The cases of diphtheria mentioned will be dealt with through other channels.

The more negative phrase of showing the urgent need for change and improvement, is I hope finished. It has been a most unpleasant task, but a duty that had to be done.

BIG BULL MOOSE WAS ON DISPLAY

Hunter's Prize Weighed 1,500 Pounds on Hoof—Antlers Spread 5 Feet.

SOME BIG BUCKS.

A mammoth bull moose displayed in the window of Jopling's lower store last night attracted a throng of interested spectators, who marvelled at its size. The men were busily engaged this morning in skinning the animal and Peterborough people will be given an opportunity to sample succulent bits of moose steak which some declare superior to beef.

William Harkness of Sundridge is credited wtih the kill, and due to the fact that he could not get help soon enough to hang the animal, a certain portion of the meat near one shoulder will have to be sacrificed. The remainder, some 900 pounds is in excellent condition.

The moose must have been a veritable king in his own domain for he weighed in excess of 1,500 pounds on the hoof and his antlers spread more than five feet from tip to tip. The antlers are heavy and cause many to wonder how the moose is able to flee at express train speed through heavy underbrush. The hoofs are black and shiny with a deep cleavage; they are so sharp that a blow from one of them must have caused considerable damage to any assailants.

In the window today are three big bucks, one of which weighs 230 pounds, while each of the others tips the beam at 225 pounds.

GOOD REHEARSALS FOR KIWANIS SHOW

Already There Are 162 Members in the Cast of "Miss Bob White."

If any person who is not already interested directly in the cast of "Miss Bob White," the annual Kiwanis Club show to be staged at the Opera House, November 27 and 28, for the benefit of underprivileged children, could rope in at the Durant show rooms in the old Oriental Hotel Building and spend a moment in watching the antics of the various members of that cast, they would spend that moment in real wonder and amazement at the progress already made. True there are nearly two hundred people already taking part and every one seems to be out to beat last spring's record, which is so well remembered by all those who saw "Minstrel Mimics."

Director Perkins of the Rogers Producing Co., who is staging the production again this Fall, praises the work done by the cast so far to the greatest degree and can easily assure the theatre-going public an even greater surprise than that of the last show.

"Miss Bob White" is a comic opera more of the musical comedy type and just chuck full of fun and merriment as well as beautiful music. The way in which everyone is taking hold of rehearsals proves that. There is even more in it to please all kinds of theatre-goers. It is a much bigger production than the last and, therefore has a greater chance to be a bigger success.

Many of the old timers are among those taking part this year as well as many new ones. Altogether there are one hundred and sixty-two, fifty more than the number originally decided upon.

Members of the Kiwanis Club and members of the cast are already out selling tickets and from all indications there is going to be a record-breaking seat sale. Now is the time to begin planning to see "Miss Bob White" and help unravel the mystery of love.

FISK NOT AFTER UTILITIES SEAT

Former Manager For Commission Will Not Oppose Robert Hicks.

DENIES RUMORS.

When he was acquainted with the fact that rumor was persistently naming him as a candidate to oppose the Utilities Commission seat held by Robert Hicks, Homer O. Fisk of MacDonnel street denied it by declaring that he had not considered the matter and at present had no intention of allowing his name to go before the people in that capacity.

"Several people," he declared, "have approached me on the subject but I have steadily refused them. I do not feel that I wish to tie myself down or restrict my movements in any way and an appointment of that nature would, in effect, mean just that. My experience in public service is not conducive to sanguine feelings regarding the appreciation generally meted out to civic servants."

Mr. Fisk was up till a few months ago manager of the Utilities Commission.

CHILDREN SELLING SEALS.

Complaints Reach Police From Annoyed Citizens—Visits Late at Night.

Complaints have reached the police that children selling Christmas seals are making nusiances of themselves by ringing door-bells and summoning people who have no desire to puchase. The practice is especially objected to late at night, and one man who was ill was last night disturbed three times.

The police suggest that parents of children who are selling the seals see that the children choose a reasonable hour and do not unnecessarily annoy citizens.

ACCUSED HAD FIVE ACCOUNTS

W. W. Dunlop's Trial is Resumed, With Bank Accountant on Stand.

MANY DEPOSITS.

TORONTO, Nov. 19 (Canadian Press)—Evidence given at the trial of W. W. Dunlop, former Inspector of Prisons and Charities for Ontario, charged with the theft of $40,000, the property of the Province, when it was resumed today before County Judge Dention indicated that Dunlop had had five separate accounts in the Bank of Montreal. Edward P. Pipon, accountant of the Bank, gave a list of deposits at the bank from 1914 to 1923, exceeding $11,000 and said to be the accused's own personal accounts. Fifteen or more deposit slips, cited by Pipon, were alleged to be in Dunlop's handwriting. Among the four additional accounts were the contingency account of the Prisons and Public Charities Department, Public Institutions current account, and a joint account of Dunlop and his wife.

FASCISTI EJECT RED DEPUTIES

Remarks of Maffi About Demonstration Causes Scene in the House.

SITTING SUSPENDED.

ROME, Nov. 19 (Canadian Press) — Communist members of the Chamber of Deputies were forcibly ejected from the Chamber by enraged Fascistis today after a scuffle brought on by a speech of the Communist Deputy, Maffi, in protest against yesterday's demonstration in the Chamber in favor of Premier Mussolini. Maffi declared that yesterday's manifestition, a few days after the Premier's escape from assassination, represented "neither the thought nor the sentiment of the working classes, or of the whole Italian people."

These words had hardly been uttered when Roberto Farinacci, secretary general of the Fascisti party, leaped from his seat and rushed across the floor of the Chamber, shouting in Maffi's face, "When one speaks ill of the duce this must be the answer." At the next instant he landed a blow in Maffi's face.

At this juncture the Fascisti deputies rushed in a body to the extreme left of the Chamber, grabbed the other Communist Deputies and shoved them to the door. There the Communists were forcibly ejected under a rain of blows from the Fascists.

Such a tumult was aroused by the incident that the sitting was suspended for ten minutes.

Of All Daily Papers That Are Now In Existence Morning Advertiser Has Most Curious Constitution

LONDON, Eng., Nov. 19 (Canadian Press).—If you walk down Fleet Street and observe the frontages on the north side, you will see tucked away among the ferro-concrete on the north a quaint-looking building, bearing an appearance not unlike that of the quiet sort of alehouse which was more common half a century ago than now. This is the office of the Morning Advertiser, the third oldest newspaper in London. The Advertiser has just been celebrating the 110th anniversary of its removal to Fleet Street. The paper first saw the light over 130 years ago. Of all the daily papers now existing The Morning Advertiser possesses surely the most curious constitution. It is owned by the Incorporated Society of Licensed Victuallers, the most powerful of all organizations connected with the liquor trade. Every member of the Society, and this means practically every licensee in the country is required to be a regular subscriber to The Advertiser. The whole of the profits of the paper are devoted to the society's charities; the orphan school at Slough is maintained in this way at a cost of £15,000 a year. Very naturally The Advertiser devotes itself largely to matters connected with "The Trade." Independent in general politics it mostly concerns itself with a reasonable defence against undue interference of those engaged in the sale of intoxicants. Until two years ago the paper was almost entirely set up by hand, but a number of improvements have since been effected.

CONTRACTOR DEAD.

Sir E. E. Pearson, of London, Was in His 52nd Year.

LONDON, Nov. 19. — (Canadian Press).—Sir Edward Ernest Pearson, eminent contractor, London, died to-day. He was in his 52nd year.

No person living yet today can either read or speak the language used by the early Massachusetts Indians, yet there is at least one book in existence in that strange tongue. It is the only known copy of Baxter's 'Call to the Unconverted" in this Indian language, and was translated by John Eliot, the famous 'Apostle to the Indians," and printed at Cambridge, Mass., in 1664.

Come to the Cookhouse Door

They made friends long ago, this pack of fleet-footed canines and the cook of the C.P.R. train which pulls into North Bay every morning. The animals have appointed themselves a reception committee of six and are the first to greet the diner in the early dawn. The chef has learned to expect the joyous barks, the wagging tails and foaming mouths, and usually has some scraps to feed them.

It all started when the leader of the pack happened along the track one day feeling particularly hungry. Looking through the window of the diner, the cook saw him nosing about for food and threw him some meat. When the diner pulled in again the next morning, the grateful hound was there with five others and they proceeded to serenade the cook. They have been doing it ever since.

PEPALL TRIAL NEARLY ENDED

Counsel For the Defence Addressed the Jury To-day.

NO TESTIMONY.

TORONTO, Nov. 19 (Canadian Press).—The concluding part of the trial of charges of theft and receiving of stolen money, laid against Andrew H. Pepall, was commenced today when A. G. Slaght, K.C., counsel for Pepall, addressed the jury. He stressed the importance of character evidence given by Sir James Woods, Hon. Thomas Crawford, and others, and declared: "There is no direct testimony whatever as to one act by Pepall that constitutes a crime."

RESORT FOUND IN MOUNTAINS

Is Believed To Have Been Prison of Kidnapped Girls.

MEN ARRESTED.

WEST ORANGE, N.J., Nov. 19 (United Press)—A resort buried in a lonely spot among the Orange mountains, believed to have been the prison of a number of kidnapped girls was found early today when police raided a bungalow five miles from here.

Two girls, who said they were victims of the dive keepers, led the raiding party.

In the house was an attractive girl about 25 years old unconscious from the use of drugs. With her was another girl said to have been kidnapped in Philadelphia but whose identity the officers concealed.

Three men were arrested and twelve complete dope outfits. Seven revolvers and a large supply of ammunition was seized.

WILD HORSES ROAM OVER VAST PLATEAU

Ancestors Were Left Behind When B. C. Mine Camps Were Deserted.

SEVENTY-MILE HOUSE, Cariboo, B.C., Nov. 17. — In the vast sagebrush plateau bounded by the Thomson River valley, the Clena Clena, the Coast Range, Windy Mountain and Horsefly River, ten thousand wild horses are roaming to-day. The area is the greatest wild horse range on the continent—and that means in the world.

Most of these horses originated with the mining camps of the old days. Their ancestors were brought in by prospectors from the south, and when the mining camps were deserted the horses were left behind. Their numbers have multiplied, although in quality they have in the majority of cases deteriorated. Even at that, however, one occasionally finds in these bands of roving bayuses some remarkably fine animals.

Railway Stocks Lead In Brisk Recovery To-day

NEW YORK, Nov. 19 (Canadian Press)—Stock prices made a brisk recovery from recent weakness under leadership of railroad shares in today's market. While uneasiness over money rates was reflected in the reduced volume of trading, the failure of the Bank of England to raise its rate today was generally construed as an indication that the expected increase in New York Federal Reserve rate would not come this week. Motors were subjected to another vigorous selling attack, early gains of 1 to 3 points in that group being converted into losses of similar magnitude. This selling however, failed to check the advance in other sections of the list. Rails were under steady accumulation, over thirty issues being lifted 1 to 4 points above last night's closing quotations before the end of the third hour. International nickle also was heavily bought in speculative expectation of an increased dividend, the stock rising four points to a new record high at 48.

Mine Stocks Moved Down Although Leader Was Strong

TORONTO, Nov. 19 (Canadian Press).—Consolidated West Dome was again the leader on the Standard Mining Exchange this morning, when the trading reached a heavy volume. West Dome was sold up a point and a half at 17 1-2. There were a few good advances, but the majority of changes were downward. Dome gained 55 at 17.10, and Vickers 1 1-2 at 8 1-2. Kirkland Lake in heavy dealings drooped to 80, four a. 1 three quarter points lower. Premier lost three and Castle Tretheway five.

Trading Was Contracted But Most Stocks Gained

TORONTO, Nov. 19 (Canadian Press).—Trading remained on a contracted scale on the Toronto Stock Exchange this morning, but a slightly firmer tone was shown. Smelters, the leader, advanced a point to 151 1-2 and MacKay Common, also prominent, sold up a point and a quarter to 135 3-4. Twin City advanced seven-eights and Barcelona and Steamships Preferred strengthened fractionally.

The strength of mines was an outstanding feature. Dome sold up 99 cents to 17.49, and McIntyre 25 cents at 21.00. Among the very few declining stocks was Mackay Preferred a half point lower at 71, and Canada Bread, also a half point lower at 106 1-2. Dominion Bank was a point lower at 215.

Smaller Liverpool Demand Sent Wheat Prices Down

CHICAGO, Nov. 19 (Canadian Press).—Reports of better weather conditions both in Argentina and Australia led to a new downturn in the price of wheat today during the first part of the Board of Trade session. Word of a falling off in demand at Liverpool together with lower quotations there, tended likewise to weaken values in Chicago and so too, did the forecast of increased shipments this week from Argentina. On a decline in price, however, stubborn resistance to the set-backs developed and there was a good deal of buying on the part of traders who yesterday were sellers. Chicago opening prices 1-2 to 1 5-8c lower, new style. December $1.54 1-2 to $1.55, and May $1.51 1-2 to $1.51 5-8, were followed by rallies which at times went a fraction above yesterday's finish.

Corn went down with wheat, and as result of good weather in the corn belt. After opening at 1-8 to 1-2c off, December 74 3-4 to 75c the market recovered slightly and then underwent a material decline, December touching 74 1-4.

Oats held about steady, starting unchanged to 1-4c lower, December 38 7-8 to 39c and later hardening somewhat. Provisions were without important change.

Thornton Says C. N. Earnings Will Be Twenty-five Millions

LONDON, November 19. — Canadian Press. — Sir Henry Thornton, president of the Canadian National Railways, at a gathering here to-day, predicted that the railways' net earnings this year, would approximate $25,000,000. This favorable prospect, Sir Henry said, was partly due to the excellent crop, but to a much greater extent was due to economies and increased efficiency in the railway system.

POPULAR BARBER MOVED.

Ed. Wright, who has removed from his old quarters at 329 George street, where his barber shop and tobacco store was formerly situated, is now established in his new business home at 162 Charlotte street, in the stand until lately occupied by A. C. Hawley's brokerage office. Here he has a double interior, with a wall between the men's barber shop and the ladies' hairdressing section. The former has three chairs for the male patrons, with a small and compact stock of tobaccos on hand, and the latter has two chairs and a shampooing basin. There are long wall mirrors and curtains to screen off the front portion where wicker chairs and reading matter are provided for waiting customers. All sorts of electric appliances are on hand, with the latest ideas in curlers and violet rays. The ladies' section is done in cream color, with a pure white wainscoting and a tiled floor covering and the whole interior is attractive and spotless in the extreme. With the deft, efficient service and courteous attention accorded customers of both sexes by Mr. Wright and his aides, this promises to be a popular establishment. Appointments for ladies may be made over the telephone. id-119-3127

It is generally assumed here that while the pacts in Germany will not have unanimous support, they will nevertheless be accorded a sufficient Reichstag vote to ensure German signature on December 1st.

QUEEN'S CRIPPLES REPORT FOR PRACTICE EXCEPT BATSTONE

Presbyterians' Captain Laid Up With Cold—Expected to Play Saturday.

MEET BALMY BEACH.

KINGSTON, Nov. 19—With almost a full turnout of players, Queen's seniors got in a fast workout yesterday afternoon, in preparation for their game against Balmy Beach in Toronto on Saturday. The most encouraging feature of the practice was the work of Bert Airth, husky middle wing, who is grooming himself for his first game since October 10th.

Airth's injured leg has responded to treatment, and yesterday he ran three miles withoute stopping, and the leg gave him absolutely no trouble. He will likely start at middle wing, along with "Red" McKelvey on Saturday. The latter had his knee injured in Saturday's game, but will be on hand for Saturday.

Norrie, Brown, Muirhead and Wright, who were on the injured list after Saturday's game, turned out to practice, and seemed little the worse for their experiences against M.A.A.A. "Pep" Leadley is back in the pink of condition, and only Capt. "Red" Batstone is still "horse de combat." Batstone's heavy cold, which he had all last week is hanging on yet, and he is still unable to be out at practice. It is expected, however, that he will be on hand for Saturday.

Coach Hughes gave the players a stiff workout. They were worked at several new trick plays, and the precision with which they were carried out was at times astounding. From all appearances the tri-color will be right on edge on Saturday, and Bamly Beach will have a mighty hard job defeating them.

O.R.F.U. Champs Young

TORONTO, Nov. 19—The Balmy Beach rugby team, which for the second year in a row will represent Toronto in the Dominion final, is not as well known to the general run of rugby fans as are the other major clubs of this city. This is partly due to the fact that they have played their home games at Scarboro Beach, which is somewhat out of the way for many fans, and partly due to the fact that the Beach team is a young one and many of the players are just "arriving" in the football hall of fame.

The great football served up in all the O.R.F.U. fixtures this season, however, has at least attracted the attention of the grid followers back to the old union and brought the champions of that league much favorable, if rather belated, notice. The rugby bugs are at last beginning to sense that these Beaches, who gave the Queen's such a battle last year, and who have won their own well balanced section handily for the second time, must have something and they are asking each other for the dope on champions of the DeGruchy-McKee circuit.

The Beach squad at present consists of 24 players who have qualified to take part in the senior finals. Roughly, these men could be divided into eight linemen, three quarterbacks, two snapbacks, four halves, five outsides, one flying wing and one utility man.

Ten of the Beaches are having their first year in senior company. Six others broke into senior with Beaches last year, which leaves eight players who have had experience in top company with any other team. The average age of the squad is 22 years. The average weight is 175 pounds.

INSIDE GOLF.

Maker of 61 Golf Champions. "Golf's most successful teacher," says "Chick" Evans

By CHESTER HORTON

Few subjects related to the golf swing promote more conversation among average golfers than the manner of geting the weight shifted. I find among those who read my articles that this subject is paramount and that they can never get too much enlightenment about it. If you grasp a golf club like a baseball bat and swing it around back of you your weight you will observe, will automatically go over to the right leg. It can go over there any way. It can get there in the baseball swing because the object to be hit is moving. The golf ball is stationary, which is why attention must be given the matter of weight shifting with the golf club. The clubhead has a narrow margin to work on and usually it is incorrect passing of the weight back and forth that throws the clubhead out of its groove. How this is done I will detail in subsequent articles.

CAREY LEADING BASE STEALER

Captain of Pirates Credited With 42 in Unofficial Averages.

COBB'S PERFORMANCE.

Max Carey is the leading base stealer in the National League. He is credited, in the unofficial averages, with stealing 42.

Johnny Mostil is the leading base stealer in the American League. He stole 40 this year.

Ten years ago the leading base stealers of the majors would have been stars. Now nothing is made of it.

Carey, outside of doing good work in the World Series, got nothing extra in popular ranking because he was the best base stealer in the National. Carey ranked tenth in batting.

Mostil is regarded as just a good outfielder. He was well down in the batting list, his average being "only" .299.

When Ty Cobb made base-running a specialty the thing had some significance. Much of Cobb's great gate value was his base-running ability.

You never heard a man say he was going to pay money to get into the ball park for the purpose of seeing Carey run bases. You never heard of anyone that bought an admission ticket for the sole privilege of seeing Johnny Mostil run bases.

Cobb has in one year stolen more bases than six teams in the American League stole this year.

Cobb in one season has surpassed the total of stolen bases of six teams in the National League in 1925.

Base stealwing has been tabooed since the arrival of the lively ball. It is a needless chance, managers argue. Players are instructed to wait for the hit. A player has a better chance of reaching the next base on a safe clout than he has of getting there by stealing.

Aurelio Herrera stood up in a San Francisco police court room recently and heard himself charged with vagrancy. A policeman picked him up at night. He had no money and no place to sleep.

About 20 years ago Aurelio Herrera was one of the sat stars of pugilism, a ranking lightweight in the class of Battling Nelson, Ad Wolgast, Joe Gams, Joe Rivers and others. In those days the lightweights carried the bulk of pugilistic class. Herrera fought the best, and while never winning the title, was always within grasp of it. A boxer as good today as Herrera was 20 years ago could lick any two of the present lightwights in one evening.

Now he has followed in the path of his illustrious contemporaries of the golden days of boxing in California. Like Nelson and Wolgast he went down and out. Gans died some years ago after he, too, had dropperd his ring earnings and winnings.

The top price paid for some of the greatest base ball stars was $750 and less. Among them may be mentioned Ty Cobb, Walter Johnson, Grover Cleveland Alexander, Tris Speaker, Rogrs Hornsby, Crawford and Stanley Coveleskie. Not one of them cost more than $750. There were plenty of others that came as cheaply and were nearly as good, but the list will suffice to show what magnificent material has been purchased for next to nothing.

Last season Atlanta, of the Southern Association, paid $7,500 in cash for "Stuffy" McCrone, considered the best first baseman in the Sally League.

Incidentally Atlanta paid more money for this unheard of player than Mr. Cornelius McGillicaddy paid for Jack Barry, "Stuffy" McInnis, Eddie Collins and Frank Baker put together, and while these four may not have been quite the greatest infield quartet of all time, they were still a number of yards ahead of anything that the majors show today.

OFFERS TO GRANGE EMBARRASS STAR

Denies His Name Has Been Used With His Permission.

NEW YORK, Nov. 19.—Red Grange and his million-dollar prospects have presented a new problem to the purists and the guardian angels of clean football that will be considered at the winter meetings of the several collegiate athletic governing bodies.

Among others who insist that something should be done to stop the exploitation of football reputations is Louis A. Stoddard, chairman of the Yale football committee and president of the United States Polo Association, but he admits that he doesn't know what should be done.

Speaking to a gathering of prominent athletic officials, Stoddard said that all the stuff being printed about Red Grange made him "sick" and he blamed the newspapers for manufacturing heroes and placing the future of a college star in peril.

If the newspapers are to blame for the fame of Red Grange, which has attracted enough offers to make him a rich young man almost over night, there are only two things that can be done about it.

The games must be played in private so the prying eyes of the experts can't see a star player or the college officials must induce a young man not to play too well.

Stoddard has not made known any intention to present the problem to the football rules committee or the intercollegiate associations, but from several sources it was learned today that the situation brought about by the tremendous demand for the Illinois star is certain to be discussed.

The rules committee or the association, it was pointed out, cannot legislate the future of a star athlete or dictate the way in which he can make his living when he leaves the shelter of the class room, but the rules committee might pass a resolution indicating that it is to be desired that star athletes accept nothing higher than union pay when they go to work.

KEEP POTATOES IN COOL CELLAR

Good Ventilation is Needed for Proper Storage of Vegetables.

Owing to the high price of potatoes, there will probably be more potatoes stored this season than for many years in the past. Therefore a few hints on storing potatoes would not be out of the way at the present time.

Thousands of bushels of potatoes are lost annually by careless storing, by being put wet in comparatively warm and poorly-ventilated cellars, and by being piled in great heaps.

In the first place, potatoes should be stored as far as possible in perfect darkness in a cool, well-ventilated cellar. Instead of heaping the potatoes against the wall, slats should be nailed, a little apart, about six inches or more from the wall. A temporary floor should also be laid about a similar distance above the permanent floor, with cracks between the boards. This plan will permit air to circulate under and through the pile. If large quantities have to be stored and the piles have to be made very large, square ventilators formed of slats and running from the top to the bottom of the heaps can be placed here and there, which, with the ventilation derived from the spaces below and at the sides, will keep the potatoes in far better condition than if they are packed solidly. Another plan for storing the tubers is to put them in large crates made from slats, with small interstices between.

The temperature is an important point. While every precaution should be taken against frost, the heat should not exceed from 33 to 35 deg. Fahr. A further matter of importance is to provide some means of letting in cool air when spring is at hand to prevent sprouting. The best method is to let the cool air in at night and keep the cellar closed during the day.—Canadian Grocer.

After the Benediction the social period followed when two contests were put on by Mrs. Wm. Tulloch which were enjoyed.

EXODUS OF MONEY

stabilization of the franc. Another essential preliminary, he said, was the settlement of the war debts, and to this end he declared the sinking fund proposed would provide one billion francs a year for meeting France's short term exterior debt. He held out to the Chamber the prospect of stabilization of the franc within a few months if these first requisites were accomplished.

A stern example was set by the French court at Lille Monday when it confiscated 45,000 francs which a business man attempted to send to Belgium a few days ago and added an additional fine of 300 francs for breaking the law against the exportation of capital. The convicted man wished to get the money out of the country because he feared the existing and pending financial laws.

FLIGHT OF FRENCH CAPITAL.

NEW YORK, Nov. 19. — Huge transfers of money and securities now being made from France to Switzerland in fear of a capital levy in France caused many in Wall Street to seek a parallel between the present operations and those that took place in Germany at the time of the collapse in value of the old German mark.

Several differences in the two situations were pointed out, however. The flight of German capital was not a progressive movement which accompanied a drop in the value of the national currency, but took place mostly right after the war before the mark faded away to nothing. German balances of various sorts were left to accumulate in foreign countries and were increased wherever possible by German finacial and commercial concerns in order to be assured of stability of their holdings.

During most of the big decline in the mark capital in Germany was mostly being turned into physical assets. The value of the mark was falling so fast that industrialists literally had to spend their money as soon as they got it, for they knew that within a day or two it would be worth only a fraction. This led to an orgy of industrial spending which put up many new factories, increased railway and other facilities in Germany and resulted in the present large industrial capacity in that country.

PETES TO PLAY GRIMBSY CHAMPS

Local Seniors Meet the Peach Kings in Hamilton on Tuesday.

The Peterboro Senior O.H.A. team will play their first game of the season next Tuesday night when they clash with the fast Grimsby crew in an exhibition fixture at Hamilton.

The Peach Kings surprised the hockey world last year when they won the intermediate championship and then eliminated the famous cup holders, the Soo Grayhounds, from the Allan Cup race. They have all of last year's team save Horne available this season and will undoubtedly provide the Petes with plenty of opposition in Hamilton next Tuesday night as they will have the edge on the S.P.A. champs in condition and the Petes will be without the services of Bert McLeod who will be unable to make the trip.

The local crew have had one workout at the Toronto Arena and will leave for Toronto again tonight for a practice tomorrow morning. They will likely work out in the arena again on Monday night in final preparation for the battle with Grimsby and should be in fairly good shape for their first test of the season.

The S.P.A. series commence on Wednesday, December 2, with the Petes called upon to defend their title against the Toronto Canoe Club seniors. Other teams in the series are Niagara Falls, Kitchener, Preston, Parkdale, Osgoode Hall and the Port Arthur team, Allan Cup holders. The schedule is as follows:

Wednesday, Dec. 2 — Peterboro' (holders) v. Toronto Canoe Club.
Friday, Dec. 4—Parkdale v. Niagara Falls.
Monday, Dec. 7—Preston v. Osgoode Hall.
Wednesday, Dec. 9—Winner Dec. 2 v. Kitchener.
Friday, Dec. 11—Winner Dec. 4 v. winner Dec. 7.
Monday, Dec. 14—Winner Dec. 9 v. winner Dec. 11.
Final
Thursday, Dec. 17—Winner Dec. 14 v. Port Arthur (Allan Cup holders).

HUGE CITY FOR LAKE ST. JOHN

Promoters of Power Scheme Expect Population of 100,000 in District

MANY INDUSTRIES.

QUEBEC, November 19. Canadian Press. — A city of over one hundred thousand inhabitants in the Lake St. John District, where the Aluminum Corporation started work a few weeks ago, and the erection of a number of houses destined at first to lodge six thousand families, is the ambitious plan of the promoters of the power development now in progress in that territory, judging by information given to the government by some of the officials of the company.

The aluminum corporation itself will require seven to eight thousand employees as soon as the plants are in operation. Other industries are to be developed also, the nature of which is withheld.

CECIL MANNERS, "Queen of Syncopation," one of the clever stars in the musical sensation, "My China Doll," coming to the Grand Opera House, Saturday, matinee and night, November 21st.

THEATRES

AT THE CAPITOL

NORMA SHEARER AS CHILD AND WOMAN.

The charming Norma Shearer, who is co-starred with Lon Chaney in "The Tower of Lies," directed for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, and coming to the Capital Theatre on Monday, is again seen in a role which calls for a wide range of acting on account of the great number of years through which the story runs.

In the early part of the picture she appears as a child, then a young woman and finally as a woman of thirty who has become hardened from contact with the world. The success of Miss Shearer in the dual role of "Lady of the Night," caused her to be cast in the role of the heroine of Selma Lagerlof's great Swedish novel. Chaney and Miss Shearer are supported by a remarkable cast of well-known character players.

JAMES CRUZE'S SUCCESSOR TO 'THE COVERED WAGON' AT CAPITOL TODAY. WITH BETTY COMPSON, RICARDO CORTEZ, ERNEST TORRENCE AND WALLACE BEERY.

Acclaimed as a monumental screen achievement and hailed as the greatest historical western since "The Covered Wagon," "The Pony Express," James Cruze's titanic frontier production, begins its local engagement at the Capitol Theatre today.

In this picturization of the story by Henry James Forman and Walter Woods, Cruze has opened another chapter in the history of America. It is a chapter filled with the glorious romance, the authentic incidents, the thrilling episodes, and above all the wonderful humor of the uncivilized West that has gone, molded together into a great pictorial epic of our national life, as only Cruze can do it.

Under the magic hand of this directorial genius, the days of 1860 spring to life. Once again the phantom riders of the Pony Express thunder out of St. Joseph, Missouri, and Sacramento, California, carrying the fast mail. Once again sinister political forces plot to gain control of California. Once again the savage Sioux Indians launch a terrific attack on Julesburg, Colorado, and burn part of the town before they are driven out by the troops. Once again news of Abraham Lincoln's election to the Presidency arouses the country to a frenzy of excitement. And once again a thousand and one other stirring and dramatic events flash forth in all their vivid realism.

Intertwined with the more spectacular scene is a wistful love tale, which serves to balance the slashing action of the plot with quieter moments of pathos, tenderness and genuine heart appeal.

It takes experienced players to do justice to such tremendous story, and the presence in the cast of such filmf avorites as Betty Compson, Ricardo Cortez, Ernest Torrence and Wallace Berry proves conclusively that Cruze was alive to his responsibility in this respect.

AT THE REGENT

"MAN ON THE BOX" PUTS SYD CHAPLIN AGAIN AT THE TOP

HOCKEY WEEK AT REGENT

Warner Brothers outbid all other picture producers for the services of Syd Chaplin, because they believed they had the very story he needed to duplicate his phenomenal success in "Charley's Aunt."

"The Man on the Box," the celebrated novel and play by Harold MacGrath was the vehicle selected for Chaplin, and it will begin a four-day run at the Regent Theatre with Chaplin heading a cast that includes David Butler, Alice and Kathleen Calhoun, Theodore Lorch, Helene Costello, E. J. Ratcliffe, Charles F. Reisner, Charles Gerrard and Henry Barrowes.

"THE TIMBER WOLF" PICTURE OF SPEED AND THRILLING ACTION

Speed and action—these two ingredients are foremost in "The Timber Wolf," a thrilling William Fox story of the lumber camps, starring the peerless Buck Jones, who appears tonight at the Regent Theatre.

Swift action and Buck Jones are synonomous—the big Fox western star thrives on rapid movement. In this latest production both the agile Buck and Director W. S. Van Dyke have outdone themselves in conceiving and executing many new, daring thrills.

In "The Timber Wolf," Buck proves the mettle of his equine pal, Silver Buck, doughty cow-pony and prize of the Jones stables. Astride his favorite mount, Buck hurtles through space; spans yawning chasms; makes maddening dashes and perilous climbs. These tingling feats of horesmanship demonstrate the hazards risked by Buck and Silver Buck before the camera.

'MY CHINA DOLL'—FASHIONABLE MUSICAL COMEDY.

A fashionable musical comedy, that makes use of classical as well as jazz music, short skirts as well as long ones, and that combines a real story throughout, is booked for the Grand Opera House, Saturday, November 21st.

"My China Doll" is the title of the attraction. LeComte and Flesher, who has given the stage such successes as "A Modern Eve" and "Listen To Me", are the producers of the show. In "My China Doll" they have put forth their greatest effort, and profiting by their years of experience have underwritten a play with music, said by critics everywhere to be "the perfect musical comedy."

Such novelties as a scene called "The Land of Flowers", where a cyclone of roses is featured, or a trip to "Story Book Land", where Cinderella comes to live amid all childhood's glories, are but samples of what the show offers.

In all, there are eight scenes and two acts. Miss Cecil Manners, well known with metropolitan productions, is playing the title role. In the scene entitled "The Land of Music", she appears as Miss Ragtime, surrounded by a ballet of drum girls, who demonstrate what jazz really is. Other well known performers who help to make up the cast of 40 are: Bessie Delmore, Leona Stater, Lottie Proctor, George Wakefield, William P. Murphe, Amos Harper, L. G. Milton and Tom Crowley.

AT THE ROYAL.

OVEREATING HARMFUL BONOMO WARNS FOLK

Noted Athlete-Screen Star Eats Very Little.

Joe Bonomo, giant of the screen world's champion strong man, and star of "The Great Circus Mystery," thrilling circus Adventure Picture and now playing at the Royal, can life almost a ton, bend iron bars, and carry a horse by a sling held in his teeth. One would imagine his appetite to be enormous as the giant of "Jack the Giant Killer" fame, but—he eats less than the average office worker.

Bonomo has the appetite of a bird—or rather a self-control that makes him imitate this appetite. "Always leave the table hungry and you'll be fit physically," is his advice on eating.

Bonomo's breakfast is a glass of orange juice and a small dish of cereal. Luncheon is a glass of orange juice, and sometimes a bit of dessert. Dinner, if he's very ungry — consists of two small chops, potatoes, and a very small portion of dessert.

"Most of us," he holds, "overstock our bodies with fuel, just as a poor fireman could overstock a steam boiler and clog the fires. In the boiler it means excessive smoke; in the human body a waste that poisons the whole system."

Bonomo uses no coffee, but does not decry its use in moderation. The same with tobacco. "More harm," he contends, "is done by overating than by anything else."

AMATEUR NIGHT TO-NIGHT.

Many novelties are promised tonight at the Royal, besides the big attraction, "Spook Ranch," with Hoot Gibson. Local musicians and singers. The newest illustrated songs, a new version of Cohan on the telephone, and some spooky nonsense by Sammy Harris.

HOOT USES ALL STEAM IN SPOOKER.

No Let-Down for Western Hero in Capital Picture.

With fear of spooks harassing him in his effort to solve the mystery of a haunted ranch on the edge of the Mojave desert, Hoot Gibson as Bill Banks, a Texas cowboy, solves the puzzle of the ranch and wins a girl in his latest feature picture, "Spook Ranch," which is now being shown at the Royal Theatre.

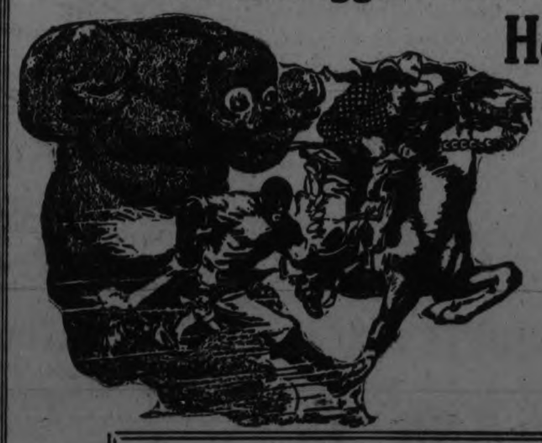
In a real Western picture of the type which has endeared Gibson to millions of admirers, Hoot has added to the funniest comedy situations which he has ever employed in his Western comedy-dramas which he is now releasing under contract with Universal pictures.

Given a haunted ranch, a darky man servant and orders from his chief, the sheriff, commanding that he solve the problem for the good of the community. Hoot, playing the part of a deputy sheriff, bursts audaciously into the haunted ranch despite warnings, mysterious shots, closing windows and footsteps of unseen persons. The effect of these ghostly machinations of a band of outlaws who are using the apparently deserted ranch house as a base for their operations, gives rise to many comedy situations, especially in their effort on Hoot's colored valet.

When he stumbles into a room in which are six bandits and the girl, Elvira Navarro, played by Helen Ferguson, Hoot finds himself in the midst of a plot which he finds he must unravel single handed.

And when Hoot starts to "unravel" this bunch of villains, he needs all the strength and skill that won him the Pendleton championship in roping and riding three years in a row.

You'll Wiggle With Thrills!



Hoot Gibson
in
"SPOOK RANCH"

Hoot's first Jewel.

He celebrated it by surpassing himself in riding, humor and speed.

He simply radiates entertainment.

FACTS ABOUT OPTOMETRY

Many a Child With Defective Vision

Gets attention in every other way than a consideration of the eyes. It is taken for granted by the parents that the child's eyes are perfect, unless he complains of inability to see. It is beginning to be appreciated how great a mistake this is. It is now known that serious errors of vision are present in childhood without any indication of it. Parents, the above deserves your best thought.

IMPROVEMENTS IN THE LIGHTING OF CITY STREETS ARE PLANNED NEW FIXTURES TO BE INSTALLED

New Standards Will Be Put Up on Hunter Street Bridge.

EAST WARD SYSTEM.

Entire New System of Street Lights To Be Installed East of River.

The lighting of the Hunter street bridge, which has never been satisfactory, is to be remedied by the installation of new fixtures and conduits.

Last night Messrs. Hicks, Dobbin and Henderson, of the Utilities Commission, submitted a report to the Fire, Water and Light Committee, advising the erection of six iron standards between the cement standards now installed, the new standards each to carry one 300 watt lamp, and the substitution of 100 watt lamps in the side fixtures on the present standards which are now fully equipped with 300 watt lamps. New conduits are needed under the bridge, and the committee will recommend to the council that the changes be made, and that new conduits be laid, the work to be done by the commission at the expense of the city.

The question of a light at the canal bridge on Maria street will be reported on by Mr. Dobbin. A report was brought in showing a smaller cost to bring the wires up Armour road from Downer's Corners to the residence of Thomas Hendry than to bring them across the canal, owing to the heavy cost of the line over navigable water. This scheme did not concern the council as the only request the aldermen had made had been on a light at the bridge, which would not be served by the line from Downer's Corners.

East Ward Lighting.

The Utilities Commission submitted a report on changes of lighting in the East Ward. At present there are 249 sixty watt lamps, which burn all day, and 5 magnetite arc lamps.

The plan submitted would provide 249 one hundred watt lamps which would be arranged to be turned off

FARMERS RUSH GRAIN.

Market Average of 5,000,000 Bushels a Day.

WINNIPEP, Man., Nov. 20.—(Canadian Press.) — Farmers of Western Canada continue their assault on existing grain marketing records. During the past few days they have marketed an average of approximately 5,000,000 bushels daily. Stocks in terminal and inland elevators are increasing but no extension of the embargo effective at Pacific ports, was announced Thursday. Grain in store at Fort William and Port Arthur is estimated at 33,553,000 bushels and at Vancouver 4,827,544 bushels.

LAST FAREWELL OVER SUB GRAVE

British Navy Pays Final Tribute to Crew of Submarine.

WREATHS ON WAVES.

LONDON, Nov. 20—Britain yesterday said funeral farewells to the 69 dead of the lost submarine monitor M-1, and bade them sleep the mariners' sleep in the sea grave yard beyond old Plymouth.

Their funeral cortege was a line of grey craft, steaming out at dawn to the channel cemetery, where slumber other seafaring men, likewise victims of the submarine, but of the submarine on war-time mission.

For the 69 peace-time sacrifices of the undersea weapon a chaplain spoke words in praise of their devotion to duty and in sorrow for their loss. Sailor men, many of them friends of the dead, stood at salute as volleying guns boomed out the au revoir of the seas.

And then they cast to the waves, as a marker for the tomb of the 69, great wreaths sent from every corner of the British isles.

Twelve ships put out of Portsmouth, Plymouth and Devonport while night still wrapped the channel.

Ship Is Pulpit

They converged to a spot 30 miles out of Plymouth, where the M-1 was last seen to plunge last week. In the cortege were eight submarine craft which had served as sister ships of the lost monitor.

The mother ship, Maidstone, served as pulpit for the funeral services, said by Rev. F. S. Burkett, chaplain of the submarine-depot ship Dolphin, while his audience was the line of twelve strung out in a circle around the death scene. Ship lights twinkled out of the rendezvous in the dawn, while streamers of black smoke from the larger craft streaked across the sky like pennons of crepe.

Beautiful Woman; Royal Queen; Benign Mother Her Death Brings Loss To All British Empire And Land Of Sea Kings Mourns Its Princess

Consort of King Edward Seventh Entered Britain in Triumph and Won Her Way By Gracious Acts Into the Hearts of the People—Danes Welcomed Conquest of Love That Took Their Favorite Princess to England—British Welcomed Sea King's Daughter With Open Arms and To-day Suffer in the Sorrow That Follows the Loss of a Beloved Friend.

HAD MUCH TO DO WITH MOLDING HIGHER DESTINIES OF THE EMPIRE.

Scarcely an Institution, Society, Hospital, or Appeal for the Alleviation of Misery That Was Not Touched With the Kindly Hand of Alexandra as Queen and as Queen Mother—Her Whole Life Breathed of Self Sacrifice and Her Memory Will Be Written Large on the Hearts of Britishers For All Time.

Alexandra, Queen Mother, is dead. The stately lady who for a short ten years reigned as Queen Consort has today closed a reign of sixty-two years in the hearts of the People of Britain. She entered England in 1863 as the bride of Edward, Prince of Wales, later King Edward VII. Last year she appeared for the last time before her subjects, and late this afternoon she passed away.

The Empire mourns her loss. Here in Peterborough the tidings brought feelings of sorrow shown by lowered flags, the tolling of the people's chimes, and a general air of depression. At Kiwanis Club luncheon the usual singing of the National Anthem was replaced by a few minutes of silent reflection as the members faced the Union Jack.

SANDRINGHAM, Nov. 20 (Canadian Press). — Queen Alexandra passed to rest amid peaceful rural surroundings which she loved so well. Since Thursday morning, when the doctors' announcement made it patent that the aged Queen was in a critical condition, the villagers of the tiny hamlets of Sandringham, Wolferton and Dersingham have waited, many at the portals of the Royal residence, hoping against hope that their beloved mistress would survive.

The King and Queen; Prince Henry; Princess Victoria, and Queen Maud of Norway (Alexandra's third daughter) were already at Sandringham on one of their customary visits when the aged Queen suffered the first heart attack.

This morning, the Princess Royal, Louise, eldest of Alexandra's daughters arrived at Sandringham to join the other royalties. Thus all the surviving children and some grand-children were present when the end came.

The bulletin, signed by the attending physicians, Dr. F. J. Williams and Sir Thomas Horder, said: "Her Majesty Queen Alexandra, passed away at 5.25 o'clock. The King, Queen and members of the Royal Family were present.

The Prince of Wales and the Duke of York were due to arrive at Wolferton, near Sandringham by train at 5.29, but the train was ten minutes late. The King's sons were escorted to the Royal waiting room of the station where the station master broke the news of their grandmother's death.

HER PREFERENCES.

Soon after her marriage, Queen Alexandra wrote in a scrap-book at Belvoir Castle the following list of her preferences:—

Her favorite King and Queen: Queen Dagmar and Richard Coeur de Lion.
Her favorite hero: Wellington.
Her favorite poet: Byron.
Her favorite artist: Sir Joshua Reynols.
Her favorite author, Charles Dickens
Her favorite virtue: Charity.
Her favorite color: Blue.
Her favorite dish: A French tart.
Her favorite flower: The Rose.
Her favorite name: Mary.
Her favorite occupation: Reading aloud.
Her favorite amusement: "Driving my ponies."
Her favorite motto: "Dieu et mon Droit."
Her favorite locality: Home.

Most Exquisite Figure

The gracious lady whom we have all known as Queen Alexandra—the consort of His late Majesty King Edward VII.,—has been called "the most exquisite figure that has ever graced the story of the British Royal House." Quietly and without parade or show this "Sea King's daughter from over the Sea" fulfilled the high tests of her exalted station, and was none the less a tender-hearted woman because she was also a Queen.

What Queen Alexandra has actually done for the British people can scarcely be computed; a thousand deeds must needs sink into oblivion, but she has consistently befriended women and children, the unemployed, soldiers and sailors, hospitals and nurses, and home industries. Neither must it be forgotten that Her Majesty has ever set an example of sweet and lofty womanhood, coupled with absolute sincerity in word and deed, and that she has set a lofty standard by her perfect domesticity and true motherhood.

It is somewhat difficult to believe that two generations have elapsed since Alexandra made her triumphant and never-to-be-forgotten entrance into the heart of the British Empire and the affections of its people. During all this time the royal lady had worked assiduously for the welfare of the people, identified herself with their interests and sympathized with them in their afflictions. This long period of Her Majesty's life has been full of memorable and historical events, and full of the joys and sorrows common to all humanity. Always, however, the Empire's love and reverence has been with her, and its love and loyalty was as surely hers in her last year's as it was when she shared the throne of Great Britain.

When Alexandra went from Denmark to England in 1863 as a girl of nineteen and the bride of the heir-apparent to the British throne, she quickly won the hearts of the British people by her beauty, grace and charm. During the rest of her long life she showed so strong a sympathy for the people of her adopted country that the weight of her years and sorrows only more firmly endeared her to the British public and to the people of Greater Britain beyond the seas. The interest taken in her was a personal one, increased with every new story of her kindness.

THE EMPIRE MOURNS

Queen Alexandra, the beloved Queen Mother, who for over sixty years has been enthroned in the hearts of the people of the British Isles and of the British Dominions throughout the world is no more, and the Empire mourns.

Of her it is related that when as a young girl she was discussing the future with some friends of her own age and each was telling the things she would like best to be, Princess Alexandra said: "I should like above all things to be loved."

Surely that wish has been abundantly fulfilled.

A devoted wife and loving mother, a gracious and a lovely Queen, a kindly lady who never tired of helping some good cause, Queen Alexander had won a place in the affections of her people throughout the Empire that it has been given to few sovereigns to hold.

Every inch a Queen was Alexandra and the sorrow of the British Isles at her passing is shared by Britishers in every part of the far-flung Empire.

DR. SUTTON FLAYS LOCAL BOARD AND URGES NEED OF NEW IDEALS TO CONSERVE CITY'S WELL BEING

Says City M. O. H. Has Refused to Co-operate in Progressive Schemes.

LAUDS OSHAWA.

Makes Stirring Appeal For Help To Promote Healthy Conditions.

Dr. N. H. Sutton, District Medical Officer of Health, was the speaker of the day at Kiwanis luncheon, speaking on the subject of health in Peterborough. Dr. J. J. Craig presided and J. John was the booster.

At the close of the meeting the chairman announced the news of the death of the Queen Mother, Alexandra, and the members faced the Union Jack in a silent tribute to her memory. This replaced the usual singing of the National Anthem.

Si. Perkins, who is managing the production of the Kiwanis Show "Bob White," said the rehearsals are progressing well and everything points to the finest show ever put on by amateur talent in Peterborough. The members reported on the sale of tickets, most having disposed of their quota.

Not a Controversy

"This is a campaign," Dr. Sutton announced in opening his address," "Not a controversy." In his campaign during this week he had emphasized the negative side of the issue as being important as showing why the campaign is necessary, the speaker said. From now until the campaign closes he will confine his attention to the object to be attained, better health for the city of Peterborough. This doesn't mean that disease must be avoided, but the object is to show that disease can be best met by conserving the health we have.

Dr. Sutton said he had, during the past winter, added a study of public hygiene methods to his regular work in an effort to make himself proficient in his position of District Officer of Health. He regards his position as an opportunity for service. During this course he had full opportunity for discussing the splendid department of health in Toronto, known throughout the world for its efficiency and accredited the best on the continent.

In Toronto the Public Health activities touch every point of existence. There are pre-natal clinics which give advice to expectant mothers; pre-chool and school work among children; communicable disease teaching, warning men and women of the danger of infection; instruction on health matters through pamphlets, lectures, interviews; every possible avenue is utilized in teaching people correct methods of living and of regaining health that has been lost as well as preserving the good health the people have.

Periodic examination of adults by family physicians is urged so that the stealthy approach of such diseases as attack the heart and kidneys may be found and the evil effects halted. Dentists urge the public to have examinations of their teeth made regularly, and when this is necessary with teeth, which may be seen by anyone in a mirror, how much more necessary is examination of the hidden organs of the body. "I defy any of my medical confreres to say this is interfering in private practice," Dr. Sutton said.

"That is the kind of effort that will lead to an AI population in Canada. The proper end and object of public health work is a healthy public."

Big Staff.

"In Toronto they have a real M.O.H. in Dr. Hastings," Dr. Sutton continued, "and a splendid health organization." School children are regularly inspected; the milk is tested and veterinarians visit the farms to inspect the stock from which the milk is drawn; meat is inspected by veterinarians, and cattle are slaughtered under their direct supervision; plumbing and housing conditions are carefully supervised, and no one can get away with unsanitary conditions; the water supply is directly under the Board of Health; sewage disposal is directly under the Board of Health—in fact everything that touches eating, living, bathing, is protected by health supervision.

"To attempt to establish an elaborate system like that in Peterboro is not necessary; it might justify the figures given by the M.O.H., and the chairman of the Board of Health. But the figure of $25,000 is all bosh," Dr. Sutton declared.

Coming down to the consideration of a city nearer Peterborough's class, Dr. Sutton eulogized Oshawa as a place where health matters are thoroughly well looked after.

Blames M. O. H.

"It is hard to keep away from personalities," the speaker said, "and yet do the work efficiently. I intend to keep away and yet I must bring in personalities in order to show present conditions. The members of the Board of Health in the city are the Mayor and the M.O.H., ex-officio, with three resident ratepayers. The only difference between Oshawa and Peterborough is in the executive officer of the Board, the M.O.H. The members of our Board of Health compare favorably with the members of the Oshawa Board. But the members are laymen. It is supposed and designed that they must be guided in medical matters by the medical member, who, different from the other members, receives a salary. Oshawa has a part time M.O.H. at $500 a year, and he's a wonder. He is a successful medical practitioner and surgeon, and probably loses $2,000 a year through the time he spends in Board of Health duties. But he claims he still has enough to live on and will keep on going until Oshawa is wealthy enough to afford a full time M.O.H. when he will be able to hand over an efficient plant.

"In Peterborough the M.O.H. receives $2,000 a year for the same kind of work, and yet the members

ISOLATION GRANT BROUGHT UP BY CITY OFFICIALS

Provincial Officials Were Interviewed About Money For Hospital.

SAW HYDRO.

Commission Was Asked To Lower Gas Rates in Peterborough.

A deputation from Peterborough, including His Worship Mayor Turner, Alderman M. McIntyre and S. R. Armstrong, City Clerk, waited upon the Hon. Lincoln Goldie, Provincial Secretary, and the Hon. Dr. Godfrey, Minister of Health, for the purpose of seeking aid in the form of a grant for the Isolation Hospital. A favorable answer was given, as the authorities interviewed promised earnest consideration of the proposition. The hearing, which was arranged at the instance of the Peterborough Board of Health, was also attended by representatives from Toronto, Ottawa, Galt, Kitchener and St. Thomas, as a result of communications on the matter which had been sent out earlier in the year.

Introduced by W. H. Bradburn, M.P.P. for Peterborough, the deputation stated that mounting expense should be taken into consideration, and that no distinction should be made between the two classes of hospitals. Mayor Turner pointed out that if the Isolation Hospital was controlled by the same board as the General Hospital, the grant would automatically be granted. He could not see why this slim factor should stand in the way. Hon. Mr. Goldie felt that the easiest manner to adjust the difficulty would be to consolidate the boards of the two hospitals, bringing them together.

GODS AND BREWERS CONTROL DESTINIES

Col. John A. Currie Forecasts Early Appeal on Liquor Issue.

TORONTO, Nov. 20.—(Canadian Press).—Whether there will be another session of the Ontario Legislature or not rests, according to a declaration made by Col. John A. Currie, M.L.A., at a meeting of Ward Three Conservative Association last week "on the knees of the gods and the brewers." After stating that the latter wanted stronger beer while the people at large desired a more satisfactory liquor law, he avowed that Government control alone would meet with all around approval and stated that the Ferguson administration would shortly make an appeal on a platform designed to bring it about.

The province, he contended, had not had sufficient opportunity to express its opinion of Government control in the last referendum. Then the Conservatives had made the big mistake of failing to take the people into their confidence and made no definite statement of what they wished to do.

Profiting from the experience, he continued, they would, this time, make very substantial proposals, and he foreshadowed that a local opinion clause would be included.

QUICKLY EARNED FAVOR.

The New Vegol Soap Well Received By the Dealers—Fifty Stores Make Window Display.

The reception given the new Vegol Soap by the grocers of the city and district was a most flattering one, and the response to the opening announcement by the public was even greater. Some fifty stores, most of them in the city, arranged to handle this pleasing new toilet soap, and at present the entire number of these dealers have the goods displayed in their windows. The response to the rapid-fire campaign of the makers' representatives was certainly a tribute, not only to their aggressiveness, but also to the evident good qualities of the article itself. It now rests with the soap itself to win and hold the favor of the thousands of homes into which it has been introduced so quickly.—Advt.

COMMITTED FOR COTTAGE THEFT

Farmer Near Sarnia To Be Tried on Ten Charges.

BAILED FOR $11,000.

SARNIA, Ont., November 20. — Canadian Press. — Angus Norwood, a prosperous Enniskillen township farmer, and a former flying officer, was committed for trial on Thursday on ten charges of being in possession of property stolen from summer homes between Grand Bend on Lake Huron and Corunna on the St. Clair River.

The thefts, it was said, extended over a four year period and included every manner of furnishings, from bed clothes to pictures.

Bail was set at $11,000, including $5,000 personal recognizances, and two sureties for $3000 each, given by Alex Kirk and James Norwood, of Sarnia. Police officers giving testimony, declared that Norwood had admitted to them after being warned, that he had placed a number of the goods under Dr. Bell's cottage.

After their testimony the Crown Attorney moved for a committal.

NEW LAMP BURNS 94 P.C. AIR

Beats Electric or Gas.

A new oil lamp that gives an amazingly brilliant, soft, white light, even better than gas or electricity, has been tested by the U.S. Government and 35 leading universities and found to be superior to 10 ordinary oil lamps. It burns without odor, smoke or noise—no pumping up; is simple, clean, safe. Burns 94% air and 6% common kerosene (coal oil).

The inventor, F. B. Johnson, 246 Craig St. W., Montreal, is offering to send a lamp on 10 days' FREE trial, or even to give one FREE to the first user in each locality who will help him introduce it. Write him to-day for full particulars. Also ask him to explain how you can get the agency, and without experience or money make $250 to $500 per month.

JOLSON DENIES MEETING ALICE

stand. The spotlight of attention centered on him. Disregarding both counsels, he launched into a statement, waving the receipts for his stay in Atlantic City.

Never Saw Either One.

"I have never in my life seen the plaintiff nor the defendant," he said.

He was interrupted by defence counsel, Davis, informing him that there was a young man named "Al" Jolson at Paul [illegible]

"This will be a good headline for you," Davis suggested, genially.

"I know, but the other wasn't," responded Jolson, jokingly.

Rhinelander Wilts.

Rhinelander visibly began to wilt Wednesday under a merciless, steady cross-examination that dragged from his reluctant lips intimate details of his pre-marital relations with Alice Beatrice Jones, his negro wife, from whom he now seeks freedom.

Stammering and red of face, he struggled through a maze of questions put to him by Lee Parsons Davis, counsel for Mrs. Rhinelander in her husband's annulment suit. Once during the afternoon young Rhinelander turned to Justice Morschauer and complained that he was tired. A 10-minute recess was granted. Again late in the afternoon in the midst of personal questions as to his love life, he complained of fatigue. Adjournment then was taken for the day and the wealthy youth left the stand, his face drawn and haggard.

He had been subjected to a full day of pounding that had resulted in many contradictions. He had been asked questions that reflected on his sense of honor. He had admitted to a secret marriage pact with the daughter of a negro hack driver as far back as 1922, and had confessed to suspicions of her color. Through it all, however, he clung to his contention that he did not believe she was a negress when he married her.

Maintains Poise.

During most of this grilling Rhinelander kept his poise, but when he was asked question after question about the week in December, 1921, when he stayed at the Hotel Marie Antoinette in New York with Alice, he blushed violently and began to show the strain. Alice spent the day with her face buried in her coat.

"Before I start asking about this matter," said Mr. Davis, "I want you to remember that it was your side that dragged filth into this case."

The story of the trip was told jerkily in response to innumerable questions. He said that he and Alice had made the trip to New York in his father's automobile, driven by his father's chauffeur. They registered at the Marie Antoinette under the names of "Mr. and Mrs. James Smith, of Rye," and then went to a theatre and a restaurant, returning to the hotel later. Previously he told how he had persuaded her to accompany him.

"Didn't you make special arrangements to get Alice from the automobile into a hotel elevator and to the room without delay?" Mr. Davis asked.

"Yes."

"Wasn't this because you were afraid the manager of the hotel might see you taking up this girl who, obviously on the face of her, had colored blood in her veins?"

"No, that was not my motive."

Awkward Questions.

Mr. Davis then asked a series of questions designed to show that Rhinelander was not so unsophisticated as he had been reported. The questions were personal and Rhinelander haltingly answered them, his face suffused with blood. The crowded courtroom hung on every word. In this midst of it, he complained that he was tired.

During the day, five of Rhinelander's letters to his bride and seven postal cards to her parents from him were read. One of the letters, written at the Canal Zone when he was on a long trip at the order of his father, Philip Rhinelander, contained 17 pages and was filled with fervid protestations of love. It revealed that young Rhinelander had been sent away to keep him from Alice. He promised, however, that he would "carry on, no matter how long the fight may last."

Another was from Bermuda where Rhinelander wrote that the girls he met disgusted him because of their cigarette smoking and drinking.

"You were shocked at these society girls drinking until they became tight," said Mr. Davis. "Did it shock your sense of refinement to register at the Hotel Marie Antoinette with a woman who was not your wife?"

The question made Rhinelander squirm. "No," he answered at length in a low voice.

Another letter revealed that Alice and he had gone on a motor trip through New England in August, 1924, a few months before their marriage. The letter was written from Worcester, Mass., to Mr. and Mrs. Jones, whom he addressed as "Dear mamma and papa," and revealed that he had told the Jones family that "a Mr. and Mrs. Mathews" were on the trip as chaperones.

Chaperones? Oh, No.

"There were no such persons, were there?" asked Davis.

"No," conceded Rhinelander.

"What do you think of taking a girl away on a trip of this kind and deceiving her aged mother?"

"I think it's all right if the girl is willing."

"Is that the way you have been brought up to view those below your station in life?"

"No," said the witness after some hesitation.

"Would you do this with a girl in your own class?"

"Yes."

The letter also revealed that he and Alice had stayed at the Hotel Bancroft in Worcester, under the names "Mr. and Mrs. Winthrop." One part of the missive said that he and "Mr. Mathews" were at the hotel resting while the women were at the movies. The postcards to the Jones family simply told of various places they had visited.

A letter from Salt Lake City written September 19, 1922, revealed the secret marriage pact. One paragraph read: "You know down deep in your heart that I love you and I fully intend to carry out your secret."

"What did you mean by that?" asked Davis.

"I meant marriage," said Rhinelander.

"Not Good Enough."

Previously Rhinelander had testified that he first thought of marrying Alice in March, 1923. In this same letter he wrote: "Are you going to refuse to have me and are you going to make me live my life alone because I am not good enough for you?"

This section was in answer to reproaches from Alice because he was away from her at his fathers' request.

Once Mr. Davis asked him what was the color of Alice's body, and he replied that her arms were brown. "No more," he added, "than the arms of many women I have seen in Havana."

"Are you color blind?" Mr. Davis asked.

"No."

"Can you distinguish brown from white?"

"Yes."

"Was your brain all right in 1922?"

"Yes."

The bill of particulars which Rhinelander admitted contained five falsehoods again was brought up, and he again conceded that it was wrong. Davis then switched to another tack. "Do you know that you have dragged your wife's name in the gutter before the world?" he asked.

"I followed my counsel's advice."

"You wouldn't lie like a gentleman to protect a woman, then?"

"Not when I was deceived."

WEDDING BELLS.

SHEEHAN—BURNS.

LINDSAY, Nov. 19.—The marriage takes place at St. Michael's Cathedral, Toronto, on Saturday morning of Cecilia Pauline Burns, daughter of Mrs. Julia Burns, of Hotel Benson, and Joseph Emmet Sheehan, of Detroit, and formerly of Peterboro. The bride-to-be was tendered a shower by about sixty of her friends at Hotel Benson this evening. Miss Burns is a professional nurse and was on her way to New York when she stopped off at Detroit to visit a brother. The brief visit culminated in the announcement of her coming marriage to Mr. Sheehan, whom she has known for some time. They will reside in Detroit. Miss Burns has relatives in Peterboro.

MRS. WILLIAM NELSON, SR.

The death of Mrs. William Nelson, Sr., took place on November 19, at her home in Keene. The funeral service will be held in the former Methodist Church, Keene, on Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Interment will be made at Fife's Cemetery.

MR. FRED WALDON

One of the oldest residents of Lakefield, Fred Waldon, died yesterday afternoon at the age of 82 years. He was born in Devonshire, England. There he married Henrietta Trude, and they came to Canada soon after. They have lived in or around Lakefield ever since, having been in the district about 55 years.

In 1920 they celebrated their golden wedding.

Mr. Waldon was a famous ploughman and was proud of his prowess.

He is survived by his widow, three sons, Charles and Ernest of Lakefield and Trude of Detroit; three daughters, Mrs. Fred Abbott of Douro, Mrs. Thomas Cheyne of Cores Landing, and Miss Etta at home.

The funeral will take place on Saturday afternoon at 2.30 from the family residence, Queen Street, to the Lakefield Cemetery.

The Rev. Walter Cox will officiate.

MRS. WILLIAM SHORE.

CAMPBELLFORD, Nov. 20. — Eliza Anderson, wife of William Shore, died Wednesday at her home on Centre Street, after a long illness, aged 58 years. The deceased had spent five weeks in a Peterboro hospital and returned home apparently improved in health, but suffered a relapse a short time ago.

The deceased was born in Campbellford and was the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. James Anderson, who later moved to Herkimer, N.Y., where they both passed away and where a number of their children still reside. The late Mrs. Shore always lived in Cambellford. In October, 1886, she was married to Herbert Shore, who survives her, by Rev. Williiam Peer, who at that time was pastor of the Baptist Church here. All her life she was a devoted member of that denomination and took a leading part in every form of church work.

Besides her husband, the late Mrs. Shore is survived by three daughters and two sons. The daughters are Mrs. Sydney (Ethel) Hallam of Toronto and Verna and Mary at home. Both sons, Harry and Carl, live in Port Colborne. Mrs. William Bakes of town is a sister. Three brothers and four sisters reside in Herkimer, N.Y.

The funeral will be held Saturday at 2 p.m. from the family residence and at 2.30 services will be conducted at the Baptist Church by Rev. Edmund D. Forde, assisted by Rev. Hugh Shaw, a former pastor.

Beautiful floral offerings, from the family and friends, bear silent testimony to the esteem in which the late Mrs. Shore was held. She moved in a large circle and enjoyed the confidence of all who knew her.

MRS. ANDREW BEATTY.

HAVELOCK, Nov. 20. — The death of Mrs. Mary Ann Beatty, widow of the late Andrew Beatty, which took place on Friday, November 13th, at the residence of her daughter, Mrs. H. Gray, West street, Trenton, removed one of the older and most highly respected residents of Havelock and evoked expressions of keen regret from a host of friends in this district.

The deceased who was in her 73rd year had been ill for a few weeks from pneumonia but her illness did not assume a serious phase until a few days prior to her death and despite all that could be done in her behalf she passed to her eternal rest, death resulting from heart trouble.

The late Mrs. Beatty, whose maiden name was Mary Ann Cummings, was born in Alnwick and had been a resident of Havelock and vicinity for forty years. Her husband predeceased her seven years ago. A funeral service was held on Monday evening at 8 o'clock at the home of her daughter, Mrs. H. Gray, Trenton. On Tuesday morning the cortege left for Havelock where service was held in St. John's Anglican church at 1.30 p.m. conducted by the Rev. T. H. Stanley. Interment was made in Maple Grove cemetery.

The deceased leaves to mourn her loss seven daughters, Mrs. H. Gray, Mrs. J. Seabrooks, of Trenton; Mrs. H. Penrose. Mrs. F. Haig of Toronto; Mrs. George Hoag of Stafford, N.Y.; Mrs. J. Kiernan of Havelock; Mrs. R. McMillan of Carievale, Sask.; two sons, James of Trenton, Thomas of Dewey, B.C.; three sisters, Mrs. Jos. Pacey of Harcourt, Mrs. George Embleton of Niagara Falls, Ont., Mrs. R. Richardson of Kernobart, Sask. and three brothers, Thomas Cummings of Niagara Falls, Ont., Andrew Brown of St. Davids and Robert Brown of Trenton.

The pall-bearers were: I. Barlow, F. Haig, H. Falkner, Ed. Williams, A. Buchanan and Wm. Matheson.

Among those who attended the funeral from a distance were: Mr. and Mrs. H. Gray, Mr. and Mrs. J. Seabrooks, Mr. and Mrs. J. Beatty, Mr. and Mrs. R. Teazel, Mr. and Mrs. R. Brown, Mr. and Mrs. R. FRANC'S DECLINE MUST BE HALTED PAINLEVE SAYS

French Finances Must Be Stabilized First at Home Premier Pleads.

DANGER IN DELAY.

Appeals to Parliament For "Bold Measures"—Resume Debate To-day.

PARIS, Nov. 20. — (Canadian Press) — "Tragic circumstances" said Premier Painleve in the Chamber of Deputies Thursday forced on him "the thankless task of asking parliament to vote bold measures," whereby he proposed to provide a sinking fund for short term debts.

M. Painleve declared there was no more time to be lost, and the government placed before the Chamber its responsibilities and asked it to decide now definitely between a dallying policy and positive action.

"The question," the Premier added, "is whether we shall allow our money to go on depreciating, or whether we shall take preliminary steps toward stabilization. The first of those steps is to renovate finances and provide for debts, so as to give the money a stable value at home. Then through international accords we can stabilize it abroad."

He resented particularly the criticism that his project for forced conversion of the bonds maturing December 8 constituted the first default of the French government since the revolution.

"That decision," he declared, "taken under such forced circumstances no one in the world can reproach us for."

The debate had previously become extremely confused, each speaker presenting a different thesis. The Premier's intervention was in the nature of a plea, rather than a technical argument, and threw little light on the issues. An attempt to shorten the discussion and reach a vote on the articles last night failed, and the debate will be resumed at 2.30 this afternoon.

BETTER BATHING FACILITIES.

Returning to the question of the civic bathing beaches, to which Mayor Turner referred in an interview the other evening, the Examiner can see no reason why conditions, especially at Inverlea Park, could not be materially improved without the expenditure of large sums of money.

It should be possible, for instance, to improve the ventilation of the men's dressing-rooms, to put a board floor in the tent used by women bathers, and to instal a temporary water service with a tap outside each of the dressing-rooms where bathers could remove from their feet the sand and dirt picked up en route from the river, a water service that could be used by the caretakers in keeping the floors of the bathing quarters in a more sanitary condition than it is possible now to keep them.

None of these things would be expensive, and they would add considerably to the comfort of hundreds of citizens who visit Inverlea Park each summer.

There are many more improvements that suggest themselves to those who are familiar with the conditions, but as a start toward better things these listed above are brought forward for the benefit of next year's Council.

GOVERNMENT SHOULD ACT.

The Ontario Motor League has been in communication with the Wardens of the counties of Ontario reminding that County Councils have been given power by the Legislature to pass a measure compelling all vehicles travelling on the highways at night to be illuminated.

This authorization has already been acted upon by a few counties, but the majority have refrained from taking any action in the matter and are not likely to do so, in spite of the evidence offered in every part of the Province in the form of many accidents that unlighted horse-drawn vehicles are a source of great danger.

The problem, the Examiner believes, should be dealt with by the Ontario Government, which, instead of "passing the buck" to the County Councils, should take the responsibility of bringing down legislation that will protect all parts of Ontario from this menace and make night driving much safer than it can possibly be under the present conditions.

The Drury Government always flatly declined to introduce such a measure, but motorists expected that the present administration would have dealt with the problem before this, and its failure to do so has been a disappointment.

It is obvious that the County Councils are not keen on taking the necessary steps, and that eventually the Government will have to sponsor a Provincial measure.

Its passing should not be delayed beyond the next session.

A CONTROVERSIAL QUESTION.

Although there are as yet no signs of a heated controversy over daylight saving, which is to be voted on at the municipal election, there is no doubt that this vexed question will add unusual interest to the civic campaign, for few subjects have caused as many warm arguments as daylight saving.

The controversy at the beginning of last summer when the City Council refused to accede to the request of a large number of citizens who petitioned for a daylight saving measure during the summer months, will unquestionably be repeated and perhaps intensified.

At that time the advocates of summer time were well organized and apparently had the majority of industrial workers in line with their policy, the factory vote showing a very strong percentage in favour of the proposal.

If the same conditions exist now and the friends of daylight saving go to the polls and vote as readily as they signed petitions last spring, the indications are that the plebiscite will result in summer time for Peterboro.

There is plenty of opposition to the proposal, however, and it will be manifested when the campaign gets under way.

The interest in the issue will, of course, increase as election day draws near, and will undoubtedly result in a larger vote than is usually polled at municipal elections.

The Sunday bathing question will also help to bring out the vote, and the two questions will add an unusual vim to the civic contest.

CRIME AND PUBLIC OPINION.

We in this country can afford to extend our sympathy to the people of the United States because of the growing prevalence of crime and the apparent inability to cope with it. At the same time, we must confess our readiness to follow the example set by any effective anti crime policy adopted, in case we should require it, realizing that we are an extensive customer of United States wares, not excluding even some of that country's faults. A crime-wave is something we do not wish to import, and therefore hope our neighbors will find a way to stamp it out before it reaches the overflow point.

The crime-wave, in fact, has already reached the proportions of a deluge. Last year there were 10,000 murders and thirty times as many robberies and holdups. There are 100 murders in New York City for every 10 in London, Eng.; there are thirteen times as many murders in Chicago in a year as in the whole of Canada. Money losses through crime and fraud run into billions of dollars.

The increase in crime is attributed to various causes: The extensive use of the automobile, which makes it easier to get away; the multiplicity of laws and carelessness with which many of them are drawn up; lax enforcement of laws and misplaced sympathy extended by the public toward criminals. Rev. Dr. S. Parkes Cadman of Brooklyn has called "sob sisters" and "sob brothers" the "brides and bridegrooms of crime." Judge Talley of New York considers that "the principal cause of crime is the pampering of prisoners by sentimental reformers."

Undoubtedly public sentiment has a different influence on law enforcement in the United States than in a country like England, which enjoys the steadying power of a conservative tradition, or in Canada, which has the same traditional respect for law. According to President Emeritus Hadley of Yale, as he expressed himself in November Harper's, "Conscience and public opinion enforce the laws." The same thought was expressed by Professor Smith of Columbia Law School in an address at the opening of the university this fall. Jurors and possibly Judges under an elective system may be influenced by public opinion, but in any case it would appear that the steady growth of crime is a serious indictment of the public conscience. As a result crime commissions and anti-crime societies are being formed in behalf of law enforcement.

Canada has a better way of keeping crime down. Her courts are more interested in applying a principle than in conniving at a technicality, and in doing so they have the endorsement of public opinion. It is safe to say, however, that public opinion in this country would not be permitted by the courts to interfere with justice, and this contributes to our respect for the law and its administrators.—The Globe.

THE PRICE OF POTATOES.

We do not take a just view of the recent rise in the price of potatoes from $1.50 to $3 per bag unless we look at it from the standpoint of the producer of, as well as the consumer of, these staple tubers. As consumers, we naturally regard such sudden additions to the family budget as among the unqualified adversities. If we were producers, however, we should just as naturally rejoice. Both interests must be brought into the reckoning; for in the balancing of accounts, as between what the consumer loses and the producer gains in this instance, we must recognize the inexorable play of the law of supply and demand. That law plays ducks and drakes with both producer and consumer at times; but it has a tendency to work out equitably in the long run.

Potatoes were selling a couple of weeks ago at $1.50 per bag because a fair crop had been garnered in Canada and demand was about normal. They suddenly doubled in price because our neighbors, who had had a short crop, found that they must make up their shortage by calling on the Canadian supply. This at once had the effect which is invariably brought about when demand is made on a limited supply. A barrier of 50 cents per bushel lay in the way of our neighbors getting their potatoes from Canada; but necessity leaps over all such artificial obstacles.

It is not likely the price will go any higher. One of the first effects of an abnormal price is to check demand and conserve supply. American consumers are no more disposed to pay $3.50 per bag than we are to pay $3, and consumption is therefore reduced. Buying also proceeds on a hand-to-mouth basis. The tendency which sets in is toward re-adjustment; and that means downward. Yet it is quite impracticable at this juncture to be dogmatic about the matter. If our American neighbors are very short of potatoes and make up their minds to meet their needs out of our supply, there is no telling what may happen.

We may here learn a useful lesson. We are inclined at all times to look on our exports as favorable business, in the sense that they represent the marketing of our surplus products. And that is a sound view under normal conditions. But we now see that, under such conditions as have arisen with respect to potatoes, the very measure of our sales abroad is the measure of our own impoverishment. The proceeds of exported potatoes go into the pockets of the potato producers, while the whole body of Canadian consumers has to pay for a famine which exists abroad.

As has been said, however, in the course of time the account comes to a balance. There are years when the potato crop is abundant on both sides of the line. The domestic supply more than equals demand, and sales to our neighbors are impossible. Then consumers get their potatoes at a low figure—a figure which the potato producer feels is wholly inadequate. Therefore, while the latter is favored at the moment by an exceptional situation, he must not be begrudged this mixture of fat with the more frequent lean. Next year he may be grumbling again about low prices.—Ottawa Journal.

A THOUGHT.

THE PLASTIC AGE OF THE MIND.

I wish that Heywood Broun would write a novel on The Petrified Age that would do for adults what Percy Marks did for adolescents by his novel on The Plastic Age.

By writing a novel around some of the more colorful escapades of a college community, Mr. Marks has made "the plastic age" mean to most readers a regrettable period of moral confusion through which unfortunately immaturity must pass on its way to maturity.

So vividly have some of the indiscretions of plastic youth been reported that plasticity itself has become suspect in the minds of some of the more sedate elders.

Youth is looked upon as a dangerous flaming up, age as a desirable settling down.

A novel on The Petrified Age could rescue this phrase—the plastic age—from the exclusively soft and sexy implications with which moral muckraking has invested it, and could suggest the larger intellectual and spiritual significance that goes with it.

The virtue of the plastic age is that it is plastic.

Despite its occasional lapses into muddled morals, the plastic age possesses the thing it is the business of education to promote, namely, plasticity.

Education exists to make all ages plastic ages.

Education is a prophylatic measure against hardening of the intellectual arteries.

Education is a prophylactic mea-

The plasticity of youth may lead to mistakes, but plasticity is no mistake.

The intellectual tragedy of the average man's life is that in outgrowing the flasks and flirtations of the plastic age, he also outgrows the mental and moral elasticity that enables men to reconsider a question, to reverse their attitudes on matters they have previously misjudged, to learn and unlearn and relearn as befits free and disciplined intelligence.

The average man passes all too quickly from the pastic age to the petrified age.

Growing old mentally is not a matter of the calendar; mental plasticity may continue in the very late years. Heredity and health, of course, have their say in the matter; but it is possible to find and to follow ways and means to prolong mental plasticity.

Old men's fear of new ideas is caused by mental attitude as well as by physical decay. A man may enter the petrified age at any age, at twenty-five as well as at ninety-five.

It is our business to prolong the plastic age of the mind by cultivating the habit of not having habits of thought; that is, by not having automoatic and standardized reactions regardless of facts.—Glenn Frank.

Miss Luella Paikin, a young Lancashire girl, is declared by Mme. Tetrazzini, the great singer, to be one of the best sopranos of the present day. Mme. Tetrazzini thinks so highly of her talents that she named Miss Paikin as her most likely successor in the realm of song.

A small number of common cows brought steady prices of $3 to $3.50 a cwt. One lot of bredy yearling stockers was picked up by Neil Coutts at $4.75 a cwt. With the exception of stockers and feeders held by specialists there was little left on the market after the first hour.

All ewe and wether lambs up to 95 lbs. each sold at 13½ cents a pound and steady with Wednesday. Sheep were also steady with tops of 6½ cents a pound.

Wednesday's hogs brought the top of the week at $12.25 a cwt. f.o.b. The packers are not making any public bid over the week-end and the market is quite uncertain.

Joseph Wilson, one of the oldest Toronto cattle salesmen, is reported dead at Edmonton, where he was engaged with the firm of H. P. Kennedy & Co. Deceased was 76 years of age and was on this market until a few months ago.

EGG PRICES

OTTAWA, Nof. 19 (Canadian Press).—At the large receiving centres in Canada prices are steadily advancing on the higher grades. United States markets are higher for fresh eggs and lower for refrigerators. According to latest cables received the British market is reported firmer and 41 cents f.o.b. seaboard is quoted for firsts.

Toronto — Jobbing, specials 70, fresh extras 66, storage 45, fresh firsts 55, storage 42, seconds 36.

Montreal — Undertone very firm with steady demand for supplies and offerings are barely sufficient to meet the requirements. Storage extras quoted 46, firsts 42, seconds 37.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, Nov. 19 (Canadian Press).—Assertions that wheat crop losses in Argentina have reached an aggregate of 37,000,000 bushels gave a sudden hoist today to the wheat market here. Closing prices were strong at 2 3-4 to 4 cents net gain, new style, December 159 1-4 to 159 1-2 and May 155 1-8 to 155 1-2, with corn unchanged to 3-8 up, oats at 1-4 to 3-8 advance, and provisions varying from 12c decline to a rise of 45c.

An unexpected upturn in quotations at Buenos Aires tended to emphasize the effect of the big new estimate of wheat crop damage in Argentina. Announcement of this estimate was a surprise to the majority of traders here, and came at a time when the market was virtually bare of offerings. General commission house buying developed at once, and prices went rapidly upward, finishing at nearly the day's topmost level. The extreme jump from the bottom figures of the day was 5 1-4c a bushel.

It was only when the wheat market had soared to nearly 160 for December and had crossed 155 for May that profit-taking sales had much effect as a weigh on values. The buoyancy thus shown was in decided contrast with the action of prices during the first part of the board of trade session.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE

A feature of the local grain market was the increased demand from domestic and country buyers for American corn and a fairly large business was done for prompt and future shipment from Chicago. There was also a fair demand for oats and the undertone to the market was stronger with Ontario and Quebec No. 2 white quoted at 53 cents, No. 3 white at 51 1-2c and No. 4 white at 49 1-2 cents per bushel, ex-track. Canadian Western grades were fractionally higher. Ontario malting barley changed hands at 85 1-2 cents per bushel, ex-track.

Owing to the renewed strength in the Canadian cash wheat situation a stronger feeling developed in the local flour market for spring wheat grades and millers marked up prices 10c per barrel.

The trade in Winter wheat flour continues rather slow owing to the fact that buyers do not seem disposed to pay the present high prices demanded by Ontario millers, which the latter claim is due to the small deliveries of wheat being made by farmers in most sections of Ontario. The tone of the market was very firm. White corn flour was unchanged at $6.80 to $7 per barrel in jute, delivered to the trade.

There were no further developments in the market for millfeed, but the undertone was strong owing to the continued limited supplies available from millers, and the good demand from local and country buyers to meet their immediate wants. A fair amount of business was done. The tone of the market for standard grades of rolled oats was strong owing to the scarcity of supplies on spot and the prospects are that prices will be again advanced in the near future.

The tone of the market for potatoes was steady, but the volume of business was not large owing to the fact that local buyers seem to be fairly well supplied for the time being, and as it is reported that there is still 330 cars on the Boston and Maine Railroad the prospects are that the embargo will not be lifted in the near future, which has now been in force since November 9.

The receipts of butter were 577 packages, as against 1,131 for the same day last week, and 598 for the corresponding day a year ago. The tone of the market remains firm and prices show no further change. There continues to be a steady demand from local and outside buyers for supplies, and a fair volume of business was done. In a wholesale jobbing way the movement was reported fairly good and prices were firm at 45c per lb. for finest creamery in solid packages, and at 46c per lb. in 1 lb. blocks.

The receipts of cheese were 2,017 boxes, as compared with 4,059 for the same day last week, and 2,854 for the corresponding day a year ago. According to some in the trade there was an improved demand from some English importers and that a little more business was done, but at the same time they stated that it was not general, but on the whole the feeling was steadier with Western September No. 1 white and colored quoted at 23 1-2c per lb., earlier makes at 22 3-4c to 23c per lb., and current receipts at 21c to 21 1-2c per lb.

Beans were still selling at $2.40 per bushel.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE.

SOUND AND SENSE

To the Editor of The Examiner:

Sir. — Broadcasting has added much to the terrors of life. On Sunday evening the shouting evangelist at Buffalo paralyzed his audience for two hours. The mass of our people is after all somewhat easily fooled. If we can get noise, we do not care for sense. We haven't brains enough to know or desire a really good thing, so the shouter reaches us through our bodies just as the barker at the circus does. I asked a barker once what he yelled so loud for. He told me that he had to put fear and trembling into the people by shouting at them. It cows them. Like jazz and other primitive things, shouting rouses many people who could not grasp an idea. They expect an expert to raise h—l and as that is what he is talking about he does. When a barker has barked his audience silly he orders them to hold up their hands, and they do. The shouter literally crushes his victims. If our husbands and wives at home went on as he does, it would have the same effect. Let us have more of it. Few people know the difference between sound and sense, and sound is cheaper. It's exciting and that after all is all we want. We want to get sound drunk or else we don't feel well. Give in the worth of our threepence.

MORE UKELELES.

Melody Playing Increases Popularity of the Instrument.

There is little doubt that the increasing number of ukulele devotees who play melody on the instrument and use it in a solo manner rather than as an accompaniment instrument is having the effect of further adding to the popularity of the instrument. Through their efforts, the public is being educated more and more to the real possibilities of the ukulele as a musical instrument.

ALEXANDRA, THE QUEEN MOTHER, MOURNED BY THE WHOLE BRITISH EMPIRE

NO BRITISH QUEEN EVER MORE LOVED THAN ALEXANDRA

Sea King's Daughter Won British Hearts From the First

KIND TO THE POOR

Prince Was Captivated at the First Sight of Her Photograph

Of the queens who have graced the pages of English history one will ever stand alone in the mellow light of tragic romance. And her descendant through three hundred years will ever be remembered as one of the most beautiful and queenly of the consorts of our kings.

Mary, Queen of Scots, and Alexandra, sea king's daughter from over the seas, and beloved consort of Edward the peacemaker, are two of the most picturesque figures in the history of England's royal family. The ill-fated Mary Stuart passed out a martyr to the jealousy of Elizabeth. Alexandra has died in peace, mourned by a great empire, leaving the story of her life as a lasting example for her successors.

The fate of the former was the penalty for her beauty as much as of her ancestry, and it was beauty of character as well as of feature that gave to the latter her fair fame, and established her within the hearts of her husband's people.

Princess Alexandra Caroline Marie Charlotte Louise Julia, eldest daughter of King Christian IX. of Denmark was born at the Gule Palace, Copenhagen, on December 1, 1844. It was said that her parents' marriage was a love match, certain it is that Princess Louisa of Hesse lavished the love and care of a true mother on the children that were born to the royal couple. A chronicle of the time says: "She paid the greatest attention to the education of her children, and was careful, while having them instructed in all the graces and accomplishments befitting their position, to inculcate in them the love of God, the love of their fellow creatures, and the love of family and home."

Loved By English People.

Of her childhood one story may be told that to-day must have a real significance. With her two sisters she was sitting in a sunlit glade of Bernstoff Forest, near her home. "I should like to have power and influence, in order that I might do much good," wished Princess Dagmar, who afterwards became Empress of Russia and mother of the ill-fated Nicholas. "I would like to be clever and accomplished," sighed the Princess Thyra, later the Duchess of Cumberland, and the future Queen of England, heroine of Primrose Day in London, recipient of a great city's annual demonstration of heart whole affection, wistfully confessed: "I would like above all things to be loved." And above all things was she loved by the English people.

They fell in love with the fair princess who stepped on to their shores in March, 1863, as the bride of the Prince of Wales. She retained that first hold on their affections to the end.

It was not until the princess was eight years of age that her father became heir to the Danish throne. In 1858 the Times, discussing the eventual marriage of the Prince of Wales, named the Princess Alexandra as amongst those from whom his bride would surely be chosen. The young couple met for the first time on September 24 in the ancient cathedral of Speier and by a strange chance at the very foot of the alter. A romantic story is told of the discovery by the prince whilst an undergraduate at Cambridge of a photograph of the beautiful princess which aroused his interest. The meeting resulted, it is said, from his expressed wish to see the living reality that appeared so fair in the portrait.

Second Danish Conquest

Judging from portraits taken at the time of her marriage, it is not hard to believe that Prince Edward was in truth in love with his royal bride. The betrothal was formally announced on September 9, 1863. The reception accorded the announcement at the time is well indicated by an extract of a contemporary newspaper. "The first Danish conquest came with fire and sword; this one comes with the mightier power of love."

Of the reception of the princess in London, writers of the time agree that never before or since was there such a spontaneous demonstration which in fact reached such a pitch of enthusiasm that it soon appeared that there was an utter lack of adequate organization to meet the huge crowds that gathered. The police, it is said, were powerless, and the masses surged about the carriage, impeding its progress, and endangering the lives of many who were lifted off their feet in the crush. At one point even, a man became caught in one of the wheels of the carriage and for a moment the young princess lost her poise, but as the chroniclers say, "a reassuring word from the Prince of Wales restored her equanimity."

SHARED ILLUSTRIOUS CAREER OF EDWARD THE PEACEMAKER

DID MUCH FOR SOLDIERS DURING THE WORLD WAR

Queen Mother Always Retained Deep Interest in Philanthropies

The Queen Mother always retained her deep interest in her many philanthropies.

During the world war she served as head of the British Red Cross, the Queen Alexandra Imperial Military Nursing Service, the Royal Indian Nursing Service, the Territorial Force Nursing Service and the Royal Naval Nursing Service. The Alexandra Field Force Fund, of which she was the head, kept British soldiers supplied with comforts and delicacies throughout the four years' struggle.

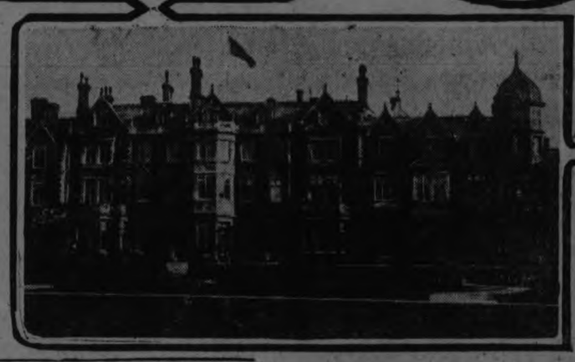
Between 1914 and 1918 she visited every hospital in London including the famous home for blinded soldiers at St. Dunstan's. She was also interested in infant welfare work. When a new nurses' home was named in her honor in London, she requested that it be not called the "Alexandra" home but the "Edith Cavell" home in memory of the martyred British nurse.

HAD A NARROW ESCAPE WHEN BOAT CAUGHT FIRE

During the visit of the prince and princess to Egypt in 1869, a misadventure happened which might have been serious to the princess. The royal party were going up the Nile at the time in a boat named Alexandra, which was towed by the steamer Federabanee. One evening the prince was on board the Federabanee and saw a bright light burning inside the Alexandra in which the princess had retired. He at once caused the princess and her lady-in-waiting to be hurried off to the shore, and the fire which sprang from a lighted candle in one of the cabins was put out by the prince suite.

Related to Many Royal Families

Queen Alexandra was related by blood or marriage to many European royal families. She was a sister of King George of Greece, who was assassinated in 1912, of King Frederick VII. of Denmark and of the former Dowager Empress Marie Dagmar of Russia. The Emperor Nicholas II. of Russia, who with his family was killed by the bolsheviki, was her nephew, as was also the former Emperor William of Germany and King Haakon VII. of Norway. Another nephew, by marriage, is King Alfonso XIII. of Spain, husband of the former British Princess Ena of Battenberg, the daughter of King Edward's sister, Beatrice. Queen Alexandra's younger sister, Dagmar, was married to Alexander III. of Russia three years after her own betrothal to the then Prince of Wales.



WAS SYMBOLIC OF BEST IN NATION'S CHARACTER

Will Ever Be Regarded as an Ideal of Noble Womanhood

The whole empire mourns the passing of the queen mother.

Whatever changes time may bring in the social order, her life will always stand out as the fulfilment of a national ideal—deep, true and symbolic of the race. Simplicity and commonsense characterized all her works. Though she disliked ostentatious show and ceremony for their own sake, no queen filled the regal part with more brilliance and lustre when occasion demanded.

Womanliness was the keynote of her life. To Englishwomen she will ever be an inspiration and an example. By Englishmen she will ever be regarded as an ideal of noble womanhood, with all that it implies of grace, gentleness, kindness, beauty, refinement and powers of love and endurance. Her appeal was always to the heart, not to the head, and by her delightful personality and by her life as wife, mother and Queen, and by her unfailing sympathy and devotion to her people, she firmly established herself in their affections.

Sorrow and pain did not pass her by, and that she could endure protracted mental strain was proven during her husband's long illness in 1871 when she waited and watched by the Prince's bedside, and again in the anxious days preceding his coronation.

Ever since she arrived on Britain's shores she represented something outside the bustle of daily life. Though she never shrank from facing the stern realities of life or the responsibilities of her high position, her pleasures were not those of the crowd, sought in gay festival and merry assemblies. Her happiness was rather found in the sound of children's laughter, and in the quietude of home life.

Of Queen Alexandra it may be truly said that she had "an infinite capacity for doing good." In thousands upon thousands of British homes for generations to come fond mothers will gather their daughters around them and "by the evening fire repeat Alexandra's story."

Was Trained in All Domestic Arts Large Family Shared Small Income

When Alexandra was born her father was still a prince, impecunious and without prospects for the future.

He was extremely poor for a prince, and his marriage to the Princess Louise of Hesse-Nassau brought but a very slim dower. His income was only between $3,000 and $5,000 a year, barely enough to support his large family upon any but the most economical basis. Fortunately, his wife was an excellent manager, and although there were but few servants at the Gulo palace at Copenhagen, where the prince and his family resided, the establishment could have served as a model for any burgher's household.

Princess Alexandra and her sisters were trained by their mother in housework and for many years not only attended to the various domestic duties such as cooking, cleaning and mending, but even made their own dresses and hats. When Prince Christian became crown prince his financial conditions were less restricted and he and his family spent delightful days at his summer palace at Bernstorff, a white castle in the woods, with miles of deer forest beyond.

BRITISH CROWN NEVER WORN BY MORE COMELY QUEEN

Queen Alexandra was ever beloved by the British nation for her beauty of character, no less than for the personal beauty and charm which she retained to the very end. As a queen she shared with King Edward the honor of being a real leader in European royal circles and during her long widowhood devoted her life in a quiet way to the many philanthropics in which she had always been interested. EVER ANGEL OF MERCY ONCE IN MIRACLE ROLE

As an angel of mercy Queen Alexandra played her part many times, but only once did she appear in the role of a miracle worker.

The story is told in a book of recollections by Lord Ernest Hamilton, "Forty Years On," of a cure worked by the fairy princess on the author in the days of his extreme youth when he was afflicted and humiliated by warts on his hands. In vain with caustic he had sought to banish these sorry looking blemishes; they had but changed into sallow brown. Then the Princess of Wales chanced to visit his father's home at Dublin Castle, and with that sympathy which she so readily bestowed on all forms of human suffering, she examined the grimy, wart-marred hands with solicitous care. The small boy recited at length his tale of woe and shame and the beautiful lady promised to charm the horrid things away.

An elaborate rite was undergone in which hazel twigs played their part, and from that day on the offending objects began to depart, until they had utterly vanished, leaving their former victim a devout worshipper at the feet of the beautiful princess.

Own Flag Flown By Queen Mother

Privilege Previously Exclusive Right of Ruling Monarch

Amongst the privileges extended to the queen by King Edward was the right to fly the royal standard, hitherto the exclusive right of the ruling sovereign. Upon his death a special standard was designed for the widowed queen. It measured 24 feet by 12 feet, and consisted of the British standard on one half and the Danish standard on the right. It was quite a remarkable flag from a zoological standpoint, including as it did seven British lions, two horses, a winged dragon, a swan, a falcon, a goat and a seated bear, with six more quaint lions in the Danish section.

Each animal represented several pages in the histories of the two nations, whose long and enduring friendship had been consummated in the union between their royal families. Thus did the widow of Edward the Peacemaker hoist to the masthead a standard that symbolized Europe's most striking example of international peace and goodwill.

HAD NEAR RELATIVES ON BOTH SIDES IN WAR

During the war the queen mother withdrew largely from the public eye. She suffered doubly in that it was her unhappy fate to have near relatives on both sides of the struggle. Yet quietly and unobtrusively she went about doing good, spreading good cheer, when her own heart ached wearily within her, giving, always giving, so far as her restricted means permitted, so that on the occasion of her annual progress through the streets of London there was no lack of warmth in the greeting extended to her.

REIGN OF KING EDWARD WAS ONE OF SHORTEST

But Also One of Most Important in British History

It was on Tuesday, March 10, 1863, that Prince Edward of Wales and Princess Alexandra of Wales were married in St. George's Chapel at Windsor. A cloud of sadness was cast over the ceremony by the late bereavement of Queen Victoria. The beloved prince consort had died on December 14, 1861, and in spite of the passage of time, her Majesty still retained the deepest mourning and enveloped herself in an air of utter desolation. She viewed the wedding from a secluded closet, clad in sombre black, with devout eyes ever gazing up to heaven where her adored husband was blissfully abiding.

During the first year of their marriage the Prince and Princess of Wales visited many parts of England and Scotland, their travels only serving to increase the popularity of the young bride. On January 8, 1864, the princess gave birth to her first born son, Prince Albert Victor, later the Duke of Clarence. Her second son, our present king, was born on Saturday, June 3, 1865, Princess Louise was born in February, 1867, the fourth child was born in 1869, Princess Victoria Alexandra, and her fifth child, Princess Maud, now Queen of Norway, was born in 1869. Prince Alexander, her last child, was born in 1871, and died the same year.

When she ascended the throne with her husband in 1901 Queen Alexandra was at the height of her popularity. The heart of the country had gone out to her in her bereavement when on January 14th her eldest son, the Duke of Clarence died.

Their reign was, however, one of the shortest in English history, only five of all the long line of English kings and queens occupying the throne for less than the nine years during which Edward VII. was king. For the same number of years Henry V., the soldier prince, held the most lordly office in the world, yet few reigns can have been as momentous in the history of the nation as these two short nine-year periods of progress and imperial development.

Edward VII. died on May 7th, 1910, and for the first time in many years England had a dowager queen. It became a matter of no little delicacy as to who should rank as the first lady in the land.

But these fears soon proved unfounded and her Majesty graciously gave way to the new queen.

Princess Greeted With Flowers; Flowers Were Linked With Name

Sea King's daughter from over the sea, Alexandra.
Saxon and Norman and Dane are we.
But all of Danes in our welcome to thee, Alexandra.
Welcome her, thunders of fort and of fleet.
Welcome her, thundering cheer of the street.
Welcome her, all things youthful and sweet.
Scatter the blossoms under her feet.
Break happy land into earlier flowers.
Make music, A bird, in the new-budded bowers.

Thus was Princess Alexandra greeted by England's poet laureate, Alfred, Lord Tennyson, when she landed in England in March, 1863, as the bride of England's heir to the throne. With flowers she was greeted, and with flowers ever since has her name been associated. Each year one day is dedicated to Alexandra. It has been named Alexandra Rose Day, and on it the people of the empire give freely to charity in her honor.

In London, England, it was always a day of wonderful demonstration, when the stately dowager queen drove through the streets of the metropolis, receiving the acclamations of the people and bestowing her patronage on the charitable purpose of the day.

Over a million pounds have passed in this way into the coffers of struggling hospitals, much to the aid of children destitute and bed ridden, and it is safe to prophesy that though My Lady Bountiful has passed on to her everlasting reward, in her name many another million will be collected from a reverently mindful public for the same ever-present cause.

KEPT EARLY STYLES

Went Home to Denmark Every Year to Scenes of Her Childhood

Since the day that she first set foot on British soil, Alexandra was probably the most popular figure of the Royal family.

"Magnetic charm is her chief characteristic," wrote one of her biographers, "that indefinable something that is not beauty, though beauty so helps in making it; that is not merely kindness and benignant graciousness, though without these it cannot exist; that is certainly not intellect, though it includes a fine tact that belongs to the higher mental faculties; but that is a combination of so many gifts and graces that it can be neither defined nor taught. This charm Alexandra has in full measure."

Her life was not always smooth and strewn with roses, but it was pure as crystal. She was a good woman in every sense of the term, devoted to her husband and family, and full of practical sympathy for human suffering in every form.

Princess Alexandra was ten years old when she made her first visit to London as the guest of the Duchess of Cambridge. On that occasion the princess obtained her first glimpse of royal splendor when she attended a party given by the late Queen Victoria at Buckingham Palace. Although the duchess' daughter, Mary, was some years older than Princess Alexandra, a great affection sprang up between them and many visits were afterwards paid by Alexandra to Rumpenheim-on-the-Main, which belonged to Mary's grandfather, the Landgrave Frederick of Hesse.

The Royal Match-Making

All the European courts were searched when the time came to find a bride for the Prince of Wales. Malburga Lady Paget, then only 23 years of age, played a leading part in bringing together the Princess Alexandra and her future husband. Sir Augustus Paget, British minister at Copenhagen, told his wife, Lady Paget: "I know the prettiest, the nicest, the most charming princess—Princess Alix. She is only 16 and as good as she is pretty.

The Princess Royal (Queen Victoria's eldest daughter, afterwards the Empress Victoria of Germany), who was informed of the discovery, suggested that Princess Alix should meet her at Strelitz.

Lady Paget heard from England that both the Queen and the Prince Consort were in favor of the marriage, having been entirely satisfied by the account given them by the Princess Royal.

A meeting in Germany in the autumn between the Prince of Wales and Princess Alix, as if by chance, was arranged, and passed off satisfactorily.

Notwithstanding her age, she retained traces of her early beauty, and on one occasion late in life when in the presence of Adelina Patti, friends declared they were "the youngest looking old women in England."

She dressed her hair in exactly the same style as when she was Princess of Wales and the "Alexandra fringe" was the last word in coiffures. Her clothes conformed to the mode she made fashionable when the famous French couturier Worth built her frocks which caused her to be regarded as the best dressed woman in England.

Her Long Widowhood

The queen mother, after the death of King Edward, made her home at Marlborough House, where she passed more than 30 years of her married life. Besides her country residence at Sandringham, she had a villa on Klampenborg Bay, seven miles from Copenhagen where, annually in August, before the war, she held happy reunions with her Danish kinfolk.

For thirty-eight years the princess and her husband stood in the shadow of the British throne, maintaining the difficult position of prospective King and Queen with dignity. After Alexandra had become the Princess of Wales the aristocracy of England surrendered to her without a murmur. She ruled the "ladies' set" among European royal society as effectually as her husband, as Prince of Wales, ruled the "men's set." From the day of her marriage to the time of her death no word other than good was ever said of Queen Alexandra. By her evenness of temper, her invariable kindness and tact and her gentle humor she won all hearts and even Queen Victoria's sadness melted under her influence. During the thirty-eight years before Prince Albert Edward became King and Princess Alexandra queen they traveled extensively through the European continent, India, Egypt and other oriental countries. But their happiest days were spent at home, particularly at Sandringham, their beloved Norfolk home. They took the deepest interest in their estate and in the people of their village and were proud of the model conditions existing in their domain. Princess Alexandra always had a warm spot in her heart for Sandringham and its people, and when she became queen her relations to her faithful subjects at Sandringham remained unchanged. Many stories are told giving evidence of her kindness of heart, helpfulness and humane sympathy.

AN ACCOMPLISHED PIANIST VERY FOND OF GARDENING

Queen Alexandra's favorite gems were diamonds, rubies and pearls, and her favorite flowers were carnations and roses. Music and photography were her chief recreations. She was an accomplished pianist, a water color painter of no mean order, and had an excellent knowledge of gardening.

SCHOOL ISSUE, STREET PAVING AND BLUE LAWS ARE EXPECTED TO CAUSE HOT FIGHT IN HASTINGS

Dr. J. H. Hess, the Present Reeve, Will Be Opposed By A. E. Chapman.

MANY FOR COUNCIL.

Ten Men Named as Possible Candidates—Trustees To Run Again.

(By a Staff Reporter.)

HASTINGS, November 20. — One year ago the village council was elected by acclamation, but one of the hottest municipal elections in the history of Hastings, is in prospect. There are plenty of issues, chief among which is the question of a new Public School building, a matter that has caused friction between the Council and the School Board since early in the year, and which is still undecided.

The question of street paving was also raised during the year and moral issues were not lacking. Some of the residents are of the opinion that the lid in Hastings has been clamped down too tight by the present civic administration and that police regulations are in the nature of antiquated blue laws.

Contest for Reeveship.

There are two candidates for the reeveship, both veterans in the municipal service. Dr. J. H. Hess, who at present holds the position, will aspire to succeed himself, and his opponent will be A. E. Chapman, whose civic experience dates back over 25 years.

The Doctor's Record.

Dr. Hess has been an active official both in the Village and Counties Councils. He was mainly instrumental in bringing to the village an experienced police officer from outside, and the result has been a marked improvement in the outward behavior, at least, of a certain element as well as an increase in the civic revenue in the shape of fines. At all times anything like disorder has been suppressed, and the field of the bootlegger has been circumscribed.

The Question of Paving.

Dr. Hess, early in the year, took up the question of paving, and under the direction of the Council a plan of the leading streets was drawn up by an expert engineer at no expense to the taxpayers. This was submitted to the Highway Department and approved. The village could have had the streets paved, the Government paying 50 per cent. of the cost of improving a strip 20 feet wide, but it was impossible to get a start this year. Reeve Hess has always pointed out that delay is dangerous in this matter, as the special grant referred to is likely to be cancelled at any time in which case the village will be obliged to pay the entire cost of any paving that may be done.

The School Question.

When Reeve Hess and his colleagues took charge of affairs they were faced with a deficit of $2,500. Half of this has been wiped of the slate this year, and the tax rate has been reduced three mills, this saving being effected on the school estimates. The School Board asked for a levy of 13 mills, which would give them a surplus, and Reeve Hess and the majority of the council held that raising more than was actually required would be not only unbusinesslike, but illegal. The school rate was finally passed at 10 mills.

Reeve Hess realizes that Hastings needs a new Public school building, but he was opposed to the idea, discussed in the early stages of the agitation, of building a Continuation school as well, a project that, was eventually abandoned. He insisted that before a by-law be submitted to the people that the ratepayers should be given all information as to the cost and that everything in connection with the matter should be up to the legal requirements.

Dr. Hess is serving his fifth year as a member of the Counties Council and takes an active part in the deliberation of that body both on the floor and in committee. If he is re-elected reeve it is likely that he will be a candidate for the Wardenship, but his chances to attain that honor are considerably lessened by the fact that Walter M. Fowlds, while reeve of Hastings in 1924, was elected Warden of the United Counties. In point of seniority, however, Dr. Hess stands well up at the top of those who are elegible.

Mr. Chapman a Candidate.

A. E. Chapman has announced himself as a candidate for the Reeveship. He has been a member of the Council at different times during the past 25 years, and 15 years ago was defeated for the Reeveship by Walter M. Fowlds. Mr. Chapman says that it is too early in the season to announce his platform in detail, but on some of the issues he makes his position clear.

When he was asked his opinion by a taxpayer on the moral uplift movement that has pervaded the village during the past year, he said that if he were Reeve the streets of the village would be kept free from rowdyism. No man who misbehaved himself in public could hope to escape a police court hearing. At the same time Mr. Chapman would not go so far as to drag a man before a magistrate simply because he carried an odor of liquor on his breath.

Mr. Chapman says that the streets —especially the main thoroughfares—of the village are in need of improvement, but he would not spend a cent of the public money in paying for plans for paving before estimates of the cost of a water and sewer system were first obtained. It would, he says, be poor policy to lay down a pavement, only to tear it up in the future to lay sewer and water pipes.

A Delicate Question.

The matter of building a new school, Mr. Chapman regards as a delicate question, and he sees a way to have the taxpayers pass judgment upon it. The six members of the School Boad have been unanimously in favor of a new building. Three of these come up for selection this year and the men who oppose them must make known their position on the school question. The verdict of the people as recorded at the election should be accepted as final.

Potential Candidates.

Ten of the leading citizens are being urged to stand for the Council, these being: ex-Warden Walter M. Fowlds, Alfred Spooner, William Lynch, Frank Runnels, J. A. Brown, Dr. W. E. Wilson, C. B. Platt, J. A. McGrail, L. E. Kelly, and T. A. Coughlan.

The School Trustees.

Harry Dodd, George Whitred and John Stuart are the retiring members of the School Board and it is likely, in order to make a fair test of public opinion on their attitude on the school building question, all three will stand for re-election. The trustees who hold over for another year are: A. V. German, chairman; C. P. Doughty, secretary-treasurer, and R. N. Simpson.

TRAFFIC PUZZLE CAMPBELLFORD

Who Is To Blame For Odd Collision Near Trent Town.

MAY BE SUIT.

CAMPBELLFORD, Nov. 20. — A man driving in a car meets another auto which is on the wrong side of the road. Believing that the other would turn into its proper place, the driver of the first car holds on his way. When the two autos are within a few feet of each other, the first driver, fearing a collision makes a sharp turn to the left side of the road. At the same moment, the second driver turns to the right, and the result is a collision, in which ooth autos are damaged and a which both autos are damaged and a is severely injured.

Such a case actually occurred here near the town limits, and now the question arises, which of the drivers is responsible for the damage and the injury to the young lady? Is it the man who was going wrong but who tried to right himself, or the driver on the proper side of the road who to avoid trouble swerved to the left?

That is an interesting point in traffic regulations which will be aired in court as soon as the injured young lady is able to start suit and appear in court.

YOUNG PEOPLE MET TO HEAR REPORTS

Miss Marjorie Sayles Reported on Conference Meeting at Port Hope.

MILLBROOK, Nov. 20.—The Young People's League held an interesting meeting this week, the special feature of the programme being the report of the inaugural Young People's convention for the Bay of Quinte Conference held last week in Port Hope, the delegate, Marjorie Sayles, giving a most comprehensive account of the two days' addresses, business items and the organization effected.

Previous to the report, the Missionary Vice-President, Mrs. G. W. Sayles, devoted about twenty minutes to information relative to her department. Some changes in the manner of remitting the money from the Forward Movement were decided upon at the recent convention, but the missionary, Rev. R. Hibbard of Chentu, West China, toward whose support the one hundred dollars raised locally is contributed, will remain the same.

The hymns used at the meeting were those sung at Port Hope during the convention sessions.

Mission Circle.

The November meeting of the Golden Links Mission Circle of the United Church was held on Tuesday evening at the home of the President, Mrs. J. McKnight, a fair number being in attendance.

During the discussion of business items, it was decided to have the "Travelling Basket" begin its rounds the first of December, so that selection from its contents may be made for Christmas gifts. The basket is a new idea locally, but has been successfully tried in other places. It will have a number of useful and fancy articles, and will be passed on from home to home, each person selecting something from what it contains, putting the money in the mite box and entering in the note book, which will also be among its contents, the article each is expected to contribute, with its approximate value. In this way the basket will always be supplied with a variety of goods for sale, and finances will be increased from the venture.

Mrs. V. C. Lambert, the Circle Honorary President, gave an instructive talk on the home mission work being done among the foreign population of Oshawa. It is estimated that of the 18,000 people in Oshawa 5,000 are foreigners, and of these 3,500 are Ukrainians. A native pastor and a deaconness, Miss K. Beith (supported by the Women's Missionary Society) serve the needs of these people, the work of Miss Beith including mothers' clubs, mission bands, home visiting and a Sunday School with an attendance of fifty. The C.G.I.T. groups, mission circles and mission bands of the churches in the city give much appreciated help in providing programmes, treats of various kinds, teachers in the Sunday School, etc., in this mission field which lies at their very door.

Mrs. McKnight took up the chapter from the study book, "Building with India," the Circle girls studying this year the same book as the Women's Missionary Auxiliary. As the organization was formerly Methodist, this is the first year the members have had a personal interest in missions in India, the United Church having a number of stations and workers in this great field.

The autograph quilt which the Circle has completed will be auctioned off at the basket social to be held under C.G.I.T. auspices on Wednesday, Nov. 25, following the sale of the baskets. A reserve bid will prevent the quilt, which is a handsome one, being disposed of too cheaply.

A missionary and his family of three children, in British Columbia, will be remembered with a box of good things by the Circle at Christmas time.

Mrs. McKnight provided a treat of home-made candy, while the members looked over a selection of beads which Mrs. Lambert brought from Oshawa on a recent visit, the sale of these meaning an increase of funds for the local society. They may be seen in the window of Lambert's bakery during the remainder of this week. The minister in Hespeler, who undertook this method of raising missionary money, allows a percentage to the local societies, and gives all he makes above actual cost to the general funds of the missionary department of the church. Put together with tiny gold links, instead of being strung on cord, the strands, which are really beautiful, are stronger than the ones ordinarily bought.

The Executive of the Circle will consider plans in the immediate future of increasing interest and attendance at the monthly meetings.

To Light Plant.

M. McDowell, whose commercial poultry plant is situated just outside the corporation limits, is having his property wired for electric lighting. His residence and poultry houses will be supplied with this modern convenience.

Last year Mr. McDowell tried the experiment during the late fall and winter months of lighting part of his poultry plant with gasoline lanterns for two hours or more at night to increase production, and found results quite satisfactory. The electric lighting will permit the experiment on a larger scale and with less inconvenience and labor to the owner this winter.

RECOUNT GIVES SPOTTON SEAT

Conservative Candidate in North Huron Displaces King, Progressive.

MAJORITY IS 11.

GODERICH, Nov. 20 (Canadian Press)—As the result of the decision handed out last night by Judge Lewis on a recount in the North Huron Federal election, George W. Spotton has been conceded the election by majority of eleven, the figures being 5,088 for Spotton and 5,077 for King. King, who represented the Progressive forces, formerly held a majority of 169.

A recount was asked by George Spotton because a number of ballots in numbers two and six in Grey and number seven in Ashfield polling divisions had counterfoils attached.

They aggregate a total of 342 votes.

TORONTO, Nov. 20 (Canadian Press)—Announcement of the result in North Huron which gives the seat to the Conservative, G. W. Spotton, now places the Conservative strength at 118 seats while the Liberals have 100, Progressives 23, Labor 2 and Independent 1. One seat (Bagot) is vacant.

SCHOOL BY-LAW HAS BEEN FOUND

Secretary of Board Had Missing Document in His Possession.

WAS ON VACATION.

(By a Staff Reporter.)

HASTINGS, Nov. 20.— At the November meeting of the Village Council the by-law prepared by the School Board to provide for the building of a new Public school, and which the Board asked the Council to submit to the people, turned up missing. Trustee Dodd, who represented the Board at the meeting, said Secretary C. P. Doughty had given him to understand that the by-law had been placed in the hands of Village Clerk Wilson. The latter, however, had no recollection of receiving it and could not, aftre diligent search, find it among his papers.

The mystery has been cleared up, but not before some hard feeling had been engendered between the two bodies. At the time of the Council meeting Secretary Doughty was on his vacation, but he has returned and the by-law has been found in his possession.

NEW MEMBERS OF FRENCH ACADEMY

Paul Valery, Poet and Critic, Successor to Anatole France.

PARIS, Nov. 20. — (Canadian Press.)—Anatole France's chair was the only one really contested in the election Thursday of three members of the French Academy and the elevation of Paul Valery to France's place among the forty immortals was the most interesting of the day.

M. Valery, who is one of the most brilliant critics and poets in France ran second to Leon Berard, former minister of public instruction, on the first two ballots, but took the lead when Victor Berard, a senator and also former minister of instruction who had been third, was counted out. M. Valery won the election on the fourth ballot with the necessary majority of seventeen, as there were only 32 academicians at the sitting.

M. Clemenceau, who had been elected to the Academy but never received, was among the absentees.

The Duc de La Force, and Louis Bertrand, the author, were elected on the first ballot to fill the vacancies caused by the deaths of the Duc de Hausanville, and Maurice Barres, respectively.

FRENCH PLAN TRIP TO POLE

Planes Will Be Taken Along On Specially Built Sledges.

FLY TO NEW YORK.

PARIS, November 20 — Canadian Press. — The French navy department plans an expedition to the North Pole next spring, and a subsequent airplane flight from the pole to New York City, it was announced to-day.

Supplied and manned by the navy department, and equipped with scientific apparatus, the expedition will be known as the "French Air Mission to the North Pole."

The expedition will leave Dunkirk, France about the end of April, establish a base at Spitsbergen, Norwegian Archipelago, and then strike off for the pole, carrying the sea-planes on specially devised auto-sledges, capable of travelling on either water or ice.

RABBIT REARING NEW INDUSTRY

Business is Growing Up Around Suburbs of Victoria.

HIGH PRICES PAID

VICTORIA, B.C., Nov. 20. — A little-noticed industry but one that bids fair to attain large proportions on Vancouver Island is rising almost in the middle of the city and around suburban homes—pedigree rabbit rearing. On the Saanich Peninsula alone there are now more than twenty rabittries, some already operating on a large scale, and others fast growing to sizeable proportions.

While the production of thoroughbred rabbits for stock purposes is at present the most paying end of the modern rabbitry business, the possibilities of fur raising and meat production loom large on the market side of the industry now in its infant stages compared to the proportions it has reached in other countries.

It may come as a surprise to the layman to learn that a thoroughbred rabbit brings $100 to $200 in the market for breeding purposes, and that it is a common thing for certain breeds to attain a weight of from fifteen to eighteen pounds.

The growing demand for furs for women's dress and other uses has led to a great increase in the use of dyed furs. The rabbit supplies a very large percentage of the artificially prepared furs, passing under trade names.

CASSIAR INVADED BY GOLD DREDGES

Country is Being Converted From "Poor Man's Camp" To Big Field.

TELEGRAPH CREEK, B. C., Nov. 20.—The coming of the gold dredge is expected to make the Cassiar one of the world's most important placer gold producing areas. The country is being converted from "a poor man's camp" to a field for operation by big corporations backed by larger capital.

The early excitement that followed in the wake of the sensational discovery of gold on Gold Pan Creek last fall has died out. The days of the hand-rocker and sluice box —primitive equipment of the "poor man's camp" are passing even in that remote section of British Columbia's mining districts, and are being followed by dredging and hydraulic operations. Tons of machinery are being hauled into the Cassiar now on tractors and and by next spring modern mining apparatus will be drawing rich treasure from the creeks which in the past have been worked by nothing more effective than a pick and shovel.

All the gold on the creeks is very coarse and nugget values average from $2 to $20, although one was uncovered recently valued at $60.

By the overflowing of the Yellow River, an area of more than 1500 sq. miles of China has recently been inundated. This is said to be the worst flood since 1887.

The Slight Cold Of To-day May Be Serious To-morrow

On the first appearance of a cough or cold, do not neglect it, but get rid of it at once before it has a chance to grow worse and becomes settled on the lungs, for once it does become deep-seated you are going to have a lot of trouble in getting rid of it.

Our advice to you is that on the first sign of a cough or cold you should procure a bottle of as by its timely use you may save yourself many years of suffering from some serious bronchial or lung troubles.

"Dr. Wood's" has been on the market for the past 37 years; so you are not experimenting with some new and untried remedy; put up only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

RUM PEDDLERS OPERA PATRONS

Chicago Bootleggers Ardent Admirer of Song Birds of the Opera.

OFTEN "STEPPED OUT."

CHICAGO, Nov. 20.—When gunmen interrupted the shoe-shining porter in Isadore Paul's barber shop Tuesday night to shoot his customer, the eminent "Samoots" Amatuma, a generous patron was lost by the Chicago Civic Opera Company.

Like the Genna brothers, John Scalisei, Albert Anselni and other well-to-do bootleggers of the Italian quarter, "Samoots" was an enthusiastic lover of the opera. He had four opera tickets in his pocket when his enemies shot him down. The head barber, the manicurist and the porter had just finished shaving and shining him for his evening at the Auditorium.

The unidentified gunmen acted as if they had expected to find the sawed-off bootlegger in the barber shop. If they had read the opera advertisements they undoubtedly did know that "Samoots" would be stepping out, for Tuesday night's opera was "Aida," with Rosa Raisa and Virgilio Lazzari starring.

Little Hope for Recovery.

"Samoots" was still alive today and hopeful of hearing many more operas, but his doctors shook their heads.

Lazzari, Claudia Muzio and Tito Schipa are gods in "Little Italy," and as the plutocrats of the quarter the bootleggers were always first to honor them. Last season the Genna brothers, rich, affable and generous, were the most conspicuous entertainers. Since the close of last season some of the brothers have been killed and the others have been frightened out of Chicago by gang enemies. This would have been "Samoots'" season, for the passing of the Gennas left him the most important bootlegger in the quarter.

Dull Season for Stars.

Now it looks like a dull winter for some of the singers. No more spaghetti dinners in Taylor street, with the rich brothers Genna pouring rare wines. No more orchids with the card of Sig. Amatuma attached. No more baskets of fruit from that distinguished cheese merchant and shotgun expert, A. Anselni. "Diamond Joe" Esposito remains, of course, the suavest host of all, but the social calendar will be dull until the demand for bootleg alcohol creates new capitalists to take the place of those put down and out in the last few months.

Yet the situation isn't altogether gloomy. For one person in the operatic world the shotguns of the Weiss-McCarthy "mob" have made music sweeter than the singing of Tito Schipa. He is "Mr. Bennett," the unobtrusive, almost unknown claque master. Every time a bootlegger is shot the stock of "Mr. Bennett" jumps a point.

"Mr. Bennett" lives by furnishing claques for opera stars who want to be sure of lots of applause, whether they flat their high notes or not. On West Madison, South Canal and South Jefferson streets, where the jobless men of North and South America sooner or later land, "Mr. Bennett" has hundreds of occasional employees who know how to stamp their feet and whistle when applause is needed. Given an order, he'll pack as many of them as may be needed into the galleries of the Auditorium and lift the roof with ovations for his patron.

Since the Volstead Act became law, "Mr. Bennett's" business hasn't been quite as brisk as it used to be. Bootlegging has created a new leisure class in "Little Italy." Men with a natural love of music, who used to find it hard to buy gallery seats for two or three operas a season, have been made so rich that they can afford to buy the best seats in the Auditorium every time an Italian singer is billed. Their applause, given without charge, has hurt the claquing business a lot.

Now that the Gennas are dead or in flight, Anselni and Scalise on their way to the penitentiary and Amatuma in the Jefferson Park Hospital with little chance of hearing "Aida" sung again, "Mr. Bennett" and his army of whistlers can look forward to better times.

Speculators For Advance Control Stock Market

NEW YORK, Nov. 20.—(Canadian Press.)— Speculators for an advance gained control in to-day's stock market with buying influenced by President Coolidge's speech to the New York business men last night, the retention of the 3 1-2 per cent. rediscount rate by the New York Federal Reserve Bank, the prompt over-subscription of the $100,000,000 Italian loan and constructive trade news. Motors showed signs of renewed popularity despite a temporary sinking spell around mid-day. Rails were again leaders of advance, although substantial gains also were made by a number of food merchandise, copper and tobacco issues.

FINE COMEDY IN HALL AT LYCEUM

Sacred Heart Sodality Repeated "Patsy From Dakota.

"Patsy from Dakota," a sparkling three-act comedy put on with great success in their own hall some time ago by the Young Ladies' Sodality of the Sacred Heart Parish, was repeated last evening in the assembly hall of St. Alphonsus' Lyceum, which was filled for the occasion with an enthusiastic audience that appeared to enjoy the well-presented little play very much.

The play is in three acts, with a prologue in which the following actors take part: The Misses Mary Grady, Josephine O'Keefe, Amelia Asta and Margaret McCarthy, and Messrs. Victor Grady, Lorne Ritchie, Joseph Collins and Herbert Masterson. Those taking part in the play: Celestine, the Maid (Miss Louise Letellier); Aunt Elinor, Mrs. Madison (Miss Madeline Asta); Patsy, from Dakota (Miss Frances Collins); Mrs. Repeater Miss Mae Rose); Mrs. Makepeace (Miss Carmel Fitzgerald); Miss Virginia Carter (Miss Minnie Allen); Miss Kuytus, a reporter (Miss Ethel Armstrong); Miss Ethelyn Astor (Miss Margaret Willard); Countess Duval (Miss Annie Gentille); Louis Duval (Jos. Doley); Signor Carboni, a violinist (Gerald Collins).

The Sacred Heart Orchestra rendered several fine selections, with the following players taking part: Messrs. Harold Armstrong, Gerald Collins, Paul Koster and Francis O'Keefe, assisted by Mr. Joseph Minicolo. Specialties were introduced between acts by Miss Alma Goselin, who gave a reading; Miss Madeline Curtin, who danced the Highland Fling, and the Sword Dance in Scotch costume; Chas. Liebers, Jr., with violin numbers, and Little Miss Guess, a clever feminine impersonation done by James Moloney.

Accompanists for the evening were the Misses Josephine O'Keefe and Ethel Armstrong and Harold Armstrong.

REV. DR. BLAGRAVE WAS RE-ELECTED

Represents Arts and Divinity on Trinity College Corporation.

SAVAGES DO NOT HAVE OUR DISEASES.

Tuberculosis, cancer, 'flu, pneumonia and most of our diseases are unknown among savages. The reason is that they live upon natural foods. When they contact civilization and begin to live upon civilized man's white flour and refined "ghost cereals" they die off quickly with civilized man's diseases, but not if they stick to their own natural foods. Thus it is shown that it is civilized man's foods that cause his omnipresent diseases.

And besides food science has proved that the most fatal of civilized man's food practices is the refining out of his chief foodstuffs, the grains, their body-building mineral salts, fats and vitamins.

Dr. Robt. G. Jackson of Toronto, editor of the Dietetic Age of New York, circulating among physicians, has taught this for years. To counteract the effect of these refined foods, Dr. Jackson devised Roman Meal, a natural whole grain food, made from whole wheat, whole rye, flaxin and bran, rich in all those elements refined out of white flour and "ghost cereals." Roman Meal eaten several times each week, in any of the delightful ways in which it may be cooked, will compensate the deficiencies of white flour, etc., and promote good health. It prevents indigestion and positively relieves constipation. Beef has 952 food units to the pound, Roman Meal has 1,600. Especially valuable for nursing and expectant mothers and children from the 10th month. At grocers.

DRIVE STARTING FOR SANITARIUM

Teams Will Canvass City For Funds For Beck Memorial.

MEET TO-NIGHT.

A meeting was held in Hooper's parlors last night to consider plans for a canvass of the city for the Beck Memorial Endowment for the Queen Alexandra sanitarium. The matter was thoroughly discussed from different angles.

The subject was introduced by Mayor Turner in a short speech.

Vincent Eastwood said that the question had not been laid before the people properly. The citizens, including himself, did not know how the sanitarium was run or whether Peterborough people could go there. Others considered that they were paying for it through their light bills, while in Peterborough, if not in other cities, there were many who blamed Adam Beck for the prices paid the holders of Peterborough Light stock.

S. R. Armstrong stressed the point that it was as a memorial to Sir Adam Beck that he was behind the plan. A great deal of money had been saved to the people of this city, and of this province through the policies of Sir Adam Beck, he said.

Other speakers said that the sanitarium had done good work when Sir Adam had looked after the endowment, and that now it would have to be kept up by the people, or the work discontinued.

A point that was stressed was that the people were being approached for money for church purposes and that many were saving for Christmas. This was somewhat discounted by the fact that the pledge cards that are signed call for payments over a period of two years.

Arrangements were made for team captains, and those heading teams will meet tonight to report on their teams and to discuss further the advisability of making the canvass now.

DR. SUTTON FLAYS

of the Board of Health, if they allow themselves to speak out, will tell you they can't get on with anything—the pasteurization of milk or any othe reform — because being only laymen they can't stand up against the obstacles offered by the M.O.H.'

"That's enough of that. I'm sorry I had to come out as plainly as I have, but it is necessary."

After telling of the superiority of the Oshawa system, Dr. Sutton made a stirring plea for interest among Kiwanians and all citizens interested in the health of the community. The Public Health Nurse is the keystone of the health work, Dr. Sutton said, "and you might have known much more about it if the Red Cross Nurse had had the opportunity to do some work when she was here. She was sent here to work under the M.O.H. in an effort to demonstrate the value of Public Health Nursing, but could find nothing to do. No one would tell her what to do. She begged in vain for an opportunity to work."

Says Slackness Here.

Weekly report cards are sent to the department by the municipalities, Dr. Sutton said, and every week there are some diseases listed on Oshawa's card. Peterborough's card, on the other hand, will have none listed for several successive weeks. "Yet I know Oshawa is less afflicted with communicable diseases than Peterborough. When we have a Board of Health that is alive to its duties these diseases will be traced and known.

"In Peterborough there is no effort made to trace scarlet fever and similar diseases to their source or to find out anything about them. And if scarlet fever gets into a place His Satanic Majesty alone knows where it will end. If the medical fraternity has confidence in the Board of Health and knows its reports will be sympathetically and intelligently received and acted upon, then these cases will be reported, and even slim clues will be given for the Board to work on."

Venereal Disease.

Venereal disease is the curse of the age, Dr. Sutton said, and strong measures are needed to put it down. This city has its full quota of sufferers. Out of 20,000 people fully 2,000 are venereal disease sufferers, some of the cases not being dangerous to others. More and more cases are coming to the attention of the venereal disease clinic. "Syphilis is the great killer of the race, taking men at an age where their ability and strength is just beginning to manifest itself in usefulness of the community.

"Life, liberty and happiness, these are the aims of the efforts for public health. Life must be begun well, with proper birth and healthy parents; it must remain full and active, realizing the fullest possibilities of the human frame; it must have the liberty to enjoy life and use perfect health for the betterment of the individual, the family and the country.

The buildings of men are probably the best records of accomplishment, but only some buildings are of stone, brick and mortar. The building of a healthy and happy town is the best work of man.

"The town that adopts the 'hush, hush' policy is going back. The town that says 'Don't say that, it will hurt the town—it's a fine town, a real good town'—that town is a town in which decay is setting in and it will be a dead town if not retrieved.

"The town which has the guts to acknowledge things aren't right and are going to be right, that is the live town. Don't fear to acknowledge that which is wrong, and don't hesitate to rectify it.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE.

TO WAR VETERANS.

Dear Sir: At a meeting of the Executive Committee, I have been instructed to invite the returned soldiers, who are holding a meeting tonight at the Armouries, to come over and make free use of the G.W.V.A. Hall, and I trust that they will accept this invitation in the wholehearted spirit in which it has been tendered.

I would like to further state that the G.W.V.A. Hall is not only open to all returned men at all times, but the officers of the association can only feel the greatest regret when they hear of some individual arranging a meeting elsewhere, as we feel that this hall should be the headquarters for all returned men.

Regarding the question of unity which I understand is to be the main topic of the evening, the local branch of the G.W.V.A. is on record as being unanimously in favor of one organization, but I would like to here suggest that in Peterboro we have never had but one organization. If the unattached veterans really wish for unity, the thing for them to do forthwith is to get into that organization and then there need be no question of unity in this city.

Our association has never been a closed corporation. Any and all returned men are welcome to join. It has been said by a great many returned men that they will wait and see what is done about unity, and I can only ask them to recall "the wait and see" methods of certain men in Britain early in the war.

Others shout from practically every street corner of the city—That as long as we have the chirpers and cockneys up there, they will be d--d if they will join. Well, all I can say is that the same chirpers, etc., made up one large percentage of the 1st Canadian Expeditionary Force, and if we are to have unity, we have got to have all returned men, irrespective of color, race or creed, and all the pleasing titles you wish to give them.

Thanking you, Mr. Editor, for your valuable space, I am, yours faithfully,

G. G. Winterbotham, Commander
Peterboro Branch G.W.V.A.

Speculators For Advance Control Stock Market

NEW YORK, Nov. 20.—(Canadian Press.)— Speculators for an advance gained control in to-day's stock market with buying influenced by President Coolidge's speech to the New York business men last night, the retention of the 3 1-2 per cent. rediscount rate by the New York Federal Reserve Bank, the prompt over-subscription of the $100,000,000 Italian loan and constructive trade news. Motors showed signs of renewed popularity despite a temporary sinking spell around mid-day. Rails were again leaders of advance, although substantial gains also were made by a number of food merchandise, copper and tobacco issues.

FINE COMEDY IN HALL AT LYCEUM

Sacred Heart Sodality Repeated "Patsy From Dakota.

"Patsy from Dakota," a sparkling three-act comedy put on with great success in their own hall some time ago by the Young Ladies' Sodality of the Sacred Heart Parish, was repeated last evening in the assembly hall of St. Alphonsus' Lyceum, which was filled for the occasion with an enthusiastic audience that appeared to enjoy the well-presented little play very much.

The play is in three acts, with a prologue in which the following actors take part: The Misses Mary Grady, Josephine O'Keefe, Amelia Asta and Margaret McCarthy, and Messrs. Victor Grady, Lorne Ritchie, Joseph Collins and Herbert Masterson. Those taking part in the play: Celestine, the Maid (Miss Louise Letellier); Aunt Elinor, Mrs. Madison (Miss Madeline Asta); Patsy, from Dakota (Miss Frances Collins); Mrs. Repeater Miss Mae Rose); Mrs. Makepeace (Miss Carmel Fitzgerald); Miss Virginia Carter (Miss Minnie Allen); Miss Kuyrus, a reporter (Miss Ethel Armstrong); Miss Ethelyn Astor (Miss Margaret Willard); Countess Duval (Miss Annie Gentille); Louis Duval (Jos. Doley); Signor Carboni, a violinist (Gerald Collins).

The Sacred Heart Orchestra rendered several fine selections, with the following players taking part: Messrs. Harold Armstrong, Gerald Collins, Paul Koster and Francis O'Keefe, assisted by Mr. Joseph Minicolo. Specialties were introduced between acts by Miss Alma Goselin, who gave a reading; Miss Madeline Curtin, who danced the Highland Fling, and the Sword Dance in Scotch costume; Chas. Liebers, Jr., with violin numbers, and Little Miss Guess, a clever feminine impersonation done by James Moloney.

Accompanists for the evening were the Misses Josephine O'Keefe and Ethel Armstrong and Harold Armstrong.

REV. DR. BLAGRAVE WAS RE-ELECTED

SAVAGES DO NOT HAVE OUR DISEASES.

Tuberculosis, cancer, 'flu, pneumonia and most of our diseases are unknown among savages. The reason is that they live upon natural foods. When they contact civilization and begin to live upon civilized man's white flour and refined "ghost cereals" they die off quickly with civilized man's diseases, but not if they stick to their own natural foods. Thus it is shown that it is civilized man's foods that cause his omnipresent diseases.

And besides food science has proved that the most fatal of civilized man's food practices is the refining out of his chief foodstuffs, the grains, their body-building mineral salts, fats and vitamins.

Dr. Robt. G. Jackson of Toronto, editor of the Dietetic Age of New York, circulating among physicians, has taught this for years. To counteract the effect of these refined foods, Dr. Jackson devised Roman Meal, a natural whole grain food, made from whole wheat, whole rye, flaxin and bran, rich in all those elements refined out of white flour and "ghost cereals." Roman Meal eaten several times each week, in any of the delightful ways in which it may be cooked, will compensate the deficiencies of white flour, etc., and promote good health. It prevents indigestion and positively relieves constipation. Beef has 952 food units to the pound, Roman Meal has 1,600. Especially valuable for nursing and expectant mothers and children from the 10th month. At grocers.

DRIVE STARTING FOR SANITARIUM

Teams Will Canvass City For Funds For Beck Memorial.

MEET TO-NIGHT.

A meeting was held in Hooper's parlors last night to consider plans for a canvass of the city for the Beck Memorial Endowment for the Queen Alexandra sanitarium. The matter was thoroughly discussed from different angles.

The subject was introduced by Mayor Turner in a short speech.

Vincent Eastwood said that the question had not been laid before the people properly. The citizens, including himself, did not know how the sanitarium was run or whether Peterborough people could go there. Others considered that they were paying for it through their light bills, while in Peterborough, if not in other cities, there were many who blamed Adam Beck for the prices paid the holders of Peterborough Light stock.

S. R. Armstrong stressed the point that it was as a memorial to Sir Adam Beck that he was behind the plan. A great deal of money had been saved to the people of this city, and of this province through the policies of Sir Adam Beck, he said.

Other speakers said that the sanitarium had done good work when Sir Adam had looked after the endowment, and that now it would have to be kept up by the people, or the work discontinued.

A point that was stressed was that the people were being approached for money for church purposes and that many were saving for Christmas. This was somewhat discounted by the fact that the pledge cards that are signed call for payments over a period of two years.

Arrangements were made for team captains, and those heading teams will meet tonight to report on their teams and to discuss further the advisability of making the canvass now.

of the Board of Health, if they allow themselves to speak out, will tell you they can't get on with anything—the pasteurization of milk or any othe reform — because being only laymen they can't stand up against the obstacles offered by the M.O.H.'

"That's enough of that. I'm sorry I had to come out as plainly as I have, but it is necessary."

After telling of the superiority of the Oshawa system, Dr. Sutton made a stirring plea for interest among Kiwanians and all citizens i....rested in the health of the community. The Public Health Nurse is the keystone of the health work, Dr. Sutton said, "and you might have known much more about it if the Red Cross Nurse had had the opportunity to do some work when she was here. She was sent here to work under the M.O.H. in an effort to demonstrate the value of Public Health Nursing, but could find nothing to do. No one would tell her what to do. She begged in vain for an opportunity to work."

Says Sickness Here.

Weekly report cards are sent to the department by the municipalities, Dr. Sutton said, and every week there are some diseases listed on Oshawa's card. Peterborough's card, on the other hand, will have none listed for several successive weeks. "Yet I know Oshawa is less afflicted with communicable diseases than Peterborough. When we have a Board of Health that is alive to its duties these diseases will be traced and known.

"In Peterborough there is no effort made to trace scarlet fever and similar diseases to their source or to find out anything about them. And if scarlet fever gets into a place His Satanic Majesty alone knows where it will end. If the medical fraternity has confidence in the Board of Health and knows its reports will be sympathetically and intelligently received and acted upon, then these cases will be reported, and even slim clues will be given for the Board to work on."

Venereal Disease.

Venereal disease is the curse of the age, Dr. Sutton said, and strong measures are needed to put it down. This city has its full quota of sufferers. Out of 20,000 people fully 2,000 are venereal disease sufferers, some of the cases not being dangerous to others. More and more cases are coming to the attention of the venereal disease clinic. "Syphilis is the great killer of the race, taking men at an age where their ability and strength is just beginning to manifest itself in usefulness of the community.

"Life, liberty and happiness, these are the aims of the efforts for public health. Life must be begun well, with proper birth and healthy parents; it must remain full and active, realizing the fullest possibilities of the human frame; it must have the liberty to enjoy life and use perfect health for the betterment of the individual, the family and the country.

The buildings of men are probably the best records of accomplishment, but only some buildings are of stone, brick and mortar. The building of a healthy and happy town is the best work of man.

"The town that adopts the 'hush, hush' policy is going back. The town that says 'Don't say that, it will hurt the town—it's a fine town, a real good town'—that town is a town in which decay is setting in and it will be a dead town if not retrieved.

"The town which has the guts to acknowledge things aren't right and are going to be right, that is the live town. Don't fear to acknowledge that which is wrong, and don't hesitate to rectify it.

"From now on this campaign is not mine — it is Kiwanis' and Rotary's and every citizen's campaign. I have endeavored to show the need for reform. Your Kiwanis motto is 'We Build.' Start in this health campaign to build from the ground up — a better, healthier Peterborough."

Take a Trip with the "Ad" Man to Toyland

A NEW CRESSMAN CHRISTMAS FEATURE

Listen and he'll tell you what he saw—Dolls that walked and flirted and said "Ma-Ma" as he hurried by to ask the Toyman about the new Ford models; then, of course, there were Wrecking Trucks and Steam Shovels and Steam Engines that generated electricity, Motorcycles, Shiny Limousines and Garages, funny Clowns that swung on bars, rode tricycles, fought with each other, chased pigs and danced to the tunes of the Horns, Drums, Fiddles and Saxophones that Santa supplied on his last trip. But then he saw so much it couldn't all be told on this page, so come and see for yourselves on Saturday.

BETHANY YP LEAGUE WEEKLY MEETING

Pontypool League Visited Church and Put On Programme.

BETHANY, Nov. 20.—On Wednesday evening the Sunday school room of the United Church was comfortably filled for the regular weekly meeting of the Y.P.L. This was a special occasion as the Pontypool Young People's League was present and put on the programme. P.C. Brown, the president, opened the meeting. He then called upon the president of the Pontypool League to come forward, which he did, explaining that it was citizenship night. Rev. H. Wilkinson was called upon to take the devotional period. He read a portion of the last part of the 9th chapter of Mark, and gave a very interesting talk on these verses, summing them up under one heading, "True greatness", and closing with prayer that all might grasp the vision of "true greatness."

Mrs. George Wilder sang two very appropriate solos "O Canada", and the "Maple Leaf". Miss Iva Shaw was at the organ. The topic on citizenship as it affects the young people, especially of school age, was of unusual interest and was given by Mr. Warner, while Miss Mariette Marvin gave a short reading on Canada and its unlimited possibilities for good citizens. Mr. Jack Payne gave a splendid recitation. After singing the hymn, "Blest be the tie that binds our hearts in Christian love", the young president, Mr. Herrington, called upon Mr. Walter Rowland, 3rd vice president, to take charge. Mr. Rowland welcomed the Pontypool Young People and congratulated them on their programme, telling them that he had himself learned something through their efforts and announced a hymn "Onward Christian Soldiers" which was sung heartily by all. The young people then divided themselves into groups and refreshments of sandwiches, cake and coffee were served by the social committee, under the leadership of Mrs. P. C. Brown. The Mizpah Benediction "May the Lord watch between me and thee while we are absent one from the other" was used for the closing.

The auction sale of household furniture of Mr. Geo. McCartney was well attended on Wednesday afternoon. Mr. James Roddy of Springville was the auctioneer. The articles sold brought good prices.

Mr. Cecil Ward of Toronto spent a few days this week with his mother, Mrs. John Ward, before going to Detroit and other American cities which he intends visiting this winter.

Mr. Louis Staples took a car load of stock to Toronto on Monday returning home on Tuesday night.

Rev. and Mrs. A. Poulter were visitors to Peterboro on Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Waram and Mrs. Taylor attended the Royal Winter Fair in Toronto on Tuesday.

Mrs. Arthur Flack and Mrs. Wm. Hanna were visiting friends in Peterboro for a few days this week.

Mr. Christie Weatherilt of Nestleton visited Mrs. Joe Weatherilt and daughter, Miss Lily, on Wednesday.

Mr. W. A. Jakeman was a business visitor to Toronto on Wednesday.

Mr. J. Hirshburg of Toronto was a business visitor to the village for a few days this week.

Mr. Joseph Johnston of Springville was a visitor to the village on Wednesday.

CENTRE HASTINGS RELIGIOUS COUNCIL

Over One Hundred Delegates Attended Annual Sessions Yesterday.

TWEED, Nov. 20.—(Special to the Examiner).—Tweed was the mecca on Thursday of Sunday school workers from all over Center Hastings, it being the occasion of the annual meeting of the Religious Education Council of Center Hastings. Afternoon and evening sessions were held in the United Church. After devotional exercises at 2.30 p.m. by Rev. W. H. Rodgers, President George West extended greetings to the hundred and more delegates present. The reports of county department superintendents were next presentd as follows: Children's Division, Mrs. G. A. Meiklejohn; Boys' Work, Mr. Winston Gordon; Girls' Work, Mrs. W. H. Rodgers; Young People's Department, Mr. Wilson; Adult Division, Mr. B. Ketcheson; Home Department, Mr. Hector Wood; Teacher Training, Miss Clute; Missionary Department, Mrs. John Kingston; Temperance Department, Mr. J. F. Baker. Each was followed by discussion.

Next followed the treasurer's and secretary's reports by Mr. W. S. Gordon and Mr. J. F. Baker. A vote of appreciation of Mr. Gordon's services to the Council was unanimously passed. This gentleman also received heartiest congratulations upon being appointed the new president of the O.R.E.C. Miss Bertha Laine gave an address on county, township and school standards, this lady being superintendent of the Children's Division of the O.R.E.C. Supper was served in the basement by the Senior Girls' class of Tweed United Church. Supper hour conferences were held under the leadership of Miss Laine and Rev. R. B. Ferris, general superintendent O.R.E.C. The evening session was preceded by a pipe organ recital from 7.30 to 8 by Rev. F. J. Horwood, Mus. Bac. of Marmora. Special music was furnished by the choir, installation of officers carried out and among addresses given was a rousing one by the Rev. R. B. Ferris.

WOMEN'S PAGE

LOCAL COUNCIL OF WOMEN HAS ADDRESS BY MISS EDITH MURPHY

League of Nations Effectively Described—How it Functions.

MASS OF BUSINESS.

Many Movements on Foot To Aid Children of Poor Parents.

A well attended meeting of the Local Council of Women was held in the green room of the Y.W.C.A. yesterday afternoon, with the president, Mrs. A. Stevenson, in the chair.

The minutes of the previous meeting were read by Mrs. J. Wearing, the roll was called by Mrs. A. Mowat, and Mrs. Stevenson read the agenda of the executive meeting now being held at Kingston, and of the Provincial Council meeting to be held early in December. Returns for tickets for "Drusilla with a Million," produced at the Royal Theatre this week under the auspices of the Local Council, are not all in as yet.

The agenda for the executive meeting contains consideration of many items of interest to the local members. The International Council is concerned with the omission of women from the League of Nations' commission, with regard to slavery, and is anxious that the teaching of the League be made a law in different countries. Women should look after the minorities in their land, to see that they get justice, they want women policemen with the same status as the male officers, and urge that women should ally themselves with different political parties and study their policies. They want information on the legal position of alien children, also with regard to the death rate in illegitimate births. They are anxious also that gifted children of poor parents should have educational facilities afforded them, regardless of class or sex.

An association to look after the conservation of wild life of the Dominion is urged, also that women should be included on juries trying criminal cases where women and children are concerned. "No true bill in offenses involving women and children should be returned unless at least one-quarter of the panel is composed of women jurors."

Provincial Council Agenda.

The importance of including a study of the aims and work of the League of Nations in the regular school curriculum was the main item in the proposed agenda for the Provincial Council meeting, and a suggestion was made that, in view of the negligent use of the franchise by many people that the conferring of the franchise on men and women when they come of age, should be made the occasion of a special municipal ceremony of some sort, so as to impress upon the voters the importance of the franchise and its proper use. Dominion Day in Canada was considered an appropriate occasion for such a ceremony.

The Provincial Council also desires to endorse the resolution of the late Washington Conference declaring against any limitation with regard to work by women, except in so far as such work might interfere with maternity.

Another resolution that will come up for consideration is the one asking that a man, when making a will, shall have to leave his wife and children as well provided for as if he had died intestate, and that the first charge on the estate shall be the education and upkeep of his children until they reach the age of 21 years.

League of Nations.

Miss Edith Murphy, speaking on the League of Nations, gave a splendid address, showing extraordinary powers of memorization, as it was delivered with the aid of only a few notes, contained a mass of detailed information about the League and its workings, formed in concise, clear fashion.

A description of the six essential parts of the League was given first; the Assembly, which is a vast annual conference at which representatives of every member nation come to discuss international questions; the Council, which is really the executive committee of the League, and meets every three months; the International Court of Justice, with eleven judges chosen by joint vote of the Assembly, regardless of nationality, and functioning at salaries ranging from $6,000 to $24,000 a year; the International Labor Conference, which meets every year at Geneva, with four representatives from each country that is a member of the League, two from the Government, one from the employers and one from the employees, to consider conditions affecting the lives of workers; the various committees and commissions that look after questions such as those involved in consideration of legal, technical, social, political and disarmament problems, and finally, the permanent secretariat, totalling about three hundred people, and established to carry out the resolutions and instructions of the League. This is divided into ten sections, with charge of matters relating to economic and financial questions, disarmament, health, information of governing commissions, legal, mandate, social, transit and, political. The transit section has under its charge the facilitating of means of international travel and means of improving communications and clearing the channels of international business. These six portions constitute the working machinery of the League of Nations.

How It Functions.

The League, when war is imminent, provides for a stay of at least three months until an arbitrator's decision has been arrived at, with a further stay of six months after that, it sanctions the use of an economic boycott should the arbitrator's decision be refused, and goes so far also as to provide common, military action in the case of recalcitrant nations. Every member nation registers treaties with it, even if these have been made with a non-member, which is rather disconcerting to the latter, while secret treaties between nations are not recognized by the League.

Miss Murphy alluded to the recent action of the League in preventing a Balkan War, and thought that the criticism often directed at it that it had failed to stop other conflicts since its inception was not just. "I think it does well to interfere where it can handle the situation and not lose prestige by interfering where it would fail. Its strength consists in a virile, sympathetic, united public opinion behind it." If the League possessed an army and navy to enforce its decisions, Miss Murphy said, as has often been brought forward by its critics, it would become a super state, and nations would fear to join it. "Its constitution allows for amendment, and its friends say that its critics are at liberty to join it and improve it."

Another criticism says that it concerns itself with a narrow sphere and should achieve more, and try to stop wars altogether. But the causes of war, as outlined by the speaker, are almost unpreventable, including as they do, so many warring elements, such as tariff barriers, racial discriminations, national control of backward areas, military supremacy and economic competition.

The Sixth Assembly.

The sixth Assembly of the League of Nations, concluded recently with Senator Dandurand of Canada presiding at its sessions, accomplished several things. It considered an agreement for a Disarmament Conference, a conference to study the economic maladies of the world and one for the control of the private manufacture of arms.

Miss Murphy referred to the favorable results which might be anticipated from the recent Locarno Conference, when the agreement between France and Germany is finally signed by both nations, to the consideration of Albanian boundary questions and the Macedonian demands which are presented to the League for decision, in which Macedonia demands her rights as a nation, or else better treatment as separate communities by Greece, Serbia and Bulgaria, to whom portions of Macedonia were awarded. The speaker also alluded to the unsatisfactory condition of some of the people living under mandates ordered by the League, which gave authority to several nations to control the affairs of lesser peoples, such as the mandate given the English in Palestine, Australia and New Zealand in the Southern Pacific Islands and France in Syria. The unsatisfactory outcome of the latter mandate was considered by Miss Murphy as only an instance that the League was human after all, and liable to make mistakes.

Some of the energetic committees and their endeavors were spoken of, and the many difficulties that surround the League in its work, such as the insincere attitude of many statesmen in their apparent devotion to the cause of peace. Mussolini, Italy's dictator, was quoted as saying that Italians should ever keep the memory of victory in their hearts, and if destiny beckoned, they might use it as a springboard to leap forward into the future.

It is the belief of the Ponapeans, a tribe of South Sea Islanders, that unless you are a good dancer you will never go to heaven.

Mrs. Bell Rogers of Peterboro, who for some time has been enjoying an extended visit at the home of her brother and wife, Mr. and Mrs. M. W. Wallar, 1003 N Pennsylvania Avenue, Lansing, Mich., was delightfully entertained at the home Sunday Nov. 15, the occasion being her 75th birthday anniversary. Friends and relatives to the number of seventeen, gathered together to remind her she had reached one more milestone in the path of life. At noon a bountiful dinner was served, the afternoon was spent in renewing old remembrances and several fine piano and vocal selections were rendered. Mrs. Rogers was the recipient of many useful and beautiful presents, among which was a post-card shower of fifty birthday cards and folders and a well-filled purse. Out-of-town guests were from Detroit, Royal Oak, Romeo, Jackson and Albion.

Ladies to the number of about one hundred and fifty attended during the afternoon. The living room was prettily arranged with russet and yellow chrysanthemums. The tea table was charming with a large central bowl of pink roses, surrounded by pale pink tulle, a Cluny lace cloth and tall pale mauve candles. Mrs. Browne was assisted in receiving by her mother, Mrs. H. B. Taylor. Mrs. W. Galbraith ushered the ladies into the tea room, where Mr. Thos. COUNCIL WOMEN EXECUTIVE MET

Address Given By Lewis Duncan on Fruit Combine Investigation.

COMMUNIST TEACHING.

KINGSTON, Nov. 20 (Canadian Press).—At yesterday's meeting of the executive of the National Council of Women held at Queen's University, an address was given by Mr. Lewis Duncan, K.C., of Toronto, chairman of the Federal Commission on the Investigation Into Fruit combines in Canada. Considerable discussion took place on the resolution regarding the establishment of Communist Sunday Schools and other education centres before it was finally passed. Resolutions were discussed that had been introduced by the International Council of Women, and reports were received from Mrs. W. E. Sanford and Mrs. H. Carpenter, Hamilton, on the biannual meeting of the National Council of Women of the United States, and from Mrs. H. Waite, Renfrew, on the Canadian Child Welfare Convention in Ottawa.

Mr. Duncan stated that investigations had been made by the Commission. The first investigation was carried out in the West, where alleged combines in the coal industry were found to be non-existent. The enquiry, however, set the public mind at rest. The second investigation was in the East, where it was found that a potato combine existed. The final investigation was again in the West where a combine existed for the distribution and marketing of fruit. Mr. Duncan said that a trial would commence in January in the latter case. Upon the suggestion of Mr. Duncan, it was decided in different parts of the country to check prices on different commodities by the appointment of representatives.

Sunday Schools.

In connection with the establishment of Communist Sunday Schools and other educational centres, the following resolution was passed: Be it resolved that the National Council urges that investigation be made by the federated associations as to what extent such communist education is being carried in the different cities in Canada and asks the co-operation of the boards of religious education, women's missionary boards of the various churches, Catholic Women leagues, Jewish women's councils, and various women's institutions.

The resolutions suggested by the International Council of Women were discussed. They were regarding the position of alien children under law in such country. The gathering of comparative statistics in regards to the death rate of illegitimate and legitimate children under one year of age, and the care and protection of abnormal children. The first was referred to the law committee, the second to the public health committee, and the third to the committee on mental hygience.

A resolution was passed by the executive, that its members definitely associate themselves with their respective political parties and exert there their full political influence. The question of restriction under permit licensing, or forbidding the importation and use of second-hand matter for us in making up mattresses was excellently brought before the meeting.

Insurance executive says Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is "Conqueror of Constipation"

Former addict to pills and drugs says ALL-BRAN restored youthful vim.

Here is a most remarkable tribute to Kellogg's ALL-BRAN:

For more than one-third of a century, I was an addict to all kinds of pills, drugs and nostrums to alleviate the tortures resulting from constipation. They brought only temporary relief. Then I tried Kellogg's ALL-BRAN, and as a result I have a new birth of freedom from the terrible foe of the race. I am again in the pink of condition, the personification even of youthful vigor in my advancing years. Truly, Mr. W. K. Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is the conqueror of constipation.

Gratefully yours,
(Signed) A. M. SWEENEY,
(Address on request).

Let Kellogg's ALL-BRAN conquer constipation forever for you. Doctors recommend it. It is what they call a bulk food, that sweeps the intestine clean, stimulating digestion and normal, healthy action. Something habit-forming pills and drugs can never do.

Eat at least two tablespoonfuls daily—in chronic cases, with every meal. If eaten regularly, relief is guaranteed or your grocer returns the purchase price. Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is made in London, Canada. Served in leading hotels and restaurants. Sold by all grocers.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN

Glorious, Glowing Health can be yours!

WHAT would we not all give for a body free from the hundred and one ills brought about by modern living? Nervousness, sleeplessness, loss of vitality, sluggishness, anaemia, are all taking their toll in tens of thousands of homes today, yet there would be less sickness if people realized that the body must have help in repairing the wear and tear of the organs and nervous system.

Medical research has definitely proved that one of the causes of a run down condition of the body is a shortage of certain mineral elements, including iron, potassium, calcium, sodium and phosphorus, and until a sufficient supply of these minerals is restored to the body, good health is impossible. Wincarnis contains every one of these elements in addition to other health giving ingredients, and in a form in which they are most rapidly absorbed into the blood and carried to every part of the body to be converted into vital force.

Wincarnis has been recommended by over ten thousand physicians in cases of nervousness, anaemia, sleeplessness, and the general debility that accompanies a run down body. For fifty years this strength giver and nerve restorative has brought new life and happiness to weakened men and women.

YOUR HEALTH

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M.D.,
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

Of late I have been more impressed than ever that many persons, sensible in everything else, are neglecting to command the services of their family doctors. My attention has been called, recently, to two or three cases where women have endured pain, and, what is worse, mental anguish because of their fear to consult the doctor.

There is a beautiful and natural modesty which makes it difficult and even impossible to carry to the doctor the frank and full story of a physical disability. Because of this reluctance, many a trifling disorder has become incurable, and much suffering has been endured which could have been prevented.

It is particularly true in matters of sex that this situation arises. There are other instances where the fear of being told an operation is necessary, or the ailment is a fatal one, that the afflicted person holds back. In either case it is false modesty or a foolish determination which prevents the plainly sensible act of going to the trusted doctor for his advice and care.

Moral character is one of the requirements for admission to and graduation from medical college. No doctor is likely to succeed in any community unless he continues to possess character and to prove himself a gentleman. Certainly, in company with mother, sister or a close friend, no woman need hesitate to consult any doctor of standing.

If, in spite of this encouragement, there remains an irresistible repugnance, why not see a doctor of your own sex? There is hardly a community these days that does not have women physicians. They have had exactly the same medical training and possess the same qualifications as their brother doctors. I have known women surgeons who were just as capable as any man. They are conscientious, tireless and able.

The point I want to make is, that you have it in your hands to find a doctor you are not afraid to visit and to tell the whole truth. I beg of you not to endure agonies of body and mind, or to assume responsibility for conditions about which you are ignorant. It isn't fair to yourself, to your family or to your friends, to wear yourself out and shorten your life perhaps by neglecting so plain a course as the one I suggest.

The tendency to disease is toward recovery, but the speed of the recovery is materially hastened by the things the doctor can do. Most of these things are painless and easily applied. Be sensible about it and do not delay another day in making your plans for a visit to your doctor.

We have been speaking of birds landing on people and all that sort of thing, and how it manages to happen.

If you happen to be one of the nature lovers who has a regular winter season hotel table for the wild creatures, you will not be long in making friends with the sweet little ball of grey fluff known as Chicadee. He calls "Chicadee-dee-dee" at the door all winter, and we call him Mr. Cheery, from the rarer little call he uses in winter sometimes, a regular Chee-ree.

It is very easy to gain the confidence of the Chicadee and he will come to your hand in January, if you really try to be friendly.

Out in the Government parks, where birds are safe from harm, it is possible to call, or whistle, and the birds will come down and land at one's feet or on the head or arm, waiting for the hand to be opened. When the hand containing the chopped up nut meats is opened, the birds go at once to the fingers and sit there and eat. It was one of the thrills of an autumn trip, for our little girl and boy, Miriam and Joseph, to step out into the opening among the trees, and whistle. Down would come the birds and we even took photos of them with the birds on their hands.

Down in New England, in one small town, a few folks made this wonderful discovery about how easy it is to win the birds if only we try. These original discoverers told the whole town and gave demonstrations. What was the result.

The result was this: every cat in the town was put away and every home took an oath to give the thing a real trial. The children of that town and the men and women, can now call the birds down, when walking to school or to business, or even at the door, and they come to hand freely. Imagine going down the street and having some crumbs in a pocket, and whistling and having a wild little fellow come in a curious and happy way, to show you that he knows you are his trusted friend. This is not a Nature Lore story, neither is it just entertaining talk. It is the truth.

Get your feeding station, your wild folks table, and gather seeds and suet and crumbs and take from life the trust of the wild.

GOOD NIGHT STORIES

By Blanche Silvar

DOTTY ATTENDS A LITTLE MOTHERS' CONVENTION.

"Good morning, Mrs. Seal," said Dotty, stepping up to the fence in the Zoo. "You don't look very happy this morning. Has something happened to make you homesick?"

"No, no," replied Mrs. Seal, raising her pretty head and flipping her tail on the rocks. "Nothing has happened but I was just wishing I could go back to St. Paul's Island, my old home," and she wiped a tear from her pretty eyes with her flipper.

"Nothing Has Happened."

"Well, I just wish—" began Dotty when a soft laugh startled her and turning around she found a wee little elfin standing at her side. "Well, of all things! Where in the world! I was just going to wish for you, Squeedee. Mrs. Seal wants to go to St. Paul's Island."

"I'm glad of the excuse," chuckled Squeedee, and touching Mrs. Seal and Dotty with his magic whistle, they floated away to the wonderful St. Paul's Island in the Bering Sea.

"My goodness!" Dotty exclaimed when she saw the sea of seals. "Where in the world did they all come from? Do they always live so many together? How in the world can they tell their own children?"

"Gracious on us!" laughed Squeedee, "not so many questions at a time."

"That's all right," chuckled Mrs. Seal. "Just why I wanted to come. It's June-time here and the Mother Seals always come up on land to raise their families. It's queer to you, I guess, but every Mother Seal there knows her own baby. I always get home-sick at this season of the year." And she walked around among the seals, greeting all her old friends and introducing a few to Dotty and Squeedee.

"It's a funny sight to see, the Daddy Seals come out from the water and scrape a clean place in the sands for their wives. Seals never like to be alone, so the Daddies all come out and get ready for housekeeping. Then along come the Mother Seals and take care of the Baby Seals until they are able to walk around for themselves."

"But don't Baby Seals know how to swim?" asked Dotty.

"Not until their parents teach them," replied Squeedee. "But when the Mother Seals mind the youngsters just so long, they grow tired and hungry. Then the Daddy Seals take charge of the babies while all the Mother Seals go back to the water and feed. A queer thing in nature, Baby Seals don't know their Mothers from the other Mothers, but every Mother Seal knows her own baby."

Mrs. Seal from the Zoo brought up some of her grandchildren to show Dotty and Dotty declared they were certainly pretty little creatures. Their eyes were a lovely dark blue, with long, thick eyelashes. They seemed to enjoy being petted by Dotty, and when Squeedee said it was time to go, Dotty was sorry.

"Well, it has been a wonderful trip for me," declared Mrs. Seal. "I love the Zoo, but I have enjoyed this visit with my friends." Then, taking hold of Squeedee's hand, they sailed back to North America again.

Dotty and Squeedee were happy because they had given pleasure to Mrs. Seal, and Mrs. Seal was happy because she had visited her friends.

Her Liver Was Bad And She Felt Tired and Depressed

Mrs. M. Siefert, Grosswerder, Sask., writes:—"I was greatly disturbed with pains in my liver, and felt tired and depressed most of the time.

One day I read about

Milburn's

LAXA-LIVER PILLS

and the next time I went to town I bought four vials of them.

I have used them regularly, and after two months' use I feel like an entirely different woman.

Now, I always recommend them to any of my friends who are troubled as I was."

OPERATIONS TO CURE T. B. FOUND TO GIVE RESULTS

Practical Cures Were Effected in 34 Per Cent of Cases.

RIBS CUT AWAY.

Portion Left Allowed to Compress Diseased Cavities of Lungs.

NEW YORK, Nov. 20 (Canadian Press).—Surgical operation for tuberculosis of the lungs, which was reported to have effected "practical cures" in 34 per cent. of cases, was described yesterday at the New York Tuberculosis and Health Conference. It was announced also that New York Health Department authorities expected soon to make a vaccine for tuberculosis originated in Paris at the Pasteur Institute and that good results are being obtained in this country by sun treatment for tuberculosis of bones, joints and glands.

The two-day conference, described by speakers as the most important to be held here in 15 years, is being attended by physicians and nurses engaged in public health work. Dr. Edward Archibald, Professor of Surgery at McGill University, Montreal, explained an operation for the treatment of tuberculosis in which the surgeon cuts away portions of the ribs on one side of the body, allowing other ribs to sag inward and compress the cavities left in the lungs by ravages of the disease. By compressing these cavities the lungs are permitted to rest and develop resistance to the tubercle bacilli which enables the body apparently to throw off the disease in a large percentage of selected cases, he said.

MENNONITES IN ALBERTA MADE LARGE PROFITS

Seven Families, Arriving Destitute, Made $26,000 in One Year.

LEASED 2,080 ACRES.

Will Now Buy Equipment and Land Which Was Leased.

WINNIPEG, November 20. Canadian Press. — Seven Mennonite families which arrived in Western Canada in a penniless condition last fall, have cleared a profit of $26,000 by leasing 2080 acres of farm land at Provest, Alta., according to an announcement last night by T. O. F. Herzer, manager of Canada Colonization. The announcement added that with the profits from one season's work the families will be able to purchase their own equipment and have decided to exercise an option they held and purchase the acreage they have held under lease.

MEXICAN PORT IS DESTROYED

Tidal Wave From Pacific Flooded Village of Zihuatanejo.

MANY CASUALTIES.

NEW YORK, Nov. 20 (Canadian Press).—Meagre reports received in Mexico City last night from the State of Guerrero were to the effect that a tidal wave from the Pacific Ocean has destroyed the port of Zihuatanejo, and that while no details are obtainable, indications were that there was a heavy list of casualties. Zihuatanejo is a small port on the Pacific, 12 5miles northwest of Acapulco.

To bind her huge grain harvest, Canada now uses annually an average of from 80,000,000 to 100,000,000 pounds of twine, and ranks second only to the United States in her

STEVENS PLACES RESOLUTION ON ORDER PAPERS

Goes In Second Place and is Likely to Cause Contention.

RURAL CREDITS.

Hope To Get Progressive Support on Resolution Charging Block.

OTTAWA, Nov. 20 (Canadian Press).—The Journal says: Hon. H. H. Stevens, Minister of Trade and Commerce, in the last Meighen Cabinet, yesterday placed a resolution on the Order Paper for the Commons, which may develop into the chief bone of contention in the session opening on December 10.

Mr. Stevens is acting leader of the Conservative party during the absence of the Right Hon. Arthur Meighen in the Southern States. His resolution goes in second place on the Order Paper and thus is likely to come up early in the remarkable session expected. It follows the line of the Conservative policy, but at the same time in it is one of the things for which the Progressive have been fighting unsuccessfully since they came down here in strength for the session of 1922.

The resolution deals with rural credits, relating the manner in which rural credits have been blocked. It says in one paragraph:

"Therefore, this Parliament declares that the delay in providing a measure of relief for a justifiable grievance has been unwarranted and grossly unfair to the agricultural industry."

IMPROVEMENTS IN

in the daytime, thereby relieving the commission's peak load, and eight 300 watt suspension type units, which latter would be on Hunter street east.

The present cost is $2493.50, while the lights under the new system while much more efficient, would cost the city $2682.00 per year.

The Fire, Water and Light Committee recommended that this work be done by the commission.

While this was under discussion, Alderman Crowe complained that the lights of the suggested type, some of which had been installed on Water street, were not satisfactory, as the trees hid them in the summer. He asked about suspension units in the centre of the streets. It was pointed out by the Utilities Commission officials that the first cost and cost of up keep would both be higher, and that by lowering the lamps and trimming the trees it was hoped to effect an improvement on Water street.

Magnetite System Obsolete.

A report was submitted by the Commission on the magnetite arc system. Last week one of the coils in the west magnetite transformer burned out and a number of incandescent lamps had to be installed. The Commission now proposes to replace the magnetite lamps on the west side of George street, the north side of Charlotte street and several other places with 1000 watt lamps, using the same standards and globes. As the system wears out more of these would be installed until the whole system had been replaced with incandescent lamps, which, it is said, would give as much light. The magnetite system has grown obsolete, and the Peterboro installation was the last one made in Canada.

The report from the commission on a hydrant on McFarland street, opposed the work on the ground that the expense involved, $2500, was too much for the revenue that would be raised

Jury Drank Evidence Little Left For Court

FREEHOLD, N.J., Nov. 20.—(United Press).—Three members of a jury which recently returned a verdict of not guilty in a trial involving illegal possession of liquor, were discharged yesterday from further jury service and held in contempt of court by Judge Rulif V. Lawrence. It is alleged that they drank some of the evidence and that each carried home one of five bottles of whiskey offered in the evidence, leaving only two for the court.

The men were Thomas Fox, foreman of the jury, Patrick Kelly and Fred Conover, all farmers. They were fined $20, $10 and $5 respectively.

Gas Rates.

Following that reception an interview was obtained with Hydro officials concerning a reduction of the gas rates. A decision in this matter is pending consideration of the Hydro Commission. His Worship the Mayor sought assistance in the construction of the proposed toboggan slide for Jackson Park, on the ground that the Street Railway will be a large beneficiary of that innovation. No decision was given. The Hydro representative asked permission to confer with the City Council within a few days on matters relevant to the Peterborough Radial Railways.

SYRIAN REVOLT TO BE CRUSHED IN THREE WEEKS

Ambition of General Duport, French Commission, For Early Success.

DRUSE REBELLION.

French Increase Force By 10,000 Men With Artillery and Tanks.

LONDON, Nov. 20.—(Canadian Press).—General Duport, acting French High Commissioner in Syria, hopes to break the Druse rebellion within three weeks, he is quoted as declaring in an interview at Beirut with the correspondent of the Evening News.

He planned to surround the rebels in the Merji Ayun district, he said, and did not anticipate having to use all the troops at his disposal. Before next Sunday 10,000 men with artillery, armored cars, tanks and airplanes are expected to arrive.

Many Lebanonese are coming into Beirut, the correspondent adds, requesting arms for the defence of their villages. Replying to the Lebanese Government's request, reinforcements have been authorized for Tyre and Bledine.

The editors of the Beirut papers have received threatening letters for not defending the insurgent cause, signed by "The Beirut Committee for Supporting the Syrian Revolution."

While only a few thousand Druses are fighting the French, discontent is apparent among a much larger number, mainly because of economic conditions due to the unstable currency. The French made a mistake in making the Syrian money dependent upon the French franc. With stable economic conditions the people no doubt would accept French control more readily, for the French did much to develop the country even before the insurrection. They established schools, financed railroads, built excellent highways and established silk factories.

Religion a Factor.

Another important factor in the unrest is the number of religious factions. Two-thirds of the people are Moslems. Out of a total of 3,000,000 inhabitants 1,500,000 are Christians, chiefly Catholics. The Maronites, who form 12 per cent. of the population, are mostly farmers. The Druses live in the mountain valleys of Lebanon and in central Syria. The Djebal Druses, among whom the uprising started, live on the edge of the desert. It is said that they disapproved of the local governor appointed by the French. This was the pretext for their rising and their attempt to swing the Moslem city of Damascus to their side.

Without doubt there is some connection between the Druses and the leaders, who would like to see an independent Syria. This movement was started in 1919, when a general congress of Syrians demanded the independence of all Syria, including Palestine. Again in 1920 in Damascus they declared Emir Feisal king. By agreement with the British the French drove Feisal out and the British gave them the Bagdad kingdom as compensation.

For a time the religious sects forgot their quarrels for nationalism, but the movement seemed to be confined chiefly to talk and little is expected to result. There is no reason to heed the Maronite requests because a majority of these people are friendly to the French.

MISSIONARY SPOKE.

MOUNT PLEASANT, Nov. 20.—An interesting lecture was given in the Union Church here on Monday evening at eight o'clock by Mr. Cooke, a foreign missionary, home on furlough. The meeting opened with singing, "The Light of the World is Jesus," after which Rev. Mr. Totten led in prayer. Mr. Cooke then delivered a very good address on the missionary work. He told many sad tidings about the people who live in India where he has been for the past fifteen years with his wife and family. Mr. Cooke will be kept busy giving these lectures for the next six weeks.

GRAIN COMPANY SUIT FOR $7,963

Claim For Unpaid Balance on Shipment of Oats to Elevator.

BREACH OF DUTY.

OTTAWA, Ont., November 20. — Canadian Press. — Argument was begun in the Supreme Court of Canada Thursday on the appeal of the Northern Grain Co., Winnipeg vs. the Goderich Elevator and Transit Co., of Goderich, Ont., for payment of an unpaid balance of $7,963.11 on a shipment of oats. The hearing is being continued to-day.

This action was brought by the Northern Grain Co., buyers and sellers of grain to recover from the Goderich Elevator and Transit Company, carrying on the business of warehousing grain, the price of 15,000 bushels of oats. The quantity in question represents a portion of a shipment amounting in all to 70,000 bush., shipped from Fort William to Goderich by the Northern Grain Co., to the Goderich Elevator and Transit Co., and taken into the latter's warehouse at Goderich. While there it was sold by the Northern Grain Co. to the Peerless Cereal Mills, Ltd., Woodstock, and shipped by the Transit Company by rail to the purchaser. The Peerless Co. obtained possession of the oats in question and after payment for 5000 bushels only, became insolvent. The Northern Grain Co. charges that the Goderich company negligently and in breach of its duty to the former, shipped the grain to the Peerless concern under circumstances which enabled that company to obtain possession without payment. The question to be determined between the parties depends upon the effect to be given the correspondence between them.

Transfer Of Territory Opposed By Free Trade

DUBLIN, Nov. 20.—(Canadian Press).—The Dail Eireann Thursday unanimously adopted a motion introduced by Dennis McCullough, of Donegal, declaring that: "The Dail Eireann agrees with President Cosgrave's contention that the Boundary Commission has no power under the treaty to make any transfers of territory from the Soarstat to the North."

Both Mr. McCullough and Mr. Cosgrave, in the course of the debate, protested against the propaganda carried out in the speeches of the Northern Ministers, which they characterized as tantamount to intimidation of the commission. Mr. Cosgrave asserted that the scandalous campaign of intimidation waged in flagrant violation of judicial procedure would in an ordinary court merit commital for contempt of court. He declined to believe that the commission had reached the decisions alleged in the public forecasts.

JOLSON DENIES MEETING ALICE

Comedian Convulses Court —Wife Wouldn't Speak to Him He Said.

PRICE OF FAME.

WHITE PLAINS, N.Y., Nov. 20. — Al Jolson, black-face comedian, convulsed a courtroom prepared for the somber details of Leonard Kip Rhinelander's annulment suit against his part-Negro wife, when he dramatically appeared on the witness stand before Justice Morschauser and a jury in Supreme Court.

Without warning former Justice Isaac N. Mills, plaintiff's counsel, broke into the cross-examination of his client by Lee Parsons Davis to ask that Jolson be put on the stand.

In her letters Mrs. Rhinelander had referred to meeting "Al" Jolson at Paul Smith's, an Adirondack camp, and characterized him as "some flirt with the girls."

Laughter rippled through the court and burst into a roar, as the comedian, with a broad grin, mounted the witness stand and took the oath.

Wife Ignores Him Now.

"My wife doesn't speak to me any more," he burst out.

"Every time I enter my dressing-room the orchestra starts playing 'Alice, Where Art Thou?' I want to eat breakfast home to-morrow"—and then Jolson subsided to a more serious expression.

Too good a comedian not to be able to take a joke, he was earnestly desirous of proving that at the time mentioned by Alice, he was staying in Atlantic City.

"I'm a deputy sheriff of Westchester County and I don't want its fair name smirched," he said, laughing in spite of himself.

All rules of evidence were cast overboard when Jolson took the

ELECTRIC CHAIR FOR MURDERESS

Mrs. Fannie Sopher Found Guilty of Slaying Her Third Husband.

SENTENCED TO-DAY.

ELIZABETHTOWN, N.Y., Nov. 20.—(Canadian Press).—Mrs. Fannie Soper, was found guilty of murder in the first degree yesterday by a jury which deliberated one hour and 45 minutes. Mrs. Soper was accused of shooting her third husband, Sheriff Henry Soper, in their home on May 28 last. Sentence will be given today.

Justice Edward C. Whitmyer, who presided during the trial, has no alternative but that of sentencing the woman to death in the electric chair.

The prosecution based its case on circumstantial evidence, maintaining that the two bullets, found in Soper's head, were fired from his own revolver which Mrs. Soper attempted to conceal from the investigators after the shooting in the Boquet Farm house. The state also maintained that no other person was in the house or vicinity of the shooting last May.

The defense in attempting to refute the prosecutions case, placed several witnesses on the stand who told of seeing a stranger near the farm house on the day of the murder. The final witness, Mrs. Soper herself, repeated the story of the shooting she has repeated since the shooting, declaring that a stranger murdered her husband and then fled in an automobile.

FOMENTING OF GENERAL STRIKE NOT SEDITION COUNSEL ARGUES

Six-Hour Address to Jury By Counsel For Twelve British Communists.

IMPORTANT ACTION.

LONDON, Nov. 20.—(Canadian Press Cable).—Sir Henry Blesser, M.P., counsel for the 12 British communists who are on trial here charged with seditious conspiracy and violation of the incitement to mutiny act of 1797, continued his argument Thursday before the jury. He dealt with the allegation that the defendants had attempted to seduce the forces of the crown and he submitted that the words in the communist literature that had been complained of were merely "Don't shoot the workers in a trade dispute."

"There was no attempt at inducing the crown forces to disobey a lawful command, Sir Henry contended. Had is been urged by the communists that the forces of the crown should not shoot rioters or lawbreakers in such circumstances as would bean disobeying a lawful command it would have come within the army act, but to say "Don't shoot a class of persons who are rightly entitled not to be shot" was not an incitement to disobey a lawful command. He argued that an appeal to workers to create a general strike was not in itself seditious or criminal.

Sir Henry spoke for six hours in his defence of the accused communists.

This is regarded as one of the most important cases that has been submitted to a British jury for many years. On the decision depends the liberties and opportunities of men to write or express opinions for many years to come.

Harry Pollitt, a members of the executive of the communist international, one of the defendants in the present trial, asked Justice Swift, the presiding judge, if he could quote speeches made Lord Birkenhead, secretary of state for India; Lord Carson and Sir William Joynson-Hicks, home secretary, which speeches Pollitt said were as seditious as anything written or spoken by the accused communists.

The judge refused the request. His Lordship remarked: "I do not see how a seditious speech made by any of them can be of the slightest assistance to you. You could have preferred a bill of indictment against them, but we cannot have their seditions mixed up with yours."

THREE SITTINGS OF PARLIAMENT DAILY

To Reach Vote on Address Before Christmas.

OTTAWA, Ont., November 20. — Canadian Press. — Strenuous days will follow the opening of Parliament according to rumours in circulation here. There is talk of morning, afternoon and evening sittings of the House of Commons if the debate on the address should show signs of dragging on for any length of time. Generally the motion for morning sittings does not come until the end of a session. It is pointed out, however that no committees will be meeting until the debate on the address is concluded. Therefore, it is suggested, in order to reach a vote on the address before the Christmas adjournment, morning sittings might be held.

PEPALL FOUND NOT GUILTY ON FOUR CHARGES

Left Court a Free Man Late Yesterday Afternoon.

LONG STORY.

Drama Started in 1919, Covered Several Countries and Several Courts.

TORONTO, November 20. — Canadian Press. — Andrew H. Pepall, a free man, stepped from the assizes dock at 8.45 last night, having been found not guilty on each of the four charges of an indictment for theft, receiving, false pretenses and corruption, in connection with bond transactions carried out with the Provincial government.

The whole day had been taken up with the addresses of the defense and prosecuting counsel, and the charge of Mr. Justice Wright to the jury.

About 50 people were in court for the final scene of the drama which commenced in 1919, shifted to England where Pepall and Aemilius Jarvis, Senior, journeyed to buy in stock for the government, then moved to California, from where Pepall was extradited to face the charges mentioned.

Among those in court were Mrs. Pepall, and a son.

After the jury had announced the verdict of not guilty on all four counts His Lordship turned to the Jury.

"I don't propose to make any comments on your verdict. It was entirely for you," he said.

"Prisoner, stand up," Mr. Justice Wright ordered, and as Pepall complied, he said to him: "You have been found not guilty. It remains for me to discharge you from further custody. There is no further charge against you."

Pepall stepped briskly from the dock, shook hands with his counsel, and made his way to his wife, whom he embraced, and then shook hands with his son, leaving the court with them soon afterwards.

MONTY CHARGES MEIGHEN KEPT OUT OF QUEBEC

Former Solicitor-General Says That Opposition Leader Was Deceived.

ARGUES WITH CAHAN.

Says Mr. Meighen Will Go To Bagot and Other Parts of Province.

MONTREAL, Nov. 20. (Canadian Press).—"Don't you think Mr. Meighen was deceived? You have witnessed the fact that Mr. Patenaude declared against him, saying that he was against his Imperialism as much as he was against the Americanization of Mr. King. Under such circumstances Mr. Meighen was unable to come to Quebec. He was forbidden to come. He submitted then but will come now. He will go into Bagot and other parts of the province. It takes a French-Canadian to defend an Englishman." The foregoing was directed last evening by Hon. Rodolphe Monty, former Solicitor-General, and unsuccessful Conservative candidate in Laurier-Outremont, to C. S. Cahan, K.C., Conservative member-elect for St. Lawrence - St. George, in the course of an interchange at a meeting of the Liberal-Conservative Association here. An address by Mr. Monty, wherein he spoke sharply of the situation created in Quebec by which, according to him, the Opposition leader had been prevented from coming here during the Federal campaign had brought from Mr. Cahan a denial that such was the case. "No man has prevented Mr. Meighen from coming to this province," said Mr. Cahan, "except his own will. When he comes he will receive a welcome from Montreal and other parts of the province."

"I don't want any argument with Mr. Cahan," rejoined Mr. Monty, "who is a friend of mine, but I will add this: Mr. Meighen was prevented from coming to this province. He received a warning while in the Maritime Provinces, and was stopped by it at Levis."

Mr. Cahan insisted that he had never been a party to any such arrangement to keep Mr. Meighen out of Quebec.

THEATRES

AT THE GRAND

GORGEOUS PRODUCTION COMING WITH ORIGINAL CAST.

Le Comte and Flesher, who have established themselves in a few short years in the musical comedy field as producers of merit, will bring to the Grand Opera House on Saturday, November 21st, their musical sensation, "My China Doll", with an important cast of principals, including Bessie Delmore, Cecil Manners, Leona Stater, Lottie Proctor, Amos Harper, George Wakefield, Ben Wells, Tom Crowley, L. G. Milton and large chorus of unusually beautiful girls.

From its credentials— reviews from the press of other cities, where it has been presented—there can be no doubt as to the marked merit of this American musical production, the local engagement of which will be played by the original company.

In its brilliant score, written by Charles George, it boasts of twenty some musical numbers and no less than nine are recorded "hits", including "How Do You Do Miss Ragtime?" "I Want A Man", "The Big Brass Band", "Jazzmania", "My China Doll", "The Wedding of My China Doll and Me" and the popular theme song, "The Land of Dreams."

The lyrics are by Mr. George, who is also responsible for the book. The scenes are laid in New York's Chinatown, during the Fete of Lanterns; thence to the Land of Flowers, Melody Town in the Land of Music, the Land of Story Books, and finally to a palatial home in up-town New York.

The story is a romance of love unwound in a novel manner and abounds in novel situations, enabling the players a continuous round of diverting experiences in which to display their joy-making talents.

Much stress has been laid upon the beauty of the large chorus featured prominently as a corps de ballet, for they are exceptional dancers and sing, too.

AT THE REGENT

NEW PICTURES IN BROADWAY.

Syd Chaplin, in "The Man on the Box" at Regent Theatre.

(By Rose Pelswick.)

I can marvel at themes such as Freudian dreams, and at life that is futile and grey.
I will go to the bat, for a drama
high-hat, and a deep theoretical play.
If you know what I mean, I enjoy every scene, and I stick to the feverish last—
But give me a plot where a butler is shot, and the slapstick is funny and fast.
Where the gags are a wow, and comedians bow, and the audience giggles and rocks.
Where they pull off a fight, and the humor is bright, as for instance, "The Man on the Box."
Don't think that I stall, when I say I get all of the subtlety drama can drop—
But give me a play, where they juggle a tray ,and the hero trips over a cop!

In other words, Syd Chaplin as "The Man on the Box" at Regent Theatre is a comedy riot. Yesterday afternoon's audience shrieked at his exploits; and while Harold McGrath's novel was funny, this is one of those rare cases where a picture is an improvement on the original script.

Chaplin is an excellent pantomimist, and there's one scene where he attempts to explain without subtitles that his name is Goldfish that is in itself worth the price of admission. Toward the end of the film he diguises himself as a lady's maid, and if you thought he was good as Charley's Aunt, you'll have a treat in store for yourself at this masquerade.

"THE TIMBER WOLF" AT THE REGENT THEATRE. GREAT BUCK JONES' PICTURE

"The Timber Wolf" starring Buck Jones, opened last night at the Regent Theatre ,and is the sort of motion picture that has made Buck popular with thousands of fans. It is a western story adapted frmo Jackson Gregory's novel, which embodies all the two fisted romance of the old west, giving Buck the opportunity to fight, ride and woo to the queen's taste.

Winsome Elinor air is Jones leading lady and she does some dramatic work that is worthy of her selection as a baby star of 1924 Dave Dyas as Deveril, the heavy; Will Walling as Sheriff Taggart and Sam Allen in the character role of Joe Terry, also deserve special mention.

"The Timber Wolf" is a story of the lumber and gold country, Jones as Bruce Standing, is a big lumber owner, and Joe Terry, one of his men, discovers a valuable gold vein near the property.

"The Timber Wolf" was directed by W. S. Van Dyke from a scenario by John Stone .

AT THE CAPITOL

GREATEST ROLE, SAYS CHANEY

"The greatest characterization of my entire film career!"

That is the way Lon Chaney describes his role of "Jan," the "insane emperor" in "The Tower of Lies," Victor Seastrom's production for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer soon to be seen at the Capitol Theatre.

The role offers opportunities for a wide range of acting and in the story covers a period of more than twenty years. It opens with Chaney as a Swedish farm tenant, a hard-working grouch who sullenly and resentfully looks forward to the birth of a child as "One more mouth to feed," and less time for wife to work in the fields.

But with the birth of the baby Chaney becomes a different character and devotes his entire life to her.

"THE PONY EXPRESS."

There is an excellent cast in the filming of "The Pony Express," the feature picture at the Capitol Theatre for this week-end. Betty Compson is the dainty little star, Molly Jones, attractive as any modern heroine in her long-ago dress with its hoops and her poke bonnet over fair curls. Ricardo Cortez is the hero, Frisco Jack, the Pony Express rider of the Sixties. Ernest Torrence is Slade, the villain of the piece, and Wallace Beery is as good as usual, this time in a benevolent part, as "Rhode Island Red," the companion of Frisco Jack.

Staged in the little village of Julesburg, the story centres about the trials and troubles of pioneer settlers with the Indians and with unscrupulous whites. The galloping riders of the Pony Express thunder through the picture, which has a somewhat curious entangled plot that brings in many skeins of political import. These are not gathered up finally but are left subordinated to the romantic theme. There is an atmosphere, too, of unreality and vagueness to many of the episodes that seem to end in thin air and are not followed out in later scenes. Perhaps this is intended to convey the impression of the rush and speed of the Pony Express and its men, but 1860 had little of speed in it, compared to 1925, and one gets the impression of sleepiness, rather than of speed, from the quiet little town of Julesburg.

"The Pony Express," acclaimed as the authentic successor of "The Covered Wagon," has no claim to such an honor. It is a somewhat patchy affair, although interesting in its revival of old forgotten times and ways, and depends for most of its interest on the acting of two or three men: "Ascension" Jones, the fanatical blacksmith of Julesburg; "Rhode Island Red," and Charlie Bent, the half-breed traitor.

WEARS A FORTUNE IN GOWNS.

Claire Windsor, who plays the feature role in the Tiffany Production, "Souls for Sables," coming to the Royal Theatre Monday, cut short her honeymoon with Bert Lytell to portray the role of Alice Kendall in this story suggested by "Garlan & Co.," by David Graham Phillips.

The part called for an elaborate display of gowns and fur coats, and all the spare time Miss Windsor had was given over to the dressmakers, who utilized the beautiful screen star's time day and night in making more than twenty-six gorgeous gowns, which she wears throughout the picture.

FATHER GIVES CANDY FOR MOVIE STAR SON.

Bonomo, Star of "Great Circus Mystery" Serial.

"We're making a circus serial —send three carloads of best candy P. D. Q."

This is the wire Albert Bonomo, millionaire "candy king" of Coney Island received from Joe Bonomo, champion strong man of the world —and incidentally the millionaire's son.

"We're going to use a lot of candy and popcorn for properties in the new circus picture," said Joe. "And so I thought Dad might as well get the credit of furnishing it."

Bonomo plays the leading role in "The Great Circus Mystery," Adventure Picture, now playing its 2nd episode at the Royal Theatre. He first achieved note as a football star at West Point. Following this he was proclaimed the world's champion strong man, and entered pictures.

Bonomo is noted also as professional wrestler, lecturer, writer and teacher of physical culture. Besides being able to perform prodigous feats of strength, he is an undefeated professional wrestler, famous football player, and skilled all-round acrobat. He also has appeared professionally as a dancer.

In the cast with him are Louise Lorraine, Bob Seiter, and other well-known players. Jay Marchant directed.

HOOT GIBSON'S SPOOK MOVIE CHIPS, THRILLS AND AMUSES

"Spook Ranch," the latest Hoot Gibson picture, which is now playing at the Royal Theatre is a thrilling Western comedy-drama filled with action, played with a haunted ranch on the edge of the Mojave desert as a background.

Hoot plays the part of a rather thick-witted Texas cowboy who stumbles from thrill to thrill, always extricating himself just in the nick of time from almost certain annihilation.

Stumbling first on to a haunted ranch house, Bill Bangs, the cowboy and his colored valet, George Washington Black, find themselves in the midst of a hair raising atmosphere, full of strange sounds and mysterious movements. This Bill discovers is the impression desired by a band of outlaws who are using the ranch as headquarters while they are trying to obtain the secret of a hidden mine from the imprisoned ranch owner and his daughter, Elvira Navarro, played by Helen Ferguson.

Bill cannot convince his colored servant that the ghosts are real and from this fact much of the comedy in this picture is obtained.

Don Ramies, a character taken by Robert McKim, is leader of the band, and is trying to force the girl to marry him so he can have possession of the mine, and thus cheat his gang. They learn of this intention and force the girl to take them to the mine and bind their leader. Bill sets out in pursuit and rounds up the gang in the mouth of the mine. Holding them at the point of the gun he gets the girl and her father out of the hands of the bandits and holds them while his valet rides for the sheriff.

Just before the arrival of the posse Elvira is captured by Ramies, who has got free. Bill leaves and climbs the face of the cliff to above the mine where his horse was left. He sets out and overtakes the two in one of the most thrilling chases ever filmed. In saving the girl Bill loses his heart but in doing so he discovers that he has won hers, so all is well.

The picture was directed by Edward Laemmle. The titles in the picture are extremely clever.

GAS IN THE STOMACH IS DANGEROUS

Recommends Daily Use of Magnesia to Overcome Trouble, Caused by Fermenting Food and Acid Indigestion.

Gas and wind in the stomach accompanied by that full, bloated feeling after eating are almost certain evidence of the presence of excessive hydrochloric acid in the stomach, creating so-called "acid" indigestion.

Acid stomachs are dangerous because too much acid irritates the delicate lining of the stomach, often leading to gastritis, accompanied by serious stomach ulcers. Food ferments and sours, creating the distressing gas which distends the stomach and hampers the normal functions of the vital organs, often affecting the heart.

It is the worst of folly to neglect such a serious condition or to treat with ordinary digestive aids which have no neutralizing effect on the stomach acids. Instead get from any druggist a few ounces of Bisurated Magnesia and take a teaspoonful in a quarter glass of water right after eating. This will drive the gas, wind and bloat right out of the body, sweeten the stomach, neutralize the excess acid and prevent its formation and there is no sourness or pain. Bisurated Magnesia (in powder or tablet form—never liquid or milk) is harmless to the stomach, inexpensive to take and the best form of magnesia for stomach purposes. It is used by thousands of people who enjoy their meals with no more fear of indigestion.

TIGERS INTERRUPTED QUEEN'S GREAT RUN OF VICTORY IN 1922

Great Record of Canadian Champions in Last Four Years' Rugby.

PLAY ON SATURDAY.

HAMILTON, Nov. 20—Queen's university champions will be after their twenty-sixth straight victory on Saturday when they clash with Balmy Beach at Toronto. Queens have a great scoring record.

Of the thirty-one games since the start of the 1922 season the Tricolor has had eight exhibitions, winning seven and losing one, and in these engagements they have scored 134 points to their opponents' 40. Altogether the champions have scored476 points against 133 during the last four seasons. In seventeen intercollegiate fixtures, including the playoff with Varsity in Montreal in 1922, they have won sixteen and have outscored their opponents by 228 to 72. In each of the three years they have won the Canadian honors, they have played two games and have swamped their opponents by 114 to 21 in the six contests, getting 54 against Regina here in 1923.

Included in the thirty-one games are thirteen away from home, in which one or other of their titles was at stake, and they have shown their heels to their opponents by 218 to 62, but once again the champions' scoring was assisted by the 54 to 0 victory over Regina. Four of the six C. R. U. games have been played at Varsity stadium and also one of their exhibition contests. These with four games in the Intercollegiate against Varsity give Queens nine appearances on the field on which they meet Balmy Beach the day after tomorrow, and they have won them all, scoring 162 points to 48. The Tricolor's complete record since the start of the 1922 season is:

SOFTBALL GAME ENDED IN DRAW

Final Result Was in Doubt, So Tie Was Conceded.

GIRLS VS. DOURO.

LAKEFIELD, Nov. 20.—An exhibition game was played on Tuesday night between the girls' team and a Douro team which resulted in a score, which though somewhat entangled closely resembled a tie. The boys chivalrously conceded to the girls an extra player although the captain, Olive Jackson, gamely wanted to enter on equal terms even though she fully realized that a girl's team is handicapped in playing with boys especially in this case as the girls have had little or no practice and no manager. However, the game got away to a good start with R. C. Chittick behind the plate and W. Hamblin at the bases. The girls asked and desired no quarter but the young men showed in every innings that they would not mind defeat at the hands of so fair a team. The girls played the Warsaw girls on Thursday night and there is every chance of them having a game with the Selwyn girls at an early date.

Playing against other girls will give the girls a real opportunity to measure the strength and weakness of their team. There is much good material that can be moulded into a first class team by a little practice and a good manager. The following is the line u p of the teams:

Lakefield Girls—O. Watson, p; G. Blewett, c; V. Payne, 1b; G. Watson, 2b; J. Allen, 3b; B. Denen, ss; A. Dench, ss; W. Payne field; O. Jackson, M. Irwin, B. Junkin, subs.

Douro team—R. Walsh, p; G. Heffernan, c; B. Wannamaker, 1b; W. Towns, 2b; G. Condon, 3b; J. Allen, ss; B. Allen, ss; P. Condon, field; R. Whibbs, sub.

LOCAL HOCKEY LEAGUE FORMED

Enthusiasm Marked Revival of City League Meeting Last Night.

OFFICERS ELECTED.

A meeting was held in the Chamber of Commerce committee room last night for the purpose of reviving the city series of hockey which died out three years ago. If initial enthusiasm is any index of success the season of '25-'26 should be a memorable one in the annals of the winter pastime.

While reluctance was shown at first by proposed candidates for the president's chair the meeting swung along with vim when that office was finally accepted by Cecil Wolfe. It was proopsed and carried that the Junior series be limited to players of eighteen years and under. January 1, 1926, was declared the final date up to which players could qualify.

Temporary officers were Walter Perks, chairman, and Joseph Batten, secretary. The following honorary officers were appointed:

Honorary President: W. R. Breyfogle, Robert Abbott, Charles S. Cummer, Rev. Father Butler, Charles H. Thompson.

Honorary Vice President: Jack Marshall, Alphonse Brioux, James Sullivan, L. Bond, G. A. Gillespie.

President: Cecil Wolfe.

Vice President: Walter Perks.

Secretary Treasurer: Joseph Batten.

Committee: Lou LeBarr, James McMartin, Vincent O'Connel.

The officers were delegated to interview the rink manager as to rates and report at the next meeting which will be held in the Chamber of Commerce on Wednesday, November 25 at 7.30 or, if the committee rooms are not available on that date it will be held in the Belmont Club.

Matters pertaining to team organization will be considered and all entries must be submitted at that meeting.

INSIDE Ggolf.

Maker of 51 Golf Champions. "Golf's most successful teacher," says "Chick" Evans

By CHESTER HORTON

During the golf swing the club, the players hands, wrists and arms obviously maintain their fixed length, and the club keeps to its fixed height from the ball assuming that the head is held approximately still. The variable then is the item of shifting weight. This weight shifting promotes back and forth hip action; the right hip has a tendency to move to the right during the back swing, the left hip to the left during the forward swing. It is not possible to swing the club without this hip action, so the problem is to get it into the swing in exactly the right proportion. The right proportion is "not very great hip action." Let the weight move over in the back swing until you feel you are "directly on top of the right leg." Then stay there while the upper body pivots. In the forward swing, stiffen the left leg when you have got on top of it, and hold the wight there while the club swings through.

LORD MAYOR OF LONDON IS HOST TO THE PRINCE

Celebrate Return of Prince of Wales From Southern Tour.

TOAST BY BALDWIN.

Prince To Attend if Queen Alexandra's Condition Not Worse.

LONDON, Nov. 20.—(Canadian Press).— The sudden illness of Dowager Queen Alexandra has caused anxiety as to whether it might be necessary to postpone the Guildhall banquet today, at which the Corporation will celebrate the return of the Prince of Wales from his recent tour.

A reassuring bulletin issued from York House gave the citizens a double pleasure, first, that there was no immediate danger to the Queen Mother, and, second, that unless further news of a serious nature was received concerning Alexandra's condition, the citizens will not be deprived of the opportunity of testifying to their pleasure over the prince's safe return.

The bulletin read: "Unless further news or a serious nature is received from Sandringham the Prince of Wales will attend the Guildhall luncheon tomorrow."

Great preparations have been made for today's Guildhall function. The weather promises to be fine enough for the Prince to ride through the streets in an open carriage escorted by household cavalry, the route being extended so as to give all parts of the city an opportunity of greeting him. There will be plenty of flags and bunting, as the Lord Mayor has made a special appeal to the occupants of the buildings to decorate profusely.

The banquet will be especially brilliant, with 850 guests. Premier Baldwin will give the toast to the Prince's health. The guests will assemble in the Guildhall Library, where the Prince will be ceremoniously welcomed by the Lord Mayor and London Corporation. The recorder will read an address of welcome, to which the Prince will reply, the company then proceeding to the great hall for the banquet.

The Prince's speech will deal with incidents of his tour and will be broadcast for listeners by radio throughout the Kingdom.

ARSENAL HAVE CHANCE TO GRAB LEADERSHIP FROM SUNDERLAND

Will Have Greatly Improved Team Against Blackburn Rovers Saturday.

WEEK END GAMES.

LONDON, Nov. 20 (Canadian Press cable).—Interest in the First Division of the English Football League continues to be focussed on Sunderland and their fans are inclined to concede them another chance, following their disastrous handling of the game last week at Leicester. It is only the most optimistic of Sunderland's supporters who now look at them through the small end of the glasses, for to the more disinterested observer, Sunderland are acting like a team who have shot their bolt and who are cracking under the tremendous pace that they themselves set. An opportunity to re-establish themselves in the favor of their anxious fans presents itself Saturday when the leaders play host to West Ham United. Having the advantage of locale, Sunderland may be expected to try and acquire a couple of points, an experience of which they have been deprived since they won from Bolton Wanderers a month ago. In so doing they will not be called upon to accomplish any wonderful feat for the Hammers are consistent only in their "plodding along." They are neither brilliant nor poor. They have beaten Cardiff City twice and also have taken the scalps of Newcastle United. But beyond this West Ham have not done anything to boast about.

Chance for Arsenal.

Arsenal, travelling only one point behind Sunderland, are offered their chance to snatch the leadership when, with their vastly improved team, they invade Lancashire to wage a campaign against Blackburn Rovers. Having scoured the ends of the earth for talent—and being sufficiently wealthy to purchase the best that's going—Arsenal are now fielding one of the strongest aggregations that ever donned the jersey. Their improvement has been manifested by their running up three wins in a row; first Everton, then Manchester City, and Bury succumbing to their onslaught. Last week's game with Bury was the most convincing victory of Arsenal's season. Blackburn Rovers, on the other hand, are no more than mediocre. They lost to West Ham at Upton Park last Saturday; they drew with Leeds on the preceding Saturday, and before that they had won from Burnley and Notts County. It must be recalled, however, that it was Blackburn Rovers who were the first to check Sunderland's conquering career—and that, in their first win of the season on September 21. This introduces the doubt with respect to Arsenal having a walk-over, and the Rovers' fans are quite prepared to see their team turn the tables on the Highbury club equally as resolutely as they did on Sunderland.

Villans Confident.

Aston Villa, with the memory of a glorious victory over Huddersfield Town a week back still inspiring them, go to Everton convinced that all is over bar the shouting. Everton's positions is humble and their record is a necrology of lost hopes. They began the season poorly and became worse as the weeks advanced. Whether their victory over Notts County last Saturday is an earnest outcome of a serious rally remains to be seen. They have many bitter defeats to atone, and it is doubtful if Aston Villa are exactly the right sort of team to accommodate them. The Villa are running strong in the direction of league honors, and every post is a winning post in their race to the top of the table.

Only one first string game is scheduled for the metropolitan area, with Tottenham Hotspurs acting host to Bolton Wanderers. A slight dent has been made in the 'Spurs armour recently, and this was not at all improved when Newcastle United took a couple of points from them in their last game. At the same time, Bolton are in real earnest about this football business and have forged well to the fore within the past seven weeks. In that time they have dropped only one game, that against Sunderland away from home on October 24. The fact that this game is on the 'Spurs ground gives them an initial disadvantage, but one that is no insurmountable.

Other scheduled encounters are: Liverpool at Birmingham; Manchester United at Bury; Newcastle United at Cardiff; Leicester City at Huddersfield; Notts County at Manchester City; Leeds United at Sheffield; Burnley at West Bromwich.

The Second Division schedule follows: Portsmouth at Barnsley; Preston North End at Bradford; Swansea Town at Chelsea; Wolverhampton Wanderers at Clapton; Stoke City at Darlington; South Shields at Derby; The Wednesday at Hull; Fulham at Nottingham (Forest); Blackpool at Oldham; Middlesboro' at Port Vale; Stockport County at Southampton.

HOCKEY NOTES.

Tex Rickard saw his new hockey team in action at Niagara Falls Wednesday, where the players went through a two-hour practice for the benefit of Rickard and seventeen newspapermen, who made the trip in a special car. Rickard is certain that hockey will go big in New York, for they like action, and he figures that hockey will furnish more of it than any other sport. The first of the championship games will be played for charity and all of the famous New York "400" will witness the game, some of the social leaders having charge of the sale of tickets. The boxes for the game have all been sold at prices that would make Percy Thompson blush.

Windsor's Debut

The new and untried Border Cities hockey team held the champion Niagara Falls to a 2 to 2 tie, in an exhibition game Wednesday night which officially opened Windsor's $200,000 artificial ice arena. The teams struggled evenly through three periods, neither scoring in the first and each scoring a goal in both the second and third. Because it was an exhibition game, an extra period to break the tie was not ordered.

Windsor has entered the senior division of the Ontario Hockey Association, the championship of which was won by Niagara Falls last year. The new team has not been heralded as one likely to take the title away from Niagara its first year out, but the 4,000 fans at the game Wednesday night saw an organization with enough spirit to make up for what it may lack in experience and cleverness.

Stray cats are so numerous in London that more than 100,000 are painlessly destroyed every year by animal welfare institutions.

COUGARS LOST OTTAWA GAME

World's Champions Beaten By Senators in Exhibition Game.

SCORE WAS 6-2.

OTTAWA, Nov. 20 (Canadian Press)—By a score of six goals to two Ottawa Senators last night inaugurated the local professional hockey season with a victory over Lester Patrick's Victoria Cougars, champions of the World. Ottawa showed a dash that was unexpected for their first game of the season, and after holding the Cougars to a one-all score in the opening session went on a scoring bee in the second session and had the score 4 to 1 at the second halt. Outscoring the visitors two to one in the final twenty minutes, the Ottawas finished four goals to the good.

ENGLAND GAINS ANOTHER CHAMP AND KEEPS TWO

But Hobbs Cannot Usurp the Place of the Great Grace.

CRICKET LAURELS

Surrey Players 127 Centuries Tops the Record, But Conditions Change.

England has been in something akin to ferment this Summer. WoM. Hobbs, the Surrey cricketer, break W G. Grace's record of "centuries" which stood at 126—a "century" meaning the scoring of 100 runs or more in individual innings? Again Somerset, in August, Hobbs settled the matter b— hitting hi 127th century!

Since a champion is something of a national institution the non-sporting world has been as enthusiastic as the sporting. Ordinarily when a championship record has been wiped out and the pre-eminent one has been dethroned the title changes hands; when Goliat in the Bible, was knocked out by young David of Judea, the boys were shifted to th' latters now. his is no ways th' case, however, fo there are champions who have exhibited superexcellence successfully over a period of years that even when decline comes and the new stars mske firmament, they still wear the laurel.

So the achievement of Hobbs in one corner of the field in which Grace was so long dominant and unchallenged has but served to draw attention to the performances of Grace. A champion is, according to the books, a fighting man who has reached the top and defies the world to displace him. He should have skill, his superiority must be exhibited over a fairly long testing period, and, since he is representative of sport, he should have personality that has popular attractiveness.

Cricket Demands Stamina.

For forty-three years the hugely picturesque figure of Grace dominated first-class cricket, his career beginning in 1865 and ending only in 1908. During his period he scored the enormous number of 58,136 runs and captured 2,876 wickets—which means much the same as though Babe Ruth, for arms in a huge number of bouts, had gone into the box, and as catcher had brought about the downfall of nearly 3,000 adversaries.

Cricket is a Marathon game rather than a sprinting one, and because of its relatively slower method the casual critic has inferred it to be a tedious sport, frequently interrupted by tea and the solemn muffin. This is largely the calumny of ignorance. If it does not call for exgreme dash and concentrated effort—it demands stamina over the much longer course. In his forty-seventh year Grace was on the field, every minute of a three days' game, either batting, bowling or fielding. In the early days of his carree, when grounds were not the billiard-table affairs they are to-day, the champion of the cricket world not ufrequently came out of a long innings black and blue from left shoulder to ankle as a result of the poundings he received from lightning bowlers on Newbolt's "bumping pitch and a blinding light." The cricket ball pitches before it reaches the batter, and on a rough wicket it is no small task to defend one's sticks, ribs and head at the same time.

Grace a Hurdler.

In his younger days Grace was fast enough over the quarter-mile hurdles to win a national championship, and he might be seen in middle life, during the off season, following afoot a fast pack of beagles over pasture and plow. He could throw a 5½-ounce ball 9 inches in circumference close on 120 yards. Thus it may be seen that, tested after an all-round fashion, he had the distinctiveness that makes the champion.

To this physical ability he added the requisite of personality. One would not need to ask "Which is Grace?" as the eleven he headed came upon the field. The eye instantly fastened on a man, two inches over six feet, with wide shoulders and deep chest, swarthy face half covered by thick black beard and surmounted by a red and yellow cap. He had a bearlike amble, a bearlike shagginess and bearlike rumble and growl in utterance. He suggested a vast, black-whiskered Santa Claus who could be irascible and genial in turn.

The homage of the mob he received with the frank appreciation that the champion would show. He knew he was king by playing right and so, whether at Lords among the top-hatted city folk who rushed out after lunch when the news came that the Old Country fields, or on college grounds, he received the plaudits of the crowds with benignancy and evident gratification. Never was Grace seen to greater advantage than when among a crowd of hero-worshipping school boys on the field.

Once Grace took an eleven down to play Marlborough College. He went in first and scored a run or two; then the plucky young bowler sent down a hot one that got past the leviathan's defense and shattered his stumps. Silence reigned for several moments, then yells of triumph rose. After the game when the visitors accompanied the boys to evening chapel, the hymn chosen by the lads was one of Faber's. No worshipper chuckled more than Grace when the third line of the verse was lustily sung:

The day is gone, its hours have run,
And Thou hast taken count of all;
The scanty triumphs grace hath won,
The broken vow, the frequent fall.

The world will never look upon his like again. Others, like Hobbs, may equal and better some of his performances, but the world has changed vastly since 1865. The conditions of life and living and the setting of the game have so altered that in place of the leisurely, picturesque giant comes the business man Hobbs, who plays the game admirably during the season and sells sporting goods the year round. The sporting world, however, can no more afford to forget champions like Grace than we can afford to lose a great picture, a notable book, a historic edifice.

BRITISH GOODS CAMPAIGN URGED

Board of Trade Asks Mayors To Exhort Their Citizens.

SHOP AT HOME.

LONDON, Eng., Nov. 19.—(Canadian Press).—An exhortation to lord mayors, mayors and the heads of other public bodies throughout the country to urge their people to buy British goods in the period immediately preceding Christmas has been issued by Sir Philip Cunliffe-Lister, president of the Board of Trade, and by Mr. Neville Chamberlain, Minister of Health. It is suggested that in each centre there should be held a British Shopping Week, when home and Empire goods should be prominently brought before the notice of customers.

"By increasing their purchases of British goods in the home market (the statement says) they will reduce the volume of foreign imports and improve the trade balance, thereby enabling this country to invest more in the development of new markets. By increasing the purchases of Empire goods in the home market they will enable the countries of the British Empire to buy more from the Mother Country.

"Every man and woman in Britain can help in these ways. Every purchase helps; and if all join in a common effort the stimulus to British trade. Home and Imperial will be great and immediate. In many quarters people have already shown that they appreciate the need and the possibilities. But there can be no doubt that a national movement to help British trade by buying British goods, will be greatly quickened if a suitable occasion is taken which will focus attention at once upon the need and the opportunity for meeting it."

FOUR out of FIVE are caught

IT'S sheer carelessness to let pyorrhea cause trouble in your mouth. Yet your dentist knows that four out of five past forty, and many younger, suffer from this serious gum disorder.

It begins with tender bleeding gums. Soon the teeth loosen in their sockets and the poison spreads through the system, causing rheumatism, neuritis, and other similar diseases.

Forhan's for the Gums is the simple, easy way to keep you out of pyorrhea's clutches. It's a pleasant dentifrice that firms the gums and gives the teeth a thorough cleansing. It contains Forhan's Pyorrhea Liquid which has been used by dentists for the last 15 years in the treatment of pyorrhea.

If used regularly and in time, Forhan's prevents or checks pyorrhea and so is an important safeguard to health. Begin today to use Forhan's night and morning as a wise precaution. All druggists, 35c and 60c in tubes.

Give Your Dentist a chance

Too many wait until an aching tooth forces them into the dentist's chair. It is folly to suffer this needless pain when all you have to do is to give your dentist a chance to prevent trouble in your mouth by visiting him at least twice a year for a thorough teeth and gum inspection.

BOARD OF TRENT WATERWAYS IS MEETING TO-DAY

Luncheon at Empress Preceded Gathering of Executive.

F. D. KERR PRESIDES.

Revenue of District Increased Quarter of a Million Last Year.

Following a luncheon at the Empress, with the president F. D. Kerr, K.C., acting in the capacity of host, a meeting of the executive of the Trent Waterway Development Association was held in the boardroom of the Chamber of Commerce. Matters referring to the encouragement of the tourist traffic were dealt with, J. Wells Fraser, president of the Chamber of Commerce, indicating the value of the new industry by referring to a bank statement which showed that an increased revenue to the district, amounting to some $254,000, accrued during the past season.

Following an address of welcome by the president of the association, His Worship J. J. Turner extended the civic key, assuring all members of the executive of the hospitality for which the citizens of Peterborough were famous.

In reply, Mr. Kerr stated that his enthusiasm in the work of the Association was unbounded and that the tourist traffic was tapping a new source of wealth.

After the reading of the minutes of the annual meeting which had taken place in June, and at which officers had been elected, G. K. Fraser of Hamilton paid a glowing tribute to the constructive work of the past secretary, Leon Frazer.

"I do not believe that the Trent Waterway Development Association would be in existence to-day were it not for the organizing genius of Mr. Frazer," he declared.

J. Wells Fraser replied, saying that there were no clannish intentions when a Fraser replied to a tribute of a Fraser on behalf of a Frazer.

Leon Fraser stated that the credit was not due him but to the faithful and untiring service given by Senator W. H. Bennett of Midland. Peterboro district, he said, lent itself to boosting, as it was one of the best in Ontario for tourist purposes. It was just a matter of putting it across to the buying public, he declared, in a similar manner to that of a soap or soap manufacturer who uses the medium of advertising to sell his product.

Mentioning the fact that there was a deficit from last years operations, Mr. Frazer assured the association of his moral allegiance until that deficit was wiped off the books.

The Kawartha Lakes, he said, were two years ahead of any other district in the province, and would continue to predominate if they were enthusiastically backed by the Trent Association. He concluded by thanking the board for the expression of appreciation tendered him.

At this point the president, F. D. Kerr, K.C., acquainted the meeting with the news of the death of the Queen Mother Alexandra, and all stood for a moment paying silent tribute to her memory.

Present were: F. D. Kerr, K.C., J. Wells Frazer, R. N. Jones and Frank G. Stinson, of Peterborough; W. C. Moore, Bobcaygeon; E. Tiers, Fenelon Falls; John McCrae, Lindsay; Gordon M. Fraser, Hamilton; Walter Fowlds, Hastings; C. P. Stocking, Waubaushene; George J. Overend, Orillia; Leon Frazer, Toronto.

Mr. Frazer stated that a meeting of the Tourist Association of Ontario would be held in Toronto on Nov. 27th, at the King Edward Hotel. The Toronto City Council will entertain, and the Ontario Government will be represented by the Hon. G. S. Henry.

General Badoglia Denies That He Succeeds Mussolini

ROME, Nov. 20. — (United Press). — Reports that General Badoglia had been designated by Premier Mussolini as his successor in event of assassination were denied to-day by the General himself. Receiving the United Press correspondent, Badoglia laughed at the story and commented: "You will naturally deny it in the most absolute manner."

London reports this week claimed that Mussolini, foreseeing the possibility that an assassination plot might succeed one day, had taken the precaution to perpetuate his regime by appointing the General to assume his post.

The Real Christmas Spirit.

"This is his picture as he is. It seems a thing to marvel on, that thus mine image in the glass should linger when myself am gone."

That's what it does — a photograph. It lingers when you yourself are absent. Whether you are far away or near at hand, this is "yourself as you are." It is the nearest to getting a look at you that those who love you can achieve, and they value it accordingly. Many and many a time has a failing courage been renewed and faith, hope and joy returned to the heart by the receipt of the photograph of one who is far away. We may not know just where he or she may be, this member of a family circle scattered by the years, but, presto! there is the postman's step, an envelope flutters to the floor of the hall, and here you are! the absent one, coming into the house that longs for your home-coming and may have waited for it through years. It is the next best thing to seeing you and clasping your hand.

To the grey-haired mother and father who look for you, you owe the duty of your photograph. To the sweetheart you love and who loves you it is a pleasure to send your picture and to your friends it is a guarantee of your interest in them and in their doings.

And why not send it at Christmas time? The Noel time of the year, when hearts turn back to old friends and old ways, when the hand of friendship may come over thousands of miles of land or sea by way of a personal photograph. Send it at Christmas: "Friendship's perfect gift." Your friends may buy anything else. They cannot buy your photograph. And so when you send it to them you are sending with it a piece of yourself, your thought for them and theirs — not just a token that money can buy, but a souvenir straight from the heart of the sender to the heart of the one who receives it.

CARD OF THANKS.

The family of the late Mrs. Ellen Roach wish to thank Rev. C. J. Maloney, of Sacred Heart parish, also their many friends and relatives for kindness and sympathy shown during their recent sad bereavement.
